E. I. 4, BRADLEY 6

Due to a whole flock of errors, Bradley was able to defeat the Teachers in a rather slow game of baseball last Thursday. Despite a total of seven bingles and two double plays (first and seventh innings) the E. I. team couldn't come out on top. With the score 4-1 in Bradley's favor the home outfit staged a rally in their half of the sixth inning and tied the score. Tucker of Bradley was relieved by Carlol, who held the locals the rest of the game while his team mates made two runs in the eighth. One half of Bradley's runs were due to E. I. errors. Bradley had one earned run to their credit and E. I. four.

Greathouse pitching his first game for E. I. deserved to win but his team mates could not play consistent ball. As proof that all of the fielding was not ordinary, Wallace made a remarkable catch in the sun and Black speared a high one. Lynch and Coyle put up a snappy game around the keystone each and started both double plays.

Ireland robbed Fawley of a triple in the fourth with a brilliant one handed catch. Ettinger, third baseman was Bradley's individual star with three hits and two runs.

FRESHMEN CLASS SHOW

The college freshmen class vaudeville show, from every point of view except financial, was a great success. Only a small number of the student body took advantage of the excellent five act program given by the freshmen class. The show was worth any one's twenty-five cents, and the writer recommends that the same program be repeated in the near future so that all those who are just beginning to realize what they missed may have the chance to go. Probably the reason for such a small attendance was the lack of advertisement and because the show was on Monday. The assembly room should have been and probably will be packed if the program is repeated. Many of the business men and students have expressed regret because they did not attend.

The Florida quintette, the French doll duet and a duet by Sumner Anderson and Helen Holdaway were the best received numbers. To name the stars of the evening would be to repeat the names of all the students taking part in the program. However, Luke Crouse, Sumner Anderson and Myrtle Dunlap were the general favorites.

E. I. STUDENTS HONORED

Two more names of E. I. students that have been added to the long list that have gone forth from this school to higher seats of learning to receive high honor in scholarship are Max Carman, '20 and Edgar Leach, '18. Both were recently elected to the Phi Beta Kappa, the national honor-scholarship of which there is a chapter at the U. of I.

NEWS STAFF, 1922-1923

Thursday, April 6, after an hour and forty-five minute joint session the Student Council and News' faculty committee selected and approved Dale Coyle and Paul Hall as editor and business manager of the Teachers College News for next year.

Both are well qualified for their respective positions.

Mr. Coyle is a writer of considerable experience for only a college student. He was the athletic correspondent for the Charleston Courier during the basketball season, including the last one. His write-ups were so well written that Mr. Weir said: "They are equal to any handed in by the correspondents of any of the large newspapers."

Mr. Coyle has not only written for the Courier but he has had articles published in New York papers. His English work in school is of the highest quality. Several of his themes have been published in this year's edition of the School News.

During the history of School News here have been several good editors, but probably none of them were as well qualified for the job as Mr. Coyle is. He not only has the ability to write but has other qualifications that will make the paper a success. Mr. Coyle will be a senior of the Normal School course next year. Besides his school work here, he has attended a business college in Terre Haute for two years.

In 1918 Mr. Coyle enlisted in the navy, but did not cross the waters. In camp he qualified as an expert rifleman, and was kept on this side as an instructor.

Paul Hall as business manager will be a good partner for Mr. Coyle. Mr. Hall was the assistant business manager for the first school News published here in 1915 and has had more experience in the kind of work that will be required of him than any other candidate in school.

The position of business manager is a very hard one to fill. The one that has it usually gets all the "kicks" without any of the praises. However, Mr. Hall has the right kind of spirit and we are sure that he will have little trouble in getting and keeping ads for the News, and of taking care of the financial ends of the paper.

Mr. Hall is also a World's War veteran, serving throughout the war with the 130th infantry, 33rd division, until he was severely wounded at Marcheville during a hop-over on November 10, 1918.

After spending several months in the hospital, Mr. Hall, almost entirely restored to health, has returned to school to complete his education. Next year he will be part sophomore and part freshman in his work. He expects to get his degree in 1924.

These two men were selected by the Student Council and we are sure that the rest of the student body will approve of their choice. The faculty represented by the faculty committee has given their approval. So the prospects never looked brighter for a more successful year of the Teachers College News than for 1922-1923.

The paper will be worth the support of the student body, alumni and faculty of the school. If you have not subscribed for the News for next year, the present staff urges you to do so at once.

WARBLER, 1922

The first part of the Warbler went to press April 10 and it is expected that they will be on sale by the middle of May. This will be the fourth annual class year book published by the Senior Normal School class. This year it will be more than just the annual for this one class, but will also be the annual for the senior class of College and High School. It will contain in addition to the three graduating classes and faculty individual pictures; page cuts of the other classes in the school; of the different athletic teams, (college, high school and class); pages of snap shots, cartoons, campus views, and well written accounts of the school activities for the past year. The most important of the latter includes the social activities, athletics, entertainment course, student council, Y. W. C. A., class histories, students' poems, and the school calendar. In brief, the annual will be a well written summary of the school year, bound in book form. It will be a book that every student should have.

The annual will be dedicated to Miss Florence Skeffington, and that will make it a still more desirable book to own in the eyes of all those who were acquainted with her. In addition it will contain page cuts of Miss Hilton, Miss Bishop, (two members of the faculty that died recently), and Miss Lucille Dryden, a former member of the class of 1922, who died last summer.

The price of the Warbler is one dollar and seventy-five cents. The alumni and members of the school should sign the ad pledge in the News and send or give it to Arthur McCall, business manager of the Warbler.

TRACK AND FIELD

Tryouts for the Tiger meet at Paris were held last week and entries have been made in several events. Members of the high school squad who are doing well in their trials are Sims, Kerr, King, Replogle, Wilson and Sanders. There are many aspirants for the dashes and distance runs and competition is quite keen for these positions. The loss of G. Lynch due to illness is a big set back to E. I. high's chances. Because of bad weather the squad has had little opportunity to work out and consequently is not in very good shape. An inter class meet will be held today or tomorrow and will probably show who's who.

The varsity track squad has had even less practice than the high school and are not yet having regular work outs.

Forrest Combs, former president of the junior class of high school and member of last year's track team, died Thursday evening after an illness of some weeks. A short service was held Friday noon at the home of Mr. Connell and the body was taken to Casey where the funeral services took place Saturday afternoon. Quite a few students and faculty attended the services at Casey.

Forrest Combs was easily the most popular member of his class. He was working his way through school and gained the respect and friendship of every fellow who knew him.

The school extends its greatest sympathy to his family.

Coals of Fire

more, and their work would be finished for the night. Sprad was leading the way. Suddenly he gave a sharp cry and fell to the earth. Hap dropped by his side. He was none too soon, for they had been heard by the Germans. Luckily the river had formed a natural dyke at this place. Behind it they were safe for some time.

"I've sprained my ankle," moaned Sprad. As quick as they could they crawled away. Their progress, naturally slow, was made still slower by Sprad's ankle. It was only with the greatest pain that he managed to drag himself along. After moving a hundred yards Happy thought that it was safe to stand up. Sprad did the same but found it impossible to put any weight on his left foot. Morning was approaching, and they were still several hundred yards from their lines. It would take hours, at the rate they were going, to get there. To leave Sprad where he was would have meant almost certain death for him the next day. Happy did not think of going after help.

"Guess I'll have to carry you," he said, in a matter-of-fact tone. Sprad protested, but Happy paid no attention to him.

"Take off your pack," Sprad said. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to leave your gun, also." Happy said this last in an apologetic tone, for he knew how Sprad felt towards his rifle. Many of the soldiers, especially the expert riflemen, love their guns, often giving them pet names. While in the "lines" they took pride in seeing who could keep his gun the cleanest. Sticking the bayonet in the ground, Happy promised himself that he would come after it the next night if he was not on duty.

With little trouble, Happy threw his comrade across his right shoulder, carrying him in the way he had been taught in camp. His burden was a heavy and tiring one, but Hap never for a moment thought of leaving him. At first, Sprad cursed his friend for being a fool, but the pain in his ankle soon became so great that he had little time to think of anything else.

Hap suddenly stepped into a shell hole, and fell heavily to the ground, dropping his comrade as he did so. Then for the first time he noticed that Sprad had fainted.

For what seemed hours, Hap struggled on with his comrade. Oftener and still oftener he had to stop to rest; but never for a moment did he doubt that he would make it safely back to the lines. Although Happy had kept in the general direction of the lines, he had taken many unnecessary steps. Day came, and he still had two hundred yards to go. Again he stumbled and fell, but this time he did not have the strength to replace his comrade on his shoulder.

It was impossible to stay there. Something seemed to lure him, beckon him to come on. Yes, he must go on, but not alone. Again he tried to lift Sprad but could not. Almost in a frenzy, he caught hold of Sprad's coat collar and started dragging him. How far he traveled this way he never knew. It was past daylight, but a mist sheltered them from observation. At first, his progress could be measured in yards; but his pulls became shorter and shorter until they could be measured in inches. Then not at all.

Vaguely, Happy realized that he could do no more. The fog might lift any time. Then death. He gave a cry for help. It was answered close at hand by a scouting party from the next battalion. Quickly, they picked up the unconscious body of his friend and carried it to the first aid station. Not until he saw Sprad under the care of the kindly old surgeon, did Happy go to his dugout for a much needed rest.

She will succeed Merrill McCabe, who will teach in Chicago next year. Miss Alice Pitman, principal of the Washington school, will act as grade supervisor to take the place of Miss Harris.

Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO

The day before vacation the boys of the school sent Perry Rawland and Harold Snyder to Chicago to attend the Y. conference. The conference was a meeting to give instruction to the newly elected officers of college Ys. There were seven sessions lasting three days, during which a course of problems on campus life was discussed. "Dad" Elliot, Mr. Pence and Mr. Kosa, a Czechoslovakia representative of the international Student Federation were among those who spoke during the sessions.

The visitors were taken over to the campus of Chicago University. The Y College was the scene of all the activities of the conference and the fellows ate and slept in this building.

The statement of the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. is to promote better moral standards and more friendly relations between colleges. The first of this week a meeting of the boys of the school will be held and the report of our representatives given.

ENROLLMENT AT CARBONDALE

The Egyptian reports on enrollment of 750 for the winter term. One hundred and forty are Normal seniors and 112 high school students. They have seventeen students in Senior college, four of whom will get their degrees this year. Their Senior college has almost the same enrollment as ours, while the Junior college department is considerably larger.

FIELD MEET MAY 6th

One week from Saturday the annual track and field meet held at our school will be run off. Last year five records were broken and the meet was regarded as the best ever held here. It goes without saying that this year's meet will be greater and better than last years. Invitations to two hundred fifty high schools have been mailed. The oratorical contest promises to exceed the one held last year. Taken in conjunction with our music festival, the three days, May 4, 5 and 6 will be of the greatest importance to the school. Every student should be alive to the fact and seize every opportunity to help.

CHANGES BASKETBALL RULES

The recent changes in basketball rules are the greatest that have been made for ten or fifteen years. The side making a technical foul must give their opponents the ball out of bounds instead of allowing them a free throw. The side making a personal foul must give their opponents two free throws instead of only one as the rule used to be. The probable effect of the new rules will be a smaller number of free throws. The things towards which the rules committee are working are cleaner games and fewer victories by inferior teams with good foul shooters.

Complaints are coming in that students are picking flowers from the campus. To those who are not aware of the rule, do not pick any flowers from the flower beds on the campus without the consent of Mr. Nehrling.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore are the proud parents of a two weeks old baby. The "News" unites with their many friends in congratulating them. Mrs. Moore will be remembered as a former teacher of art in the Teachers College.

According to the Arkansas Opt. - met Miss Esther Kales has agreed to teach again in the Arch. - son junior-senior high school.

ILLINOIS TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Urbana, April 3.—The twenty-eighth Annual Interscholastic Track and Field Meet will be held here on Illinois field, May 19 and 20. In addition to the regular track and field events there will be a state high school gold and tennis tournament. In conjunction with the Interscholastic celebration, the courses in journalism will hold a convention for all the editors of high school papers within the state, on May 18. This is a new feature that is expected to be of great benefit to the young journalists.

All the high schools in the state of Illinois supported by public taxation and recognized by the State Department of Public Instruction, and high schools conducted by normal schools, colleges and universities, for the purpose of practicing teaching or educational experiment research will receive entry blanks and are eligible to enter the meet.

In order to make the competition more keen and equal, the plan of class competition will be followed. Schools with an enrollment of more than 400 students will be placed in class A, and those with less than 400 students will compete in class B. Last year there were 650 contestants, representing 100 different schools.

All the contestants of the high schools will be the guests of the athletic association at the games and entertainments. On Thursday, May 18, the state convention for high school editors will be held. That afternoon the May fete will be conducted by the Woman's Athletic association. Friday afternoon some of the interscholastic preliminaries will be run off. The same afternoon the baseball and track teams of the University will engage Notre Dame in a ball game and track meet. Saturday morning the finals of the Interscholastic track meet, and of the golf and tennis tournaments will be held. Michigan will oppose the Illinois ball team in what should be a great game Saturday afternoon, May 20. Saturday night the Fifteenth annual Interscholastic Circus will be held. This circus is recognized as one of the biggest of its kind staged anywhere in this country.

GIRLS ATHLETICS

All girls who are interested in the Girls Athletic Club should see Lois Waters at once and she will give you credit for your work done in athletics.

Points are given in the club for the following things:

Member of a class squad 25. Member of a class team 50. For a grade above 95 in physical education 50. For a grade above 85 in physical education 25. Winner in an individual sport 25. Champion in an individual sport 25. Hiking, 1 point a mile up to 50, (not less than 5 miles counting.) Winner of greatest number of points in hiking—add 25. Winner of greatest number of points an added 50. Lois Waters.

The contests between the two college classes and the high school in selling Music Festival tickets bid fair to sell so many tickets that the large supply will be considerably diminished. Results of the race are being posted daily. Altho the party is the prize, a number of students are selling as many tickets as possible to back up extravagant claims as to their abilities as salesmen.

Charleston High defeated E. I. High in a dual track meet Saturday 55-41. E. I. won the track events and relay while C. H. S. walked away with every field event.
