Bad weather doesn't ruin weekend for Celebration

By STEPHANIE CARROLL
Activities editor

Despite Friday and Saturday's rains, steady crowds continued to show up for this weekend's Celebration: A Festival of the Arts.

Dan Crews, Celebration chairman of the festival, said he was surprised by this weekend's good turnout of people who braved the cold temperatures.

"We had horrible weather," Crews said. "We had a fabulous crowd, though. I was really surprised at their good attitudes about the weather."

Ann Bacon, a volunteer at the Celebration Information Booth, also said this weekend's weather didn't stop students and community members from attending the annual festival.

"The weather is always lousy for Celebration," Bacon said. "The crowd has amazed me. (Bad weather) is just kind of a tradition. The weather is been hectic, but it hasn't seemed to hurt the spirit of the people that come out, though."

Crews said the Celebration crowd seemed to enjoy the many activities at events scheduled this weekend. Crews said the rain didn't force officials to close the outdoor stage, but some delays were caused by the rain Saturday morning.

"People really enjoyed the bagpipe band and the South American musicians," Crews said. "The quilt show was also a big draw. It was a real positive experience for the Quiltworks organization who held the show, especially yesterday during the rain because the show was held inside."

Some of the food and art vendors didn't think the weather affected the crowd turnout, as well.

Sherry E. Harris, an artist who had a watercolor display at the festival for the second year, said though the rain didn't keep the crowds away, the water almost kept her away. Harris didn't set up her display until after the rains quit Sunday morning.

Crews said some of the art vendors asked if

Election committee to decide

By DAVE HOSICK
Student government editor

The Student Government Election Committee will reconvene tonight to consider additional alleged campaign violations and issue sanctions for Impact Party campaign violations.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the 1895 Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Last Thursday, the committee found the Impact Party guilty of the campaign violations of posting campaign material in McAfee Gym and illegally displaying campaign material in the Telecommunications Building.

The Student Government Constitution bylaws state no campaign materials may be displayed in classroom buildings without the approval of

Coffeehouse future bleak after no bids submitted

By KAREN WOLDEN
Staff writer

Plans to build a coffeehouse on Eastern's campus are quickly fading away, leaving the administration's idea to construct the bar-alternative next to impossible.

No contract bids were declared on Thursday, which marked the deadline for developers to submit their respective bids for the coffeehouse. Eastern President David Jorns said the university has not made any plans to extend the deadline for bids.

"The university is not spending any money, and has no intentions of spending any money (on the coffeehouse)," Jorns said. "We will lease the land if there is an interested party, but there is no interested party, so we have no further plans at this point."

Mike Wilson, an instructor at the Lumpkin College of Business and Applied Sciences and local businessman, was expected to submit a bid for the coffeehouse Thursday along with three associates, but nixed his plan because of higher costs than Wilson previously expected.

"We received the figure for building costs on Thursday, and it totaled around $800,000," Wilson said. "That is much more than we are willing to put in at this time."

Originally, construction costs build a coffeehouse on the Tundra, behind the Tarble Arts Center, was estimated at $250,000. The building was expected to cover 5,000 square feet and include and a 90-car parking lot.

Wilson said he has no future plans for placing a bid.

Faculty Senate member Gary Aylesworth did not express much concern for the fact that no bids were submitted by Thursday's deadline.

Aylesworth said Faculty Senate members who discussed building a campus coffeehouse

Lawyer says police statement wrong

By TRAVIS SPENCER
City editor

The attorney representing Greg McCoy said his client did not tell Charleston and campus police officers he was not hazed.

Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger said in a March 16 press release that McCoy said, "I don't know how I got into the lime pit and don't recall anyone else being there."

McCoy, 21, was burned on 80 percent of his body March 6 when he laid unconscious in a pit of caustic lime. He filed a suit on April 22 against the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity; Gano Welding Supplies, the business where he was found unconscious; Mother's bar; and The Uptowner. He claims the four groups were negligent.

McCoy, a Delta Sigma Phi pledge, said he was put in the lime pit as part of a fraternity hazing ritual.

Steidinger said in the press release that based on a March 10 interview with McCoy and interviews with the April 20 election, which would overturn the results of two executive positions and some senate positions.

Board of Governors Representative-elect Matt Giordano and Executive Vice President Kristie Kahles would lose their positions to Julie Tizzard and Chris Desmond, respectively.

Election Committee Co-Chairman Harvey Pettry said eight additional complaints were filed in the Student Activities Office alleging that members of both the Impact and Reality parties violated campaign rules in the election by posting material in restricted areas.

"Most of these complaints have the potential to be violations," Pettry said. "The committee still has to decide whether some do break the constitution stipulations."

feehouse were comfortable with the possibility of having only one bid.

"The coffeehouse is being built at the risk of the person submitting the bid," Aylesworth said. "I assume that the university will try to solicit bids. If there is no one interested, they'll have to rethink the idea."

During the past month, many Faculty Senate members have spoken out against the idea of building a coffeehouse. Many senate mem-they could delay setting up their stands until the rain cleared.

"I told them that was fine," Crews said of the vendors. "Some of the vendors have booths that work in bad weather, and some don't."

Harris said she thought Sunday's crowd was really good.

Steve Greshen, a food vendor from Seymour, Ind. said the weekend crowd was pretty good considering the colder weather. Greshen's stand, Miss Piggy's Petry said Giordano, and Impact Party member, personally filed four violations against members of the Reality Party for posting campaign propaganda in areas restricted by the Student Government Constitution bylaws.

Complaints filed by Giordano include:

- A charge that the Reality Party posted signs in restricted areas of Buzzard Building, a classroom building.

- A charge that Julie Proscia, Reality Party senate candidate, illegally posted signs in Buzzard bers have questioned whether students or faculty members would frequent a coffeehouse.

"What sounded good to the Faculty Senate was that, as planned, the university was not risking any of its own money," Aylesworth said. "As long as that's the case, senate will continue to support the idea."

Student Senate Speaker Bobby Smith said he is concerned with the lack of bids and that the deadline has not been extended. However, Smith says he sees other bar alternative possibilities.

"I'm pretty sad about it," Smith said of the proposed coffeehouse. "I was really looking forward to it. We'll have to do more programming with University Board and get the Rathskeller going more than planned."

If a renewed interest in the coffeehouse project springs up, Jorns said a deadline extension is possible.

"It's not a simple matter of just extending a deadline," Jorns said. "It is a very complicated issue."

Porkshop, took part in Celebration for the first time. Greshen said he'd participate next year's and "hopefully bring better weather with him."

Patty Butler, a member of the food vendors committee, said the bad weather may have hurt the food vendors' business. Butler said a lot of hot food items were sold because of the cold weather.

"(The weather) hurt a lot," Butler said. "People didn't really come out until after the rain quit and since that, the crowd has been about the same. We've sold a lot of hot chocolate. Hot chocolate has definitely been the big draw."

Buzzard.

- An additional charge against Proscia claiming she posted campaign material on a carpeted wall in the Union.

- A charge that the Reality Party illegally posted signs in the northeast corner and west parts of Buzzard Building.

In addition, Kevin Pearson, a student not affiliated with Student Government, filed a complaint that the Reality Party posted signs on the west bulletin board in Buzzard Building.

Petry refused to comment on an additional complaint against the Impact Party because the committee is still investigating whether or not the complaint is valid.

Members of the Impact Party have said they will appeal last Thursday's guilty verdict to the Student Government Supreme Court, although no court date has been set.

Impact Party members allege the Election Committee was biased in its decision last Thursday and did not follow proper procedure when conducting the violation hearing. Impact Party members also claim the committee did not focus on the evidence the party presented in its defense.

approximately 30 others, the police found no evidence of hazing.

"This was not a hazing incident," McCoy said through Steidinger in the release. "I have never been hazed."

Attorney Peter Borich said his law firm's investigation determined McCoy did not tell the Charleston Police Department that it was not a hazing incident and he was never hazed.

"Based on our investigation, we dispute that statement being made," said Borich, who works for the firm of Beckett & Associates.

Borich said McCoy was on extensive pain killer at the time of the interview with police.

Steidinger said the comments in the release are accurate.

Charleston Mayor Dan Cougill, who also serves as police commissioner, also said the press release was accurate.

"I wouldn't change a thing," Cougill said.

Charleston police have said their investigation has not led to the probability of hazing and Steidinger said there is no evidence of hazing in the current investigation.

A second interview with McCoy by the police will not take place until McCoy's condition improves and Borich gives permission to the police.

Borich said he hasn't had the press release in his possession very long and that he had to investigate other areas of the case before he looked into it.

"There are many unanswered questions," Borich said

Two days after McCoy was found in the lime pit, father Robert McCoy said his son was "occasionally lucid" and that "nothing is reliable."

Robert McCoy also claimed in a Champaign television interview March 6 that his son was placed in a lime pit as a hazing ritual. However, the next day Robert McCoy said he wasn't sure of the incident.

A week after the incident, Robert McCoy said the police learned "very little" from the interview with McCoy.

Sorority suspended; awaits investigation

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Campus editor

Eastern's Eta Gamma chapter of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority has been placed on interim suspension until an investigation into alleged hazing violations is conducted by the Office of Student Activities.

The suspension comes after members of the sorority announced the hazing investigation at last Monday's Black Greek Council meeting, said Council President Yolanda Williams.

In addition, the sorority's national office has also placed the sorority on an interim suspension until the office conducts its own investigation.

As part of both a national and local suspension, the sorority's official status as a student organization, all of its scheduling privileges, its sponsorship of social/service/membership intake activities and its organized group activity participation have been suspended pending the conclusion of the two investigations, according to a press release.

The Alpha Kappa Alpha hazing investigation marks the fourth time an Eastern greek organization has been investigated for alleged hazing this academic year. Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu fraternities received social probation and censure respectively after being investigated for hazing.

Currently, Delta Sigma Phi fraternity is being investigated in connection with injuries suffered by Eastern junior Greg McCoy after he was found lying in a pit of caustic chemicals. McCoy, who was pledging the fraternity, suffered burns over 80 percent of his body.

Seven fraternities or sororities have been investigated since 1990.

Stu's remains closed

By HEIDI KEIBLER

Stu's Surfside will remain closed for the duration of its 30-day suspension, Charleston Mayor and Liquor Commissioner Dan Cougill said Friday.

The suspension of Stu's, 1405 Fourth St., began on April 8 and will end May 9. The 30-day closing is the longest period a local bar has been suspended in the past six years.

On Wednesday, Stu's attorney S. John Muller argued against the closing before the Illinois Liquor Control Commission in Chicago. Cougill said he received the liquor commission's decision late Thursday afternoon affirming the 30-day suspension.

Charleston cases are normally argued before the Springfield commission, but May 11 was the first available date for a hearing by the commission. By then, Stu's suspension would have already been completed.

Cougill said the city's decision to close Stu's 30 days for the bar's third liquor violation in less than 12 months was affirmed by the liquor commission on Thursday.

After unsuccessfully seeking a restraining order the day before the suspension began to delay the closing of the bar, Muller argued against Cougill's decision to suspend Stu's license for 30 days.

During the Coles County Circuit Court proceedings, Muller said he would argue that Cougill has been too harsh in suspending liquor licenses.

Cougill has chosen to suspend owners' licenses rather than assigning monetary fines in all the liquor violation cases that have occurred since he took office.

book them through the same company for every concert."

The year's second University Board spring concert failed to make a profit, Student Activities Director David Milberg said Friday.

They Might Be Giants performed April 23 in Lantz Gymnasium to an estimated crowd of 1,100. Milberg said he does not know exactly how many tickets were sold because he hasn't received a ticket audit from the Union Ticket Office yet.

"For the year, yes we did make a profit," Milberg said. "We still have a healthy amount in the concert fund. Overall, we made out better than we thought we would."

"I'm not sure of the final expenses for the concert because there are still a few advertising costs that I'm not sure of," Milberg said. "The show cost approximately $17,000."

In addition to low ticket sales, sound and light costs also played a role in the concert's failure to show a profit.

"Lights for the concert cost $1,700," Milberg said. "Sound setup cost close to that. I think it was about $1,650."

"(The prices for sound and light) are not bad," Milberg said. "We try to UB did not have to pay for light and sound setup for the March 12 Blind Melon concert because the band was traveling with its own equipment.

They Might Be Giants requested two spotlights with operators, a large reel-to-reel tape deck for the band's sound engineer, and a communication system with stations located at each spotlight, the lighting desk and backstage at the houselights.

Despite these costs, Milberg said the UB was able to generate income from other areas.

"We also made $700 (15 percent) off of band merchandise sold at the concert," Milberg said. "However, we were hoping to sell about 2,000 tickets to the concert. We definitely did not reach that."

Milberg said the UB has not yet begun looking for a performer for its next scheduled concert, the Parents Weekend concert in October.

"We will get into selecting a performer for the 1994 Parents Weekend next month or so," Milberg said. "We will probably nail something down about June or July."

Students need to take time out, give some blood

Before leaving campus for the summer, students have been given one more chance to help out the American Red Cross in its effort to help people. They can donate both a small amount of their time and their blood either today or Tuesday.

The last time a blood drive was held at Eastern, the Red Cross collected 1,335 pints of blood, 135 pints over the drive's goal of 1,200, thus winning a competition with Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Overall, Eastern has a record of coming close to or passing the drive's goal each time it comes to the university.

This week's blood drive should be no different.

The drive, which will be held from 2 to 8 p.m. today and Tuesday in the Old Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union, needs to have this blood in order to prepare for the upcoming summer months and the expected disasters that will accompany it.

The Red Cross is one of the few reasons residents of areas such as Mississippi River flood regions and the areas of southern Florida hit by hurricanes are able to survive and return to their lives. And nearly 20 percent of all the blood collected in the United States for these and other disasters comes from university and high school students.

Students must do everything we can to support the American Red Cross and their efforts to help disaster victims in need of assistance. On a regular basis, this organization has proved to be the deciding variable in helping people recover from overwhelming odds.

Almost all students are eligible to give blood. The Red Cross simply requires that a person be at least 17-years-old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good health. Those requirements include almost all of Eastern's students.

Students have the opportunity to indirectly save the lives of people across the United States.

Students should take advantage of that opportunity and give the blood that could save someone's life.

Hearings demonstrate sad state of senate

The hearing that takes place tonight will hopefully end something that has been boring, stupid and rarely entertaining.

The Student Government Election Committee will decide the fate of the now-guilty Impact Party – this year's big winner in the Student Government elections that on Thursday was found guilty of violating student campaign rules. The committee will also decide on eight more alleged violations.

To watch what is our student representation go down in flames isn't as enjoyable as one would think. As the Election Committee deliberated on campaign violations Thursday you realized one thing: Student Government has become just another student organization.

The hearings are hodge podge at the highest levels. The deposed and still current movers and shakers of Student Government were all gathered together for one last inside joke. Unfortunately, this one is on the students.

Thursday's hearings found the entire Impact Party guilty displaying a campaign poster on a glass window in the campus Telecommunication Building and posting party flyers in McAfee Gym.

At stake are two executive posts and a handful of Student Senate seats. Most of the seats at stake are held by the Impact Party, which all but swept the Student Government elections.

But behind the flyers and illegal postings are what many candidates on both sides considered dirty campaigning. Nasty rumors were circulated around about different candidates and parties. This time, some of it got very personal. So candidates decided to snipe and nit pick the smallest improprieties. They wanted a way to get revenge.

That brings us to where we are now. One week away from finals and two days away from our last Student

"Student Government has become just another student organization."

one of the senate members tired to sum it up the best he could.

"It's only Student Government," he cried.

Only?

The problem is, no matter who is in these elected positions (few candidates are redeemable), Student Government does matter – especially in the executive posts. Six tuition waivers are used for Student Government's executive officers, the executive vice president appoints students to university committees and the financial vice president is in charge of distributing our student fee money.

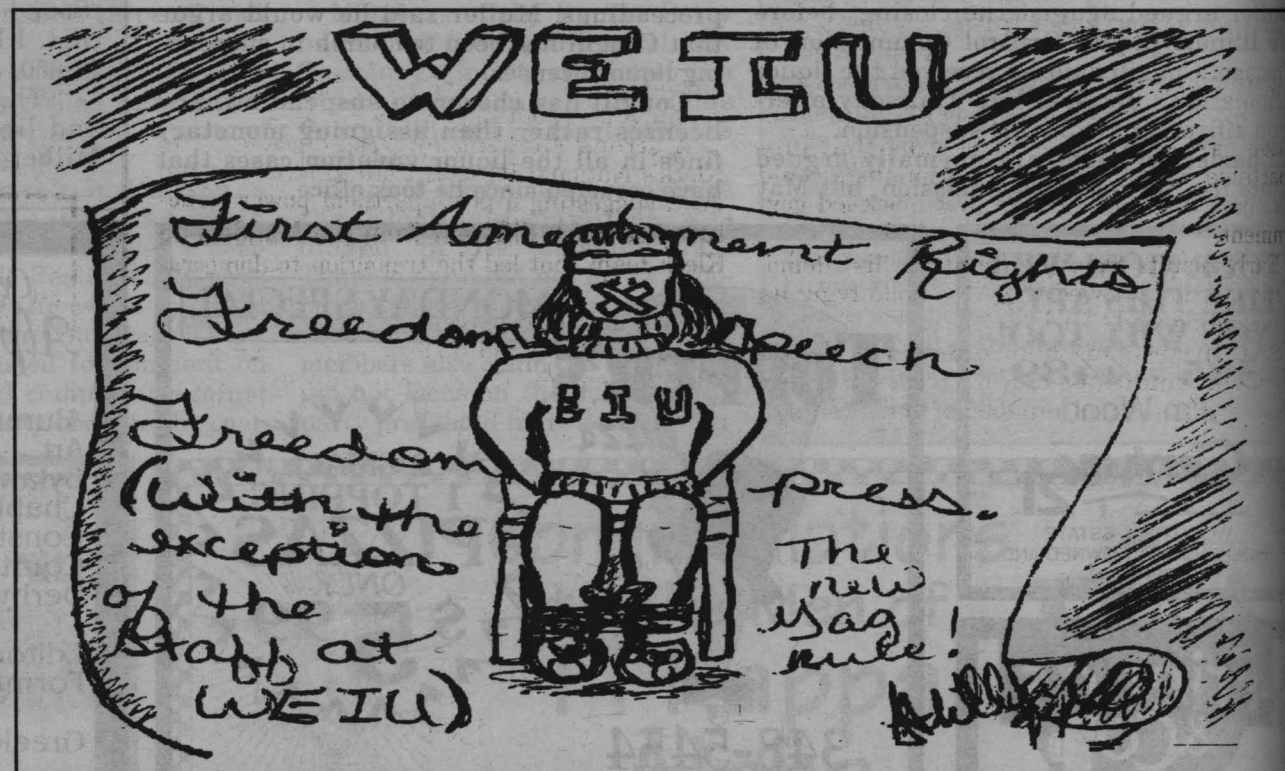

They have a responsibility to serve the students. Whether it be Student Government or any large-scale student-service oriented organization, these people have taken the students trust and well-being and are charged to serve them and be their representatives.

For student organizations to work effectively, it is the members that have to believe and work hard. There can be no corruption or sniping, because in the eyes of students and faculty those tactics – in a student organization – are petty. Students need to take legitimate action and be legitimate to have credibility with anyone.

If we don't take ourselves seriously, who else will?

We'll find out the answer to that question next year.

Editorial cartoon depicting McCoy was disrespectful

Dear editor:

We would like to comment on Mark Foppe's cartoon published in The Daily Eastern News on April 28. It is amazing how ignorant, disrespectful, rude and down right stupid people can be.

Were you acquainted with Greg McCoy while he attended Eastern? Did you ever visit Greg in the hospital? Did you have the common sense to get the facts straight before you drew your so-called "comic illustration" of our friend?

If you were to talk to him or to his parents, you may learn something. Something about strength, courage, dignity and integrity. Qualities that the McCoy family have shown in abundance.

Did you every consider the fact that there could be extenuating circumstances behind Greg' decisions? It would be much appreciated if you would obtain the facts of the case before you insult our friend again.

Your turn

Flogging one way of dealing with under-age drinkers

Dear editor:

Recently one of the most important events in Charleston history has come to pass, the bar-entry age controversy.

In light of this I have endeavored to propose some solutions to the drinking problems in Charleston should the new entry age fail to solve them.

It is obvious that underage students caught drinking have not been punished severely enough. The logical solution would be to introduce floggings as a punishment for this crime.

Those caught would be publicly given a said number of floggings by a Charleston official.

Of course, an off-campus sight would be chosen so that student rebellion could be controlled. This would show that Charleston is serious and not to be taken lightly.

Another problem is that young women who choose to put themselves in dangerous, risky situations no longer have many alternatives. A workable solution might be to designate a site, such as a house on the edge of town, where these women could hang out and could be found. This way there would be no question what women wanted to be in a dangerous, risky situation, and what women wanted to go out for a fun time.

Finally, given that house parties are going to be the new antagonist, the problem of drinking on public property needs some attention.

Students should not have to pay $75 for drinking on public property, and Charleston, the college town that it is, should not have to stand for such embarrassment.

If these offenders were to have a hand cut off, the hand that was holding the alcohol, they might think twice as hard before offending again.

I hope that, even though some of these suggestions are borrowed from other governments, they can be used to help control Charleston's drinking problems. I would like to offer one las bit of advice – take it lightly.

Matt Hayner

Election controversy unimportant to some

By JOHN FERA
Associate news editor

Before the Student Government Election Committee handed down Thursday's guilty verdict to the Impact Party for campaign violations, some audience members polled said they think the average student couldn't care less about the election controversy.

At the three-hour hearing, the Impact Party was found guilty on charges of hanging a campaign poster in a window in the Telecommunications Building on Grant Street and posting party flyers in McAfee Gymnasium.

The Student Government Constitution bylaws forbid the display of campaign materials in classroom buildings without the approval of David Milberg, director of student activities. McAfee is considered a classroom building.

Sanctions against the Impact Party will be announced at tonight's second Election Committee hearing at 7 p.m. tonight in the 1895 Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. If the maximum penalties are imposed, Impact Party members could lose up to 40 percent of their vote totals from the April 20 election.

Eight more alleged campaign violations against members of the Impact and Reality parties will also be considered at the hearing.

Former Student Senate member Alec Nevalainen, said the entire election controversy probably doesn't even matter to anyone except those involved in Student Government.

"When all these things happen for a Student Government position ... if these people truly cared about students, this would never have happened," Nevalainen said.

"The average (student) doesn't know or care what Student Government is about," Nevalainen said. "Other students know Student Government doesn't affect the average student.

People could care less."

Judging from Thursday's testimony, Nevalainen said Student Body President-elect Blake Wood and Board of Governors representative-elect Matt Giordano both gave better presentations than their opponents in the Reality Party.

"(Wood and Giordano) are politicians," Nevalainen said. "Granted, they may have broke (campaigning) rules, but they're smart enough to get away with it. I think if they go on, they'll be good politicians. It's the sad state of our society."

Student Senate member Jason Anselment said it's about time for the senate to investigate issues that are pertinent to student concerns.

"As long as the Student Government Constitution is followed, then let democracy run its course," Anselment said. "The best interest of the students is to get on to business that deals with business that we're elected to deal with."

Mandela leads vote totals

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The African National Congress reached out to opposition parties Sunday, suggesting that pro-apartheid whites and Zulu nationalists could take part in South Africa's first black-led government.

Early results from the country's first democratic election showed the ANC solidifying its commanding lead.

ANC spokesman Pallo Jordan said Nelson Mandela would not claim victory Sunday because of the small number of votes counted but added: "We'll boogie nonetheless, because we think it's about time we did."

A strong showing by President F.W. de Klerk's National Party left other parties in the dust, suggesting a post-apartheid power structure not much different from the Mandela-de Klerk team that led the transition to democracy.

With about 16 percent of the vote counted, Mandela's ANC had 52.9 percent, followed by 33.7 percent for the Nationalists, the party that built and dismantled apartheid.

Last chance to give blood begins today

By STEPHANIE CARROLL
Activities editor

Eastern students will have their last chance of the semester to give blood from 2 to 8 p.m. today and 2 to 8 p.m. Tuesday in the University Ballroom in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The American Red Cross and the EIU Blood Drive Committee are sponsoring the Spring Blood Drive.

The Red Cross is encouraging students to give blood in this spring blood drive to prepare a blood supply for the upcoming summer months.

Students who donate will receive complimentary T-shirts from the American Red Cross.

"We're hoping that the T-shirts will be an extra thank you to students so they remember what they did at Eastern," said Dave Cline, a blood services consultant for the American Red Cross.

Cline said nearly 20 percent of all blood collected in the United States comes from university and high school students.

"This will be the last opportunity for many Eastern students to give blood before they leave for the summer," Cline said. "We hope that many will stop by to give blood before they leave."

The Red Cross is hoping to collect 400 pints during the blood drive - 200 pints each day, Cline said.

"That amount will be 20 percent of the blood supply used by our hospitals each day," Cline said. "It's a big chunk."

Last year's spring blood drive was only held for one day.

"This year we need two days," he said. "We need the product. We're hoping two days will give students more flexibility as far as schedules."

Cline said the blood supply has been short since March.

"The collections have been devastating," Cline said. "It's been a very unusual month. It started in March, but improved a little in April."

"The blood supply is not in major jeopardy, but we're a month a way from summer, and summer's a horribly difficult time for the blood supply."

City to decide on hotel's taxes

By JEREMY R. KIRK
Staff writer

The Charleston City Council will vote on whether to relieve the new Charleston Inn property owners of $30,000 in back taxes.

The council will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers of the Municipal Building, 520 Jackson.

The previous owner of the Charleston Inn owed more than $30,000 in taxes and fees to the city of Charleston. The new co-owners, Tim Yow and Rob Zabka, asked the council last month to consider abating the owed taxes in exchange for improving the property.

When the motel reopens sometime this fall, the city would abate half of the taxes and relieve the rest of the debt after the one-year anniversary of the opening. Yow said he hopes to open the complex by fall, but only if the establishments are fully completed.

Zabka and Yow said they plan to divide the building into 60 motel rooms, with five two-room suites, an executive office complex in the west wing and a condominium complex in the east wing. The additional building will be used as an alcohol and smoke-free restaurant.

Other business to be discussed by the council includes:

- A resolution authorizing Police Chief Herb Steidinger to hire another full-time police officer and a new telecommunication officer.
- An ordinance assessing a $25 disconnecting fee to water and sewer customers if they have not paid their bill by more than 10 days after the due date. Customers will be charged $50 if they wish to reconnect their service.
- A resolution authorizing the expenditure of $3,500 in tourism funds.

Wind, snow wreak havoc on lady runners

By JOHN COX
Staff writer

Windy City weather had its way with women's track up at the Elmhurst Invitational, while steady snowfall slowed times down at the Drake Relays for two Lady Panthers.

Tiffany Jansen, Eastern's premier high jumper and one of two Lady Panthers invited to the prestigious Drake Relays, had problems getting airborne and failed to clear the opening height of 5-7.

"The starting height of 5-7 is rather high," head coach John Craft said. "Her first jump and third jump were both real good attempts."

"She knew it would start high," Craft added. "To come in at that height takes a little bit out of you, but she was definitely not rattled. She is so used to starting at 5'2". They came in starting at an inch lower than her best (jump)."

Kiya Thomas, who was invited to compete in the 5000-meter run, came through with an eighth place finish (17:28) in the driving snow.

"She ran that in the driving snow and 30-degree weather, which are less than ideal conditions for anything," Craft said.

"I don't think she was happy with her time, but under the circumstances she was happy with the way she ran against the competition," Craft said. "It was cold and windy everywhere."

Mary Ohl, the Lady Panther assistant coach who took the rest of the Eastern women's track squad to the Elmhurst Invitational, testified to the poor weather.

"It was a strange meet," Ohl said. "It was canceled after four or five events because the weather was getting bad. The automatic timing system went down and they had to hand-time all of the events."

Ohl said that most of the events were scheduled to run about three heats per event, but after people started dropping out because of the "monsoon-like weather," each event ran about one heat.

Ramage defeated Julie Vanderwall 6-3, 6-1, and Erickson defeated Katie Daker 6-2, 6-2.

Wulfers lost to Amy Gruszynski after defaulting because she sprained her ankle.

Dua scored a victory over Kris Zilie 6-0, 6-2 and Sims won over Becky Reinsch 6-1, 6-1.

Sullivan added the finishing touches again with a 6-3, 7-6 win over Margaret Hayes.

"The team finished off Green Bay in only an hour and a half," Ross said.

In the finals, Northern scored a 5-1 victory over Eastern.

Mid-Con Player of the Year Jenny Karges defeated Ramage 6-0, 6-1 while teammate Wulfers fell to Svetlana Nedelskovic 6-2, 6-0.

Erickson lost to Ivanna Nikoic 6-3, 6-2, and Johanna Stephenson scored a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Dua. Brenda Bowen defeated Sims 7-6, 6-0.

The bright spot for Eastern was Sullivan with her 6-0, 6-1 victory over Tammy Morgan.

"We lost to a very good team," Ross said.

"They deserve the ranking they have. Eastern has come a long way and the final score is no indication of how well we played."

Ramage earned a spot on the All-Conference Team while Ross earned the title of Coach of the Year.

"The Eastern women's tennis team earned the respect of its opponents and has improved tremendously over the past season," Ross said.

"Jaime comes from a winning program and has a desire to be a winner," Klein said. "She is a very strong and physical player, an excellent defensive player and a good rebounder.

"She also runs the floor extremely well for a player of her size and strength. She's looking forward to contributing right away."

"Because of her desire to win and work ethic, she will make a quick adjustment," Eades' high school coach Jeff Kind said.

Cooper dashes to second at weekend Drake Relays

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

The competition at the Drake Relays is always tough, but when there is bad weather, the athletes seemingly have two competitions to deal with.

As Panther sprinter Vinram Wade Bey said, this year's Drake Relays was more like the "Snowflake Relays" on Saturday, as temperatures dipped well below 40 degrees with heavy snow and rain.

"It was miserable," said head coach Neil Moore. "It was snowing and raining, with big flakes putting a couple inches on the track Saturday morning."

The Panthers sent seven relay teams and four individuals, of which Eastern received four placings.

The highlight of the Panthers' showing was Obadiah Cooper's second place finish in the 100-meter dash.

Cooper actually ran in two 100 finals, an invitational and the university, and placed second in both. His conqueror in the former was none other than world-record holder Carl Lewis.

Lewis was invited to Drake as a special attraction, and was put in an invitational race with other elite dash men from across the nation.

Cooper was originally entered in the university race only. But after winning his preliminary heat on Friday in 10.39 seconds, he asked meet officials to be in the race with Lewis on Saturday, and they let him in.

Cooper - running the race of his life - was, in fact, ahead of the eight-time Olympic gold medalist for 90 meters before Lewis turned on the after burners to take the race 10.28 to 10.50.

Ten minutes later Cooper was on the track again and placed second to All-American Anthony Jones of Illinois. The times in both races were considerably slower than expected due to a constant rain which fell during most of the day.

"He did a great job," Moore said of Cooper's performances. "I wasn't too happy about him running both. I was kind of hesitant about it, but I think he gained some respect by doing that."

The 800 relay team of Don Rice, Vinram Wade Bey, Ray McElroy and Kert McAfee placed sixth, while the 6400 team of Nate Shaffer, Brian Allen, Rich Arsenault and Jeff Trask placed seventh. The first three all turned in splits of 4:13 while Trask ran 4:22 to finish in 17:02.5, the fifth fastest time in Eastern history.

Earlier in the meet Daryl Brower placed eighth in the decathlon, which was run on Wednesday and Thursday. Brower totaled 5,919 points for the combined 10 events.

Other events in which Eastern was entered included the 400, 1600, 3200, the distance medley and the high hurdles shuttle relay, as well as McElroy and Neal Garrison in the 400 intermediate hurdles. None of these athletes made it out of the preliminary rounds. McElroy came close, running a near-best time of 53.37, but was still .46 from advancing.

World record-holder Lewis tops Cooper in 100 meters

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

Every sprinter in the country would like to take a crack at Carl Lewis, if only once, but most of them don't get that chance.

Obadiah Cooper saw the chance, and took it this weekend at the Drake Relays.

Lewis, an eight-time Olympic gold medalist, seven-time World Champion and current holder of four individual and relay world records, is considered by many to be the greatest track and field athlete of all time.

Cooper has often dreamt of running against the fastest man in the world. So when he heard Lewis, the world record holder in the 100-meter dash at 9.86 seconds, would be running in a special elite-class 100, Cooper made it his mission to get into that race.

Cooper came into the Drake Relays ranked third in the university division 100 with his season best of 10.22. After winning his preliminary heat handily in 10.39 on Friday, Cooper approached meet officials and asked to be in the special invitational race on Saturday, which was to include other national stars along with Lewis. When the officials consented, Cooper's dream was fulfilled.

"I always wanted to run against the fastest man in the world," said Cooper. "I walked up to him before the race and said 'Carl, man, it's always been in my heart to run against the fastest man in the world, and now I have that opportunity.' He shook my hand and said 'Good luck.'"

By race time Saturday, vicious weather had already slammed the track, with heavy snow in the morning followed by a constant rain, which kept going all day in the midst of 35-degree temperatures. That didn't matter to Cooper, for he knew that he was living a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

The race was, of course, the main attraction of the meet, and despite the steady rain was viewed by 18,000 eager spectators. Lewis drew the best lane, lane four, while Cooper drew lane eight, probably the worst since it ran right along the stadium wall. But, again, that didn't matter.

Cooper had the best start of his life, and to the surprise of the crowd and the excitement of his teammates, led the race for 90 meters. But then Lewis put in his unrivaled final gear, and passed Cooper right before the finish and went on to win the race 10.28 to 10.50.

"Afterward, he patted me on the butt and took his victory lap," Cooper said. "I finally ran against the fastest man in the world, and I almost beat him. I got beat by a legend, the best sprinter of all time."

Baseball Panthers sweep three

Guest homers four times in afternoon tripleheader

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

The Eastern baseball team swept a tripleheader from Northern Illinois on Sunday, pushing its overall record to 20-21, but more importantly, moving the Panthers back into first place in the Mid-Continent Conference.

Panthers second baseman Jeff Guest supplied most of the Eastern offense, hitting four home runs and driving in seven runs on the day. Guest also had two triples.

"That first game was unbelievable. I've never hit like that in my life," said Guest, who had three of his home runs in the opener. "It was a great day."

Guest, who's batting average is now .326, had six hits in Wednesday's doubleheader against Illinois State and has raised his average 58 points in only a week's time.

Eastern is now 13-6 in conference play and is one game ahead of Wright State, who was idle in Mid-Con play this week.

Saturday's doubleheader with the Huskies was rained out and was rescheduled as part of a tripleheader on Sunday.

One of the big questions in a tripleheader is whether or not the pitching staff can hold together and make it through three consecutive games.

No problem for the Panthers.

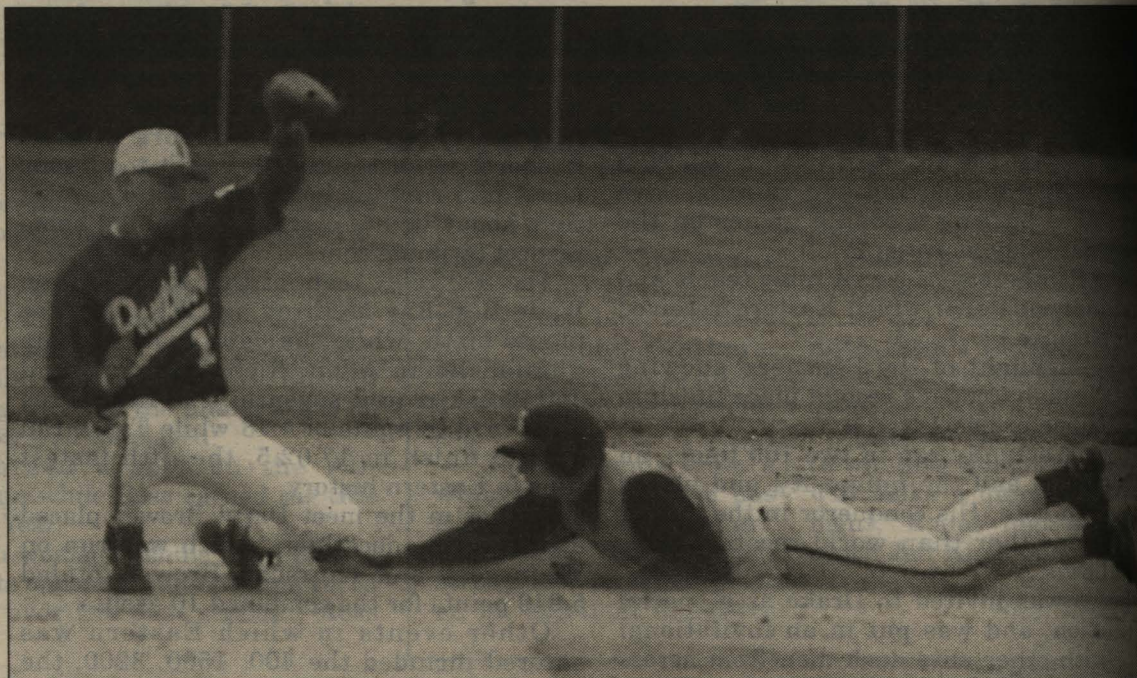

Mike Fahey, Andy Keefner and Basil Clausen all collected victories on the day, and the staff allowed just four runs in 21 innings of work.

"All of our starting pitchers knew what we had to do. We didn't want to get too deep into our bullpen," said Fahey, who gave up just one run on seven hits while collecting the complete game 8-1 win in game one.

"Everyone pretty much had the same attitude to come out and throw strikes and try to make them hit the ball on the ground and see what happens. It worked out great."

The Panthers won 5-1 in game two behind the arm of Andy Keefner.

Keefner went the distance, scattering five hits and striking out nine Huskie batters while walking only one.

Keefner was one of only four Eastern pitchers who saw action in the tripleheader.

"Everything just fell into place and it was a big win for the team - a team win," Keefner said.

In game three, Basil Clausen pitched 5 1/3 innings, giving up just one run on three hits as Eastern completed the sweep with a 7-2 victory.

Joe Keusch came on in the sixth to help seal the deal for the Panthers.

Eastern head coach Dan Callahan said Fahey's fine performance was no surprise because of the way he has been pitching the last three weeks.

But it was Clausen and Keefner, who have had problems lately, that impressed Callahan.

"I'm happy with Basil and I'm happy with Andy because they've been struggling," Callahan said. "I'm happy with what they did for our team. That has to be important to them because they really did well today."

The Panthers have four Mid-Con games left, with the next one coming on Tuesday at Western Illinois.

Softball team wins two over weekend

By TIM BROZENEC
Staff writer

After two losses Friday, the Lady Panther softball team won when it had to, sweeping conference foe Wright State Sunday in Dayton, Ohio.

Going into the weekend, Eastern faced "six very crucial games," according to head coach Beth Perine. They were scheduled to face Mid-Continent Conference rivals Illinois-Chicago, Valparaiso and Wright State.

It didn't start well. The Flames of UIC topped the Lady Panthers 4-3 and 3-2 in games that went down to the wire.

In game one, Eastern was down 4-1 going into the top of the seventh. They rallied for two runs to make the game interesting, but fell short.

Offensively, Nicole Chapman had two hits and scored a run, and Dede Odle also notched two hits while driving in a run. But Eastern left 10 others on base to the Flames' two.

"We could've won the first game," said Perine. "They're a top-20 team and we had them and just couldn't finish it."

Game two also raised the blood pressure, but UIC scored a run in the seventh inning to break a 2-2 tie, and improved their conference mark to a perfect 12-0.

"Even though we lost to UIC, I think it helped us because we played hard and played well," Perine said.

UIC starter Jen Banas (11-3) outdueling Eastern's Amy Bradle, who gave up only two earned runs and walked just one in seven innings.

Saturday's Valparaiso matchup was rained out. It will be made up Tuesday at a yet to be determined time.

Sunday against the Lady Raiders of Wright State, the bats finally came alive for Eastern in an important 8-5, 12-2 sweep.

The sweep improved the Lady Panthers' season mark to 17-24 and 5-11 in the muddled-up conference. Only eight teams in the 10-member conference are invited for the postseason tournament, and Eastern began the week tied with the Lady Raiders for sixth place, just a game above Cleveland State.

Offensive leaders for the Lady Panthers were Jen Cherveney (6-8, four runs scored on the day) and Bridget Ward (3-5 with two walks and three runs scored). Luann Schleeter, Shannon Hutson and Sharna McEwan also helped spark the offense.

Eastern scored its runs early and in bunches in both games. In game two, which Eastern won by the eight-run rule, two runs crossed the plate in the first inning, two in the second and eight in the fourth. Missy Porzel and Bradle got the victories on the mound, while Bradle also had a save in game one.

In addition to Tuesday's makeup with Valparaiso, Monday's regularly scheduled games with Loyola have been rescheduled for this Saturday, although no starting time has been set yet.

Lady netters finish 2nd in Mid-Con Tournament

By MATT MORFOOT
Staff writer

The Eastern women's tennis team completed its season with a 21-5 overall mark and a second-place finish in the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament to defending champion Northern Illinois.

"This has been a great season and I can't be any more pleased with the outcome," Eastern head coach John Ross said.

In order to get to the finals, the lady netters had to defeat the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Eastern took on Wisconsin-Milwaukee in the quarter finals and won by shutting out the Lady Panthers, 5-0.

Theresa Ramage defeated Sarah Less 7-5, 6-4, while teammate Terra Erickson scored a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Angie Bayer.

Geeta Dua and Kristy Sims also defeated their opponents Lori Rocklewitz and Nicole Larange 6-3, 6-1 and 6-1, 6-0, respectively.

Stephanie Sullivan finished the shutout with a 6-2, 6-0 win of her own over Natalie Duff.

Samantha Wulfers' match was stopped because Eastern had already taken the victory.

"The team was very nervous when they began playing," Ross said. "But after this win, they seemed to calm down."

Against Wisconsin-Green Bay in the semifinals, the lady netters scored a 5-1 victory.

Klein adds post player to women's hoops team

Eastern women's basketball coach John Klein believes he has found a player that will give his team some much needed inside help for the upcoming 1994-95 season.

Jaime Eades, a 6-foot post player from Middleton, (Wis.) High School, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Eastern.

According to Klein, Eades, who averaged 12 points and eight rebounds a game while leading Middleton to an 18-5 record, had been recruited by several division I institutions including Idaho State, Colorado State and Kent State. She was her team's Most Valuable Player her junior year.

"We were happy to find Jaime this late in the recruiting season," Klein said. "She was recruited by some good schools."

What Klein also found encouraging about Eades was the type of successful program that she comes from, very similar to Allison Lee, a six-foot pivot
