Planning services removed from VP's control

MARY PODWOJSKI
Business editor

Effective Friday, the planning services department will no longer report to the office of the vice president of administrative finance, but will be under the president's direct control.

President Stan Rives said the decision, which was made earlier this month, stems from an investigation conducted by Bloomington attorney David Stanczak for the Board of Governors, the university's governing body.

Last October, Stanczak has been investigating allegations of hiring improprieties in the administration and finance department, which is headed by Verna...

It was a recommendation that came out of the Stanczak report.”

Stanczak presented his findings and recommendations from that investigation during a closed executive session of the Jan. 17 BOG meeting.

Rives said the decision to move the planning services department under direct control of the president is a “reaction to a recommendation in the Stanczak report.”

Other than to follow the recommendation, though, Rives declined to say exactly why the decision was made. “That’s a tough question,” he said. “The recommendation was made and we considered it a good one.”

Specifically, Stanczak’s recommendation suggested the department “be moved to another administrative unit.”

“It seemed the only appropriate office will be the president’s,” Rives said. “It is traditional for that office in many institutions to come under the president’s office.”

Planning services has been a part of Eastern’s administration and finance area since 1979.

However, the BOG would comment no further than to confirm officials were aware of the action, but will wait for a full report from the university at the next BOG meeting.

“We are aware of the action today,” board spokeswoman Michelle Brazell said in a prepared statement. “It was a recom-

Allies reclaim town; Iraq has woman POW

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - Allied forces cascaded bombs on a 10-mile-long Iraqi armored column headed into Saudi Arabia and snatched back a Saudi town from defiant Iraqi tank troops Thursday, military sources said.

B-52 bombers rained a firestorm of explosives on an Iraqi column said to be as long as 1,000-vehicles long, according to a pool report by the Southampton Evening Echo, a British paper.

The dull thumps of explosions were heard as A-10 tankbuster planes and lethal Apache helicopters attacked the Iraqi invaders, said reporter Simon Clifford, with Britain's 4th Armoured Brigade near the border.

His story quoted an intelligence report that at least 100 Iraqi tanks had been destroyed since Saddam's forces thrust across the border Tuesday night.

and a U.S. Special Operations plane with 14 aboard was shot down behind Iraqi lines, U.S. military officials said. Two other Americans were missing.

U.S. Marines have reported evidence of five or six Iraqi divisions - at least 60,000 soldiers - massing near the Kuwaiti town of Wafra, near the Saudi border.

Black History Month honors 'A Celebration of Heritage'

EVETTE PEARSON
Activities editor

This year's celebration of Black History Month offers a cultural potpourri of activities and events that draw significant attention to today's African-American culture.

This year's Black History Month to recognize the roots and heritage of a people that otherwise may have been overlooked.

This year's theme for the month is "A Celebration of Heritage," and Black History Month organizers are planning a variety of events that will provide all students with a sampling of the Afro-American heritage.

"We have planned a variety of activities that should appeal to everyone's tastes and to all ages," said Johnetta Jones, director of Afro-American studies and minority affairs.

The month is structured to enhance cultural diversity at all levels of the campus community.

• Highlighting the month will be the appearance of actress Jacqueline Wade in the one woman play, "Zora." The play begins at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Rathskellar of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. The play depicts the tragic side of an African American woman's struggle to be an artist and have a career as a writer. Wade, a Philadelphia resident, has appeared in several New York stage productions including "The Legend of Oedipus."

• Donald Woods, an early opponent of the apartheid movement and the author of the book "Cry Freedom" will present the major motion picture "Cry Freedom: South Africa Revisited" at 8 p.m. Feb. 25. in the University Union

Grand Ballroom. Admission for the event is $3 for the general public and $1 for Eastern students with a valid student ID.

• Tony Burroughs, vice president of the Afro-American Genealogical and Historical Society of Chicago, will present a free genealogist workshop at 7 p.m. Feb. 18 in the Rathskellar. The workshop, "Tracing Your Family Roots," is a teacher at Chicago State University who has traced his own family roots back 200 years.

• The Tarble Arts Center will

News sponsoring contest in conjunction with month

By EVETTE PEARSON
Activities editor

If you're a poet, a master writer or just someone who dabbles with words, you can enter the Third Annual Black History Month Essay Contest sponsored by The Daily Eastern News.

"We are trying to stress that anyone can enter this contest, and it is not exclusive to the minority community on campus," said Jeff Madsen, editor in chief of The Daily Eastern News. "We are urging everyone to join because Afro-American heritage is relevant to everyone's heritage."

and Black History Month is "A Celebration of Heritage." All entries should depict the relevance of Afro-African heritage to modern society by explaining and commenting on traditions and values.

The purpose of the contest is to promote the significance of Black History Month not just for the minority community, but for the entire university, Madsen said.

RHA to hold lip sync, offer prizes

By CHARLENE BURRIS
Staff writer

The "Do It Better Than Milli Vanilli RHA Lip Sync 1991" is set for 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 20 in the Ratskeller of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The event, sponsored by Eastern's Residence Hall Association, is open to all students, and applications are available at any residence hall desk. A $1 admission fee will be charged at the door.

Jessika Jenkins, RHA chair for the event, said cash prizes will be awarded. She also added the top two winners will advance to perform at the Women's and Teen Expo on March 2.

In other business, Eastern's National Residence Hall Honorary (NRHH) organization hopes to begin its campus-wide residence hall recycling program sometime next week, said NRHH President Scott Florini.

Money raised from the recycling project will be put towards the Enochs Scholarship. Patrick Bradley, assistant director of housing and RHA faculty adviser, said the scholarship was started by RHA and NRHH in honor of Richard Enoch, a former associate director of housing.

Bradley hopes the organization will make enough money through the recycling project to award two scholarships this year.

Ryan Devlin, an RHA representative from Thomas Hall, said that RHA and Student Senate are working together to improve the Gus Bus and its service to students. The pick-up times have been changed and the bus route may also be changed.

In honor of the upcoming holiday, most residence halls are gearing up to sell flowers, candy and cards for Valentine's Day.

Rives and Armstrong are scheduled to submit a report on the investigation and Stanczak's report at the 8:30 a.m. meeting Feb. 21 at Governors State University.

As far as the response so far, though, Faculty Senate Chair David Carpenter said he believed it was a "very sensible recommendation."

The senate was briefed Tuesday behind closed doors on recent conversations among the senate's executive committee and BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell and Stanczak.

Senate questions and concerns mid-last semester were part of the impetus behind the BOG's investigation into allegations on several hirings, including that of Scott Walker, Armstrong's son.

Walker was appointed in early October to a $32,700 administrative position under the direction of Kim Furomo, the director of planning services.

Walker is one of 23 employees under the administration and finance jurisdiction whose hiring was investigated.

The first recommendations to come out of the report earlier this month suggested "further review and appropriate action on the appointments of three others, Physical Plant employees who work directly under plant director Vic Robeson. The Physical Plant makes up the largest area of supervision under Armstrong's post.

Rives said no new developments have taken place with the recommendation or any others.

"All of his works were so good, it was hard to choose which works would be presented in the Tarble Arts Center," said William Colvin, curator for the exhibit and professor in the Art department.

The National Pan-Hellenic Council will have a Black History Month Ribbon Day on Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the University Union Walkway.

There will also be many lectures during the month, including "Chicago: Experiment in Public Education," led by lecturer Thomas Murray, president of Chicago's Steinmetz High School Parents Council. "There are three to four faculty and student judges who will judge the contest during the week of Feb. 11-13," Madsen added.

First, second and third place winners, and up to two honorable mentions will be announced, and prizes will be awarded prior to the Black EIU Pageant on Feb. 15.

In addition, the top essays and photos of authors will be published on the editorial page of The Daily Eastern News during the week of February.

Minority enrollment rises by .2 percent

By VANESSA ALCORN
Staff writer

Eastern's minority enrollment increased 0.2 percent since last fall, which includes a 4.5 percent increase for incoming freshmen. Although the increase is a small one, Eastern Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams believes it is due to the university's Minority Admissions Program (MAP). MAP attracts promising incoming students from minorities who do not meet the ACT scores or the grade point average to meet Eastern's enrollment policy.

Once the students are on campus, the MAP program is also featured as a retention program to keep minority students on campus.

"Ninety percent of the students are still here, so I am pleased," said Admissions Director Dale Wolf. He added more needs to be done to keep students on campus once they are enrolled in the university. "As a whole, we need a greater emphasis on minority concerns. The ultimate goal is to make students feel comfortable."

Of the total student body (10,726 students) on and off Eastern's campus, 4.76 percent are black, .18 percent are American Indian/Alaskan native, .60 percent are Asian/Pacific Islander and .79 percent are Hispanic.

Williams added recruitment takes place each year in order to increase minority enrollment. A special phone-a-thon is also held each spring. During the phone-a-thon, minority students from various campus organizations are recruited to talk to potential minority students.

With the slight increase in minority enrollment and with the new program available for minority students, Johnetta Jones of the Afro-American Studies Department said minority enrollment is expected to remain stable next year.

"I do not expect an increase for next fall, but it is still too early to tell," Jones added.

Weekly vigils and march scheduled to support troops

By JILL BAUTER
Staff writer

A small, peaceful group gathered Thursday night in front of Old Main to show their support of loved ones and others fighting in the Persian Gulf.

Roy Lanham of the Newman Catholic Center said the candles should symbolize light in "a world that has gone a little dark."

Pray because that's all we can do right now.

Carlotta Baharlou

A tearful Carlotta Baharlou, co-president of Eastern Illinois Students and Citizens Concerned About Peace, urged the group to "pray because that's all we can do right now."

Three Eastern students read a list to the crowd, naming friends, relatives, students and Charleston residents currently living and fighting in the Persian Gulf.

The list was compiled with the help of the Newman Catholic Center and will continue to grow, Lanham said.

A candlelight vigil will be held at 6 p.m. every Thursday until the war is stopped, Baharlou said.

Although the crowds have been relatively small, Lanham was hopeful support would grow. "It has to start somewhere," he said.

In addition to the weekly vigils, a march has been planned for Saturday to show support for the troops and for peace.

The group will meet at 11 a.m. at Klehm Hall and march to the Coles County Courthouse.

Board refuses to reconsider bar rulings

By MIKE CHAMBERS
Staff editor

The Illinois Liquor Control Commission dealt another blow to Wayne Lanman's hard-line alcohol policy by denying a request for a rehearing on his Panther Lounge ruling, which was overturned by the commission in December.

Lanman, who is also Charleston's liquor commissioner, originally ruled to revoke the liquor license of Panther Lounge, 1421 S. Main St., because of a fall Charleston police raid of that bar which netted 68 arrests. One man was arrested for underage drinking, and the rest were charged with underage entry.

Attorney Brian Bower could not be reached for comment Thursday, but he told The Charleston Times-Courier that the state plans to appeal the decision to the Fifth Judicial Circuit Court, contending that the state commission did not have the power to modify the ruling without proving Lanman's ruling was an abuse of power.

But, the Illinois Liquor Control Commission's attorney disagrees.

Jury clears bartender of serving 19-year-old

A Coles County Circuit Court jury Thursday night found an E.L. Kracker's bartender innocent of selling alcohol to a minor.

Mychelle D. Werling was one of 12 bartenders charged in a March 9, 1990, police operation in which a plainclothes officer accompanied a 19-year-old police source into 14 Charleston establishments. During the operation, the underage source entered the establishment and ordered a beer.

Werling was the only bartender to plead innocent to the charge.

S. John Muller, the attorney representing Werling, said the jury returned the innocent verdict at about 7 p.m. Thursday. Muller said the key to Werling's court victory was an entrapment plea.

—Staff report

"He's wrong; we do have the power to modify the decision. The city is grabbing at straws to uphold a revocation," said James Adinamis, an attorney for the state commission.

Under state statutes, the commission has the power to render a decision to uphold, reverse or modify the action of a local liquor commissioner.

Adinamis said the state commission handed down the stiffest penalty in the situation that was short of revocation, which will be mandatory if Panther owner Dave Isbell commits another violation. But Adinamis said that Charleston residents aren't convinced, citing all the hate mail the state commission has received since the rulings.

"Every one of them thought we advocate underage drinking. If it had been 68 underage drinkers in the bar, then we would have probably revoked," Adinamis said.

Faculty Senate proposes changes to Eastern's textbook rental system

By SUZANNE OLIVER
Student government editor

The key word for the Faculty Senate and Student Senate members may be compromise as both work through resolutions for modifications of the current Textbook Rental System.

"One of the problems with the system is when students have to buy books and still have to pay a rental fee," said Bill Addison, Faculty Senate member and assistant psychology professor.

The five Faculty Senate proposed modifications are as follows:

- A flat fee of students paying $4 per credit hour with a maximum of $60 per semester.
- Limit required faculty usage to four semesters not including the summer sessions.

- Students buying supplemental workbooks or books and renting their textbooks.
- Students instead buying their books at the beginning of the semester without the rental fee.
- Modify the multiple section restriction for faculty.

Addison said he believes the idea of modifying the system for flat fee would be beneficial and feasible for the students.

"We want to modify the current system to be flexible for the faculty and keep the costs down for the students," Addison said.

One of the major problems Addison said the faculty has with the rental system are the restrictions of faculty having to compromise on one text when a course is taught in multiple sections.

"I should be able to pick the best book and not have to compromise with another faculty member's first choice," Addison said.

Curtiss Cline, student senate member on the joint committee said that while the committee has not come to any conclusions, he said he favors the flat fee proposal.

"I like the proposal for a flat fee for students," Cline said. "I think it is fair for the students."

The joint committee has until mid-February to turn in their proposal to President Stan Rives when he will make the final decision on the rental system.

Gulf-related activities slated

Two separate organizations have planned Persian Gulf War-related events to begin on campus Saturday morning.

The first, organized by Eastern's chapter of Students Mobilized Against Saddam Hussein (SMASH), will be a 10:30 a.m. flag-raising ceremony on the South Quad.

Group organizer John Ronna said the ceremony may feature remarks by state Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, and marks the six-month anniversary of the occupation of Kuwait.

After Saturday, Ronna said, the flag will fly each day on the South Quad. Ronna's group is a pro-troop, anti-Hussein movement.

Also that day, a march will begin about 11 a.m. from Klehm Hall and continue down to the Coles County Courthouse on the Square.

At the Courthouse, a rally featuring faculty and student speakers will be held, said Antoinette Spinner, the secretary of the Eastern Illinois Students and Community Concerned About Peace.

Spinner, who will be one of the student speakers, said she hopes to see at least a 100 or more students, faculty and other residents participate.

—Staff report

Correction

The reports to be filed by Eastern's academic departments concerning nine- and 10-month pay contracts are not the result of a Faculty Senate fact-finding committee. The reports, mentioned in Thursday's edition of The News, are not connected with the senate and no such senate committee was created at a Jan. 9 senate meeting. The News regrets the error.

February marks true celebration of cultural roots

Black History Month.

It's a time for celebration of roots, heritage and culture. A time to rejoice in the reality and nature of being a black American.

In the events marked for celebration and remembrance, one should not forget but reflect upon the past and base that experience on the future.

The month was created so that not only black Americans, but all peoples from all countries could study, understand and celebrate the contributions and attempts to build a society where all are created equal.

Since the designation of February as Black History Month 71 years ago, there have been many achievements and accomplishments, but none too great to make up for all that can be done and should be done to achieve better equality and living conditions in the world.

This month's theme, "A Celebration Of Heritage" is a perfect opportunity to learn more about culture.

The month is not a time to simply experiment with the ideas of cultural diversity, though it is a time to assimilate and accomplish, to at least reach for a better understanding of cultural diversity and take part in this celebration of heritage.

With such diverse groups in a vast ocean of people, some ideas, concepts and concerns may not be taken seriously - don't just stand around and accept this type of behavior.

Opportunities are in front of you awaiting your grasping hands.

The mistakes of the past should not be repeated in this day and time. The time is over for blacks to take a back seat on the bus of equality.

Events like Black History Month, with its celebrations of heritage, and the third annual essay contest sponsored by The Daily Eastern News can provide students with more of an opportunity to express themselves.

Even though Black History Month has not been celebrated for even half of the 75 years this newspaper has been in operation, it has, at least, provided an outlet for some Eastern students to manifest their existence.

So, don't just make this a worldwide celebration, bring the celebration home this month and all of the months to follow.

TODAY'S QUOTE
A good deed never goes unpunished.
Gore Vidal

The time for patience has passed away

The Gulf war moves into its third week - a relatively short amount of time as far as wars go.

Allied casualties have been very low as far as we know and if we ignore the deaths of Iraqi civilians and the massive bombings aimed at troops, the war is going quite well - as far as wars go.

Bush's military has been bombing Iraqi positions and Baghdad continuously during the last two weeks, with a minimum of lost planes. From a military standpoint, the war has been handled quite well. The Air Force established air control, dealt out massive air strikes: The administration has diplomatically held the allied coalition together.

After the first week, we were warned against feelings of euphoria. Apparently the administration knew if we became too euphoric, we would have a bigger fall when reality set in. The administration and the military knows a war can't be won solely from the air. Sooner or later, a ground war will be unavoidable, witnessed by Wednesday's action in the Gulf. We will move ever closer to reality.

The American public knows this war isn't going to be short enough to please anyone. But for reasons that completely bewilder me, the war has been accepted by a large percentage of the population. Everybody supports the troops and wants them back safely. (How we can get them back safely while fighting a war is still a puzzle to me though.)

The president has decided on war to solve the crisis and many have backed him because he's the president. Bush also says this is a just war and that also is being accepted. Now Bush wants the

Mike Brown

American public to be patient and since we've been told this may not be a quick war, the American public will suck it in and probably be patient, since that's what the president wants.

According to the American Heritage Dictionary being patient means "enduring affliction with calmness." We should watch the POWs on TV with calmness. We should watch friends, husbands, fathers and brothers move closer to the front lines with calmness. When a ground war breaks out, we should watch them die with calmness. (Author Dalton Trumbo once wondered what good is liberty when you're dead.) Bush has decided to wage war with all its terrible consequences, we should endure with calmness.

We don't have much choice now. Bush made clear he won't back down from the conflict and Kuwait is "liberated." Hussein hasn't budged, unless you want to count the withdrawing of some of the Air Force into Iran. We're pissed at Hussein. We know he's wrong and if he starts using chemical weapons we can't fly off the handle, we have to endure, right? With calmness.

No matter what happens, we just have to be patient, we are told. We can't help the people of Kuwait quickly, we have to be patient. We have to take care of Hussein first. Be patient, we are reminded. However, the time for patience is actually gone. Bush has a lot of nerve asking us to be patient. He passed up his opportunity in asking, and rightly so, for patience to solve this conflict.

Patience was the key to the liberation of Kuwait. Bush shouldn't ask for patience while he wages war. The president should have asked for patience when he used sanctions and waged peace.

- Mike Brown is a staff writer and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Your Turn

Thoughts on war from the student body president

Dear editor:
With the critical situation in the Middle East upon us, I felt it would be appropriate to take some time and write a personal letter reminding all of us of some things to keep in mind at a time like this. You are hopefully all tuned into the seriousness of the situation and the only thing I ask is to take a few moments out of your busy day, if you have not been doing so already, to pray for and appreciate the men and women in service over in the Persian Gulf.

I am sure there are many of you who either have a family member, close friend or loved one in the battle fields and now is the time they need your greatest thoughts and support. If you look at the television, newspapers, magazines, or just have your own opinion on the complex issue of war, I ask you to put them aside for awhile and give thanks to our great country and constitution. For it is because of this constitution that we are able to express those thoughts and opinions. A great quote from Voltaire should be remembered and lived at a time such as this; it states, "I may disagree with what you say, but I will defend you to say it until my death."

Whether you are a Democrat, Republican, Independent or politically aligned at all, it is the time to come together as one as nation by supporting our brothers and sisters as we would be amazed at what could be accomplished when all students put their thoughts and prayers together for one issue. A final thought: We stand, divided we fall. Thank you for your time and attention.

Resolution proposed to extend library hours

CATHY BEHRENDT

Staff writer

The Library Advisory Committee will meet Wednesday to discuss the possibility of extending weekend hours at Booth Library.

The Student Senate passed a resolution Wednesday that proposed the extension of Booth Library hours. Senate members Mary Pfeiffer and Mary Kennedy proposed the resolution because of their belief that the current hours are insufficient for student needs.

"Mary Kennedy and I have felt for a long time that the general quality of the library has needed help," Pfeiffer said. "Last October we proposed some changes, and the result was four new copy machines."

Pfeiffer and Kennedy are the only two student members on the Library Advisory Committee. The committee is made up of two student senate members, several faculty members from each college, a member from University Relations, a member of the Administration-Finance offices and the library dean.

The library is currently open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 11:45 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 11:45 p.m.

Senate speaker Kristy Koch said the idea of the proposal was conceived through Eastern's grievance process.

"Whenever we (the senate) have published grievance forms in the paper, one of the biggest concerns always seems to be library hours and services," Koch said.

The proposed resolution would extend weekend hours only. Proposed hours are Friday from 8 a.m. to 8:45 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 11:45 p.m., and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 11:45 p.m.

Booth Library is currently open a weekly total of 88 hours, 45 minutes.

In comparison to other Illinois universities' library hours, Eastern comes out the loser.

Northern Illinois University's library is open a total of 25 hours, 45 minutes more than Eastern - 14 hours, 45 minutes more on the weekend.

In fact, the libraries at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, Illinois State and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale are all open longer than Booth Library. The average is nearly 15 more total hours including 11 more weekend hours. U of I is open 38 hours on the weekend, ISU for 41 hours, and SIU-C for 31 hours.

Eastern juggling group hosts workshop at McAfee Saturday

Anybody who makes the rounds of modern day juggling circles should find Saturday's on-campus "juggling extravaganza" all the go.

At about 9 a.m. on, McAfee Gym will be filled with more than 30 student and "professional" jugglers displaying their expertise balancing bowling balls, shaker cups and more, said Troy Rourke, member of Eastern's Juggling Club, the host organization.

Visitors are welcome to watch the jugglers from Illinois and surrounding states offer workshops and learn from aspiring and experienced jugglers.

"People can show up whenever they want," Rourke said. "If someone wants to come down during the day and wants to learn, they can."

The convention will continue throughout the day until 6 or 6:30 p.m., Rourke said. At 7:30 p.m. six or seven of the participants will provide a public show lasting about an hour in McAfee for a $1 admission price.

In addition to the student performers, Rourke said professional juggler Paul Bachman of Chicago also will be on hand. "He owns one of the largest juggling archives in the world," Rourke said.

All of the participants, who Rourke said are among the best in the area, belong to the International Juggling Association. Eastern's juggling club has existed on campus for more than a year and is made up of students who enjoy juggling as a hobby or more.

Honors group hosts academic contest

For the sixth year in a row, Eastern's Honors Society will host a scholastic bowl tournament Saturday for their high school counterparts from Illinois schools.

The bowl begins at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in Coleman Hall with remarks from Glenn Williams, Eastern's vice president for student affairs.

The first portion of a round-robin competition begins at 10 a.m. with the schools divided into four groups of four teams, said Andrea Englebright, an Honors student and one of two event coordinators for the event.

The teams that survive that round will go on to afternoon quizzing and, finally, to the championship and consolation rounds, she said.

The competitions will take up several second-floor classrooms and the Coleman Auditorium, with Honors students serving as moderators and timers.

Englebright was one of several other Honors students and faculty who devised the more than 275 questions intended to challenge the participants' prowess at a variety of topics.

Englebright said the event encourages students to attend Eastern and to participate in the Honors Program.

Originally from nearby Paris, Englebright participated in scholastic bowl when she was in high school. Tournaments, she said, offer insight into the schools hosting them.

Paris, along with Charleston, Sullivan, Effingham and Taylorville, are among the schools that will participate.

Newman Center sponsors Gulf War support group

DAN FRIGO

Staff writer

Eastern's Newman Pastoral Center has organized a project to offer support for students who are concerned about the Persian Gulf War.

The project, titled "Project Hugs," is conducted by students serving one of eight Project Hugs' volunteers to talk about the unfolding events in the Gulf and concerns they may have.

Matt Feldmann, one of Project Hugs' volunteers, said the purpose of the program is to reassure concerned students and "make sure everything is all right" with them.

"If they need it, I'll just give them a hug. That is the purpose," Feldmann said. "We're not for the war, we're not against the war, our main objective is healing."

The idea for the group began when the first night of Allied air bombings on Iraq aired during a weekly Newman Center meeting. Senior Chris Brey said the council felt a need to help.

Most Eastern students have parents or family involved in the crisis in the Persian Gulf. Our priority is to act as a peer support group for those students," Brey added.

Volunteers said the student response has been light so far. But as the war continues, they noted a Project Hugs volunteer will be available to talk to students. If students desire to use Project Hugs, blue fliers have been posted on most university bulletin boards with the phone numbers of the eight volunteers.

Students can also contact the Newman Center at 345-3332.

Artist will discuss his craft Sunday

By EVETTE PEARSON
Activities editor

Anyone interested in art, and what prompts an artist to create the type of work he does, should attend the Family Sampler Sunday to hear a lecture by nationally recognized artist Sam Gilliam.

"He will discuss the types of things that makes him create, and if anyone is interested in knowing about the thoughts, politics and ideas of an artist, they should attend," said Donna Meeks, curator for the Tarble Arts Center.

Dinner, dance set for faculty and staff to mingle

By TERESA JOHNSON
Staff writer

It may not be Dodge City, but the University Club will hold its "Western Party and Casino Night" Saturday in the University Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

University retirees, current faculty and staff members, non-members and guests are invited. The fee is $6 for retired faculty/staff and non-members/guests. There is no charge for University Club members.

The event will kick off with a social hour and snacks at 6:30 p.m., followed by a "western style" dinner at 7 p.m.

The casino opens at 7:30 p.m., featuring Black Jack and Craps games with participants using play money. At the end of the evening, the players with the most play money will be awarded prizes donated from area businesses.

Physical Plant Director Bob Hussey will be calling the square dance.

"He is known to be the best square dance caller around," said University Club President Charles Switzer.

The University Club schedules spring events and has had a casino night earlier. A holiday dinner/dance took place in early December which the University Club planned.

People attending are asked to wear "western" attire but that is not required.

The event was coordinated by the board of the University Club and was organized with the intention to have a variety of activities for the faculty and staff and to give them an opportunity to socialize.

Arms reduction treaty on track

WASHINGTON (AP) - After some Soviet backsliding, the drive to wrap up a strategic arms reduction treaty is on track again. But a handful of tough verification problems continue to defy compromise - and are making it difficult to pin down a date for a rescheduled super-power summit in Moscow.

Bush administration officials are breathing easier now that the recent talks in Washington with Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander A. Bessmertnykh prevented further unraveling of treaty issues near resolution only a few months ago.

But they are feeling the impact of the more assertive role the Soviet military is taking in the arms control negotiations, as well as in the troubled Baltic republics.

Mikhail S. Gorbachev's key military adviser, Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, was not here for the three days of talks Bessmertnykh held with President Bush and Secretary of State James A. Baker III. That meant a loss of the moderating influence he had exercised on nuclear arms and other weapons issues in recent years.

Hardliners in the Soviet military are considered at least partly responsible for the Kremlin's recent backtracking on the kinds of bombers that would be restricted under the START treaty, and on rules to guard against cheating on the accord.

"We have seen a steady trend in the direction of the general staff being more assertive and pushing their positions in the negotiations," said a well-placed U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The backsliding began shortly before Eduard A. Shevardnadze resigned as foreign minister last month. He said then that conservatives were gaining the upper hand in the Soviet Union.

Russians ask for suspension of military patrols

MOSCOW (AP) - The Russian legislature voted Thursday to ask Mikhail S. Gorbachev to suspend what it called unconstitutional and potentially destabilizing plans to mount joint army and police patrols in Soviet cities as early as Friday.

The effect of the vote was impossible to gauge in the increasingly tense Soviet political atmosphere, but it reflected anxiety among Russia's federation president and other reformers that hard-liners were preparing to take control.

"Who knows what might happen in the next 24 hours?" federation president Boris N. Yeltsin said during debate on the resolution.

The Russian legislature, on a 130-13 vote, asked Gorbachev to suspend plans for the patrols while the issue was reviewed by the national Constitutional Surveillance Committee and considered by the elected governments of the 15 Soviet republics.

The separatist government in the Baltic republic of Lithuania issued an appeal for calm if the patrols begin and urged people "not to succumb to provocations" by Soviet troops.

Bush declares national day of prayer for troops Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Thursday declared all Americans to join in a national day of prayer for peace and for U.S. troops pressing the war against Iraq.

Bush also got an eyewitness account of Iraqi missile damage to American Jewish leaders who fled from Israel.

Bush also signed legislation to give U.S. servicemen and women fighting the Persian Gulf war a special tax break and an extension on filing their returns. The new law allows the troops to claim interest on tax refunds earned on their time of service in the war.

The State Department, meanwhile, said that some 70 acts of terrorism have been carried out worldwide against the United States and its allies since the war began, some of them by groups alleged to have sympathies with the Iraqi cause.

Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said that the leanings of all the terrorists were not known but that the government was "not trying to devalue at all the seriousness we take of Saddam Hussein's claim to strike terrorism around the world."

"Nor are we in any stretch of the imagination letting any of our guard down," she said. She added that the government has not been able to draw a particular pattern to the terrorist incidents.

Only a few have resulted in injuries, she said. One death has been reported — a bank guard in Lebanon a week ago.

Bush, addressing the annual National Prayer breakfast attended by political and diplomatic officials, asked that Americans observe Sunday as "a national day of prayer."

"I encourage all people of faith to say a special prayer on that day — a prayer for peace, a prayer for the safety of our troops, a prayer for their families, a prayer for the innocents caught up in this war and a prayer that God will continue to bless the United States of America," Bush said.

Men's track squad to Illini Classic

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

Eastern's men's track team will be traveling to Champaign this weekend to participate in the annual Illini Classic.

The invitational is a scored meet that will include teams such as North Central, Marquette, Parkland, Illinois State and Purdue.

The meet will begin at 11 a.m. with the field events and the running events are scheduled to start at 12:40 p.m.

Head coach Neil Moore says he will not be overly concerned about the scored outcome, but he will be evaluating his team for the upcoming conference meet.

"The conference meet is what we're really working for this season," said Moore. "This will be a good meet for us though, and I hope we have a good showing. We'll just take the points as they come, but I'm not so concerned with the score."

"We're still evaluating our people to try and put together the best lineup that we can for the conference meet, since we are limited to enter only 28 people. The meet this weekend is restricting as well because we are allowed three people per event."

Coach Moore will be looking for strong performances from Nevin Govan in the long, triple and high jump events and the ever-improving national qualifier Braidy Miller in the throwing events.

Also Dan Steele will be looking for some good competition in the 800 meters as well as Scott Touchette in the 5,000 meters.

The Panther's next big invite will be the Pepsi Invitational held in Lantz Fieldhouse.

Klingler decides to play senior year at Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — David Klingler, who set or tied 33 NCAA records last season, said Thursday he will return for his senior year at Houston instead of entering the NFL draft.

"I'll be back," Klingler said Thursday at a news conference.

The quarterback said there were 23 reasons to stay at Houston, and only three to enter the draft.

"Those three mostly were money," Klingler added. "But what was most important was taking care of my teammates and taking care of my coach."

"If I didn't come back these guys would win nine, 10 or 11 games. I want to be part of that. I want to win them all."

Swim teams to conclude home portion of season

By DON FISHER
Staff writer

Eastern's men's and women's swim teams round out their season's home schedule at 1 p.m. Saturday, when they host UIC.

"They've got some talented people," Eastern head coach Ray Padovan said of UIC's women's squad. "They don't have quite as many numbers as we do, but they have more than enough numbers to be a formidable team."

The Lady Panthers will be going into this meet as the underdogs and won't gain much from their overall depth.

But it won't be an automatic loss. Padovan added that "if a few things go our way and they don't swim as well as they have earlier in the year, we could keep them honest and have a close meet."

It will be tough for the men's team to compete with UIC because of the Panthers' depleted lineup.

"They're a good team. They're not good in numbers, but they have some real good individuals," Padovan said. "They have some of the top swimmers in our conference."

The diving competition will be close and a win would certainly help matters for Eastern. UIC has two men divers and one woman, whereas Eastern has three women and one man.

"Unless we can win the (diving) event, we only break even with them because first (place) is the same point total as second, third and fourth combined," Padovan said. "So to really make an advantage, you have to win the event. Then you can make some point spreads."

Women's track squad to visit SIU

By GEOFF T. MASANET

With an impressive second-place finish during last week's home meet still fresh in their minds, Eastern's women's track team travels to Saluki Saturday for a quadrangular meet hosted by Southern Illinois.

The Lady Panthers will meet off against Western Illinois, Southwest Missouri State and Southern in what promises to be a top-notch meet.

Eastern will be led by sprinting sensation Donna Levy, who shattered both Eastern and Lantz Fieldhouse records in the 55-meter dash in the EIU Lady Panther Invitational last Saturday.

Coach John Craft said that while Levy is still short of the national qualifying mark, the NCAA meet is not out of the picture.

"Who knows?," Craft said. "She's off to such a good start." Levy, who won the 200-meter dash Saturday and excels in the 55-meter hurdles, is extremely versatile and is a key ingredient in the Lady Panther attack.

Middle distance ace Ti Jaye Rhudy has been nursing a knee injury but is starting to progress more with her running.

"She's been running pretty good lately," Craft said. "Her knee has been a bit of a setback but she's coming along." Rhudy placed second in the mile last weekend despite her injury.

The Lady Panthers will also be counting on strong performances from jumpers Esta Saverson and Tara Mayner.

Saverson is ranked second in the Gateway Conference in the long jump and, as Craft reported, "she's been jumping quite well."

Mayner cleared 5-7 1/4 last weekend, which ranks her in the top five in the Gateway standings in the high jump.

Distance standout Aislann Willey, pentathlete Kala Scott and 800-meter specialist Tracy Hoffman bolster the Lady Panther lineup and will also play key roles in the squad's overall performance.

Bears trade Jackson to Dolphins Thomas

MIAMI (AP) - Former first-round draft pick Eric Kumerow's disappointing career with the Miami Dolphins ended Thursday when they traded him to the Chicago Bears for cornerback Vestee Jackson.

Kumerow, who spent three unproductive seasons in Miami at defensive end and linebacker, made just one tackle in his career.

"This is really a fresh start," Kumerow said by phone from his parents' home in Oak Park. "I'm happy to be home with family and friends, and ready to play good football."

Kumerow, a five-year veteran, has been a starter for most of his career but rode the bench in 1990 until injuries hit the Bears' midway through the season.

Shula described the trade as good news. "I'm glad to be able to play for another team, I'm fortunate," Jackson said. "I'm glad to add some consistency and bring it back to Miami."

Head coach Don Shula's selection of Kumerow with the 16th pick of the 1988 draft was a surprise at the time and has been second-guessed by the Miami media and fans ever since.

"We didn't get the productivity that we wanted," Shula admitted.

Kumerow was the most recent in a series of first-round flops for the Dolphins. Others included linebacker Jackie Shipp (1984), running back Lorenzo Hampton (1985) and defensive end John Bosa (1987).

Shula said he had intended to protect Kumerow when Miami's Plan B list was released Friday.

The coach said he made the trade in part because Dolphins cornerback Tim McKyer is a limited free agent, which means he could be signed by another team willing to compensate Miami with draft choices.

Kumerow, a defensive end at Ohio State, was shuttled between the line and linebacker by the Dolphins and never won a starting job.

"It was tough in Miami," he said. "It starts wearing on you. I thought maybe I wasn't cut out for their scheme ... I was about 260 pounds and I was asked to cover backs, and I was struggling."

Shula said Kumerow might be more effective in the Bears' 4-3 defense than he was in the Dolphins' 3-4 scheme.

"We really have not played him in that position where he was so productive in college," Shula said.

The Bears were in need of defensive linemen following the death of Fred Washington in a car crash last month and the retirement of 12-year veteran Dan Hampton. The teams began to talk about a trade involving Kumerow two weeks ago.

"The package was a fit; they needed a cornerback and we needed a defensive lineman," Bears defensive coordinator Vince Tobin said. "I think Vestee will be a contributor in Miami just as Eric will do the same here in Chicago."

Jackson, a second-round draft pick in 1986, has 15 career interceptions and 247 tackles. But he has been a frequent target of quarterbacks.

"He's a good cornerback," Shula said. "He's been a starter and played a lot of football in the NFL, and he's healthy."

threat, Rod McKinnis, into foul trouble, hit some key baskets to keep the game out of reach from the Panthers.

Eastern cut Northern's lead to 32-30 with 13:26 remaining, before Thomas hit a dazzling, one-handed jump hook from the right baseline to send Northern on a 15-3 run.

Thomas then made two of his four steals during successive trips down the court by Eastern.

Thomas said the Huskies' defense is their trademark and the referees were letting the teams play Thursday night.

"We're striving to be the best defensive team that we can be," Thomas said. "Eastern is a physical ball team, but the referees were letting us play."

Thomas noted the importance of keeping sole possession of first place in the Mid-Continent Conference.

"They have been playing well lately, but we wore them down," Thomas said. "We got a few easy shots at the end of the game and some offensive rebounds."

"It was just a good effort by our team."

Men's tennis squad opens spring slate

Eastern's men's tennis team will open their spring season against Bradley University at 4 p.m. Friday in the neutral setting of Peoria.

The Panthers finished the fall season with a 10-3 record, losing to conference opponents Butler, Indianapolis and Bradley.

With a clean slate, and under the leadership of coach John Bennett, the Panthers are seeking their first spring victory.

The services of their No. 1 singles player, Dan Meyer, is out for the season while recovering from reconstructive knee surgery.

Senior Mike Patrick will step in to head the Panther lineup at the No. 1 singles position.

"We are anxious and ready to play," Patrick said.

At No. 2 singles will be junior Brad Iftner. Newcomer Jeff Streul will be at the No. 3 position.

"It's been a while since we've played in a match situation, but we all have good attitudes about our games," Streul said.

The rest of Eastern's lineup will include Dan Beres at No. 4 singles; freshman Paul Cook at No. 5 singles; and Dave Mazmanian at No. 6 singles.

Beres and Iftner will then pair together to play as Eastern's No. 1 doubles team. Patrick will sit out for doubles, while freshman Kurt Polk pairs with Cook as the No. 2 doubles team and Streul and Mazmanian will play at the Panthers' No. 3 position.

Eastern will next play during the weekend of Feb. 22-23 at Principia against University of Missouri at St. Louis.

Panthers fall short at Northern 59-47

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Associate sports editor

DEKALB — Eastern took its four-game winning streak to DeKalb Thursday night with hopes of moving into a first-place tie with host Northern Illinois.

The Huskies, however, held Eastern to 30 percent field-goal shooting in the second half and 31 percent shooting overall in Northern's 59-47 Mid-Continent Conference win in front of 4,140 fans at Chick Evans Fieldhouse.

Senior forward Donnell Thomas scored a game-high 16 points, while center Andrew Wells pulled down 13 rebounds to set the tone for the league-leading Huskies.

Eastern's top three scorers — guards Gerald Jones, Steve Rowe and forward Barry Johnson — were held to a total of 32 points on just 10 of 39 shooting from the floor.

"I don't think we could have played any harder than we did," Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said. "We were simply unable to get the ball in the hole. To say the least, this was a very physical ball game. The main difference there is that we're not very good at getting the ball inside; they are."

Eastern, which dropped to 9-8 overall, 5-3 in league play, stayed with the Huskies early, tying the game at 15-15 on a three-point basket by junior forward Dave Olson with 9:52 left in the first half.

But the Huskies finished the half by scoring 12 of the last 18 points to take a six-point, 27-21 lead into intermission. In the second half, Eastern cut that lead to 32-30 on a Johnson layup with 13:48 remaining.

After a quick 7-foot hook from Thomas then put the Huskies up by four, junior forward Rod McKinnis followed an offensive rebound for a basket to cut the lead to two again. The Panthers stayed close and were down 38-34 with 8:26 left in the game, but Northern went on a 12-3 run over the next 4:22 to take its biggest lead at 50-36.

"That stretch in the second half was the key," said Northern coach Jim Molinari, whose team raised its record 16-2 overall, 7-1 in the Mid-Continent. "But that's the way we've been all year. Our defense is our identity."

Northern Illinois shot 32 free throws compared to 14 by the Panthers, who lost for the first time in their last three conference road games.

Eastern was outrebounded 36-29. Northern, who came into the contest ranked third in the nation in scoring defense at 55.6 points per game, held the Panthers to just 27.3 percent (three of 11) shooting from three-point range.

Coming into the contest, Eastern ranked second in the nation in three-point percentage, hitting 45.2 percent of all attempts.

"We were just unable to score at the times," Samuels said. "Certainly the defense is good, and I think they take a lot out of your patterns. I'm sure our kids will be fatigued and sore tomorrow. It was a kind of basketball game."

The Panthers, now two games behind Northern and in third place behind second place Wisconsin-Green Bay, travel to Chicago State Monday night for a conference matchup, which marks the end of a four-game road trip for Eastern.

Eastern plays four of its last eight Mid-Continent games at Lantz Gym, while Northern must play four of its final five league games on the road.

Huskies' Thomas rises to occasion in league matchup

By R.J. GERBER

DEKALB — Northern Illinois' Donnell Thomas, tabbed as an All-American candidate at the beginning of the season, Thursday, in Northern's 59-47 win over Eastern, Thomas made the plays and came up with a game-high 16 points, seven rebounds and four crucial shots.

The Huskies pounded the ball inside to the 6-foot-10 senior, and he made the most of his opportunity.

The "D-Train" hit on four of nine from the free-throw line, converted eight of 11 free-throw attempts. Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said that Thomas has been outstanding throughout his career.

"He's been a good player for three years," Samuels said. "He rises to the challenge. He's a senior that you can make the big play. Donnell can certainly do that."

"You don't want somebody coming onto your court and beating you. You have to have someone who can make the big play."

Thomas, who was able to force Eastern's main

Lady Panthers seek revenge against Southern

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Associate sports editor

The last time the Lady Panthers met Southern Illinois, Eastern failed in an attempt to avoid its first 0-3 start in Gateway Conference history.

On Friday, Eastern has its chance for revenge when Amy Rakers and Co. head into Charleston for a Gateway contest at 7:35 p.m. in Lantz Gym.

The Salukis, 13-4 overall, are tied with Southwest Missouri State at 8-1 in the league at the halfway point in the conference slate. Both are one game in front of 7-2 Illinois State.

Eastern stands at 8-10 overall and is tied for sixth place in the Gateway at 3-6.

In order to qualify for the Gateway Conference tournament at season's end, the Lady Panthers must move into fourth place, ahead of Bradley (6-3) and Drake (4-5).

The contest will be the Lady Panthers' first in Lantz since Jan.

19 against Indiana State.

Since then, Eastern has earned two league wins at Northern Iowa and Drake before it lost to 11th-ranked Western Kentucky Tuesday night in Bowling Green, Ky.

But the home court hasn't turned into an advantage for Eastern in league play thus far.

Before this year, the Lady Panthers had won 22 of its last 27 conference games at Lantz.

This year, though, they are yet to claim a victory in four tries.

Although the Lady Panthers have started the season slowly, coach Barbara Hilke said she thinks her players have just started to mend into the team she expected it to be.

"I think the first half of the Gateway season has only started for us the last three games," Hilke said. "We played very hard — we outrebounded Western Kentucky. We have put ourselves in a position where we can make a run and we're playing very well together."

Senior center Stacy Friedrich, who scored 12 points in the teams' first meeting, leads the Panthers with 15.3 points and 8.2 rebounds per game.

The 6-foot scorer is joined in the frontcourt by 5-11 senior Bev Williams (12.9 ppg) and 6-foot junior Tracy Roller (13.7), who was named the Gateway player of the week.

Sophomores Heather Youngman and Sara Losenegger start at guard for Eastern, while fellow sophomores Karen McCaa and Michele Rogiers add help off the bench.

Rakers is joined by Angie

Rougeau, Alison Smith, Kelly Firth and Colleen Heimste in the Saluki starting lineup.

Although Southern had an impressive first half of the season, coach Cindy Scott said that her team is lacking some offensive scoring punch, but its defense has picked up the slack.

"I think our team is probably doing what we expected," Scott said. "We wish we were a better offensive team. We're a very, very poor shooting team and we haven't seen much improvement in that department. We've been a pretty adequate defensive club."

In fact, the Salukis are shooting 45 percent from the field while holding their opponents to just 39 percent.

They make 34 percent of their three-point shots and 75 percent of their free throws.

Eastern, on the other hand, averages 65 points a game on 42 percent accuracy while its opponents put in 45 percent.

The Lady Panthers have made 32 percent of their shots beyond the arc and 72 percent from the foul line.

Scott said that the early season contest was a lot closer than the score indicated, and that Eastern has what it takes to win her club.

"We won by 16, but it was a much closer game than the score indicated," Scott said. "The first half was even (SIU held a four-point time lead). I look for a very tough game for us in a pivotal game for both teams."

"I think Stacy Friedrich and Williams are all-time players and are capable of leading us. I think if we could shoot the ball decently it will help."

Hilke said her team will have to work its way through the Saluki defense to be successful. And in no way does she want to see the Panthers out of the tournament at the end of the season.

"We have to get past the screens a little bit better than we did down there. There's an entire lot of kinds of things can happen."

Is this man getting the right message?

If not, a national student group wants to set him straight.

Iraqi TV Taped Earlier

By CATHY PODWOJSKI

In the sixties, a defiant generation of college upstarts and hippies — often one and the same — sang their bittersweet anthems and wrote the book on peace and protests.

Are we ready for volume two?

On the eve of the six-month anniversary of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and some two weeks into the Persian Gulf War, a new group of authors stands poised to write a new and hopefully improved version of that chapter in history, then spawned by the Vietnam War.

Some of the more prolific of these young writers belong to Students Mobilized Against Saddam Hussein (SMASH), something of a national phenomenon that evokes whimsical connotations of college coeds making a lot of noise but little progress.

But that couldn't be further from the truth, according to the national chair of SMASH as well as one of the organizers of Eastern's SMASH chapter.

"We want to show our support at the student level, which is typically where anti-war feelings are the strongest," said SMASH National Chair

Morgan and his cohorts at Columbia seem to have struck a chord with the media and about 3,000 other member students in college and high school. At least that's what Morgan estimated the group has grown to.

He lost track of the numbers once SMASH caught on and took off, not unlike a Desert Storm.

Member colleges span the country from Florida to Alaska, including — as of about 10 days ago — Eastern, the first Illinois school to join.

That enthusiasm to participate, displayed by Eastern junior John Ronna and others, may earn Eastern the position of chapter state representative, Morgan said. And that could be regardless of how many other schools, even those more well known than Eastern, do or do not join.

To Ronna, such a title would be an honor. But he admits he wouldn't be upset if SMASH doesn't have time to interest more than the approximately 30 students currently involved at Eastern.

"Personally I wouldn't like to have any more SMASH meetings," the National Guard member Ronna said, instead hoping for a quick and painless end to the war.

Like many colleges around the country, Eastern's interest in SMASH only heightened after the war began. However, SMASH first formed before the conflict became a war, in November, Morgan said, with about 100 students who wanted to fight the "psychological demoralizing" of Americans that Hussein was engaging in.

"What we figure is that

DEAR READER

This week, the Verge caters to the masses. That is, that select informed group who don't consider this great Gulf gig to be some kind of action-packed soap opera. Face it, guys. We could possibly be in "sun and sand" come March, but it won't be in South Padre and there won't be any scantily clad chicks roaming around.

For your reading pleasure, our very own Cathy Podwojski spoke with Glen Morgan, a 20-year-old sophomore from Columbia University in New York who is the national chair of Students Mobilized Against Saddam Hussein (SMASH). The organization has a branch here at Eastern that is run by junior John Ronna.

According to Cathy, the intentions of SMASH are simple: "They very emphatically deny being pro-war, but rather are pro-troops," Said Cathy. "They want the troops home quickly, but until that time they want to maintain a high morale among the troops overseas."

Leaving the battlefield for a spell, staffer Matt Campbell roadtripped to Champaign to check out Franco Zefirelli's production of Bill Shakespeare's "Hamlet," starring Mel Gibson. Not to put Mel down, but the sound of a "Lethal Shakespeare" doesn't fry my burger, but Matt says Mel pulls it off ... Well.

Also, a relatively new staffer known as Mr. Grzenia reviews Back From Rio, the new album by Roger McGuinn. Grzenia is known by most as Dave, but his byline reads James. He says this moniker alteration is in fact a tribute to McGuinn, who went by Jim McGuinn until his career was in full swing with the Byrds ... Hmmm.

Also reviewed: Sting's The Soul Cages, Tesla's Five Man Acoustical Jam and "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer," a bloodbath recently released on video.

Finally, Horseshoes and Hand Grenades have returned after being debriefed at the Pentagon. According to Pete and Dave, Wolf Blitzer sends his love.

Sting caters to head, heart

Sting marks return to the world of pop

BY SHELLBERG

the songwriting chief of the Police. Sting carved out some of the best pop songs of the 1970s and early '80s. Though a bulk of these songs were simple ("Do Do Do," "Da Da Da") and catchy ("Little Thing She Does to Me"), even the most complex and overplayed songs like "The Police" blew contemporary rock like the Flock of Seagulls out of the water and came to Top 40 and Grammy power.

After the Police's demise in 1984, Sting left the beaten path behind and discovered Gordon Matthew self-searching, which he explored on his 1987 opus Like The Sun, conceived three years later on The Soul Cages. Although more musically, The Soul Cages is just as introspective as its predecessor, and just as landmark recording.

boy, does this album matter? On "Jeremiah Blues (Part One)," Sting and crew, once again includes the brilliant Manu Katche (no one but I do miss Stewart Copeland - where art thou, great drummer in rock?), the brilliant Kenny Kirkland and the good Branford Marsalis, all on a jumpy jazz plateau, but follow through to a gripping climax, and the fuzziest Hammond organ-laden track, which seems to flow from Robert Plant's "When Love Takes Over," is Sting's most aggressive track to date. When compared to Nothing, The Soul Cages becomes an interesting affair.

The new album's opener, "Mad as Hell," is a patriarchal companion to Nothing's "Lazarus Heart," which deals with the fate of Sting's father, and Soul's "Mad as Hell" deals with "Every Breath You Take"-ish obsession, yet leans more toward Nothing's "Straight to my Heart." All comparisons aside, The Soul Cages stands well on its own.

The giddy first single "All This Time" no doubt sounds like a Paul Simon track, yet it is packed-full of optimism, Let's make it Earth Day every day.

Soul packaging cages the buyer and damages the environment

As a songwriter and performer, Sting is extraordinary. But in some aspects, he's a gump.

For proof, check out the disc case accompanying his new release, The Soul Cages and take a look how Sting has stuck it in the purchaser's moon this time.

Instead of the traditional "jewel box," Sting chose to be "environmentally conscious" and go with a cardboard cover that comes out four-fold and is a pain to re-fold (believe you me, it's hard to fold this thing the correct way after you've been out for the night being a boozier).

In a poll taken at my apartment, three out of three of Timmy's homeboys described this "Rubik's case" as being "bunk."

In addition, my boss, Jeff Madsen, couldn't figure this thing out. Now, Jeff is one of the smartest people I know. And for him not to be able to figure it out, something has got to be wrong.

And besides, if Sting is trying to be "environmentally conscious," wouldn't he stick with the plastic case? This cardboard stuff amounts to a bunch of cut trees! Save the rainforest, my ass, Gordon.

However, when you wear the case unraveled on your head, your shadow ends up looking like either a beagle on its hind legs or the flying nun.

something uncharacteristic of solo Sting.

And the album's powerful closer, "Where the Angels Fall," is Sting's version of Don Henley's "I Will Not Go Quietly."

Although The Soul Cages doesn't feature an "Every Breath You Take"-sized single, it is a well thought out album in every aspect, and is probably the best recorded disc to date, as it was recorded Digitally with "Q-sound" (which succeeds where quadrophonic sound didn't).

Providing music for both the head and the heart, Sting once again delivers enjoyable music that not only keeps your toes tapping, but makes you think.

McGuinn returns with more consistency

By JAMES D. GRZNIA

Attention all paper pretenders and imitators made of ash - this means you, R.E.M., Church, Smiths, Long Ryders and Tom Petty's of the world - though never in Rio, McGuinn is back.

The McGuinn to whom I refer is the original innovator of the jingle-jangle so revered and copied by the above-mentioned groups through the years. Once Jim, now Roger, McGuinn has made a comeback late in his fourth decade of life ironically made possible by his throngs of followers.

As the Byrds' lead guitarist and chief vocalist on the Dylan songs, McGuinn along with his granny glasses became identified as the "big" Byrd. Indeed, after all the other founding members quit, McGuinn was left to lead an ever changing lineup and proved himself the soul of the band. Until the band finally split in 1973, it was McGuinn who lent a stylistic unity to each turbulent incarnation of the group.

In creating his latest release, Back From Rio, McGuinn employed some of the people closest to him as wife and songwriting partner Camille and former Byrds Chris Hillman and David Crosby make contributions worth noting.

Also lending a hand are artists presently at the top of their careers such as Dave Stewart, Elvis Costello, Jeff Lynne and Michael Penn, and every Heartbreaker except bassist Howie Epstein is present.

All of these musicians have listed the Byrds or McGuinn as an influence during the formative stages of their careers. They are now returning the favor.

The album's first single, "King of the Hill," written by McGuinn and Tom Petty (a devoted McGuinn worshiper) is especially interesting. Aside from live performances, this album marks the first studio teaming of master and mentor. It is a strong song and one of the album's high points.

Lyricaly the album is full of word play. This is to be expected from a man who is an admirer and friend of Bob Dylan. In addition, McGuinn was the one who always dealt with the heady issues in the Byrds, like his musical adaptation of Einstein's theory of relativity on the Byrd's 1966 album Fifth Dimension (5-D).

Vocally, McGuinn sounds strong and sure of himself. He also sounds older and wiser than the man who whimsically sang "Mr. Tamborine Man" so many years ago. However, the album really showcases McGuinn's intricate finger picking that has become his trademark and object for adoration. When he indulges, his solos are beautifully terse; McGuinn wastes no notes.

The one exception to the otherwise clean sound is "Car Phone," complete with a phone conversation tacked to its end. McGuinn half-humorously, half-scornfully states "And if there's anyone in space/What they'll learn about the human race/Will be from listening to us/Talking on the car phone."

This song continues themes developed by McGuinn during his Byrds days and serves as a companion piece to songs like "Mr. Space Man," "C.T.A. 102" and "Space Odyssey." With "Car Phone," McGuinn proves that he has not lost his fascination with potential interstellar life or his fanatical interest in gadgets.

This album's edge over McGuinn's previous solo releases is its consistency. It is a good album; but when measured more strictly by his own standards and past work, Back From Rio is not brilliant.

Now that McGuinn has a record deal with a major label for the first time since the early 80s, Arista hopefully will realize what they have and not drop him.

Tesla's Acoustical Jam a look at past, present

Five Man Acoustical Jam

Records

the zany, unpredictable genre I like to aluminum rock, it's often difficult to find the seemingly ubiquitous Warrants, Texas and Trixters from bands that are anything more than a four-page ad in Hit Parader magazine.

But if one was willing to look closely enough, two bands have recently exhibited some refreshing lyrical integrity to long with the obligatory tight pants and long hair. One is Seattle's Queensryche, responsible for the concept album of the 1980s, Operation: Mindcrime. The other being northern California's Tesla.

Tesla, taking its name from the under-rated inventor of the radio, raised favorable eyebrows with its first two albums, Mechanical Resonance and The Great Radio Controversy. Now, a la MTV's Unplugged, the band has released a collection of their hits recorded during a live acoustic set that also featured a handful of nifty covers.

Five Man Acoustical Jam is an endearing album. In addition to Tesla faves

"Modern Day Cowboy" and "Love Song," Five Man includes inspired versions of the Rolling Stones' "Mother's Little Helper," the Beatles' "We Can Work It Out," Creedence Clearwater Revival's "Lodi," a snippet of the Grateful Dead's "Truckin'" and the album's first single, "Signs," originally recorded by the Five Man Electrical Band.

In short, this collection serves as an appropriate token of gratitude for die-hard Tesla fans. Even if you're not a long-time Tesla follower, Five Man is enjoyable because it reflects the obviously good time the band had during its five-city acoustical tour.

The weak points of the collection unfortunately occur between the songs. Witty audience banter does not become Jeff Keith and Co. You know, on most live albums, extraneous tune-ins, tune-outs and "Hello (your city here)" are left on the mixing-room floor.

Don't buy this album because it offers every crude, unpolished second of a rock and roll show (albeit a unique one).

Buy Five Man Acoustical Jam because it offers an intriguing snapshot of a young band that has transcended aluminum rock status.

Gibson rises to occasion in Hamlet

By MATT CAMPBELL

For all the skeptics who thought Mel Gibson couldn't do Shakespeare, the new Franco Zefirelli film version of "Hamlet" has proven them wrong.

Director Zefirelli's production of possibly the most famous of William Shakespeare's plays, combined with Gibson's interpretation of the titular character, has created the most enthralling version of the play since Sir Laurence Olivier played the part in the 1948 film version, which he also directed and produced.

For his production of Hamlet, Zefirelli assembled an all-star cast with names like Glenn Close, Alan Bates, Ian Holm and Paul Scofield. For those who haven't read the play since high school or haven't read it at all, the plot concerns the death of the king of Denmark and his widow's sudden marriage to the dead king's brother. As the plot unfolds, Hamlet becomes aware that his father did not die of old age, but was murdered as he slept in his orchard, it seems, by his own brother.

For those who have read the play and are familiar with the Elizabethan English, it is easy to follow the movie. If not familiar with the play, the dialogue demands special attention.

This is by no means a movie in which Mel Gibson plays a formula character. Anyone expecting a reprise of the persona presented in "Lethal Weapon" or "Air America" will be sorely disappointed.

Gibson has taken a radical departure from his usual roles, portraying a mourning, brooding Hamlet in a manner second only to Olivier's portrayal, which many critics have praised as unsurpassable.

Gibson does justice to a role from which many actors shy away, and in the process makes himself a truly world-class actor.

Zefirelli, who has produced and directed versions of "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Taming of the Shrew," has created yet another magnificent film translation of a Shakespeare play. The costumes, set and on-location filming in the United Kingdom all factor in the simulation of long-ago Denmark.

The interpretations of Gibson, Close, Bates and Scofield are all true to the original play, possibly as any production has been to date.

The Shakespearian-trained Bates does a fine job of portraying Hamlet's deceitful uncle, and Close turns in a fine performance as the widow of the great king who marries her brother-in-law before the corpse is two months old.

While there are minor differences between the play and the movie, Zefirelli and co-screenwriter Christopher De Vore have managed to leave the play's original mood intact.

The musical score is composed by Ennio Morricone, who is known for the soundtracks he penned for the Zefirelli Spaghetti Westerns, which included "The Good, The Bad, and The Ugly" and "A Fistful of Dollars," which both starred Clint Eastwood. This soundtrack, however, is nothing like those previous scores, and serves as an excellent compliment to the Zefirelli production.

The whole Zefirelli production has the look and feel of a film destined to join his versions of "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Taming of the Shrew" as classics.

The movie is currently playing in Champaign-Urbana, and is well worth the drive; even if you're not a Shakespeare fan.

Rent the most horrifying, disturbing film ever made

By TIM SHELLBERG

Video Pick

For the most part, the horror films released in the last 30 years have spent most of their time focusing on the assailants' victims. From Norman Bates to Michael Myers to Jason Voorhees, we've mostly seen the tribulations of the assaulted, not the assaulter.

Enter "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer," where for the first time we see the murderer on the murderer's level. For the entire film we see the assailant at more than face value, and it is this view that makes "Henry" the most horrifying and disturbing film ever made.

Released in 1986, but released during the summer of 1987, "Henry" was left unrated, but would receive an "NC-17" rating released after the MPAA's most recent modification. This is evident in the first three minutes of the film, during which five, count five, victims to Henry's methods are offed - and that's only beginning. Not a video for those with a weak stomach, and not to even offend those who consider "Faces of Death" a comedy.

Henry, brilliantly played by Chicago actor Michael Rooker, kills without logical motive and often as if it was fun. Yet, on the side of the gory scenes (of which there are a lot), we see a man not entirely withdrawn from society - he drinks Old Style, has a job, dresses normal (somewhat) and can carry on a conversation.

However, we still see a killer. Henry knows what he's doing, like an addiction, he doesn't stop. In fact, Henry kills without a reason - he can snap a neck like the average Joe opens a can of Pepsi and makes dismembering limbs (in what might be the most disgusting scene filmed since the "eating of the innards" scene in "Dawn of the Dead") look as simple as cutting Velveeta slices.

Maybe it's the intertwining of Henry the killer and Henry the public eye, and that his prey are simply slaughtered corpses given a chance to develop as characters, that makes this movie so devastating.

Yet Henry isn't alone. His roommate Otis is a homosexual, promiscuous, incest-hungry dope dealer who is in on many of the killings with Henry, and Otis' sister is the victim of her brother's desires. In addition, she has the hots for Henry. All the main characters of "Henry" are demoted in one way or another, and that drives Henry to kill more.

Although the plot is secondary to the film's brutality, "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer" is no doubt the most thorough and terrifying excursion into the mind of the most mentally deranged man ever filmed. For horror buffs, it is not to be missed, but for everyone else, "Henry" is a movie that will stick with you for a long time.

On-air speculators earning their fame

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you have an opinion, and your words appear to be broadcast on television, you are a speculator. Gen. Richard Secord of the Pentagon is a note to the ubiquitous Jackson, television host, who has held forth with an endearing stream of talkers who feel comfortable speculating on the future of Saddam Hussein to the Iraqis is torturing its allied forces. The unrelenting use of on-air speculation provides a revision of the old adage: "The only way to get to the bottom of the matter is to ask the experts." It comes to TV experts, who can be famous for hours on end. Speculators fall into two categories: paid consultants and unpaid talking heads. In the former group, the networks have a total of 13 military consultants, most of them retired generals (no one will say how much they're paid). The Los Angeles Times recently said one unidentified former general was rumored to be receiving $10,000 a month for the duration of the war). The unpaid category includes an eclectic blend of former advisers, past cabinet members, journalists, politicians and the former Prime Minister of Pakistan, Benazir Ali Bhutto. But the bottom line is that only one person knows the thoughts of Saddam Hussein. The only people who know whether the allied POWs have been tortured are not available for ABC's "Nightline" or other network shows. This lack of knowledge has not stopped television from talking ad nauseum. It has, however, generated a mountain of criticism that ranges from the tongue-in-cheek to charges that the experts' pronouncements are biased and one-sided. Rick Kogan of the Chicago Tribune wrote that TV has shown enough retired military officers to staff a new cable network: "The Old Generals Channel." Jeff Cohen of the liberal, New York-based watchdog group Fairness & Accuracy in Reporting said: "TV has given us a steady parade of military analysts, but they're also giving us a steady stream of the more hawkish ones. "Their coverage amounts more to propaganda than it does to unbiased news reporting," he said. To a network, all defended their use of military and civilian experts as a needed complement to sparse Pentagon reports. "They are military men. They know what they're talking about," said Suzanne Allen, the senior producer on CBS' war desk. "I'm curious as to what the alternative is," she said. "Throwing a bunch of stuff on the air that may or may not be important?" Since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraq, CBS has hired retired Gen. George Crist and Gen. Michael Dugan, who was fired in September for talking too much to reporters, specifically about U.S. contingency plans for war. When Dugan saw the allied POWs on videotape, he said, "Gee, this is the way I looked when I bailed out over Vietnam," Allen said. "He explained how it is when you're going 600 mph and the canopy comes off and the oxygen mask gets ripped off your face. We went on the air and said that." ABC and Ted Koppel went on the air with another expert, who said the videotape clearly showed the POWs had been beaten.

Students mobilize against Saddam

Saddam Hussein is looking at the war in two fronts: His own backyard, which he's losing; and our front — America," Morgan said.

As the group's name implies, the organization is predominantly college students, but a diverse group. "Some of us are active with the College Republicans, but some of us are outspoken liberals," he said.

The College Republicans have proved to be the link that's connected SMASH with new schools, including Eastern.

But while many groups such as the Republicans have worked well with Morgan and his cohorts' cause, others haven't been so receptive. "There are several groups that are rather violently peaceful," he said.

Morgan's main contention with those groups developed directly from an interview with Hussein where the Iraqi leader praised the anti-war movements active throughout Europe and America. "If you look at the people who agree with him, it will show their true light," he said.

The group's purpose isn't just to clash with those who oppose them, though. Beyond solely vocal support for the troops, the group encourages and organizes blood drives and helps support a fund for American prisoners of war that was recently established.

And speaking of money, the group uses quite a bit of that itself, Morgan said, but raises funds through events, T-shirt sales and donations. "Money is always a problem," he said. "We just make the most of the student assets we have."

But the price paid has gone beyond money, at least for Morgan. "There's a lot of hard work in this," he said. "My grades have suffered."

It's worth it, though, at least until the war ends and SMASH has served its purpose. "By the name we're a very specific group. If he's (Hussein) gone, there won't be a need."

That will be the day when Morgan will let a little bit of the college in him come forward — when they return home, he said the troops are in for a big bash, New York style.

Until then, the rallies and work must go on both nationwide and even campuswide at Eastern. Morgan said rallies are planned for Sunday throughout the country, while Ronna said a campus flag-raising ceremony will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday on the South Quad.

"I believe we have the moral and logical argument on our side," Morgan said. "Learn the arguments, learn the facts, do your own research and work together," he advised others.

"I believe America is a different place than it was 20 years ago," he said, looking through what may be the same muddied and often bloodied spectacles his counterparts of the sixties used.

Hear there are vacancies at the Baghdad Hilton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drumbeat set up by anti-war demonstrators in Lafayette Park is getting under President Bush's skin. Bush reportedly told lawmakers last week, "Those damned drums are keeping me up all night," according to an account Tuesday's New York Times. The din actually has subsided as the U.S. Park Police arrested 11 people in recent days for making too much noise in a small park across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. They can only make a certain amount of noise before they are told to quiet down," said Major William Spruill, the U.S. Park Police spokesman. Bush's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said he had not heard Bush's complaint about the noise, but "I don't doubt that he said it."

Another White House official confirmed that Bush had complained about the noise, which began even before the U.S.-led forces began bombing Iraq and Kuwait on Jan. 16.

You say tomato, we say get a clue

CHICAGO (AP) — It took the loss of $16,000 in savings to convince a suburban Wonder Lake couple that tomato pulp is no more reliable than tea leaves as a guide to life, police said this week.

The couple, Maria and Cirilo Valadez, said they were having problems with their rebellious 13-year-old daughter last spring when they heard an advertisement for self-proclaimed psychic Dorothy Demetro on a Spanish-language radio station.

Maria Valadez said they visited Demetro on Chicago's Southwest Side in May, and she told them to leave a tomato in their bed while they slept and bring it to her for analysis.

When Demetro, 46, who uses the professional name "Mrs. Wellington," crushed the tomato the next day she allegedly pulled a tiny skull from the pulp and told the couple it was evidence of a curse on their family.

No wonder they drive so safely

BRISTOL, R.I. (AP) — A Domino's Pizza manager was charged with using the business to deal marijuana to go.

Police were tipped off by an informant and grew suspicious when they noticed people leaving the store without pizza, said Detective Lt. Terrence Mullen.

Another detective was told "you could order a pizza and marijuana and they would put the marijuana inside the box along with the pizza," Mullen said.

Police arrested store manager Arthur Singleton, 26, of East Providence last week and charged him with possessing marijuana with intent to deliver and distributing marijuana to a minor, Mullen said.

Back from two weeks of Pentagon debriefing, we've obtained a translated version of the Baghdad Tribune's Young Iraqi's Guide to the Gulf War.

What is the United States like?

Some parts are bumpy; some parts are flat. Places like Washington, D.C. are swirling cess pools of lies and deceit.

Who is George Bush?

George Bush is the Great Satan in the White House. A man of leisure, Bush married his mother and was once known around the world as a wimp. Not any more. He thinks he's Hemingway or something, which could explain this whole "New World Order" business. This way he's guaranteed to have better memoirs than Ronald Reagan.

To some Americans, Saddam Hussein and his kind are a pretty scary lot. What's even scarier is how closely his propaganda newspapers mirror ours.

What is a suburb? Suburbs are where Americans eat Cheese Whiz, get fat and can watch "Wheel of Fortune" on six different channels nightly.

VICE PRESIDENT
J. DANFORTH QUAYLE

This could happen if democracy reared its ugly head in Iraq.

Why have they come to kill our brothers?

How are American kids coping with the war?

Most children prepare for combat by playing something called Super Mario Brothers. During peacetime, the game is used as a Postal Service training device.

Who's Uncle Sam pointing at?

Millions of American male college students trembling in their shoes over the prospect of a really hot Spring Break.

Does Jesus Christ have anything to do with this?

We're not sure, but Americans are fond of the phrase, "Praise the Lord, and pass the ammunition."
