SEASON ENDED IN BLAZE OF GLORY

Millikin and Illinois College Suffer Defeat in Last Games of the Season

From the Decatur Herald.
Fourteen hits off Reeter spelled defeat for Millikin in the battle with Eastern Illinois State Normal of Charleston here Wednesday afternoon. The final count was 6 to 2.

Millikin also played an erratic fielding game, which did not help Reeter much in the pinches. The locals got an overdose of confidence in the initial round, when Johnson led off the batting list with a clean home run, which bounced 10 feet high on the North street pavement. Conley also scored the locals other run in the same round on a base on balls, an out and an error. Thereafter Millikin seldom had more than one man on at a time until the last round when High passed the first two who faced him. It looked like a rally, but neither Reeter, Johnson nor Vertress got the ball out of the infield.

Reeters worst inning was the fourth when three runs were scored on Hampton's double with the bases full. H. Long's poor throw to first, and failure to retire a runner at second instead, proved costly in allowing the bags to become choked just ahead of Hampton's swat.

Reeter played a practical joke on his rival, High, in the fifth round, after High had poled a triple, by striking out the last two men up. Millikin's fast double play, which retired Glosser at the plate and High at first in the next inning was the big fielding feature. F. Long also did some jig-time stepping after Turner's long fly in the seventh.

The score:

Normal, 12; Ill. College, 9.
In one of the most exciting games ever witnessed on Illinois field Illinois college went down to defeat before Eastern Illinois Normal Tuesday afternoon by a score of 12 to 9. The battle went for sixteen frames before it was finally decided. During that time Illinois had the game won several times but lost it either thru poor work on the bases or by bad fielding.

It was a game with more good and bad playing in it than is often seen in a half dozen games. Both teams at times pulled off big league plays, only to turn around the next minute and play ball that would be a disgrace to a town lot team.

Pierce in center for Illinois played nearly the whole outfield. He had eight put outs during the afternoon. One of these, a catch of a fly from the bat of Turner in the second was as great a bit of fielding as one sees in the big show. Other chances accepted by Pierce also were difficult but none got away. Riefler caught a good game and kept up the "pep" but his one error was costly. B. Whistler at third though he erred several times played a good game and knocked down several base hits while his brother, E. Whistler made a beautiful catch off of Cook in the thirteenth inning.

For the visitors Hampton caught a good game and Anderson saved a number of wild throws at first. Cook who alternated at short and second also played a star game having a total of sixteen chances of which he accepted fourteen.

Neither team was able to put a run across in the first three innings. In the fourth Illinois penetrated the visitors' defense and scored a run on two singles and a wild pitch. Normal came back in her half of the fifth and scored two runs. Harris walked and went to third on Moore's double. Gaylord erred on Andersons grounder and both scored. Illinois was not to be denied, however, and came back in the sixth and scored three runs on two bases on balls and two doubles. The game went along without anything exciting and it looked as though Illinois had it stowed away in the bat bag until the ninth. Then a scratch infield hit, a single and sacrifice fly put over two runs and tied the score.

The tenth passed without incident, but in the eleventh there was a bombardment. The visitors started the trouble. With the aid of a batter hit, an error, two doubles, a stolen base and a single, four runs were pushed over. Illinois was not to be outdone, however, and came back with three singles, a double, two errors and a passed ball tied the count.

A fielders choice, two stolen bases and an error gave Normal one in the twelfth. An infield single and two errors allowed Illinois to tie it again in her half. The game then went until the sixteenth when the visitors with the aid of a single, an error, a stolen base, a fielders choice and a double scored three runs.

A question of etiquette—Should or may one of us common people walk in front of Duke Anderson, of Eastern Illinois?

JUNIOR-SENIOR PICNIC

One of the largest social events in the history of the school took place last Friday when nearly one hundred and fifty juniors and seniors, and a score of the faculty enjoyed themselves at the Rocks. It took seven hay-racks and several automobiles and carriages to haul the crowd out and back and an extra wagon to haul the "eats." And such eats, pork and beans, potato salad, etc. You know what picnic fare is and how well it tastes. Especial mention is due the lemonade, of which over twelve gallon was drunk. Everyone seemed to have a good time, going, coming, and while they were there some fished, some spent the afternoon boat riding, some swam and some tramped over the beautiful grounds, viewing the caves and rock cliffs with interest and delight. Others made good use of swings, ropes, and etc., and still others sat or lay in the shade and watched the rest or studied "nature."

All the way home, the different wagon of seniors and juniors tried to see which could out do the other in making the most noise through the medium of class or school songs and yells. When the picnicing bunch reached the square, the wagons massed together twice and everyone united in yelling for juniors and seniors and our school.

Y. W. C. A.

The regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held in the parlors of Pemberton Hall, Thursday evening. Miss Mildred Gray led the meeting. Miss Chlora Steven read "The Other Wise Man." Vandyke. The representatives to the Geneva Conference were chosen as follows: Gladys Smith, Mary Bell, Grace Reininga, Hazel Young, Mary Lyle and Zula Phillippe, Alternate.

NEW TENNIS COURTS

Four new tennis courts are in the course of construction on the south end of the Model school play grounds south of the Green House. Two of them are for the use of the faculty, being put up by them and the other two are for the school. This makes eight courts for the school which will give more students a chance to develop their skill in the art of tennis.

Miss Flolla Doty, a member of the class of '14, was married a few days ago in Decatur to Don T. Lacy of Mattoon. Mr. and Mrs. Lacy will reside at Mattoon.

A SYNOPSIS OF "AS YOU LIKE IT"

Orlando himself is not getting along well. Oliver, his brother, has sworn to kill him, and not desiring to enter into the "beyond" state at so healthy an age Orlando, accompanied by a servant, also moves bag and baggage to the forest. He finds the banished Duke and his followers living a sort of pastoral Utopian existence. Meanwhile, Rosalind and Celia reaching the forest are unable to find the banished Duke. They accept a shepherd's cottage as a temporary home. Later Orlando finds the Duke, and upon making known his identity is received with open arms into the Duke's forest community.

In the third act we find Rosalind in the disguise of Ganymede and Celia as Aliena. In their wanderings, day by day, they find mysterious poems tacked on the trees of the forest, and it dawns upon Rosalind that the beautiful expressions of love penned to Rosalind in the occasional verses are the love missives of the man she is in love with, Orlando. As fate, or fiction will have it, she encounters Orlando in the forest, is somewhat abashed over the appearance of her disguise as a man, but goes through with her part. He tells her of his love for Rosalind, and she agrees to "cure" him of it if he will visit her daily at her cottage and woo her as though she were Rosalind. Orlando agrees, not knowing that it is with his own love that he is bargaining.

Day after day Orlando visits Ganymede; day after day he carries out his program. On one visit to the cottage he comes across a man lying by the roadside. The man is asleep, but there is a lioness nearby, ready to attack him, and a snake lurks in the brushwood. Orlando recognizes the man as his brother, Oliver. He forgets the brother's enmity, slays the lioness and routs the snake. Oliver is touched by the kindness; they become friends once more. But Orlando had been wounded in the encounter with the lioness, and sends Oliver to tell Rosalind of his injury. She faints upon hearing the news, but swears later "that the swoon was counterfeited."

The last act is one of matches. Celia and Oliver have fallen in love. They are inseparable and decide to marry on the following day, but the pining of Orlando for his Rosalind will not permit of great jolification. Ganymede promises Orlando that she can bring Rosalind to the forest by magic, and assures the love-sick adventurer that Rosalind will marry him when Celia and Oliver are joined together. She orders everything made ready for the wedding, obtaining from the banished Duke permission for the marriage of Orlando and Rosalind, who is none other than herself. At the appointed time she appears. Orlando and Rosalind wed. Celia and Oliver are wed. Touchstone also takes unto himself a wife, and another union is effected between a shepherd and a shepherdess. The news then arrives that Frederick has been converted by a hermit, and that the banished Duke's rights are to be restored.

That is "As You Like It."

There are those who would call it impossible in the very critical manner that anything improbable is described today in connection with modern drama; but there is no one to deny that it is lovely, intensely lovely, lovely beyond anything in the way of idyllic tales, unless it be the far-fetched yarns of mythology that are impossible of presentation, even in a Forest of Arden.

The story itself bespeaks the propriety of the presentation in the campus. And what we have given here is but the outline of a tale that is told by Shakespeare as no other man ever told one. We have not entered into the courtly "flying" or the subtle humor. And it is in these that Shakespeare adds to the mere tale the thing that makes him worth while.
