CASP leads to liquor license suspensions

by Kevin McDermott

Charleston Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said the temporary suspensions of two area liquor licenses for serving alcohol to minors in 1984 was partially the result of the recently cancelled Comprehensive Alcohol Safety Program.

CASP was initiated in Charleston by the City Council and Eastern in January 1984 with a $63,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Transportation. The purpose of the program was to establish additional police patrols to crack down on drunk drivers.

Pfeiffer said Friday that the week long closing of the Page One Tavern, 410 Sixth St., in December and of The East Side Package Liquor Store, 1724 Jackson Ave., in November came partially because of drunk driving arrests made by CASP units.

Despite a dramatic increase in the number of drunk driving arrests in 1984 while the program was in effect, Pfeiffer and Police Chief Maurice Johnson decided not to reapply for a 1985 CASP grant because of fatigue which overtime from the program was causing police officers.

However, both businesses were closed after being convicted three times of selling alcohol to minors. Under Charleston's city code, the first offense for selling alcohol to minors is punishable by a $250 fine. The second offense results in a $500 fine, and the third offense in one year results in a $250 fine and the temporary closing of the business.

Pfeiffer, who is also Charleston's liquor commissioner, said after Page One's third conviction on Nov. 30 for selling alcohol to minors, the tavern was closed from Dec. 17-24, Eastern's finals week. East Side Package Liquor pleaded guilty to the same charge Nov. 9 and was closed Nov. 19-27, Eastern's Thanksgiving break.

While both closings came during traditional lulls in student business for the bars, City Attorney Tony Sunderman said Friday that the time between the third convictions and the actual closings of the businesses was part of the legal process.

"I don't think there was much of a (time) lag at all (between the convictions and the actual closings)," Sunderman said, noting that the businesses must be presented with an order to close through the mail, and are usually given about a week's notice of the closing.

The Page One Tavern ran an advertisement in The Daily Eastern News on the day the business closed saying that "due to a small electrical fire Saturday night (Dec. 16), Page One will be closed for finals week."

Fire Chief Les Hichenbottom said Friday that the Charleston Fire Department did not respond to a fire at Page One. He added, however, that the owners would not have to report a small fire if they were able to extinguish it.

Pfeiffer and Page One owner John Ward declined to comment on the fire.

Acting admissions director named

by Douglas Backstrom

Keeping the admissions office running smoothly until a new director is found is the top priority of Eastern's recently named acting admissions director.

Pam Hadwiger, an admissions counselor at Eastern since 1974, begins her duties Jan. 15. Although she said she had no major goals set for the position, she wants to make sure the admissions office runs smoothly until a successor to Admissions Director John Beacon is appointed.

In December, Beacon announced his resignation from that post to accept a similar position at Oklahoma State University in mid-January. Beacon's last day at Eastern will be Jan. 16.

Glenn Williams, Eastern's vice president of student affairs, said a search committee composed of seven Eastern faculty members and headed by Booth Library Director Wilson LuQuire has been advertising the position to other schools.

However, Williams said only two applications have been received so far, but he said he expects the number to increase because the holidays are over.

Williams has set April 1 as the target date for Beacon's successor to take office.

Hadwiger, who is on the search committee, noted qualifications the committee is looking for.

"What we need is magic. We will need someone who has an expertise in working with people and is innovative enough to start off in new direction," she said.

Hadwiger, who as an admissions counselor was primarily in contact with Illinois high schools, holds a bachelor's and master's degrees in education from Eastern. After receiving her graduate degree in 1972 she taught at the Laboratory School for two years before the school was phased out.

Eastern President Stanley Rives said he has confidence in her ability to do the job on an interim

"I want to be sure she maintains a stable enrollment and to continue to have an adequate number of applicants to the university," he said.

Rives said he also expects Beacon's successor to keep communication open between university and high schools in an effort to increase minority enrollment.

"One main problem with minority enrollment is making the applications and making the communication with high schools," Rives said.

Beacon, who in an earlier edition of The Daily Eastern News called increased minority enrollment a "university-wide commitment," said the admissions office should continue to take steps to attract minorities to the university.

Guilty plea possible from Zaccaro after probe into his business deals

Election results to be confirmed

WASHINGTON—Barring the improbable, President Reagan's re-election will be confirmed in a constitutional ritual Monday when the 538 ballots of the Electoral College are opened by Vice President George Bush and four senators and representatives.

At a ceremonial joint session of Congress, they will open the ballots and confirm that Reagan won 525 of the 538 electoral votes—more than any previous president.

The electors actually met in their state capitals Dec. 17 to cast their ballots.

Only a handful of electors in U.S. history have defied the voters' will and cast their ballot for someone other than the candidate who carried their state. Reagan's electors appeared to hold fast, although one teen-age Utah elector talked of marking a ballot for Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. to protest the system that removes the election from the electorate by one step. He eventually voted for Reagan, however.

New illness linked to herpes virus

NEW YORK—A newly recognized flu-like illness marked by fatigue, fever and swollen glands that can persist for years has been linked to unusual flare-ups of a virus in the herpes family, according to two reports to be published Monday.

The disease is especially troubling because it cannot be detected by routine medical tests despite its obvious symptoms, researchers said.

"Most of the individuals we studied had been through many medical evaluations and had come to believe that there was nothing physically wrong with them, that it was all in their heads," said Dr. Stephen Straus, principal author of one of the reports, in a telephone interview Friday.

"Considering the extent of the patient complaints and disability, the results of routine laboratory tests were strikingly normal," Straus and his colleagues wrote in one of the two reports to appear in the January issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

State image change in the works

CHICAGO—Competing with "I Love New York" and "Say Yes To Michigan," Illinois' efforts to attract tourists have been hampered by gaffes, political squabbles and adverse headlines about bad weather and street gangs.

Now, state tourism officials are armed with $10 million for advertising and are hoping to change that image and put Illinois on the map for vacationers this year.

"This spring we will come out with a campaign as spectacular as 'I love New York,'" said Lynda Simon, director of the state Office of Tourism.

But other than saying the promotion will make the most of Illinois being unique, Simon offered few clues to the campaign's focus.

And Jan Zechman, head of the advertising agency handling the state's tourism program, said only that ads would be geared "to show that we're a state of warmth and humor."

NEW YORK (AP)—John Zaccaro, husband of Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, may plead guilty Monday to charges stemming from a probe of his business dealings, according to his lawyer and published reports.

The Daily News quoted a highly-placed source close to the investigation" as saying Zaccaro would plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge of scheming to defraud, which carries a maximum penalty of six months in prison. The plea would be entered "shortly, possibly tomorrow (Monday)." The newspaper said in Sunday's editions.

Zaccaro, a real estate broker whose financial affairs became an issue during his wife's unsuccessful 1984 campaign with Walter Mondale, is now "looking at all of his options, and considering pleading guilty is one of them," attorney John B. Koegel told The Associated Press on Saturday.

Koegel denied a report in Sunday's editions of The New York Times that the possible plea by the real estate manager involves the falsification of a sales contract for five apartment buildings.

"That's completely wrong," Koegel said. "It's on another matter," he said, refusing to give further details.

Zaccaro replied "no comment" Saturday when a reporter went to his home to ask him about possible indictments. Attempts to get comment Sunday were unsuccessful. His home phone number is unlisted and calls to his attorney's office were not answered.

The Times said that following a three-month investigation by Manhattan prosecutors, a grand jury last week voted sealed indictments of Zaccaro and three others in connection with two separate cases.

A spokeswoman for the Manhattan District Attorney's office, Mary deBourbon, would not verify accounts that the husband of the three-term Queens congresswoman may be pondering a guilty plea, or detail possible charges.

The Times said one of the indictments involved the alleged falsified sales contract; the other, a loan from the credit union of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, the newspaper said.

The latter involves a $550,000 loan by the credit union in 1983 to John DeLorenzo, a real estate investor who is not a credit union member and therefore ineligible to borrow money from it, according to federal auditors. DeLorenzo reportedly got the money to buy a building in a sale that Zaccaro co-brokered with the credit union's lawyer.

White House begins news service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House, guided by President Reagan's repeated complaints that his views are distorted by the reporters who cover him, is launching its own "news service" to distribute presidential speeches and announcements.

Among the first clients of the fledging service is Citizens for America, a conservative organization headed by unsuccessful 1982 New York gubernatorial candidate Lew Lehrman. But the White House hopes to establish a market for the service among radio stations and small newspapers around the country that don't have White House correspondents of their own.

Sue Mathis, acting director of the White House office of media relations, said people who contact her office for more information after reading a news story about some event often remark upon hearing the official version that it "wasn't at all like the news report" they had heard.

Reagan himself has complained often to reporters that they misinterpret his words and distort his views.

One White House official, who spoke only on condition of not being identified, said Reagan's aides believe they can get the president's views across more effectively if those views are "unfiltered" by the independent media.

But Jerry Friedheim, a one-time Defense Department spokesman who now directs the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said similar attempts by government in the past generally have failed because people find they can't wade through the mountains of information the government provides.

The White House News Service offers subscribers the official, unedited version of what the president and his office have to say.

"We don't do a thing to the stuff," Mathis said.

Although Mathis said it is "still in its infancy," the electronic service provides verbatim news releases from the White House press office, the first lady's office, the vice president's office and the Office of Management and Budget.

That includes the texts of presidential speeches, personnel announcements, official statements on issues and other news releases now disseminated primarily by distribution of paper to the White House press corps.

Book pick-up times set

Just as death and taxes are certainties in life, so is the chore of obtaining books for the new semester.

Students may begin picking up their spring book loads at the Textbook library beginning Monday.

The Textbook Library, located at the south end of Pemberton Hall, is scheduled to be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Textbooks may also be obtained from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday. Students may continue to pick up textbooks throughout the semester.

An updated spring schedule and validated ID card should be presented by students when picking up textbooks.

New Tarble Arts director named

by Kerri Niemann

Eastern's Tarble Arts Center will have a new director beginning Jan. 21 when Robert Evans fills the recently vacated position.

Evans, appointed to the position Dec. 21, will replace Don Carmichael, who recently resigned to pursue his artistic interests.

Evans currently serves as head of the Art Section and Curator of Art at the Illinois State Museum in Springfield. He said he accepted the position at TAC because he wanted to get into an academic setting.

Evans added that he is looking forward to the student interaction that the campus setting would provide.

Goals for TAC include developing new programs with a variety of exhibits thus "making Tarble more dynamic," he said.

In addition, Evans said he wants to work on increasing the support and development of TAC making the new programs possible.

Vaughn Jaenike, dean of the College of Fine Arts, said although Evans will begin work in January, his "impact to the center may not be known for six months," because exhibits for that time period are already booked.

Jaenike added that he hopes the "new director will involve the community and students," fulfilling the "original mission" of TAC which was to "take arts to the people."

Before accepting his new position at Eastern, Evans had worked at the State Museum for 14 years.

He received his bachelor's degree in art education from Northeast Missouri State University and later obtained a master's degree in painting from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

Evans said his interest in art came from his work in photography. As his experience in photography grew, he became interested in the artistic side of the skill, which eventually started him in the field of art.

The new director is married to a high school science teacher and has two children. Because of his wife's job commitments, he said the family will not be moving to Charleston until June. Until then, Evans will be commuting from Springfield.

Jackson asks Boston pastor to head Operation PUSH

BOSTON (AP)—The Rev. Charles R. Stith of Boston has been asked by the Rev. Jesse Jackson to be the president of Operation PUSH, the Chicago-based civil rights organization founded by Jackson.

Stith, senior pastor at the Union United Methodist Church and a close friend of Jackson, confirmed the offer Sunday but said he had not decided whether to accept it.

"The decision has not been made as to whether I'm going to make the move at this point. Obviously, one would have to be very flattered and honored and humbled by having no less than Jesse Jackson make to offer," Stith said.

"Over the last several months, I've been in conversation with Jackson about the future direction of PUSH and the kind of issues that need to be dealt with in terms of a transition of leadership," he said.

Stith said Jackson asked him about 1½ months ago whether he would like to become the president of PUSH, or People United to Save Humanity. Stith said his commitment to his church and to continuing the program he has begun are major considerations in his decision.

"I would have preferred to have a little more time," he said. "I'm not the type that likes to leave things unfinished."

Jackson took a leave of absence as president of PUSH in late 1983 to plan his presidential bid, and PUSH has been without a president for the past several months.

Since leaving PUSH, Jackson has formed the National Rainbow Coalition, a Washington-based political organization that evolved from his presidential campaign.

Stith, 35, has never served PUSH in any official capacity, but he said he has had a close relationship with Jackson over the years.

In an interview with the Boston Sunday Globe, Stith said he was an unofficial adviser during Jackson's presidential campaign in Massachusetts and on the national level.

If he accepts the offer, Stith will be the first president of PUSH not to have previous official ties with the group.

Stith was active in the Boston mayoral campaign of Melvin King, the first black candidate for a post in a general election.

Only the first three names from letters containing more than three authors will be published unless further specified.

A recent report released brings to light what many educators consider a serious problem in higher education in this country: Many college graduates lack "even the most rudimentary knowledge" in the humanities.

The report, "To Reclaim A Legacy," was issued by William J. Bennett, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, and a leading candidate to succeed T.H. Bell as secretary of education. Prominent scholars and college educators also worked on the report, which calls for the academic community to pit humanities "at the heart of the college curriculum."

Penn State educators echoed the findings of the report, calling for more and enlarged humanities courses becoming mandatory at the university.

It is not surprising a report released from the National Endowment for the Humanities stresses the importance of an education in the humanities. It is also not surprising to find the study cites significant declines simply in the numbers of college graduates majoring in the humanities. What might be considered surprising, though, is the assertion that the majority of college students do not recognize the importance of an understanding in humanities.

Studying humanities is an important part of higher education. Humanities help students understand the world in many ways, from problem solving to understanding the world in which we live to searching for that elusive philosophical "meaning of life."

Gaining understanding to the humanities is fundamental for dealing with many of the problems faced by people today. Dealing with questions such as abortion, crime, church and state, international relations and the majority of the spectrum of questions facing humanity requires an understanding of the underlying philosophical and psychological questions of those issues.

But making students realize the importance of an education in the humanities, which seems to be the crux of the problem here, is not necessarily going to come about from requiring students to take courses in the humanities.

Crossview:

The Daily Collegian

Even more, making sweeping requirements in humanities courses will not make up for the declining enrollment in these majors. The humanities educators should know best of all that making students take required courses in the humanities is only defeating the purpose. Motivation for students' understanding in the humanities must come from the students.

The report downplayed dictating colleges' curricula and did not suggest any federal role for putting an emphasis on the humanities. This is important because federal guidelines for the humanities problem would do just as much to defeat the purpose as the requirement of courses on the individual level.

Humanities are important, but motivation is the key to emphasizing the humanities. Humanities educators need to look at why the humanities education is declining on a program by program basis. What they will find are programs that will benefit from stressing their importance and making them a little more attractive to the average student, not making them a requirement for every student.

Stocks to rise —money expert

AURORA (AP)—Because of inflation and the recent decline in interest rates, stocks will rise sharply in 1985, a financial analyst says.

James Oberweis, president of Oberweis Securities, also predicted in his recent monthly market report that gold prices would climb 30 percent to $400 an ounce in 1985.

Furthermore, he said he expects the Dow Jones Industrial Average to hit 1,400 by the end of the year. The average is about 1,200 now.

The Aurora financial analyst said investors would return to putting their money into hard assets, including stocks, but not bonds.

He also predicted that the dollar would weaken and that small capitalization stocks would rise from their 18-month doldrums and resume a fast growth pace.

While corporate earnings did not rise as sharply as expected in 1984, Oberweis said the reason is that the figures have been depressed by faster depreciation allowances.

Jackson seeks release of missing men

LONDON (AP)—The Rev. Jesse Jackson said Sunday he is seeking the release of three Americans and a Saudi Arabian kidnapped by Islamic extremists in Lebanon.

Jackson, an unsuccessful U.S. presidential candidate from Chicago last year, told a news conference he had met in Rome and in London with representatives of Middle Eastern organizations.

Jackson, who arrived from Rome on Friday to meet London's black leaders, said he might travel to the Middle East on Tuesday rather than return to the United States as scheduled.

He declined to identify the Middle East representatives or give details of the discussions.

But Jackson, who last year negotiated the release of a U.S. Navy pilot shot down over Lebanon, said of the kidnapped men: "We have reason to believe they are alive. We shall continue to do all we can to gain their release."

year and driven away. The kidnapers beat Farrash's bodyguard and shot his driver when they tried to resist.

The Islamic Jihad organization, which says it is waging a holy war on opponents of Islamic fundamentalism, claimed responsibility for the four kidnappings.

Jackson flew to Syria in January 1984 and gained the release of U.S. Navy Pilot Lt. Robert Goodman.

After the news conference, the Baptist minister and civil rights leader addressed more than 200 people in St. Peter's Anglican Church in London's multiracial Notting Hill neighborhood.

Jackson urged an end to the nuclear arms race and the abolition of apartheid, or racial segregation, in South Africa. He appealed for more aid for drought-stricken African regions.

He later met with local black elected leaders and then with Andimba Ya Toivo, general secretary of the South-West Africa People's Organization, a guerilla group fighting to end South African rule in South-West Africa, commonly known as Namibia.

Pay raises on agenda for General Assembly

CHICAGO (AP)—Pay raises for legislators and other state officials again are being considered by the Compensation Review Board as it tries to develop proposals that the 83rd General Assembly will find acceptable during its waning hours.

The legislature, which includes some lawmakers defeated at the polls in November, adjourns at about noon Wednesday. Any pay raises effective during the next legislative session must clear this session because state law prohibits lawmakers' approving pay raises for themselves.

The Compensation Review Board was scheduled to meet Monday in the State of Illinois Building.

House Minority Leader Lee Daniels,

R-Elmhurst, who headed Republican legislators in the successful fight against pay raises as last recommended by the board, said Sunday that he would support "modest" increases.

"I didn't change my position," Daniels said in a telephone interview. "I have consistently said I would support a modest increase."

He emphasized that the proposals cover more than 1,000 jobs, from legislative posts to cabinet positions to judgeships to the governor's salary.

He said the GOP caucus had objected to the disparity between proposed raises.

"Some raises were 16 percent. Some were 68 percent," he said.

States' authorities await sentencing of kidnappers

DAYTON, OHIO (AP)—Authorities in a half-dozen Midwest states will be waiting for former fugitives Alton Coleman and Debra Brown after their scheduled sentencing Monday on federal kidnapping charges.

Coleman and Ms. Brown, both of Waukegan, Ill., will be sentenced by U.S. District Judge Walter Rice. They pleaded guilty Nov. 26 to charges of kidnapping Oline Carmical Jr., a Kentucky college professor who was abducted from a motel parking in Lexington, Ky., on July 16 and found the next day, unharmed, locked in his car trunk in Dayton.

But Coleman and Ms. Brown are wanted for questioning or have been charged in eight slayings and attacks on about a dozen other people during a six week period last summer in Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana.

They have been indicted on potential death penalty murder charges in Toledo and Cincinnati and face other murder charges in Indiana and Illinois.

Dennis Lieberman and Louis Hoffman, court-appointed defense attorneys in the Carmical kidnapping case, have said they believe that if Coleman and Ms. Brown are later convicted of murder and sentenced to die, there is a legal question of whether they could be executed before their federal kidnapping sentences are completed.

When Rice accepted the guilty pleas in November, he said federal kidnapping charges carry a maximum penalty of life in prison, with potential eligibility for parole in 10 years. But before accepting their pleas, Rice repeatedly questioned Coleman and Ms. Brown to make sure they understood that they could be tried on other charges while serving a kidnapping sentence.

Getting set for new start

The sounds of suitcases being dragged up stairs and boxes being opened and closed echoed in Andrews Hall Sunday as students began to pile themselves and their property back into their rooms. Clockwise from top left: A family moves luggage out of the elevator and into a room, and a student's younger brother offers his assistance by moving some luggage.

Tim Ingram, a senior returning Sunday from Peoria to Andrews Hall, said his only problem was not being able to hook up his television soon enough to watch the Bears game.

Meanwhile Mark Eaves, a junior returning from Palatine, said, "I haven't had any hassles yet, but I'll find out tomorrow when registration starts."

Marino, Marks brothers lead Dolphins' rout of Steelers

MIAMI (AP)—Dan Marino threw for 421 yards and four touchdowns, both American Conference championship game records, and the Miami Dolphins bombed the Pittsburgh Steelers 45-28 Sunday, charging into Super Bowl XIX.

Marino, who shattered several National Football League passing records in 1984, his second pro season, burned the Steelers with bombs of 40 yards to Mark Clayton in the first period, 41 yards to Mark Duper in the second, 36 yards to Duper in the third and 6 yards to Nat Moore in the fourth.

That surpassed the AFC title game record of three TD passes shared by George Blanda of Houston and Joe Namath of the New York Jets. And the yardage exceeded Daryle Lamonica's 401 for the Oakland Raiders against the Jets in 1968.

The extraordinary youngster from the University of Pittsburgh completed 21 of 32 passes—8 of 9 in the second half—as the Dolphins tied the Dallas Cowboys' record of five Super Bowl appearances.

Miami, which has won two Super Bowls, will now set its sights on San Francisco, a 23-0 winner over the Bears, who they will play for the world championship Jan. 20 in Stanford Stadium at Palo Alto, Calif.

The 45 points were the most ever for Miami in postseason play and the most scored against Pittsburgh since a 45-3 loss to Detroit last season. The 73 AFC title points scored by both teams exceeded the 61 rolled up by San Diego in 1980.

Touchdown bursts of 2 yards by Tony Nathan in the second quarter and 1 yard by Woody Bennett in the third offset a 7-yard scoring run by Pittsburgh's Rich Erenberg in the first period.

John Stallworth of the Steelers, who had shared postseason scoring and receiving-yardage records with Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff, broke them both with TD catches of 65 and 19 yards, his 11th and 12th, en route to his fifth postseason game over 100 yards. Wayne Capers caught Mark Malone's third TD pass of the game, a 29-yarder with 25 seconds to play.

The Dolphins, intercepting Malone three times and recovering a Frank Pollard fumble, ran up a 24-14 halftime lead.

The Steelers, sticking for the most part to their ball-control ground game, held the ball for nearly 10½ of the first 15 minutes but came out of the first quarter with only a 7-7 tie on Erenberg's 7-yard run.

Uwe Von Schamann put Miami on top 10-7 with a 26-yard field goal, then Malone hooked up with Stallworth on the 65-yard TD pass on a third and four situation for a 14-10 Steeler lead.

Marino, driving the Dolphins 77 yards in five plays, completed passes of 16 yards apiece to Duper and Clayton, then lofted his 41-yard scoring strike over Chris Brown to Duper, restoring Miami's lead at 17-14.

Why are a lot of college men and women becoming buddies in Army ROTC?
Probably because Army ROTC is full of the kind of people other people go out of their way to meet.

ROTC students tend to be high achievers who are interested in more than their studies. They're popular students with a serious side, but who like to have a good time, too.

Smothering 49ers defense stymies Bears to win NFC

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gary Johnson and Michael Carter led a smothering San Francisco defense that registered nine sacks and outplayed its more heralded Chicago counterparts Sunday as the 49ers beat the Bears 23-0 to win the National Football Conference title.

The victory put the 49ers into Super Bowl XIX at Stanford Stadium less than 30 miles from here, on Jan. 20 against Miami, which won the AFC title with a 45-28 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Wendell Tyler scored on a 9-yard third-quarter burst up the middle, Joe Montana connected with Freddie Solomon for a 10-yard fourth quarter touchdown and Ray Wersching had field goals of 21, 22 and 34 yards as the 49ers equalled a National Football League record with their 17th win of the campaign.

But it was a defense that never let Chicago inside its 20 and limited the Bears to 115 yards in the first three quarters that put the 49ers there with their 11th straight win. The 17th win—the 49ers have lost once—ties the record set by the undefeated Super Bowl champion Dolphins in 1972.

Carter, a silver medalist in the shot put in last summer's Olympics, was credited with 2½ sacks and Johnson, a ten-year veteran cast away by the San Diego Chargers, had two as San Francisco allowed Chicago only two drives of note while the game was in doubt.

The first was to the 24 on the first series of the game, and ended when Bob Thomas missed a 41-yard field goal try. The second came late in the third quarter, when consecutive sacks by Dwaine Board and Johnson pushed Chicago back from the 21 to the 40.

Meanwhile, the San Francisco offensive line was containing the Chicago defense that had an NFL record 72 sacks in the regular season and seven more in last week's 23-19 victory over Washington. This time, the Bears had three sacks, but none had a significant impact on the game.

After the sacks by Board and Johnson thwarted the next Chicago drive, San Francisco put the game away, going 88 yards in eight plays climaxed by Montana's toss to Solomon.

Eastern center Sue Hynd fights two Indiana State players for control of a rebound Saturday in the Panthers' 74-69 loss to the Sycamores. The loss was the lady cagers' second straight in conference play. (News photo by Frank Polich)

Break not a pleasant one for lady cagers

by Dan Verdun

For Eastern's women's basketball team the new year did not start out well. The Panthers dropped a 74-69 decision to Indiana State Saturday night at Lantz Gym.

The Panthers, who were crushed by Illinois State 80-65 last Thursday, saw their record slip to 7-4 overall and 0-2 in Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference play.

"I didn't think we played all that bad on offense against Indiana State," Eastern head coach Barbara Hilke said. "We were patient and got the ball inside well, but it was turnovers that killed us.

But it was not only Eastern's 27 turnovers (16 in the second half) that did the team in. The Panther defense completely broke down in the loss to Indiana State, 3-8 and 1-1 in the GCAC.

"Defensively, we're not stopping our own shadows right now," Hilke said. "We're not seeing the ball.

"I'm really bothered by that because traditionally we've been a good defensive team. We worked a lot on defense in our practices over break and in the early season," she added.

The Panthers were led in the game offensively by senior forward Toni Collins who scored 18 points and collected 10 rebounds. Guard Kim Maxey added 14 and forward-center Chris Aldridge had 10 in the Panther loss.

Junior guard Jodi Moan scored a game-high 22 points to pace the Sycamore offense. Senior Lori Dust chipped in 16 and last season's GCAC Freshman of the Year, Amy Hile, netted 15.

For Eastern, the loss to Indiana State was the end of a mediocre break. Against Illinois State on Jan. 3, the Panthers never could get going.

To kick off their break, the Panthers got a tremendous lift as they bombed Evansville 80-58 Dec. 21 in Lantz Gym. The contest saw four Panthers hit double figures, led by Melanie Hatfield's game-high 20.

But the night belonged to Collins. The senior stole the spotlight, shattering two Eastern records by hauling in 22 rebounds.

With her 22 boards, Collins eclipsed the old school mark of 20 for a single game and also established a new career record of 846. That breaks Panther assistant coach Linda Ellsworth's previous mark of 844.

Cagers fall on hard luck with consecutive 1-point losses

by Ken Dickson

It wasn't the way it was supposed to be.

Eastern's basketball team, playing a three-game road trip in Florida over break, went 1-2, including two losses at the First Federal Classic in Lakeland.

Eastern, 4-4 overall and heading into the Association of Mid-Continent Universities conference season—the Panthers start Tuesday at Cleveland State—beat Central Florida 97-79 Jan. 2, but lost to Long Island University 72-71 Jan. 4 and lost to American University 80-79 Jan. 5.

The tournament Friday and Saturday was supposed to be a challenge for the Panthers. The three games were Eastern's first after three weeks without playing, and Long Island has been an NCAA post-season tournament team and a 20-game winner the past two seasons. But two one-point losses? That's kinda hard to swallow.

"I just wish we had two more baskets," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said Sunday.

"I'm sure the kids are disappointed," he said. "This will be a test to see how we can handle adversity."

In the first game of the tournament, the Panthers trailed early and closed the gap, but lost on a last-second shot. And in the second game, they held a commanding lead and lost it in the last few minutes.

Eastern trailed 47-37 at halftime against Long Island and eventually got itself back in the game. In fact, the Panthers took the lead at 71-70 with 45 seconds left, but a five-foot jumper with five seconds left put Eastern in the consolation bracket.

Long Island's "All-American candidate" Carey Scurry scored 18 points on perfect shooting in his team's explosive first half and finished with 22.

Eastern's comeback was due in-part to center Kevin Duckworth. The seven-footer scored the Panthers' last 10 points of the game, including the pair of free throws which put them ahead. But Eastern coach Rick Samuels admitted his team got too far behind.

After the hosts, Florida Southern, beat American in the first round, Eastern met American for the consolation game.

The Panthers took a 43-34 lead against American, the Eagles rallied to take a 68-66 lead with 3:28 left. American built the lead to much as five points, and held a 80-75 lead with 20 seconds remaining. Eastern's Doug Crook made the final two baskets, but time ran out before the Panther's could make a run at the lead.

If it was any consolation, Eastern's Jon Collins made the All-Tournament team. He scored 35 points in two games. And Samuels said American is very similar to Cleveland State, the team the Panthers play Tuesday.

"They used a pressure defense a lot like Cleveland," he said. "It's going to be tough. We don't have any momentum going into conference."

In the Central Florida game, Duckworth scored 20 points, hauled in six rebounds and blocked five shots.

Crook had 18 points, while Collins and Troy Richardson added 15 and 14 points, respectively.

"We have to look at that game as our bright spot," Samuels said. "We didn't play in three weeks and came out and executed."

•In comparison with the other AMCU teams, Eastern, 4-4 overall, is pretty close to par as far as winning non-conference games.

Through Friday's games, Eastern was 4-3, while the University of Illinois-Chicago was the most successful at 6-4. Northern Iowa, 5-3, and Cleveland State, 5-4, also had better marks.

The rest of the league—Southwest Missouri, Valpo, Western Illinois and Wisconsin-Green Bay—was 11-25 in games up to and including Friday.
