Armstrong's son resigns from post

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
 Editor in chief

The son of former Vice President for Business Affairs Verna Armstrong resigned from his position late last week.

Scott Walker, the central figure in controversial hiring practices under his mother, resigned as the assistant director of planning and institutional research.

Supposedly, Walker had been reassigned to a new university post in the computer services department on April 1. But apparently, although Walker was moved to the computer services department, his title, duties and salary did not change because of a problem with a civil service processing procedure.

"He's been located in this department and he has been reporting still to Kim Furumo ... under the supervision of one of our analysts," said David Henard, head of the computer services department. "He was assigned over here since a lot of (his work) is computer-oriented."

Acting Director of University Relations Art Tate said Walker was not given the option of resigning or the university would not renew his contract.

The resignation ends more than eight months of controversy under Walker's hiring.

Last October, Walker was hired to his $32,700 per-year post - which was under the direct jurisdiction of Armstrong - by Kim Furumo, the director of planning and institutional research. The hiring process sparked charges of nepotism and unethical hiring practices under Armstrong.

Subsequently, Eastern's governing body - the Board of Governors - hired Bloomington attorney David Stanczak to investigate the charges, which ultimately cost Eastern $25,000. Armstrong was fired by Eastern President Stan Rives in early March with one year's notice.

Most recently, Walker and Furumo were mentioned in a form letter sent by more than 100 Civil Service workers to BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell that outlined the workers' dissatisfaction with the operations under Physical Plant Director Victor Robeson.

Neither Walker nor Furumo returned several messages left by The News on Monday. Robeson declined comment on the letter Monday. A BOG spokeswoman said that although he received the letters, Layzell has not yet looked at them.

"It was something that we expected a little bit sooner than this, but we are satisfied that he made the decision to find another job," said carpenter Darrell Schmitt. "I think it's best for him and the university."

Senate approves BOG appointments

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
 Editor in chief

As expected, Gov. Jim Edgar's new appointments to the Board of Governors were approved by the Senate.

The weekend approval makes Charleston physician Mack Hollowell and Daniel Goodwin the newest members on the board, and in turn, ends the terms of Chair James Althoff and Vice Chair Ray Wilson.

Because of previous vacation dates, neither Hollowell nor Goodwin will be able to attend the board's next meeting on July 18. Since the board does not meet in August, the two appointees will not sit on a board meeting until September, BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell said.

Brazell added, however, that Hollowell and Goodwin will take part in any board action that takes place from now on, including the yearly August performance evaluations of the five BOG presidents.

The BOG is the governing body for Eastern, Western Illinois, Northeastern Illinois, Chicago State and Governors State universities.

The board is currently operating without leadership since Althoff and Wilson were not reappointed to finish their terms as the leaders.

Brazell said that the members will decide who should succeed the two outgoing members as chair and vice chair at their next meeting.

She added that the members named to the leadership positions will only hold the titles for one year, fulfilling the terms of Althoff and Wilson. At that time, the members will again vote on who should lead the board for a two-year term.

Brazell said that she did not know who would be chosen as the board's next chair or vice chair.

Monument to honor troops of Desert Storm

By JILL BAUTER
 City editor

As a part of this year's Fourth of July celebration, a monument will be dedicated in Morton Park to the men and women of Operation Desert Storm.

According to County Clerk Betty Coffrin, the monument was "the brainchild of the Charleston Area Support Group," which is made up of mostly parents and family members of those serving in the Persian Gulf during the war.

The day's activities will kick off at 9 a.m. with Kids' Day in Morton Park, which offers a petting zoo and the Charleston Area Chalk-In. Children participating in the Chalk-In will be given a space on the tennis courts to show off their artistic ability. First place will be awarded to the most patriotic drawing.

The parade will start at 1 p.m. on the square in downtown Charleston, said Coffrin. The route will follow Sixth Street to Polk Avenue. The parade will turn onto Second Street and proceed to Morton Park.

"Charleston has never had a Fourth of July parade, as long as I can remember," said Coffrin. "We felt this was a good time to kick-off the Fourth of July event."

Currently, about 80 units have entered the parade.

After the parade, a celebration will be held at Morton Park. A brief ceremony to dedicate the monument will be held at about 3 p.m. The monument was paid for by "many, many local contributions," Coffrin said.

According to Coffrin, about 25 local troops from Operation Desert Storm will participate in the parade and ceremony. Many came home especially for the event, she said.

Sen. Harry "Babe" Woodyard (R-Chrisman) and State Rep. Mike Weaver (R-Charleston) will also be participating in the ceremony.

About 20 non-profit organizations will be providing entertainment and food in Morton Park, including a dunking booth, craft and bake sales, a petting zoo, food vendors and a visit from Pizza Hut's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

Bush introduces Thomas as Supreme Court nominee

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) - President Bush Monday said he would nominate Clarence Thomas, a black federal appeals court judge, to the Supreme Court as a replacement for retiring Justice Thurgood Marshall.

"He is the best person for this position," the president said at a news conference at his summer home. Thomas is a conservative former chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and his nomination is likely to trigger a fierce confirmation battle in the Democratic-controlled Senate.

Thomas, 43, was overcome with emotion as he thanked Bush for his appointment, and thanked "my grandparents, my mother and the nuns, all of whom were adamant that I grow up and make something of myself." "Only in America could this have been possible," said the man who was confirmed in 1990 as a federal appeals judge in Washington D.C.

Bush bristled when it was suggested that he had appointed Thomas because of his race.

"The fact that he is black - a minority - has nothing to do with this. He is the best qualified." Thomas, if confirmed by the Senate, will join a court that has become increasingly conservative, especially in ruling against criminal defendants and suspects.

Conservatives had a 6-3 working majority on most issues in the just-concluded term, although the docket did not include cases on such divisive topics as abortion, affirmative action and religion.

The court's next term could include all three issues. The administration hopes to have its new justice confirmed before the court convenes in October.

Temperatures reach highest point of year

Air conditioners and motorized fans no doubt ran at high speeds throughout Charleston Monday, as high temperatures accompanied by scorching humidity levels continued to plague the area.

In addition, local weather observer Dalias Price said Monday's 95 degree high temperature was the highest recorded temperature in almost a year to the date.

According to Price, the cause of the almost-unbearable high temperatures is a "northbound traveling" mass of hot air originating from the south eastern coast and the Gulf of Mexico.

Professor offers patriotism in play

By JILL BAUTER
City editor

An Eastern English professor will focus on patriotism of the past and present in his own play, which will be presented this week at the Charleston Alley Theater.

"O Say Can't You See?" will be presented at 8 p.m. on July 6, 7 and 8 at 718 Monroe Ave.

According to the play's creator, David Radavich, the play is a "festive comedy" about an idealistic presidential candidate who doesn't understand the harsh realities of the nation in which he is campaigning. He can't find anyone who wants to vote.

Adding a twist to the plot, Betsy Ross is "mysteriously transported into the present." With her help, the candidate achieves great success in reviving "honesty, justice and equality," said Radavich. However, they do encounter problems along the way.

To add to the humor, supporting characters in the play include a prostitute, a televangelist, a drug dealer and a hairdresser.

The play is set in the present time in Washington D.C.

Tickets are not necessary, but a $2 donation is requested to help defray production expenses, said Radavich.

Eastern students, faculty, and Charleston residents will play the characters in Radavich's production.

Radavich said he has written about nine or 10 different plays and is usually working on more than one at a time. He has been working on "O Say Can't You See?" on and off for a couple of years.

Billy Brant and the New Harvest Band will be performing live music and member of the EIU Theatre Summerfest cast will perform a few numbers from "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off."

The activities in Morton Park will end at 6 p.m., said Coffrin.

A firework display, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, will begin at dusk at the Campus Pond.

"Almost every service organization (in Charleston) was involved (in the celebration) in one way or another," said Coffrin. "It was a joint effort."

The celebration events will be held rain or shine.

Simon has reservations about court nominee

CHICAGO (AP) - Sen. Paul Simon said Monday he fears President Bush's nominee to the Supreme Court may lack a strong commitment to civil rights.

Bush announced his intention to nominate Clarence Thomas, a black federal appeals court judge, to the nation's top court. The nominee is a conservative former chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

"My basic concern is whether he will champion the rights of all Americans, including the powerless in our society," the Illinois Democrat said at a news conference.

Simon is a member of the Judiciary Committee, where the process of confirming a Supreme Court nominee begins.

"The background of Judge Clarence Thomas is less important than his views and what they mean to protecting our constitutional rights," Simon said.

"As head of a key civil rights enforcement agency, he seemed to go out of his way to find ways to weaken some of the basic civil rights protections that his agency was charged with enforcing.

"I want someone who is going to stand up for the less fortunate in our society," Simon said.

Budget year begins with no budget but hopeful rhetoric

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Despite hopeful rhetoric from Gov. Jim Edgar and some lawmakers, Illinois started a new fiscal year Monday without a budget but with a surplus of partisan finger-pointing.

The Republican governor and Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan said after a noon-hour negotiating session that progress had been made, hinting at a possible compromise on property tax limits that could help break the budget impasse.

But such glimmers of optimism were shadowed by the aftermath of Sunday night's Senate votes rejecting Democratic-drafted plans to extend the state's 20 percent income-tax surcharge for two years and fund vital government services for the month of July.

An angry Senate President Philip Rock, D-Oak Park, bemoaned the defeat of those measures by a coalition of Republicans and black Democrats. He challenged Edgar to offer an alternative, charging that the governor pushed the legislative session into overtime.

"He's got his way," Rock said on the Senate floor. "Here we are. It's July 1. State government at this moment has ground to a halt, so we better have a plan." Edgar, responding at a news conference to Rock's blast, suggested that the stalemate was due to Democrats' refusal to enact the administration's tax and spending proposals and their inability to agree on an alternative.

Neither "the governor nor the governor's party control the Illinois Senate or the Illinois House," Edgar said.

"I have had a proposal on the table for many, many months. They at the last minute came in with a partial proposal that was rejected, including by members of their own party."

Textbook rental holding sale

If you are interested in purchasing your textbooks for the summer, then you can do so in Textbook Rental's summer sale.

"Students may purchase textbooks checked out to them for the summer," said textbook rental clerk Lori Nese.

The sale will last from July 1 to July 26 during regular textbook rental hours, 7:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

"The sale went pretty well today," Nese said. "People were in and out purchasing books most of the day."

Students can purchase books at the replacement cost to Textbook Rental Service.

"Different publishers have different discounts where some are $8, $10, etc.," she said.

over the last several days," said Price. "This is probably the most uncomfortable day of the year. This is a very intolerable situation for human comfort."

And while Price said Monday's high temperature failed to break any previous records for the day, he did note the 95 degree high - which with the heat index was 104 degrees - is the highest recorded temperature of the year. According to Price, Monday's high temperature was last topped by a 98 degree high on July 10, 1990.

But even though the recent heat wave is being deemed unbearable by area residents and is expected to continue at least up to Thursday, Price said to expect cooler temperatures and possibly showers and thunderstorms later in the week.

Price also said showers and thunderstorms can be expected Monday evening or Tuesday morning.

Bush introduces

Thomas his views on abortion, but it loomed as a flashpoint in the confirmation hearings.

Within moments of the announcement, one of the Senate's most liberal Democrats, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, said he would press Thomas hard during the confirmation hearings on his view on abortion.

Chief Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. of the U.S. District Court in Washington D.C. hailed the appointment as a "pleasant surprise." Robinson praised Thomas as "a very hard-working person...he'll be very conscientious," he said.

The conservative Concerned Women for America praised the nomination. Thomas epitomizes "the type of jurist worthy of serving on the highest court in the land," said Beverly LaHaye, the organization's president. On the liberal side, Arthur Kropp of People for the American Way called the choice "troubling" because Thomas has "a dismal record on civil rights." Thomas was asked what he would say to those who said he was appointed only because of his race. "I think a lot worse things can be said. I disagree with that. But I'll live with it." Bush said it was "pretty well established" Sunday afternoon that he wanted to name Thomas. The two men talked on the phone during the day.

Bush replied with a brisk "nope" when asked if he expected any difficulties during the confirmation sessions.

"I'm satisfied that this man will pass muster." During his Senate confirmation hearings for the appeals court judgeship, Thomas was criticized by some civil rights groups that accused him of being lax as head of the EEOC in enforcing anti-bias laws to protect the aged and minorities. But most liberal interest groups decided not to contest the nomination.

With Thomas looking on, Bush said Thomas believes "passionately in equal opportunity." Thomas' critics accused him, as EEOC head, of failing to aggressively investigate age discrimination complaints against employers. Civil rights groups charged that Thomas limited enforcement of affirmative action when the EEOC investigated charges of racial discrimination.

On a number of occasions Thomas has expressed objections to affirmative action. In a 1985 statement, Thomas said "federal enforcement agencies.. turned the statutes on their heads by requiring discrimination in the form of hiring and promotion quotas, so-called goals and timetables."

Date rape or successful seduction?

Visiting expert discusses survey

By JILL BAUTER
City editor

If a woman has been raped, chances are she doesn't even know it.

According to a survey conducted by Distinguished Visiting Professor Mary Koss, only 24 percent of women actually raped believe they are rape victims. The majority labelled it as something else.

Koss spoke to a crowd of more than 50 people last week concerning "Outrageous Acts and Everyday Seduction: Experiences of Sexual Aggression and Victimization Among College Students."

According to Genie Lenihan of the Counseling Center, Koss is a "national and international authority on sexual assault." Koss, currently a professor at the University of Arizona, conducted a national survey of college students in 1985. The survey is considered to be a landmark study in the field of sexual assault, said Lenihan.

However, the survey did generate controversy, including an article written in Playboy Magazine. Koss said the article, written by a woman journalist, claimed she inflated rape statistics.

The statistics in the survey were often higher than national crime reports suggest because only 5 percent of rape victims actually report the crime, said Koss. Furthermore, one in 12 men surveyed admitted to committing a rape, also higher than crime statistics report.

What women often considered to be a rape, the perpetrators considered a successful seduction, said Koss. The difference in perceptions comes from the difference in traditional sexual roles, she said.

Traditionally, women are expected to be attractive, but not too sexually experienced, and want to be respected by men. Koss said that men, on the other hand, are traditionally expected to "make the first move" and try to "gain territory." He expects resistance, but sometimes believes it to be phony, she said.

According to Koss's survey, "84 percent of (rape victims) knew the man who raped them and 57 percent of the offenders were dates."

"One in four college women has been the victim of rape or attempted rape since the age of 14," said Koss. But to implement a rape program at the college level would be too late, she said, because the average age that the rapes occurred was

Alcohol and drugs are also a major factor in sexual assault. Koss said that 75 percent of offenders and 55 percent of victims were drinking at the time of the assault. Koss said that often people feel the rapist is less to blame if he has been drinking, but the rape victim is more to blame if she has been drinking.

Koss also taught a workshop last weekend about "Campus Violence: Patterns, Causes, Impact, Treatment, Prevention."

Young and old enjoy Velveteen Rabbit

By JILL BAUTER
City editor

Whether seeing it for the first time or the 50th time, the "Velveteen Rabbit," presented by the Eastern Illinois University Theatre, was enjoyable for all to see.

The play, based on a book of the same title, tells the story of a stuffed velveteen rabbit who wins the love of a little boy and becomes real.

The audience on Monday was made up of young and old alike. The children in the Playroom squealed with delight during the performance. But surprisingly, some of the biggest smiles came from the adults.

The play lasts for only a half hour—just long enough to hold the attention of a youngster. But the story is a favorite of many, regardless of age.

The performance of Kathryn Friedman as the velveteen rabbit was beautifully executed. Her enthusiasm and energy was crucial to the success of the play.

Michael Wollner, playing the boy who loved the rabbit, gave an equally good performance. His child-like voice and expressions made his role believable.

But certainly one of the best performances was given by Lance Zitron who played the skin horse, the doctor, and the uncle. His part was small, but unforgettable. His rendition of the skin horse's song rivaled the yodelling of any country western star. His brief appearance as the boisterous uncle was hilarious.

Monday's performance was sold out. The performance dates have been extended because of the tremendous and well-deserved response from the public. The "Velveteen Rabbit" will be shown at 11:30 a.m. on July 19 and at 2 p.m. on July 20 in the Playroom of Doudna Fine Arts Building. Tickets are $1.

The original story was written by Margery Williams. Assistant Theater Arts Professor Marjorie A. Duehmig adapted and directed the production.

Also appearing in the performance were James Freund as the narrator, Jennifer Andrews as Nana and the aunt, and Stacy Scherf as the Nursery Magic Fairy and aunt. Steffani Fort, Geoff Cowgill and Amelia Heape played the real rabbits, the toys, and other minor parts.

Goal set for blood drive

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

The American Red Cross has scheduled a summer blood drive on July 8 and 9 for the Coles County area and Eastern community to avoid the current blood shortage from becoming any more critical.

The blood drive will be held at St. Charles Borromeo Church, 921 Madison, on July 8 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. to reach a goal of 115 pints and in Stevenson Towers on July 9 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with a goal of 240 pints.

"The daily goal is presently at 1,000 units of blood which will represent two days of collection in this blood region," said Paula Roberts, manager in donor recruitment. "The blood supply is at much less than we would like it to be because it has been very difficult collecting blood."

To achieve to goal of 115 pints on July 8, the American Red Cross will need 150 people and on the July 9, a total of 280 people will be need to complete their goal, Roberts said.

Charleston has 855 registered blood donors and Coles County has 1,901 donors. The Red Cross is asking each eligible donor to show up and to bring a friend, Roberts said.

"Right now, we are only able to supply hospitals with blood for emergencies and surgeries," said Dave Cline, blood services consultant for the American Red Cross.

"So many people donated blood during the Persian Gulf war, even those people who hadn't donated since World War II, and they think we still have that blood supply," Roberts said. "This is not true because the shelf life for blood does not last that long, usually 42 days."

Act responsibly when celebrating Independence Day

This isn't just another week at Eastern.

In fact, this week is a day shorter because of Thursday's celebration of our nation's 215th birthday.

And this year, Charleston is doing more than hosting its regular fireworks display by the Campus Pond on Independence Day. It is holding a parade for the nation's heroes.

The parade, which begins at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, honors the men and women who put their lives on the line for fellow Americans in Operation Desert Storm.

Although many people have forgotten the months of terror that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein brought to the world, the end of the war marked yet another victory for our nation. Charleston isn't forgetting, and neither should you.

Remember that when you were in classes during the week, other students were risking their lives in the Persian Gulf.

Remember that when you went to sleep at night, friends and families of soldiers sat glued to television sets wondering when, or if, the war would end, and when, or if, their loved ones would return.

Remember when you celebrate Independence Day Thursday that those men and women were risking their lives for you, their fellow American citizens.

And remember that although it is a holiday, and although celebrating our nation's birthday is acceptable, there is no need to risk the lives of you or anybody else by driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Alcohol-related accidents and deaths always increase over holiday weekends. Don't make yourself or anybody else another statistic. If you decide to drink, stay off the road.

Independence Day is more than just another holiday, and this Independence Day is more special than it has been for a long time. Remember what it means to be an American citizen, and what it means to have freedom of speech and a system based on democracy.

Remember those things on Thursday, America's birthday.

Happy birthday, America. Happy birthday to the best nation in the world.

TODAY'S QUOTE

One hundred and eighty-one years ago, our forefathers started a revolution that still goes on.

Dwight D. Eisenhower (1956)

Charleston needs a recycling plan

I was putting the final touches on an in-depth article about recycling in Charleston, only to discover that one of my main sources went out of business before I could finish.

Recycling should be gaining in popularity. Why can't one of Charleston's few recyclers keep its doors open?

When Tony Rickleman and his partner bought M&R Recycling (formerly Charleston Recycling), I'm sure they thought they were making a smart business move. But in less than a year, they threw in the towel.

Earlier this spring, Rickleman said dropping aluminum prices and the high cost of shipping was putting a real strain on business. Other area recyclers complained of the same problem.

So where does this leave me? Not only did I miss the deadline on my story, I have to find somewhere else to take aluminum cans.

For the past year, my roommates and I have taken our supply of used cans to Charleston Recycling and M&R Recycling. It took some getting used to. The business is located in an area of Charleston that most people stay away from — the end of 10th Street amidst several unidentified warehouses. There's usually a few greaseballs hanging around who stare at the people who wander in. It doesn't even look like you're supposed to drive back there.

But since we consider ourselves to be environmentally conscious and responsible, we ventured into the boonies of Charleston every few months to drop off our cans and get three or four dollars for our trouble.

I suppose we could have used the drop boxes near IGA or Wilb Walker instead, but ever since Carl Ball of Kleenwell Disposal admitted to the city council that he was throwing away the stuff he couldn't sell, I've been a little reluctant to do that.

Jill Bauter

A proposed curbside recycling project also failed last October because of the lacking market. The non-profit service would have allowed Charleston residents to have recycleable goods picked up on the street outside their houses. What could be more convenient?

Right now, aluminum is about the only material which you can count on being recycled. Paper, glass, tin and other materials are more difficult for recyclers to sell. Coles County Sanitation Service is storing several materials until the market improves.

The only positive recycling efforts in Charleston seem to be the EIU Recycling Committee, which recycles mostly paper. The progress of that group should be recognized, but it does little for the rest of the community.

Recycling is a good idea. We should all recycle. But it is getting harder and harder to do when the market is working against us, and there are fewer places to take the materials.

If recycling is inconvenient, no one will bother. At this point in time, the recycling situation in Charleston is pathetic. If you bother to collect the materials, there is no guarantee it won't end up in a landfill anyway.

Something needs to be done to improve the recycling capabilities of this community. Unfortunately, no one seems to have any easy answers. And no one wants to claim responsibility for solving the problem.

Most of the country's landfills will be full by the year 2000, and unless we want to bury garbage in our own backyards, we have to recycle.

Summer work hours are for the better

In response to the letter concerning summer work hours — I like them. I like to get major tasks done at work while I am more alert and things are relatively calm. Getting off work at 4 p.m. gives me extra time for grocery shopping. Since I have a 30-minute drive to and from work, I appreciate having more time in the evenings for house and yard work or leisure time with my husband. Love Connection is also on at 6:30 p.m. I think the summer hours are great!

Drum and Bugle Review performs for 2,000

By LIBBY SHAWGO
Staff writer

The stands in O'Brien Stadium shook Saturday night as the piercing brass sounds of the Second Annual Lincolnland Drum and Bugle Review rang through the air, providing the crowd of over more than 2,000 with a rare treat.

Not only were the brass sections tremendous, the well-rehearsed drum lines impressed the crowd with their musical ability and showy sticking.

The flag lines added to the overall affect with their colorful flags, kites and other assorted crowd-pleasers.

"Central Illinois was long a drum corps wasteland," said Robert Smith in an issue of "Drum Corp World."

That is until Drum Corps Midwest and several area businesses decided to introduce the world of drum and bugle corps to Central Illinois.

"It's a good change because Eastern doesn't see this kind of stuff very often," said Krista Stiff, a junior journalism and sociology major, and a member of Eastern's flag line.

Seven corps participated in this year's review. They were: the Royalaires, Pioneer, Kiwanis Cavaliers, Limited Edition, Glassmen, Bluecoats and the Cavaliers.

The Glassmen from Toledo, Ohio placed third in the competition with a score of 64.5.

The Bluecoats from Canton, Ohio were second with a 71.5.

The Cavaliers from Rosemont won first place (77.2) with their chilling performance of "Cavalier Anthems—An Advent Collection." Their rendition of five familiar Christmas tunes on a very warm June day was a pleasant surprise.

Eastern graduate Amy Miller said, "It's an honor having them march on our field."

Indeed it was an honor to see the end results of the drum corps' talent and dedication to their art.

'Stop the World' musical opens

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

The play "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" opens at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Playroom and offers entertainment as well as knowledge about a person's life using settings of imagination and experimentation.

"This is an unique and unusual single setting play just right for a small room," said Director E.T. Guidotti.

Littlechap, the main character, calls his company together for a rehearsal. They search for a new idea. Tight-rope walkers, aerialists, animal trainers, jugglers, strong men are all old hat to them, Guidotti said.

"We see him from birth to the time when he has grandchildren," he added.

The play shows his birth, childhood, schooldays, his first meeting with the opposite sex, his first job in a factory. Also, it shows him meeting the ideal woman, his present wife and with a cry, he stops his turning world to tell the audience what his world is all about.

"Whenever Littlechap wants to speak to the audience, he stops the world and the show to convey a thought," Guidotti said.

The main character stops the world and the play when he begins to speak and that is where the uniqueness of the title comes from, Guidotti said.

The 11-cast musical will play at 8 p.m. on July 3-6, and 10-13 with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. on July 7 and 14.

General admission is $8 and students will pay $4, but there are season tickets available for $7 for the three shows.

Elbert leaving Eastern

By BRUCE UNDERWOOD
Staff writer

Eastern history professor E. Duane Elbert has been appointed Illinois State Historian and will leave Eastern to take the job.

He was appointed by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency Board of Trustees with the concurrence of Jim Edgar, said Elbert.

Elbert said he will also serve as executive director of the Illinois State Historical Society.

When asked about the 25 years he has spent at Eastern, Elbert said "I have enjoyed more of them than I haven't. It has been a very pleasant working experience. You are not lecturing to nameless, faceless masses."

Elbert has been teaching Illinois history courses and American history courses at the undergraduate level. He has primarily been teaching courses in the graduate program of historical administration, Elbert said.

Elbert said "I am really looking forward to (the new position). It will be an opportunity to put to practice things I have been teaching for years."

His responsibility will be primarily to work with Illinois publications, school services and the Congress of Illinois Societies and Museums, Elbert said.

These programs are partly funded by the Illinois General Assembly and by the State Historical society, Elbert said.

A WEEKLY COLUMN BY E. DUANE ELBERT RECOUNTING EASTERN'S PAST ...

TURNING BACK THE PAGES

75 YEARS AGO - Normal
School News, July 7, 1916

Mr. Horton, head engineer of the school, has attached mufflers to the exhaust pipes from the engines in the power house. This improvement does away with the noise which disturbed various classes in the Model school and east wing of the main building.

A very enjoyable dance was held in the gymnasium last Saturday evening from 7:30 until 10 o'clock. Misses Hansen and Gale were the chaperones for the occasion. These dances are held each Saturday of the summer school term. They are for the students an faculty. Students having friends wishing to come should secure invitations from Miss Estabrook.

50 YEARS AGO - Eastern
Teachers News, July 9, 1941

Next Saturday morning, July 12, the Eastern student body will begin the day bright and early by dancing to music furnished by Johnny Paul's orchestra from 4-7 a.m. at the annual sunrise Prom, the social highlight of the summer term.

The dance will be informal, and students will be permitted to bring guests. Recreation tickets will admit students, and guest tickets may be purchased for 25 cents.

The "Guardsmen Quartette," famous movie and radio singing team will appear in concert as the second number of the summer Entertainment Course in the auditorium of the Main building on July 10, beginning at 8 p.m.

On Monday, July 7, the interior decorating class, under Dr. Mildred Whiting, visited Miller's furniture store in Charleston. This is the first of a series of visits to various homes and furniture stores to be taken by the class during the summer.

Dr. Whiting has planned these study trips for the purpose of acquainting the students with design, color, style, furniture, etc.

25 YEARS AGO - Eastern News,
July 6, 1966

The enrollment this summer for graduate and undergraduate session shows an increase of 119 over last summer's figures, it was announced last Wednesday.

There are a total of 2,682 students enrolled in the two sessions, with 2,158 registered in 10-week undergraduate term, and 524 graduate students enrolled in the 8-week term.

The Department of Health,

Education and Welfare has granted Eastern $5,000 for the purchase of library materials, President Quincy Doudna announced recently.

Roscoe R. Schaupp, director of library services, said that most of the money was used to enlarge Eastern's file of periodicals. He also said that Eastern's microfilm file of the New York Times has been expanded by five years to include 1945 through the present. The grant was awarded under Title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

President Quincy Doudna announced recently that three advanced degrees have been presented for approval to the Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities which meets in Chicago July 12.

The degrees are: M.S. in botany; M.A. in political science; and an M.S. in zoology. An advanced degree in English is to be presented at an upcoming meeting.

Doudna said that Eastern is "moving away from being an entirely educational college. In fact we've been doing that for the last five years."

The Karlsrud Ensemble — a quartet — will open the Summer Artists Series next Monday evening in the Laboratory School Auditorium.

Michael Landon dies of cancer

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Michael Landon, the boyishly handsome actor who battled cancer with the same affability he brought to roles in "Bonanza" and "Little House on the Prairie," died Monday. He was 54.

Landon, who also starred in the TV series "Highway to Heaven" and whose career was jammed with writing, producing and directing credits, died at his sprawling ranch in this coastal city nearly three months after he announced his illness, said Ronne Schmidt, a receptionist for Landon's attorney, Jay Eller.

Landon was set to start work on the new CBS series "US" when he was diagnosed with liver and pancreatic cancer on April 5.

"I think every little moment gets more important after something like this," a stoic but congenial Landon said after he learned he was terminally ill. "It's not like I've missed a hell of a lot. I've had a pretty good lick here."

With Landon's passing, the only original "Bonanza" cast member still alive is Pernell Roberts. His manager, Brian Rix, said Roberts was "deeply grieved by Michael's death." Liver and pancreas cancer is almost always fatal and often isn't diagnosed until in advanced stages. Landon had been treated with experimental therapy, including intravenous injections of bubbles of fat that contained a cancer-fighting drug. He also had been given coffee enemas to relieve intestinal irritation.

"If I'm gonna die, death's gonna have to do a lot of fighting to get me," Landon said in an interview with Life magazine. "I'm not just gonna lie down and let it happen." He joked about his cancer treatments, saying he hoped he wouldn't lose his trademark curly locks.

And in his last television appearance, on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" on May 9, he asked the studio audience if anyone had ever taken a coffee enema and someone said yes. Landon replied: "You must be fun to have breakfast with." "I think you have to have a sense of humor about everything," Landon said in an earlier news conference. "I think 'Highway to Heaven' helped me with that since I played a dead guy anyway."

Brandon Tartikoff, former NBC entertainment president and newly appointed chairman of Paramount Pictures, said: "I think he fought the fight about as well and courageously as it could be fought. He did it with dignity and determination and I'm just sad I won't be seeing him." As a producer and performer, Landon favored non-violent, humanistic dramas looking at life, death, family and calamity.

Behind the scenes, however, he was known as an outspoken stickler who alienated colleagues with inflexible demands.

He said his attraction to uplifting television was prompted by a miserable childhood.

Polluters owe state millions: Report

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The state Environmental Protection Agency has been lax in collecting $55 million owed the state for cleaning up hazardous waste, according to a report released Monday.

State Auditor General Robert Cronson reported that the agency has tried to collect less than $37 million of the total and had recovered only $1.3 million as of June 30, 1990.

He said the agency also fails to test the safety of private wells near hazardous waste sites and lets red tape get in the way of enforcing rules for transporting hazardous waste.

Polluters are required to pay the cost of cleaning up their messes. When they don't, the state is supposed to remove the waste and bill the polluters.

But a spokeswoman for the EPA said that's not as easy as it sounds.

"We can't always find out for sure who it was that dumped it," said spokeswoman Joan Muraro. "We are basically giving it our best shot." She disputed Cronson's claim that $55 million has gone uncollected. "Frankly, I'm not sure where they're getting the figure." But she said she didn't know the correct figure or how much of the money has been written off as impossible to collect.

The report blames poor planning and slow action for the uncollected money, a problem that was first noted in 1986.

It also criticized the agency for not testing, when asked, the safety of private wells near hazardous waste sites.

Republicans try to remap commission

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — With Republican Gov. Jim Edgar's veto of a Democratic-drafted legislative redistricting plan, GOP leaders held out hope Monday that an acceptable remap can be drawn by a bipartisan commission.

In a signal to Democrats they are ready to take the commission's work seriously, Republican legislative leaders moved within hours of Edgar's veto Sunday to appoint their four members to the eight-member board.

"It is our sincere hope that by working with the Democrat members of the commission, we can achieve a map that is fair and which meets all state and federal constitutional requirements," Senate GOP Leader James

"Pate" Philip of Wood Dale said. Democratic Senate President Philip Rock of Oak Park and House Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago still have until July 10 to name their appointees.

State Democratic Party Chairman Gary LaPaille, who is Madigan's chief of staff, put the odds at "50-50" of the commission approving an acceptable map to both parties.

"The Republicans have said that they all along would like to sit and work out a compromise," he said. "What's fair to them may be unfair to us, so we'll have to see." Appointed to the commission by House GOP Leader Lee Daniels were Rep. Robert Churchill, R-Lake Villa, and former Rep. Gene Hoffman of Elmhurst. Philip named Sen. Frank Watson, R-Greenville, and Kendall County State's Attorney Dallas Ingemunson.

Under the state Constitution, the governor's veto gave the task of preparing a map to the commission appointed by the four legislative leaders.

The commission will have until Aug. 10 to file a map approved by at least five members. If there is no agreement, a tie-breaker is chosen by a drawing of the hat to produce a plan by Oct. 5.

Bush demands Iraqi cooperation

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush on Monday demanded that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "make things right and satisfy us" by cooperating with U.N. efforts to inspect his country's nuclear facilities.

The president said reports that he was considering renewed military action were "not all warrantless." Still, he said the United States would not move on its own if Saddam continues to thwart United Nations inspectors but would act in conjunction with allies.

Bush spoke with reporters at his oceanside home in Kennebunkport, Maine.

He called the news conference to announce his selection of federal appeals judge Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court. But he also answered questions on a wide array of other issues, denouncing new Israeli settlements in occupied territories, describing an upcoming meeting with Mikhail S. Gorbachev, defending embattled staff chief John Sununu and praising his mother on her 90th birthday.

Bush's harshest comments were reserved for Saddam, stepping up a war of words touched off by a shooting incident last week in which Iraqi soldiers drove off U.N. inspectors looking for hidden nuclear-weapons materials.

The president would not discuss what he might do if Saddam persisted in obstructing the U.N. inspectors.

But, he said, "He has to make things right and satisfy us or we'll figure out what else happens." "All I'd say is he better get on with keeping his word and he'd better get on with total, free, open inspection." "We've got a lot of diplomacy to do," Bush said. "I'm very concerned about this situation. ... I haven't seen anything that makes me think it's calming down." At the Pentagon, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said, "Obviously, we've got a number of options and possibilities that are available at any given time. At this point, we are working to try to resolve the matter through diplomacy, as the president indicated."

Concerning another Middle East controversy, Bush said his administration was "not giving one inch" in its opposition to new Israeli settlements in the occupied territories. He called them "counterproductive."

Regulators hope to bar Keating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Regulators Monday moved to bar Lincoln Savings operator Charles H. Keating Jr. and six others from the thrift industry after a judge rejected pleas that the hearing would harm Keating's defense on separate criminal charges.

In its biggest-ever enforcement action, the Office of Thrift Supervision also seeks $130.5 million in money Keating and the others are accused of looting in four Lincoln Savings & Loan deals.

Administrative Law Judge Paul J. Clerman scheduled as the first witness Robert Claire, an attorney for Bankers Trust in New York, to testify about employee stock option plans.

Regulators say Lincoln lost $12.3 million by improperly funding a stock option plan at Phoenix-based American Continental Corp., Lincoln's parent. The office contends Keating, his family and top executives enriched themselves by selling stock to the plan, which paid for it with loans Lincoln guaranteed.

Attorneys for Keating and the others argued the hearing was unnecessary because their clients don't have any money left.

Keating's attorney, Stephen C. Neal, said Keating would agree never to work in the thrift or banking industries again.

Neal also asked Clerman to dismiss or at least postpone the civil case so Keating could prepare a defense in other proceedings against him.

Mitchell steals Lewis-Johnson show

By the Associated Press

France (AP) — The great rematch turned out to be a great mismatch. The big showdown was a big let-down.

Carl Lewis easily won the long-awaited duel with Ben Johnson on Monday night, but he didn't even win the race.

In their first head-to-head competition since the 1988 Olympics, Lewis finished second and Johnson came in seventh in the 100 meters at the BNP Grand Prix meet.

On a cold, rainy evening before a capacity crowd of 30,000, Dennis Mitchell stole the show by breezing to victory in 10.09 seconds.

Lewis was next in 10.20, followed by Olapade Adeniken of Nigeria in 10.22. Johnson was nearly three meters behind Lewis in 10.46.

So much for drama.

"It's like comparing a high schooler with a world champion," said Mark Witherspoon, who finished sixth in 10.29.

Lewis, running on his 30th birthday, blamed the weather for his modest performance.

"I just felt very tight," he said. "I didn't feel really loose. I started well, but I just wasn't able to accelerate. It was very cold and the rain definitely didn't help us." But Lewis said he was just relieved to have the rematch finally over with.

"Let's be honest," he said. "It would never have ended until we had this race. There would always have been that expectation." The race, however, did not end the two athlete's mutual dislike.

As Lewis went down the line before the race offering a handshake to all the runners, Johnson waved him off.

"I didn't want to give it to him," Johnson said. "As long as we're competing, that can't happen." Lewis said, "That's his gig. That's his psyche. The last time we got that close, I had to make him shake it and he won that race." That was at the Seoul Olympics in September 1988 when Johnson beat Lewis in the 100 meter final. But Johnson subsequently tested positive for steroids, lost his gold medal and world record and was banned for two years.

Lewis said Monday's race should help remove the stigma of drugs from track and field.

"This was an important race," Lewis said. "The '80s was the drug era. Now the sport is much cleaner, we're trying to improve things, we're trying to focus more on the athletes. Basically that's what this race was all about. The race was with clean athletes." Johnson and Lewis avoided all eye contact as they warmed up next to each other.

Lewis, in lane four, and Johnson, in lane five, burst out of the starting blocks and were side by side for the first 50 meters. But Lewis pulled away from Johnson in the last half of the race.

"I didn't see him, I was just focusing on my race," Lewis said. "That's his race, to run the best 50 he can. But we're running the 100." Johnson said, "At 45 to 50 meters, I tried to change gears but I didn't have enough energy. At the end I felt like I wasn't too far from Carl." It was Johnson's fifth 100 meters since returning to action after the suspension. In his four previous competitions, he clocked 10.54, 10.69, 10.41 and 10.40 — a far cry from his 9.79 in Seoul.

Johnson had agreed before the meet to return 25 percent of his pay check if he failed to break 10.17. Both runners were reportedly offered $250,000 for the race.

Johnson said he still needs time to regain his form.

"I've dealt with my problems for two years now," he said.

"It's tough mentally for me. It will take a while for me to come back." Johnson and Lewis are scheduled to run against each other again on Aug. 5 in Sweden.

"I'm tired," Johnson said. "I've been running seven weeks in Europe. Now it's time to go home and rest." Lewis offered a pessimistic view of Johnson's chances at the world championships in Tokyo in late August.

"Unless he does a lot of improving, he'll have a tough time getting out of the second round," he said.

Atlanta trades Spud, Moses is out

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks made room on their roster for newly acquired Blair Rasmussen and Travis Mays Monday by renouncing the contract of veteran center Moses Malone.

In return for Rasmussen, the Hawks sent the rights to first-round draft pick Anthony Avent of Seton Hall to Denver, which immediately traded his signing rights to Milwaukee for the rights to Bucks first-round pick Kevin Brooks. The Nuggets also got the Hawks' second-round draft pick in 1993.

In another deal, 5-foot-7 guard Spud Webb was traded to Sacramento for Mays, along with a second-round draft selection in 1994. Last week, veteran guard Doc Rivers was traded to the Los Angeles Clippers for a first-round pick the Hawks used to draft Stacey Augmon.

"It's always difficult to trade away veteran players — especially those who were active in the community like Spud and Doc," Hawks general manager Pete Babcock said. "I think the fans by and large understand that the time was right to make these moves. We just needed to get younger as a team." The Mays and Rasmussen trades were made after the NBA draft last week, but couldn't be finalized until Monday so Atlanta could remove enough money from its payroll to fit both Rasmussen and Mays.

In order to make room for Rasmussen and Mays under the NBA salary cap, the Hawks renounced Malone's $2.4 million contract, making him an unrestricted free agent ineligible to sign with the Hawks next season.

Although the Hawks lately have been wheeling and dealing for youth, coach Bob Weiss said it wasn't a house-cleaning effort.

"I wouldn't say cleaning house," he said. "That implies that we didn't like what we had, and that's not true. We see a need to get younger without making the talent base deteriorate." The Hawks' move toward youth is evident. Rasmussen, 28, replaces Malone, who is 36. Augmon is 25 and Mays 24. The Hawks also drafted Rodney Monroe of North Carolina State, 23. Gone are Rivers, 29, and Webb, 27.

John Battle, 28, also became an unrestricted free agent after the Hawks were unable to reach a contract agreement with him, Babcock said. Battle wanted $1.5 million a season for the next four years.

Rasmussen averaged 12.5 points and led Denver in rebounding (11th overall in the NBA) and blocked shots (16th in NBA). Over his six-year career, the 7-foot center has averaged 10.1 points and 6.0 rebounds.

"The move to pick up Blair Rasmussen is a move to give us more offense in the pivot," Babcock said. "While one of his strengths is his shooting ability, he has great work habits and he comes to produce every night." In Mays, the Hawks are getting a perimeter shooter. His .365 three-point percentage was 13th in the NBA last season and he ended the season as the fourth-leading scorer among rookies with a 14.3 average, behind Derrick Coleman, Lionel Simmons and Dennis Scott.

"Mays plays very well in the wide-open system and the passing game," Babcock said, "and we would like to move more in that direction.

"We're trying to get younger and more of a perimeter game. Each player has had experience in a wide-open system." Sacramento Kings officials hope Webb will be able to play a leadership role on the team.

"Our needs were for a veteran point guard, a young, quick point guard. Spud fills that criteria. He has tremendous speed and quickness," Kings player personnel director Jerry Reynolds said.

Lendl ousted at Wimbledon again

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Order was restored to Centre Court as the rabble gave way to royalty, the waves and chants disappeared and Ivan Lendl endured his traditional torture.

David Wheaton let his American freak flag fly and 120 mph serve soar to beat Lendl 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, 6-3 in a third-round match Monday and sent him home a Wimbledon loser for the 12th time.

The only new twist to this old story was the quickness of Lendl's departure. He hadn't lost a Grand Slam match so early since his first-round exit here in 1981.

Wheaton's victory over the No. 3 seed put him on track to meet fifth-seeded Andre Agassi, a 7-6, 6-3, 7-6 winner against Richard Krajicek, in the quarterfinals.

"This is my best surface, and I think I am a contender in this tournament," said the 22-year-old Wheaton, a 6-foot-4 muscleman who is ranked 20th. "I wouldn't necessarily say I'm going to win, and go out on a limb like that. But I think I have a chance." Looming in the same half of the draw as Wheaton and Agassi is three-time champion Boris Becker, who beat Andrei Olhovskiy 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Wimbledon returned to solid respectability a day after opening its gates to the masses for the first time on the middle Sunday because of rain postponements last week.

Players again bowed or curtseyed to the Duchess of Kent in the Royal Box and the stands were filled with the regular, older, more restrained ticket-holders in blue blazers and fine dresses.

The green-jacketed mandarins of the All England Club insisted they aren't planning a repeat of Sunday's open house for the public. But they said they learned lessons that might lead to changes to attract younger fans and bring back that party atmosphere.

The only history set Monday came on the court when Martina Navratilova when she surpassed Chris Evert's record of 111 singles matches at Wimbledon. Navratilova beat Catarina Lindqvist 6-1, 6-3 to gain the quarterfinals in her quest for a 10th title.

All the other top five women seeds also won, including Steffi Graf, Gabriela Sabatini, Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Mary Joe Fernandez. Jennifer Capriati, the 15-year-old seeded ninth, struggled again before beating Brenda Schultz 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Lendl offered no excuses for his loss, save the mention of hand surgery that cut down his training for the one championship he can't seem to win and can't stop thinking about.

Paxson, Cartwright still unsigned

CHICAGO (AP) - Reserve forward Cliff Levingston will be in a Chicago Bulls uniform next season, but three others from the NBA championship team remain uncertain.

The question marks include two starters, center Bill Cartwright and point guard John Paxson.

Cartwright, Paxson and reserve center Scott Williams are free as of Monday to negotiate with other teams but the Bulls have signaled they want to keep their championship team intact.

"It is our intention to sign Cartwright and Paxson," said Bulls Vice President Jerry Krause. "We have no timetable. Now it's just a negotiating process." Cartwright's agent, Bob Woolf, said he has been contacted by another team but declined to say which one.

"We must look into all alternatives but I know Billy likes Chicago and wants to stay in Chicago," he said.

Paxson's agent, David Falk, did not immediately return telephone calls to his office.

The Bulls have the right to match any offer made to Williams, who will undergo surgery on his right shoulder this week and may have an operation on his left shoulder later in the month.

Levingston, 30, is a nine-year NBA veteran. He provided key help from the bench in the team's championship series last month against the Los Angeles Lakers.

"He was a major factor in winning the NBA championship," Krause said Monday in announcing that the team had picked up the option on the second year of Levingston's two-year contract.

The deal is worth a reported $1.35 million for the 6-foot-8 Levingston. Last season he earned $750,000.

His agent, Roger Kirschenbaum, said Levingston had feared the Bulls would release him and pay the $400,000 buyout to retain trade flexibility under the NBA's salary cap.

"They waited until the last day with us because they were looking at other options," Kirschenbaum said. "I don't have any problem with that." Levingston had 45 points, 41 rebounds and seven assists in 17 playoff games this year.

The highlight of his playoff performance was in Game 3 of the title series against Los Angeles. Levingston had 10 points and was 5-for-5 shooting to help lead the Bulls to a 104-96 overtime victory.

Rose to portray Cobb in movie

NEW YORK (AP) - Pete Rose's ban from baseball caused producers of a television movie about Babe Ruth to alter the film in which Rose portrays Ty Cobb.

The producers of the film, which is to appear on NBC on Oct. 6, sought permission from major league baseball to use team logos and uniforms.

"Usually, when we grant rights, we demand to review the script so as not to portray baseball in a negative light," Rick White, president of Major League Baseball Properties, said Monday. "In the original script, there was no allusion to Rose." When the producers decided to use the career hits leader to play Cobb, the man whose record he broke, baseball set the guidelines.

"We told them, 'We don't want you not to employ Pete Rose, but if you do, he can't appear in a uniform because he is on the disqualified list,'" White said. "They suggested using him in civilian clothes to solve the problem. They probably changed a marginal scene or two." The film's executive producer, Larry Lyttle, and its producer, Frank Pace, were not immediately available for comment.

Rose agreed to be placed on baseball's ineligible list in August 1989 after an investigation into his gambling activities.

Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti said he believed Rose had bet on games involving the Cincinnati Reds, the team he managed. Rose later served five months in prison for failure to pay income taxes.

A rule also was passed banning

Cubs, Sox troubles

starting to come around, but Snyder is just plain pathetic. He is hitting under .200 and has hit just three home runs.

But Snyder is not the only pathetic thing in Chicago, how about those Cubs. They thought that they could buy a pennant this year.

They went out and spent over $20 million on free agents and look how well they are doing. The Cubs picked up the contracts of outfielder George Bell, pitcher Danny Jackson and relief pitcher Dave Smith.

The Cubs were sure to win 120 games this year.

The only one of those players having a good season is Bell. He is hitting .287 with 15 home runs and has 45 RBI, but he has not come up with the big hit for the Cubs all season.

Smith is among the save leaders in the National League, but he has blown far too many save opportunities and has given Cub fans as much confidence in the ninth inning as Mitch Williams did a year ago.

Jackson has been hurt most of the season, but even when he has been healthy, he has done very little to help the team. He has a record of 1-2 with an earned run average of 5.67.

What does all of this add up to? That's an easy question. It just means that both Chicago baseball teams are having another typical lousy season.

Kevin Duckworth chats with 5-year-old Elizabeth Kimball at the "Dinner with Duckworth" Monday. Duckworth, a member of the Portland Trailblazers, is in Charleston this week to assist with the Eastern postman basketball camp.

Duckworth returns to Eastern

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

Kevin Duckworth, one of the largest men in the NBA, has been through a lot in his five years as a Portland Trailblazer and he shared some of those experiences with about 150 people at the "Dinner with Duckworth" Monday at the First Christian Church.

The former Eastern standout, and two-time NBA All-Star shared some of his memories while at Eastern as well as how it is as a player in the pros. The evening started with Charleston mayor Wayne Lanman presenting a key to the city to the 7-footer and Duckworth accepted modestly.

"This is very overwhelming," said the 1988 NBA Most Improved Player. "The No. 1 person I give thanks to is the Lord for letting me be here with you."

Duckworth said the first thing he learned about the league was don't believe everything you hear. "Funny thing about the draft," he said. "Never believe what the team tells you." He was referring to Portland, which told him he would be selected in the first round, but he wasn't.

Instead, Duckworth went to the San Antonio Spurs in the second round; the 33rd pick overall. The Spurs dealt him to Portland for Walter Berry, a player who never quite fulfilled his potential in the league.

"I was very devastated and upset (about being traded)," he said. "But now Walter Berry is overseas and I'm still in the league." Before the trade to Portland, Duckworth said he had the pleasure to work with Artis Gilmore in San Antonio.

"That was one of the greatest things for me," he said. "He helped me a lot. He gave me a lot of opportunities to grow on the court." Duckworth said Gilmore called him one thing and one thing only - "Big Fella."

Rick Samuels

Duckworth also spoke of his time at Eastern under Panther coach Rick Samuels. The 7-footer came from Dolton and was not in the best shape when he came to the Eastern campus.

Samuels spoke of how Duckworth would hide from him because Samuels was intimidating during practice. "He'd tip-toe by my office and try to hide," Samuels said. "It wasn't easy for him to hide in the assistant coaches' office."

Samuels also commented on what Duckworth had accomplished in his career. "He is a young man that I'm quite proud of," said the 11th-year coach. "He's an individual that's always been a hard worker and that's one thing to pick up from Kevin Duckworth, he was always willing to try."

"He's gone further than I thought he could go. We appreciate the way you've been a role model and the way you've conducted yourself."

Duckworth added he was happy to return to Charleston to try and give something back to the community and the university. "This school really gave me a lot. I love to come back; I'll always love it."

The Blazers' postman fielded some questions from both young and old after he spoke. One young onlooker asked why the Duck chose to wear 00 as a player. "Coach gave me a choice between 00, 4 and 5," he explained. "I was too big to wear 4 and 5 wasn't too cool, so I wore 00 because Robert Parrish (of the Celtics) wore it. Hopefully, nobody else will ever wear it."

Duckworth, who said his best friend in the NBA was teammate Clyde Drexler, said he doesn't look too favorably on guards in the league. "I have this thing about guards," he said. "They want to score now, before they just passed."

A longtime Bulls' fan, he said he is comfortable in Portland where he just bought his "dream home."

"It would be great to come home and play," he said in reference to playing for the World Champion Bulls, "but right now Portland is my home and they treat me right."

Emcee, and Associate Athletic Director Paul Lueken, said the festivities went just as planned. "Everything went fantastic. It was great to see this many people turn out, Kevin did a great job."

During Duckworth's career as a Trailblazer, his team has advanced to the NBA Finals in 1990, only to fall to the Detroit Pistons. The Trailblazers lost in the Western Conference semifinals to the Los Angeles Lakers this season, before Magic and company were beaten by the Bulls in five games.

"Don't even ask me about Michael Jordan," Duckworth joked. "He is a great player."

As a Panther, Duckworth places fourth on the all-time scoring list with 1,569 points and for a season with 625. He was named to the first team all-conference in 1986 and was selected as the Association of Mid-Continent Universities Most Valuable Player in the AMCU postseason tournament.

Martin readies himself for senior season

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

One of the four Eastern basketball players that will be participating in the Prairie State Games in Champaign this month is on a mission.

Kavien Martin, who will represent the Blue-Gray team in the Charleston region, is preparing for his senior season as a Panther. The last three seasons he has waited for his chance to run the point, while four-year letterman Gerald Jones was becoming the 10th-leading scorer in Panther history.

Martin has played sparingly in the past three seasons and he knows this is his last hurrah as an Eastern basketball player.

"Basically, I've been working on a lot of things and this is my chance to show it," Martin said. "I'm going to show it to everybody. The people that are on the team know what I can do, but it's been three years of waiting to be the leader. Now is my chance to step in."

Martin will join Steve Rowe (Windy City Open Division), Curtis Leib (Southern) and freshman-to-be Walter Graham (Scholastic Blue-Gray) in the competition from July 11-14. Martin said he needs to regain his confidence if he is to fill the void that Jones left.

"I'm sure I'll be pushed for playing time," said the first-time participant of the Games. "But I think I'm going into the season and (the position) is mine to lose. I'm just trying to stay in shape this summer and play against some good competition."

Considering Martin's lack of playing time through his first three seasons, he said it's a matter of knowing that he can do the job to be successful.

"The thing is, the so-called weaknesses are the things you don't do very well. My weakness was my confidence level. It has to stay up for the team to be successful. There are no other players with my experience. It's just a matter of confidence."

Success in Chicago not likely to happen

Well, it's almost time for the All-Star break so I figured that I would check out the baseball standings and see how our beloved Chicago baseball teams were doing.

Oh, what a surprise. The Chicago White Sox are hovering around the .500 mark and are in a tie for sixth place in the American League West division and the Chicago Cubs are doing even better (ha! ha!).

They are in fourth place, 12 1/2 games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates and just two games out of the cellar in the National League East division.

How can this be? This was supposed to be the year that the Chicago White Sox were going to play, and beat, the Chicago Cubs in the World Series. There was no question about it. Chicago fans were finally going to get to see a dream-come-true World Series.

At the beginning of the year just about every sportswriter in the country picked the Cubs to win their division. They were even 3-1 favorites to win the World Series.

The White Sox were also picked by many to overcome the mighty Oakland Athletics and were 8-1 favorites to win the whole thing.

But everybody forgot one big thing. We live in Chicago! We're not supposed to enjoy any success in this town. Somehow the Chicago Bulls won a World Championship, but that must have been a fluke.

Last year the White Sox won 94 games on their way to a second place finish. So they figured that with a few changes they would be a cinch to win the division.

So let's see, how about getting rid of Barry Jones. He was only the best setup man in baseball last season. I mean he only went 12-2 and was the main reason Bobby Thigpen had as many saves as he did.

And while we're at it, let's get rid of Eric King. We don't need him, he only had the best earned run average on the Sox pitching staff.

What else can we do. How about getting rid of Ivan Calderon. The best hitter on the team.

We'll make up for it. So the Sox picked up Charlie Hough, a 43-year-old pitcher, and also traded for the big powerful Cory Snyder and the lead-off specialist Tim Raines.

Hough has done a decent job so far this season and Raines is finally
