LEECHES

One commonly thinks of leeches as little animals that infest streams, but there is another genera—the human leech, consisting of two species, one of noxious habits, the other thoroughly commendable.

Individuals of the first species of the human genera prey on time and exhaust all courteous feelings in their victims. One of these creatures coming in proximity to one, firmly fixes itself, clinging with desperate tenacity, while it sucks out the precious seconds, minutes, and perhaps even hours of time. Or it may be that one of these pernicious leeches wastes the time of an entire class in sneaking audibly, perhaps consuming five minutes in rising and answering a simple question that five seconds should have taken care of.

Seldom indeed, can one go to church, club, or an appointed meeting of any sort, that one is not upset by the tardy entrance of one or more of these reprehensible leeches. Worse still, if an opportunity offers, they will consume more time retelling a thousand and one excuses which no one listens to or cares in the least about.

On the mornings set apart for chorus practice, the student body is so slow and dilatory in its movement that the casual observer might easily get the impression that it was a tribe of very sluggish leeches.
The second points about a leech includes all those individuals who pursue an assigned task without once turning aside, until the given work is completed, whatever it may be.
This species is extremely conscientious and punctual in the performance of all duties. They are thoughtful and considerate of others. In short they approach the ideal.

Anyone may look in the mirror of his memory and see his own reflection clear and distinct. It does not take a very critical analysis of the proper species, but very often such an analysis initiates import and reform.

WHAT'S WRONG?

Are the students supporting the team of our school? A big "yes" should be the answer to this question. But there surely is some doubt about it, at least in the minds of many of the players since they have remarked that "the students are not with us" and "there is no pep among the students." Is there any justification for the players uttering such remarks? There certainly is.

To support the team most effectively the students should be at the games, be there on time, and then yell after they get there. Being there on time means being there 20 or 30 minutes before the game is called. Everybody should be ready to cheer the team as it comes onto the floor. Consider for a moment a recent game, a typical one, and ponder where our students were. When the boys came onto the floor there were about two dozen students on the south side of the gym to cheer

CHAPTER 18.

THE NEWS lost a faithful advertiser this week when the Boyer Ice Cream factory burned Saturday night, thus rendering that worthy firm temporarily homeless. Boyer's had a good trade and had built up a paying business. It is hoped that the firm will rebuild and be ready for the flourishing spring and summer ice cream trade.

Have you noticed Parker's announcement of new spring millinery?
They have a new stock of Gage hats just imported from New York. The Parker store is a thoroughly up-to-date dry goods establishment, complete in every detail, and a store that Charleston has abundant reason for being proud of.

THE NEWS is pleased to welcome another advertiser to join its directory of merchants who sell the best.

them. The balcony was pretty well filled, but it is not the balcony people that give the team the mass cheers, and the mass cheers are what the

What kind of noise can two dozen people make? A great deal in the middle of the night when every thing else is quiet and people are sleeping, but not very much in the gymnasium at a basketball game. By the time the referee started the game the south bleachers were fairly well filled, but they would have held a good many of the absent students.

Students, why not come out and fill these bleachers to their capacity?
The townspeople fill comfortably the north side bleachers at nearly every game. The townspeople pay 35 cents to see two teams play that do not interest them to any great extent except as two basketball teams. Of course they are generally for our team, but they don't feel towards the players as the students should feel. On the other hand the students pay less than six cents per game, whether they attend or not. Since they pay their athletic fees anyway, why don't they go and get their money's worth? Their very presence helps the team, and surely there is no student who can't get a little pleasure out of a good clean sport once in a while.

Now let's turn over a new leaf and turn out for the games. Every student should be there for at least two reasons: for his own pleasure and to encourage the players. The men on the team like to hear a wild chorus of cheers for them, not only when they are winning but as well when they are a few points behind. Let's not be afraid to open our mouths. Of course we feel better when our team is ahead but let's cheer them stoutly regardless of which way the score stands.
Let's be 100 per cent efficient, with every student at the games and yelling for E. I. varsity and high school.
Let's show the teams that we are behind them, and that we do have pep.
We can't win if we don't yell after we get there. Yea E. I. Let's do it!

—Harold H. Kerr.

SEVENTH GRADE PUPILS

"WRITE UP" MARIONETTES

Elsewhere in this issue appears Elsie Sloan's review of the marionette shows last Tuesday. It is interesting to compare the impressions gained by a NEWS staff member and representatives of the large assemblage of school children that received the matinee performance with such wild enthusiasm. But let Lyle Henderson and Mabel Stillion, pupils in the seventh grade of the training school, speak for themselves. Here is the former's comment on "Rip Van Winkle":

Tuesday, Jan. 30, in the assembly hall, I spent one of the most enjoyable afternoons of my rather short life. I went to my first marionette show. They acted "Rip Van Winkle." Those curious little fellows were the most mystifying creatures I ever saw. They would walk, talk, sit down, in fact almost everything human beings can do. It seemed that they could almost hop off the stage and shake hands with me.
Rip's wife was a very veritable acid.
She scolded him, scolded him, and scolded him some more. She was very lifelike. The innkeeper was one of my favorites. He was a fat and jolly old fellow. The scenery was some of the best I have ever seen.

The lighting effect was the crowning part of the play. It was wonderful!
The parts I liked best were the scene in the cave and Rip Van Winkle's home when it was thundering. When the play was over, without a word I was sure that Tony Sarg had the best marionette show in the world.
Mabel Stillion summarizes her emotions and impressions in the following entertaining manner:
"The hands of the clock gradually moved closer to 3:30. Would they ever get there? It seemed hours to me since I had come to school at noon. I was to see my first marionette performance. What I had heard about them had put my curiosity on edge. All the afternoon my mind had kept wandering from my lessons. I could think of nothing but marionettes. The clock's hands now pointed at 3:30. It was time to go!
In a few minutes more I was walking down the hall of the big building.
I handed my ticket to the man at the door, with my heart beating like a trip-hammer. I found a seat, and sat down to wait until the performance commenced. It seemed as if

LIBERAL PRIZES

FOR COLLEGE ESSAYS
A contest which closes March 15 1923, is being conducted by the Institute of International Education of New York, in which the three best essays written on "The Cancellation of the Allied Debts" will receive prizes. The three prizes offered are $150, $100, and $50. The contest is open to any undergraduate student in any college or university in the United States. This includes anyone who in a college or scientific school is doing the work prescribed for the degree of bachelor, or its technical equivalent.

The essays must not exceed 5,000 words (a length of 3,000 words is preferable), and must be typewritten on one side only of plain paper of ordinary letter size (8x10). Each essay should bear a "nom de plume" which should be included in an accompanying letter giving the writer's real name, college, class, and address. The essays should be mailed flat (no rolled). Both the letter and the essay should reach Margaret C. Alexander, Secretary of International Relations, Ciba, Institute of International Education, 407 West 117th Street, New York City, not later than March 15 1923. The award of the prize will be made May 1.

Mr. Thomas will be glad to see any student in this school who would like to consider writing on this subject for the contest. A few years ago an E. I. student was awarded a prize in a similar contest.

FOOTBALL GLORIES RECALLED AT CHAPEL

A most pleasing chapel exercise was held Saturday morning. After the usual preliminaries the time was in the hands of the Student Council which had provided a program to help "show off" the new football sweaters—a happening welcomed by all the letter men and the student body.

The Girls' Glee Club started the ball rolling with "Cheerfulness." Then the football letter men, decked with the E. I. monogram sweaters, took their honored places on the front row of the platform.

Arthur Forster, president of the Student Council, was the master of ceremonies. Mr. Taylor was the first speaker heard from. He told of former football coaches, captains, teams, and opponents, all of which helped put the sport on the map for E. I. After hearing of these past glories, Mr. Lantz reviewed the games of the present year, in which the blue-clad heroes on the platform were not defeated.

Most Captain Greathouse was the first speaker to represent the team. Then Creamer, captain-elect for 1923, was heard from. All of the players gave a chance to say something and show off their sweaters to better advantage. It is to be regretted that Ashbrook did not get to make his "splurge" with his sweater during the Christmas vacation.

The players that sat on the platform were Greathouse, Creamer, Gilbert, Ashbrook, Lee, Snyder, Muchmore, Warner, Donaldson, Osborn, and Funkhouser. The two absent letter men, Galbreath and Anderson who are not in school this term, will receive their sweaters via mail this week. Coach Lantz was also remembered with a new sweater, but he forgot to wear it Saturday morning.

However glad the players may be that they have this mark of distinction, they cannot be any more so than the rest of the student body. Now E. I. is looking forward to next year when Creamer will lead his crew to victory. And E. I. hopes to see more such chapel exercises in the future with the students having a part than she has seen in the past.
