New language requirements to be reviewed

by Audrey B. Dumentat

Eastern undergraduate students could face a foreign language requirement in the future.

The Task Force on International Education decided Wednesday the issue should be included when guidelines for internationalizing Eastern's curriculum are discussed, Task Force Chairman Wolfgang Schlauch said.

However, he added even if the task force decides to support a foreign language requirement, it probably would not be implemented for several semesters.

In October 1979, the Council on Academic Affairs discussed the possibility of instituting a foreign language requirement for Eastern students, but the proposal was defeated by the CAA that November.

Almost all other universities in Illinois have some sort of language requirement, Gerald Carr, German instructor and task force member, said.

Before a foreign language requirement could be implemented at Eastern, the proposal would have to be approved by the Council on Academic Affairs and Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin.

In other business, task force members decided to form two subcommittees to study the various areas of international education.

One subcommittee will deal with the possibility of a foreign language requirement, the internationalization of the curriculum and the revival of the study abroad programs, Schlauch said.

The other subcommittee will study the administrative structure, exchange programs for faculty and ways of attracting more foreign students to Eastern, he added.

The task force, one of four university-wide academic planning committees, was set up by Stanley Rives, vice-president for academic affairs, to provide guidelines and suggestions for Eastern's curriculum.

Students to complete early enrollment soon

by Amy Iglehart

Students who preregistered for spring semester will need to complete early enrollment beginning Monday in the Union Ballroom.

To complete early enrollment, students must bring a student ID and tuition and fee payments.

Total tuition and service fees for full-time students who are Illinois residents will be $561.60 for lower-division undergraduates (freshmen and sophomores); $585.60 for upper-division undergraduates (juniors and seniors); and $627.60 for graduate students.

Students may report to register anytime after their scheduled time, but not before. The deadline for completing early enrollment is 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Failure to complete early enrollment will result in cancellation of scheduled spring classes.

The registration schedule is determined according to the first letter of a student's last name.

Seminar enrollments on upswing

by Nancy Bridges

Enrollment in the newly instituted senior seminars has been low this semester, but Eastern officials said Tuesday enrollment will rise as students who are required to take a seminar reach senior status.

All students who entered Eastern in summer semester 1981 or later are required to take a senior seminar, Stephen Whitley, coordinator of the senior seminars, said. The prerequisite for the seminars is 75 semester hours, he added.

Currently, about 10 students are enrolled in each of the four seminars being offered, Whitley said.

Stanley Rives, vice president for academic affairs, said he was not satisfied with the enrollment, but added that enrollment will rise as the students who are required to take a seminar obtain the required hours.

Rives said he and other officials involved with the seminars are gaining experience and preparing for the "onslaught" of students in the 1984-85 school year, which is when the students who are required to take the seminar will become seniors.

Jon Laible, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, said he supports the idea of "broadening" students' curriculum through the seminars. "It's a good concept," he said.

Because the seminar is required to be outside students' majors, "everyone has the same disadvantage or advantage," he added.

Four senior seminars have been offered this fall, Whitley said. They are titled "Art as an Image Maker," "In Search of the Ideal Education," "Technology in Society" and "Impact of Biology on Society."

The seminars do not rely only on textbooks, Whitley said. The nature of the courses makes it almost impossible to use just one book, he added.

Janina Darling, who teaches "Art as an Image Maker," said her class uses library books instead of textbooks. "The course is too diversified for any one textbook," she added.

Whitley, who teaches "Impact of Biology on Society," said one of the problems he found with the seminars was with vocabulary.

Because the students enrolled in his seminar are from majors other than biology, they are unfamiliar with some of the terminology, he said. In discussions, terms come up unexpectedly, he added.

Whitley said he also had some difficulty planning the course in detail because of the discussion format.

"It is difficult to predict exactly what will be covered in the discussion," he said.

However, Darling said the discussion format is one of the strong points of the seminars. "Discussion can go in any direction the students want it to," she said.

Darling said she supports the concept behind the seminars. "It is very good for people in science, for example, to learn about art."

Frank Trocki, who teaches "Technology in Society," said the class was "very enjoyable, the students give a different perspective."

Some students taking the seminars had a positive impression of the new requirement, although they are taking the seminars as electives rather than as requirements.

Jim Wolff, a marketing major, is enrolled in the biology seminar. "It teaches you a little bit more about things you wouldn't know about," he said.

The seminar uses articles from magazines such as "Newsweek" and "Science Weekly," Wolff said.

Jackie O'Brien, an administrative office management major enrolled in "Technology in Society" said she liked the discussion format because "we got a lot of feedback from everybody else and could see other people's viewpoints."

To preserve the informal discussion, she suggested seminars should have a set limit on the number of

NASA finds faults in space suits

SPACE CENTER, Houston—NASA engineers have tentatively concluded that an oxygen pressure regulator in one failed space suit was improperly assembled and that the breakdown of a high-speed fan in a second suit was a "fluke," sources say.

If the conclusions are true the problem with the suits should be easily corrected, clearing the way of a spacewalk on the sixth shuttle flight, now scheduled for late January, the source told the Associated Press.

Thompson wants hikes, control to solve decline in tax revenues

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., (AP)—Gov. James R. Thompson will ask the Illinois General Assembly to raise liquor taxes and give him broad budget-cutting authority to keep the state financially afloat, it was disclosed Wednesday.

In a letter to Democratic state Senate President Philip J. Rock of Oak Park, Thompson said the emergency legislation is needed so officials can cope with a sharp decline in estimated tax revenue.

Recent estimates from the Legislation's Economic and Fiscal Commission are nearly $200 million below previous Thompson administration figures on how much money the state will collect this year for its $8.2 billion general fund.

In seeking to make up the $200 million shortfall, Thompson told Rock he planned to ask lawmakers to boost liquor taxes, a move he said would bring $12 million into the state treasury this fiscal year.

The governor also told the Senate Democratic leader in the letter that he wants to speed up collection of utility taxes for an extra $34 million this year.

In addition, Thompson said he will seek authority—unprecedented in Illinois—to cut the budget approved by the legislation.

A Democratic Senate staff source, who asked not to be named, said Thompson would use such power to trim the $14.2 billion budget 2 percent across-the-board.

The bulk of those cuts could be expected to come in education and welfare, which make up the major portion of general funds spending.

In his letter to Rock, the governor threatened to call the Legislation back into special session to deal with the budget crisis if the special measures are not approved.

Thompson's letter, dated today, was released by Democratic staff aides.

Hotels offer blizzard insurance

CHICAGO, (AP)—Commuters who may be stranded downtown by big snows this winter can get in from out of the cold with hotel offers of blizzard insurance, having a "St. Bernard's Special" or getting a free room with an overcoat purchase.

The Richmond Hotel offers a snow-flaky $49 insurance policy covering the months of December through March.

"Commuters who can't get home will be guaranteed a room on each and every night when six inches of snow have fallen in an eight-hour period," says general manager Micheal Harney. "If it doesn't snow enough all winter, the policyholder can apply the $49 later toward a room the regular single rate is $66."

Harney said Tuesday he already has sold 15 policies.

Carly Ostrinder, a forecast for the National Weather Service in suburban Rosemont, pointed out that only once in the December through March period last year was the level of six inches of snow exceeded in a day.

The Ambassador East is offering a "St. Bernard Special" for $72 per night—a figure chosen because 72 degrees is the average winter temperature in Honolulu.

Tylenol suspect in padded cell

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Kevin John Masterson, the mechanic held for questioning in the seven Chicago-area Tylenol poisonings, spent the night in a padded cell after becoming enraged, smashing his toilet and scuffling with a jailer, police said today.

Masterson "got rather emotionally upset because a few of the other prisoners were talking about" his possible connection to the seven cyanide deaths police spokesman Lt. Dan Cook said.

Masterson later was transferred to the county criminal courts building to await Municipal Court arraignment on an unrelated Illinois charge of marijuana possession, Cooke said.

Masterson, 35, surrendered for questioning in the Tylenol case Monday and was expected to waive extradition and submit to a lie detector test in Illinois.

He was sought by Chicago authorities because of statements he allegedly made about the seven deaths from cyanide-tainted capsules of Extra Strength Tylenol.

Joseph F. McQuaid, and Jeff Hayes, two special agents with the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation, questioned Masterson Tuesday night, Cook said.

"I think I understand it, yes," the sandy-haired Masterson said as the judge allowed him to read through the formal waiver he had just signed.

"Once again, do you waive extradition?" asked Municipal Court Judge Micheal A. Tyran.

"Yes," replied Masterson, wearing a brown, open-neck T-shirt.

Gubernatorial recount

Stevenson gains votes in Coles County

by Len Krasnowski

After a 13-precinct recount of votes cast in the Nov. 2 gubernatorial election in Coles County Tuesday, Democratic challenger Adlai Stevenson gained 14 votes, although the recount is termed unofficial.

The discovery ballot recount is designed to find if a statewide recount is necessary to determine the winner in a closely-contested race for the Illinois governor's office.

Joe Connelly, Coles County Democratic committee chairman, said although the recount showed Stevenson gaining votes, he will not be given credit for those votes unless the Illinois Supreme Court agrees to a statewide recount.

Bill Paris, Charleston attorney and participant in the recount, said Stevenson's troop will analyze the results of the discovery recount and bring the results to the Supreme Court to receive permission for a statewide recount.

"This is just an attempt to get information to base a lawsuit on," Paris said.

Paris said if the Illinois Supreme Court agrees there should be a recount, Stevenson will have to pay approximately $1.5 million for the recalculation.

Stevenson chose 56 out of 102 counties in the state for the discovery recount and Paris believes "it will be a long time before we know anything."

Elmer Goetz, Coles County

Republican party chairman, said he thought the discovery recount in Coles County did not help Stevenson's chances for getting a statewide recount.

With the gubernatorial votes from Coles County going five to three in favor of Thompson, if any errors were found, chances are they would be on a Republican ballot, Connelly said.

Goetz and Paris said they found very few mistakes in the discovery recount.

Paris said he thought Stevenson chose Coles County because it is one of the bigger counties downstate and "Thompson won it."

Connelly and Goetz agreed, Goetz adding that Thompson "picked heavily Republican precincts for the recount."

BOG delegates seeks privilege of student vote

by Michael Kuo and Linda Wagner

Student representatives on Illinois governing education boards currently do not have voting privileges, but Board of Governors' representatives said the student delegates should be involved in the voting process.

Student representatives from the four other schools controlled by the BOG visited Eastern's Student Senate at its last meeting of the semester Wednesday.

In an interview during the meeting, several BOG representatives said they should have voting privileges, but disagreed on whether each student representative on each board should have a vote or whether student board members should be allowed one collective vote on each board.

Matt Glover, Eastern's BOG representative, said proposing legislation to get student votes on governing boards is a difficult task because of the "different personalities" of each board in Illinois.

But Glover said he believes student delegates on the BOG should be allowed one collective vote.

Tim Janes, Western Illinois University's BOG representative, said he talked to a state senator who was "certain that proposed legislation to give students on governing boards one collective vote would at least get out of committee."

In other business, the senate approved changes in the proposed bylaws for the Student Publications Board after hearing a brief explanation of minor changes in the bylaws from Publications Board President Jack Kelly.

In addition, Senator Glenn Good announced his candidacy for the senate speaker position.

Good presented the Daily Eastern News with a 12-point plan which outlines his campaign plans and his plans for the speaker's office.

Union set to stage dinner and concert

by Kathy Roesler

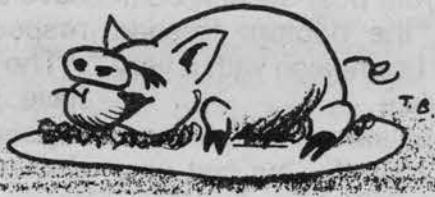

Imagine spending this Christmas season in the magical court of King Arthur, dining on mutton and cider in the castles of noblemen and dancing with fine lords and ladies in banquet halls filled with yuletide music.

Each year for two evenings, the charm and festivity of the Renaissance are again brought to life at Eastern as the Union and the music department present the annual Christmas Madrigal Dinner and Concert.

Eastern's eighth annual Madrigal Dinner will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Union Grand Ballroom, Robert E. Snyder of the music department said.

Snyder noted the purpose of the dinner "is to help people prepare for a meaningful celebration of Christmas by enjoying beautiful music that is interspersed between the courses of a festive dinner."

Guests to the dinner concert will "dine royally" on food prepared by the Union staff, Snyder said. Diners will be seated and served at tables for parties of six, eight or 12 to be reserved ahead of time according to group.

The menu will include a main course of chicken chasseur with broiled potatoes. Beef barley soup, tossed salad, vegetables in butter sauce and homemade French bread will also be served, accompanied by mulled cider, coffee and iced tea. The meal will end with bread pudding topped with hot lemon sauce.

Between each course, diners will be entertained by the Eastern Chamber Singers under the direction of John Maharg. The singers, an Eastern group chosen by audition at the beginning of the year, will wear costumes designed to match the medieval styles worn when madrigals were first performed, Snyder said.

The Chamber Singers will then fill the hall with both traditional madrigal songs and familiar yuletide carols and will dance several Renaissance period dances while inviting the diners to join them in song from time to time.

An instrumental consort of recorders and strings directed by Jeri Hughes of the music department will also play at various times during the evening and will accompany the singers as they dance.

In keeping with the Renaissance theme of the evening, a jester will appear as an unofficial master of ceremonies.

In past years, the dinner-concert has attracted over 1,000 diners at a time, Snyder said.

Tickets for this year's Madrigal dinner are on sale for $12.95 per person and may be reserved in person at the Union Box Office or by mail. Any questions may be answered by calling 581-5122.

The charge for the Madrigal dinner-concert is to cover the non-musical portion of the program. Also built into this year's Madrigal ticket price is a donation to a scholarship fund created to attract a talented music students to Eastern, Snyder said.

The program is billed as a gift by the students to the university and the community.

Panthers perform well in Division I transition

Eastern's entire athletic program is nearing the completion of a crucial transition.

In recent years, the Panthers' aggressive and competitive brand of play has propelled the program to the top of the Division II ranks.

However, at the conclusion of this year, Eastern will have completed its transition into Division I competition. So far this season the Panthers have performed magnificently.

Eastern's football program has garnered the praise and recognition it deserves as the gridgers have worked their way toward their third championship appearance in five years.

But the football program does not constitute the entire Eastern athletic program, and the outstanding athletic reputation that Eastern has attained has been the result of all Panther teams and coaches.

Eastern teams this fall have continued to uphold their reputation of being among the best in the Midwest.

The volleyball squad, in its first Division I season, posted an impressive 36-14 record and won some key matches and invitations against formidable and established Division I teams. The spikers' play prompted head coach Carol Gruber to recognize that "people know we have a serious program and (they) respect it."

Although the Panther soccer unit was eliminated this year from post-season competition in overtime, the booters finished their second Division I campaign with a very respectable 12-3-5 slate.

The soccer team was always a regular entry in the Division II playoffs, but last year the booters shocked collegiate soccer followers by finishing third in their first Division I season.

Despite not participating in post-season competition this time around, Eastern's field hockey and cross country teams turned in performances that should tell opposing schools that the Panthers will be teams to reckon with at the Division I level in the future.

So while most of the attention has been directed toward the football team's outstanding play this season, we must also recognize that the other fall sports teams have also enhanced Eastern's reputation of respect.

The players, coaches and administration have worked together to show the collegiate community that the Panthers are indeed a viable Division I institution.

Your turn

Condemnation unfair

Editor:

This letter is in response to the anonymous letter printed Nov. 30 about grading policies.

I get tired of reading material that no one would dare sign, and I want to address this person in particular.

Whoever you are, yes, the examples you gave are evidence that certain instructors could improve their teaching methods. I've experienced a few (and heard of other) cases similar to those you described, but you have no right to unload such a condemnation on the entire accounting department.

When I took Accounting 2100 and 2150 there were no abnormal grade distributions. The grading varies according to teacher. There is no plot, by Dr. Moncada, to weed out large numbers of students.

Just because a couple of teachers make poor moves is no reason to blackball the whole department. There are teachers making poor moves in every department, but I'm convinced this is a good school, run by and employing decent people. I intend to complete my degree before long—in accounting. With all due respect to the editor, I wish this paper would stop printing letters written by people who only want to gripe, who have no intention of presenting a constructive message.

Ceremony set-up dumb

Editor:

A college graduation ceremony means many things to many people.

For some it brings a sigh of relief at knowing that the tests, papers, projects and all other drudgeries of academia have finally come to an end.

For others, it is a momentous occasion which deserves the heartiest of partying with both family and friends. I feel safe in saying that the occasion holds its own special meaning for each and every graduate. Yet this fall semester commencement convocation is sure to be a "tainted love."

I expressed utter disbelief at the news of graduation ceremonies taking place the weekend before final exams. It shocked and angered me.

In my opinion, the idea of holding a commencement convocation before final exams makes about as much sense as a two-story outhouse. To those students who are on the borderline of passing or failing a class it must seem even more ludicrous.

Could there possibly be some logical reasoning behind this ill-conceived plan? If there is I would love to hear it.

As it stands, on the weekend of Dec. 21 I will join with family and friends to celebrate this long-awaited event. All will enjoy fine food and even finer drink on this festive occasion.

On that Sunday, I will proudly walk down the aisle to receive my pseudo-degree, both receiving and extending congratulations. Later that evening, after partying to the hilt, I will stumble home and do what every graduate dreams of doing on the night of graduation—begin studying for my morning final exam. Thanks a lot, Eastern.

'Alien' not insulting

Editor:

Atilla Yesilada, in his letter dated Nov. 22 regarding the usage of the word "alien" has, in my opinion, blown the issue out of all proportion.

The word "alien" is frequently used and legitimately stipulated in reference to foreign students and foreign persons within another country.

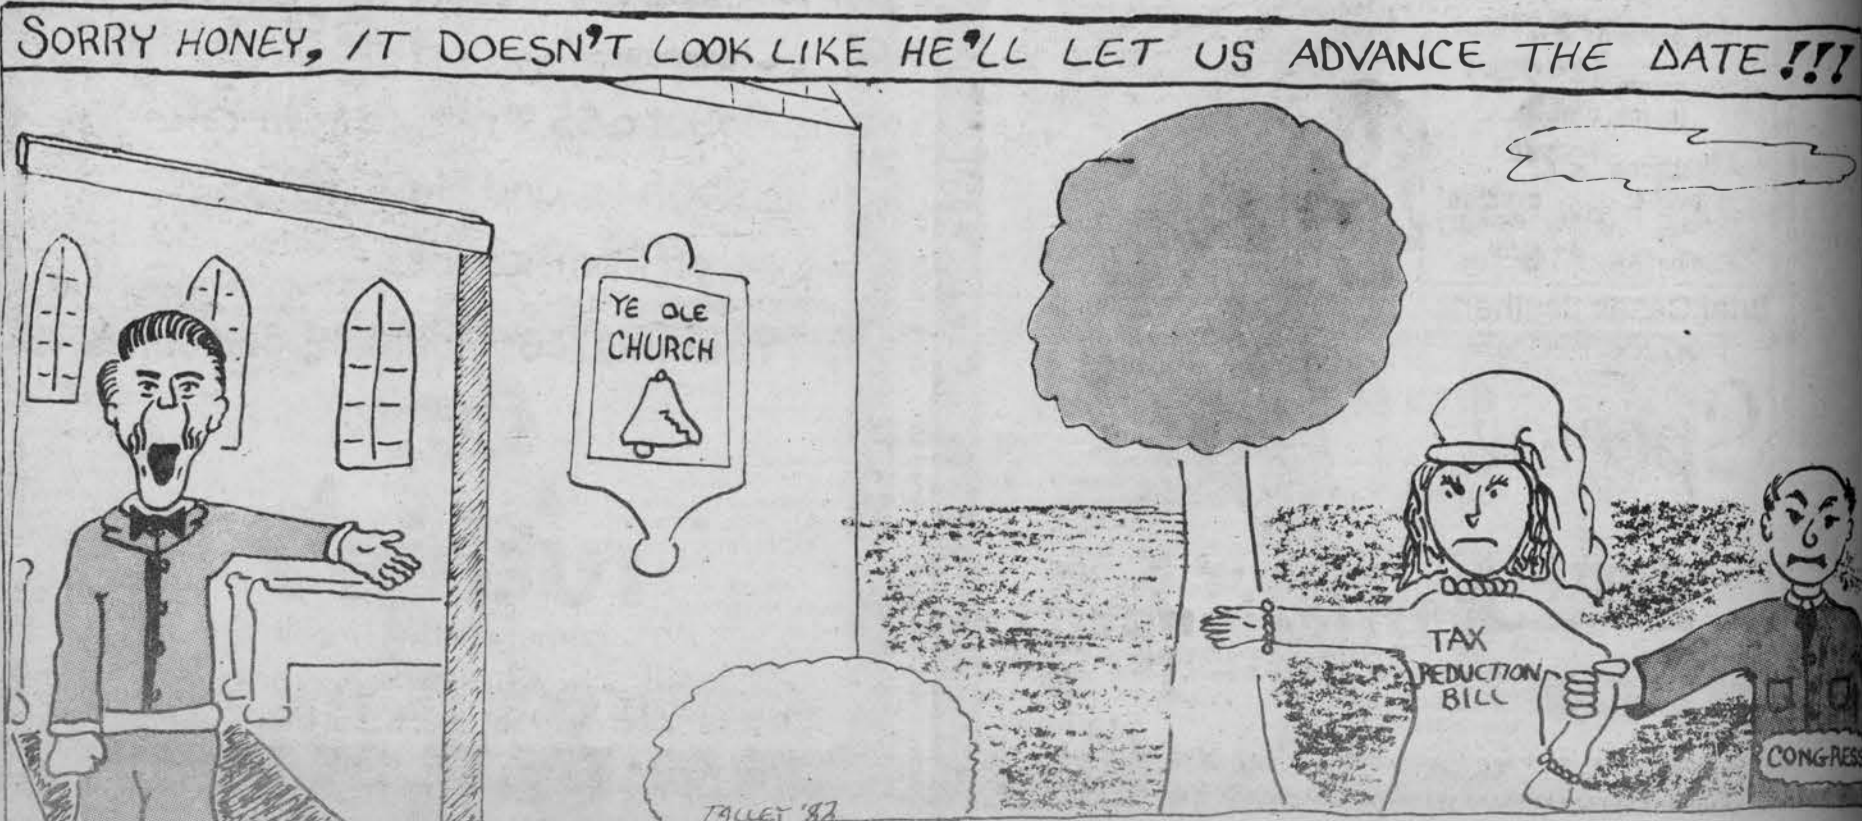

I fail to see any insulting or degrading connotations, implicit or explicit, concerning this word.

When I first heard of my new description I was more amused than angered. If E.T. can be referred to as an "alien," surely it cannot be all bad to be compared to such an amiable creature.

Thespians request funds

by Douglas Backstrom

The Apportionment Board Thursday will discuss whether to allocate money to the Players to travel to a festival performance in January.

Financial Vice President John Cole said the Players, a theater group, are requesting the monies so cast members can travel to Milwaukee, Wis., where they will enter the American College Theatre Festival and perform their play "The Doctor in Spite of Himself."

J. Sain, a member of the Players, said the money will cover travel, registration, housing and money for food.

"The festival is Jan. 12-15, and we should try to get the money we need early even if we don't go to the festival," Sain said.

Sain said if the Players are selected from 13 regions at the festival, the group will perform in Washington, D.C.

Sain added, "This is a performance not competition."

In other business, the AB will appoint a new assistant vice chairman for next semester because Kathy Kilmer, who currently holds the position, will be working on an internship in the spring, Cole said.

The AB will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Schahrer Room.

Marathon to benefit heart fund

by Ed Mazzocco

For students who would like to dance some of those holiday calories away, this weekend may provide a chance to do so.

"Dance for Heart" has been scheduled for 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday in McAfee Gym, Heart Association volunteer Barbara Gerrie said.

Gerrie, an instructor at the Fitness Club, said the dance for heart will be a combination of aerobic exercises and dancing.

"This is an excellent opportunity for students to work out for free," she said.

Students participating in the event are required to get pledges to donate money to the Heart Association for the amount of time they dance. Students may dance as long as they want.

Although persons should register to participate before the event, registration also will be held on Sunday, she said.

The Fitness Club, 505 Lincoln Ave., is organizing the dance and club instructors will be at the event Sunday.

For further information contact Gerrie at the Fitness Club at 348-8883.

RHA meeting canceled

The Residence Hall Association has canceled its weekly meeting originally scheduled for Thursday, RHA President Lynn Vokac said.

RHA members will not meet because they have no business to discuss and because they will be having their annual Christmas dinner and party, Vokac said.

students who can enroll in each one.

Judy McLaughlin, an accounting major also in the technology seminar, agreed. "The smaller they keep the classes, the better—no more than 15 students," she said.

The choices of seminars was limited, she added, but the planned expansion of the seminars should make people more interested in taking them.

Gary Schollmeier, a computer management major in the technology seminar, said he would recommend the seminar. "It's a good course to have," he said.

The discussion format helped him learn to speak better, he said. "The one-on-one experience will help in an interviewing situation," he said.

Although no seminars will be offered this spring, Whitley said plans for next fall include 12 to 18 seminars in several departments, including English, psychology, speech communications, education, political science, health education and sociology.

This will provide a diverse choice for the student, Whitley said.

Teacher accepts position as new regional director

by Judi Jines

Jacqueline Jacobs, an instructor in Eastern's special education department, recently was elected director of Region IV for the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children.

Jacobs' new position involves being a liaison between the various chapters of her region and the council's state organization, she said.

As the "contact person" for the chapters in central Illinois, Jacobs said she will provide information about activities conducted at the state and federal level, and in turn, she will make information from the chapters available to the state organization.

Jacobs said the council is a "national professional organization of special education that acts as a dissemination agency for information about special education."

She said the council provides a means for special education teachers to get together and discuss what they have been doing and problems they may have encountered. The council also is a lobbying group for special education interests.

During her term in office, Jacobs said she hopes to encourage more participation. "There is a need for more active participation by professionals in special education to make the public aware of skills and abilities of individuals that are handicapped."

Union Board to discuss budget

In a brief meeting, the Union Board Thursday will meet to hear an update on the Union budget in addition to board committee reports.

Union Area Head Bill Clark said Union Board members will hear an explanation of the Union Board budget process and will be given an update on the Union's budget to date.

In addition, he said the board will determine future meeting dates to further discuss the budget.

In other business, Clark said board members will hear brief committee reports.

The Union Board will meet at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Union Schahrer Room.

History teacher receives award for local work

by James Talley

Eastern instructor Duane Elbert, coordinator of the historical administration major, received the "Friend of History" award for voluntary work in his field.

The award, which is only available to local individuals who contribute significantly to the Coles County Historical Society, is a large honor, Elbert said.

The award is given to those who develop a cooperative between the university and the county Historical Society Museum.

"The award was given to me for working at the Greenwood School Museum of the Coles County Historical Society on exhibits that have been shown over the last seven years," Elbert said.

"The exhibit that I feel helped me receive the award was the exhibit on Indians, archeology and Coles County entitled 'Pieces of the Puzzle,'" Elbert said. The exhibit appeared at the Greenwood School Museum from March through mid-May.

The "Friend of History" award itself is not a honor that the university will keep in its files, he said, but it is more a "citizen-type" award which shows to the community that the individual had completed a meritorious deed.

He added that the award is not given to those who are performing their work for payment but only for a job which involves volunteer work.

Cagers to face taller Eagle unit

by Kirby Flowers

Looking to notch its first victory of the season, Eastern's basketball team will host a taller and much quicker Morehead State squad at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Lantz Gym.

"I have seen them (Morehead State) play and they have got good overall size and are really quick," Panther head coach Rick Samuels said. "They also play with a lot of enthusiasm and confidence."

Eastern enters Thursday's non-conference contest having dropped its season opener 83-54 to Purdue University Saturday. The Panthers also fell 88-11 to Marathon Oil in an exhibition contest Nov. 22.

"We have progressed really well," Samuels said. "I think we even progressed from the Marathon Oil game to the Purdue contest. But I know we still have a lot to learn."

Morehead State's size, quickness and overall attitude caught Samuels eye right off, but the Panther mentor said he will not change Eastern's game plan to adjust to the visiting Eagles.

"We're not going to do anything different," Samuels said. "But I hope we can put the ball in the hole a little better. We had a little trouble making baskets against Purdue."

Senior Kevin Jones and freshman Kevin Duckworth created more problems for the Panthers when they were late to practice this week. Samuels was forced to take disciplinary action against the two and chose not to start them Thursday, although they will play.

In addition to starters Kurt Lorenzen, Tim Dykstra and Tim Wyss, Samuels will start Paul Neideg and Doug Crook Thursday.

Crook, who came off the bench, scored 20 points Saturday against Purdue and helped the Panthers challenge the Big Ten Conference power to a 34-30 halftime deficit.

"He (Crook) showed a lot of confidence and withstood their defensive pressure once they realized he was a scoring threat from outside," Samuels said. "He is really improved over last season. He understands college basketball better."

In an effort to contain the Eagles' big men, Samuels said his squad must concentrate on controlling the game's momentum with a better offensive showing.

"Our post players will be the key to the game against the Eagles," Samuels said. "I need to get a little more offensive input from our big men."

Consequently, Samuels hopes to utilize the post position against Morehead State as much as possible.

"In order to win, we will need to get the ball inside," Samuels added. "We also must control the boards and the tempo of the game."

Eastern will have a tough test in stopping the Eagles' front line, which consists of three players who are each 6-foot-7. Center Jeff Tucker heads the trio rounded out with forwards Earl Harrison and Harold Moore.

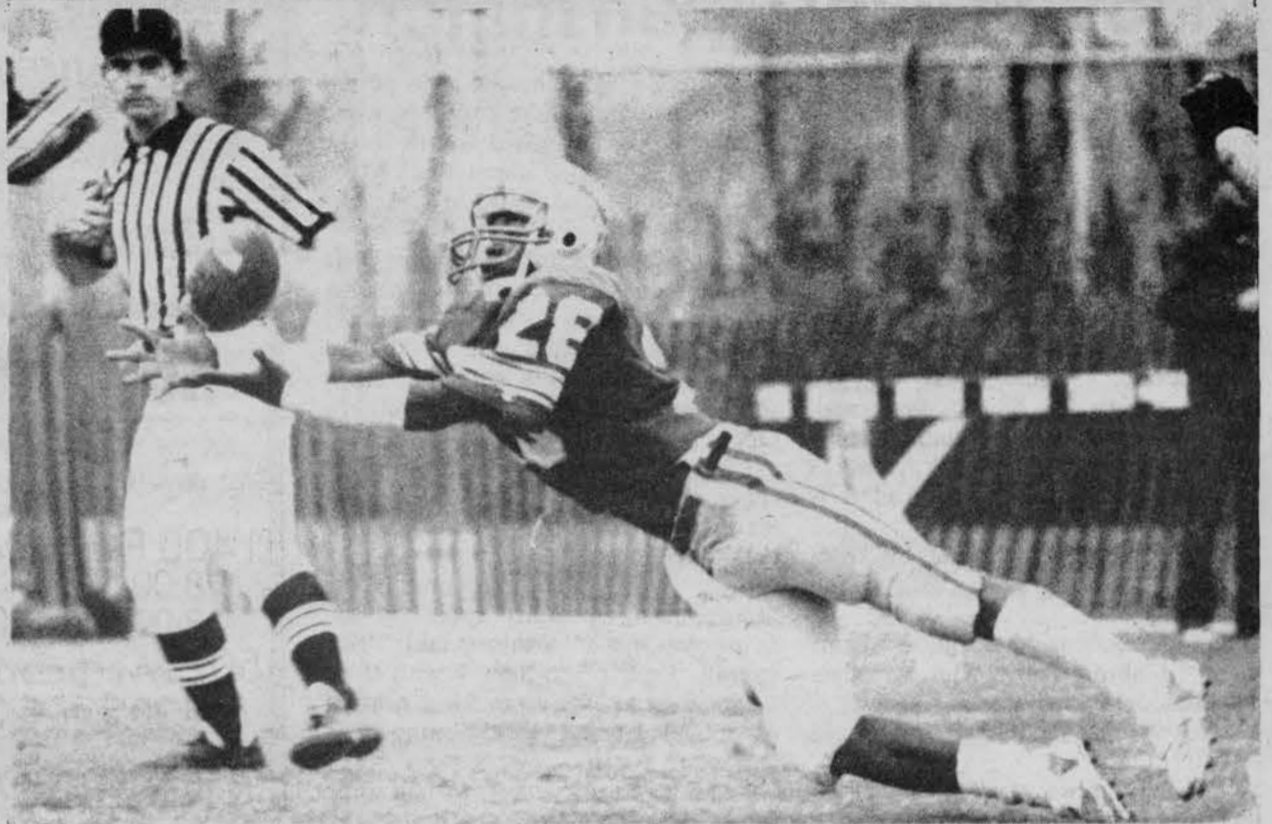

Morehead State's Guy Minnifield will be the key to the Eagles' offense and helping the Ohio Valley Conference member gain control of Thursday's game.

Minnifield was Morehead State's second leading scorer last season in averaging 15 points per game.

Samuels announced Wednesday that he will give a brief glimpse of the Morehead State squad at noon Thursday in the Union Rathskeller.

The bi-monthly meeting is open to the public and will preview the Panthers' upcoming opponents, while showing tape highlights of the past game.

Cager Notes... Eastern will host Eastern Kentucky at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Lantz Gym before beginning an eight-game road trip which features contests at Southern Illinois, Missouri, Ball State, Illinois State and three games in Hawaii Jan. 3-11.

Panthers nab top MCC spots in grid all-league selections

by John Humenik

It wasn't hard to predict that Eastern would be well represented Wednesday when the Mid-Continent Conference announced its all-conference selections.

However, what surprised Eastern head coach Darrell Mudra was that he had expected more Eastern players to receive the conference's top football honors. But as it went, the Panthers claimed 11 first team awards.

"I really thought we could've had a couple more selections, but we can't vote for ourselves," Mudra said. "I feel we deserved more, but all the kids were equally deserving."

Eastern, which claimed its third straight league crown, registered six of the MCC's offensive first team members and four defensive winners. But the biggest honors were yet to come.

Panther standout quarterback Jeff Christensen and defensive end Keith Wojnowski were named the league's offensive and defensive "Players of the Year," respectively, while Mudra received "Coach of the Year."

In addition to Eastern's all-conference honors, junior defensive back Robert Williams was honored by the American Football Coaches Association and chosen to the NCAA Division I-AA All-American team.

Ironically, Williams was only chosen to the MCC's second defensive team, which Mudra said was another surprise. "We pushed really hard for him, but he was left out," Mudra said about Williams selection.

"We nominated our people, but being in a small conference each coach tries to get his kid in," Mudra added. "However, we feel the Kodak award more than made up for it."

Williams, the Panthers' only returning defensive secondary veteran, registered 59 solo tackles and 101 total tackles this season.

"I'm shocked," Williams said. "It's just a great feeling to receive such an award. I'm really grateful to be on this team."

Williams was having trouble with interference penalties after the first three games and the Chicago native said he decided to chance his attitude.

"In the first three games I was not playing the way I wanted to, so then I vowed to work harder in practice," Williams said.

Previous Kodak All-Americans from Eastern were Kevin Gray (1981), Pete Catan (1980), Poke Cobb (1979), James Warring (1978) and Nate Anderson

Christensen, though not receiving a Kodak award, highlights one of the finest MCC offensive first teams in the league's five-year history.

Christensen set 12 Eastern and eight MCC passing and total offensive records in his career, while throwing for 2,270 yards this season.

In addition, Christensen was ranked 12th in passing efficiency for NCAA I-AA quarterbacks. He also was named MCC offensive "Player of the Week" three times during the regular season.

Panther Jerry Wright, who caught 29 passes for 709 yards, was named as a receiver to the first team. Wright had been awarded Eastern's "Player of the Game" for receiving six of the 11 regular season weeks.

Joining Wright was offensive tackle Alvin McMurray, offensive guard Bob Norris and center George Tuzil.

Eastern's sixth best running back Kevin Staple, who rushed for 1,012 yards and caught 25 passes for 198 yards, was named as one of the running backs.

In addition, Staple registered 13 touchdowns in the 11 regular season games. The junior standout claimed the MCC's top statistical honor.

Rounding out Eastern's selections as offense first team was senior punter Don Manzke, who averaged 39.9 yards per kick.

Despite having a defense ranked eighth in the NCAA I-AA, Eastern only had three players named to the defensive first team, led by Wojnowski, who registered 16 quarterback sacks and eight tackles for a loss.

Linebacker Bill Mines, who had 47 solo tackles and 81 assisted, joins defensive tackle Greg Duncan and free safety Randy McCue.

Grapplers set to compete in tough Illini Open match

by Rhea Nall

Eastern's men's wrestling team will travel to Champaign this weekend to compete in the 20-team Illinois Open, after coming off two tough meets at the Southern Open and the Kentucky dual last week.

The Illinois Open will feature teams from both large and small Illinois colleges and universities, head coach Ron Clinton said.

"All of the big schools and small schools will be there, including some junior colleges which will participate in the meet," Clinton said. "And it is always a good tournament."

In addition, Clinton said his team enters this weekend's meet with a good attitude.

"We're looking to do good in this meet," Clinton said. "Our wrestlers get excited for this meet because they get to wrestle against some of their old buddies."

"We have always wrestled well in this meet and I think we will continue to do so," he added.

The Panthers had a good showing at the Southern Open last week, but Eastern failed to bring home any champions. The meet was dominated by teams from the Southeastern Conference and Atlantic Coast Conference.

Former All-American Derek Porter finished second in the 126-pound weight class to lead the Panthers, while Mark Reuttiger finished fourth in the 134-pound weight class and Mark Gronowski placed fifth in the 167-pound weight class.

The Panthers also failed to win their opening dual meet of the season against Kentucky. Eastern captured three titles and tied one of the 10 weight classes, while suffering from some injuries sustained in the Southern Open.

Clinton said his team performed fairly well in the Southern Open while his unit's rhythm was off in the Kentucky dual meet.

"We looked good in spots but it was disappointing in other spots (in the Southern Open)," Clinton said. "But overall, I am pretty happy with their performances. We're making normal progress on our conditioning and technique."

"In the Kentucky meet, we had some injuries that threw our rhythm off by having wrestlers wrestling in higher weight classes," Clinton said.

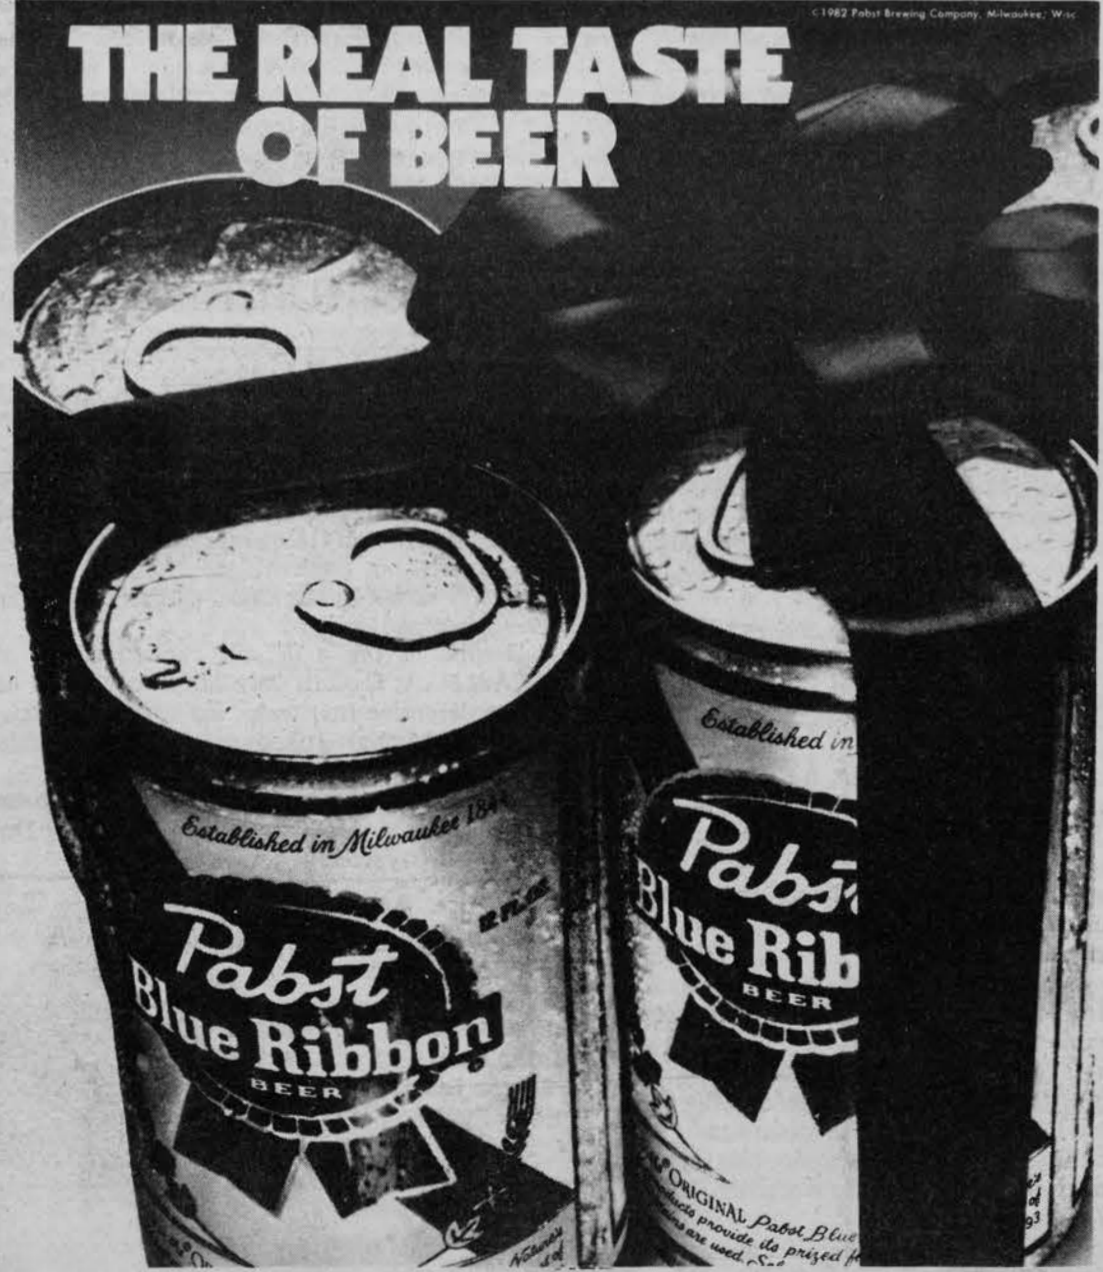

"Overall, we wrestled pretty well for the conditions in the Southern Open and the Kentucky dual meet," Clinton added. "And now we are looking for improved efforts at this week's Illinois Open."

Vikings will rely on youth

by John Humenik

Daily Eastern News correspondent

ROSEMONT, Ill.—Being one of the conference's youngest teams doesn't bother Cleveland State head coach Ray Dieringer as much as trying to live up to the league's early season predictions.

Not since 1977-78 has there been a younger Cleveland State team, but still, the Association of Mid-Continent Universities' coaches, athletic directors and sports information directors forecasted the Vikings to finish third in the conference this season.

"We're very young and we do hope we can be very competitive in the conference," Dieringer told a large media delegation Nov. 15 at the first AMCU basketball press day gathering.

"Up and down I hope that we can do well. We're small, but talented," Dieringer added.

Cleveland State received 129 votes in the conference's pre-season poll to rank ahead of fourth place Eastern Illinois (106) and behind second place Western Illinois (153).

The Vikings tallied two first-place votes in addition to seven seconds, five thirds, one fourth and nine other votes distributed among the last four positions.

Dieringer welcomes back only one senior and two juniors this season while the remainder of the Viking squad is equally divided between freshmen and sophomores.

Cleveland State, which finished 17-10 last season, also is concerned with continuing its streak of four consecutive winning seasons this winter. The Vikings had posted just one winning campaign in the 13 previous seasons.

Cleveland State

Senior Lee Reed (a 6-foot-1 starter) highlights the 1982-83 Viking squad, while two juniors, starting center Dave Youdath (6-foot-8) and backup forward Lionel King (6-foot-5), also return.

Major losses from last season's squad were 6-foot-11 forward Darren Tillis, who gave the Vikings a second straight National Basketball Association first round draft choice, and 6-foot-5 guard Mike Sweeney.

Replacing Tillis was Dieringer's prime task this season, while establishing a new court leader after Sweeney also tops his list during the regular season.

The Vikings return sophomore standout Jimmy Les, who was what Dieringer deemed "the surprise of last season's team." Les is expected to be the cornerstone of the Viking offense.

"We had no idea he (Les) would be as good as he is," Dieringer said.

In addition to Les, 6-foot-4 sophomore guard Jeff Lunt also returns this season, along with the biggest player ever recruited by Cleveland State—John Wheeler, a 7-foot center.

Freshman Steve Corbin leads the Vikings' newcomers in vying for starting assignments this season. Derrick Howell, Tim Lampe, Vince Richards and Doug Schutz round out the group.

After defeating Denison 70-53 Saturday, Cleveland State turns its attention toward Saturday's contest with Kent State.

Viking Notes...Cleveland State head coach Ray Dieringer enters this season with a career record of 143-189...The Vikings play their home games at Woodling Gym, which seats 3,000 for basketball.

Residence halls begin variety of Christmas festivities

by Sheila Billerbeck

Deck the halls with boughs of holly, fa la la la la, la la la la!

With Christmas only a few weeks away, many students are probably anxiously awaiting the end of finals to return home for the holidays. However, Eastern's residence halls have already begun to set the season atmosphere at students' home away from home.

Andrews Hall will have a window-painting contest, Cindy Summary, hall president, said. Residents also will decorate the lobby with lights and a tree to hold the annual Christmas party.

Each floor will have parties and gift exchanges and Santa has been asked to appear at a Christmas dinner.

Christmas caroling to area nursing homes will be the main activity for Ford Hall, hall president Bob Shockley said. Residents also will be participating in floor decorations and planning a Christmas tree for the lobby.

East Hall residents are planning a romantic celebration of the holidays by sitting around the fireplace with friends for their Christmas party, Jeff Gebauer, hall president, said.

President Lynn Lippoldt said Taylor Hall will sponsor a Christmas dance and residents will give up one meal for the needy.

Ice cream socials, all-hall gift exchanges and a decoration party top off the list of events for Lawson Hall, Laura Beatty, hall president, said.

Pemberton Hall is planning a tree-trimming party, along with a Christmas party, hall president Julie Ohm said.

A vespers service will follow the Christmas meal and another party is scheduled for resident hall employees and custodians.

President Laura Marshall said Carman Hall will have a trim-a-limb tree-trimming party, window painting contest and a Christmas party with vesper services. Residents also plan to sing Christmas carols at area nursing homes.

Carman Hall residents also will play a "Secret Santas" game, in which students will act as Santa for each other, buying anonymous gifts, until their identity is discovered at the end of the week.

Douglas Hall residents are planning on donating money to the Salvation Army, David Kolmer, hall president, said. They also will decorate the food service with streamers and have music to prepare for the Christmas dinner.

Door decorating and an all-hall Christmas party will kick off the holidays for McKinney Hall, hall president Nancy Pingel said.

Thomas Hall residents will offer their services to the Coles County Department of Aging to assist the elderly in shoveling snow, Steve Long, hall president, said.

President Kim Morris has a variety of activities set for Lincoln Hall. Residents will carol in the halls and will have a decorating party and a Christmas party for all residents.

Weller Hall will have a Christmas party and tree, Teresa Collard, hall president, said.

Stevenson Hall is planning a Christmas dinner and breakfast, Cindy Williamson, hall president, said.

Churches plan holiday services

by Paula Davis

Several area churches have scheduled Christmas services for students who will be staying on campus over the holidays or for students wishing to attend services earlier.

Wesley United Methodist Church, 2202 Fourth St., will hold a candlelight communion for students and members at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 15 in the church sanctuary. The church has also scheduled two candlelight services for 7 and 11 p.m. Christmas Eve in the sanctuary.

Immanuel Lutheran Church, 902 Cleveland Ave., will hold a service at 5:30 p.m. Dec. 12. The service will be followed by a candlelight dinner at 6:30 p.m. Students are welcome at no charge, a church spokesman said.

The First Presbyterian Church, 311 Seventh St., has scheduled a candlelight service at 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve.

The Newman Community Center will be giving a midnight mass Christmas Eve at the St. Charles Catholic Church, 909 Lincoln Ave. The church has also scheduled services for 5 p.m. Christmas Day and 8 and 10 a.m. Dec. 26 at St. Charles.

The Christian Campus House (Fellowship), 2231 S. Fourth St., invites students to join them as they carol around the area beginning at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 8. The church will hold a Christmas service at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 12.

FAMILY STEAK HOUSE

Nieman-Marcus offers gift ideas for that fussy person

by Dana Eastridge

It's that time of year again—the season to be jolly and make Christmas gift lists.

Ah, those dreaded Christmas lists. One person always seems to be left over: the person who has everything, needs nothing, but expects something.

The Nieman-Marcus department store of Dallas, Texas has a few suggestions for the person who has everything.

For openers, is there a vegetarian with a sweet tooth on your list? Give him Nieman-Marcus' version of peas and carrots. The "peas" are actually mint flavored candy, mixed with orange flavored "carrot" cubes. Two pounds of very realistic looking "peas and carrots," packed in a canning jar, cost $15.

The archaeologist on your list may "dig" a skeleton satchel for his closet. The skeleton, priced at $25, stands five feet tall and is constructed of brown cotton and polyester with satin "joints" made of ribbon.

An inflatable man may be the perfect present for the lonely gift recipient. Besides being a good listener, the $12.50 blow-up companion can provide a useful service as a passenger for a woman traveling alone in a car. Best of all, he doesn't talk back.

For the student who needs solid nourishment after a semester's existence solely on liquid, 4 pounds of Irish whiskey cake may be welcome. The cake's most active ingredient is 16 ounces of Irish whiskey. It costs $32.50.

To aid in facing the bathroom mirror on those mornings after, wine flavored toothpaste is available. A set of three tubes, costing $12, includes

Area stores offer popular gift tips

by Terri Sternau

It's that time of year again and Christmas is just around the corner, bringing with it that age-old question of what gifts to buy for friends and loved ones.

Merchants in the Charleston-Mattoon area who were questioned recently agreed that the shopping season has begun and listed several items they have found to be popular sellers, based on sales so far this season.

A spokesman from Bendicts Well-Worth, 613 Monroe Ave., said electronic games as well as E.T., Pac Man and Annie items are the best-sellers this season.

Pac Man is this year's video rage, the spokesman said. In the Pac Man video game, the Pac Man tries to gobble dots, dodge monsters and score bonus points before he is caught by a monster.

E.T. is the lovable extra-terrestrial that found fame at theaters across America this summer, while Annie is the adorable freckle-faced orphan who finally found a real home in the hit Broadway play "Annie."

A salesman from Sears Roebuck in the Cross County Mall in Mattoon agreed that video and electronic games were very popular this year, as well as other Pac Man and Smurf items. The number one selling appliance this season is the microwave oven, the salesman said.

For a more personal gift, the Mar-Chris Gift Shop at 506 Sixth St. is offering the traditional season bestsellers, including handmade tree ornaments, jewelry and crystal steinware, a spokesman said.

A salesman from Spurgeon's Department Store, 523 Seventh St., said Smurf items are selling fast, along with textured fuzzy bear pins. For a more practical gift, leg warmers are a favorite gift idea this year, especially for the college student, the salesman added.

All area merchants agreed that now is the time to get a head start on Christmas shopping and beat the rush. Most of the stores in and around Charleston will be offering extended store hours in December, including evenings and Saturdays.

three flavors—Chablis, Burgundy and extra-dry champagne.

The suave man who has everything may find hidden values in Nieman-Marcus' walking stick. Along with the physical support a cane may provide, this walking stick, priced at $145, adds a bracer. A glass vial, suitable for holding liquid refreshment, and two shot glasses are concealed in the stick.

For those on your list who have everything plus expensive tastes, Nieman-Marcus has lots of suggestions.

Perhaps a ruby necklace, including 37 carats in diamonds and 110 carats in rubies (and priced at $135,000) might appeal to someone on your list. Matching earrings are also available for $18,000.

Romantics on your list should appreciate a condominium on the Hawaiian island of Kauai. Homes will be constructed on the Hanalei Plantation, the site of filming for the movie "South Pacific." The $1,200,000 price tag includes furnishings, interior decorations, sunsets and a view of the ocean.

The sedentary person who has everything will sink blissfully into the recliner that has everything.

The leather-padded recliner comes equipped with stereo cassette, AM-FM radio, color television, a wireless telephone, light show and a thermostatic faucet system. Delivered and installed, the recliner costs $32,000.

At the opposite end of the scale, athletes on your list will enjoy this year's Nieman-Marcus His/Her Gift—the LaserTour by Perceptronics.

A microcomputer coordinates a video disc player/large screen television set with an attached electronic exerciser/bicycle. The video disc provides a view of a country setting for the rider's "bicycle tour," while the computer matches the video disc's speed with the speed of the rider's pedaling. For $20,000 a bicycle enthusiast can pedal through the winter in comfort.

And, of course, for the dog who has everything, Nieman-Marcus presents the latest in canine fashion—sunglasses. Besides complementing any dog's chic wardrobe, the sunglasses offer the dog's eyes protection from sun, wind and dust particles. Glasses are available in S, M, and L sizes and cost $32.50.

Many sights could be seen in Chicago as Christmastime in the city und began the day after Thanksgiving. Clockwise from left, shoppers crowd Street in an attempt to begin and finish their Christmas shopping in one day. One idea many stores are offering this year is a jar packed with "E.T." candy. "E.T." doll; Chicago Christmas decorations are seen from the top of Tower Place; and a sign of Christmas cheer is seen in a crowd braving the see the city's Christmas tree lit. ## Have a Merry Christmas!

Christmas rush headaches, rudeness can be avoided

Only a scrooge would deny that Christmas is a time of peace, joy and goodwill toward men. However, these three elements are typically lost in the shuffle of Christmas shopping and often are replaced by confusion, rudeness and headaches.

Although several friends have confided in me while grinning from ear to ear that they finished their Christmas shopping weeks ago, I must admit I have not even so much as purchased that annual box of perfumed soap for Aunt Mabel.

It's not that I haven't begun considering what presents I would like to give this year. But every time I think of putting on my coat to make the trek to the department stores, I am plagued

Personal file:

Elise Dinkel

with horrible memories of past Christmas shopping experiences.

Why is it that:

- Most department stores are kept even warmer than Booth Library, so shoppers must either sweat or carry their bulky coats?
- Sale items are almost always hidden so well that no sales personnel will even admit to ever having heard of the item? I once spent two hours tracking down a half-priced fur-lined shower cap only to find out it was located in the automotive department because it doubled as a steering wheel cover.

Department store aisles are almost always so close together shoppers must hold their breath to fit in long enough to look at certain items? I have found this to be especially true in the toy departments, where shoppers must also deal with crazed children who act as though they have never seen an E.T. pogo stick before.

These unpleasanties could be tolerated, however, if every person who Christmas shops would first make a vow to smile through the experience and be prepared to repeat two little words: "Excuse me."

The words should be delivered politely, not Steve Martin style, in many instances.

For example, wouldn't it make Christmas a little cheerier to simply smile and say "excuse me" when two people suddenly reach for the same perfume tester bottle than to shout, "I hope you break it!"?

This advice (or plea) may seem outwardly simple or silly, but common courtesy is too often forgotten in the rush to get the shopping done. And if the heat, the Salvation Army bells or the experience as a whole begins to make you grumpy, step outside for a breath of air before continuing.

You'll feel better and so will the next person you meet head-on in one of those skinny aisles.

Charleston postmaster urges mailing packages early

by Melanee Collsen

The tradition of remembering long-distance friends with cards and gifts at Christmas can be more rewarding for the sender, receiver and mailman if senders take the time to correctly wrap and address the pieces of mail.

"Normally we handle about 30,000 pieces of mail a day, including cards, letters and packages, but during the holiday season volume goes up to 50,000 pieces," Charleston postmaster Jim Isbell said.

The Christmas rush begins around Dec. 6, Isbell noted.

"The key to successful holiday mailing is to mail early and correctly," he added. "That includes planning now for gifts that must travel long distances by Christmas."

The Charleston post office offers the following tips for holiday mailing to help make sure cards and packages arrive on time and in good condition:

- Properly address cards and packages with the name, house number and street clearly labeled. The city, state and ZIP code should be reserved for the last line.

Put a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address inside parcels in case the outside wrapping is torn.

Remember letter size standards require that envelopes be at least 3 1/2 inches high and 5 inches long to be accepted for mailing.

Cushion the contents of packages including all sides, top and bottom, with newspapers, making sure there is no empty space in the box. Commercially available foam shells or air-pocket padding also make good cushioning materials.

Seal parcels with one of three recommended types of tape: pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper, or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive.

Position addresses on packages properly by putting the recipient's address in the lower right portion of the package. Put a return address in the upper left hand corner. Remove all other labels from the box.

Irreplaceable items, such as cash and other valuables, should be sent by registered mail.

Isbell also noted that the post office offers Express Mail Next Day Service for the last-minute shopper.

"With Express Mail, customers can reach many cities from our town," Isbell said.

A package mailed by 5 p.m. one day can reach the addressee by 3 p.m. the following day, he added.

Santa alive and well everywhere

Dear Marty:

You'll find as you grow up there will be people who believe and others who don't believe in Santa Claus. Although you are only 9 years old, sometimes I think you are smarter and more mature than I am. But I am an authority on Santa's existence.

Santa is alive and well, living in Hackensack. He also lives in Des Moines, Ensino and any other place where there are people who believe.

People who don't believe in Santa are the quitters who can think of nothing but bad things. The non-believers also don't think there will ever be "peace on earth and good will toward men."

Non-believers give gifts with hopes that they will get something back in return. The believers give because they want to give, not because they have to or because they think they will get something back.

It's the people who believe in Santa Claus who make Christmas fun. They never abuse the meaning of Christmas and their thoughtfulness extends far beyond the holiday season. To Santa Claus believers, every day is Christmas.

Merry Christmas
Your big brother

Carols celebrate holiday season for many years

by Sheila Billerbeck

Carol—(kar-el): a traditional song of joyful character, usually associated with a religious or seasonal festival, such as Christmas.

According to tradition, the first Christmas carols were sung by the angels who announced the birth of Christ to the shepherds in Bethlehem. But according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, carols as we know them today originated during the Middle Ages.

The word "carol" comes from a French round dance known as a carole. The people of old England performed song and dance caroles to celebrate the shortest days of winter.

The birthplace of the popular Christmas custom of singing carols began in Italy, where St. Francis of Assisi led songs in praise of the Christ child. After a religious service, church members would continue their songs of worship on the way home, beginning the practice of street caroling.

In England, carols reached their height of popularity in the 15th century. More than 500 English carols from that century still survive today. The earliest printed Christmas carol, the Boar's Head Carol (1521), is still sung annually at Balliol College in Oxford, England.

The custom of singing carols declined during the middle of the 17th century, due to Puritan disapproval of feasts and celebrations. In the late 17th and early 18th century, carols were looked upon as inferior forms of poetry and were neglected by most people.

It wasn't until the 19th century when carols were revived by the movement of the Anglican Church of the Oxford, an organization which emphasized religious traditions.

Today, many Christian countries have their own Christmas carols.

In Germany they are called Weihnachtslieder and in France they go by the name of noels. Many of today's popular carols were originally written in another language.

Among the best-known and favorite carols of today include the Latin "Adeste Fideles (O Come, All Ye Faithful)" and the German "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht (Silent Night, Holy Night)."

Popular American carols include "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear."

Several Eastern students said they plan to keep up the tradition and spread the good word of Christmas by caroling on campus.

Residents of Ford and Carman halls are planning to carol at local nursing homes, Bob Shockley and Laura Marshall, hall presidents, said.

Residents of Lincoln Hall will also perform carols for hall residents, Kim Morris, hall president, said.

Tips offered for homemade decorations

by Dana Eastridge

Finding money for Christmas decorations is frequently a problem for college students, but that doesn't mean students have to give up decorating.

Diane Ridgeway, Union Craft Depot coordinator, has a few suggestions for inexpensive, homemade decorations.

A German bell may be easily constructed and requires few materials.

Oragami paper, a type of paper made especially to be folded, is excellent for this purpose, Ridgeway said.

To construct the bell, a square piece of paper is needed. Any size is possible, as long as it is large enough to be folded easily.

The paper is folded in half from top to bottom and sharply creased. Unfold the paper and fold it in half from side to side, crease and unfold.

The next step is to fold the paper diagonally from the top righthand corner to the bottom lefthand corner, crease and unfold. Repeat this step working in the opposite direction, from top left to bottom right.

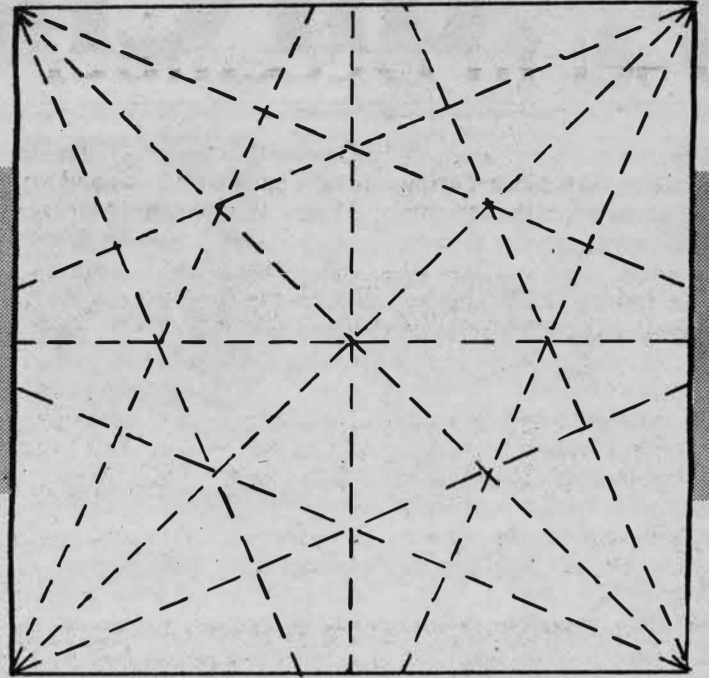

Now take the bottom righthand corner and fold it so the bottom edge meets the diagonal line running at a 45-degree angle to it, crease and unfold.

This step must be repeated with each corner.

When the folding is finished, each side should have an isocetes triangle formed at the bottom.

Push the triangle up so the four edge-points touch to form one point and straighten out the bottom of the bell so it is reasonably flat.

The four points may be glued together and a string poked through the top so the bell can be hung from the Christmas tree.

Ridgeway also said she recommends a braided wreath as an inexpensive and simple decoration.

The wreath is created from cloth tubes, stuffed with material and braided together to form a circle. A bow is tied to the bottom as a decorative touch.

Materials needed for the wreath include three cloth strips, 3 1/2 to 4 inches wide, and rags, old hosiery or polyester filler to be used as stuffing.

The length of the cloth strips determines the size of the wreath. For a diameter of 1 foot, the strips should be 42 inches long.

Another piece of fabric, 36 by 1 1/2 inches, is needed for the bow.

The first step is to fold each cloth strip lengthwise, wrong side out. Sew along the edge and also one end, leaving the other end open so the tube can be stuffed. Turn the tube right side out.

Now stuff each tube so that it is packed solidly, then sew up the open end.

Pin the three tubes together at one end, then braid.

Sew the ends together to form the wreath. If three different types of material are used, sew the corresponding ends together.

The bow is made by hemming the remaining piece of fabric's edges, then tying a bow. When a satisfactory shape is achieved, sew the bow onto the wreath over the joint made when the wreath was sewn together.

Hanukkah celebration also set in December

James Talley
Two celebrations take place during the month of December, although one of the holidays may not be as well known as Christmas.

Hanukkah, a festival in the Jewish religion, is known as the "Festival of Lights."

According to Jewish legend as written in "Jewish Holidays" by Margaret Oyler, the Syrians ruled over the Jewish people more than 2,000 years ago in the land now known as Israel. The Syrians believed in the Greek religion, in which the Jews did not participate.

The Syrians' king, Antiochus, tried to force the Jews to give up their religion and worship the Greek gods.

Antiochus sent his soldiers into the temples of the Jews and had them slaughter pigs as a gift to Zeus and set up a statue of him on the Jewish altar.

The temple, which was a holy shrine, was no longer pure.

Antiochus then sent his soldiers back to the temples, where they either stole or destroyed the beautiful artwork of the Jewish religion.

Many Jews were then tortured and Jewish women and children were sold into slavery.

However, one Jewish family, the Maccabees, would not tolerate such behavior. The Maccabees escaped to the mountains and formed an army to battle the Syrians.

The Syrians attacked them many times, sometimes even riding elephants into battle. But the Jewish people fought back with bows and arrows.

Even though the Maccabees were outnumbered, they were able to succeed in defeating the Syrian army by the countless ambushes on the Syrian troops.

When the war was over, the Maccabees and their troops returned to Jerusalem to see what damage the Syrians had done to their temples.

They were heartbroken to see statues of Greek gods and goddesses everywhere. Dirt and pig's blood covered the floor and the altar was smashed, but the Jews began to rebuild their temple to its original form.

According to the legends that came out of these events, when the Jews tried to light the menorah, which is either an oil burning lamp or a candlelabrum used in Jewish worship, they found only one flask of oil left that would last just one night.

The next visit by the man who sold them oil was still eight days away, causing the Jews great despair.

But by some miracle, the oil in the lamp lasted eight days until the new oil arrived.

Because of this miracle, Hanukkah is celebrated in the home for eight days, with a new candle lit every day until eight candles burn together on the menorah.

This year, Hanukkah begins at nightfall Dec. 11 and ends at nightfall Dec. 19.

50-50 chance for white Christmas

by Maureen Foertsch

Charleston residents who are dreaming of a white Christmas this year may have their wish come true, local weather expert Dalias Price predicted recently.

"Chances are 50-50 that we will have snow on the ground at Christmas in Charleston," Price said.

"I would say that we will have a white Christmas. I'd bet on it if I were a gambling person—but I'm not," he added.

Price said he based his prediction of a white Christmas on his expectations of colder-than-average December temperatures and a greater-than-average amount of precipitation.

"When the temperatures are low, the chances are greater for snow than rain," he said.

Last year the weather was cold and wet enough to bring large amounts of snow during the Christmas season.

"Heavy snow fell a few days before Christmas last year," Price said.

"Last year we had heavy snow on Dec. 18 and 19 and an inch on Dec. 21 and 23, which left three inches on the ground on Christmas day," Price said.

Although Price is expecting an above average amount of snow in Charleston this December, he said "the snowfall shouldn't be above average in comparison with last year."

"This year a similar pattern might be seen, but the date that the snow will fall is iffy—no one really knows," he said.

Choral concert scheduled

by Kathy Roesler

Tradition has it that angels were moved to song on the first Christmas Eve, and ever since music has added a vital note of joy to the season's celebrations.

Eastern's choral department will celebrate the season's music when they present their annual Christmas concert at 4 and 8 p.m. Sunday in the Fine Arts Center's Dvorak Concert Hall.

Concert goers will find the concert hall filled with poinsettias and holiday decorations as they are entertained by the music of Eastern's three choruses: the Cecilian Singers, the Mixed Choir and the Concert Choir, Robert E. Snyder of the music department said.

Before the concert and between the performances of each choir, the audience will hear members of the Wesley United Methodist Church Bell Choir under the direction of Susan Balmer.

Director James Brinkman and the Cecilian Singers will begin the concert with a taste of the familiar. Snyder said they will perform "A Sequence of Christmas Carols for Two Choirs," a medley of some of the most beloved traditional carols. Included in the medley will be such holiday favorites as

"The Holly and the Ivy" and "What Child is This?"

The second portion of the concert will feature the robed Mixed Choir under the direction of John Maharg. Mixed Choir numbers will include "Blessing Glory Wisdom and Thanks," "With Joyful Mirth" and "Lullaby on Christmas Eve."

Under Snyder's direction, the Concert Choir, donning formal dress, will complete the musical celebration of Christmas. Numbers the choir will perform include "Singet Frisch und Wohlgemut" and "Wake Awake."

As a special feature of the Concert Choir's performance, a string quartet of Eastern students and guest director Pattie Cunningham, an Eastern graduate student, will join in the performance of "Magnificat," Snyder said.

During certain portions of the concert, the audience will be given the chance to join with the choirs in singing traditional carols, he added.

Tickets for the concert will be $2 for adults and $1 for Eastern students and senior citizens. They may be purchased at the Fine Arts ticket booth.

Charleston planning activities for Christmas

by Douglas Backstrom

Several organizations in Charleston are planning an array of special holiday events to help residents get in the mood of Christmas and chase away the sour Scrooge.

The events, including downtown Charleston decorations and special Christmas services, will be sponsored by various organizations from the Charleston area.

Dick Stark, a member of the Charleston Jaycees, said, "We will be having our annual underprivileged shopping tour. We get about 40 underprivileged children from the Charleston area and we will get them some necessities (clothing and toys)."

Mark Eden, Jaycees' president, said, "The Jaycees will also hold a Christmas party for the mentally and physically handicapped residents of Ashmore State Hospital."

"We will be playing Santa Claus and Santa will also be in the Spurgeon's Department Store window. We have also decorated the downtown Charleston area," Stark added.

Beta Sigma Phi fraternity members will be carolling for various senior citizens' homes in the area and for senior citizens in the fraternity's neighborhood, a fraternity member said.

Remember meaning of real Christmas trees

Probably the most-used symbol of the Christmas season is the Christmas tree. But for all the publicity given to them, many people seem to have forgotten what Christmas trees really are—and by this I mean real trees, not paper, plastic or aluminum facsimiles.

The Christmas tree is traditionally a symbol of everlasting life, since evergreens are one of the few varieties of trees (besides the confused oak tree in my parents' front yard) that keep their leaves in the cold winter months.

Therefore, bringing a green tree inside in December also brings a little life indoors and serves as a symbol of hope for a better tomorrow—all those good things the Christmas spirit is supposed to stand for.

In addition to upholding an age-old practice, having a real Christmas tree has other benefits.

Going to pick out the perfect tree is a heart-warming experience everyone should have the chance to share with his family. Especially when your family consists of five opinionated people, all with different ideas on what "perfect" is.

If you're a dyed-in-the-wool Christmas-tree traditionalist, the best part about picking your tree is driving out to a farm where you can cut your own from a forest of pines. The end result of this is always the same:

"Which one do we want?"
 "Well, it's between this one and the one we saw when we first came in."
 "You mean that one? I thought it was that one over there."
 "No, I'm sure it was that one."

Personal file:

Linda Fraembs

"This one?"
 "No, that one!"

By this time, of course, you're totally disoriented and have to start all over again.

But nothing makes a house smell better than bringing pine indoors. Why do you think companies that manufacture cleaning liquids scent them all that way? The wonderful smell even makes it easy to forgive the tree for spitting that sticky sap all over you.

Christmas is a tree decorated with the unmatched ornaments your family has been using as long as you can remember, and you can always hide the crooked clay basket you made when you were 4 years old and the pipe-cleaner snowmen's heads on the innermost branches.

Christmas is a real tree.

Precautions necessary with trees

by Mary Hendricks

Although the Christmas tree is one of the most significant symbols of the Christmas season, it can be a potential fire hazard.

Whether a real or an artificial tree is purchased, certain fire precautions should be taken to ensure a safe Christmas this year.

Les Hickenbottom, assistant fire chief at the Charleston Fire Department, said a main concern is to make certain that a real tree is freshly cut.

He added that since the tree is bought fresh it needs to be kept that way. The fire department recommends daily watering and flame treatment.

Charleston Fire Protection Sales and Services, 741 6th St., sells "Flame Stop," a fire-proof treatment to be added to the tree's water, for $1.50 per pound.

Hickenbottom also suggested that the tree, artificial or real, be positioned away from heaters and stoves.

He added all Christmas tree lights should be approved by the Underwriters Laboratory (UL) and all connections should be checked to see that they are tight and circuits are not overloaded.

"It's best not to use extension cords, but if you have to use one make sure that it fits the electrical charge," Hickenbottom said.

Live trees are not permitted in any of Eastern's residence halls because of the potential fire hazard, housing representative Ken Henkins said.

However, artificial trees are permitted as long as they have proper lighting, he added.

"The only place live trees are allowed is in the main lobbies. Each tree (in the lobbies) is (flame) treated by the physical plant," Henkins said.

Distance prevents several students from going home

by Carl Pugliese

Although the song says "It's a small world after all," the fact is that it's not such a small world. Foreign students attending Eastern know this is true because some won't be able to go home for the holidays.

Junior Latifah Daud said she will not go as far as her home country of Malaysia for Christmas, but will instead visit friends in Florida.

Daud added that even though she enjoys giving Christmas gifts, she won't miss not celebrating Christmas because it is not part of her Muslim religion.

Elena Paguio, a graduate student from the Phillipines, said she will be staying in Charleston for the holidays, but "will ring up my folks and wish them a Merry Christmas."

Paguio said although she misses her family and she will miss not being with them at Christmas, she is not unhappy with being away from them and is still excited about being on her own for the first time.

"I know I'm going to miss them," she said, "but there is excitement in being away on my own."

She said there are no winters in the Phillipines so she is eagerly awaiting the Midwest's snowy winters.

Junior Dermot Kelly, who is from Ireland, said he will venture as far as a northern Chicago suburb to stay with a friend over the holidays.

Kelly added he will call his parents a week before Christmas because he has not been able to get through when he has tried calling his parents on Christmas day in the past.

Andreas Esser, a graduate student from Germany, said he will be able to return home at Christmas for three weeks.

Esser said in Germany, citizens celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25 and 26.

On Dec. 25, Esser said his family celebrates with a big dinner, usually eating goose, and then exchanges gifts.

On Dec. 26, he said, everyone visits friends. No one works on either one of the days.

Esser said the Christmas season in Germany begins with the lighting of the advent candles on the fourth Sunday before the traditional Christmas day.

He said on Dec. 6, "Saint Nikolas" appears to put presents in the children's boots and socks.

Esser said the commercialism of Christmas that everyone complains about in America exists in Germany as well. Companies begin advertising and capitalizing on Christmas in November.

Graham Whitehead, a sophomore from England, said he thinks Christmas is commercialized more in his native country than it is in America.

Whitehead said he has not seen many Christmas advertisements while living here but added, "If I was in England, they would have started (advertising) back in October."

Teams give up break to compete

by James Talley

Although most students are probably looking forward to going home for Christmas break, some of Eastern's athletes will be giving up part of their breaks for the sake of competition.

The men's basketball team is scheduled to visit Illinois State University Dec. 22 and will then move on to a series of games in Hawaii against Brigham Young University, Hawaii Pacific University and the University of Hawaii from Jan. 3-7, Dave Kidwell, Eastern sports information director, said.

He added the women's basketball team is also scheduled to compete over break. The team will travel to the Central Missouri Tournament on Jan. 7 and Jan. 8.

Members of Eastern's wrestling team will be attending the Midlands Tournament in Evanston, Ill., Dec. 29-30, Kidwell said.

He added the wrestlers will be moving on to Tennessee to face a team from the University of Tennessee Jan. 10.

"As far as food and boarding are concerned, the individual sport's coaches will probably be responsible for the team's welfare," Kidwell said.

Food reflects holiday spirit

by Sheila Billerbeck

When thinking of Christmas, images come to mind of snow-covered ground or a green pine tree with flashing ornaments and a bountiful amount of presents underneath. But perhaps the best part of Christmas is all the goodies Mom and Grandma have baking in the oven.

People associate good food with good times. Who can imagine Christmas without those cookies shaped like snowmen and Christmas trees? Or the feast of food that Mom has labored over, including hams, turkeys and pies?

A home economics class at Eastern can give students a chance to cook those same kinds of meals. The course, "Demonstration Techniques," offers two sections with a total of approximately 44 students involved, Edith Hedges, instructor for one of the classes, said.

"Demonstration Techniques is simply a class where students learn to do demonstrations," Hedges said. "It builds up your self-confidence."

She added the students do a variety of things with the food, with creativity and originality being the key concepts of this class.

"I had one student who demonstrated Christmas canned bread. She baked the bread in the can and then decorated the outside of the can to give as a gift," Hedges explained.

The students get an opportunity to demonstrate their projects in class, on television and in public. Food is not the only area covered in this class. There are also crafts, sewing and kitchen demonstration.

Hedges offered the following Christmas recipes, proven successful in her class, to make the season joyful and delicious:

Kate's Snow Mountain

1 package devil's food cake mix
8 ounces frozen whipped topping, thawed
24 candy kisses

Mix and bake in 24-cupcake pan as directed on package. Cool. Place cakes upside down and slice each into two or three layers. Spread whipped topping between layers, about 1/2 inch thick. Top mountains with last of whipped topping. Add the candy kiss on top.

Creamy Egnog

6 eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 (1.5 ounce) envelope whipped topping mix
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons bourbon
Ground nutmeg

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add 1/4 cup sugar, beating until stiff peaks form; set aside.

Prepare whipped topping mix according to package; set aside.

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually add remaining sugar and bourbon, beating well.

Fold yolk-bourbon mixture and prepared whipped topping into egg whites. Spoon eggnog into individual serving glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes approximately two quarts.

Hot Ham and Cheese Balls

2 cups of ground cooked ham
2 cups fine toasted bread crumbs
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 minced onion
4 tablespoons chopped parsley

Combine ham with 1 1/2 cups of bread crumbs, the cheese, eggs, onions and parsley. Roll into small balls and coat evenly with remaining bread crumbs.

Heat fat in deep fryer at 360 degrees and fry cheese balls until crisp. Serve on toothpicks and dunk in favorite sauces: hot mustard, horseradish, sour cream or chili sauce.

Dream Nut Fudge

1 3-ounce package cream cheese
2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar
2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Beat cream cheese until soft and smooth. Slowly blend in sugar, extract, nuts and chocolate. Press in greased 9-by-5-by-3 inch loaf pan. Refrigerate until firm; cut into squares.

Mom's Christmas Tree

1 package chocolate cake mix
1/2 gallon mint or mint chip ice cream
12-ounce jar chocolate sauce

Mix and bake cake as directed on package in 10-inch tube or fluted pan. Cool. Using scooper, scoop out ice cream balls and put in freezer. Remove cake from pan and put on serving dish and cover top with scoops of ice cream, building up layer after layer to make a Christmas tree. Dribble chocolate sauce all over. Freeze until ready to serve.
