E. I. 17, ST. VIATORS 35

Played to an almost even score the first half, St Viators was able, chiefly thru the shooting of L. Winterhalter, to come back and defeat the E. I. team by a decisive score. The first half was a good game, the score at the end of the half being 17-14 in favor of the visitors. Winterhalter starred for the Bourbonnais team, making one basket the first half and six the last. Lynch and Pawley each made three baskets, and Lynch made five free throws. Wilson, not really able to play, went in the second half but was handicapped by his bad wrist.

Show some fight. Bring the team out of this slump. Now is the time to show your E. I. loyalty. It is easy to cheer in victory. Can you do it in defeat? Yes, E. I. Fight, fight, fight.

Referee—Millard.

Timer—Nehrling.

Scorer—Adams.

Saturday Evening Program

The recreation committee has arranged the following Saturday evening program: Jan. 21, dance; Jan. 28, party; Feb. 4, dance; Feb. 11, party; Feb. 18, free; Feb. 15, girls' dance; Mar. 11, party; Mar. 18, dance; Mar. 25, free; Apr. 1, party; Apr. 22, dance; Apr. 29, dance.

E. I. High 14, C. H. S. 19

On Thursday evening E. I. High out played C. H. S. on their own floor in everything but shooting free throws. However, that one failure defeated them. E. I. got two out of sixteen free throws, led at the half 9-5, but lost the game in the last four minutes. We should have won. However, the fact that we nearly did is quite a feat, as C. H. S. is regarded as a championship contender in this district.

The E. I. five played Charleston to a standstill in the first half. The five men defense worked perfectly. The whole team played a fine game and every man is deserving of praise. Develop a foul shooter, coach Spooner, and C. H. S. is going to taste defeat in their return game in our gym.

The varsity seconds defeated Charleston high school seconds 21-8. After fooling around in the first half with an 8-8 score, the E. I. scrubs came back and easily ran up thirteen more points the last half.

Boys' Glee Club Sang

The Boys' Glee Club sang the song, "Down in the Depths" by Karl Lundus, Saturday morning in chapel. This song was very much enjoyed by everyone, and we would have liked to have heard an encore; but what has become of the Girls' Glee Club?

E. I. High 26, Mattoon 34

Playing Mattoon an even game for the first three minutes, E. I. High was swamped the last quarter and lost the game by an 8-point margin. The half ended 13-11 in our favor. The third quarter was even, while Mattoon ran up 13 points the final quarter. Mattoon's players were all big but rather slow. Wilson and Lynch starred for E. I., each making 13 points. Jones and Tolley starred for the Mattoon team. The apparent failure in our high school and varsity team, is inability to stand the second half. An excellent example of this was the Saturday high school game. Mattoon plays a return game here soon.

The fact is that this is only the second year of the high school basketball team, but the team is playing the best schools in the conference and playing good games. The high school basketball squad is Lynch, Wilson, Hall, Kerr, Haddock, Woodhurn, Stillions, Blackford and Gannaway. Mr. Spooner is coach. Whenever a high school game is scheduled here the student body should turn out just as for the varsity.

St. Viators, Yesterday

Coach Lantz left Monday at ten o'clock with eight of his basketball players to play the return game with the strong St. Viators team.

COMPLETION OF BALCONY

The steel arrived Wednesday at 9:30. At 6:00 in the evening the two tons of beams and plates had been drilled. The north side was swung into position Thursday.

Friday and Saturday the rest of the steel was put up and some of the joists put in. Today the rest of the joists and the flooring is being nailed down. The stairs and railing may go up also. The new bank boards will probably not be put in position before Wednesday evening. Very likely the balcony will be essentially completed Wednesday. The boys who have worked under Mr. Ashley and Mr. Lantz will have the pleasure of knowing that without their help, the gym would still be without a balcony. Besides the students already mentioned, (listed in last week's paper) those who worked during vacation and last week as well, Forrest Great-house, and Roscoe Stanberry who helped Mr. Ashley in the putting up of the woodwork receive the thanks of the school. Many students came over and helped for several hours. Their assistance is appreciated. Boys who came over every day and spent all their spare time certainly deserve individual mention—Clyde Gwinn, Vernon Barnes, Theodore Cavins, Albert Crowe, Tilford Dudley, Fred Frommel, Ray Harvey, Gohring Lynch, Arthur McCall, Myrie Shaffer, Robert Shoot, William Gannaway, Perry Rawland, William McIntosh, Harold Kerr, Mr. Spooner proved to be a hard-working laboring man. Coach Lantz spent from one o'clock until six every day overseeing the work while Mr. Ashley was at the manual arts shop. To Harry White, Mr. Freeland and Mr. Shafer goes the credit for putting the channel beams in at both ends. The school will never be able to thank Mr. Ashley enough for his supervision and direction of the whole work.

Girls' Basket Ball

Miss Stewart is making plans for the girls' inter-class basketball tournament, which will take place sometime in March. This tournament always attracts unusual attention, and gives promise of being better than ever this year.

The Seniors of Junior College received their class rings and pins last Saturday.

THE INCUBATOR

Mr. Crowe was demonstrating to his physics class how a ball when heated in a Bunsen flame expands until it becomes too large to pass through a ring that it ordinarily passes through easily. Whereupon one of the members of the class concocted the idea that this principle of expansion furnished the solution for the inability of the E. I. basketball team to start that winning streak. The reason for the succession of defeats, as submitted by this student, is that the E. I. players handle the ball so speedily, and that it becomes so hot, that by the time it is worked down the floor to our opponents' goal, it has expanded until it is too large to drop through the basket. This solution is backed by an indisputable law of physics, so arguments to the contrary will be unavailing. We can anticipate now that Coach Lantz will slow up the team's floor work to prevent the over heating and consequent expansion of the ball. This student feels that he is entitled to the unanimous thanks of the team and the school for figuring out the difficulty, and he accepts it.

The Imaginary Invalid
Thursday the Coffe-Miller players presented Moliere's play, "The Imaginary Invalid." The play is a satire in which Moliere takes great pains to discredit the medical profession of his day. Mr. Coffe, as Aragan, the imaginary invalid, was the chief character and source of amusement. Miss Miller, as the maid to Beline Aragan's second wife, was excellent and entertaining. The rest of the cast, particularly Aragan's doctor, and a brother physician, and his son, were exceedingly laughable. Due to the confusion of dates and bad weather, the audience was unusually small. The Coffe-Miller Company has always been a favorite with the students of the school. They proved as entertaining in this last play as in "The Rivals." Those that did not see them missed a rare treat.

Sparks, Wednesday
Our varsity will meet the strong Sparks Business College team on our floor, Wednesday of this week. The balcony will be completed by that time and there will be seats for everyone. E. I. lost to this team by one point on their floor Wednesday before Christmas, but promise the E. I. rooters with a victory Wednesday night.

Knox College are starting on a three weeks basketball tour Monday of this week. They first play Millikin and then will invade the East where they will meet West Point, Yale and other large schools.

The Magic Word

"Cherries! Freshly-picked cherries!" cried the fruit-peddler. Mrs. Phillips, an old lady of seventy, sitting on a wheel-chair by the open window, laid aside her knitting, pushed her spectacles up on her forehead; leaned back in her chair and closed her eyes.

What memories that word "cherries" stirred! She was a child again, an empty gallon-pail in her hand, skipping to the fruit-laden cherry grove. She felt the rough bark on her bare feet as vividly now, as when she awkwardly climbed into the tree, so many years ago. Fragrantly, the odor of cherry-leaves penetrated her nostrils, as they had that morning, when she clambered into the topmost boughs to pluck the fruit. Again, she seemed to hear the angry defiance of robins, disturbed in their bold thievery; the challenge of two brothers to beat them filling her pail; and again she reviewed the discomfiture of one of these brothers, who, while struggling down through the binding branches, upset his well-filled bucket, 'spilling all his cherries among a flock of hens.

Mary Whalen.

On Guard Duty in the "Lines"

William was awakened by the toe of a bob-nailed shoe kicking him in the sides.

"Your turn, Bill," said the owner of the shoe, "and, mind you, no sleeping."

William's answer was an indistinguishable sound, more like the growl of an animal than the speech of a human being. With an effort, he pulled himself together, and replaced his comrade on the "look-out." As he got up on the "firing-step," he accidentally knocked off an old mess-pan; which fell with a rattle magnified ten times in the deadly stillness. A rat snapped a dead twig as it scampered to a place of safety. A bullet whizzed by with a sound like a drop of water thrown against a red-hot stove, followed by a rifle crack, which told that someone was "on the job." A Boche plane passed high over the "lines," with the broken burr, burr, burr, common only to their planes.

A machine-gun's "pop-pop pop," far over to the right, sounded like a mowing-machine, faintly heard on a summer day. Faint reports of guns sounded far back of the "lines." Pounds of shells were passing thru the air that night, shrieking, (as if in agony) as they passed on their journey of death and destruction. Far away, a whining noise was heard, the whine changed to a groan, the groan to a shriek, which drew closer and closer, and louder and louder. A long shriek, a terrific explosion, and the air seemed to be full of hundreds of angry, fighting, buzzing bees. A flare gun popped on the left, lighting up the landscape for a hundred yards, followed instantly by the pop-pop-pop of a machine-gun. At last, William found that he had no trouble to keep awake.
