Halls will be overbooked in fall term

by Rhonda Earl

The residence halls will be at 100 percent capacity again in the fall, Lou Hencken, director of housing, said.

He said the lounges in the residence halls will be converted into rooms to help accommodate the additional students.

"This marks the sixth year the dorms will operate at full capacity," he added.

The number of students assigned to the lounges varies depending on the size of rooms. The larger rooms may have somewhere between two to four students living together, Hencken said.

The housing office had a waiting list of 2,000 students looking for dorm rooms, Hencken said.

To help those students find housing the housing office provides an off-campus listing of those houses and apartments available, he added.

Periodically students on the waiting list are surveyed to find out if they still want to live in the residence halls, so those students waiting can be informed as soon as possible.

To overcome the problem of waiting for a room, Hencken said students should apply before hand, even if they are not sure.

Usually those students on the waiting list will come down on the first day of classes and look for housing and a large majority of them end up finding something, Hencken said.

Hencken said it will be the year 2006 or 2008 before the residence halls are paid for because of the high cost of borrowing money.

Although the residence hall situation causes problems for some students there will be no attempt by the university to alleviate the problem by building another one, he said.

The two main reasons for this are cost and an enrollment decrease in the 80s which is foreseen by the Board of Higher Education, Hencken said.

New mall could create 250 new jobs

by Marc Pacatte

More than 250 new jobs will be created as a result of plans for a new shopping center east of Charleston.

Jerry Bennett, a partner with Eli Sidwell and Associates Realty in Charleston, said the center would create a "good" opportunity for jobs for Eastern students.

The site for the center, located east of Charleston on the south side of Illinois Route 16, was prepared for annexation to the city Tuesday night by the city council.

Bennett said the main store in the center will be opened by the Wal-Mart chain, and the center will also feature a drug store, a super market and a number of small shops.

The other occupants of the center will not be announced until negotiations with the companies are completed, Bennett said.

He estimated negotiations would be completed by the first of November or December.

He said there are "still a lot of things to do" as far as planning the 135,000 square-foot center is concerned, but he said construction would begin by the spring of 1982.

He said the estimated cost for building the center is $6 million.

He also said the estimated sales projection for the first year of the center is $15.75 million.

Stormy weather

Rainy weather hit the Charleston area about 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon. The clouds rolled in and out periodically throughout the night leaving streets flooded and campus paths rain-soaked. This car is passing through the intersection at the corner of Fourth and Lincoln (News photo by Tom Roberts).

Tax cut plan protects — Crane

by Marc Pacatte

U.S. Rep. Dan Crane, R-Danville, said passage of President Reagan's tax cut plan by Congress this week shows that the country is accepting "the Reagan concept of government."

He said "the fact is, we're on the right track."

Crane was in Charleston Tuesday conducting a "town meeting" in the Oakland Room of the University Union.

He said the bi-partisan effort in the House which enabled Reagan's 3-year tax-cut package to pass was "essential" and "long overdue."

Crane said the "second best tax cut plan in 20 years was Dannyostenkowski's plan."

Rostenkowski, Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, had offered an alternative to Reagan's proposal.

Crane added that Reagan's plan was the best.

He said the Reagan economic plan is necessary "to protect the private sector," and the private sector is "how we survive."

"I don't see how anyone can argue this isn't efficient," Crane said.

He said the private sector is the "very thing that makes this world go around."

He used the image of a parasite living off its host to compare the relationship between what he called the government sponging off of the private sector.

He said "the sooner we understand what the federal government is all

"The sooner we understand what the federal government is all about the better off we'll be"—Dan Crane about, the better off we'll be."

He said he thought giving grants to symphonies and ballets was a waste of federal dollars.

He added that did not mean he was against the arts, "if you want them, fine. But you pay for them."

He said people have got to learn they can not be dependent upon government.

"Confucius said, 'Give a man a fish, you feed him for a day; teach a man how to fish, you feed him for a lifetime,'" Crane added.

He said the "liberal mentality" has "run the government for 40 years," and because of it, "everything—across the board—is in trouble."

He said he supported Reagan's plan to reduce the student loan program because of the abuse which has taken place in the program.

"I don't behoove them (students) doing it (abusing the loans)," he said.

He said congressmen were like "kids in a candy store" with tax dollars.

"You keep sending us money, and we're not gonna quit" spending it, Crane said.

"Everything is in disarray out there" in Washington, Crane said.

He said the "government can't give you anything until they take it away from you."

Crane supports the transferral of power from Washington to the states.

He said the state legislatures have "far more intelligence than we have out there."

He said he tried to get a bill passed which would have left it up to the states

Final paper for summer

Eastern News business offices will be closed Friday, Monday and Tuesday as the move to new facilities in the Buzzard Education Building takes place. The News will reopen on Wednesday with regular office hours from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in BEB, North Gym.

Composing services will be closed Monday through Friday of next week, and will reopen Aug. 17 in Buzzard.

Bids open for police cars

by Marc Pacatte

The Charleston City Council opened bids Tuesday for the purchase of three new police cars for the city.

Marzano Chrysler Plymouth submitted the low bid of $23,514 while Grimes Dodge submitted a bid of $23,724 and Red Freeland Chevrolet submitted a bid of $25,514.

The bids were placed on file for public inspection and will be acted on by the council at its next meeting.

The council also authorized a lease with the Charleston Jaycees for an A-frame structure located in Lafferty Park.

Commissioner John Beusch said the Jaycees would "like to take it over as soon as possible to complete repairs and renovations."

The council also paved the way for closing off sections of two streets to two-way traffic.

Pierce Street between B and Division, as well as Third Street from Tyler to Harrison will become one-way streets.

Commissioner Wayne Lanman said the reason for the action was due to the fact that the sections involved are "real narrow."

He said with residents parking along the streets it is "hard enough for one (car) to get through," much less two-way traffic.

Larry Stoeber, city planner, said the sections "were originally platted as alleys" and were not meant to handle two-way traffic.

In other action, the council renamed three streets.

The parts of County Highway 7 running north and south within the city limits were renamed Becker Springs Road while the parts of County Highway 7 running east and west within the city limits were renamed Old State Road.

Lanman said the "old-timers have always called it Becker Springs Road and Old State Road."

"This makes it official," Lanman added.

The council also renamed the parts of County Highway 6 which are located within the city limits Reasor Avenue.

The part, which is located near the industrial park on the north edge of town, was renamed to honor Walter H. Reasor, Jr., who was mayor of Charleston from 1965 to 1969.

Reasor also founded the Reasor Corp., which has offices located in the industrial park.

In other action, the council placed on file for passage at its next meeting the annexation of the Stoner Estates section located east of the drive in.

The council also tabled action on appointing members to the recreation board and established the prevailing hourly wage for contracted employees hired by the city for outside work.

Businesses grow—Hill

(Editor's note: This Business Scene concludes a summer-long series examining new and growing business in Charleston.)

by Scott Fishel

Even when the economic trend of the nation seems to be on the downturn, Bill Hill, chairman of the board of the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce, said he thinks Charleston is "holding its own" in attracting and maintaining business.

"(The Chamber of Commerce) is optimistic that even due to the state of the economy, we will see some growth. Hopefully we will attract more industry," Hill said Wednesday. He added, "Even during a time when the outlook in the nation is not good,

Business Scene: Charleston grows

there seems to be a slow growth in Charleston."

"At this point, I think we're holding our own."

Hill said one feature of the city that he believes was lacking until recently was an adequate water supply for industries.

He said the city now has "a better posture" and is in "a better position" to attract large industries to the Charleston area.

Eastern News thanks everyone

With this, the final issue of the Summer Eastern News, we would like to express our thanks to all students, faculty and city officials whose cooperation over the summer months made our twice-weekly task of putting out a newspaper much easier.

Without your continued support, we could not bring you news, features and comments as we have done this summer.

Granted, there were days when it seemed like nothing had happened and there was really no news to write about but that was an oversight on our part.

We always managed to find enough news to fit the bill. The news was always there, we just had to look in the right places.

Producing the Summer Eastern News has been a learning experience for all involved.

The first few issues were painfully assembled by a staff that lacked general experience, but with this, the final publication for the summer, we feel we have gained enough knowledge about the newspaper to continue on for weeks.

The trouble is, there would be no one on campus to read the paper if we produced it over break. And besides, everyone needs a break now and then.

We hope that the news, features, and photographs published over the summer session have kept our readers informed on the latest campus events and issues.

We hope that the letters to the editor, columns and editorials printed on Page Four have stimulated your thinking. Apparently they did or no one would have written letters.

The Daily Eastern News will resume publication on August 24, returning to a daily publication with the usual features and coverage that are present during the regular school year. Doonesbury and the daily crossword puzzles will return. The Associated Press teletype will again be activated and state and national news will become a part of the daily newspaper.

The editorial page will continue to be the common ground for all students and faculty to voice their opinions. If you can say what you're thinking in words, we are always willing to give you access to the press through the editorial page to communicate those ideas to the public.

Again, a note of thanks to all who lended their support during the summer, it has been greatly appreciated.

Knowledge and thought need balance

"Knowledge without thought is lesson lost, thought without knowledge is dangerous."

This quote, whose origin is unknown to me, states what I think are the two most prevalent problems among college students today, and indeed the public as a whole. It is my perhaps idealistic hope that by sharing this quote, the incidence of these two problems will decrease.

Examples of "knowledge without thought" are all around us here at Eastern and it is not unusual to hear a professor say so. It would seem that somewhere along the educational path of today's student, learning has been stressed at the expense of thought.

I know many people who can do algebra but can't solve a word problem, people who obtain the correct answer in chemistry or physics without caring to really understand their own work, and people who study history just for the sake of getting the names, dates and places correct on the test.

This mode of thought is so common among students that I know professors who feel they can't even give an exam that requires any real thought or concentration on the part of the student. "Students feel cheated if they not only have to know the material but think about it too", is a statement I've heard more than once. Knowledge without thought isn't just a problem, it's a tragedy.

Summer's gone already—where was I?

What? It's over already? You mean I can once again walk into the light of day, feel the warmth of a summer afternoon, and drink a beer in something other than a state of total exhaustion?

Jeez, what will I do with my time now that the last issue of the Summer Eastern News has rolled off the press?

I mean, where else but as an editor of a summer student publication can you exist for nearly three months without ever seeing the sun set? They tell me that dusk was at about 8 p.m. every night, and that the temperature rose to 90 degrees on several days. I never would have known it, being trapped here in the east wing of the Student Services Building.

Don't get me wrong, I've learned a lot this summer.

Number one, I have learned that sitting two feet from a TV screen (our electronic Video Display Terminals) will not damage my eyes like my mother always told me. Brain damage, maybe, but I can still see things as well as I always did.

Oh yes, and I have learned to survive on a few hours of sleep a night which isn't easy in the summer when classes are

Viewpoint:

Roger Bumgarner

Equally tragic is the high incidence of thought without knowledge.

I know people who think Eastern's proposed coal plant should be built with scrubbers, even though they don't know what scrubbers are or how they work. I know people are against anything connected with radioactivity, even though they know little or nothing about it and I know people who think all man-made chemicals are harmful, even though they know nothing about chemistry.

It seems to me that our educational philosophy has placed knowledge on the front burner and thought on the back, where as our political philosophy often does just the opposite.

College students represent a good portion of the future of this country and we owe it to ourselves and others to try to strike a more reasonable balance between these two extremes.

"Knowledge without thought is lesson lost, thought without knowledge is dangerous." Think about it.

Personal file:

Scott Fishel

long, classrooms are hot, and sleep seems to be tapping you on the shoulder every time you turn around.

I also believe that I have single-handedly supported the Canteen Vending Company with my constant supply of coins in their candy and pop machines down the hall from the office. Snickers bars (just like in the commercials) are a wonderful source of energy late into the evening when it is obvious that the paper won't be done for several more hours.

Just let me finish (a sigh of relief could be heard across the room) by thanking everyone involved in the paper this summer (shadows of the Academy awards).

If there was ever a summer that I would like to live over again, it would be this one. I hope everyone has enjoyed the Summer Eastern News as much as I have enjoyed working on it. See ya in the fall!

Your Turn

Keep abortion private

To the editor:

Roger Bumgarner is right (column, July 30). Abortion is not "one clear-cut issue." It has many facets: ethical, philosophical, theological, legal, medical, economic and social.

But as a political question—and that's what it has become, there is one issue and one issue only: Who is to make the decision for or against abortion—the pregnant woman or the state?

The Supreme Court has said, within certain limitations, it's a private matter for the woman to decide.

If the question of abortion has become a bore—and it has—it's because so many bystander preachers, priests, politicians and propagandists have turned what is a personal question into a political one.

Any pregnant woman knows the facts of her situation better than even the best-intentioned politician.

As for theological implications, only the religious convictions of the pregnant woman are relevant—not those of bystanders. Thanks to the Founding Fathers!

Voting rules deficient

I was happy to see the ground rules of the unionization election more clearly stated in Tuesday's paper. It is regrettable that hopes for a completely fair election depend on a turnout of high percentage. The election has the potential of being decided by the union's organizing committee as the rules are now.

The rules are not unfair, but rather deficient. They are not unfair because in an election, the majority decides. In this election the majority may not meet to vote. The deficiency, as I see it, is the absence of a rule requiring a minimum of participation to render any decision.

The unionists' howls can already be heard. It seems to me the remedy is simple. The Director of Personnel could call a meeting during working hours for purposes of the election. At the meeting ballots could be passed out and collected. This could assure a high turnout.

Certainly all of us should vote. In my opinion, we should reject the proposal by voting against union representation. There are a number of reasons for this, not the least of which is the shaky financial condition of the state of Illinois.

to decide on a speed limit.

"I've read the constitution 50 to 70 times and have never seen—45, 55, 65, 70—a speed limit in there," he said.

He claimed that the Congressional Commission on Mailing had "censored" a newsletter he had sent out to constituents under the congressional frank, which allows congressmen mass-mailing privileges without affixing postage to the letter.

Crane read a quote from House Speaker Tip O'Neill which he said was included in the newsletter.

The quote had O'Neill discussing how he had secured a $46 million grant for someone to investigate the possibility of increasing the average height of dwarves, which Crane said got "censored."

Officials from the franking commission said they do look over frank mailings, and said they did recall a "problem" with one of Crane's mailings.

Steve Williams, minority staff assistant at the commission in Washington, said if a "flagrant political partisan statement" appeared it was "possible" they would have censored it.

Joe Fisher, minority staff director, said they "try to police" the mailings for "any partisan reference," and he doubted if the commission would have "given the OK to send that (quote) out."

He said there are Republican and Democratic staff members who look at all the letters "to see if they are frankable."

Fisher said the frank "is not free mailing," but that money is allotted to the Postal Service for the mailings by Congress.

Pattin to coach Kansas University sluggers

by Dan Brannan

Marty Pattin, a star pitcher for Eastern in the early 60s, and a pitcher for 14 years in the majors, was named head baseball coach at Kansas University Tuesday morning.

Pattin, 38, will replace Floyd Temple, who is moving up to assistant athletic director after 28 years of being head baseball coach.

Pattin holds many records at Eastern like most strikeouts in a single game, most strikeouts in a season and most victories in a season.

Pattin's record for most strikeouts in a single game is 22, his record for most strikeouts in a season is 130 and his most victories in one season record is 10.

Pattin also wound up with a 114-109 career record in the majors.

He played for Boston, Milwaukee, Seattle and Kansas City during his major league career.

His final pitching appearance was in the 1980 World Series against Philadelphia, in which he struck out both Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt of the Phillies.

"I think Marty will do fine as head baseball coach at Kansas University," Eastern baseball coach Tom McDevitt said Wednesday. "I think they made a very good choice in selecting him."

McDevitt said, at this time the Kansas job was probably one of the two top head coaching jobs available in baseball in the United States.

"I'm tickled to death for him to get the job," McDevitt said.

Summer intramurals end; tourney champions listed

by Mike Prizy

Eastern's 1981 summer intramural program came to a conclusion Tuesday night in McAfee Gymnasium with the men's basketball championship game.

In the championship game, the Blues Brothers beat the Condors, 57-39.

To get to the final game, Blues Brothers defeated the Thoroughbreds 72-38 and the Condors defeated the Phi Sigs 56-40.

In other championship play that concluded earlier in the week, Larry Brown and Philip Lynn beat Jim Palmer and Ron Cowan, 6-3, 6-4 for the men's tennis doubles title.

In singles play, Keith Brock-Jones was declared the champion by forfeit.

Brock-Jones defeated Philip Lynn 6-1, 6-4 in the semi-finals to advance to the championship match.

In racquetball, the men's singles championship went to Randy Krizmanich.

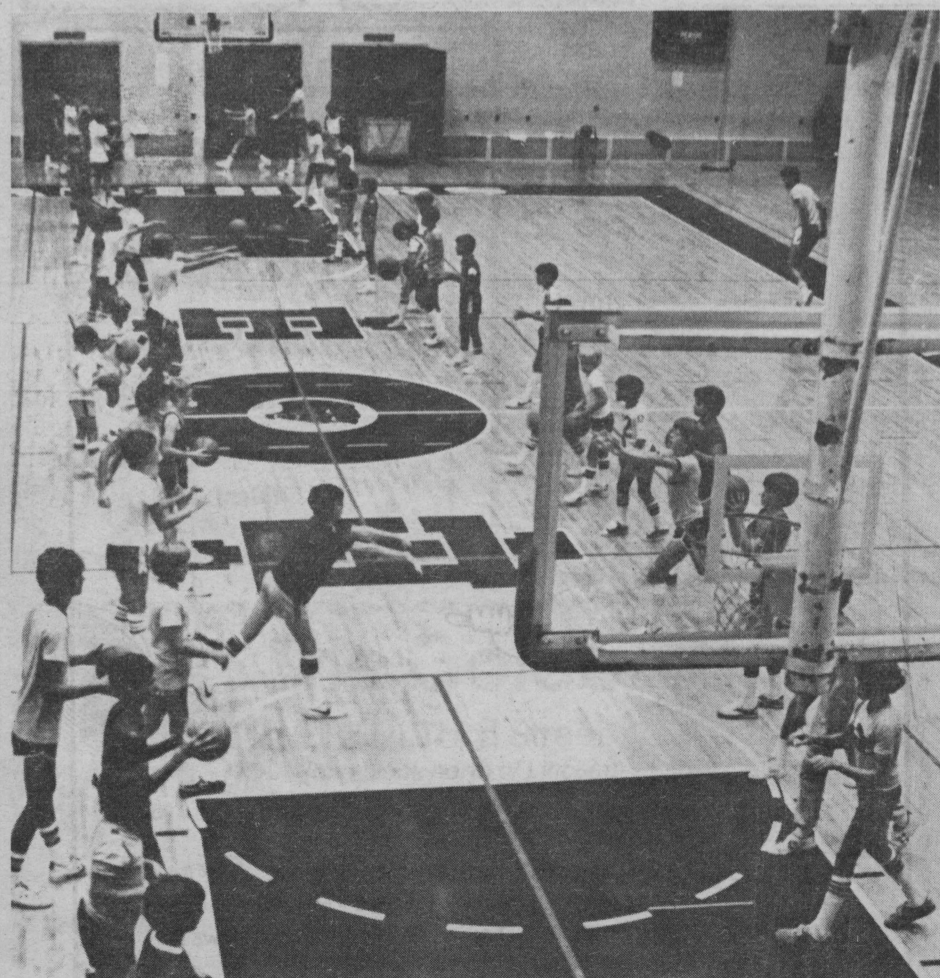

Krizmanich beat Delemar Rodrigues 21-5, 21-10.

Jeff Koger and Greg Glotzbach beat Fernando Beer and Delemar Rodrigues 21-17, 21-13 for the men's doubles championship.

Pat Smith defeated Robyn Gourley 21-5, 21-3 for the women's singles championship in raquetball.

Eels and Snakes became the co-rec softball champions by defeating the Zippers in two out of three games.

In co-rec volleyball, Last Chance was declared the champions. Last Chance was the only undefeated team with a 12-0 record.

Gridders report to workout camp in preparation for 1981 season

by Dan Brannan

About 130 to 140 gridders are expected to report to camp at Eastern Aug. 12, to begin two-day workouts in preparation for the 1981 season, assistant head coach Chuck Dickerson said Wednesday.

Dickerson said the Panthers are going to be a very young team this year.

"We have a very young football team, so we will have to work very hard in camp," Dickerson said.

For the first three days, Eastern will work out in shorts, then they will start using pads.

"It is a requirement by the NCAA, that we work out in shorts for the first three days," Dickerson said. "After that we will start going in pads."

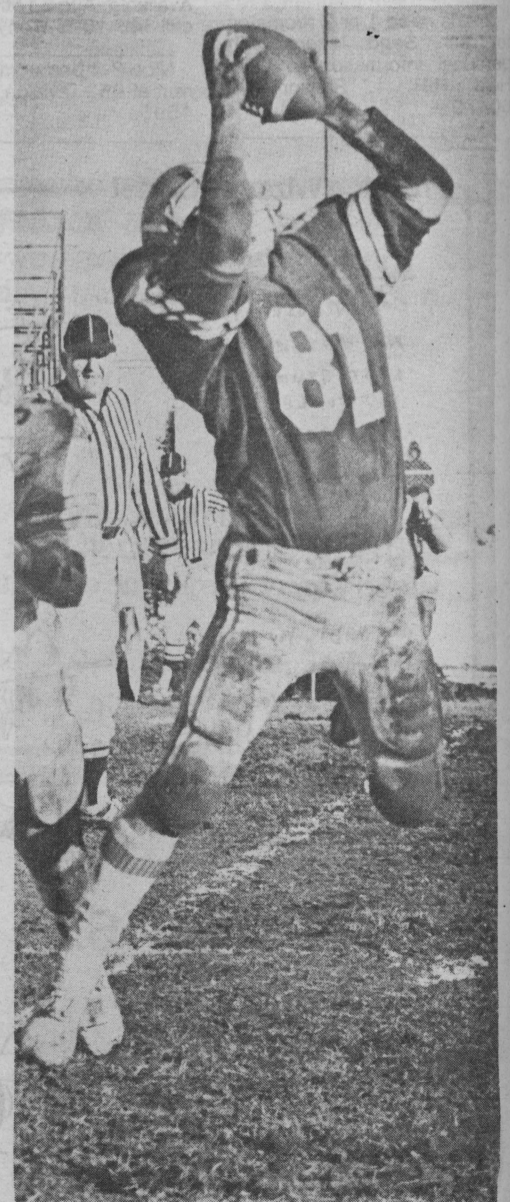

The football players will break camp Aug. 22.

Dickerson said the top returnees on offense are quarterback Jeff Christensen, tight end Rob Mehalic, running back Kevin Staple and center Scott Gilleland.

On defense, Dickerson said the top people returning are defensive backs Kevin Gray and Kevin Jones, linebackers Ira Jefferson, Tom Murray and Bill Mines along with defensive lineman Keith Wojnowski.

Dickerson said all of the other positions on offense and defense are open.

"We graduated 22 people last year, so that leaves all those positions up for grabs," Dickerson said.
