Laible awaits approval from BOG for appointment as A & S dean

by Linda Fraembs

A new dean of arts and sciences will be appointed today, marking the end of a year-and-a-half long search.

Jon Laible needs only the approval of the Board of Governors to become the new dean.

President Daniel E. Marvin Jr. said he will recommend Laible for the position at the BOG meeting today in Springfield.

"I expect the board will ratify that recommendation," Marvin said.

Laible has been acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences since Lawrence Ringenberg retired from the position last summer.

"I think he'll do a super job," Marvin said. "He's been acting dean for a year, and a good one."

Shirley Moore, chairman of the search committee, said Marvin's recommendation was made after he received information from the search committee on the finalists.

"The president requested that the search committee provide a narrative on each of the six candidates," Moore said.

Although the committee did not rank the applicants, Moore said they "did explain that some were unacceptable."

The first committee to find a new dean was formed "nearly two years ago," Marvin said.

That committee disbanded when they failed to submit more than one candidate for Marvin's approval, he added.

Marvin said the second search committee was selected last fall.

Moore said each finalist went through interviews with various campus groups and individuals, and that the interviews went "really well."

"I think each of these candidates had a real good shot," she added.

Other finalists were James Quivey of Eastern's English department, Michael Riley of the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, Joan Teters of the University of Arkansas at Monticello, John Gamble of Behrend College of Pennsylvania State University, and Fritz Koenig of the University of Northern Iowa.

TV-radio director selected

by Cathy Crist

John Beabout, of Kutztown State College in Pennsylvania, was recently appointed TV-radio director of the proposed communication facility, University Relations Director Ken Hesler said.

Beabout was appointed May 28 by the TV-radio director search committee.

Four candidates were interviewed for the director position during April and May. The proposed TV-radio station will be located in Buzzard Educational Building.

Hesler said the new director will have to develop the entire project, which will involve planning the budget, purchasing equipment, hiring a staff and programming.

Since the center is still in the planning stages, Beabout will have the responsibility of getting the communications program going, Hesler said.

The area in Buzzard has to be remodeled, the studios and control rooms have to be built, the programs coordinated and the equipment purchased, Hesler said.

No major changes will be made until the fall semester because it is a "big renovation process," he added.

"I think he is an outstanding candidate and I am very optimistic about the project," Hesler said.

"We are starting with just a director and a secretary now, and we will add an engineer later on," he said.

Beabout said he is currently working on preliminary plans for the center and will eventually present a detailed plan to the university.

"I want to get input from students and faculty and with these reactions I will know more where to go," he said.

Beabout said he expects the TV and radio programming will eventually reach the community and in three to five years be quite extensive.

Beabout said he gained his experience in a similar position at Kutztown. He is currently the chairman of the department of telecommunications and interim director of the radio-TV facilities at the school.

Search committee member and student body President Bob Glover said, "I'm really glad he accepted the position because he more or less started from scratch at Kutztown and he seems to know what Eastern needs."

Beabout said he and his family will arrive in Charleston on July 13 to begin work.

"We've already received many letters from the community and from professors welcoming us to Charleston," he added.

Beabout said he is originally from the Midwest and is looking forward to moving back to the area.

He is a graduate of Ohio University and did post-graduate study at Purdue University.

WELH closes down for summer

by Cathy Crist

Floyd Merrit, speech communications department chairman, said that due to staff problems and an inadequate budget, the campus radio station WELH will not be broadcasting this summer.

"Although we had talked about the possibility of broadcasting this summer, WELH has never operated in past summers because of the traditional problems of staff and budget," he said.

Greg Moore, graduate assistant and former WELH station manager, said this summer several complications will be "cleaned up" before operations begin in the fall.

He said the equipment from Liberty Cable TV has arrived and will be installed this summer.

The cable equipment will allow the station to broadcast in the Charleston community and will give the residence halls better reception, Merrit said.

Moore said the contract with Liberty Cable has not been officially signed yet and is now "just a matter of legalities and is in the hands of the lawyers."

"This summer we will do test broadcasting on the cable system and seek advertisers so everything will be set for the fall," he said.

The Apportionment Board provided $4,650 in funding for the equipment and installation through student activity fees last February.

Another change in the station will be the reorganization of the Communications Board. Representatives of the station met with Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin on April 30 to discuss supervisory control of the station.

Moore said a committee has been set up to decide the organization and structuring of the Communications Board.

"We may have something like a full-time adviser who would not teach any classes," he said.

Merrit said the Communications Board will be structured before the fall, but he is not yet sure of the details.

"I believe we will have more of a balance between students and faculty members," he said.

Frank Parcells, the radio station's adviser, is taking a leave of absence for the 1981-82 school year. Anthony Osequera of the speech communications department will be working in his place.

Bid opening on June 30, kiln construction pending

by Becky Suprenant

Documents for bidding on the $97,100 kiln shed at Eastern have gone out but Barb Reynolds of the Illinois Capital Development Board said no bids had been received as of Wednesday.

"Most bids don't come in until the day of the bid opening or a couple days before," Reynolds said.

She added that most construction firms wait until the latest possible date because the suppliers want to give the most current prices.

The new kiln shed will replace a shed which exploded last April due to a student operating error.

In March, groups involved in the construction of the kiln met to decide if the kiln would be attached to the Fine Arts Building or would be a separate pole barn type shed.

Ignazito said the shed would be "essentially attached" but would not comment on who made that decision.

Dick Sandberg of Brown, Davis, Mullins & Associates, the engineering firm which is designing the shed said in March that the shed was originally designed as a separate building until it was discovered that construction would require stronger materials, sending the project above its $97,100 budget.

Ignazito said "the present configuration" is the less expensive of the two alternatives.

The plans are "consistent with the safety codes and consistent with the budgeted funds," he said.

The kiln area was cited for violations in 1975 by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration but Ignazito said to his knowledge there was no time requirements for repairs.

Marvin makes visit to Asia to aid exchange program

by Becky Suprenant

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin recently visited universities in Korea, Taiwan and Mainland China to establish a working relationship for the future exchange of faculty and students between the institutions.

"With the trip we hoped to increase the rate of exchange students who wish to come to the university," Marvin said.

Eastern has approximately 160 exchange students from foreign countries with the largest single group, about 43 or 44 students, coming from the Far East.

"This exchange agreement provides Eastern with a lot of opportunity," Marvin said.

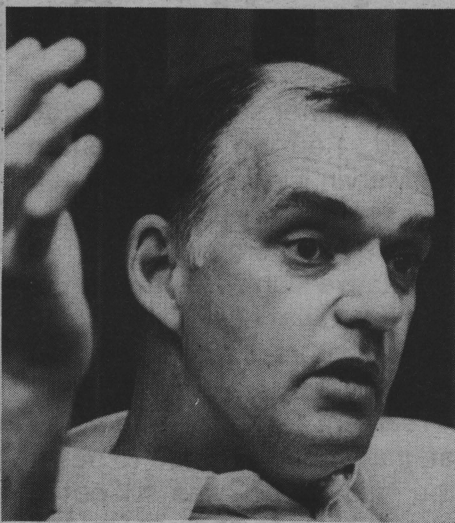

"We hope to build the exchange population into a large enough group to provide us with the basics for a Chinese curriculum," he added.

The course possibilities would include Chinese language, literature, arts and philosophy. "The benefits would be great because we do not have these courses presently in our curriculum," Marvin said.

The exchange agreement is "extremely helpful to the institution, faculty and the students," he added.

Professors and students, particularly graduate students, are part of the exchange program.

Marvin received an honorary doctorate of literature from Hanyang University in Seoul, Korea in recognition for his devotion to the development of higher education, and his contribution to the friendly relations and educational cooperation between the Republic of Korea and the United States.

Marvin also visited universities in Mainland China and Taiwan to re-establish exchange agreements with those countries.

"We have an exchange agreement with the three universities in one stage or another of development," Marvin said.

Marvin was accompanied on his trip by Eastern's political science professor Chen Yung Ping, Eastern's foreign student adviser Brigitte Chen, and his wife.

Add-drop lines continue

All students who wish to add or drop a class may continue to do so June 18 and 22.

Add-drop lines for all students will run from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday June 18 in the University Old Ballroom, Michael Taylor, coordinator of registration said.

Monday June 22, the add-drop lines will be in the registration operations room in McAfee Gym between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., he said.

Taylor added that pass-fail cards can be picked up in the southeast basement of McAfee Gym and may be deposited there also. The deadline for pass-fail cards is Monday June 22.

Access ramps progress

by Becky Suprenant

The bulk of the construction being done to make Eastern more accessible to the handicapped should be completed in July, Marty Ignazito, assistant physical plant manager, said Wednesday.

"The work is scheduled to be finished in July and most of it will be but some of it could run well into winter," he said. The elevator being constructed on the south side of Old Main will probably be the last part finished, Ignazito added.

Also, corridors in Old Main are being made accessible to the elevator, he said.

"Most of the curb cuts and outside access ramps are in," he said. "Ramps could possibly be added to Buzzard House but we're not sure yet."

The library is in the process of having corridors widened and ramps constructed, Ignazito said.

"Some areas of the library were not accessible for the handicapped to get to the elevators without going through office areas," he added.

Senate change for the better?

At the close of last semester, the student senate made some changes in the bylaws which governed the summer student senate. The changes more clearly define the duties and responsibilities of the summer senate.

This action was necessary and long overdue.

We commend the senate for taking the initiative and revising the bylaws, but must add a note of caution since the changes are as yet untested. Students will have to wait and see how effective the revisions are before judgment can be passed. It is certain that something had to be done.

In past summers, the senate was treated as a joke by both members and non-members because of its ineffectiveness in passing measures and cavalier attitude toward meetings. None of this did much to enhance the senate's reputation.

The major stumbling block facing past senates was the former bylaw which stated that all summer senate actions had to be voted on for approval by the senate in the fall.

This impotency frustrated the senate, and can possibly explain why the summer 1979 senate voted to rename the Martin Luther King, Jr. University Union in honor of Mao Tse-Tung; and to rename the Fine Arts Center Playroom in honor of Bruce Morriss, a student at that time.

That same year the summer senate appointed "the Ayatollah Fred Ferrone" to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin's job.

In an article which appeared in the Eastern News August 5, 1980, former Board of Governors Representative Terry Teele said the summer senate was "powerless" and would remain so until senators were elected specifically for the summer term.

Student Body President Bob Glover pointed out that in the past, if a student wanted to be on the senate "all he had to do was fill out a petition," which was subject to approval by the senators who were attending summer school.

This practice has stopped, and now only regularly elected senators are eligible to serve on the senate in the summer.

The senate's bylaw revisions are a good idea, but fall short of being ideal. The senate is still powerless to pass any legislation during the summer, so in effect it still does nothing. But Glover said the bylaws say the senate will more or less be a "research committee" which will "discuss things to be implemented this fall." At least they are admitting the fact that the summer senate can pass no measures. They should also look to holding elections for summer senate and allowing the senate some powers other than as a research committee.

Your Turn

Parents deserve the choice of abortion

To the editor:

Our custom each Mother's Day and Father's Day to honor women who are proud and willing parents deserves applause. The custom does not, however, remind us of parents who are so desperate they use violence against their children.

Each year 1.2 million American children are abused by their parents. Three-thousand children are physically abused, 100,000 are sexually abused, 2,000 are murdered and 7,000 are abandoned.

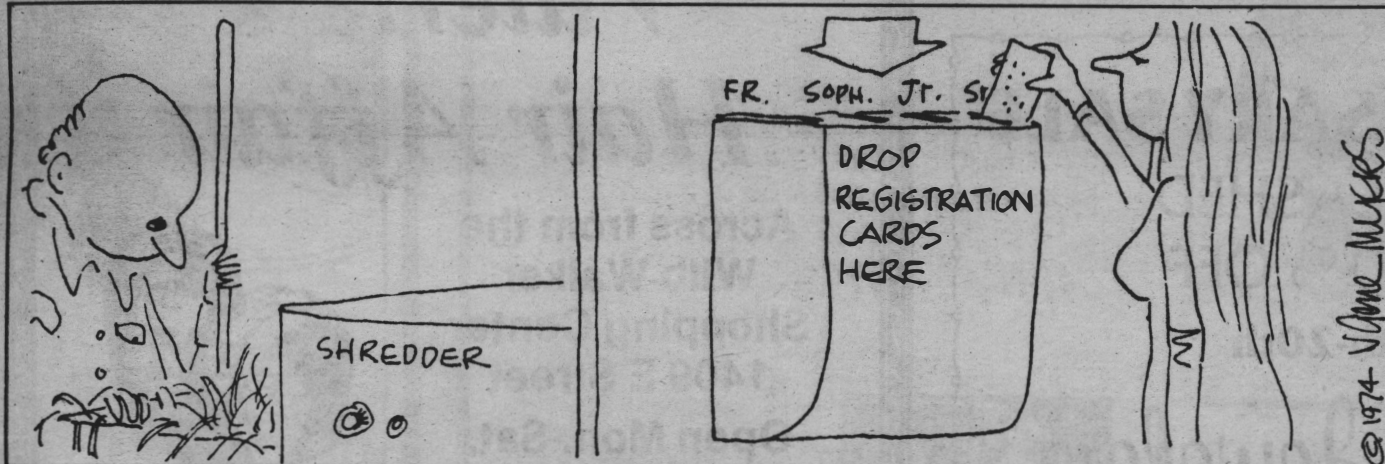

Based on knowledge of human needs, one of the most valuable benefits of legal abortion is that it reduces the incidence of unwanted children, thereby reducing the abuse and deprivation inflicted by parents on children—particularly males—in our society.

Yet the no-choice minority wants to ban all abortions. If their mad campaign to grant "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" to a fertilized egg is successful, women and children in crisis situations will lose their traditional protection of that same fundamental constitutional rights. For how can children find happiness and enjoy liberty when adults inflict them with pain and deprive them of physical affection?

Something is wrong with people in a pluralistic society who hold women and children hostage to a fertilized egg. Something is wrong with people who punish women and men for sexuality. Something is wrong with people who turn their backs on the suffering of women and children, whose consciousness and personhood and human rights are beyond question. Something is wrong with women and men who have unwanted children; something is wrong with women and men who want to force them to it while professing a deep concern for human life.

Let's honor parenthood, but let's be sane about it. Let women and men become mothers and fathers voluntarily or not at all. Let all children know the happiness of being wanted, cared for and loved. Let's make it possible for all our nation's children to grow to be loving, non-violent adults. Something is wrong when we do less.

Future holds last year's mistakes

This is the first column I've ever written for the Eastern News so I plan to do something out of the ordinary. I'm going to share with the readers my amazing psychic powers and, in the middle of June, predict what one can expect during the coming school year. I suggest that the skeptical reader cut this column out and come next May, see how well I've done. I will seal my own copy in a Pepsi bottle and bury it in front of Old Main, to be dug up on graduation night.

As I peer into the future, I see a variety of things. Let me start with my predictions on this year's dorm life.

It's late August, 1981. While Eastern's finest achievement in recent years, the Tarble Arts Center, is being busily worked on, the dorms are over-crowded. Students are sleeping four in rooms designed for three, five in rooms designed for four and four or five in rooms designed as lounges.

My clairvoyance tells me these students will sleep with electric blankets on in the summer and windows open in winter. Why will they do this? Because the air conditioning will be too cold and the heating too hot. I also see the director of the Physical Plant complaining about those energy gluttonous students while his workers tell students the heat can't be turned down.

My supernatural eyes now turn toward the dorm cafeterias, where the food looks pretty good. However, my supernatural stomach tells me that looks can be deceiving and soon leads me out for fresh air.

Wait! I've picked up on something. Something about elections. It's getting clearer...I see a headline. It reads, "Low voter turn-out follows overdramatized, mud slinging campaign." Just below that story is one that says, "At least one election rule broken, several complaints filed." Yes, this year's campaigns will be overdone and overly melodramatic. This will be somewhat comical because at the polls massive apathy will demonstrate the fact that no one really cares anyway.

Viewpoint:

I'm getting impressions of what can be expected from the Greeks this year. I see many parties and a lot of drunken rowdiness. I see some complaints to the police by townspeople who live next to frat houses and I see a few questionable greek-related incidents being reported in the Eastern News. I also see a flurry of letters to the editor reminding us of all the wonderful things greeks do.

Further in the future is a visit from Brother Jed Smock. Jed will inform us that we are all going to hell, call us vipers, snakes and heathens and bring his interpretation of the Bible to anyone foolish enough to listen. I see a lot of fools gathered around Jed this year gaining entertainment by poking fun at a guy who would go away if nobody chose to bother with him.

This year's library will be too noisy to study in, except for early in the day and very late at night. This year's student will be as ill-prepared for finals as he was last year. This year's faculty will still be unhappy with their contract and this year's classes will still be over-crowded.

If this year's future sounds like a repeat of last year's mistakes, then perhaps I have made my point. I sincerely hope that this year will be the beginning of a change for the better at Eastern, but I fear it will be one big deja vu.

Letter Policy

The editorial staff of the Summer Eastern News encourages readers to submit letters to the editor to be published on Page Four. Submit your letter by noon two days before the date you wish it to appear.

The name and phone number of at least one author must be submitted with the letter. Letters submitted without a name (or with a pseudonym) will not be published. Names are withheld upon request.

Letters should be typewritten and not exceed 250 words.

Largest number apply for on-campus housing

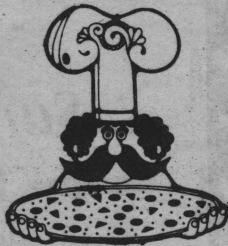

The largest number of residence hall applications ever received have been for fall 1981, Director of Housing Hencken said. Approximately 6,500 applications received in March with only 4,500 accepted, he added. There is only room enough for students," Hencken said. About 75 percent of the students leaving the residence halls last semester applied for housing for Hencken said. "This is the number ever of returning students." In March, there were approximately 100 residence hall applications on the waiting list, he said. One hundred cancellations is an average amount," he said. "Of the 500, about half will move off-campus and the other half won't be coming back." As cancellations come in, students on the waiting list are notified of the openings, Hencken said, and the rooms are then filled. "Cost, convenience, hall activities, the Residence Hall Association and possibly the housing office are the reasons for the increase in applications," Hencken added. "Hopefully the addition of cable will help too." Hencken does not feel the rising cost of campus housing has caused students to move into apartments.

Scientist begins lectures

The first in a series of lectures titled "Our Evolving Universe" will be presented by George Schweitzer at 7 p.m Monday in the library lecture hall. The lectures will continue from June 23 through the 25 and June 29 through July 2. The eight lectures are interrelated, but each can be heard individually without confusion. Schweitzer is currently a scientist and philosopher who has published over 120 papers in chemistry. He has also written numerous articles on the intersecting spheres of science, philosophy and religion. He has three doctorates, one from the University of Illinois in chemistry, one from New York University in philosophy and a Doctor of Science for work in the history of science at Columbia University.

WELCOME CLASS OF '85

As you tour the campus and Pre-register for your fall courses, don't overlook an opportunity for financial assistance and professional advancement. The Eastern Army ROTC program offers valuable training in Leadership and Management as well as the opportunity to compete for 4 yr Illinois ROTC tuition scholarships. Pre-registering for MSC 1001 can get you started, now. Ask your counselor to include MSC 1001: Introduction to Military Science, on your schedule. He can also provide you with an ROTC State Scholarship application. Or stop by the ROTC office at 126-S Buzzard Ed Bldg. for an application. Don't miss this opportunity to enhance your future and lower the costs of your education.

Oruwari wins 110 high hurdles in Division II

by Dan Brannan

Before the NCAA Division II meet started, Eastern high hurdler Augustine Oruwari wasn't even in the picture at all to win his event, but he surprised a lot of people and went on to win his speciality in a time of 13.90.

"I didn't expect to win at all before the meet started," Oruwari said. "After I won my heats in the prelims and semi-finals I then began to get the idea that I could win it."

This was Oruwari's fourth trip to the nationals, and only once in those four trips did he place.

During his freshman year in 1978, he managed a sixth place finish which earned him All-American honors.

Oruwari was plagued with injuries in his three previous trips to the nationals.

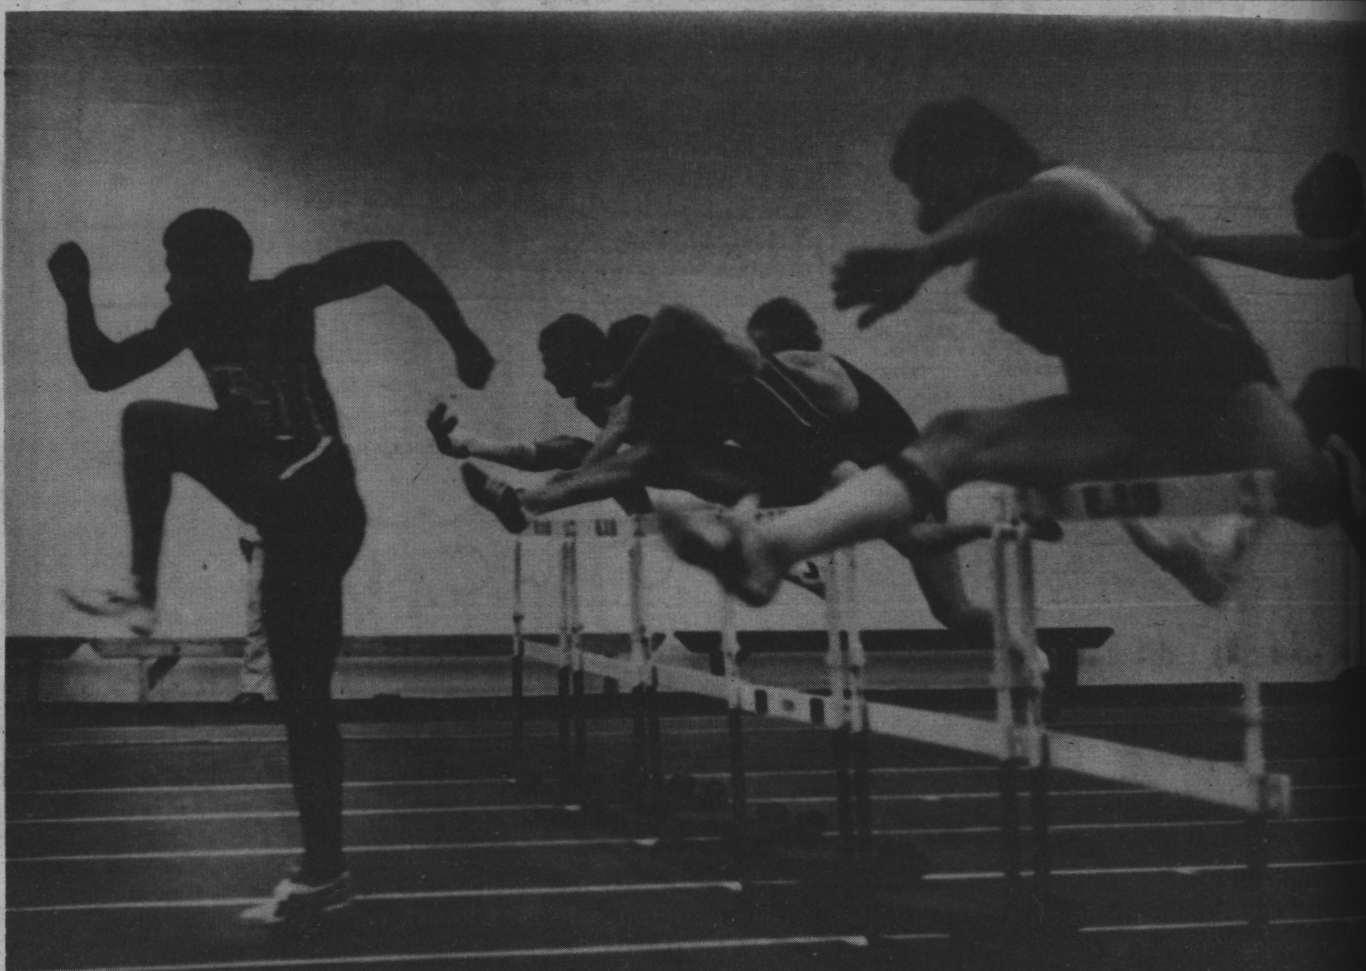

"This was the only year I was healthy before the nationals," Oruwari said.

Oruwari began his schooling in Nigeria, and finished up high school in London.

In 1976, he made the Nigerian Olympic Team in the 110 meter high hurdles with a electric time of 13.65 in the trials.

Oruwari never quite completed his dream of competing in the Olympics as Nigeria pulled out right before the games started.

He then attended Loughborough

Eastern high hurdler Augustine Oruwari strides out ahead of the pack in a race held at Lantz Fieldhouse earlier in the year. Oruwari claimed first place honors in the NCAA Division II 110 meter high hurdles with a time of 13.90 (News file photo)

College for one year.

After that, Oruwari made his way to Eastern to do undergraduate work in physical education.

He received his degree in May, and is now working on his Master's of Science in Physical Education.

Someday, he would like to coach at the college level. He also wants to compete this summer in Europe and Nigeria.

"I would like to run in the African Championships this summer and qualify for the World Cup in September," Oruwari said.

If he qualifies for the World Cup, it may be his last competitive meet, he added.

Baseball team owners need compensation

Last Friday a tragedy hit America: the major league baseball players finally began their long talked about strike.

The players' decision to strike caused much rage around the country with baseball fans, and it put many hotel and restaurant owners, along with many other people, temporarily out of business.

So far, there has been little progress in talks between the representatives of the striking players and the owners.

Viewpoint: Dan Brannan

The disagreement between the two sides has to do with the matter of compensation for the signing of free agents.

Under the players' plan, instead of getting a player from the team that signed a quality free agent, the team that lost the free agent could opt for an amateur draft selection or a player from a 26-team pool of players.

The pool players would come from the clubs' 40-man rosters. The owners have continued to insist on the concept of a player-for-a-player obtained directly from the team that signed the free agent.

The owners have also proposed having the signing team protect 15 or 18 players, depending on the ranking of the free agent, leaving all other players in its organization available as compensation.

Under the player's plan, to be a quality free agent, a player would have to be selected by 10 or more clubs in the free agent draft and he would have to meet certain appearance levels.

The owners simply want to rank all of the players according to their plate and pitching appearances, and the top half would be ranking and require compensation.

At this point, it looks like the strike may last for a long period of time.

A long strike may cause many fans to stay away from the ball park when play resumes.

Already the fans are bitter about the dispute, and many are putting their time into other sports like tennis, golf and boxing.

Personally, I am on the owner's side of this disagreement because I think there should be a player-for-a-player form of compensation obtained directly from the team that signs the free agent.

I don't think a team that is not even involved in signing a free agent should have to give up any players, so I disagree with the players in that respect.

I also do not think the player should have to be taken by 10 teams in the free agent draft to be considered for compensation.

I think anytime an owner signs a free agent, the other team should be compensated regardless if the player was taken by 10 teams in the free agent draft.

If the owners are not compensated player-for-a-player when one of their free agents is signed, after awhile their teams will be stripped of all quality players.

This will result in a few teams with all of the quality player's and the rest of the teams lacking talent.

Several owners like George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees have already started to do this.

Steinbrenner has acquired practically his whole team by the free agent system.

I think it is time something should be done about this, and even though, like everyone else, I hate the strike, I hope the owner's hold out as long as they have to to get the players to accept their proposals.

Tennis tourney slated in Charleston Saturday

by Mike Przy

An adult open tennis tournament is scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday at Southeast Park which is located about one half mile south of Illinois 16 on Illinois 130 in Charleston.

The tournament is sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association and there will be three categories of play for men and two categories for women.

For the men categories there will be open, 35-44, and 45 and older.

For the women categories there will be open and 35 and older.

Singles and doubles matches will be played in all categories except in the men's 45 and older which will have singles matches only.

This year will be the third year for the tournament.

Last year's tournament drew 90 competitors and at least that many entries are expected for this year's tourney.

At last year's tournament, Steve Mastio of Eastern Illinois University won the men's open and Jackie Bennan of Galesburg, Ill. won the women's open.

Deadline for entries is 5 p.m. Friday.

More information can be obtained by contacting Bob Barford at 902 1st. St. in Charleston or phoning 345-9653.
