Soviet army prepares for chemical warfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet army has brought decontaminating equipment into Afghanistan, raising the possibility that the Russians may be prepared to use chemical weapons against rebel tribesmen, U.S. intelligence sources said Thursday.

American specialists have no way of knowing what this means. The sources said, however, it suggests that chemical warfare may be used against rebels and to clean up affected areas so they can be occupied by Soviet military forces or Afghan government troops.

Last fall, U.S. intelligence officials, who requested anonymity, expressed strong suspicion that the Soviet Union provided chemical weapons reportedly used in Southeast Asia against Laotian tribesmen resisting communist Pathet Lao and Vietnamese forces.

And in testimony on Capitol Hill last month, a Laotian refugee said his people were subjected to chemical warfare attacks in which villagers suffered "heavy bleeding from the nose, they could not stop their bodies from shaking, and died in several hours."

Tou Yi Vang, a member of the Hmong mountain tribe that supported the U.S. effort in the Vietnam war, told the House Asian Affairs subcommittee that eight villagers died in one attack in 1977.

Some U.S. military specialists say the Russians may have brought the chemical decontaminating equipment into Afghanistan because this equipment is normally assigned to many Soviet army units.

Intelligence reports said a chemical decontamination truck called a TMS-65 was seen with a Soviet army unit in Kabul, the capital. The reports said various other Russian army support vehicles in Kabul were outfitted with chemical protective gear.

Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spoke of the TMS-65 last winter in telling Congress of specially equipped Soviet trucks "built to decontaminate personnel, terrain and equipment" rapidly.

Technicians said the TMS-65 uses a jet engine mounted on the back of a truck to propel liquids that neutralize chemical agents.

In discussing Soviet military doctrine, Jones has said, "The basic principle is to achieve surprise by using massive quantities of chemical agents against unprotected troops or against equipment or on terrain to deny its use."

Jones said all Warsaw Pact combat and support forces are well equipped and realistically trained "to ensure their survivability and to increase their effectiveness in toxic environments."

Voelz enters Democratic Congressional race

by Sandy Young

An Eastern professor recently entered the 22nd Congressional District race for 1980.

Peter Voelz of the journalism department was unanimously endorsed by the Democratic district committee and will wage a write-in campaign for the 1980 election.

Voelz said he offered his services to the committee after Terry Bruce, D-

Olney, announced that he would not oppose Congressman Dan Crane, R-Danville.

Bruce did not make this announcement until two days before the petition filing deadline because of the shortage of time. Voelz was consequently forced to wage a write-in campaign for the March primary election.

Voelz said he decided to run because the district ended an "alternative" to Dan Crane "because he wasn't really serving our district and he was voting against the interests of the district."

"Instead of representing the district he was representing pressure groups outside the area. He was their servant," Voelz added.

Voelz said he wants "to restore decent and rational politics to the district."

His platform will be "one of moderation, to get things done and not go around shouting about things," he said.

It will also stress "classic conservatism--or the old-fashioned American kind of conservatism of the common man, rather than the new rich radical conservatism of the so-called New Right," Voelz said.

He added that he will seek funds mainly within the district through sources such as fund raising and individual contributions.

Voelz said his campaign will include students as they are part of the districts constituency, "but not anymore than the rest of the people in the district."

Voelz said he will continue to teach during the spring semester and will wage the bulk of his campaign during the summer months. He said he has been granted a leave of absence for the fall semester.

Voelz said he thinks his chances of winning this election are "very good."

"Crane is his own worst enemy-- he runs against himself and the more he is exposed in this district the more people will turn to a rational alternative to that. And I think I will provide this," he added.

Voelz stressed that he is not a "token or part-time" candidate.

"I got into this in the beginning to win. I intend to win," he said.

President's son to campaign here

Chip Carter, son of President Carter, will be campaigning for primary votes for his father in a visit to Eastern Tuesday.

Greg Hinz, spokesman for the Carter-Mondale campaign in Illinois, said Carter will speak in the Union Walkway Lounge at 2 p.m.

The event is sponsored by Eastern's Young Democrats and will be a question and answer time for interested students.

Hinz said Carter will not make a formal speech but may comment on the Russian invasion of Afghanistan and the Iranian crisis.

Carter will also be a guest of Coles County Democratic Chairman Joe Connelly at his home for a cocktail reception Tuesday evening.

Connelly said the Illinois primary will be important in determining the next president and Carter is campaigning heavily in the state.

Board must cut budget

The Chicago Board of Education must devise a plan by Feb. 1 to slash $60 million in current spending or the cash starved public schools will shut down, the school board president says.

Catherine Rohrer made the prediction about the closing of the nation's third largest school system after a meeting Wednesday which disclosed that budget cuts had been figured incorrectly.

Gold prices soar

Gold prices zoomed past $800 an ounce for the first time ever Thursday as buyers surged to buy the precious metal. The new mark came just two days after the metal first passed $700. The $800 price was hit at New York's Commodity Exchange in trading for gold to be delivered this month.

Bacteria produce drug

Bacteria have been programmed to produce interferon, a rare drug that can cure viral infections, including the common cold, and is being tested against cancer, scientists said Wednesday. The scientists used techniques of recombinant DNA engineering to insert a human gene into the genetic material of a common bacterium which result in a strain of bacteria that produces interferon, the body's natural first line of defense against viral infections.

Afghan government orders American journalists out

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The Soviet-backed government on Thursday ordered American journalists out of Afghanistan, accusing them of biased reporting and "interference in the country's internal affairs."

The expulsion order, relayed through the U.S. Embassy here, goes into effect Friday. It came three days after Iran ordered American journalists from that country. The Iranian order also is effective Friday.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass quoted an Afghan Revolutionary Council decree as saying "phony" American correspondents were "practicing in fabrications and insinuations, one being more absurd than another. Their aim is to step up tensions in our country, disrupt the normal life of the Afghans."

"We cannot but qualify the activities of the above-mentioned journalists as flagrant interference in the affairs of the sovereign state of Afghanistan. That is why the Revolutionary Council has taken a decision to expel the American journalists from Afghanistan," Tass quoted the decree as saying.

Almost all of the 50 or 60 American journalists now in Kabul, the Afghan capital arrived in the past three weeks after the Soviet Union sent up to 100,000 troops into Afghanistan to try to put down a rebellion by Moslem Afghan guerrillas.

Afghan army officers went to the Intercontinental Hotel on Wednesday night and demanded that the American correspondents return their passports. The Americans refused, and summoned U.S. Embassy officials who then met with the officers at the hotel and said afterward there had been "a misunderstanding" that would be cleared up Thursday.

A scuffle began when one of the officers tried to shield his face from television cameras. An overzealous young Afghan tried to help by tossing a blanket over the officer, who had to punch his way free and had his cap knocked off.

Christian Campus House appoints new minister

by Patty O'Neill

Gary Barnes has been appointed as Eastern's new campus minister by the board of directors of the Christian Campus House.

Barnes said his responsibilities include counseling students and providing Bible studies in the Covenant House and in the residence halls. He is director of the Christian Campus House as well as being in charge of fund raising, public relations and Sunday morning services.

"We're trying to raise funds for a new Campus House which will cost close to $150,000. It will have a large meeting room, offices for the Campus House, a library and a lounge," Barnes said.

Barnes said he also wants to start extension courses for Lincoln Christian College.

"We want to begin theology and philosophy classes after the House is built.

"We'd also like to start a Coffee House with entertainment on Friday and Saturday nights. There will be contemporary rock and folk gospel music," he added.

Construction for the Campus House is scheduled to begin next fall.

Barnes said he feels that he was selected for the position by accident.

"I had moved back to Illinois and the board of directors had heard of my evangelistic work out West with churches and revivals. I had a lot of experience in California with cults in the Beverly Hills and Hollywood area, so I've worked with a lot of diverse people. They thought these experiences would be an asset to being a campus minister," Barnes said.

While in California, Barnes was active in politics. He was a member of the Planning Commission for the Southern California Evangelistic Association and chairman of the Tonnants Against Rent Gouging Committee. He also acted as adviser to the Los Angeles mayor's office and city council on Proposition 13. In addition, he worked with the rent control issue in Los Angeles, and he said he would like to get involved in Charleston politics.

"I'd like to get involved with Proposition 13 in Charleston. Property taxes could be cut and not hurt the schools," said Barnes.

Barnes has replaced Bob Ross, who held the position of campus minister for the past nine years.

Ross left Charleston for Mt. Vernon because "he felt it was God's will," Huddleston said.

Alms rules out coal switch as Eastern energy source

by Mickey O'Connell

Although Gov. James Thompson is supporting coal as a major source of fuel for Illinois, Everett Alms, Eastern's physical plant supervisor, does not foresee any practical solution for coal conversion on campus.

Thompson announced last week the appointment of a Task Force on Energy Conservation and Coal Conversion at state-owned facilities.

But Alms said the capital investment of erecting a coal converter would out-weigh any future savings in energy cost, which was Thompson's original reason for proposing the plan.

Currently, the physical plant is fueled by natural gas and is not equipped to burn coal.

If Thompson's recommendation is to be followed, the heating plant would have to be totally rebuilt at a large cost, Alms said.

"University of Illinois has been using coal fuel effectively, but they are by a railroad and are not faced with the problem of transporting the coal," Alms said.

Before any plans for funding the proposal can be made, the project would have to be discussed and approved by the Board of Governors and the Board of Higher Education, Alms said.

He declined to comment on the possibility of the recommendation for coal conversion becoming mandatory by the mid to late 1980s, saying he would await further action by the governor.

BOG approves appointment of Moler as acting dean

by Laura Rzepka

CHICAGO—The Board of Governors approved the appointment of Don Moler as the acting dean of Eastern's School of Education at its meeting Thursday.

Moler, head of the department of psychology and guidance, will replace Harry Merigis who resigned Jan. 1.

"There was hardly any question in approving Moler," John Grant, Eastern's BOG student representative, said.

Two studies were also approved at the meeting.

Bids for 18 washers and 12 dryers for Carman Hall are open, Grant said.

The appliances will cost approximately $40,000. The BOG will also conduct its own study concerning where Eastern keeps its money.

Currently, Eastern keeps its money in three Charleston banks. The BOG will be inquiring at banks in other cities to determine whether Eastern could benefit from higher interest rates, Grant said.

BOG universities Chicago State, Governors State and Northeastern keep their money in Chicago banks and receive higher interest rates, Grant said.

In other matters the BOG postponed action on Eastern's proposed legal service which was proposed by the Student Senate last fall.

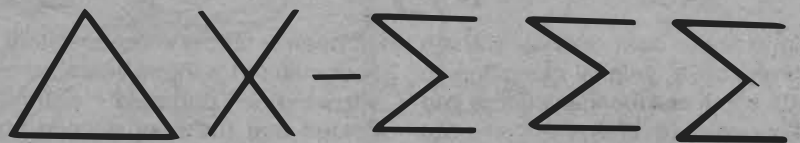

Last semester Student Senator Bob Glover said an additional $2 in student fees would be needed for the service.

The BOG will discuss if the legal service is worth it," Grant said.

The BOG is concerned with how the lawyer's time will be spent as a legal adviser for students, he added.

The additional fee has to be approved by March to be instituted next fall, Grant said.

Carter must act alone in Iranian sanctions

Only the days change in the American hostage situation in Iran. As it now stands, 76 days have past with no real sign of a settlement.

Since the president has exhausted just about every formal world forum to find a solution to the crisis, it is now up to him to act alone.

The United Nations mission by Kurt Waldheim did not break any ground between U.S. and Iranian officials. The World Court is still deliberating in the Hague while the Soviets have thrown a wrench into Middle East affairs with troop deployment in Afghanistan.

The condemnation vote in the U.N. on Soviet involvement in Afghanistan shows Western and Third World nations are sympathetic to the U.S. position. But when these countries are asked to support severe economic sanctions against either Iran or Moscow, they balk.

We believe the administration of Jimmy Carter can't really wait any longer for the events in Iran to work themselves out. Direct action is needed now against Iran, in the form of total economic blockade.

Iran is now producing oil at 25 percent of its capacity. However, demand on the spot oil markets has generated enough income to keep its economy functioning.

The United States can use Iran's internal political unrest to its advantage with the blockade. The unrest centers in the northern provinces where different ethnic groups question the leadership of Ayatollah Khomeini and his constitutional powers.

If the U.S. sanctions cause enough economic pressure, Khomeini's unyielding rule may soften by internal political pressure around the time of the national elections in February.

Carter should not wait for further approval of the world to act. In the past weeks it has come to light that the president will have to act alone.

'We Want Bert' stirs public outcry on firing

Tonight Show host Johnny Carson has stirred up a national campaign to reinstate a trait of American culture into one of our yearly events.

The "We Want Bert" campaign to protest the firing of Bert Parks as the host of the Miss America beauty pageant has rattled the sponsors of the show and has irked the American public.

For 25 years, Parks has delivered "There she goes, Miss America..." to the Atlantic City pageant audience. He has been a stable and consistent part of our culture for those years.

However, pageant committee decided that the new decade should bring a new life to the show in the form of a new, fresh young host to replace the aging MC.

So Parks was fired for being too old even though he had done a respectable job as pageant host. It's a sad comment on how some Americans perceive aging in this country. Once someone reaches a certain mark in life, he or she is supposed to be isolated from society through retirement, or he or she is automatically eliminated from continuing their present job because of age.

Maybe this attitude can be traced to the youth orientation in society in the marketing of products, the appeal to youthful endeavors or the nuclear family concept where extended family relationships — the chain of the grandparents to their grandchildren — has been displaced by dispersed family movement, time and space.

Whatever the case, it's good to see many Americans rally behind a cause such as saving Parks' position by sending telegrams, letters, wearing buttons or t-shirts exclaiming "We Want Bert."

If the attitudes of the pageant organizers change for the better, and Parks is rehired, it would be a shift in a perception of aging in America in general.

The changes have to start at some place. The Bert Parks campaign may just be the beginning point for the involvement of a new set of values on aging in America.

Super Bowl hype will end after Steelers-Rams battle

For millions of Americans, the most important day of the year comes up again Sunday. It's Super Bowl Sunday.

Yes, friends, once again its time for most of America to slow down to almost a complete standstill for four hours and watch the most elaborate pre-game show, the most stupendous halftime show, and the most provocative post-game show of the year.

Oh, there is also a football game.

The Super Bowl has become almost too big for its own good. There are two weeks between the two conference championship games to allow for hype, and to allow the point spread to fluctuate for the gamblers. Of course, the ever present media can conduct countless numbers of press conferences where everyone from the star quarterback to the coach's nephew gets interviewed.

Unfortunately, through most of the 13 previous Super Bowls, the game has rarely lived up to the advance billing. Last year's game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Dallas Cowboys was an exception.

So Sunday, the Steelers defend their crown against the Los Angeles Rams in Super Bowl XIV. Eastern will be represented in the classic for the second straight year with the appearance of former Panther standout Ted Petersen. Petersen will be a starting offensive lineman, wearing number 66.

The most memorable aspect of this year's game buildup so far has been the fact that, for the first time that I can remember, the network that is NOT televising the game has actually admitted that there is a game being played.

CBS-TV is doing the telecast of the game Sunday. CBS and NBC have the rights to the game, and they switch off each year. Usually the opposing network distracts from any mention of the game shown on the opposite network. Instead the opposite Network plugs their programming for Super Bowl Sunday which usually consists of something along the line of the Irish curling championships, or the battle of the NFL cheerleaders, shows which generally attracts a viewing audience of about three people.

Brad

This year, NBC has actually promoted their NFL '79 program to hype the Super Bowl even though CBS is covering the event. That appears like a step in the right direction.

So, before over 100,000 fans in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena on Sunday and approximately 75 million viewers at home, the final teams left will battle it out for the right to claim the championship of the world. After 20 weeks, 456 games have been played, countless holding penalties called, a number of calls have been missed by officials, and over 30 million fans have entered stadiums across this country, leading up to the final climax.

A final word from Jimmy the Greek and one last look at Jayne Kennedy.

Letter to the editor

Eastern ERA

Editor

In 1848 in Seneca Falls a handful of women held the first American women's rights convention. At that time they passed the following resolution: "Resolved, that all men and women are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The Equal Rights Amendment embodies this principle and enshrines it in the Constitution of the United States. In so doing, it provides us with an essential tool that we have lacked until now. How we will use it will depend on us, but the fact remains that, for the first time in American history, we will have a well-known, accessible, and permanent remedy that can be used by each one of us to insure that our laws become free of sexual prejudices and remain so for all time.

Beyond this, what ERA provides is a symbol that the time is here for women to assert their equal rights as human beings. It is a symbol that the time is past when women's goals and aspirations can be dismissed or ridiculed.

It is proof that the women's movement must now be taken as seriously as any other civil rights movement, that we mean business, that we are over half of the population, and that we will no longer permit our needs to be ignored and our rights to be suppressed.

BHE approves gerontology degree

by Melinda DeVries
Eastern students who complete the new master's degree in gerontology (the study of aging) will have job opportunities in nursing homes, education institutions and government services, Mary Ruth Swope, dean of the School of Home Economics, said Wednesday.

The program, which was approved by the Board of Higher Education Dec. 3, will be administered by the home economics department and is effective immediately, Swope said.

"Students can begin taking the basic courses during this semester although the program will not be funded until the fall semester," Swope said.

The new master's degree is designed to provide training in gerontology for those students who have already received a bachelor's degree in either adult education, physical education, psychology, sociology or home economics, Swope said.

A student wishing to complete the master's in gerontology will be taking classes pertaining to aging in each of the five areas studied—adult education, physical education, psychology, sociology and home economics, she said.

The new program will require an additional faculty member and a part-time coordinator, Swope said.

The new program will also provide the need for an addition of five graduate assistantships to work in each of the five areas of study, Swope said.

Grant receives new trial judge

Eastern student Otis Grant's request for a new judge in connection with Grant's battery trial was honored at a Dec. 4 hearing in Charleston, Assistant States Attorney James Dedman said Thursday.

Grant, a junior, pleaded innocent to a charge of battery at his Oct. 11 arraignment after he was arrested for allegedly assaulting an Eastern coed with a belt.

The trial, which was originally scheduled for Nov. 26, will probably take place in early February and will be presided over by Judge Richard Scott, Dedman said.

If convicted, Grant could receive a sentence of up to one year in the Vandalia penitentiary, Dedman said.

Besides providing an opportunity to develop skills for the student interested in aging, the program will also provide in-service and continuing education to persons currently working in the field of aging, she said.

Ross Sim, administrator of the Fontanbleu Nursing Center in Charleston, said he "takes his hat off to Eastern for providing training in the area of aging," although he is not sure in what way it will help his facility.

"There is definitely a great need for training in the area of gerontology and I am happy that Eastern has taken a step in that direction," Sim said.

Sim said that such a master's program would be helpful to his facility only if the students' educational background agreed with the standards set by the state to work in a nursing home.

UB to show 'Magic'

Anthony Hopkins and Ann Margaret star in the horror thriller "Magic" at 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Friday in a University Board sponsored movie, in the Union Addition Grand Ballroom.

The cost is $1 for students with an ID.

Most often, Sim said, a person with a bachelor's in home economics or physical education will not be as useful to a nursing center as one who has a bachelor's in psychology, sociology, adult education or nursing.

Bob Wilson, administrator of the Hilltop Nursing Center in Charleston, said he feels a graduate of this type of program would be helpful to both the community and as a consultant to nursing centers.

"I think those people who graduate with a master's in gerontology could help a great deal with not only those people who are already in a nursing center, but with those who need such services but are not ready to come to a nursing center," Wilson said.

Student senate proposes activity fee increase

by Dyna Cole

A proposal for a $12 per semester increase in the student activity fee to provide more money for the athletic program was discussed at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday.

If passed, the increase would be effective in the fall 1980 semester.

At present, each student pays $18 in activity fees in support of athletics. With the proposed increase, this amount would be raised to $30.

The proposal would increase funding for men's and women's sports by $6 per student per semester and add the same amount to the grants-in-aid program which provides money for athletic scholarships.

Both the athletics and the grants-in-aid programs currently receive $9 per semester from the activity fee each student pays.

If the increase is passed, both athletics and the grant-in-aid programs would receive $15 of each student's activity fee.

Men's sports would receive an additional $61,600 per year with the increase, and women's athletics funding would increase by $44,000.

The grant-in-aid program would increase the scholarship program for men's and women's sports by $220,000. It would also contribute $44,000 to a general fund which would benefit programs sponsored in the music, speech, art, journalism and student leadership areas.

In compliance with the federal guidelines concerning non-discriminatory funding for women's and men's athletics, the proposed fee increase would bring the percentage of funding levels to a 60-40 ratio.

Figures are based on a projected fall enrollment of 8,800 full-time students.

"This is a fair increase to maintain the athletic program we have," IAB member Lewis Coon told the senate.

Student body president Bill Houli-han said the senate would work for a written agreement with the administration and the athletics department to provide that if the proposed increase is passed the price of tickets to athletic events will not be increased for the next three years.

"We want to make it so that any student who is currently a freshman will not have to pay a higher price at the gate as long as he is a student here."

Student body Executive Vice President Bonnie Bijak said they are trying to prevent a student fee increase this year and an additional increase in ticket prices next year.

"They could get both (a ticket and fee increase)" she said, "unless we put something in writing."

No action was taken on the proposal by the Senate.

Faculty members unhappy with BHE salary proposal

by Herb Meeker

The Illinois Board of Higher Education in a recent meeting made its faculty salary increase recommendation to the Illinois General Assembly, but Eastern faculty members do not seem pleased with the deal.

The BHE's recommendation calls for a 9 percent salary increase for university faculty and staff. This includes 8 percent for salary and an additional 1 percent in improved fringe benefits, in the area of survivors and disability benefits.

The 8 percent salary increase would be based on 95 percent of the current year's budget spent on faculty salaries.

Carol Elder, vice president of Eastern's chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, expressed concern that the salary increase would not deal with the present rate of inflation.

"It doesn't begin to keep pace with inflation," Elder said. "We'd need at least a 14 percent increase just to stay even."

Herb Morice, AFT area representative, from the psychology department, said the salary increases recommended by the BHE in the past have helped decrease the faculty's real income.

"It seems this (inadequate salary increases) has been a consistent thing and over the years our real salary has been creeping behind our cost of living expenses," Morice said.

Morice added that he believed the inadequate salary increases have added up over the years and as of now Eastern's faculty is 20 to 23 percent behind in real earnings as compared to 1971.

Arthur Hoffman, chairman of the accounting, data processing and finance department, said this salary increase would hurt Eastern in its search for new faculty members.

"You're not going to be able to get new faculty to Eastern," Hoffman said. "This increase makes it difficult to bring new people into certain areas, such as accounting and finance."

Tracy to present violoncello recital

Donald Tracy of the music department will present a violoncello recital at 8 p.m. Monday in Dvorak Concert Hall.

Tracy said he will perform two pieces for solo violoncello: "Suite in C Major" by Bach and "Sonata, Opus 25, No. 3" by contemporary composer Paul Hindemith.

Brahms' "Sonata in E Minor" completes the program. Tracy's wife Gretchen will accompany him on the piano for this piece.

Tracy has been at Eastern 12 years and gives a violoncello or string bass recital at least once each year.

Admission is free for the recital.

Roundtable aids public school administrators

by Melinda DeVries

The Administrators Roundtable may sound like a spin-off from the tales of King Arthur, but area school administrators said Thursday the meetings help them in their administrative duties.

The organization, which has been in existence for 20 years, is a group of area public school administrators who meet approximately four times a year at Eastern to discuss current issues and problems pertaining to public schools.

The organization began in 1959, and deals with problems and issues such as energy conservation in schools and alleviating stress on administrators, Gerhard Matzner, Eastern educational administration faculty member and Administrators Roundtable coordinator, said Thursday.

Orris Sing, superintendent of Windsor schools, said the Administrators Roundtable meetings are very helpful.

"I think the meetings are very productive and well organized by Eastern. I also think that the information that is received at those meetings is pertinent to the problems that we face today in our public school systems," Sing said.

Norman Kerans, superintendent of Oakland schools, said the meetings are also an in-service opportunity for working administrators to find out what is new in running a school system.

Not only do the Administrators Roundtable meetings help area school administrators, but they also help in recruiting students to Eastern, Matzner said.

"The administrators and superintendents see the campus and talk to people here and then go back to their own schools and talk to the kids about Eastern," Matzner said.

Kerans said the meetings do help to recruit students to Eastern.

"It certainly does not hurt Eastern to have such meetings. We rely very much on Eastern for our faculty and that helps in recruitment also, along with our subscription to your newspaper," Kerans said.

The meetings are attended by a number of administrators from schools within an 80 square mile radius of Eastern, Matzner said.

Bill Hill, superintendent of Charleston schools, said the meetings are attended by approximately 40 to 50 administrators.

"The administrators usually come from areas that are within close driving distance from Eastern, but there have been many times that an administrator would drive 125 miles to attend these meetings," Hill said.

Matzner said students who plan to find jobs in the field of administration may also attend the meetings.

For the record

In Thursday's Eastern News, it was incorrectly reported that the future site of the Tarble Arts Center is the open field bordered by Ninth Street on the west, Carmen Hall on the south and Route 130 on the east. The original site has been changed due to economic and energy conservation reasons. A new site has not yet been determined.

Also, free play hours for the field house were incorrect. The hours are 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, noon to 10 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Rising gold prices increases ring costs

Students interested in saving money on college rings should place their orders before Jan. 26.

Due to the rapid increase in the price of world gold, prices of men's and women's gold rings will increase at that time.

According to a press release from the Artcarved Class Ring Incorporation, prices will increase anywhere from $25 to $40 for women and $50 to $95 for men, depending on the style.

Students may place their orders Monday, Jan. 21 through Wednesday, Jan. 23 in the University Union lobby from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the Artcarved salesman.

Motorists may dry up pumps
in mild weather

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) Motorists taking advantage of unseasonably mild weather in Illinois could dry up the month's gasoline supplies by Jan. 26, the state Gasoline Dealers Association said Thursday.

But the U.S. Department of Energy said national gasoline consumption for the four weeks through Jan. 4 was 10.5 percent less than for the same period a year ago. Long gasoline lines appear unlikely, the agency said, and warmer-than-normal temperatures across the nation spell good news for gasoline supplies this summer and fall.

And Illinois Power Co., of Decatur, said consumption by 361,000 natural gas and electricity customers was down 9.5 and 7.2 percent, respectively, on December bills, due largely to mild weather.

"The only people hoping for cold weather and snow are skiers," Ed Vidade of the Energy Department said from Washington, D.C.

Consumption of all forms of energy in the United States was down 7.2 percent from July through Dec. 31 compared to a year earlier, he said. He said much of the decrease was due to 6.6 percent warmer-than-normal average temperatures across the nation.

For the last six months of 1979, Vidade said average temperatures in the United States were 7.5 percent warmer than the same 1978 period.

Watch your weight, but also watch your health

(Editor's note: This is the seventh and final article in a series dealing with nutrition for college students. Lisa Stedelin is a junior majoring in dietetics.)

Are you wandering through the fatlands? Take a pinch of skin from the stomach area and if you can pull up more than an inch of fat you might be one of the many travelers in the land of fat. Diet time again, right?

Let's see, there's the Scarsdale diet, the grapefruit diet, the Mayo clinic diet, Stillman's diet and various other assorted diets.

But do these diets really work? Does the weight stay off and can the person resume eating in their normal pattern without weight gain? Usually not.

So why not get on a diet that enables you to eat and eat properly, lose weight, and then keep it off. Impossible you say. One must suffer when on a diet. No. Read on and find out the simplest, smartest and safest way to lose weight.

Many people believe they have to be on a punishing diet to lose weight. They fail to realize that after this quick weight loss occurs nothing has been done to change previous eating habits. The person cannot stay on a diet of eggs or grapefruit for long because often the weight is lost and the person starts eating in the same pattern as before, weight gain will result. Therefore, food eating habits have to be changed.

To begin with, good health rests on good nutrition. A diet following the Basic Four Daily Food Requirements is necessary to provide needed nutrients to give good nutrition. Many people feel they would gain weight if they ate three times a day. This is not true. It has been shown that skipping meals is of no benefit for weight loss and probably a factor contributing to weight gain. These people are depriving themselves of good food and nutrition.

Carbohydrates, protein, and fat are essential to life and none should be cut out of the diet. Here are some hints to help you cut down when choosing foods from the Basic Four.

Food For Thought

by Lisa Stedelin

- Write down everything you eat in measured amounts. Serving sizes of fruits and vegetables are one-half cup servings, meats are three to four ounce servings, milk is served in one cup portions and, bread servings are one ounce servings.

- Avoid frying meats and drain off fat as it accumulates in the pan.

- Eat more fish, veal and poultry, all of which are lower in fat than red meats.

- Instead of whole milk and cheeses use skim milk and low-fat products.

- Fill up on vegetables low in starch.

- Use fruit as dessert substitutes.

- Limit fat intake to three teaspoons daily. Fat is needed in the diet to give a feeling of fullness.

- Develop a taste for food such as cereal, fruit and coffee with no sugar.

- Avoid convenience foods whenever possible. These are usually high in calories.

- Extra calories are found in foods that contain sugar, gravies, chips, salad dressings, cream, olives, nuts, soft drinks and alcoholic beverages. These areas should be watched closely.

The foods that you choose should be of a wide variety to give essential nutrients. To do this a knowledge of what a balanced diet consists of is needed. Instead of counting calories make the calories count. Quality not quantity is the idea.

Dr. Katherine Porikos describes behavior modification as looking at eating "as a response. One that occurs in response to stimuli in the outside world. It (behavior modification) attempts to modify these stimuli and as a result, modify eating behavior."

Changing your eating habits requires some doing. You've been this way some 18 years or more and a change is not going to occur overnight. Be patient, any change is a step forward.

To change your eating habits first think about the way you eat. Do you eat with friends? Do you eat when upset? If so, plan for these times.

A change in attitude is needed for success. Feel good about yourself and not guilty. Be honest with yourself. Here are some ideas to change your eating behavior. The Kansas Wheat Commission, in the interest of better nutrition, suggests you:

1. Pre-plan what you will eat. Make deliberate decisions about eating.

2. Never skip a meal. You'll be more likely to snack then.

3. Eat slowly and think about what you're eating. Take 20 minutes or more at each meal. Do not do other activities when eating such as reading. You'll get the feeling you haven't eaten at all. Chew slowly, drink water, and put utensils down after each bite. These will also help.

4. Write down what you eat.

5. Think about your mood before eating. If it's not a happy mood try to change it to a better one. People tend to eat more when they're unhappy.

6. Delay eating. Studies show that if you wait 10 minutes you won't be as hungry.

7. Reward yourself with something besides food. Make yourself feel good.

8. Express your feelings about eating and actions. If someone is pushing food on you tell them about it.

9. Eat at a designated spot with a place setting. Use smaller plates. Leave food if you're not hungry.

10. Keep food out of sight. Don't feel obligated to eat leftovers. Don't buy junk food.

Increasing physical activity also burns up calories. Exercise in addition to work. Plan something that is an all-weather activity and take it slow. If calorie intake is decreased and physical activity is increased weight loss is sure to follow. It takes 3500 calories to either lose or gain a pound. A decrease in calorie intake of 300 calories a day and an increase of physical activity that burns up 200 calories a day will result in a one pound weight loss a week. This is a good amount to lose a week.

Walk! Don't ride elevators, climb steps. Muscles should not be strained. Just do it daily and gently and it will add up. You will feel better and less tired when you exercise.

Food provides energy for your body. It is needed to live. When more energy is provided than needed weight gain results. If less energy than the body needs is provided, you use stored fat and lose weight.

Obesity is associated with many health problems and a shorter life. Some of these disorders are heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, and orthopedic problems.

To begin a weight reduction diet there are four things you need to do.

First, see your doctor. Next, set a reasonable goal. Retraining habits is another factor in losing weight. And the fourth step is to be more active.

City prepares itself to handle snow

by Diane Cooper

Although the mildness of this winter has surprised everyone, including city officials, Charleston has extended its efforts to be better prepared for severe weather.

Charleston has acquired a new snowplow, a new dump truck, a new building to store salt and a 120-ton salt supply to cope with a severe winter, Street Superintendent Clinton Brown said.

The new purchases bring the city's snow equipment total to five snowplows and two dump trucks. The past three severe winters have resulted in the purchase of a new snowplow each year, Charleston Director of Purchasing Steve Childress said.

"The last three years we've had heavy snows that stayed for weeks, even months," Childress said. "Before, Charleston had one or two snows a year, and four to eight inches of snow that never stayed on."

Childress said the new snow removal equipment replaced "some that were 15 to 22 years old."

"Last year there was a remarkable improvement in the time it took us to clear up the snow. With the additional plow we hope to do even better," he added.

Childress said the city's 120-ton supply of salt was purchased at $37.39 a ton, a significant increase over last year's price of $22.78 per ton.

Two years ago, Childress recommended that salt be purchased in bulk, on a bid-out basis. Before that time, the city purchased salt in 23-ton allotments throughout the winter. The advantage to the bid-out system is that "there's guaranteed delivery," which does not occur with smaller purchases, he said.

In addition to the machinery and salt, Charleston has developed a new snow plan. Devised two years ago, the plan goes into effect with two inches of accumulation.

Cars parked on streets designated as snow routes (Sixth, Seventh, 10th, 11th, Monroe and Jackson) must be moved to allow adequate plowing, Childress said.

Car owners are notified of the need to remove their vehicles by announcements on television, cable TV, and radio. Special care is taken to clear primary streets for ambulance use and routes to doctors' offices, he said.

Brown said the salt supply can be stored for the next winter. The prospect of a snowless winter doesn't bother him.

"The weather is real nice. Hope it stays this way," he said.

Don't forget to expect

The unseasonably warm weather is experiencing a sharp drop in temperature. Price said Thursday.

More normal temperatures are expected before another severe winter.

However, this winter has been the past few have.

Why has this happened?

"That's a million dollars worth of questions."

"Nobody really knows."

Price explained that the weather is based on the temperature of the ocean.

"When the temperature of the ocean is warm, the weather is warm."

said.

This winter, the temperature has dropped, although the temperatures are expected to rise.

"But why is this happening?"

Frolicking in deep snow was an activity shared by many Eastern students a year ago. Last January several Thomas

Illinois prodigious weather

URBANA — This winter so far has been another wicked one in 1980, the Professor Paul Handerson said.

Using statistical correlations, Handerson said the sun's heating of the atmosphere over the west coast of the United States is the key.

When the ocean there is cold, the jet stream enough to bring the weather to the interior of the United States.

Handler observed this trend during the first cold winter.

He says sunny skies over the ocean predicts the result will be the same.

Handler correctly predicted 1976 and 1979 would be colder than 1977. This past December would be the same.

Next summer's weather and crop yields will not be the same good.

Handler's interest in the weather is built. He was interested in the weather.

So he studied weather patterns at points far apart — such as the coast and winter in Illinois.

He has made predictions about the weather in Syria; wheat crops in Texas; and wheat crops in the Soviet Union; grain in Brazil, and the weather in the United States.

Handler says he accurately predicted the weather in 1977 and 1979, the 1979 drought which killed crops in June.

He says his predictions are 80 percent on judgment alone in the past.

to the snowflakes?

When mercury rises, shovel sales drop

A year ago today, the temperature was several degrees below zero and Charleston was buried in seven inches of snow. Last year's heavy snowfall and resulting problems created statewide chaos and even provided a major issue for Chicago mayoral candidates.

This year, snow is once again creating a problem, only this time for the lack of it. Area businessmen are finding it difficult to sell snow supplies. Students and townspeople find themselves without favorite winter pastimes of tobogganing, ice skating, snowmobiling and skiing.

The nearest place to indulge in most winter sports is Springhaven Resort, east of Charleston on Rte. 16. The lack of snow will have no effect on business, however. "We're not open this season because we're undergoing construction," a spokesman said.

Other businesses are being affected by the lack of snow. Area hardware stores spokesmen agree that snow shovels, snow blowers and salt sales are down considerably compared to last year at this time.

Snow shovels are "not selling very well," George Clark of Frommel Hardware said. Although a few were sold earlier in the year, "we'll be putting them on sale sooner or later."

A True Value Hardware spokesman said snow blower sales have "slacked off" since early winter. "Snow shovels were sold out by this date last year," he added.

The mild weather has even affected the sale of boots, Bob Inyart of Inyart's Shoe Store said.

"There's some difference in sales from last year to this year," he said.

Inyart said that marking boot prices down has helped, but "this time last year they weren't on sale."

—Diane Cooper

This Teheran boasts of corn and 25 people

TEHERAN, Ill. — Reporters may be packing their bags in Tehran, Iran, but in Teheran, half a world away, the guys who gather each day in the Farmers Grain and Coal Co. office welcome the press.

Thanks to the town's unusual name, folks here have become media stars. And they love it.

"Maybe Barbara Walters and Walter Cronkite will arrive next," said Mike Hogan, who runs the garage in nearby Easton. "Or 'Real People.' That's it, we should be on 'Real People.'"

Newspapers have interviewed them this week and photographers and television crews have made their way to the tiny hamlet in the heart of corn country.

There hasn't been this much excitement in the place since Wayne Roberson's garbage truck caught fire a few months ago, the guys say.

Raymond Stijz, who runs the grain elevator, is unofficial mayor of this unincorporated community, population 25. Teheran boasts of nine houses, an abandoned gas station and a grain elevator, which also serves as general store and community meeting place.

According to Harold Bailey, who at 69 has lived here longer than most, the place was settled in 1883 and known as "Blunt's Station" until the post office discovered another town of that name. So for reasons nobody's quite sure, the name became Teheran.

Composer of 'Shaft' is back on the scene

BURBANK, Calif. — The flashy jewelry, furs and fancy cars are gone for the time being, casualties of a well-publicized bankruptcy several years back.

But while Isaac Hayes wears blue jeans and a record company baseball jacket during interviews these days his majestic bald head and mesmerizing bass voice are unchanged—and so, apparently, is the talent that first won him fame and riches.

His new album, "Don't Let Go" and the hit single by the same name are selling better than anything he's recorded since the days of "Hot-Buttered Soul" and the Academy Award-winning score to "Shaft."

As co-writer of the Dionne Warwick hit "Deja Vu," he's also up for a songwriting Grammy this year. If he wins, it'll be his fifth trophy.

And for the first time in more than more than four years, Hayes is contemplating a major concert tour—one that may bring back the chains of his "Black Moses" days.

$1,000 prize goes to best man-power car

NORTH DARTMOUTH, Mass.—A contest at Southeastern Massachusetts University is offering $1,000 for the best design of the ultimate energy-saving car—one that runs on manpower alone.

"The kind of vehicle we're talking about wouldn't be the sole source of transportation for a person, but would serve well for many short, routine trips that are now taken in automobiles," Professor Siegfried M. Breuning, the contest coordinator said.

The contest is open to students, faculty and staff members at the school, and the winner will be picked next May.

Farmer unearths fossils of mastodon in Illinois

FILLMORE — Remains of a mastodon and other smaller animals have been unearthed on a farm near this Montgomery County town in southern Illinois.

Fillmore area farmer Curtis Hopwood discovered a bleached bone in a gully on his property while repairing a fence Wednesday and called the Illinois State Museum in Springfield. A museum crew unearthed a three-foot long, six-inch diameter bone believed to be the hip socket and part of a left rear leg of a mastodon.

Museum spokesmen said the remains apparently were near a lake which may have existed 200,000 years ago and probably dried up 20,000 years ago. A museum crew also found remains of birds and turtles in the area while taking samples of earth from the side of the gully, Hopwood said.

'Martian Chronicles' to be aired on NBC

LOS ANGELES—Sam Parkhill thought it was his lucky day when he opened a hotdog stand on Mars, but it turned out to be the off-season.

Sam was hoping to catch the tourist trade from earth, but earth caught fire before his eyes. His wife, Elma, never happy about homesteading on the Red Planet, told him to get ready because "there'll be another batch of customers along in about a million years."

Parkhill, an astronaut from Texas, is the most flamboyant character in Ray Bradbury's "The Martian Chronicles." But not the most exotic; those are the Martians themselves.

NBC will air a six-hour mini-series based on "The Martian Chronicles" Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday nights. Rock Hudson stars as John Wilder and Gayle Hunnicut is his wife, Ruth. Darren McGavin and Joyce Van Patten are Sam and Elma Parkhill. "The Martian Chronicles" is a loose collection of allegorical short stories, partially about how man makes a botch of his own planet and then proceeds to do the same thing on Mars.

Tankers suffer first loss

by Chris Magnuson

Bradley University handed Eastern's men's swimming team its first dual meet loss Thursday night at Lantz pool, 75-39.

"We were hoping to give them a better tussle," coach Ray Padovan said. "We were swimming tired tonight because we've been working out very hard these past three days."

"I don't want to take anything away from Bradley, however, they swam very well today," Padovan said.

"Mike Roessler and Tom Hussey, our only winners, swam very well for us," Padovan said. "Jim Hall swam exceptionally today even though he was beaten."

"We plan on three more weeks of hard work and then we will go easy to prepare for the conference meet," Padovan said. "Right now we're just trying to regain the form we were in before Christmas break."

The Panthers travel to Carbondale, Ill. Feb. 8-10 for the SIU-Carbondale Invitational.

Roessler won the 200 meter breaststroke in a time of 2:15.1 seconds and Steve Boone took second place with a time of 2:17.8.

Tom Hussey won the 200 meter backstroke with a time of 1:59.4 and Panther Mike Parratto took second place.

Jim Hall finished second in the 1000 meter freestyle with a time of 10:07.9

Women cagers triumph 100-71

by Lori Ellis

Eastern's Linda Ellsworth tallied 28 points to lead the Panthers to a 100-71 triumph over visiting Northern Iowa at Lantz Gymnasium Thursday night.

Consistently good Panther defense held Northern Iowa to many outside shots and forced turnovers which Eastern was able to capitalize on.

Fourteen minutes into the first half, Eastern held a 37-17 lead over Northern Iowa following an eight minute period when the Panthers outscored their opponents 25-8.

Although Northern Iowa played well in spurts and drew within 11 points of Eastern seven minutes into the second period, Eastern's consistency and generally tough man-to-man defense held fast to the lead.

Junior guard Sandy Thorpe sparked Eastern's defensive unit with her ability to set up key plays and then execute them with quick, accurate passes.

Thorpe received help from freshman guard Carla Haney later in the second half, when Haney also proved to be a good ball-handler as well as an accurate outside shooter. Haney, playing her first game since being called up from the junior varsity squad, scored eight points while Thorpe added nine.

"Our defense was probably what won the game for us," said Coach Bobbie Hilke. "We got a lot of steals and did a lot of capitalizing on turnovers."

Jo Huber, who tallied 17 points on the night, made the lay-up that sent Eastern over the 100 point mark for the first time this season.

The win ups Eastern's record to 7-8 and the squad will get a chance to even their mark at .500 Saturday when they face Ball State.

while Jim Bart came in third with a time of 10:34.4. Brian Kay finished fifth for the Panthers.

Mike Foley took third in the 200 meter freestyle with a time of 1:51.7, Craig Culvert finished fourth in 1:56 and Frank Muchna finished fifth with a time of 2:01.6.

Parratto took second place in the 200 meter individual medley in a time of 2:04.2 and Panther Joel Edwards finished third in 2:04.4

Tim Bird and Dave Gibson finished third and fourth, respectively, in the 200 meter butterfly with times of 2:03.4 and 2:05.7.

Mike Foley finished third in the 100 meter freestyle with a time of 50.1 while Ted Soltys came in fourth.

Panther sharpshooters crush Northern Iowa

by Brian Nielsen

Eastern basketball coach Don Eddy got his school record setting 197th career victory in impressive fashion Thursday night as his Panthers stormed past Northern Iowa 77-53 at Lantz Gym.

The Panthers shot off to a blazing start and never let up in their Mid-Continent Conference opener which also raised their season record to 11-2.

The win also enabled Eddy to surpass Charles Lantz as the winningest coach in Eastern basketball history. His 12-year mark is now 197-114.

"It's very pleasing, and kind of nice to get it out of the way, but I don't think it affected the players," Eddy said.

He was just as pleased with the way his Panthers recorded the monumental triumph.

"This was probably our best game of the season," Eddy said. "Every guy had a good game, and we did everything pretty well. We were patient and got the good shot, played good defense, we had good passing and good rebounding."

Torrid shooting from the outset allowed Eastern to quickly dispose of a Northern Iowa team that came into the game with a 6-7 record that included games against five NCAA Division I teams.

With forwards Ricky Robinson and Craig DeWitt supplying all the scoring, the Panthers hit eight of their first 11 shots from the field to bolt out to a 16-6 lead in the first seven minutes. Northern Iowa never got closer than eight points from then on.

Eastern also outrebounded its foes 12-2 in the early going and 17-9 in the first half en route to a 42-22 halftime command.

Robinson finished with 9-for-12 shooting and 18 points, DeWitt 8-for-10 and 17 points and guard Warren Patten 5-for-6 and 10 points.

As a team Eastern shot .571 from the floor and held Northern Iowa to .391 shooting.

Robinson and Patten also led the Panthers with six and five assists respectively.

Center Dennis Mumford and DeWitt had seven and six rebounds to lead their team to a 36-28 advantage under the boards.

The Panthers will host Northern Michigan in another MCC tilt at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Lantz.

Eastern—LeTourneau 0-0-0, Patten 5-0-10, Oldham 3-0-6, Williams 1-0-2, Ellis 2-0-4, Robinson 9-0-18, Turk 1-2-4, Pickens 2-0-4, DeWitt 8-1-17, Jones 1-0-2, Jacob 0-2-2, Mumford 4-0-8, Clark 0-0-0, Schmersahl 0-0-0, Sachse 0-0-0, Total 36-5-77

Cagers may capture first championship in 1980

He came to Eastern in 1968, and since that time his basketball teams have authored numerous accomplishments.

In the 1975-76 season his Panther squad finished third in the nation in the NCAA Division II finals, a feat which was repeated in the 1977-78 campaign. In both of those seasons and two others his squads have won at least 20 games, and his teams have appeared in the NCAA Division II tournament in each of the past five seasons. He has won 197 games and lost only 114 during his reign at Eastern, and two of his former players have been drafted by National Basketball Association teams.

But in his 12 years as Eastern's head basketball coach, one accomplishment has always eluded Don Eddy and his teams—an NCAA Division II National basketball championship.

However, this void may finally be filled by Eddy's 1979-80 edition of Panther cagers.

Eastern, besides jumping off to its best start ever with an 11-2 ledger, is also ranked No. 4 in this week's NCAA Division II poll. But one needs only to inspect the Panthers high grade performances against top flight competition to support such a statement.

Facing a supposedly superior Division I Illinois State squad in the Illini Classic last December, the Panthers played the Redbirds virtually even up for the entire contest before succumbing 64-59.

Refusing to be discouraged by that defeat, the Panthers bounced back to beat Kentucky State for third place in the tourney before besting Armstrong State, Basketball Weekly's No. 1 ranked Division II pre-season team. In addition, Eastern also performed fairly well in the Puget Sound, Wash. Invitational, capturing third place with a 77-72 victory over a strong Boise State squad. The tourney also featured a lopsided 77-54 Panther loss to Puget Sound, the No. 5 ranked Division II team. But Eastern hardly played up to its capabilities in that contest, as starting forward Craig DeWitt failed to score and no Panthers tallied in double figures.

But besides the obvious championship possibilities which Eastern's win-loss record indicates, there are other more subtle indications that this may be the Panthers year to go all the way.

The most apparent of these factors is that the Panthers have yet to play up to their full potential. For while the defense has been tenacious and scrappy all season long, the offense is still struggling to gain a consistently productive form.

So, it only follows that if the Panthers can go 11-2 and beat Armstrong State at less than peak efficiency, their prospects to contend for the Division II championship are excellent if they show any appreciable improvement.

Another factor which I think contributes immeasurably to Eastern's championship chances is its bench strength. Eddy has not hesitated to use non-starters such as Lance Jones, Rico Ellis, and Dave LeTourneau, and all of them have performed consistently well. In fact, Eddy has exhibited so much confidence in his bench that he inserted reserve forward Jim Williams into the starting lineup earlier in the season in place of Craig DeWitt. Last year, DeWitt was a National Association of Basketball Coaches Third Team All-American.

This depth has served two important purposes. First, it has kept all of the players fresh throughout the long grind of the season. And second, it has allowed several competent reserves to make a significant contribution by spotting faltering starters. These pluses, along with the obvious advantages of bench strength (in the event of injuries or foul trouble) also point to strong championship capabilities.

And it goes without saying that Eastern's starting lineup has played some very steady, if not spectacular basketball. Hustling guard play, unselfish frontcourt performances, and the continuing improvement of center Dennis Mumford all combine to make what could to turn out to be Eddy's best team ever.

Of course, no matter how talented a basketball team is, it always needs a little luck to win a championship. But maybe after 12 years and a couple of near misses, Eddy and Eastern will finally capture that elusive basketball crown.
