Administrators react to student aid slash

by Lori Edwards

Eastern instructors and administrators said Monday President Ronald Reagan's proposed cuts in financial aid for higher education will hurt Eastern students if they are passed by Congress.

Reagan's proposed budget for the federal department of education in fiscal year 1986 includes a 27 percent cut in financial aid which will force one million students to find other funding sources for their education.

Although figures on how many Eastern students would be affected by the cuts were not available Monday, more than 2,000 students at Eastern received grants in 1984. That figure does not include loans.

Eastern's Financial Aids Director John Flynn said the proposed budget would have an adverse effect on Eastern students because "anytime you cut it (financial aid), it will cut students."

Economics Chairman Ahmad Murad agreed, saying the proposed cuts "would hurt students at Eastern and over the nation."

He added that the cuts were "expected, in a way, from the Reagan administration."

Political science instructor Joe Connelly said the cuts will make it more difficult to get an education, and could have serious effects on some students.

"You knew what was coming," Connelly said. "He campaigned on it (education cuts)."

University Relations Director Daniel Thornburgh said although the proposed budget would have an effect on students, it would not be a major deterrent to higher education.

"Students will find a means by which they can do it (finance their education) on their own," Thornburgh said. "Americans can take things in their stride and meet challenges."

However, instructors agreed that the proposed budget is not likely to receive Congressional approval as it is currently written.

"Student aid will take cuts, but I do not believe they (Congress) would go with what they have now," Flynn said.

Thornburgh noted, "Congress is far

Area legislators to oppose cut

by Kevin McDermott

Several area legislators said Monday they will oppose President Reagan's proposed 27 percent cut in financial aid for college students for the fiscal year 1986 federal budget.

U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Ill., called the educational budget proposal released by the White House "drastic."

"We realize, and I know college students realize, that we need a balanced budget," Bruce said. "But I think it is a short-sighted policy to cut educational funding."

Bruce added that the money saved by the cuts will not make up for economic problems the nation may face in the future due to a lack of "high-tech" education and other education-related shortcomings.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., has been a major proponent of freezing government spending at the current level to shrink the federal deficit.

However, Wade Nelson, Dixon's Washington press secretary, said Monday Dixon will also oppose Reagan's proposed cuts in student aid.

"He (Dixon) supports the idea of an across-the-board freeze on all government spending," Wade said. "But he would oppose any cuts in education (See AREA, page 3) more attuned to the nation's needs than perhaps the president is in this case, and far more supportive of higher education."

"Education has become a very expensive item," he added.

Connelly said a "pseudo compromise" will be reached, but some cuts will go through.

The biggest proposed cuts come in the Guaranteed Student Loans and Pell Grants where a family's $32,500 adjusted gross income would eliminate a student from receiving a loan and $25,000 would deny the student a (See ADMINISTRATORS, page 3)

Budget criticized

Democrats label Reagan's deficit a 'fantasy budget'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans and Democrats complained Monday that President Reagan's newly released budget for 1986 was too generous to the Pentagon, but also agreed the administration will win at least some of its requested $39 billion in domestic spending cuts.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, predicted Congress would approve "some variation" of the $974 billion plan that the president formally signed over in a White House ceremony, but even Republicans edged away from embracing the president's proposals in their entirety.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., described Reagan's plan as a "starting point," and said, "I do not endorse every recommendation."

In the Senate, majority Republicans repeated their vow to seek cuts in the president's proposed $30 billion hike in Pentagon spending.

GOP Leader Robert Dole of Kansas proposed cutting Reagan's defense increase in half, while Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, declared that a defense spending freeze was the "absolute minimum requirement."

Hatfield, among the budget's sharpest critics, said Reagan had proposed a "fantasy budget conceived in the land of never-ending deficits."

Democrats responded with some of their sharpest criticism since Reagan won re-election last November in a 49-state landslide.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Reagan's proposal ty to Middle America." but said it would receive "serious consideration" in Congress.

Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, also called on Reagan to accept cuts in his defense proposal, but said he hopes to lower deficits next year by $40 billion to $50 billion, close to the president's goal of $51 billion.

Reagan proposed cutting deficits to $180 billion next year through a series of spending freezes, deeper cuts and outright terminations in domestic programs.

The total of $39 billion in domestic cuts includes ending the $4.6 billion revenue sharing program to local governments; imposing larger costs on the users of Medicare; eliminating the federal subsidy for Amtrak; cutting the pay of federal workers by 5 percent and making deep cuts in farm and education programs. The Small Business Administration would be abolished, as would the Job Corps and the Legal services Corp.

Governor to address economy

SPRINGFIELD—One day after becoming Illinois' longest-serving chief executive, Governor Thompson was to outline a massive public works program Tuesday in his ninth annual State of the State message.

Unlike past years, when he used the speech to map legislative proposals in a variety of areas, Thompson said he would devote the entire State of the State address this year to one topic, improving Illinois' economy through a massive public construction program.

Two weeks ago the Republican governor outlined his proposed multibillion-dollar "Build Illinois" program, saying the state needed to overhaul its roads, bridges, school buildings and equipment and sewers.

Thompson tied the proposal to his efforts to revitalize the state's economy and bring new industry to Illinois.

"It doesn't do any good to pursue jobs if you don't have a state that is ready to receive them, at least in the perception of the business community," Thompson said.

Judge Miller requests aid for debt

SPRINGFIELD—An Illinois Supreme Court justice has asked lawyers who practice before the court to help erase his campaign debt, raising anew the question of whether judges compromise themselves by jumping into the political arena to win office.

The fund-raising appeal on behalf of Justice Ben Miller of Springfield appears to fall within ethical guidelines set by the legal profession, but lawyers and others say it's wrong regardless.

"It's not illegal, it's not unethical, it is nauseating," George Galland, president of the Chicago Council of Lawyers, a legal reform group, said.

"Justice is not yet for sale, but after a few more years of this, it damn well will be," Galland said.

Proponents of "merit selection" or appointments of judges say it will bolster their efforts in the Illinois General Assembly this year to scrap judicial elections.

Senate committee predicts deficit may cause cuts in defense budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee told Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger on Monday that Congress may try to cut by nearly half the spending growth proposed in the Pentagon's $277.5 billion budget.

Weinberger warned that such a reduction would imperil President Reagan's military buildup, remove Soviet incentives to negotiate seriously at nuclear arms talks, and might compel the mustering out of two divisions of combat troops, triggering increased domestic unemployment.

But senator after senator from both parties made clear they believe reductions in the defense buildup will be made, with the only question being how much and where. None were heard to predict that defense spending will not be trimmed.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the committee chairman, said that while he opposes a freeze on defense spending as "highly irresponsible," he believes that "all areas of the government have helped to create the deficit and now all must contribute to reducing it."

"Defense is no exception," Goldwater said.
Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., a former Armed Services chairman and a staunch military advocate, told Weinberger, "I have a growing apprehension about the financial affairs of the government . . . I may not vote for all these items this year . . . I'm going to vote for something that I think has a chance of passing."

"The defense budget is going to be cut," Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said. "Everybody around here knows it."

Red Army launches new offensive

BONN, West Germany (AP)—For more than a decade, the anarchist Red Army Faction terrorized Western Europe, emerging from underground hideouts to murder businessmen and government officials, and bomb U.S. Army bases.

Now the shadowy terrorist group, largely dormant in the past four years, has launched a new offensive in its war against West German capitalism and U.S. "imperialism."

The latest victim was prominent industrialist Ernst Zimmermann, 55, chairman of West Germany's giant MTU turbine works, who was shot and critically wounded Friday at his home outside Munich by a man and a woman armed with a machine pistol.

Federal investigators blamed the attack on the Red Army Faction, which had vowed to assassinate prominent West German figures in connection with a two-month hunger strike by imprisoned gang members.

Thirty jailed Red Army Faction members and nine sympathizers began a protest fast in several West German prisons in early December, demanding to be housed together and treated as political prisoners.

Since then, nearly 60 bomb and arson attacks have been directed against American, French and West German interests across the country, the Bonn Interior Ministry said, with more than 100 linked to Red Army activists.

Five jailed gang members, including second-generation leaders Christian Klar and Brigitte Mohnhaupt, have abandoned the hunger strike.

Calls to Rape Line increase

by Andrew Leyden

Despite local law enforcement figures showing a decrease in the number of rapes, Charleston's Help Line-Rape Line service received a record high number of calls in 1984.

Although a total of eight rapes were reported to Coles County law enforcement agencies, Bonnie Buckley, Coles County Women Against Rape Coordinator, said the Rape Line-Help Line service received 22 calls concerning rapes during the period of Oct. 1, 1983 to Sept. 30, 1984.

"This is the highest number ever received," she added. "Of those 22, 11 were Eastern students; six were from out of Coles County; two were people having problems from rapes that occurred in previous years. Also, two were children under 13, and one was a women over 60."

However, Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said "We had only two reported rapes last year (during the school year), and both of those occurred in 1983. So actually, we didn't have any reported rapes in 1984."

Charleston Police Detective Charles VanGundy reported that the Charleston Police received only three rape reports in 1984 which is a decrease from 1983.

The only agency to report an increase in the number of reported rapes was the Coles County Sheriff's department. Capt. Lonny Cooper said his office received five rape reports in 1984, as compared to one in 1983.

However, he added, "The (1984) number is a little high because in one case the victim had falsified a police report and in another, no complaint was filed."

In addition, in all the cases reported, only one conviction was made. VanGundy said the Charleston police arrested a former Eastern student in connection with a rape which occurred last year.

However, all three officers noted their figures are based only on reported rapes. "We have no way of knowing the actual amount of rapes that occurs," Larson said.

VanGundy said the reason for the difference in number of police reports and Rape Line calls is due to the fact that "women are sometimes reluctant to discuss it (being raped) with police because they feel embarrassed."

Counseling Center Director Bud Sanders said his office "gets less than ten rape victims a year for counseling," but added, "I think we only see one-fourth or one-fifth of the actual number of rape victims."

Buckley said the Rape Line does not require victims to file police reports. "They (victims) have often lost control of their lives, and we don't want to make them do things. We give them choices and let them decide."

Larson, VanGundy, and Cooper all said they would like to see rape victims report attacks to the proper authorities quickly so the proper steps to find the attacker can be taken.

Larson said, "By coming forward quickly we have a chance to search the crime scene for evidence needed for a conviction that may be lost if we were to arrive a few days later."

Schick proposes adult education renovation plan

by Jean Wright

Edgar Schick, vice president for academic affairs, will propose to the Faculty Senate Tuesday a reorganization plan for the Adult and Continuing Education programs.

Under the proposal, Margaret Soderberg, associate vice president for academic affairs, would also be in charge of Continuing Education and Career Occupation degrees.

Soderberg is currently in charge of the Board of Governors Degree program.

The Board of Governors degree program is an individualized program for working adults that requires no major and knowledge acquired by non-academic means can be evaluated for credit. The degree requires that 15 semester hours be completed at any Board of Governors university.

Schick will also propose that Larry Williams, graduate school dean, be named the dean of research and assume responsibility for faculty development.

Ken Sutton, faculty senate chairman, described this proposal as an effort to "get everything under one umbrella." The graduate school dean would assume the responsibilities of the research school and co-ordinate the two departments.

The senate, which will hold its meeting at 2 p.m. in the Union Martinsville room, will continue its discussion of minority enrollment and will hear testimony from Cal Campbell, director of academic assistance. Sutton said Campbell will inform the senate about student orientation and add to information they already have.

Discussion of summer school also will resume to see if there are enough funds so that 50 percent of all departments would be involved.

Sutton also said three personnel matters will be discussed during the executive session of the meeting.

grant. Flynn said there are no limits now on the grant program because it is strictly based on need.

"I don't think Congress will put a limit at $32,500 for guaranteed loans," Flynn said. He added that the U.S. Department of Education Service had earlier recommended a $35,000 ceiling which Congress may consider.

Reagan's proposed budget also includes a $4,000 "mega cap." This is defined as an ultimate limit on the total federal aid a student may receive from loans, grants and subsidized campus jobs.

Flynn said there may be a limit placed on the total amount of financial aid a student can receive, but said he does not believe Congress will approve a $4,000 limit.

Reagan's proposal also requires students to earn $800 toward their college expenses before becoming eligible for a grant or loan as part of a self-help expectation.

In addition, the proposal includes an attempt to restrict the number of independent students by considering all students under age 22 as dependent on their parents unless they were orphans or wards of the court.

Acting Education Secretary Gary L. Jones said the cuts were part of a "major philosophical shift" to return "to the traditional emphasis on parent and student responsibility for financing college costs."

Flynn said the cuts were introduced as "trial balloons, to see what gets shot at."

He added that defense had not yet taken any cuts and most of the programs would be open to compromises in their proposed budgets.

below the current (spending) level."

State Rep. Michael Weaver, R-Charleston, said Monday that very little can be done from the state level to influence the makeup of the federal education budget.

He added that Illinois' higher education system is very reliant on that budget.

"A lot of the (higher education) funding that the state awards comes from the federal level," Weaver said. "It (the proposed budget cut) comes at a particularly bad time for us. We have right now one whale of an educational budget in Illinois. (If it passes) We're going to be faced with re-funding education from a source other than property taxes."

However, Bruce said he did not believe Reagan's proposals on education would find their way into the federal budget. "The president's budget (proposals) for the past three years has had no one who would sponsor it," Bruce said. "Out of courtesy for the president, his proposal will be presented (to Congress), but he will have difficulty getting it passed."

"I do not see any substantial cuts in financial aid (for fiscal 1986)," Bruce added.

Reagan's plan for budget cuts deserves death

"Reduce the deficit," has been a common cry by President Ronald Reagan since his first winning presidential campaign. It sounded like a necessary plan, and, no doubt, remains a valuable goal.

Unfortunately, in the process of balancing the budget, Reagan is attempting to make the process of attaining a higher education virtually unreachable for lower and middle-class students.

In addition to various other cuts in social programs, Reagan is asking Congress to reduce financial aid to college students by $2.3 billion—a 27 percent cut that would force more than 1 million students to dig a bit further into their already near empty pocketbooks.

The forms of aid most likely to be sliced by the blade of Reagan's budget-slashing knife are Guaranteed Student Loans and Pell Grants. These are two popular forms of aid for students from middle-income families.

Also, students would be required to pay $800 of their own before receiving a grant or loan. That's a lot of money for students already stretching meager funds.

And low-income families, which have already been set back by the current administration on several occasions, may be faced with a $4,000-per-student annual lid on total federal aid from loans, grants and work-study programs.

All this slicing and dicing is supposedly an attempt to return to the days when families worked and scrimped to send their brightest child through school.

What it sounds like is a plan to ensure that only the wealthy will go to college.

But hope has not run out. Congress has yet to approve Reagan's budget. Thus, there is still time to lobby in full force to get our representatives to oppose the education cuts.

Students helped to give Reagan his near-landslide victory. And now the president has turned his back to them. Such action should not be tolerated.

If a fight is put up, we may still be able to afford the enormous price of a higher education. That's the American way. Not the way of the elite.

Your turn

Pondering petition

Editor:

In reading your article on the petition to dissolve funding for the student senate, I became disgusted and infurated at the opinions of Senate Speaker Ron Wesel and Student Body President Angelynn Richardson. Both sound like aristocrats who don't care why the serfs complain that their crops are being taken from them.

Wesel is the worst of these two pseudo-politico aristocrats. He knows the student community no longer considers the senate to be the representative body of the students, but still propagates its existence because the Board of Governors and Eastern President Stanley Rives must approve Prendville's petition which Wesel assumes is impossible. Wesel isn't "worried" because Rives is the one who must ponder how effective and useful the senate is for the students. What Wesel has to ponder is how wonderful all his titles will look on his resume so some other politico will hire him.

As for Richardson, well, we can call her the Marie Antoinette of Eastern. She sits on her presidential throne and proclaims that a thousand students concerned about the effectiveness of their legislative body are doing a 'foolish' thing by signing Prendville's petition. To remind Richardson, the foolish thing that is being done, is a petition is being passed around to end funding for a group of self-serving individuals who take idiotic retreats, indulge in a night of drunken debauchery and blame their troubles on a man who's philosophical belief is pranks and debauchery. My God—who is being foolish, a thousand concerned students or a handful of self-righteous student senators.

There is concern in the student community about one of the most fundamental institutions of this country—a truly representative legislative body. It is obvious from the article that the two highest representatives of the students do not have our concerns in mind. We must now appeal to a higher authority. Prendville has begun this process and should be commended.

Now I would also personally appeal to president Rives to do the bare minimum by stopping the Student Senate from going on retreats and at the most consider a reappraisal of student government.

What can the students do? Where is their "common refuge" to stop the senate? It is in Prendville's petition. Sign It!

Butler is like Nixon

Editor:

The impeachment of Joe Butler brings to mind an event in our nation's recent history—the resignation of Richard Nixon as president of the United States.

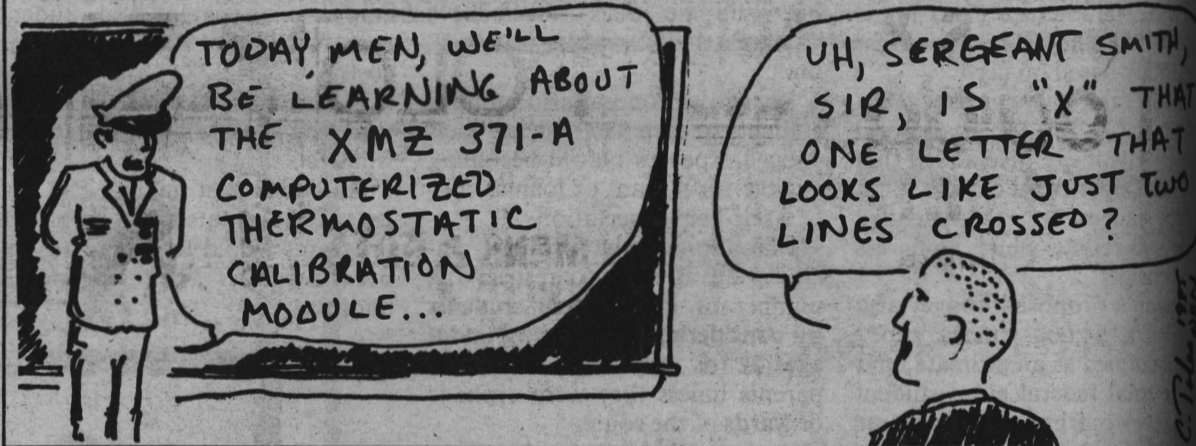

Both men were overwhelmingly elected by the people. Both were forced from office.

However, while former president Nixon can claim great accomplishment, such as opening relations with mainland China, Butler's term is almost barren of accomplishment.

He did bring disgrace to the university. He did gain great personal publicity. And he did make a total fool of himself. I suppose he did what he could do best.

THE LONG-RANGE EFFECTS OF REAGAN'S LARGE CUTS IN EDUCATION FUNDS AND SMALL CUTS IN DEFENSE FUNDS.

Fun ways to cope with writer's block

It's called writer's block. Its symptom: simple inability to think of something to write about. Its causes range from fear of saying something stupid to drawing a complete blank everytime you sit at the typewriter.

In all honesty, I am suffering from writer's block today.

Oh sure, I could join the legions of Joe Butler fanatics, but frankly, I don't have anything enlightening to add to the millions of letters piled atop my desk.

Or I could complain about Reagan's budget cuts, but money and I don't mix, in print or in actuality.

Thus, I have decided to give some free advice on how to handle this strange phenomenon known as writer's block.

The next time you are told to dream up some brilliant idea without any guidance from anyone, tell the teacher that you have never had an original thought in your life and would like a list of topics to discuss. Then you won't feel like you chose a useless subject.

If your teacher insists that part of your grade will stem from originality, you have three choices: stare at the typewriter, write about some inane topic or drink heavily.

Generally, people always attempt the first course of action before daring either of the next two. By carrying out this process, we feel that we have really made a wholehearted attempt to be brilliant. It's even more effective if we do this in front of roommates and friends because they may pity us and lend us topics which have worked for them in the past.

This process always helps us to reaffirm our beliefs in a power greater than ourselves. We often believe that some mystic force will cause beautiful, literary words to form on the paper without even lifting a finger. All in all, staring at the typewriter is a most worthwhile beginning to any written project.

What's the point?

Diane Schneidman

However, staring at the typewriter for more than about an hour will usually lead to the other choices if they were not used in the beginning.

Writing about inane topics is fun. We must attempt to cover-up the uselessness of our subject by sounding intelligent. Thesauruses prove most helpful.

Developing a clever introduction is fun too. My favorite all-purpose first paragraph reads as follows: "To understand dandruff, we must trace our steps back to the sands of ancient Egypt." Very few people really know what happened in ancient Egypt or before that time, so teachers find it difficult to argue the point.

Step two often leads to step three when it fails. Some folks opt to begin with heavy drinking. Brilliant thoughts often form in beer bubbles. The only problem with this choice is that the topic is generally forgotten in the morning.

So block those blocks, and remember, no one can be even semi-literate all the time.

Charleston

Council to decide on policy code

The Charleston City Council will take a final vote on a proposed personnel code at the regular council meeting Tuesday.

If passed, the personnel code would be the first for city employees. The proposed code would outline hiring and promotion, job safety, resignations and pay.

Currently, rules for city employees are only mentioned briefly in Charleston's city code.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers.

Charleston loses taxi service, but help is nearby

by Alan Dorward

Charleston has been left without taxicab service following the apparent disappearance of the Yellow Cab Co., of 725 Monroe, on Jan. 14.

Company owner Larry Kuhl could not be reached by phone last week, and Charleston officials are still baffled by the event.

"It's a mystery to us," City Administrator Mike Steele said. "Kuhl is not obligated to contact us. However, we wrote him a letter last Wednesday to get the status of his business, and he hasn't replied."

City Clerk Patsy Loew said Kuhl purchased the license about eight years ago and has renewed it annually since. Kuhl's whereabouts are unknown, and efforts to reach him at his last known address, R.R. 1, Charleston, have failed. Attempts to contact a former Yellow Cab driver, "Big John" Kaufman, have also been unsuccessful.

Mike Pope, manager of Coles County's only other taxicab service, which is based in Mattoon, said last week he enjoys the increased workload. "Business has improved recently, and I'm considering buying a cab to keep over here," Pope said.

Currently Pope is charging $5-per-passenger with a $10 minimum for trips between Charleston and Mattoon.

In the event that the owners of Yellow Cab are never found, application for a taxicab license is an easy process, Steele said. The city charges $100 for a license and requires liability insurance. Also included is a $25-per-cab fee pending approval by the city's Public Vehicle License Board.

Eastern seeks band director

by Tina Poszich
Eastern's music department is conducting a search for a new director of bands as the current music director's contract expires this year.

Current music director Greg Clemons received a two-year contract in 1983 because, at the time of his hiring, funding was not available for a longer contract period, DuWayne Hansen of the music department said.

Clemons is a possible candidate for the position; however, Hansen said Clemons will be required to apply for the job through the search process.

A five-member search committee has been appointed to conduct a nationwide search in order to find the best candidates and bring them to Eastern by April 1, Hansen said.

The position available is that of supervising administrator of the band program. The applicant would serve as a band recruiter, teach applied trumpet and conduct other classes.

The deadline for applications is March 1, he said.

Clemons noted that he has received offers for similar positions at other schools and if he doesn't receive the Eastern job, he'll "probably accept another offer at one of these universities."

Hansen added that there are many students interested in the outcome of this search and they may be allowed to have a part in the final portion of the search.

Music students might be allowed to watch the candidates conduct the bands, view video tapes of the applicants and listen to cassettes of the bands, Hansen said.

Marc Weiner to offer off-the-wall comedy

by Angela Paoli

If zany comedy is what you crave, Marc Weiner and the Weinerettes may satisfy your desire at an 8 p.m. performance Tuesday in the Grand Ballroom.

Weiner has "unique and college-level humor," Mike Putbrese, University Board special events coordinator, said.

"The Weinerettes are a group of puppets Weiner uses in part of his comedy routine," Putbrese said. Weiner is currently working on movies for Showtime and commercials.

Weiner has made appearances on Saturday Night Live, Late Night with David Letterman, Bizarre, Sesame Street and many other popular TV shows, Putbrese said.

In addition, Weiner has performed with numerous celebrities including Rolling Stone Ron Wood, Robin Williams, Joe Piscopo, Andy Kaufman, the Pointer Sisters, and the Police, Putbrese said.

In addition to Weiner's main performance, he will conduct a free workshop at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Walkway. Weiner will talk about himself as a comedian and how he became successful, Putbrese said.

Tickets for the evening performance will be $1 for Eastern students and $1.50 for the general public. Tickets are available at the Union Box Office. A two for one ticket may be purchased in advance with the hot dog coupon advertised in The Daily Eastern News.

Speech team captures 3rd at SIU-C

Eastern's speech team swept last weekend's meet at Southern Illinois University—Carbondale, garnering the first place ratings and a third overall rating in sweepstakes points.

Excluding the team's relative inexperience in Carbondale, team captain Tami Tallerico received first place rankings in two events, including prose interpretation and after dinner speaking.

Tallerico, a senior, also shared a first place mark with junior Barb Markwiese in duo interpretation.

Junior Steve Turner earned a first in dramatic interpretation, while junior Joanne Groeper received a first for poetry reading.

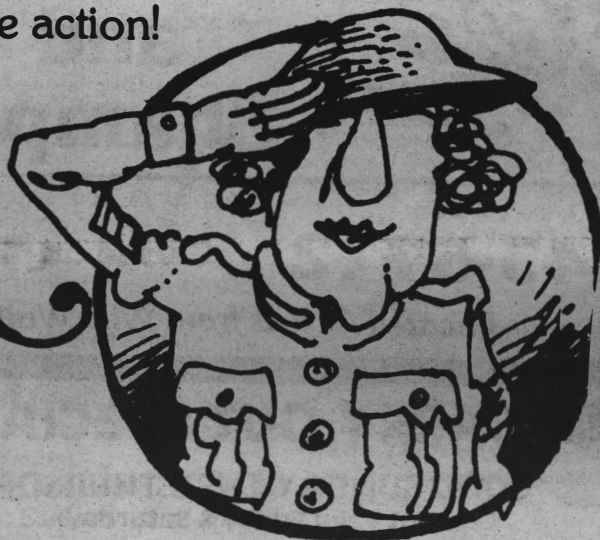

Eastern senior Sherri Blank received second place honors for poetry reading.

Worthen said the team competed against several other schools from Missouri, Tennessee, South Carolina, Alabama and Illinois.

The speech team competes Saturday at the University of Illinois.

Eastern's Dirk Androff banks home two of his career-high 20 points in Monday's 77-58 victory over Wisconsin-Green Bay. The win gave the Panthers sole possession of first place in the AMCU, one-half game ahead of Western Illinois. (News photo by Lisa Hoffert)

Eastern outmuscles Phoenix for 11th win

Men's Basketball

by Ken Dickson

Eastern's Dirk Androff and the rest of the Panthers muscled their way to a 77-58 basketball victory Monday over Wisconsin-Green Bay at Lantz Gym.

The win put Eastern all alone in first place in the Association of Mid-Continent Universities' conference at 5-1. Western Illinois, the Panthers' next opponent Thursday at Western Hall in Macomb, is 4-1.

In Monday's game, the Panthers, 11-6 overall and 8-0 in Lantz Gym, outrebounded the visiting Phoenix 46-20, and received a career-high 20 points and 10 rebounds from Androff. Center Kevin Duckworth added 14 points and eight rebounds.

"Those two guys are pretty big targets inside," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said of 6-7 Androff and 7-foot Duckworth. "I never thought of it, but we have over a quarter of a ton down there."

Androff and Duckworth made their presence felt on both ends of the court. In addition to Duckworth's scoring and rebounding tallies, the junior from Dolton, Ill., blocked five shots for a school record.

"Usually teams put their biggest man on Duckworth and their second biggest man on Androff," Samuels said. "When a forward takes on Dirk, he's usually not very strong. Dirk played exceptionally well tonight."

Androff, who on two occasions this season scored 17 points, erupted for 14 points in the second half to total 20 points on the evening.

"He's playing with more confidence every game," Samuels said of his power forward. "He's a power player. He spreads out, posts up and takes the ball to the hole. He's so strong."

In the past two games, including Saturday against Illinois-Chicago, Androff scored 37 points, collected 16 rebounds, and shot 15-for-20 from the field.

Eastern's post men weren't the only players to have good games. The guards, Troy Richardson and Doug Crook, combined for 18 points and 18 assists. Crook also had four steals and seven rebounds.

Added to Monday's offense was Jon Collins' 14 points and Paul Neidig's seven points late in the game off the bench.

Wisconsin-Green Bay's Richard Sims led the Phoenix with 15 points. The sophomore was on the AMCU All-Newcomer team last season.

• Illinois-Chicago, which Eastern beat Saturday, was destroyed Monday at Southwest Missouri, 101-81. The Flames, who were favored to win the AMCU, dropped to 2-3 in the conference.

Lady cagers' Maxey couldn't live without basketball

by Dan Verdun

Basketball is to Kim Maxey what oxygen is to life—essential.

"I love the game," Maxey said. "I can never see myself being around it."

It was that love for basketball that provided the motivation for the Eastern point guard to come back from a knee injury sustained during her senior year at Mattoon High School that nearly ended her career.

"I can't really remember it (injury) too much because I've tried to block it out," Maxey said. "I do remember the excruciating pain and I knew something was wrong."

Something was indeed wrong. For Maxey, who was averaging 21.2 points per game, the injury ended her high school career just 10 games into the season.

But the injury shattered more than just her knee. It shattered Maxey's life-long dream of playing college basketball for the University of Illinois.

Upon learning of her setback, Illinois dropped its interest in Maxey, who was Mattoon's all-time leading scorer with 1,405 points, despite missing the last 15 games.

"It was the biggest setback of my entire life," Maxey said. "I was so close to being there, playing for Illinois."

That opened the door for Eastern. Coach Barbara Hilke wrote Maxey a letter expressing the Panthers' interest.

"I had seen Kim play in high school and she was a heck of a ballplayer, but I knew she was pretty set on Illinois," Hilke recalled. "The injury had to be a terrible blow to a kid with her talent."

"In the letter, I told her that if she was interested in getting herself back into things, she could play at Eastern."

schools including Houston and Bradley, she decided to select Eastern upon meeting with Hilke and assistant coach Deanna D'Abbraccio.

"I was totally impressed with their personalities," Maxey recalled of the day she went into Hilke's office with crutches and a cast. "We discussed my education options."

"I owe a lot to them because they stuck with me when nobody else would. I respect them totally."

Once at Eastern, Maxey began the long road to recovery under the guidance of athletic trainer Cheryl Birkhead. The 5-foot-9 junior spent three months in a cast, followed by three more months in a splint. It took a year and a half before Maxey could play basketball, and that was with the aid of a knee-brace.

"I didn't like the brace—it really put me down psychologically," Maxey said. "I always wanted to take it off. I guess I expected too much, too soon."

Despite the cumbersome brace and the frustrating hours of painful rehabilitation, Maxey continued to pursue her new dream—playing basketball for Eastern.

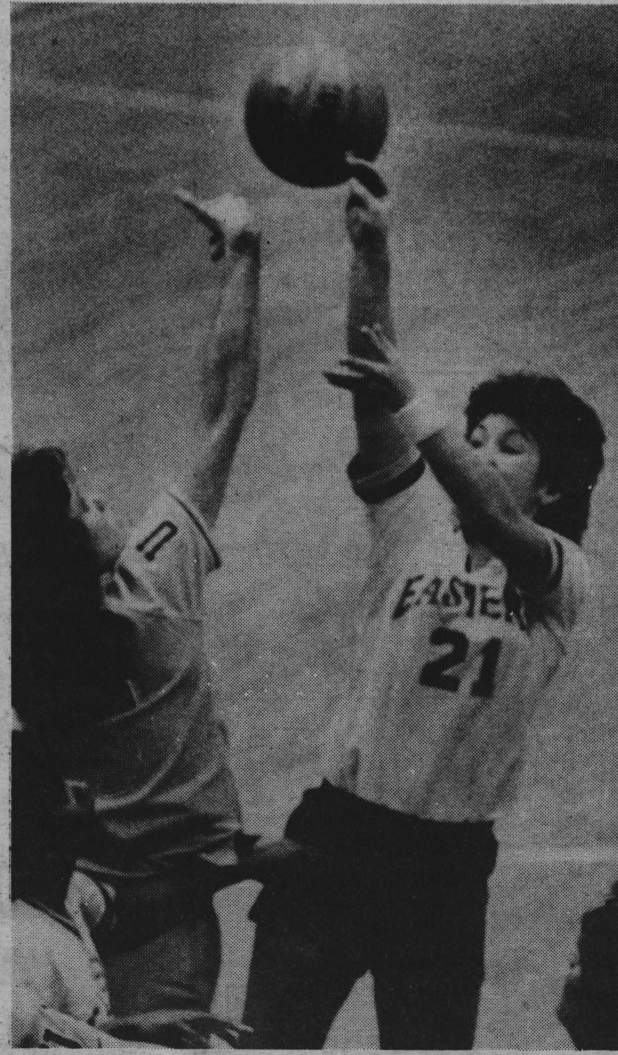

"I received tremendous support from my coaches, teammates, friends and family," Maxey said. "I knew I'd be back, I just wasn't sure how good I'd be."

Maxey—who was red-shirted her freshman season and played sparingly last season—did indeed return to the game, earning a starting berth at point guard this year.

"It's great to be back," Maxey said. "I am back at full strength. The reason I don't stand out is that the college level is so much better than high school."

Maxey also spends countless hours viewing game films, not only to improve her game, but to have the

Jarris captures Gateway honor

Eastern trackster Janine Jarris was named the Gateway Conference Player-of-the-Week for the week ending Feb. 2. It is the second time in three weeks that Jarris has received the honor.

The sophomore middle-distance specialist broke her own school record in the 880-yard run in a seven-team meet on Saturday. Her time of 2:14.5 eclipsed almost two seconds off her old mark which she set two weeks ago. Her performance also broke the Lantz Fieldhouse standard. Jarris has competed in the 880-yard run twice this season and has lowered the Eastern record each time out.

opportunity to simply watch more basketball. She feels she is a stabilizer and motivator for the Panthers.

"I think about what needs to be done, and try to do it," Maxey said. "I'm always thinking out there."

Maxey had a unique opportunity to improve on her game last summer when UCLA coach Billie Moore invited her to be an assistant at a basketball camp in Los Angeles.

"I sat in on her (Moore) sessions and took notes," Maxey said. "I learned so much about the game."

Maxey, who worked at camps in California the entire summer, got the opportunity to watch the U.S. women's basketball team compete in the Olympics, as well as meeting NBA players Leon Wood and Michael Cooper.

"I've been invited back for next summer," Maxey said. "I'm really excited about it."

But Maxey has more important things to take care of now.

"I want us to put together two good halves of basketball, and go on a winning streak."

Indeed, Kim Maxey is always thinking of basketball.

Pro commissioners want moves limited

WASHINGTON (AP)—Professional sports commissioners said Monday they want Congress to pass a no-frills bill that limits movement of professional teams among cities but stops short of telling league officials how to run their business.

The commissioners, testifying before the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, endorsed major provisions of a bill that would allow leagues to control team location. But they flatly rejected another measure that would give the power to a federal board.

"It is the leagues themselves, and not the federal government of a regulatory board, that are best suited to weigh the variety of competing considerations and balance the numerous relevant factors involved in a proposed relocation," said National Basketball Association Commissioner David J. Stern.

"What is needed is simply legislation that will enable professional sports to make these judgments," Stern said.

Controversy over the moves of sports teams has arisen because some owners have relocated their teams despite league objections, and others are threatening to follow suit.

Last year, the NFL's Baltimore Colts moved to Indianapolis, and the NBA's San Diego Clippers moved to Los Angeles, both against the wishes of their leagues. This year, the NBA's Kansas City Kings have announced their intention to move to Sacramento, Calif., and the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL are considering a move to another city.

Stern was joined by the commissioners of the National Football League, the Major Indoor Soccer League, the United States Football League, and a representative of Major League Baseball.

Record-setting trackster Matas out for year

by Tim Lee
To a college athlete, sitting out an entire season because of an injury can be disheartening. But to Eastern's school-record outdoor shot putter, the lack of action can be excruciating.

Dan Matas, with a record throw of 56-feet-5 1/4, went down this November with a herniated disc in his lower back. The injury will require surgery and force him out for the entire year.

"Sitting out is tough, I got the news in November and I was mad," Matas said. "But I'm over it."

"It's pretty bad because I can see the other guys and they throw well and all I can do is watch. It's a little depressing."

The surgery will remove the vertebra disc which has slipped and is putting pressure on the nerves in his legs.

"Dan has a good weight program, he has lifted a lot of weights in his life, and that has hurt his back," said Eastern coach Neil Moore. "He competed with this condition last year, but it started to get worse this fall and that's when we stopped him completely from his training."

"Dan realizes that the operation has to be done or his track days may be over," Moore said.

Since then Matas, who also throws the discus and hammer for the Panthers, has not stopped helping the team. "I've been helping them lift and helping with their techniques," Matas said.

"Even though he is unable to throw, he is there (at practice and meets) everyday which shows how unselfish he is about himself," Moore said.

Matas' surgery is scheduled for February 22 at Loyola Hospital in Chicago and said he hopes to begin lifting in three or four months.

"I plan to start lifting in April or May, and hopefully will begin throwing by the middle of the summer."

"He is the type of guy who will do everything possible to rehabilitate himself after the surgery," Moore said.

Matas will still have two years left at Eastern since the coaching staff has decided to save his eligibility by red-shirting him this season. He said that he plans to be throwing at least two more feet farther when he returns.

"I'm hoping that he hits 60 feet before he graduates," Moore said.

Matas, whose twin brother Marion throws the shot put for Western Illinois University, began throwing the shot as a freshman at Oak Park River Forest High School in Oak Park, Ill.

"I played football, I didn't even know what the shot-put was," Matas said. "Then the track coach told me to come out and throw the shot."

Matas finished that year throwing the 12-pound shot (he throws a 16-pound now) 43 feet, and by the time he had graduated, he had thrown it as far as 58 feet.

Both Moore and Matas admit that the he recruited himself to Eastern.

"We came down my junior year for the state track meet and I saw the place and decided I wanted to come here and talked to coach Moore," Matas said.

"I recruited him, but Dan did himself as much as I. He came up and talked to me at the state meet," Moore said.

Matas still keeps a close rivalry with his brother. "We are exactly the same in the shot. We tied in a meet at Eastern last year. The exact same distance," Matas said. "He beat me five times last year and I beat him six."

"They are very competitive," Moore said, "They really go after each other when they throw. If you looked at them you couldn't even tell them apart."

"He has been a tremendous asset to the team and the other weight men," Moore said. "He has emerged as a leader in that area. He knows his weight training and technique as well as any other shot putter I've ever had."

"He is a very intense competitor. He is right now the best shot putter ever at Eastern," Moore said. He added that there was some tough competition for that spot in Larry Thoennissen, who broke Matas' indoor shot-put record Saturday, and Jim Lail.

Matas, a management major, said he hopes to continue throwing after graduation.

"I'll train with my brother for a couple of years at the high school and go to meets like the Illini Classic and head south in the winter," Matas said. "Maybe we'll be able to pick up a sponsor and head to the bigger meets on the West Coast."

And if all goes right, maybe, just maybe, we will see Dan Matas representing the U.S. in the 1988 Olympics.

The ax falls

Pulford fires Tessier, takes over Hawks' coaching job

CHICAGO (AP)—After a short and stormy reign as head coach of the Chicago Black Hawks, Orval Tessier was fired Monday by General Manager Bob Pulford, who took over as interim head coach for a second time.

Pulford, who once served as both coach and general manager of the National Hockey League team, relieved Keith Magnuson in 1982 before hiring Tessier.

Pulford could have named assistant coach Roger Neilson to the top job, but said: "I had considered it but I felt at this stage that would be unfair. I felt the one that has to take over and I have."

Tessier, 51, took over for the 1982-83 season when he led the Black Hawks to a 47-23-10 record and a Norris Division title. The Hawks reached the Campbell Conference Stanley Cup Finals that season and Tessier was named NHL Coach of the Year.

But everything has been downhill for Tessier since then.

The end came Monday, after the Hawks lost a home-and-home weekend series to the first-place St. Louis Blues, dropping their record to 22-28-3.

"We weren't going anywhere and we were sliding back in the pack," said Pulford. "I don't think we were playing as well as we could. In any sport, the coach has to take the brunt of it—you can't replace 20 players. Orval is a fine man and I hope he remains in the organization."

Tessier departed Sunday after a 6-4 loss—the Hawks' fourth straight—without his usual postgame news conference and was unavailable for comment.

He originally signed a three-year contract with the Hawks but the agreement was extended for a year to run through the 1985-86 season.

Tessier blamed injuries for the Hawks' slide, which included a 12-13-1 record at home. He recently expressed bitterness over the fact no trades were made to fill the void, saying, "If anybody can't see we don't have hockey players now, he has to be blind."

Pulford insisted Tessier's comments had no bearing on his dismissal.

"Not a day goes by that you don't talk to someone about trades, but I will never trade for the sake of making a trade," he said.

Pulford joined the Hawks as coach and general manager for the 1977-78 season. They won the division title and he was named Coach of the Year, an honor he had earned with the Los Angeles Kings in 1974-75.

He also led the Hawks to a division title the next year, before giving up coaching to devote full time to his duties as general manager.

"If we don't improve, we're going to have to make changes," he said Monday. "They know if they don't start playing then, chances are, they won't be here. We all have to produce, including myself.

"In our profession, you're always under the gun," Pulford said. "There's great pressure in the occupation. I'll handle the players my way. I'll be honest with them—all I ask is their greatest effort."

Although the Hawks are in second place, eight points behind the Blues who have two games in hand, Pulford indicated he feels the team can still make a run at the divisional title.

"Yes, I do," he said in response to the question. "This team should win the division."

Pulford said he had discussed the coaching change with Bill Wirtz, president and owner of the club.

"I told him we had to do something," said Pulford. "The fans were getting anxious and if we didn't do anything, we were going to lose them."
