Student leaders lobby for IBHE voting privilege

by Sandy Young

Members of Eastern's student government will lobby in Springfield Thursday in an attempt to get a voting student member on the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Student Body President Bill Houlihan said members of the Illinois Student Association will lobby Illinois senators in an effort to get House Bill 2104, which provides for a voting student member, out of committee and onto the Senate floor.

Houlihan said the bill is considered "an emergency piece of legislation," and as such it needs a two-thirds vote to get out of the committee.

But once the bill is on the Senate floor it can pass by a simple majority, he added.

If the bill does pass the senate it will then go to Gov. Jim Thompson.

Houlihan said the bill is being sponsored by Larry Stuffle (D-Charleston) and six or seven other legislators from college campuses across the state.

After the student government members arrive in Springfield, they will meet with Stuffle and Sen. Donnewald before talking to other senators from this area.

Houlihan said the bill is an "excellent one."

"It's time that students have a vote when it comes to tuition increases on these boards. It's nice for them to let us (student representatives) sit in, but you wouldn't have any say unless you get a vote," he said.

If this bill passes, Houlihan said students will be more closely listened to on boards.

Weather

There will be considerable cloudiness and warmer temperatures Thursday with highs in the mid 60s. Thursday night will be partly cloudy with lows in the upper 40s to low 50s.

Marvin seeks opinions on education package

by Marsha Hausser

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said he will consult students and faculty members for their views on the newly revised general education requirements and will also consider the educational and economic ramifications of the requirements before approving them.

The Council on Academic Affairs recently passed new general education requirements in response to Marvin's earlier request that the council develop a general education plan which would extend throughout students' four years at Eastern and give students a broader educational base.

Before he will approve of the new requirements—which will include a junior English competency exam, a foreign language requirement for bachelor of arts candidates and one-hour senior seminars in which students would study topics outside their majors—Marvin said he wants to study the total "impact" the requirements would have at Eastern.

One problem Marvin said might deter institution of requirements is the cost involved. A foreign language requirement may require additional faculty in that department to handle students—something the university may not be able to afford.

The senior seminars would also create a need for more faculty members and although Marvin said he "strongly favors" the seminars concept, he realizes the seminars may not be feasible because of that.

Marvin said he favors "some type of test to show that students can handle the English language" but he is not sure if the written theme proposed by the English department is the answer to that problem.

He said the department's proposed method of grading the exam, which would be to record either a pass or fail based on the general impression obtained after reading the theme, is good. However, he also said he can see the other point of view—that measuring a students' writing skills may not be an accurate method of testing English competency.

The foreign language requirement for bachelor of arts candidates is one feature of the CAA's package about which Marvin said he has some reservations.

Because the requirement would only apply to BA applicants, Marvin said he fears that student will opt for bachelor of science degrees, hurting those majors which offer a bachelor of arts, and eliminating the purpose of instituting the requirement.

Charleston breaks barbershop quartet tradition

by Diane Cooper

Barbershop quartet. To most people, the term conjures up visions of four men in straw hats, striped vests and gartered sleeves, warbling songs of love and lazy summer days.

In this day of changing lifestyles it comes with little surprise to find a more feminine version of the art right here in Charleston.

Charleston resident Suzanne Goodrich sings the bass part in her quartet, the New Creation, so named because of a change in members. "It's like starting all over again, working to blend new voices," she said.

She said there is a little difference between men's and women's quartets. "Of course, we sing a little higher. But not always, because ours is a lower quartet."

Other quartet members are tenor Marilyn Garren, baritone Marge Woodall and lead Barbara Funk. Three of the members are wives of Eastern faculty members. Although the New Creation was formed a year and a half ago, Goodrich and Funk have been in quartets "for seven or eight years, on and off," Goodrich said. The two originated their first quartet after a lunchtime discussion. "We thought it would be neat to get together and sing," she said. They got friends to join in and "it just happened our voices could stand the parts."

The quartet sings in Charleston and surrounding towns for Kiwanis, Rotary and other group functions, and for churches, fitting performances in between individual schedules. The quartet's schedule also "depends on the season," Goodrich said. "Right now we're busy, with things like mother and daughter banquets."

The New Creation sings "some of the same songs the men sing, but with different arrangements," she said. It takes the quartet only two or three meetings to learn a new number, "depending on the length and difficulty of the song. Sometimes we put in a couple of extra hours before a performance if we think we need it."

Besides performing on its own, the New Creation is part of the Sweet Adelines, and sings with the Chimers, its local chapter.

"The Sweet Adelines is the major organization. It's all over this country and Hawaii, and England," Goodrich said. For women barbershop quartets only, the organization is a counterpart to a similar men's organization.

Some of the benefits of belonging to the Sweet Adelines are the conventions and workshops. "We work with directors, and on make-up, costuming and everything else that goes into it," Goodrich explained, adding that workshops will be held shortly in Peoria and at the University of Illinois.

The Chimers chorus was formed a year after Goodrich and Funk began their quartet, and is now directed by another original member of their foursome. To remain a Sweet Adeline chapter the Chimers need 20 members, and they now have 23, Goodrich said. The group practices every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. "at the church across the street from the 3-D store in Mattoon," she said, and women interested in singing with the Chimers should "come and see us" at a practice session.

Eastern's community will have a chance to see the Chimers close to home next fall. "We're going to put on a show September 20," Goodrich said. The show will be in Charleston, "maybe on the campus, but I'm not sure," she added.

Goodrich enjoys singing with her quartet and has no plans to stop. "We seem to enjoy it and each other still, after all these years," she said.

What do female barbershop quartet singers wear? Not stripes, at least not for the New Creation. Instead, Goodrich said their costumes range from long gingham skirts with old-fashioned high-necked blouses and hats to nautical-looking jumpsuits. Times have changed.

Gov. James R. Thompson today said he was scrapping his proposal for $115 million in income tax rebates and called for a legislative moratorium on most tax relief proposals until the fall. House committee passes ERA resolution

By a wafer-thin margin, an Illinois House committee today approved a resolution to ratify the federal Equal Rights Amendment and sent it to the House floor. The resolution was passed by an 8-4 vote of a House Judiciary Committee, exactly the number required to pass.

Coffey supports president's action toward Iran

by Vicki Shaw

Now is the time when we all need to support our president and Congress in their actions, State Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston, said Tuesday.

Coffey was referring to the recent aborted rescue attempt of the Iranian hostages.

"I back the president on his actions, we can't let Iran push us around," Coffey said. "The country should stick together during the times between elections."

Coffey said he does not think the failed rescue attempt would have any effect on the release of the hostages.

"I don't think you can deal with them, (the militants)" Coffey said. "The government isn't in control. We can't get together just to discuss the issues and we can't respond to each other."

Coffey said he now expected some time to pass before anything else would be done, possibly some military action.

"I do feel that all things are possible peacefully though," he said, adding he thought Carter should have taken his economic measures earlier.

Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston Supports Carter's rescue attempt

Coffey said he does not want the United States to get into a war where it really does not belong, a situation that has happened so many times before.

"I have a son who is 18. I don't want him to go into war uselessly. I want us to have in mind what we want to do, go over and do it, then return," he said.

Coffey had no strong reaction to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's resignation.

"He did what he felt he had to. I think there are many people who could replace him and do the job just as well, if not better."

Coffey emphasized the importance of the country sticking together and giving support to the president and Congress in their actions.

"Until election time, we must support those already in office. In November, if we aren't pleased with the job that has been done, we can replace them," Coffey said.

Although Coffey still is uncommitted in the upcoming election, he said he was leaning toward Ronald Reagan.

He said the country is now in double inflation figures and something has to be done about that.

And on the issue of independent presidential candidate John Anderson possibly asking Walter Cronkite to be his running mate, Coffey said, "Anderson's grabbing at straws to keep himself in the running."

"He lost the Republican nomination and is now running a third party race strictly on publicity," Coffey said.

New energy course for summer offered

Students registered for summer school may be interested in a new course offered in the sociology department, Byron Munson, developer of the course and sociology instructor, said.

"Social Aspects of Energy" will be offered at 10:20 a.m. Monday through Thursday for three credit hours.

The course is an analysis of the social implications of energy in a social change context. Major emphasis will be on energy shifts in history and projected development of alternate energy sources.

There are no prerequisites for the course. If students have an interest in the course they should speak with Munson.

The last college life column via Supertramp

In the past four years, Eastern has satisfied my college career quite well.

Looking back over the trials and tribulations of the semesters gone, little regrets come to mind. Instead, like most seniors tend to do, reflections of the past float to the mind's surface.

On today's agenda is a look back from the Old Zootramp days to the present thoughts, with apologies to Supertramp, the last safari shall begin.

"The Logical Song." I was sent away to be taught how to be sensible, logical, responsible and practical. The system is set to make you dependable, intellectual and clinical in the sense of fitting perfectly into the status quo. I've questioned too many things to probably fit the standard mold. That makes me a radical or liberal, but in a constructive manner, respectable for standing away for a traditional rut.

Now if you think I believe schooling is phoney, you may be "Bloody Well Right." There are schools where money and status are criteria for admission. Not so at Eastern. The friendly campus and people built a philosophy of "it's not who you are, but what you are." It's the people that make the school, and from experiences some of the best have been here.

"School" I have found, no matter what anyone else says, must be experienced outside the confines of the classroom. Parents and teachers tell you not to hang out around and learn what life's about. More current discussions occur in the bars or at parties than the publishers can print in textbooks or catalogue in the library.

But one has to "Give A Little Bit." God knows how many wasted hours spent on road trips, Marty's, Ike's or Roc's compared to the needed hours researching at the library. But somehow, it all has worked out fine, better than most students juggling grades and socialization.

Paul

Lately, I'm "Just Another Nervous Wreck" trying to complete overdue papers, incompletes and tests. I used to never open a textbook until midterm and study like hell for the finals. This semester senioritis, untreatable at the Health Service but calmed at Cub games and Marty's safaris, has taken a pretty strong hold. But I've overcome adversity in every other crisis, so I don't worry.

"Crisis, What Crisis?" You name it, I'll tell you about it. Long days at the News, wake up calls from the press, bouncing checks, all-nighters, people complaining about one thing or another, a bad back, an overdue project or an insane adventure. Most people can budget time to correct problems, but I'm too lazy, a born procrastinator, to figure most of it out. Live day by day is what I say.

Throughout these crisis', you can run out of time, rolling in visions of pain in the mind or pain in the body. A "Child of Vision" asks should we change, but I don't think so. "there must be more to this life than we finally did. . . ." Of course, no one can accomplish everything but if I had to do it over again, I probably wouldn't change much.

Eastern News Opinion/Commentary

Thursday, May 1, 1980/Page 4

Outside the walls of Eastern, there is an uncertainty. Inside there is a certain routine, a calm, appealing lifestyle. Everybody's like "Rudy," they need time to think, a time for living. There's too much pressure placed on excellence and success to meet society's push into the whirlpool of jobs and careers. It takes time to figure which direction to take. Eastern is calm enough to make those decisions with the experiences of outside speakers and participation in activities to leave the walls prepared enough to adapt.

However, I can say I'm still a "Dreamer" of sorts. On my college life: what a day, what a year, what a life it's been. I knew it wouldn't be too bad, since I was surrounded by enough crazy people to make it all worthwhile.

Now, with eight days left, I'll "Take The Long Way Home," thinking of what could have been or might of been. I'll have to make those plans for the future, settle up here and move along. That's what the course catalogue says.

"The Crime of the Century" has to be graduation because you leave so much behind. All the things that made the place a livable place for so long-- the diverse personalities, the loves and good times, the crazy events, and the memories of four short years.

It's now time to close the book on my columns for the News. I hope you've either enjoyed them or hated them--in either case you read them which is the bottom line of writing, communicating. I'll do more communicating with the bar in Chicago now; no, not Billy Goats or Rush Street, but the legal one.

So, "Goodbye Strangers" I've enjoyed my stay at Eastern, but I must be moving along. It's been nice, and I truly hope you find your own little paradise. I've tried to see your point of view and I figure most of your dreams will probably come true, if you work at it.

It's been semi-tough, but that's what life's all about. I feel no sorrow, feel no shame and after tomorrow I'll literally feel no pain.

Will we ever meet again is a question raised at graduation.

I'll "see ya" at Homecomings, graduations, weddings, Schuetzenfest and the most unexpected times or encounters. Keep the faith while I go on another safari.

Peace.

Letters to the editor

First aid

Editor,

I worked security at Sunday's R.E.O. Speedwagon concert, and, while the show went quite well, there was one very disturbing incident. A concert goer received a gash on his head. There is no first aid station set up in Lantz, not even a first aid kit. So I used my handkerchief to stop the bleeding, so his firend could drive him to Sarah Bush.

If there had been a more serious injury, I would have been helpless. The potential for injury in a packed gymnasium is enormous, but I suppose nothing will be done until someone is hurt badly enough for it to hit the papers.

I cannot believe that the UB sets up security, ushers, hospitality, and stage crews, but is so negligent that they do not even provide a band aid in cases someone gets hurt.

I know that if I paid $8.50 to see a concert, and then found the only bandage was a dirty handkerchief, I would be furious to say the least.

hope the UB will take some of the money they made on this concert and make a first aid station at the next one. The least they could do is provide a basic first aid kit.

Christopher Baddeley

With less than one week remaining before final exams, we have not received the textbooks we need to read to pass the final exam. We have discussed this matter with Dr. Thorson, head of the department, Andrea Bonnicksen, instructor, Dean Johnson, Assistant Dean of Students, and Samuel Taber, Dean of Academic Services. This matter has not been resolved.

Obviously this problem is caused by too few books for too many students. It is obvious that this problem cannot be corrected before final exams. The school administration needs to examine the present registration system to prevent this problem from occurring again. We feel it reasonable that someone be held responsible for causing several candidates for graduation to be placed in this precarious position.

UB problem

Editor,

As a student body publication, I feel you should inform the students of a person who is totally inept and lacking in leadership qualities in his University Board Appointment. I am speaking of Mike Berggren, the Concert Coordinator on the University Board.

As a general staff member and executive staff member of WELH, I have tried to conduct two interviews for the radio station of this campus and have two very uncooperative and disconcerting experiences with Mr. Berggren.

My first experience was at the Harry Chapin concert where I had an interview planned with Harry Chapin after speaking with Harry Chapin's agent in New York City. Mr. Berggren refused to believe me; when I asked him to check with an official, he refused and his totally uncooperative behavior almost prevented me from interviewing Harry Chapin. However, I did succeed with the help of Booker Suggs who informed me where the interview was taking place.

Almost the same situation occurred at REO Speedwagon, but this time Mr. Berggren stopped me at the door. I was late; he claimed the press box was closed. He said my tickets had been given to someone on my staff, and calling me a liar (among other things) had me thrown out by the security at the concert.

Mr. Berggren told me I couldn't speak with anyone else until after the concert. When I again asked to speak with someone else, he said, "Sure after the concert."

On my way out of Lantz, I saw a UB official and asked him to help me clean things up with Mr. Berggren. Mr. Berggren however wouldn't cooperate, and brought up trivial matters as to who called whom to arrange the interview. I tried to reason with mr. Berggren about the press passes for WELH, but with no luck. Booker Suggs again tried to settle the matter, but Mr. Berggren got more and more obstinate.

In summary, my staff member conducted the interview, and I left without receiving anything from Mr. Berggren but confusion.

I feel we as students deserve more efficient and cooperative behavior. After all, Mr. Berggren is a student also. With more adequate concert coordinating, maybe we'd get concerts of higher caliber, because if Mr. Berggren deals with concert promoters as he does "peon students" we're really in trouble.

I would really hate to see Mr. Berggren dealing with important people and treating them the same as he does other people he pushes around. This doesn't say too much for our University Board, and I don't think he deserves to represent it.

I want to thank Booker Suggs for his help and trouble, but I don't think Mr. Suggs should do his job and Mike Berggrens also.

I don't know or care if Mr. Berggren likes me or now, but he should be able to deal professionally with people that his job requires him to.

If he can't someone who can deal effectively with people in a professional way, should replace Mr. Berggren. This only seems fair.

High interest rates slow borrowing from banks

by Jerry Fallstrom

On a nationwide basis, high interest rates have discouraged people from borrowing money from banks and savings and loan institutions. Locally, however, some bankers say Charleston banks have not had the problems others have.

"This community is not typical of the country as a whole," said Carl Tinder, a vice president and loan officer at Charleston National Bank.

The Carter Administration has been trying to control inflation, now at an annual rate of 18 percent, by making an effort to limit consumer spending. Interest rates have jumped in the past few months as the government attempts to tighten credit to force banks to become more selective in granting loans.

"Charleston is a pretty stable community. We have a good strong farming community and a stable industry," he said. "I think we are in a slight recession, but we haven't seen the effects a lot of other communities have."

Despite this, Charleston banks are generally being more selective in their approval of loans. Many local bankers say loan applications are down, and this indicates people are not even bothering to try for a loan.

The prime interest rate, the rate leading banks charge their best customers, is now 19½ percent. It is a leading indicator of the cost of funds and affects the loan interest rates local banks charge.

Baird to appear for Coffeehouse

Boston street singer Stephen Baird will show his musical talents during the University Board's Coffeehouse at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Rathskeller.

Lori Johnson, Coffeehouse coordinator, said Baird will play a number of instruments including the dulcimer, autoharp, six-and-12 string guitars plus a kazoo.

Johnson said the range of music will include drinking songs, traditional ballads, children songs and ragtime music.

She said Baird will also perform Thursday afternoon in the Library Quad.

Johnson said Baird has appeared on television and radio where he has appealed to many different individual's tastes.

She added that Baird has also appeared at many different colleges and universities across the country at coffeehouse productions such as East-

Car loans at the Bank of Charleston go for 16¼ percent and require 40 percent down payment, Bank President Larry Harshbarger said Tuesday.

"We used to ask 25 percent," Harshbarger said.

"Our loan volume has been off by a third since the first of the year," Harshbarger said.

"I think things will get worse by summer," he said.

According to Cliff Collins, a cashier at Coles County National Bank, "We are being more choosy on our loans." Collins said his bank requires a 20 percent down payment on automobile loans.

Jeff Baker, secretary-treasurer at Columbian Savings and Loan Association, said those applying for home loans have been fewer.

"Home sales have been off from what they were in the last year or two," Baker said. "I think what we are experiencing is a major problem with inflation."

Baker said the going rate for home loans at Columbian is 15¼ percent.

To offset the high interest rates, banks and savings and loans institutions have offered a number of savings certificates with yields much higher than before.

Baker said a six-month, $10,000 certificate has been popular. This certificate's rates of interest are tied to the rate paid on U.S. Treasury notes which peaked at 15.7 percent before stabilizing a few percentage points lower.

Tinder said there has not been much affect on auto loans at Charleston National Bank. He said a new car, four-year loan for $6,000 costs 16 percent annually.

Columbian Savings and Loan offers a 30-month certificate which has no minimum deposit, Baker said, and is currently yielding about 11 percent interest.

"The 30-month certificate has not been received with as much interest as the six-month," Baker said. "I think it will prove to be as attractive as the months go on."

Tinder said small savers have been hurt by inflation. He said Charleston National Bank is getting a lot of business in the $10,000 certificates.

"That certificate did pay 15.7 percent. When you pay out 15.7 and receive 16 percent on loans, there's not much left for profit."

Eastern student to intern at Brigham Young

by Sarah Coyle

An Eastern student graduating this semester was chosen by The Association of College and University Housing Officers to attend Brigham Young University as an intern for the summer session.

Al Hargrave, a residence assistant in Stevenson, will spend this summer learning how the Housing Office at Brigham Young in Utah operates, Assistant Housing Director Mary Smith said.

ACUHO is an international program covering the United States, Mexico and Canada. The ACUHO internship committee places graduate students interested in learning more about the housing field at participating schools, Smith said.

Hargrave, one of 30 students chosen, picked Brigham Young because it is so different from Eastern. Brigham Young is a Mormon school, he said.

"They don't allow smoking or drinking in the residence halls," he said.

Smith believes the program will be both beneficial to Hargrave and Eastern. "Al will go outside of our system to look at another system and bring back new ideas," Smith said.

Hargrave will be a graduate assistant living in one of the halls here next year, she said.

Hargrave will work in different areas of housing at Brigham Young. "I will be working with off-campus housing, married housing, high school orientation, the food service and learning the business aspect of running the housing office as well," he said.

Eastern's Housing Office is considering the possibility of developing an internship program through ACUHO for next year, Smith said.

Houlihan says he overcame credibility problem

by Carolyn Waller

Bill Houlihan said his duties as student body president include appointing students to boards and councils, being spokesman on behalf of the student government to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin and making proposals from the Student Senate get to Marvin and Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams.

Houlihan said he had some problems with credibility when he was connected with a shoplifting incident last fall. But "I feel I have overcome it," he said.

He said he did not try staying away from discussion of the shoplifting.

He said, "The senate and the student body felt I could do the job."

Another problem Houlihan encountered in his administration was removal of student members from boards and councils.

Houlihan asked Linda Phillips to resign from her position as student representative to the Council on Academic Affairs and she refused his request.

Phillips took her case to the senate, which ruled in favor of her retainment on the council.

Houlihan said the problem was worked out. "Linda Phillips and I are speaking," he said.

In reference to appointments on boards, Houlihan said he would have liked to place students on councils faster than he did.

Student Body President-elect Bob Glover said the executive vice president should have a greater role in choosing students to serve on boards.

Glover said there are 40 appointments and reappointments to be made on various councils and the Student Supreme Court.

Houlihan said there was also a political conflict between himself and Financial Vice President Kevin Sandefur this year.

Houlihan cited the Model U.N. and the athletic fee increases as issues they clashed on.

He said he respects Sandefur's political opinion, but he does not always agree with it.

Glover said he saw "dissension" among the executive officers this year, but the newly elected officers are committed to their jobs and they will be able to work together.

Both Houlihan and Glover spoke in favor of the mass transit system for Eastern.

Houlihan said there was a "little falling out" with Marvin about the proposed system.

Houlihan said Marvin thought the system was too expensive.

He added that Marvin would rather spend student fees to provide intramural fields and a hockey rink.

Houlihan said Marvin will consider the mass transit proposal as he did the athletic fee increase and go along with the students' decision.

The city of Charleston is now interested in the transit system and its interest may cut the student fee increase, Houlihan said.

Glover said he wants to see the routes mapped out, but he is still in favor of the system.

Houlihan said another problem he had with the student government was resignations from the senate.

He said it takes some time for new members to get into the system which slows the system down.

Glover said he is preparing a senate workshop for new senators next fall. He said the workshops will inform them how to schedule meetings, which duplicating machines are available and inform them of parliamentary procedure.

Glover said an information packet will also be available to current senators.

He said the packet provides information about all of the boards on campus and what they do.

Glover said he will also suggest next fall giving final decisions in grade appeal cases to the vice president for academic affairs if the faculty member involved is no longer teaching at Eastern.

cause for these recurring problems has been that the fiscal agents involved have simply disregarded prescribed procedures and related administrative follow up."

The audit also said university policy was broken when "appropriate university officials" did not approve the use of "other local funds" within the athletic department which were used to subsidize the deficit.

Showing a deficit of $43,187 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1978 and $89,200 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1979, the audit recommended that "the university take appropriate action to enforce its purchasing procedures with regard to the fiscal officers of the Intercollegiate Athletics Local Fund."

While not disputing the contents of the audit, Miller said "I think the auditors' report is a minor factor," involved in the deficit's cause.

Two things occurred—the increased costs of energy and some championship situations we got into," Miller said.

These two factors created expenses which the athletic department could not foresee, he said.

He also said a third factor which contributed to the deficit was "expenses which exceeded income expectations."

In addition to these theories, Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said the deficit was caused by a percentage of Panther Club pledges which were never received and an overestimation of television revenue which Eastern was given for the 1978 NCAA Division II playoffs.

Johnson said Panther Club pledges totaled $90,000 for fiscal year 1978, but only $60,000 was received. And in fiscal year 1979, which ends June 30, pledges of $110,000 were made, but only $58,925 has been received to date.

It is unclear, however, what percentage of the pledges the athletic department expected to receive when it was formulating its budgets.

Assistant athletic director Ron Paap said he never was involved in former athletic director Mike Mullally's budget procedures. Johnson said he, too, does not know the percentage used, but also said he considers 85 percent to be a realistic figure.

But regardless of the percentage used, only one-third of the pledges were collected at Eastern from fiscal 1978, and slightly more than half so far in fiscal 1979.

Johnson's other explanation for the deficit was that the television revenue for the eight teams participating in the 1978 playoffs football was reduced from $250,000 to $100,000 without Eastern's knowledge because of the advent of Division I-AA football. Hence, he said when Eastern received its allocation and split it with members of the Mid-Continent Conference, it was left with $23,411.64 instead of the approximately $60,000 it was expecting.

However, Dennis Poppe, assistant director of events at the NCAA national headquarters in Shawnee Mission, Kan., said Wednesday that television money for the Division II football playoffs in 1978 totaled $260,100.

Men's tennis squad to host Illinois

Hoping to improve on its last showing with the University of Illinois, Eastern's men's tennis team hosts the Illini Thursday at 3 p.m. at the Weller courts.

The netters were demolished by Illinois 9-0 in their season opener in March.

Eastern coach Carl Sexton said today's match will definitely be closer.

"We have the home court advantage and I think our team is a lot further along than they were in March."

Matches will be played in Lantz Fieldhouse at 3 p.m. if the weather is inclement.

Rams pick Pettigrew in 8th round

by Vickie Woodbury and Andy Savoie
Tom Pettigrew was the only Eastern Panther chosen in the National Football League draft Wednesday. The 6-foot-4, 260-pound offensive tackle was chosen by the Los Angeles Rams in the eighth round, but several other Panthers with NFL aspirations were left off the 1980 draft list. Center Jack Lafferty, wide receiver James Warring, offensive lineman

Dave Miner and quarterback Steve Turk had also been contacted by NFL scouts prior to the draft. Lafferty said he will now meet with a representative of a pro team about trying out as a free agent. "Some people said I would get drafted, but I didn't know," Lafferty said. "I just had to wait and see." The other two Panthers hoping to be drafted could not be reached for comment. Eastern's All-American running back Poke Cobb had earlier this week signed to play for Winnipeg in the Canadian football league. Pettigrew was pleased to be drafted, but added that he still had to work to make the team. "I've worked a long time for this, and (training) camp is just the first step," Pettigrew said. Pettigrew said he will report to the Rams' training camp shortly after final exams. He also said he will begin contract negotiations with the Rams immediately, and will be represented by Wayne Wells, who is also an agent for Ted Peterson and Jack Lafferty. Lafferty played center for the Panthers this year, and Peterson is a former Eastern lineman who is now a member of the Pittsburgh Steelers. One of the main reasons the Rams drafted Pettigrew was because of his size, Rams' public relations representative Jerry Wilcox said. "They felt he has a lot of potential," Wilcox said. "Of course, it would be unrealistic for me to say he's a great prospect, because he was taken in the eighth round." However, Wilcox also cited Pet-tigrew's "natural pass, blocking ability," and "potential to grow even bigger on a weight program," as reasons that the Rams are "certainly willing to give him a look." Panther head coach Darrell Mudra was more optimistic than Wilcox in assessing Pettigrew's pro potential. "I think he's got a great chance. He's really intelligent," Mudra said.

DeWitt plans to sign soon

by Dave Claypool
Although nothing has been made definite it appears two-time Eastern All-American Craig DeWitt will be playing basketball in the professional European league. DeWitt said he was contacted by a representative of the Netherlands basketball squad Tuesday morning, but the actual signing of a contract has not taken place. "I expect to know for sure sometime in the middle of next week," the 6-foot-8 forward said. "I want to play, but it still depends on how high I get drafted (in the NBA)." DeWitt, who tallied 1,426 points in his four-year career, also said, his fortunes do not look promising for an NBA future. "I was contacted by the Detroit Pistons and they told me that I would probably get drafted, but I don't expect it to be too low," DeWitt said. "If I'm not drafted in the third or fourth round I doubt that I will play here." DeWitt said the offer came after he went to a tryout camp in Cincinnati. "They play a non-stop type of game with international rules," DeWitt said. "Their schedule is not as hectic as here. I believe they only play 40 games or so."

Audit reveals improper spending procedures

by Andy Savoie & Dave Claypool
Athletic expenditures which "did not comply with purchasing procedures," may have contributed to Eastern's $100,000 athletic deficit, an independent audit of the universities' finances has revealed. However, both Vice President for Administration George Miller and Athletic Director R.C. Johnson have cited other reasons for the deficit. The audit, conducted by McGladrey

Hendricks and Co. of Springfield, noted two separate instances in which the athletic department did not comply with Section 132, 1-132.13 of the Illinois Purchasing Act. In both instances, purchase orders of over $2,500 were initiated without the solicitation of a least three bids, which is required by law. The first of the two purchases were award watches for the cross-country and wrestling teams which cost $3,337. The other items were championship rings for members of the football team, which cost $9,375. The audit report said "the fiscal agents involved in the watch purchase stated that the vendor was the sole source supplier." In the ring purchase, the report said, "a misunderstanding occurred resulting in the vendor believing the university had made a formal purchase commitment."

Mike Mullally was Eastern's athletic director during the time that department ran up a $100,000 deficit. He was primarily responsible for the department's expenditures and budget making during that time. The audit said Eastern's business office subsequently advised the "fiscal agents" involved to comply with purchasing procedures. But it then said "it appears that the underlying (See AUDIT, Page 8)

Southern sweeps double-header from Panthers

by Dave Claypool
CARBONDALE — A sacrifice fly by Southern Illinois-Carbondale's Ken Solow in the bottom of the seventh lifted the Salukis to a 5-4 victory over Eastern in the second game of a double-header Wednesday. Southern captured the opener too, with an 11-0 trouncing over the Panthers behind the two-hit pitching of Bob Schroeck. The sweep put the powerhouse Salukis at 22-12 for the season while the Panthers dropped to 16-18. In the opener, five Panther errors contributed to the setback along with eight walks. Ken Westray allowed nine Saluki hits en route to his fifth loss of the season against three victories. However, none of the nine hits accumulated in the game were extra-base hits. Tim Pyznarski and Mike Dooley were the only Panthers to connect on Schroeck, who captured his sixth win. In the nightcap, solo home runs by Matt Cimo in the first inning and Ken Saxe in the sixth, accounted for the first two Panther runs. And in the seventh, a Pyznarski single and error on a ground ball hit by Gordon Smith, put the Panthers in position to catch a two-run Saluki lead. Wade Bradley followed Smith's single with a bunt sacrifice moving the runners to second and third and Tom Detmer followed with a two-run single. Max Weibel went all the way in defeat for Eastern, earning his fourth loss. The right handed junior allowed five walks while stiking out six Saluki batters.
