ATHLETICS

Last week the E. I. varsity teams appeared on four successive afternoons. These contests have all been scheduled from 2:30 to 3:15 in the afternoon. At the same time there are classes in session in the main building and conferences in progress in the training school. These conflicting engagements, important as they are, have kept many of the students away from varsity athletics which are, at least in the estimate of some of us, of equal value.

Though it may not be right, it is true, that the time has come when students of any college should be allowed the privilege of attending these athletic contests in which the varsity is representing the honor of the school. There may be some exceptions to this, but on the whole it seems that some arrangement could and should be made which would permit those students, who, by the way, have paid for them, to see these events.

Committee meetings, questions, debates, and shows are always announced to the entire student body in chapel. Only one of four varsity contests last week was brought to the notice of the students except by a mere announcement in The News (which of late seem to have read) and a limited chalk and billboard advertisement in the front corridor.

It is not the purpose of this editorial to detract from E. I.'s traditional policy of getting academics first, but rather it is a plea to give athletics at least a second place and our athletics the support from administration, faculty and student body that they so merit.

THE WHY OF Y. M. C. A. SUCCESS

Looking from the inside and looking from the outside, I have observed that the achievements of a certain major organization of E. I. have been outstandingly progressive. This organization has not confined its scope of activities to customs and traditions but has met conditions at E. I. with achievement which indicates that we are firm believers in the evolution of society.

I take for granted that the friends of E. I. are acquainted with the accomplishments of the Young Men's Christian Association; but you may ask just what forces contributed to its unique success. The answer is twofold. First the association was blessed with a leader of unusual energy, of willingness to sacrifice this energy for the association, of sound administrative ability, and of a forceful and creative Christian personality. Second, the association and particularly the cabinet members were willing to cooperate with their leader and to sacrifice many activities in other fields for the work of the Y. M. C. A. When something needed to be done about school, even if it weren't directly connected with "Y" work, President Dudley didn't stop to ask who should assume the responsibility of doing it; he obtained the support of the cabinet and offered the services of the Y. M. C. A.

Nor did he tarry long thinking of the possibilities of failure, but at once began the work with a zeal which inspired vigor in his co-workers and made success certain. Dudley's earnestness and sincerity called forth the good-will and confidence of his fellow-workers and stimulated them to work harder to maintain the name of the organization which they stood for. The spirit of cooperation prevailed throughout the year.

Bearing these things in mind, E. I. patriots may look with as much pride on those who sacrificed their time and energy for the spiritual expansion of our school as on those who have striven for E. I.'s athletic glory.

A student.

"Old man wambler" still seems to be hot interesting with athletic events. Yet, he did allow us one day that might be called . . .

We'll soon have a new group of students among us—the mid-spring term entrants. . . .

Several people have been wondering whether or not we are to have any parties on the recreation course during the mid-spring term. Do we?

It seems that some who have been asking so much about movies do not extend when one is shown. There have been two opportunities during the past two weeks.

A few students have been placed in teaching positions for next year. This seems to serve to make the others more anxious than ever.

There is no cause for worry yet. . . .

While speaking of sophomores, a rather amusing incident is called to mind. . . .

It seems that a certain sophomore young lady went into a shoe store to buy a new pair of shoes. . . .

She asked the clerk whether or not he had any blende kid pumps. (This is presumably some new style in ladies' footwear.) . . .

The clerk looked for a while and then answered, "I believe we have one left." . . .

Whereupon the young lady made reply, "I'm sorry, but I wear two." . . .

Question: Who was the correct mathematician?

BOOKS & THINGS

"Faint Perfume" is the name of a novel by Zona Gale. The title itself is conducive to reading the book. One keeps wondering what the title of the book means, and in perhaps left in doubt even when he has finished reading the book. He may answer the riddle to his own satisfaction perhaps, but not for others. Miss Gale has portrayed a very great love and has caught and expressed a few of the exquisite moments of that love. To me the book conveys much the same idea that Lowell expressed in his sonnet, "My Love, I have no fear that thou shouldst die." In this book, she shows that a perfect love transcends ordinary relationships, but even so, humanizes them and makes them divine, and makes bearable some things which seem unbearable.

The book has the daintiness and delicate mystery of faint perfume.

The Forum for April has a most interesting debate on the question "Is Democracy Doomed?" Two views of the Fascism are expressed in a clear manner. Fascism is discussed as a form of political philosophy which threatens to overwhelm Europe. This discussion pro and con may give some interesting sidelights as well as information about this movement.

American Speech for March contains an article called "Educational Lingo." It is interesting to note the expressions common to people who are working in the field of education. The author not only classifies these expressions as "lingo," but also as "jargon," which fact may be quite significant.

"Arrowsmith—A Study in Vocational Ethics"—may be found in the American Review. Mr. Lewis's book is analyzed to a great extent along ethical lines. This analysis makes one wonder if Mr. Lewis meant his book to teach ethics, or for that matter, whether he meant it for a didactic work at all. The discussion is thorough, at any rate.

The new enlarged edition of the Children's catalog listing 4100 books, is arranged with author, title and subject entries in one alphabet. Teachers will find it very useful for material on geography, history and literature. Separate chapters from 863 books have been analyzed.

The YMCA Wake

The meeting of the association Tuesday night will be in charge of those who attended the conference at Bloomington. There were many constructive and practical ideas brought out at this conference which need be attended and applied to E. I. Come to this meeting and get what you missed by not being at Bloomington.

This Wake is conducted by "Read Me Weekly."

—Y—
Dwight Reed and his fellow cohorts, Lowell Story, Frank Frelsland, and Theodore Whitesel, are now guiding the ship of state of the Young Men's Christian Association. The policy of this administration is to edify the spiritual minds of us people at E. I. so that we may live in closer communion with Christ and learn to adopt His principles of conduct in our school activities.

—Y—
Wayne Isley has been appointed to lead the educational committee in further analyzing the system of education at E. I. and in recommending adjustments which will make this system more effective in developing creative Christian personalities.

—Y—
Gerald Benson continues his work as chairman of the membership committee; Halton Folts remains chairman of the Bible study group; Leslie Bower remains in charge of the "Y" library.

By the way, for fear some wise bozo should try to joke the name of our Wake reporter, I might as well make it impressive that his name is Weakly and not Weakly.

SUMMER COURSES IN GENEVA, SWITZERLAND
Discussion Groups a Feature

Announcement has just been made that the courses in international problems held in Geneva last summer are to be repeated during the coming season. The courses are now known as The Geneva School of International Studies, but are the same as those given under the auspices of the International Universities Federation last summer under the direction of Prof. Alfred Zimmer.

The purpose of the school is to offer college students traveling abroad an opportunity for studying international affairs at first-hand and to facilitate meetings with students of other countries. Last summer the courses began in the middle of July and extended through August and September. Some six hundred students, representing over forty countries and one hundred and fifty different universities, attended them.

While the courses were so arranged that students could arrive and leave practically at their own convenience, it was intended that they should stay at least two weeks, and as an actual fact a great many remained for four, six and eight weeks.

Preliminary announcements of the courses are now being distributed throughout the colleges and universities of the country. Among the services offered is that of securing accommodations for students while they are in Geneva.

Booklets describing the school in detail may be secured by writing to the Secretary of The Geneva School of International Studies, 60 Broadway, New York City.

JOE'S TRADE MARK
Joe has a bright red note book. He reads it through and through; And everywhere that Joseph goes That red note book goes too. He carries it from day to day. The students seem amused; That dear boy's heart would surely break

If that note book were abused Does Joseph love his note book? It seems to me 'tis so! And judging from appearances, That red note book loves Joe. But alas, poor note book! To it Joe was untrue. He went to the game without it, Now the red note book is blue.

C. half mile relay team of Phipps, Iknayan, Sims and Miller, copped their event in 1:44, fifty yards ahead of the C. H. S. quartet, for the other outstanding performances of the afternoon.

The Summary

50 yard dash—Bradley, C. H. S., first; Miller, T. C. second; Hill, T. C., third. Time, 6 sec.

served by the Dorcas Class of the church was the initial feature. Tilford Dudley very ably served as toastmaster. Rev. J. M. Lively of the Mattoon Baptist Church gave a clear, forceful talk on "The Relation of Religion to Education." The talk was stimulating in a deeply serious way as well as in a lively humorous sense. Following the address, Mr. J. W. Gannaway, who represented the advisory board, conducted the ceremony of installation.
