Appointments fill administrative gaps

By DON O'BRIEN
News editor

Two faces are familiar and the other one is new as three posts were filled by the university following the spring semester.

Lou Hencken, who had been the acting vice president for student affairs, was appointed by Eastern President David Jorns to take over the vice presidential post permanently.

Barbara Hilke, who had served as the women's head basketball coach for 14 years, was selected as the coordinator for the Eastern Centennial celebration, which will occur in 1995.

Ted Weidner, who was named Physical Plant director, a new face on campus.

Weidner, who assumes his duties on July 19, was the assistant director of the physical plant at Illinois State University and replaces Carol Strode, who has been serving as acting physical plant director since September of 1991.

"If I were to take the job at Eastern, one area I would like to improve is the relationship between the students and the Physical Plant staff," said Weidner prior to taking the job.

The placement of Weidner as Physical Plant director by a search committee brings an end to a two-year vacancy for the post. Former Physical Plant director Vic Robeson was forced to resign the post in 1991.

This was the second search for a person to head up the Physical Plant. The person offered the position following the first search, John Dempsey, had to turn down the position after taking a similar post elsewhere.

As director, Weidner will be responsible for managing the operations and maintenance of the Physical Plant, which includes the buildings, grounds, mechanical equipment and the heat plant. He will also oversee building renovation and new construction projects and administer a $10 million budget.

"I have found the Eastern campus to be attractive and well-maintained given the university's limited resources," Weidner said. "I hope I can contribute to the local environment of Eastern and assist the university in moving toward its mission and vision statements."

Hencken, who assumed the vice-presidency on May 17, had been serving as the acting VPSEA since May of 1992.

"My role is to represent the best interests of Eastern students and I plan to do that in a pro-active manner," Hencken said. "I also hope to resolve concerns that face our students before they become major issues, continue my open-door policy and provide quality service for students."

Hencken, who has worked in the student affairs area at Eastern for more than 25 years, will serve as chief student affairs officer for the university. As one of four senior executive officers, Hencken is a member of the President's Council and is directly involved in the overall planning and management of Eastern.

Clinton justifies Somali attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton called the U.N. attack on Somali warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid a "blow against lawlessness and killing," and said Saturday it could hasten the end of U.S. military involvement there.

At the Pentagon, senior defense officials told reporters that U.N. forces were undertaking a block-by-block search for Aidid but that American troops were not involved. They declined to say whether more U.S. military action was planned, saying U.N. commanders were waiting to see how Aidid responded to the attack.

"Right now, we don't know where Aidid is," said one official.

The officials discussed details of the operation on condition they not be identified.

In a radio address explaining U.S. participation in the overnight attack, Clinton said allied forces, including American troops, sustained no casualties.

The Pentagon officials said they had no immediate indication of Somali casualties.

It was the first combat operation for the Clinton administration, which inherited U.S. military involvement in Somalia from the waning days of the Bush administration.

"I am proud of the American forces, who once again have demonstrated extraordinary courage and skill," Clinton said in a radio address from the Oval Office.

"The world thanks them and all other U.N. forces in Somalia for their service, for striking a blow against lawlessness and killing, and for advancing the world's commitment to justice and security," the president said.

The president said the pre-dawn attack was designed to "send a clear message to the armed gangs" of Somalia who have frustrated U.N. efforts to re-establish political order there and continue humanitarian relief efforts.

"Last night's action was essential ... to protect the vast majority of Somalis who long for peace, to enhance the security of our forces still in Somalia, to hasten the day when they can safely return home," Clinton said.

Taking part in the U.N. strike were three AC-130H Spectre gunships, four AH-1W Cobra attack helicopters and a U.S. Army quick reaction force of 1,200 men based in Mogadishu. The AC-130H gunships, specially equipped for precision attacks at night, were operated by U.S. troops from the 1st Special Operations Wing at Hurlbert Field, Fla., and armed with 105mm howitzers and Gatling guns.

The Army soldiers were under the command of the senior U.S. officer in Somalia, Army Maj. Gen. Thomas Montgomery.

The attack was in retaliation for an ambush last weekend of U.N. peacekeepers in which 23 Pakistanis were killed and 59 wounded.

Three American soldiers also were wounded. Aidid is blamed for ordering the ambush.

"It was a cold-blooded ambush on U.N. forces delivering food and building peace," said Clinton.

Asked by reporters whether further military action was planned, Clinton referred questions to the Pentagon and said, "I have nothing further to say myself on that." Pentagon officials declined to say whether the AC-130H gunships, which flew into Mogadishu from nearby Djibouti, were being kept in the area. They said the aircraft had encountered minimal anti-aircraft fire and sustained no damage.

The defense officials said one of the key targets, Radio Mogadishu, was "functionally destroyed" by Pakistani troops who entered the building after the air attack and blew up all the equipment. A radio retransmission station was brought under U.N. control but not destroyed, they said.

The officials said the combat part of the operation began at 4 a.m. local time (9 a.m. EDT) with Cobra helicopter attacks on the radio retransmission site and ended about 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT) Saturday when the secondary explosions of ammunition inside the targeted Somali weapons storage sites had ceased.

Clinton stressed the good that had come of U.S. and U.N. peacekeeping efforts in Somalia, saying that crops are again growing, schools are reopening and order is being restored.

Eastern faculty receive awards

Eastern zoology professor Kandy Baumgardner received the 1993 Distinguished Faculty Award, the university's highest faculty honor.

Baumgardner, who has taught at Eastern since 1973, was presented the award at Eastern's spring commencement ceremonies. She was selected by a committee comprised of faculty, students and alumni based on her excellence in teaching, professional growth and service to the academic and community-at-large.

Baumgardner has been involved in committee work at all levels of the university, much of which has dealt with undergraduate education. She is also the co-author of a genetics textbook which has been used by Eastern students and faculty and is currently being revised. She teaches three different genetics courses and said the variety of material not only keeps her knowledgeable in the field, but also helps her maintain her enthusiasm in the classroom.

"I help my students learn what science is by relating it to human genetics," Baumgardner said. "They become interested when you talk about genetics as it relates to their families or someone they know. It becomes more tangible when you can't do that."

Baumgardner is currently serving as president of Eastern's Chapter of the American Association of University Professors and is coordinating the self-study process associated with the reaccreditation of the university by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Jobin outstanding senior

Springfield native Amy Jobin received the 1992-93 Outstanding Senior Award at Eastern Illinois University.

The award is given annually by the University Union Advisory Board to a graduating senior in recognition of service and leadership to Eastern and the Charleston community.

Appointments

Hencken, who earned both his bachelor's in education and master's in guidance and counseling degrees from Eastern, served as the director of student housing for 14 years.

Hilke, who won over 200 games as the head women's basketball coach and leaves her coaching duties as the winningest coach in Eastern women's basketball history, takes over her new post on July 1.

"Taking this job will help give me the administrative type of experience which will help allow me to pursue other interest on down the line," said Hilke, who also said that she would like to get into athletic administration in the future.

Hilke's position involves planning and arranging activities for the 100th anniversary celebration. Hilke will report directly to the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, Stephen Falk.

Awards

Jobin was one of five seniors up for the award.

Nominations for the senior award are accepted from the faculty, staff and recognized student organizations and voted on by members of the University Union Advisory Board. Nominees are evaluated for their contributions and participation in service and extra-curricular activities, academic achievement, honors, officer or leadership roles and job experience.

Jobin, a 1989 graduate of Ursuline Academy, is a speech pathology and audiology major at Eastern. She was active in student government and served as the executive vice president for the 1992-93 school year.

Fraembs is employee of the month

Janet Fraembs, a secretary in the College of Applied Sciences office, was named Eastern's employee of the month for May.

Fraembs, who has worked in the applied sciences office since 1984 and has spent 15 years at Eastern, manages the dean's office, keeps the budget and serves as the dean's private secretary according to the acting Dean of the College of Applied Sciences Larry Helsel.

"I like my job because it changes all the time," said Fraembs, a Charleston resident. "I have a lot of loyalty and fondness for Eastern and I enjoy being part of it."

Jorstad honored

Eastern geology professor Robert Jorstad has been selected president of the Central Section of the National Association of Geology Teachers. Jorstad, who has been on the geology/geography faculty at Eastern since 1982, has served as the group's vice president.

The Central Section of the National Association of Geology Teachers is composed of geology teachers from Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

Jorstad helped coordinate the groups annual meeting, which was recently held on Eastern's campus.

BOG approves increase in fees and housing

Although Eastern students will see a 3.1 percent increase for room and board and a 9.8 percent increase in fees for next year, they will not have to pay more in tuition.

The Board of Governors Universities trustees approved a recommendation by Eastern President David Jorns to increase residence hall and Greek Court room and board rates, University Apartment and University Court rental rates and mandatory student fees.

The BGU also announced that it will not raise tuition for next year at its five universities: Eastern, Chicago State, Governors State, Northeastern Illinois and Western Illinois.

EIU full-time undergraduates who are Illinois residents pay $1,848 a year in tuition.

"It has been our long-standing policy to remain among the most affordable universities in the state," said BGU Chancellor Thomas Layzell. "That means holding the line on costs to students and parents as much as possible. There are still significant needs in this system and state appropriations have not kept pace with those needs but we will not close that gap entirely at the expense of students."

Jorns said, "The increase in residence hall and Greek Court room and board rates and University Apartments and University Court rental rates were based upon the recommendation of Eastern's student-staff Bond Revenue Housing Committee and with the concurrence of administrative staff. The total increase is in line with the current rate of inflation."

The Board approved increases recommended by Jorns of $84, $88 and $92 for double-room and board in residence halls and Greek Court.

Academic year room and board with an 11-meal option will increase from $2,754 to $2,838; a 14-meal option, from $2,796 to $2,884; and 18-meal option from $2,856 to $2,948.

Students requesting single rooms will pay an additional $375, an $85 increase.

Fall and/or Spring Semester meal tickets for off-campus students are available for $718 for 11 meals, $741 for 14 meals and $773 for 18 meals.

Summer double-rooms and board rates for 1994 with a 14-meal option during intersession will increase from $231 to $238; five-week session, from $297 to $306; and eight-week session from $506 to $522. Single-room and board rates will increase from $238 to $292 for intersession; from $392 to $404 for the five week session; and from $602 to $621 for the eight week session.

Monthly University Apartment rental rates will increase by $8, from $235 to $243 for a 1-1/2 room apartment and from $254 to $262 for a two-room apartment.

University Court rental rates will also increase, effective Aug. 15. The rates vary depending upon the size of the apartment, its features and number of occupants, with increases ranging from $30 to $190.

Total student fees for full-time students for 1993-94 will also increase $33.50 per semester to $67 for the year. The university health service/pharmacy fee will increase $20, from $5.80 to $25.80 per semester; the grant-in-aid fee by $1, from $29.50 to $30.50 per semester; and union/bond revenue fee by $2.50, from $83.95 to $86.45 per semester.

Eastern will also impose a new computer technology fee of $10 a semester, which is part of the Council on University Planning and Budget recommended reallocation of student fees. The fee was approved by the student body in an April referendum. The money collected will be used to upkeep and maintain campus computers.

No changes were recommended in the activity, athletic, health insurance, textbook rental and Recreation Center fees.

Boys State arrives, more summer camps to follow

Gov. Jim Edgar and Attorney General Roland Burris will be visiting Eastern Illinois University this week as a part of the American Legion Boys State's 58th annual session.

More than 1,000 male high school students are on campus for a week of training on state government. The training will be kicked off Monday with Attorney General Burris' speech at 8 p.m. in Lantz Gymnasium and concluded with Governor Edgar's speech on Thursday at 8 p.m. also in Lantz. The public is invited to hear the speakers.

Next week, June 20-26, Eastern will host the 53rd annual session of the American Legion Auxiliary Illini Girls State, also highlighted by a visit from Gov. Edgar. He will speak at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, June 24, in Dvorak Concert Hall in the Dounda Fine Arts Center on campus.

Other Girls State speakers include Burris, Secretary of State George Ryan, Rep. Karen Hasara, Libertyville Mayor JoAnn Eckmann, Regional Superintendent of Schools Rose Mary Shepherd, Coles County Sheriff Jim

Kimball and WCIA TV weather forecaster Judy Fraser. Eastern President David Jorns and Vice President for Student Affairs Lou Henken will welcome the Girls Staters to campus.

Several other groups will be meeting for camps and conferences at Eastern this summer, bringing more than 17,000 visitors to campus.

New Staff Senate might just mean more red tape

The latest in a seemingly endless line of governing or advisory bodies has just been officially licensed.

Staff Senate, a body created to represent the staff not represented by the Faculty Senate, President's Counsel or Dean's Counsel, recently had its constitution ratified by a vote of 165 to 25.

One of the stated goals of the new senate is to facilitate communications between the president and the staff at Eastern Illinois University.

To facilitate the communication between any two groups on campus, what is needed is face to face communication in one universal forum, not another series of elections and meetings to add more confusion to the already tangled lines of communication.

As it is, the flurry of elections and meetings has reached a point where groups are no longer able to keep track of what the other groups are doing because of the myriad of meetings and hearings that occur on campus every week.

There are groups representing every possible group of students and faculty on Eastern's campus, so the necessity for a Staff Senate seems justified, but when will the trend toward specialization stop and real communication start.

There are problems with Eastern that an open line of communication between the staff and the president might help solve, but how many more advisors does Jorns need whispering in his ear?

One advisory group, made up of students, faculty and staff, would be able to discuss the problems and ideas of all those concerned, and present the president with an opinion that reflected what was best for the campus, not individual groups.

A car means more than transportation

Power windows, sun-roof, six-disc CD player, accent stripes, vanity license plates, college grad and first-time buyer rebates — all in attempt to get people to temporarily lose their sanity and purchase a dream car for some outrageous price. (Of course with a choice of a variety of exciting colors such as mystic metallic magenta, electric blue, glowing green, and don't forget "Here I come" yellow.)

The demon of car fever took over my body Saturday, and after 22 years of life I decided I could not deal with being afoot another day. I spent several hours selecting my very first car and learning that no matter how bad I wanted to say "Give it to me now, damn it," I had to act like I wasn't sure in order to bargain with the salesman. He would say a price, and then I would say a price, and then he would supposedly go talk to his supervisor. I think he was really around the corner at the water fountain just hanging out, trying to make me think he was trying to get me better deal. Nevertheless, we did reach an agreement.

Finally after I signed my life away, the car keys were placed into the palm of my hand. (Alas!) What a sensation! No more being stranded in Charleston every day of my life...no more walking to Wal-Mart...no more having an unsatisfied Quisp cereal craving at 2:30 in the morning due to the fact that Wilb Walkers is quite a hike, and it isn't safe for members of my gender to walk alone at that time either. No more leaving home 15-30 minutes earlier than necessary. Oh sweet freedom. To me those keys represent absolute power.

But let's remember that common ethical philosophy that states: Power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely. Is that relevant to owning a car? Well, yes. I can see that this car, as wonderful as it is, could completely corrupt my thinking — my sense of responsibility to be more specific.

To remain responsible I want to force myself to remember what it has been like living on Eastern's campus the past four years without transportation. I hope I never forget what a pain in the butt it has been to go anywhere; moreover, how dangerous it has been to walk alone so many times.

Everyone tells you not to walk alone at night, and everyone knows not to do it. I'm here to tell you folks, it's not that simple. Sometimes you have to go somewhere, or you have to go home, and a ride isn't available. For this reason, I hope I always remember to offer rides to people who don't have cars, and I hope that other drivers will consider this as well. Drive your classmates or co-workers at night. I also hope that females will start looking out for each other more, and take time to stop another female walking alone and volunteer to deliver her to her destination. As for those people without wheels, don't be afraid to ask people you know for a ride, even if you feel uncomfortable asking them — it's better than getting attacked. I know that I hated to ask for rides, but now that the situation has changed, I would not mind at all if someone asked me to take him/her somewhere.

As a car owner I also feel a strong responsibility to try to prevent drunk driving. I don't understand why it is so difficult to designate a driver. I would much rather sacrifice drinking for a night than to sacrifice the life of total strangers, the life of my friends, or my own. Sober drivers need to convince people who are drunk to refrain from driving, even if it means that we must go out of our way to make sure someone arrives home safely. If you have any suspicion at all that you might be drinking, don't even go out in your car, the temptation of driving might be too great. Reason with yourself when you are in a condition to do so.

Never before did I realize all the moral and ethical obligations of owning a vehicle! I've only mentioned two — there are so many more. Not only for the safety of the driver and the obedience of state and local laws, but for the safety and considerations of others we should always keep such things in mind as non-reckless driving, signaling before turns, stopping at cross walks, slow driving in the left-hand lane is not acceptable, turn-signals are not meant to be on miles at a time, steering with your knee might prove dangerous, and never, never forget that parking in a staff lot without a staff sticker is the suicide of proper driving etiquette.

We are generation X — every one of us

Slacker.

Generation X.

The terms have been tossed around by the media like a hot potato, but who really knows what they mean?

We, the college aged students of America, are the X generation.

We were preceded by the boomers, subsequently, we have become the busters.

This generation is supposed to turn its back on the excesses of the generation before us and show the older generation what commitment to a cause is.

Our chronicles were told in books (Generation X, Douglas Copeland) and film (Slackers), heralded by magazines and even the topic of symposiums and lecture groups, but how many of us know who we are supposed to be?

Is it fair to try and characterize an entire generation by labeling them or classifying them like the hippies of the '60s?

Let's face it, as children of the love generation, we saw the ideas and movements of the '60s sold in quantities that would make Wal-Mart blush. Even today, some of the people our age seem to be the main consumers of these old dreams.

I know birkenstocks are comfortable, but they sure are trendy too. I thought the idea was to try to be different, but at least there is a recycling factor involved in the wearing of second-hand flannel and sack dresses.

The litmus test for this generation will be how we handle the dreams and desires handed to us by our planets, as well as the circumstances in which we have received them.

All of the ills of the planet can not be blamed on the baby boomers, nor can they escape their fair share of the guilt. The secret to solving the problems that face this planet is not placing blame, just fixing the problems.

Mitch McGlaughlin

All of the titles and classifications in the world will not help this generation achieve anything, what we have to do is get out and start doing things.

The list of problems is longer than the space that I have at my disposal, but we all know the problems that are important to us.

Some of the attempts to change things, like trying to defray the national debt with a series of bake sales, are well meaning, yet ineffectual.

It doesn't matter if it is a simple thing like recycling your aluminum and glass or a major career move like joining Volunteers in Service to America, they all count toward the end.

For those who have not heard of it, VISTA was established by Pres. Kennedy, along with the Peace Corps, to provide assistance similar to the Peace Corps in America.

VISTA is going to be an integral part of the new student aid package that President Clinton is going to be submitting to Congress this summer as a way for future students to earn money for college or to repay student loans.

Taking time out of what is becoming a busier and busier schedule (the average bachelors degree is now takes 5.5 years instead of the "normal" 4) to go out into the community and help change things is the key.

If we are going to have a place where the next generation (the Y Generation?) can go to school, play and grow-up, we have to start now.

I am not talking about killing the planet, it is going to take decades for the damage that we have done to repair itself, I am talking about having neighborhoods and jobs.

What it really boils down to is changing things today so that our children will have a better inheritance than we were handed by our parents.

Will we be known as the X Generation or the Ex-Generation?

IN BRIEF

Thousands of Chinese Peasants Protest Taxes

TOKYO (AP) — Up to 10,000 Chinese farmers have joined demonstrations against taxes and rising costs, with some protesters abandoning their fields or refusing to plant crops, a report said.

The Kyodo News Service, citing information carried in the official Economic Information Daily on Saturday, said there is growing unrest among farmers in many areas.

Reports of large protests in the central Sichuan Province and elsewhere have circulated for several days in Beijing, but there has been no independent confirmation. The Kyodo report did not say when the protests took place or provide other details.

Kyodo said the newspaper reported that in at least 20 villages in Shandong Province south of Beijing, peasants left their fields or refused to till the plots.

In the province's Fujia village, a 30 yuan ($5 dollars) provincial tax was increased to 50 yuan by tax collectors, the report said.

Marines From Persian Gulf Headed for Somalia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 2,200 Marines and 2,000 Navy sailors participating in a military exercise in Kuwait have cut short their operations to depart for potential use in Somalia, a Pentagon official said today.

The Kuwaiti exercise "Eager Mace," which began four days ago, had been scheduled to run through June 15, but the Marines will return to their ships and move to the waters of the Straits of Hormuz, said Cmdr. Joseph Gradisher, a Pentagon spokesman.

Gradisher said the 4,200 Americans were leaving Kuwait immediately and would stand by in the vicinity of the Straits of Hormuz, at the southern end of the Persian Gulf, to await a possible decision to dispatch them to Somalia.

He said it would take them a week to 10 days to reach Somalia from the Persian Gulf.

A decision to send the amphibious unit to Somalia would be made by Gen. Joseph Hoar, commander in chief of the U.S. Central Command, Gradisher said. It was Hoar's decision, in consultation with the Joint Staff at the Pentagon and the U.N. special envoy in Mogadishu, to break off U.S. participation in the Kuwait exercise, he said.

"It's prudent planning," Gradisher said, in view of increased violence in Mogadishu.

On Saturday, dozens of gunmen on the edge of Mogadishu attacked a company of Pakistani soldiers and kept reinforcements at bay.

Fired Agent's Book Says FBI Blackmails Suspected Gays

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A fired gay FBI agent accuses the agency of blackmailing suspected homosexual agents by threatening to expose them to family and friends unless they resign.

Frank Buttino said the practice was revealed in documents he obtained from the FBI for the discrimination lawsuit he filed on behalf of all gay FBI employees and job applicants.

The class-action lawsuit is scheduled to go to trial here in September. Despite President Clinton's support of equal rights for homosexuals, the administration plans to defend Buttino's firing, Justice Department spokesman Joe Krovisky said.

Buttino, a 20-year veteran then stationed in San Diego, was fired in 1990 after disclosing his sexual orientation in response to an anonymous note that was sent to his supervisors.

The anonymous note in 1988 included a letter that Buttino had sent in response to a personal ad in a gay newspaper. Buttino at first denied writing the letter, but acknowledged it several months later.

The Justice Department said he was fired because of his lie to investigators and because he made himself vulnerable to coercion.

Buttino says those explanations were a pretext for an anti-gay bias.

In his newly published book "A Special Agent: Gay and Inside the FBI," he said FBI documents showed an abusive policy by the bureau's internal-affairs unit, the Office of Professional Responsibility, toward employees suspected of being gay.

The unit would call these employees to headquarters and demand the full details of their homosexual conduct under threat of being fired for noncooperation, Buttino wrote. He said it also would tell employees that their relatives, friends, neighbors and co-workers would soon be interviewed about homosexual conduct.

Buttino said he realized "the FBI is the blackmailer! It was the bureau that threatened to expose its employees' homosexuality if they wouldn't resign. Yet historically the bureau had used the blackmail argument as justification for excluding gays and lesbians from employment." The records described cases of heterosexual agents who had falsified government documents and expense records, lied in court, and in one case had been arrested for felonious sexual conduct in a public bookstore, all without being fired, Buttino said.

But he said prospective new employees "were summarily rejected and employees forced out when the mere suspicion of homosexuality was raised." The FBI, asked about Buttino's allegations, issued a statement saying it would not comment during the lawsuit but denying that homosexuality automatically disqualifies an employee or applicant.

The bureau has no "blanket policy of rejecting applicants or refusing to retain on-board employees based upon homosexual conduct," the statement said. "Rather, each situation is assessed on a case-by-case basis." In court papers last September, government lawyers said homosexual conduct makes it "significantly more difficult to be hired" by the FBI.

FBI Director William Sessions has said in court papers that he was unaware of any homosexuals working for the FBI. Buttino wrote that at least four homosexuals, including one agent, had been allowed to continue working for the FBI since he filed his lawsuit in 1990.

As Operation Rescue Arrives, Even Abortion Foes Keep Their Distance

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The city's Roman Catholic archbishop wishes they would stay out of town. A leader of an anti-abortion group says their tactics turn people off.

Operation Rescue, the militant anti-abortion group, arrives Monday for what its leaders described as a 12-week training session in non-violent protest aimed at the half-dozen abortion clinics in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

Its history of siege tactics and mass arrests in cities such as Wichita, Kan., and Buffalo, N.Y., has mobilized abortion-rights supporters, and appears to be driving a wedge in Minnesota's anti-abortion movement.

In March, Roman Catholic Archbishop John Roach said he opposed Operation Rescue's plans because he didn't consider the group "to be a positive element in the pro-life movement." Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life, an anti-abortion group, has distanced itself. Its vice president, Nancy Koster, said the tactics used by Operation Rescue don't attract people to the anti-abortion cause.

Word that Operation Rescue was coming to Minnesota prompted the Legislature, historically dominated by abortion opponents, to pass a law stipulating up to a year in prison and fines of as much as $3,000 for people who block access to abortion clinics or other medical centers.

State Sen. Doug Johnson, who voted for the law, considers Operation Rescue's tactics excessive. "It just hurts the cause of those like myself who oppose abortion," he said.

Operation Rescue's national director, the Rev. Keith Tucci, said his group won't honor the law, which he called unconstitutional and unjustified.

"This is not a popularity contest," he said. "We are willing to sacrifice ourselves in a sense to save lives. I'm concerned when other pro-life people miss that point." The group will likely pick up where it left off in April in Melbourne, Fla. Volunteers there demonstrated outside the homes of abortion clinic staff, picketed schools attended by the children of clinic workers and passed out "wanted posters" offering rewards for the arrest of clinic doctors.

In Minnesota, Tucci said about 40 people will spend half the summer in spiritual leadership and training classes. The rest of the time, he said, would be spent outside abortion clinics and the homes of clinic staff.

Abortion clinics in suburban Minneapolis have asked a judge to strengthen an injunction issued in January to restrict demonstrations. In St. Paul, police are erecting a sturdy metal fence around the Planned Parenthood clinic, with four police-guarded access gates.

Judges and police, meanwhile, have made plans to handle as many as 500 arrests daily.

Suns rally for first championship win

129-121 triple overtime victory gives Phoenix new life in series

CHICAGO (AP) — The Phoenix Suns, with Charles Barkley's right elbow tied behind his back, reversed a 1976 triple-overtime defeat and put themselves back into contention in the NBA Finals on Sunday night.

The Suns, who lost that 1976 game to the Boston Celtics, battled back from long odds to hand the Chicago Bulls their first playoff loss at home this season, 129-121.

Barkley obviously was hampered by the swollen elbow that had to be drained just before gametime. But he still managed to get 24 points and 19 rebounds, and unlike their embarrassing losses at home in the first two games, the Suns gave Barkley plenty of support in the victory that left the Bulls with a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series.

Kevin Johnson bounced back from an abysmal opening two games to score 25 points in 62 minutes, while Dan Majerle had 28 and Richard Dumas 17.

Michael Jordan scored 44 points for the Bulls, who took only nine free throws in the 63-minute game. Scottie Pippen scored 26 points for Chicago, still two wins away from their third consecutive title.

Majerle's sixth 3-pointer of the game, with 3:03 left in the third overtime, tied the finals record and gave the Suns their first lead since the fourth quarter, 119-118, and Barkley followed with a breakaway dunk with 2:39 left.

Barkley then stole a pass under the Bulls basket from Stacey King and scored again with 1:43 left, and the Suns went on to outscore the Bulls 15-7 in the climactic third overtime. The only other three-overtime game in the finals was June 4, 1976, when Phoenix lost to Boston 128-126 and went on to lose the series 4-2.

Scott Williams' only points of the game and a basket by Jordan gave Chicago a 111-107 edge with 2:03 left in the second overtime before Majerle followed his own miss for the Suns' third basket in 14 minutes.

Jordan, who missed eight of nine shots in one stretch, hit his second in a row for a 113-109 lead with 1:18 remaining, then exchanged free throws with Barkley for a 114-110 edge with 40 seconds to go. But baskets by Barkley and Majerle, the latter with 3.2 seconds left, meant a third OT.

The game was tied 103-103 from the 1:33 mark of regulation until there was 3:31 left in the first overtime, when Pippen's jumper gave the Bulls a 105-103 lead.

Phoenix, held to two points since there was 6:20 left in the fourth quarter, tied the score on two free throws by Barkley with 1:43 left in overtime.

Johnson, held to a total of 15 points and eight assists with nine turnovers in the first two games, came out strong in the fourth quarter, scoring seven points in the first 3:31 and helping Phoenix extend a one-point lead to 94-88 with 8:29 left.

Then Danny Ainge hit two free throws and a 3-pointer, giving the Suns a 99-88 advantage 52 seconds later.

The Bulls, who missed 10 of their first 11 shots in the period, then got consecutive baskets from Horace Grant, Armstrong and Jordan to pull to 101-96 with 4:03 left.

A dunk by Pippen and Grant's tip-in made it 101-100 with 2:46 left, but Barkley snapped the 10-0 run with a reverse layup 21 seconds later.

Grant tied the score 103-103 with a dunk and free throw at the 1:33 mark, then neither team scored on four possessions apiece, forcing the overtime.

Johnson missed a shot with 27 seconds left, but he sneaked around Jordan for a steal, then called timeout with 12 seconds left, failing to see Majerle breaking open. Barkley then missed for Phoenix and Grant rebounded with a second remaining.

The Suns, whose NBA-best 62 victories were five more than the two-time defending champion Bulls, took a first step getting back into the series. The team with the home-court advantage in the NBA Finals has won 34 of 46 titles, including the last seven, but Phoenix was on the verge of a blowout loss before bouncing back Sunday.

The Suns still have to win at least one of the next two games in Chicago to force the series back to Phoenix for the sixth and seventh games. Game 4 is at Chicago Stadium on Wednesday night.

The Bulls, despite losing for the first time in eight playoff games at home, are still the favorites in the series after becoming the first team in NBA Finals history to win the first two games on the road. Chicago is 13-3 in the postseason; the Suns are 12-9, including 5-4 away from home.

All five Bulls starters scored during a 13-4 spurt that put them ahead 72-66 midway through the third quarter before 3-pointers by Majerle and Ainge helped the Suns pull within two.

Pippen, who scored 11 points in the period, converted a three-point play, a follow shot and a layup to help Chicago rebuild the lead to 83-78 with 1:13 remaining.

Majerle then hit his second and third 3-pointers of the quarter in the final minute, and Barkley's basket inside gave Phoenix an 86-85 lead going into the fourth quarter.

Richard Dumas dunked three times and Barkley hit a 3-pointer and grabbed three rebounds in the first three minutes as Phoenix opened an 11-4 advantage.

Jordan then came back with 11 points in a 7:21 span, keying a 23-8 run that gave the Bulls a 29-21 lead with 1:24 left in the first quarter.

Hilke moves on after 14 seasons at helm

By DON O'BRIEN
Staff editor

Barbara Hilke feels that it is the right move at the right time.

Hilke, who has been the head women's basketball coach for the past 14 years, stepped down from her coaching position in late May to take over as the coordinator of Eastern's Centennial Celebration, which will take place in 1995.

"Professionally you get to the point where you would like to make a move," Hilke said. "Hopefully this administrative-type of experience will allow me to pursue other things down the line." Hilke said that she would like to wind up as an athletic administrator in the future.

On the court and in the classroom, Hilke's success can't be touched by anyone else in Eastern's women's basketball history. On the court, Hilke led the Lady Panthers to five 20-plus win seasons and coached Eastern to its only NCAA Division I basketball tournament appearance in the 1987-88 season. In the classroom, 100 percent of Hilke's players have went on to receive their degrees.

"I have had some great talent, but what has been so amazing is that those girls have also been so successful in the classroom as well as being successful on the court," Hilke said. "No one else is even close to our graduation rate. The closest school in our conference is Wisconsin-Green Bay with a 78 percent graduation rate."

She won 234 games against 171 losses in her 14 years as the Lady Panthers coach. She was 19-9 in post-season play including a Gateway Conference Championship in 1987-88. Hilke was a finalist for the 1980-81 Women's Collegiate National Coach of the Year following a 25-8 season. The 25 wins were the most put up by a team Hilke coached.

Hilke said that she will miss the people she works with the most.

"We have a great (athletic) administration and those people have been great to work with," she said. "(Men's head basketball coach) Rick Samuels has been a great guy to work with. In this period of gender equity with all the remarks flying around, I've always had an outstanding relationship with him. (Basketball secretary) Brenda Wilson has been a great help to me all these years."

The Lady Panthers finished above the .500 mark in each of Hilke's first 12 years at the helm. In the past two years, the Panthers have fallen off though. The Lady Panthers were 8-19 in 1991-92 and 3-24 this past season. The women's program also lost eight players and a pair of assistant coaches over the span those two seasons.

Hilke's departure means that the rebuilding of the program will have to be put back until a new head coach can be found. Eastern Athletic Director Mike Ryan said that the department began advertising the position last Wednesday and must keep advertising the position until July 9.

Ryan said that a search committee, headed by NCAA Faculty Representative Bob Saltmarsh, will screen applications as they come in and meet July 12 to get the number of applicants down to 10 and then have that narrowed to three to six applicants by July 19. He said that the target date to put someone in place would be July 31.

"We are looking for that has either been a full-time assistant or head coach at a Division I school for at least three years," said Ryan. "We aren't looking for someone that has been a graduate assistant for a year and an assistant for another."

The competition to replace Hilke is already shaping up to be fierce. Before advertising the position, Ryan said that he already had four resumes from people who must have heard about Hilke's departure.

"Of the first four, three are from long-time assistants at Division I colleges and the other is a long-time head coach of a Division II school," he said.
