ISSC cuts 5 percent of budget

By ERIC WEDEKING
Campus editor

Students may be joining in with a chorus of Eastern administrators who are singing the blues over budget cuts created by the failure of a proposed tax increase.

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission announced recently it has been forced to cut 5 percent from its 1988 budget and drastically cut aid to students in certain programs.

The ISSC is a state-run agency that administers 13 financial assistance programs for Illinois residents attending college.

However, Financial Aid Director John Flynn said Eastern students will be marginally affected by the ISSC program cuts, saying, "The cuts will not hurt this institution."

One of the ISSC's programs that will suffer the most is the Monetary Award Program. About $3.6 million was slashed, and an estimated 5,000 college students in Illinois will be denied assistance.

MAP, a need-based program, will also have its maximum grant award frozen at $3,100.

Another program, the Merit Recognition Scholarship was cut, and only students renewing an application for the $500 award will be eligible.

With about $2.5 million cut out of the MRS program, another 5,000 students are estimated to be denied the scholarship.

Two other programs, the National Guard/Naval Militia Grant and the Illinois Veteran Grant programs will be cut by the ISSC.

Flynn said the only effect Eastern students would feel as a result of the ISSC cutbacks would be from students who applied late for ISSC programs.

"We're not going to get hurt in the Monetary Award Program, because our students apply relatively early," Flynn said. "We fall in good shape."

The students who would be feeling the budget crunch effect, however, would be students who apply late for financial aid.

"The program cutting effect is on students applying late, typically, students who attend community colleges or inter-city schools," Flynn said.

"We don't pick up that many midyear applicants for financial aid—they do," he added.

An ISSC official agreed somewhat with Flynn, saying community college and inter-city college students would be the ones most hurt by the program cuts, but she warned the effect could still be felt at schools such as Eastern.

"Eastern may get caught in a crunch because everybody knows they have to apply for financial aid

UPI to weigh BOG salary terms

By MATT HORTENSTINE
Staff writer

University Professionals of Illinois will hold a ratification meeting to discuss the terms and implications of the salary negotiations agreement at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Kansas Room.

The UPI, a union representing teachers, reached a tentative agreement with the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, regarding the salary freeze imposed by the BOG this summer.

Because of state budget cuts, the BOG decided it could not afford to increase faculty salaries this year.

The UPI and the BOG then went into a series of negotiations over the salary freeze.

The tentative agreement includes these provisions:

- No basic salary increase or degree completion increment.

- Continuation of promotion increment and transfer readjustments.
- No salary cuts or layoffs.
- A re-opening of negotiations pending additional appropriations for salaries.

John Rearden, Eastern's UPI chapter president, said that if all the chapters didn't ratify the agreement, the promotion increase would be lost and faculty salaries would remain frozen.

After UPI ratification of the agreement, the BOG will then be required to ratify the agreement.

The next meeting for the BOG is Sept. 14 at the Oak Brook Hills Hotel in Oak Brook, Ill., she said.

UPI members will vote on the settlement after the campus meeting.

600-pound panther returns to 'coveted' den at Marty's

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

About 30 people crowded around to get that first glimpse as the new panther statue was unveiled in front of Marty's, 1666 Fourth St., Monday morning.

Sculptor Jim Hoker, an Eastern psychology major and rugby player, stood around the edge of the group, shaking hands and accepting congratulations for his creation, a 600-pound black-bronze panther secured in 33 inches of concrete.

Hoker created the life-sized statue, worth about $20,000, in 20 different parts, which were welded together with the help of a professional welder. Hoker then finished the beast by grinding down any rough edges.

Hoker said when he signed the contracts in March for the job he agreed to have it installed by Sept. 1. Work on the statue began around the first of June.

"I wanted the job because it was special to me. It is EIU. I see Marty's (and the panther) as a part of Eastern," Hoker said an hour before the unveiling, admitting he was both nervous and excited about the occasion.

"He's (Hoker) done a lot of work for a lot of important people," said Hoker's girlfriend, Claudia Weinberg, an Eastern business major.

"He's done work for the governor. He's done a lot of charity work. He's sold work all over the world. But he was so nervous about today.

"I told him 'don't be nervous.' But he said 'This is my school.' I think he was nervous about putting something on display in front of his school. These are his peers," she said.

Hoker said he was proud to sculpt what many, including himself, considered one of the landmarks of Eastern.

"The panther is a symbol of Eastern. It can never be overplayed. I put too much sweat and blood into it. Too many sleepless nights and putting Claudia on hold," Hoker said, adding, "It's nice to be able to come back and see it whenever you want."

"It's something to really be proud of. You can bring your grand-kids back here," Dale Holt, part owner of Marty's, told Hoker at the end of the unveiling.

"This panther was very important to him," Weinberg said. "It was almost like he was obsessed with it. Sometimes he would get this faraway look in his eyes, and I knew he was thinking about the panther."

The 25-year-old Hoker, a sculptor since age 10, has had pieces sold in Germany, Japan, Poland, Canada, Mexico, Great Britain and France, among other countries.

"It's (sculpting, art) in the family. My dad does this stuff. I got started and my stuff was selling. Pretty soon I was going to the east coast and then to the west coast. I've gone all over the United States with it," he said.

Although the obvious choice might have been to major in art, Hoker said he doesn't regret majoring in psychology.

"Now, looking back at it, I don't wish I had majored in art. It would have been nice to have been an art major. But if I had, I would have missed a lot of other skills I've learned. You have to develop good reasoning and management skills," he said.

Iranian commandos rake Kuwaitis in retaliation for three-day attacks

U.S. AIDS count may increase

ATLANTA—The nation's AIDS count, now at more than 40,000 will start a noticeable jump Tuesday as federal health officials begin counting thousands of cases they have never before recognized.

The increase comes from a change in the official Centers for Disease Control definition of what AIDS is, in medical terms.

There will be no dramatic announcement that thousands of Americans believed to have suffered from other diseases actually had AIDS. And the disease will not suddenly be found to be attacking groups not previously considered at risk.

Rather, the CDC will begin listing in its AIDS statistics patients whose physicians may have presumed they had the atadly disease, but whose cases did not meet the agency's definition.

As those cases are added into the total, more Americans than ever before will be deemed AIDS patients—and AIDS fatalities, which now number more than 23,000.

Federal health officials estimate that the case count could jump by 10 percent to 15 percent.

Employers comply with new law

From California fruit farms to the textile mills of Tennessee, America's 7 million employers will take on the role of government immigration agents Tuesday under a sweeping new law that requires them to document the legal status of their employees.

A random nationwide check of businesses by The Associated Press indicated a high level of compliance with the Sept. 1 deadline for having new forms on file for review by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Employers must sign the I-9 forms after a review of supporting documents, such as passports, naturalization certificates of permanent residence cards, that prove all employees that some critics had predicted after President Reagan signed the law last November.

But many company executives griped about the additional bureaucracy imposed upon them by the Immigration Reform and Control Act, which for the first time makes it a crime for employers to knowingly hire illegal aliens.

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP)—Iranian commandos raked a Kuwaiti freighter with machine-gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades in the Persian Gulf Monday in retaliation for three days of Iraqi air attacks, shipping sources said.

Iraq's attacks, aimed at forcing Iran to accept a U.N. cease-fire resolution in their 7-year-old war, came as a convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers under U.S. escort anchored off Bahrain. U.S. helicopters looked for a reported mine.

In Washington, the White House on Monday termed the timing of Iraq's attacks "deplorable," but called on Iran to comply with the cease-fire resolution.

Iran said its artillery shelled Basra in southern Iraq and other border towns in retaliation for the Iraqi air strikes. Iraq's Baghdad Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said several civilians were killed and wounded.

Iranian commandos in patrol boats attacked the 24,349-ton container ship Jebel Ali off the United Arab Emirates coast near the Strait of Hormuz.

The owners, the Kuwait-based United Arab Shipping Co., said the ship was bound for Dubai when attacked "by a speedboat firing rockets and machine guns."

The 32-man crew and wives who were aboard unharmed and the ship is in Dubai for repairs, the company said.

It was the first such incident attributed to Iranian forces. Iraq resumed air attacks on Iranian targets in the Persian Gulf Saturday, ending a 45-day lull.

Tehran has said Kuwaiti ships and any U.S. warships would not be exempt from retaliation against Iraq's island oil terminal.

Military communications from Baghdad said Iraqi jets attacked Iranian ships Sunday night and Monday morning.

83 passengers thought to be killed after Thai jet plunges into Asian sea

BANKOK, Thailand (AP)—A Thai Airways jet plunged into the sea near Phuket Island on Monday and officials said they believed all 83 people aboard were killed.

Two Americans were said to be among the 37 foreigners on the Boeing 737.

Spokesmen said 17 bodies were recovered before search operations halted for the night because of high winds and poor visibility. Meteorologists said skies were clear when the crash occurred.

"As of 10:30 p.m., Thai Airways believes there are no survivors," a statement from the airline said.

Air Marshal Narong Dithipeng, managing director of the state-run airline, told a news conference earlier Monday that the plane was trying to evade a 737 of the Hong Kong-based line Dragonair when it crashed into the Andaman Sea eight miles from the resort island's airport.

A statement from Dragonair Ltd. in Hong Kong said company officials spoke to the captain of its aircraft and were "assured that the Dragonair aircraft was not involved." It gave no details and the Dragonair jet's crew would not be returned to Hong Kong.

Prayoon Thavisang, manager of the Phuket airport, said aircraft were following a procedure that caused problems in the past. He was contacted by telephone and doubted there were any survivors.

In Bangkok, a spokesman for Thai Airways said 17 bodies had been recovered when the plane was called off at 7:30 p.m. He said there were no reports of survivors.

3 caught using fake IDs

By RUSSELL STARE
Staff writer

"Don't try it at the White Hen," is the advice that Dot Hellard, owner of the White Hen Pantry, 200 Lincoln Ave., had for minors attempting to buy alcohol.

In the period of three days last week, three separate arrests were made at the White Hen Pantry stemming from under-aged students attempting to purchase alcohol.

John T. Coleman and Joel Pignotti, both 18, and Michael Sudol, 17, were arrested on the charge of misrepresentation of age by a minor. The three arrests were all made between the dates of Aug. 24-26.

Hellard said the arrests were made after discovering fake IDs from the students. According to Hellard, the biggest ploy is using an ID that can be issued from the Secretary of State's office if a person does not have a driver's license.

If a person does drive up in a car, Hellard said the customer will usually say they left their ID in their car and then drive off when they go to get it.

Hellard is able to identify fake IDs with the help of the Secretary of State's office. Instead of having the usual one poster, Hellard has three posters telling how to most effectively spot a fake ID posted in her store.

Hellard said that if a fake ID is spotted in her store, the ID is retained and the police are called.

This is done in part to protect White Hen's license according to Hellard. She said if they did not check IDs and report fakes, they would stand a very good chance of being fined and also have their liquor license removed for a period of time.

Hellard referred to the surprise raids last year on local bars and taverns, saying that not knowing when a raid will happen causes them to be very careful not to disobey the law.

According to Hellard this is not a new problem. During the summer semester students tried to purchase alcohol and were arrested for being under age.

City council to hear cable options comparing service to other towns

By STUART TART
Staff writer

The Charleston City Council will hear a presentation on options the city can pursue with regard to cable television service at its regular meeting Tuesday, said Public Property Commissioner Richard Corbin.

The council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the city council chambers, 520 Jackson Ave.

Corbin said the council authorized city attorney Tony Sunderman to contact a cable television consultant to speak before the council.

He said the consultant will discuss the city's options with regard to either inviting another company to serve the city, starting a city-owned company or what the city can do with Liberty Telecommunications, the company that currently serves the city's cable television.

The council listened to the concerns of individuals concerning the city's cable television service at a special session on cable service in July. The meeting was held as part of a resolution approved earlier by the council that called for improvements to be made by the city in its cable television service, as well as water taste and zoning enforcements.

Charleston's cable service came under fire in May when a Charleston resident complained to the council that Liberty TCI was requiring subscribers to rent remote control units from the company.

Sunderman was on vacation Monday and unavailable for comment.

In other business, the council will vote on its 1987-88 tax levy and will look at a resolution to close streets around the square for the Uptown Merchants Association's annual Arts on the Square festival to be held Sept. 25 and 26.

Lifeskills seminar begins 'breaking the ice'

By KIM MIKUS
Staff writer

Psychology instructor Robert Saltmarsh will kick off the semester's lifeskills seminars with a lecture about how to meet people, make real friends and overcoming shyness.

The hour-long seminar, "Breaking the ice," will begin at noon on Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Claudia Lane, coordinator of the Counseling Center outreach program, said this is a great opportunity to start the semester and meet new people.

Lane said this is the first of a series of seminars that will take place every Wednesday this semester. Other topics will include, insomnia, panic attacks and troubled relationships.

Saltmarsh said he will discuss specific behaviors when people meet each other. He said he will stress that eye contact, shaking hands and asking encouraging questions are all important when meeting someone.

The seminar will also show shy people how to alter their thoughts or images in a positive way, Saltmarsh said, adding students need to learn how to "show a useful set of attitudes."

"Be prepared to participate," Saltmarsh said.

He said that he hopes the students will practice these techniques with one another during the seminar.

The outcome is that the "participants meet a few new people," Saltmarsh said.

Nusbaum pushes for student involvement, awareness

By DONELLE PARDEE
Government editor

(Editor's note: This is the second article in a five-part series focusing on Eastern's student government executive officers.)

Junior Trish Nusbaum has always been interested in student government. That interest led her to be elected as executive vice president for 1987-88.

Nusbaum started her involvement in student government in the fall semester of her sophomore year after following Student Senate in the newspaper her freshman year.

Although student government at Eastern interests her, Nusbaum said she was not interested in high school student council. "It's more of a popularity contest in high school," she said, adding, "It's not very knowledgeable."

While on senate, Nusbaum worked closely with former Executive Vice President Terese Papa. This experience familiarized me with the job and the boards, she said.

The speech communications major said she ran for executive vice president because she thought the job fit her best. This way I can work with people and motivate the students working on the boards, she added.

"It's a challenge," she said, adding it is a chance to "get people involved and aware. That's my overall goal."

Trying to get people aware of what is going on around them to get them involved is what Nusbaum said she is dedicated to doing this year. "The more they know the more they get involved," she added.

Nusbaum's long range goals are to fill the boards and be more visible to the students. As far as running for student body president Nusbaum said she wants to wait until after this year to decide.

"I have to see how good of a job I do," she said, adding, "I plan to do a very good job. Only time will tell."

Nusbaum said she thinks senate is a smooth process and "it's run right." However, one thing Nusbaum would like to see is more student input.

The student senators have no

way of knowing everything that needs to be addressed by the senate, she said, adding if students want to see results they have to work with senate by getting involved either directly or indirectly.

"With student involvement and input there is more for the senators to do and keep busy."

By keeping busy, the senate can avoid the mid-semester lull that seems to happen every semester, Nusbaum said.

Despite faults, parking policy spares steps

Drudgery is having to walk from Carman Hall to Old Main during the dead of winter and leaving a useable car behind simply because the parking sticker is valid in only one lot.

All that has changed for the better this year with Eastern's improved parking policy. Instead of keeping students limited to one

Editorial designated parking lot, they can, without fear of being fined, park anywhere the yellow signs say they can.

Previously, students were assigned to only one lot even if the student otherwise had no need to go near there. This brought about long lines at the Campus Police station at the beginning of the school year when students rushed to buy a spot close to where they wanted to park.

While the lines for parking stickers needlessly seemed to grow longer, in reality, the need for competition in gaining a desirable spot is gone. The parking tags are good in any lot bearing the same color sign.

Still, some commuter students will continue using the age-old complaint that faculty parking spaces consume all of the lots near their class buildings. This, some argue, forces them to trudge vast distances in order to be on time for class.

Placing faculty parking near the classrooms is only practical. And if walking from the parking facilities at residence halls is too difficult for commuter students, handicapped parking stickers are also available.

The only shortcoming with the program is that there is room for abuse. Off-campus students may make their ways onto nearby parking spots, which could be better saved for others.

This policy also means campus police might become a little bored. They won't be burdened with having to issue as many tickets for illegally parked autos and will probably have to concern themselves with their job's more mundane duties.

In spite of its faults, this year's parking sticker policy is convenient on more than one count.

Letter policy

The Daily Eastern News welcomes letters to the editor from any reader addressing issues relating to the campus community.

Housing in Charleston—slum city

For students who aren't living in one of the residence halls or a fraternity house, chances are, they're living in a slum.

There really isn't a lot of choice. And local landlords realize this.

Last week I devoted this space to explaining some of the ordeals I had with an apartment last year. While some critics say I wasted the space whining about my personal problems, it prompted other students to point out that mine is hardly an isolated predicament.

"This place could be condemned," my neighbor said of the house he rents. He asked me not to use his name because he already has enough hassles with his landlord.

When his roomies got here in the middle of August they found leaks in the roof and plumbing, a broken furnace and a busted water heater. So, they had to travel to friends' places to take a hot shower.

Fortunately, he moved in two weeks after his friends, which was a day after the landlord—at the prompting of the city's building inspector—fixed the heater and started on some other problems. "If I'd been here a week ago, I'd a been pissed."

"This morning my roommate was cooking breakfast and looked over and said, 'Who let the cat in?' We don't have a cat. It was a rat."

While not everyone has to fend off rats with a broom handle, a lot of you know exactly what he means.

Sean O.
Hogan

Another student said she had the same hassles in dealing with her slum peddler last year. "We had rats this big. It (the plumbing) leaked, pilot light went out on the water heater. It took me a week to get my landlord out there."

Not only students, but city and university officials would, say tenant/slumlord problems in Charleston are hardly uncommon.

"There's always something going on with somebody," said Steve Davis, director of student legal services. He sees as many complaints during the first and last few weeks of each semester. Those are the prime times for students to find out that they have pet rats and leaky roofs. "They probably won't get their security deposit back," Davis said. "They're usually irritating things that can be avoided."

Even the Faculty Senate last year recognized the problem students have with finding a decent place to live. Unfortunately, it said some stupid changes would prevent members from compiling a list of more acceptable places students could live on campus.

Since the slum merchants only need to keep their peers, their standard will stay low, and students won't get much choice.

"A lot of these people think they can get away with this (expletive deleted)," my neighbor said.

That's the heart of the problem. Slum peddlers don't think they can get away with this—their standards are.

Bork, a step beyond conservatism

There is a step beyond conservatism. Robert Bork, United States Supreme Court nominee, takes that step.

Since President Ronald Reagan entered office, he has the chance to nominate two justices and a chief justice to the Supreme Court. In doing so, he has stacked the court in his ideological favor, as any president would. This is understandable. His nomination of Bork is not.

The selection of Bork is all but terrifying. The purpose of the Supreme Court justice is to judge according to the U.S. Constitution. Thomas Jefferson realized that times change, but Bork says he wants only to judge according to the "original intent" of the Constitution.

If anyone cares to take a good look, the Constitution was written when women were only wives and men were only slaves. To say judging by these terms would take the United States backwards is a definite understatement.

In 1973, under orders from then-President Nixon, Bork fired Watergate special prosecutor John Archibald Cox in the Saturday Night Massacre, only doing the job he was hired to do—to fire the Watergate crisis. The Constitution's certainly would not have agreed with Bork's integrity.

As a judge, Bork upheld the "separate but equal" racial doctrine during the 1960s. Yet the amendment was put in the Constitution for the purpose of changes such as desegregation and affirmative action programs.

Bork also vehemently opposes the Roe v. Wade decision, which gives women the right to have an abortion. The possibility of appealing that option of choice is frightening.

Reagan clearly has the right to nominate a conservative. But Congress should not rubber-stamp a poor, dangerous choice such as Bork.

Welcoming activity

Union becomes city park with artists

By TINA POSZICH
Staff writer

To promote its services, the University Union will be converted into a city park during "Union Park Night," beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

"We wanted the idea of a large city park with different cultural artists," said Ann Leslie, an administrative assistant in the student activities office.

Leslie and Marvin Rasch, also an administrative assistant, have worked on the event since June. In the process, they scheduled activities and performers that correlated with the theme.

Anita Craig, director of student activities, said the concept of Union open house is to "give exposure to the Union at the beginning of the semester. . . (It's) sort of a welcoming activity."

Craig said that it has become a tradition to have an open house once a semester, adding that it dates back before she became director of student activities four years ago.

Last year, the open house had the theme of "Happy Hour." Although the idea is not new, Craig said, "sometimes the title changes to keep the idea fresh."

The schedule of events is as follows:

- Mercedez, a band, will perform at 7 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom.

- Jefferson Mime Troupe, a mime group from Jefferson High School in Lafayette, Ind., will perform at 7 p.m. in the Union Walkway and stroll around the Union during the event.

- Skip the Clown, from the Charleston area, will also stroll throughout the Union.

- Marcella Ruble, a fortune teller, will be in the bookstore lounge.

- A caricature artist from Quincy, Mass. will be in the alumni lounge located outside the Grand Ballroom.

- Eastern student Robb Montgomery will be in the TV lounge taking celebrity photographs.

- Jack Hunnicutt will provide computer portraits in the Union Station, outside Copy Express.

Other activities include bowling and pool at half price, make-your-own-button and the movie "Barefoot in the Park" in the Union Ballroom.

Several services will also be offered for free or at discount rates. They include check cashing, cake orders and balloon bouquet orders. The Union Bookstore will also be giving away ID holders.

The Union dining service will provide La Carte, a new food vending cart that is similar to those found in city parks, Leslie said, adding, "It fits in good with our theme."

Graduate programs on agenda

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

The Council on Graduate Studies will conduct their first meeting of the semester at 2 p.m. Tuesday, in the Union addition Paris Room.

Heading the agenda will be Dr. Larry Williams' report concerning the status of the university's graduate assistantship program.

According to Williams, dean of the graduate school and executive officer of the council, prior to Governor Thompson's most recent budget cuts, University President Stanley Rives had approved approximately 176 graduate assistantships to be dispersed in departments throughout the university.

As a result of Thompson's cuts, some of the 176 positions have been frozen.

The council will also discuss the possibility of offering the Miller Analogy Test at university extension centers to convenience graduate students who may work full time.

Senate prepares to combat student apathy

By STUART TART
Staff writer

Eastern's student government executive officers are turning their attention to increasing involvement in student organizations.

"Apathy's a problem we're going to fight not just in student government but in other activities, also," said Student Body President Deb Camren.

"We want to get students involved and show them what we're doing," added Executive Vice President Trish Nusbaum.

Camren said student apathy is not limited to student government or to Eastern, but is a problem with other student activities and at other universities.

"We went to the playoffs last year in football and how many people were there—" she added.

"It's (apathy) not just a problem at Eastern. It's a problem at other universities, too," Camren said.

Camren, Nusbaum and Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis have worked up several ideas to get students more involved with the workings of student government.

These ideas include sending letters to students, organizing a "round table" of representatives from campus organizations and placing suggestion boxes in residence halls and the student union, Nusbaum said.

"We want students to tell us what we can do for them," she added.

Camren said interest in student government might be increased if students understood the issues surrounding an election.

For instance, students are expected to vote this fall on a specific increase in the student activity fee to pay for a new recreation center on campus.

Students endorsed the idea of raising the fee to pay for the center by a 5-2 margin in the spring elections of 1987.

"If we get 100 more people to vote in the elections, I'll consider that an accomplishment," said Camren.

Wasetis said she has noticed more interest in student government this year than in the past.

"I have talked to more freshmen who are interested (in student government) this year than in previous years," she said.

early," said ISSC Agency Information Coordinator Renee Brooks in a telephone interview from Springfield.

"Early might not be early enough," Brooks added. "Those who submit paperwork first are the first to get assistance."

Addressing cuts in the National Guard/Naval Militia and Illinois Veteran Grant programs, Brooks said both were cut by $60,000 and $178,000 respectively.

Flynn said students at Eastern will not be affected by the two program cuts because any money the ISSC does not pay Eastern for Illinois guardsmen and veterans will have to be absorbed by the university.

"We have to honor National Guard and IVG scholarships," Flynn said.

Flynn gave a word of warning to students, on the heels of talk by administrators who are considering a tuition increase next semester.

"It's entirely possible that the ISSC may have to cut again the second semester," Flynn said.

Last year students receiving ISSC-based aid, got a surprise in the mail—a bill requesting the return of $25—the result of the agency awarding more money than it had been appropriated.

"The year before that, it was $50," Flynn added.

The ISSC's Guaranteed Loan Program was one such resource Brooks said students may want to consider if they are in need of financial aid.

Brooks recommended that students should explore other financial assistance avenues if they have been caught in a tuition pinch.

However, Flynn said the GLP, which is a federal government program, but administered by the state, has also suffered.

Based on factors qualifying a student for a loan, Flynn said, "The headcount (number of students awarded loans) will remain the same, but the money awarded will be lower."

Flynn said students' financial problems could receive some lift with an easing of the criteria students must meet when applying for a Pell Grant.

White Sox beat Royals 5-3

CHICAGO (AP)—Carlton Fisk went 3-for-3, including a three-run homer, and knocked in all five runs as the Chicago White Sox beat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 Monday night.

Jose DeLeon, 8-11, gained his third consecutive victory with 11 strikeouts in seven-plus innings, the most strikeouts by a White Sox pitcher since Britt Burns struck out the same number on July 23, 1985. DeLeon needed relief help in the eighth from Bobby Thigpen, who recorded his seventh save.

Danny Jackson, 7-16, took the loss.

Fisk's 18th homer and 299th of his career sailed over the left field fence to score Jerry Hairston, who had walked, and Ivan Calderon, who had singled, to put the White Sox up 3-0 in the first.

In the fifth, Fisk singled to center and Calderon, who had singled, kept on running and beat the throw to the plate to make it 4-2. Fisk also sacrificed fly in the seventh.

The Royals scored two in the fifth after Dan Tartabull and Frank Thomas singled. Tartabull came when Jamie Quirk's ground went through the glove. White Sox first baseman Bill Pecota's double grounded.

The Royals added a run in the eighth on an RBI ground by George Brett.

SIU aims for top spot

By BARRY BOTTINO
Sports editor

In his fourth year at the helm of the Southern Illinois football program, head coach Ray Dorr is looking for his best season ever.

"Our initial goal when we came to SIU was to establish a program that would be competitive," said Dorr, who has compiled records of 3-8, 4-7 and 7-4 during his three previous years in Carbondale.

Strangely enough, the Salukis start the 1987 season exactly where the 1986 season ended—ranked 17th in the NCAA I-AA football poll.

The only two eyesores on their '86 schedule was a 52-7 shellacking at the hands of Eastern Illinois and a 24-21 season ending loss to Western Illinois, which was Southern's only loss at McAndrew Stadium in Carbondale.

In the Eastern game, the Panthers set the tone for the game by recovering an outside kick which led to the opening touchdown.

Panther quarterback Sean Payton connected on 26-of-40 passes for 400 yards and three touchdowns.

Panther slotback Calvin Pierce set an EIU single game record with 10 receptions for 199 yards.

The Salukis return 13 starters from last season including eight on defense and 23 other lettermen.

The offensive attack will be led by junior quarterback Kevin Brown, who was 26-of-53 in pass completions last year for 280 yards, and sophomore tailback Anthony Vaughn, who rushed for 600 yards on only 90 carries last season for a 6.7 yards per rush average.

Vaughn will definitely get his rushes in this season with senior offensive tackle Dave Smith returning.

The three-year letterman bolsters the Saluki offensive line at 6-8 and 270 pounds.

On the other side of the ball, however, the Salukis are looking for improvement.

The highest ranking the Saluki defense earned was fifth and after giving up 215 passing yards per game last season, defensive backs Ira Davis and Bobby McNabb lost their starting jobs during spring practice.

However, the Saluki defense returned eight other defensive backs from last season.

Agreement expires

NFLPA set strike date

WASHINGTON (AP)—The executive committee of the NFL Players Association, discouraged by a lack of progress in contract negotiations with NFL management, set a strike deadline on Monday but would not reveal the date.

"We will do what we have to do to reach a fair agreement," NFLPA executive director Gene Upshaw said, "With that in mind, the executive committee unanimously agreed on a date in which the strike would be."

The current collective bargaining agreement expires at midnight Monday. But the earliest the union can strike is Sept. 15, after the season's first weekend, because its mandatory 60-day notice of intent to strike was filed on July 15 with the National Labor Relations Board and the 28 NFL teams.

Upshaw said the nine-man union executive committee would recommend the date to the full board of player representatives on Sept. 8 at Washington. He said he wanted the players to consider the date before revealing it to the public.

"I think the board has to know first," he said.

Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the owners, has said he expects the players to set the walkout following the third weekend of the season, at which point they would have the minimum amount of time required to qualify for a year's pension.

"I'm hoping that's the date they have in mind," Donlan said Monday. "We've got a whole lot of issues to get through. I don't think we could get through them in a week or two."

Negotiations last took place Aug. 14-15 after which union representatives went on the road to meet with players in training camps.

"Due to both of our schedules, we knew there wasn't much hope of our getting together," Upshaw said. "I decided to go on the road, ...I visited eight or ten teams in that two-week period to inform the players of the lack of progress because their was so much misinformation about the progress that was being made at the tables."

Negotiations for a three-year contract are at a stalemate, Upshaw said.

"Eventually we'll get down to bargaining," he said. "We intend to bargain with the other side, we intend to reach an agreement with the other side."

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Monday's edition of The Daily Eastern News that Eastern wide receiver Ralph Stewart was ineligible because he was a Proposition 48 victim while teammate Marcus O'Neal was questionable for Saturday's season opener with San Jose State University with an injured toe.

The story should have stated that Stewart is suffering from a toe injury and O'Neal is a Proposition 48 victim. The News regrets the error.

Lendl not favorite at U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Two-time defending champion Ivan Lendl doesn't consider himself the clear-cut favorite at this year's U.S. Open.

"I feel confident, but I don't know if I'm the favorite," said Lendl, who plays South African Barry Moir in an opening-round match Tuesday.

"Boris Becker will be dangerous because of his big serve, Stefan Edberg just won a tournament and will be confident, and Mat Wilander seems to be enjoying his tennis, which isn't always the case, John McEnroe is playing better than last year, and so is (Wimbledon champion) Pat Cash."

Lendl, who has been an Open finalist five straight years, is the top seed. Edberg is No. 2, followed by Wilander, Becker, Miloslav Mecir, Jimmy Connors, Cash and McEnroe.

Lendl, Becker and McEnroe are the only top 10 men's seeds scheduled to play Tuesday, when the two-week tournament gets under way at the National Tennis Center.

On the women's side, No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova, No. 4 Hana Mandlikova, No. 6 Helena Sukova, No. 7 Zina Garrison, No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini and No. 9 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch play opening-round matches Tuesday.

The top seed is West German teen-ager Steffi Graf, who has won 50 of 51 matches this year. Last month, Graf replaced Navratilova as the No.1 women's tennis player.

The men's and women's singles champions at the Open will each receive $250,000.

Ex-ElU receiver Banks scoring with the Colts

By LEE DIEKEMPER
Staff Writer

With all the press attention given to former Eastern record-setting quarterback Sean Payton, little has been said of the only Eastern player to be drafted by the NFL in last spring's collegiate football draft.

Wide receiver Roy Banks, drafted in the fifth round by the Indianapolis Colts, is doing fine, thank you.

In a group filled with mostly young and inexperienced receivers, Banks' light has shown relatively bright. In the Colts' pre-season contest against the Cleveland Browns, Banks caught two passes for 29 and 23 yards respectively, but the best had yet to come.

In the final seconds of the game, with the Colts down by six points, Banks hauled in a one-yard touchdown pass to knot the score at 20.

The point after touchdown was successful and Indy had chalked up victory No. 1.

"That was great," said Banks from his temporary home at the the Colts training camp in Indianapolis. "That made me really feel good. It made me relax a little from all the pressure."

Even though Banks had a good showing in the Cleveland game, he has yet to win a jersey with the Colts because things can go sour quick in the wonderful world of professional football.

"I think that I have a good shot of making the team," Banks said. "Even though I think I can make the team, I can't worry about it. I have to concentrate and dedicate myself to what's happening on the field, not in the front office. There's nothing that I can do about it if I get cut. I just have to work hard and dedicate myself to football."

Dedication is a word that Banks uses frequently in his conversations about football. Dedication is one reason that he gives for beating the odds that pro football scouts gave him in the '87 draft.

"I heard the stories that 'he's too small,' or 'he comes from a little school and can't handle the big and quick defenses,'" Banks said. "But I just dedicated myself at Eastern to being the best that I can be, and to show the scouts that they were wrong."

With the Colts head coach Ron Myers in his first full year at the helm of Indianapolis (he was head coach for only the last two games of the '86 season), he is trying to install his work ethic into a perennial loser. The word dedication comes up again.

"Coach Myers is a disciplinarian, and believes in hard work," Banks said. "He wants everyone on the team to be dedicated to his system and the team. He's trying to wipe out the image of the Colts as a loser, and I think he'll succeed. If everyone is as dedicated as he is, we can win."

An area that Banks uses to differentiate between small college football and the National Football League is pressure.

"Sure there was pressure at Eastern to perform well, but the main focus of everything at Eastern is your classes," Banks said. "Here at Indy, the entire focus is on football. You get up thinking football, and you go to bed thinking football. The pressure is unbelievable."

"You're competing against other people's jobs and livelihoods, and they aren't going to give up their jobs that easy," Banks added.

Bears fall to Cards

CHICAGO (AP)—Wide receiver Bud Holmes grabbed two touchdown passes, including a "Hail Mary" toss by Neil Lomax on the final play of the first half Monday night, to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 20-16 preseason football victory over the Chicago Bears.

With :03 left in the half after the Cardinals had blocked a Bear field goal attempt, Lomax lofted a pass into the end zone and Holmes grabbed it for a 38-yard touchdown after it bounded off two Bear defenders for a 13-2 halftime lead.

The first time the Cardinals gained possession in the second half, they drove 70 yards in seven plays for a touchdown capped by Cliff Stoudt's 31-yard pass to Holmes.

The outcome left both the Bears and Cardinals with 2-1 preseason records and with Chicago's Mike Ditka still seeking his first coaching victory over the Cardinals. Ditka is 0-6 in preseason play against the Cardinals and 0-2 in regular-season competition.

Lomax, playing only in the first half, also threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Troy Johnson in the first quarter. He completed 12 of 21 passes for 128 yards.

Mike Tomczak made his third straight start at quarterback for the Bears in the absence of injured Jim McMahon. He played the first half and completed 15 of 23 passes for 132 yards but failed to get the team on the board.

Late in the third period, the Bears marched 68 yards in 10 plays under quarterback Doug Flutie and scored a touchdown on a 13-yard run by Thomas Sanders.

Except for Lomax's 13-yard touchdown pass to Johnson in the first quarter, the first half was uneventful until the last couple of minutes.

Strength coach Wold is key to Panthers' muscle on field

By LEE DIEKEMPER
Staff writer

When most casual football fans think of the coaching staff of their favorite team, the head coach, and maybe the offensive and defensive coordinators come to mind.

Rarely are the coaches that perform important, but less noticeable tasks, such as a strength and conditioning coach, get little publicity.

On Eastern's gridiron squad, that little known man is Kevin Wold.

For the past four years, Wold has worked with Eastern football hopefuls in weight training helping them perform to the best of their talents on the field.

Before coming to Eastern as the strength and conditioning coach, Wold trained athletes for the 1983 Pan American Games and the 1984 Olympics at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Wold summarizes his responsibilities for the Eastern gridriders in five words—"stronger, quicker, and better conditioned."

Since Eastern is now in their second week of "one-a-day" practices, Wold currently has the players on three strength and conditioning sessions of weightlifting a week.

"The first training session of the week is the rehab session," Wold said. "We have the session on Sundays following our Saturday game. The session is designed to help the injured players rehabilitate from whatever injuries that they may incur."

The second conditioning session of the week is to build the individuals' strength in a particular portion of the body," Wold said.

"There are players who have different needs as far as what they need to improve as far as their positions. Some need to build their upper body strength, some need to build up their legs. It is on these days that we work on building strength."

The third session of the week, the strength maintenance session, takes place the day before the game.

"The strength maintenance session is not very training," Wold said. "The session is not intended to build on one's strength, but to maintain the level of the athlete already has."

Wold notes that the preseason training is not as intense as the off-season training because the players will concentrate on the intensity of the games, and also because a rigid weight training regimen during the season would be too much for an athlete.

However, Wold does have a rugged training schedule for the non-roster players.

"The red-shirted players on the taxi squad (a squad of non-roster players who are placed on the roster during the season) train four times a week," Wold noted. "We get the non-roster players in condition enough so that they can step right in on the time roster if they are called upon to do so."

Although most football fans don't know who Wold is, what's most important is that every single player does
