Student teachers affected by Mattoon strike

By STEVE SMITH
Campus editor

The future of about 30 Eastern student teaching careers is up in the air right now because of a teacher strike in Mattoon.

Francis Summers, director of student teaching, said about 30 of Eastern's student teachers have been teaching in Mattoon schools since August and because of the strike may have to be moved.

"At this point we have a little time to mess with," Summers said. "All we can do is wait."

Summers said student teachers usually work 16 to 17 weeks. He noted that depending on the major of the student teacher the time remaining may vary. "There are about 10 to 11 weeks to go," he said. "Some don't have that much (to go)."

If a resolution to the strike is not reached by the end of the week, Summers said the teachers will have to be moved to other schools to finish their student teaching. "The bottom line is that we have got to move them (teachers)," he said. "It's our obligation to the teachers."

As of Wednesday, Summers said the teachers had not contacted him about moving. "They (teachers) have been talking to their supervisors. They (the supervisors) get the phone calls."

Champaign and Charleston are a few of the possible cities Summers listed as places teachers may be moved. A decision will be made concerning teacher movement at the beginning of next week, he said.

The Mattoon Education Association said it would strike Thursday after failing to reach a compromise on a pay scale.

The MEA was seeking a $16,600 base salary and a top salary of $32,204. These increases will mean a pay increase of 18 percent and will cost the school district an additional $982,343.

The school board offered the teachers a base salary of $14,815 and a top salary of $28,445. This amounts to a 6.2 percent pay increase and would cost the district $340,000.

In a previous interview, Summers said the student teachers don't have a say in the voting. He noted, however, that the student teachers may want to follow the strike proceedings because they may work in the city after graduation.

Summers said he has become "desensitized" with the strike situation. "There have been so many this fall," he said. "At this point we'll cross our fingers and hope they settle."

Mt. Vernon is the only place that didn't strike, Summers said adding that Eastern doesn't have any student teachers in that area.

About 24,000 students have been affected by teacher strikes in Illinois this year.

American Red Cross worker Marti Ferdman takes a blood sample from admissions office employee Linda Decker in the Union Wednesday as Eastern's blood drive continues. Thursday will be the last day to donate blood during the drive. So far, 1,024 pints of blood have been donated.

Blood drive volunteers' quest for donors takes them to the streets

By JULIE LEWIS
Activities editor

Blood drive volunteers took to the sidewalks with special bulletins Wednesday in hopes of raising the total number of donors to the expected daily goal of 350, which they eventually exceeded by four pints.

Jeannie Wilson, blood services consultant for 19 counties in Illinois, said the flyers explained the blood supply shortage in the St. Louis area, and urged students to do their part to make the drive a success.

"At this time blood supplies at the American Red Cross are so low that hospitals can only receive one-third of their blood requests," the bulletin read. "Please do your part and donate. Someone's life is depending on it!"

Wilson said low blood donations over the summer months have caused the critical shortage. "We just haven't caught up from the summer yet," she added.

She said there was a high number of transplants this past summer, which also added to the deteriorating supply of blood on hand. "A transplant requires 150 pints flat out," Wilson said.

She did emphasize the fact that by "critical stage," she means if a disaster were to occur in the surrounding area, there wouldn't be enough blood available to accommodate the victims.

"We are on call to fly the blood out as needed," Wilson added. "Of course, the weather wouldn't have permitted that today anyway."

The bulletins seemed to do their job as the Grand Ballroom was flooded with people the last hour of the drive. The final count Wednesday was 354, which brings the weekly total up to 1,024 pints.

"With it being Buddy Day we did expect more of a turnout," Wilson said disappointedly. "But we have to remember that Wednesdays are EIU's heaviest class days."

Senior Sheryl Budde, general chairman for the Blood Drive Committee, said she knows the goal can be met Thursday. "Last spring we had 511 people show up on one day," she said.

The goal set for Thursday is 450 pints, said Wilson. She said she's hoping for at least 550 pints, which will put the drive over its total goal mark of 1,450 pints.

Budde said the drive will last from 11 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Thursday in the Grand Ballroom of the University Union.

BOG will discuss salary increases, Eastern budget

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Plans to increase instructors' salaries, Eastern's proposed $47.8 million budget and the board's operation in general are among the topics planned for Thursday as representatives of the Board of Governors visit local media here.

Chancellor Thomas Layzell, board chairman Nancy Froelich and Pamela Meyer, assistant vice chancellor for public affairs, will meet with the local media at 3 p.m. Thursday in Eastern President Stanley Rives' office.

Meyer said Monday that the board will visit in order to answer any questions people may have about the media. The three representatives were at Western Illinois University Wednesday for a similar meeting, said BOG spokesman Bill Wheelhouse.

On Monday, the board gave its final approval to an average 6.8 percent salary increase for the 2,200 faculty members and academic support staff in the BOG system.

The proposed 1988 budget for the BOG includes a 5 percent salary increase for instructors, and a 4 percent "market equity".

The Illinois Board of Higher Education recently released a report showing that salaries for Eastern instructors were 12.7 percent lower than comparable salaries in other systems.

The BOG is the governing body for Eastern, Western, Northeastern, Governors State and Chicago State.

Woman liable for son's death

SAN DIEGO—A woman whose son was born brain-dead with amphetamines in his system could face a year in jail after being charged with fetal abuse for allegedly contributing to his death by taking drugs during pregnancy.

The San Diego County district attorney's office acknowledges it is entering new legal territory, but contends Pamela Rae Stewart is criminally liable for the death of her son.

Courts previously have ordered drug test for pregnant women suspected of abusing drugs, and a Michigan appellate court ruled in 1980 that parents can be cited for neglect if a baby is born addicted to drugs.

However, the Stewart case is believed to be the first criminal prosecution for fetal abuse.

Caution needed in drug testing

CHICAGO—As drug abuse becomes a popular political issue, a doctor studying cocaine tolerance warns that caution must be used when interpreting the results of some drug tests.

But Dr. John Ambre says he hopes his research will lead to a more accurate test for cocaine abuse that would provide such details as how long a person had been using the drug.

Ambre, an associate professor at Northwestern University Medical School, says his initial research into the effects of cocaine shows that a positive drug test doesn't necessarily mean a person is impaired.

He said his test show users develop such a rapid tolerance that within hours, they are unable to remain high even with a continuous intravenous supply.

U.S. and Soviet Union predicting a 'breakthrough' in Iceland

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union joined the Reagan administration Wednesday in predicting a breakthrough on curbing nuclear weapons at the meeting in Iceland between President Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Presidential chief of Staff Donald T. Regan said the two days of summitry Oct. 11-12 "could lead to a better understanding and, perhaps, some give here and there in order to reach an agreement so we get some arms reductions."

For the Soviet Union, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said he expected in Reykjavik "some kind of breakthrough" in the form of instructions to lower-level weapons specialists to solidify an agreement.

"It's quite possible that we can have movement" on missiles, the Soviet official said on NBC-TV's "Today" program. "We want ... our leaders to put their heads together and to think big and to find some kind of direction to solve our problems."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, meanwhile, said Reagan had accepted Gorbachev's proposal for a two-day, informal meeting within two weeks because "the name of the game here is to solve problems."

Chicago area expects more rain

CHICAGO (AP)—Federal inspectors Wednesday began assessing damage caused so far by flooding in northeastern Illinois, while communities to the south and west braced for their own bout with the rain-swollen Des Plaines and Fox rivers.

A light, steady drizzle fell throughout the day in Lake, McHenry and northern Cook counties, those hardest hit by the nearly week-long battery of storms and declared a state disaster area by Gov. James R. Thompson.

More than 2,500 families were homeless and the number was expected to climb as the crests of the rivers begin moving south, said spokesman Gregg Durham of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

Flood damage was estimated Wednesday at between $30 million to $40 million, Durham said.

Authorities say the flooding may have contributed to a number of heart attacks as residents built sandbag barricades, swept out basements, and made other preparations to stem the rising waters. A man who disappeared after a Monday boating accident is presumed drowned.

Grade schoolers to make decision on state...fish?

By CARL McCLASKEY
Staff writer

Illinois already has a state flag, flower, animal, insect, tree and slogan. The only thing missing is the state fish.

Grade schoolers across the state will have their chance to take part in a national election and decide on the Illinois state fish on Nov. 4.

The election is sponsored by the Illinois Department of Conservation and was recently passed through the Illinois General Assembly.

Kathy Miller, a third grade teacher at Carl Sandburg Grade School in Charleston, said the state sent 60-page packets to grade school teachers across the state.

"We received a package from the state on the procedures of marking the ballot correctly and the promotion of the candidate. We also received information on each candidate so that we can explain each (fish) to the children," said Miller.

Miller was sent small posters for the students to color and two ballot forms, one with pictures for students too young to read and a standard ballot with a space for a write-in candidate.

"The candidates for the state fish are the Blue Gill, Carp, Channel Catfish, Coho Salmon, Large Mouth Bass and the White Crappie, who were nominated by the Illinois Department of Conservation," Miller said.

The program is designed to get grade school children interested in voting and to take part in the election process. The candidates will not be able to speak in front of the children, but a briefing on each candidate will be given by the teachers.

"We're going to let them mark their ballots and try to have election booths like adults. Some students may be campaigning for their candidate like coloring posters and having parties," said Miller.

Don Dufford, a field biologist for the Illinois Department of Conservation, thinks that it is very important for Illinois to have a state fish.

"We have a state flower, insect and tree. So why not have a state fish?" Dufford said.

The student ballots will be sent directly to Springfield after the election and the results will be announced the following week.

Which fish will win is up to the grade schoolers of Illinois. Pity no one even considered Charlie the Tuna.

Student senators want an English test for instructors

By AMY CARR

Staff writer

Although Gov. James R. Thompson vetoed a recent oral proficiency bill, student senator Darren DeVriese suggested Wednesday that the senate work on implementing the plan at Eastern.

In addition, student government members are planning to write a letter to Thompson protesting his veto.

The bill would have required all state instructors to take an oral proficiency test proving that they can communicate well in English.

DeVriese suggested Eastern instructors be required to take an English competency test on the basis that students are required to take a writing competency test prior to graduation.

The instructors' test would stress the fluency of the English language and the ability to communicate effectively with students.

Mike Ashack, board of governors representative, first brought the bill to the senate's attention last spring and suggested that they follow it closely.

Last April, student government members went to Springfield to lobby in favor of the bill. At that time, they were told by legislators that the bill looked favorable.

Ashack told the senate Thompson's veto was probably based on the reasoning that because an instructor has an accent, that would not make him a bad instructor.

But if the bill had passed, it would have prevented some students from failing classes because of difficulty understanding foreign instructors.

But Ashack said he believes Thompson vetoed the bill to avoid any racial controversy during an election year.

The senators planned to meet late Wednesday to discuss the letter which will be sent to Thompson.

In other business, the senate discussed final plans for Student Government Day.

The senators plan to sell hamburgers, chips and pop before the football game Saturday.

In other business, Senator Darren Bowen resigned due to lack of time.

In addition, the senate is looking into a program designed to publicize lost Prisoners Of War.

The program revolves around bracelets which are sold for $4, Senator Krista Leahy said.

AB review of $54,000 allocation accompanied by orientation

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

In addition to reviewing Eastern President Stanley Rives' allocation of $54,000 to the athletic department, the Apportionment Board will have an orientation session at its first meeting of the semester Thursday, said AB chairman Christy Wolfe.

The meeting is intended to familiarize members with the functions of the AB, she said.

There are eight voting students, three faculty members with one alternate and three ex-officio members on this year's AB, Wolfe said.

The meeting is slated for 7 p.m. in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon Room.

In addition, the AB will review the allocation of $54,000 from the reserve fund to Eastern's athletic department.

This summer, Rives allocated $54,920 to eliminate a seven-year-old deficit in the athletic department.

The AB allocates student fees to campus organizations—Players, Sports and Recreation, Student Publications, Student Senate and the University Board.

Wolfe said Union Area Head Bill Clark will be at the meeting to give members the background of the AB.

In other business, the board will review the AB's attendance policy.

According to the attendance policy, members who have been on the AB for one semester can have two unexcused absences. Second semester members can have three.

When members miss more meetings than they are allotted, the AB will decide if that member should be dismissed from the board, Wolfe said.

Video violence overstated: study

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rock videos, under fire for their blood, gore and slow-motion mayhem, have yet to rival the violence on prime-time television, according to a study published by the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg School of Communications.

"Nothing is as violent as prime-time TV," said George Gerbner, dean of the Annenberg school and editor of the Journal of Communications, which published the report.

"I think the concerns about rock videos have been exaggerated. There does not seem to be a specific reason for focusing on rock videos per se."

The researchers stopped far short of endorsing music videos, however. They said their analysis of 42 hours of videos led to the conclusion that they are violent, male-oriented and laden with sexual content—criticisms voiced by feminists and the National Coalition on Television Violence.

About 75 percent of all prime-time shows contain violence, compared with 56 percent of all "concept videos," which dramatize the music, according to the study's authors.

Reserve fund snafu calls for system revision

It's still a little difficult to figure out exactly what's been going on between the Apportionment Board Reserve Fund, the Athletic Department and Eastern President Stanley Rives.

Even though the details are still muddled, several things have been established.

Editorial

The problems began with the athletic department's 1979 budget deficit.

The relationship between the athletic department and the reserve fund is a complicated one, and it would be difficult to prove Rives did not technically have the right to use nearly $55,000 from the fund to alleviate the deficit.

The problem was compounded by an $11,000 chartered flight bill for the football team which, through an almost comical bureaucratic blunder, was paid twice. That this should not have happened is hardly a debatable point.

Even less debatable is the fact that the fund has to be replenished, and it now appears that the money will come out of students' pockets in the form of a student fee hike, possibly as soon as next year.

We also know that this seven-year-old problem is a surprise to most students on campus, including those in the Student Senate.

There are no good guys or bad guys in this story—just some not-too-careful guys. To try to point the finger of blame at anyone now would be premature.

But ultimately, the students are paying for someone else's mistakes. That much is crystal clear.

Under the current system, the university president is technically entitled to allocate money from the reserve fund without senate approval, as happened in this case.

The need for allocating the funds to athletics may be justifiable, but the way it was done certainly is not. In any case, it's legal under the system.

So, if anything good comes out of all of this, it should be a revision of that system.

The president or any other administrator should, at the very least, be required to inform the senate of administrative allocations from the fund. To require a binding senate vote on such allocations would make even more sense. It is, after all, money put aside by the students, to be used to benefit the students. Who better than students to ultimately decide where it goes?

Why can't this guy take a hint?

There are some people who will see a truck coming and step out of the way to avoid getting hit. They are called "normal."

There are other people who are not paying any attention to the on-coming truck, and, as a result, wind up as part of the pavement. They are called "unprepared."

And there are some people who will see the truck coming, will stand there until they are run over, and will continue to insist—as they lay bleeding on the road—that there is still time to stop the truck before it arrives.

At least one of those people is called Ronald Reagan.

To those of us who have long believed that U.S. policy in South Africa is one of our worst national shames, Reagan's current predicament is (dare I gloat?) a riot.

Reagan has long maintained that "constructive engagement" is the only effective way of pressuring South Africa's white minority government into reforming its archaic, racist form of government.

The idea is that the U.S. should not pull out of South Africa's economy to achieve this, but should invest more heavily. The logic is that the bigger the stake we have in South Africa's economy, the more influence we can muster against South Africa's government.

The policy sounded reasonable, but had one flaw: it wasn't working.

The blacks in South Africa have continued being murdered by government soldiers for such horrible offenses as attending the funerals of previously murdered blacks.

The white government continues making it clear that it has no intention of changing its ways.

The media—and, thus, the outside world—is still prevented from peering into South Africa's less presentable corners.

Kevin McDermott

'Be patient,' the President said through all of this. 'This constructive engagement stuff will work eventually. If we divest, it will only hurt the blacks worse.'

(Currently, black South Africans do not have equal voting rights, decent education or housing, are restricted in where they can live and travel, and are forceably kept in a secondary economic position to whites. One has to wonder how much worse things could get for them.)

So, what's been happening to all of this constructive engagement that we've been pouring into South Africa all these years? Where is the reform Reagan has promised so many times?

The reform is finally happening—not in South Africa, but in Washington.

After literally years of tip-toeing around the apartheid issue, Congress finally responded to public pressure, grew a backbone and recently passed tough new sanctions against the South African government.

Reagan—being the compassionate, humanitarian leader that he is—promptly vetoed it.

This is where the truck comes in.

We all saw it coming. Americans could no longer justify what their country was supporting in South Africa.

Reagan had to know the truck was not going to stop this time. Congress made it clear that the support for the sanctions was overwhelming, even in his own party.

As I write this, the Senate is preparing to override the President's veto, and he is begging those same Republican senators to keep it from happening—to help him stop a movement which is already far down the road to victory.

Almost pathetic, isn't it?

—Kevin McDermott is editor in chief and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Your turn

You pay my taxes, I won't vote here

Editor:

I would like to thank Dustin Suits for his letter to the editor advising students not to register to vote in Coles County. Since years of pleading by the Student Senate hasn't improved the student body's apathy about voting, reverse psychology might do the trick.

I would gladly give up my right to vote in Coles County and vote absentee in Elk Grove Village and I will Dustin, as soon as you pick up the tab for the Charleston city tax that I pay on food; gas cigarettes telephone and utility service, etc.

The fact is that if it wasn't for Eastern and the revenue from its students, this town would be about as alive and thriving as the south pool of Lake Charleston.

We have the right to vote in this town. The thought that we might exercise this right must strike fear into the hearts of neurotic townies like yourself. I bet this is a perfectly rational fear from your perspective of the world. I mean, if Eastern students voted, Olga Durham might be your mayor and what a horror that would be.

Zurawski owes member apology

Editor:

I was outraged at the misconstrued facts written by the managing editor on the Sept. 22 story of the Saluki mascot.

OK, maybe Amy Zurawski did receive partial information from a campus policeman, but I believe she owes an apology to the fine men of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, she describes as "sitting with" the assailant. I don't at all endorse what took place at the game against the Salukis and I think this is an unfortunate incident, one in which I would not like to see repeated. I feel that there is enough violence on the field and I don't want Eastern students to have a reputation of condoning violence outside the field.

The fact is that was only one member of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity in section G of the stadium and he had, in no shape, form or fashion anything to do with the attacker of the mascot or the assault on Wendy Hammer. Perhaps with an investigation of further depth by the editor, she may have found this information from some of her fellow Eastern students.

Libel is an offense that has a punishment not to be taken lightly. Let's not jeopardize the reputation of a group of men that have worked hard to share brotherhood and peace, because of the unrelated individual whose stupidity has shamed us all.

'85 grad is new fund raiser

"Excited" about working for alma mater

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Eastern's newest administrator is just one step from the classroom herself.

Audrey Dumentat, who joined Eastern's administrative staff as director of annual giving last week, graduated from Eastern in May of 1985.

"I have the advantage of still knowing people," Dumentat said. "Of course, most of my best pals have graduated.

"I'm starting out new in the development field, but I'm especially excited to be working at an institution as big as Eastern."

As director of annual giving, she will be in charge of coordinating the eight slated Telefund projects this year.

Before her return to Eastern, she spent a year working for U.S. Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., as a legislative assistant. She said her job was to trace 12 legislative issues through Congress and to determine whether Gilman's constituents would be interested in it.

Because of the time it takes for a bill to become law, the year she spent working for the Gilman was "much too short" to see any issue work its way through congress. She did say she found an amendment that would have given funding to a primate laboratory in New York particularly interesting.

The lab didn't receive funding from the National Institute of Health because most of the researchers worked there "sporadically," on their own pet projects. The NIH requires labs to have full-time staffs for funding, Dumentat said.

The lab "did have an excellent reputation," she added.

She said the lab researched primates in general and did not perform experiments on the primates for drug companies.

Dumentat said her old and new job involve the search for funding. Her old job involved people and agencies seeking funding from the government, whereas now she represents a part of government seeking funding from the private sector.

"I can't think of a better institution to give money to than education," Dumentat said. She said putting money into education might help solve some of the problems of the future.

"When you put money in education, you're putting money in the future. It's not just 'band-aid' help."

Her new job includes supervising the annual Telefunds that were organized started last year under the guidance of the development director Charles Ross. Last year, telefunds garnered $93,650.

This represents a 158 percent increase from 1984-85 when $36,245 was raised. Telefunds were held "sporadically" before they were organized under Ross, Dumentat said.

Now there is a special telefund project for each of the seven academic colleges. This year, a telefund will be held for the BOG degree program.

The projects are run through the different colleges, who use the telephone to solicit contributions from alumni.

Dumentat's job includes "providing assistance and in general seeing that things run smoothly." She also helps provide receipts for contributors.

Illinois seat-belt law upheld by State Supreme Court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Illinois' mandatory seat-belt law was upheld Wednesday by the state Supreme Court, in a decision that the law's supporters said is likely to convince more motorists to buckle up.

Ruling without written dissent, the court rejected arguments that the 15-month-old law represents an unconstitutional attempt to regulate individual decisions about safety.

Observers on both sides of the case said it was the first time a seat-belt law had been tested before a state supreme court. Illinois was the third state in the nation to pass such a law, behind New York and New Jersey.

Illinois' statute imposes a $25 fine on drivers and front-seat passengers who don't buckle up while riding in autos and pickup trucks.

Similar laws have been adopted in 25 other states and the District of Columbia.

The high court, reversing a series of circuit court rulings, said the law meets a legal requirement that it pertain to the general public safety, not only to the safety of the motorist who must wear a seat belt.

"Only when the statute affects a fundamental constitutional right will the courts subject the legislation to strict or expanding scrutiny," the court said.

Gov. James R. Thompson, a staunch supporter of the law, said the court's opinion backed up the reasoning he gave for signing the measure in January 1985.

"Hopefully, now that the issue of constitutionality of the law has been settled unanimously, people will remember that by buckling up when they're in the automobile, they not only increase their own chances of a safe ride, but protect others' lives as well," Thompson said.

WEIC, athletes, coaches team up against drug abuse

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

WEIC-Radio, Charleston's local AM and FM station, will be teaming up with local high school, college and professional athletes and coaches to help stop drug and alcohol abuse in its new "Team Up" program.

A six-week awareness promotion will start the program, which is directed by WEIC General Manager Steve Garman, Linda Meiffen, assistant manager of the station, and George Ryan Jr., the son of Illinois Lt. Gov. George Ryan.

"We have enlisted the help of local high school, college and professional athletes and coaches to cut radio spots on it (drug and alcohol abuse) that we will air," said WEIC receptionist Jean Reasor.

A community rally will also be held in January.

WEIC expects to have representatives from national, state and local governments and drug and alcohol programs speak and answer questions at the rally.

The program directors hope to use athletes to serve as positive role models to set standards on drugs and alcohol for young people.

One of the main focuses of the program will be prevention of drugs and alcohol abuse, Reasor said.

WEIC-Radio, AM-1270 and FM-92, located just outside of Charleston on Route 316, has begun a six-week "Team Up" promotion to fight drug abuse. Anti-drug messages will be broadcasted from the station with the help of local, college and professional athletes and coaches. Even the state's lieutenant governor's son, George Ryan Jr., is lending a hand.

Reagan lobbies Senate for support of sanction veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan lobbied senators by telephone Wednesday in a final push to preserve his veto of sanctions aimed at pressuring the South African government to abandon the system of apartheid.

The Senate was set to decide the issue Thursday, with most vote counts showing that Reagan lacks the margin he needs to prevent his veto from being overridden, as in the House earlier in the week.

White House Spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was contacting senators by phone Wednesday to seek their support.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, asked whether the administration has the votes to sustain the veto, replied: "Well, I don't know. We're working on it."

"What the Senate bill, the Congress bill, will do is cause the United States to in effect, withdraw from south Africa," Shultz said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Shultz on Tuesday contended that if senators choose to override the Reagan veto they will weaken the president's bargaining position with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, when the pair meets in Iceland on Oct. 10 and 11.

"Yesterday, the secretary of state urged the Senate to sustain the veto, so that we would not be sending the president to Iceland with a foreign policy defeat," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"But if the veto is sustained, the real victory will not be President Reagan's, but President Botha's," Kennedy said.

UI trustees: Divestment not school's major issue

CHICAGO (AP)—The controversy over University of Illinois investments in companies doing business with South Africa is obscuring the importance of other issues, say candidates for UI trustee posts.

"Of all the important things that go on at the university, it's just distressing that this issue would overtake others," said Board of Trustees President Nina Shepherd, 53, a Democrat who is seeking her third six-year term on the board.

Divestment "is not the primary problem facing the university," concurred Dean Madden, 64, a Republican and a foe of divestment.

The six candidates seeking election to the nine-member board said there were a host of important issues besides divestment that the board must face if the university is to remain a leading educational and research institution.

Among those issues were assisting economic growth in Illinois and increasing student financial aid.

The trustees, in a 5-4 vote, rejected a Sept. 11 proposal to pull out $14.6 million in university funds invested in companies doing business with South Africa.

The proposal was submitted by the university president, Stanley Ikenberry, who had long opposed divestment but recently shifted positions, citing economic considerations and the dwindling numbers of U.S. firms with ties to South Africa.

Pair arrested for bicycle theft

Two Eastern freshman were arrested by Campus Police at 1:25 a.m. Wednesday for allegedly carrying off a locked white ten-speed bicycle that had been parked outside of Andrews Hall.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson reported that John Krohe, 20, and Curt Elchuk, 21, were apprehended and arrested on theft charges.

Larson said that a squad car was dispatched to the residence hall after police received a complaint from a night assistant there who saw two men around the bike. When police arrived upon the scene they observed the two men allegedly carrying off a bicycle that was still locked.

Larson said that the two suspects were cooperative at the time of the arrest and their case would be turned-over to the university disciplinary system for review. The two will go before a university judicial review board.

Had the two suspects been uncooperative, they may have been turned-over to the Charleston police and faced formal charges, Larson said.

The 10-speed bike was returned to its owner at Andrews Hall, Larson said.

Sex in dorm room wins approval of Colorado panel

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Sex in dormitories is OK as long as it doesn't violate a roommate's right to privacy, a University of Colorado student panel has concluded.

The Dormitory Representative council voted 16-0 after 90 minutes of impassioned debate Monday to recommend that wording in a campus handbook be changed to reflect that sentiment.

"If I stood up in front of 450 freshmen in Nichols Hall and said I voted to ban sex in the dorms, I'd be shot if they had a gun. I'm serious," said Dan Mihelic, a sophomore who represents Nichols Halls on the council.

A controversy had erupted this fall over phrasing that appeared in the 1986-87 "Guide to Residence Hall Living." It banned "sexual activity such as sleeping together (or) going to bed with another person."

Housing officials argued that the contested language was merely a clarification of existing rules against cohabitation, and they served notice that the rules would be enforced.

But the dorm representatives voted to replace the offending language with: "Visitation does not, therefore, permit any activity, sexual or otherwise, which is contrary to a roommate's and fellow residents' right to privacy."

The recommendation will be forwarded to Dan Daniels, CU's housing director.

RHA to view progress report on proposed '86 budget

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

Eastern's Residence Hall Association is expecting to hear a progress report Thursday on its 1986 budget, said RHA President Mark Hetzler.

Last week, the RHA tabled reviewing its budget for the fourth time because of confusion between organization officials and the bank holding RHA's funds.

Previously, treasurer Kim Russell reported a discrepancy between the amount RHA believed it had and the amount it actually had on account.

As a result, the 1986 budget must be completely revised before it can be voted on at a future meeting.

The RHA is slated to meet at 5 p.m. in the Stevenson Hall Illinois Room.

In other business, the RHA will consider changing a part of its constitution concerning part payment of conference fees, Hetzler said.

According to the RHA constitution, one-third of the conference fee for some hall council members is paid for, while some executive members receive two-thirds of the trip paid.

The proposed constitution change would pay one-third of the members' conference fee, Hetzler explained.

The proposed constitution change will be tabled for one week so members can consider the plan, he added.

In related business, the RHA will also propose to change some wording in its constitution.

The job of the national committee coordinator, an RHA member who coordinates RHA conferences, has been expanded and now includes co-coordinators.

In other business, the RHA will consider bringing a hypnotist to Eastern in November.

Sociology department seeks major changes

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Changes in the sociology major, including four new classes, will come up for a vote at the Council on Academic Affairs 2 p.m. Thursday meeting in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

CAA chair Kandy Baumgardner said the changes result from the elimination of the graduate program in sociology which occurred following the Board of Governor's annual program review last year.

Because the graduate program was eliminated, the department is making use of the available instructors to expand its undergraduate program.

The courses under consideration are Sociology 2780, "Deviant Behavior"; 3500, "Sociology of Sport"; 3660, "Social Organization"; and 4850, "Contemporary Sociologies."

Accompanying the new courses will be a revision of the sociology major which would divide the program into four areas of concentration.

Sociology majors will be required to take 21 hours of core sociology courses, a three-hour anthropology class and 21 hours from one of the four proposed concentrations.

The concentrations are: I, community service; II, criminal justice; III, organization and administration; and IV, general studies, which includes six hours from any two of the previous three areas of concentration.

Also under consideration is a proposal to change the credit transfer policy regarding college courses taken while in high school. The proposal would eliminate a rule that college courses taken by a transfer student while still in high school could not count toward Eastern graduation if those courses were part of high school graduation requirements.

The proposal from Sam Taber, dean of student academic services, states that students who took college courses while they were in high school were highly qualified academically.

According to Taber's proposal, of the 50 Eastern students who took Another course under consideration is Industrial Technology 3033, "Construction Blueprint Reading. The course will deal with an in-depth study production and interpretation of construction working drawings, specifications, codes and standards.

A new course under consideration is Military Science 2004, "Terrorism." The course would deal with profiles and common strategies and tactics of

Strike rocks South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—As many as 325,000 black miners—more than half the workforce—stayed off the job Wednesday in what union officials called a powerful display of worker strength in South Africa's largest industry.

"This worker action is unparalleled in South African labor history and demonstrates the importance of worker safety at the work place," said Marcel Golding, spokesman for the 250,000-member National Union of Mineworkers.

Teen-age suicide rate drops

BALTIMORE (AP)—The teen-age suicide rate, which tripled between 1950 and 1975 as drug and alcohol abuse among young people also soared, is starting to decline and should decrease gradually over the next five years, a researcher said Wednesday.

"It's not a huge drop-off. It's still about three times what it was before (in the 1950s) but it looks like it's starting to edge down," said Richard Wetzel, a clinical psychologist at Washington University in St. Louis.

Wetzel, who spoke at a news briefing sponsored by the American Medical Association and Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions, cited a variety of studies by him and others in drawing his conclusions.

He said the current decline in teen-age suicides might be due in part to an equivalent decline among young people in drug and alcohol abuse.

"I think that's happening, but that's speculation," he said.

Wetzel said studies have shown that the sharpest rise in teen-age suicides, which occurred between 1965 and 1979, was paralleled by a dramatic rise in drug abuse among the young.

Studies in California also have found that suicides are more likely in countries with higher levels of drug and alcohol abuse, he said.

A recent study in San Diego of 133 suicide victims under 30 showed that 53 percent of the victims abused drugs or alcohol—which was three times the drug and alcohol abuse rate among the overall population, Wetzel said.

"These were primarily people who started off very young with drug abuse," Wetzel said.

Some of the studies Wetzel examined refute the widely held view that suicide rates remain constant for a given population as it ages.

The newer studies have convinced Wetzel that external factors can influence a population's suicide rates, he said. Using these new studies, Wetzel has made a mathematical prediction that the rates should go down by a total of about 7 percent over the next five years.

The prediction is based on what is called an auto-regression model, in which statistics from the past years are analyzed mathematically to determine future trends.

Koehler to farmers: 'plant out of debt'

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Republican U.S. Senate candidate Judy Koehler said Wednesday the federal government should adjust farm subsidy programs in a way that would encourage farmers to "plant themselves out of surpluses."

During appearances in seven cities, Koehler issued a series of proposals she said were designed to strengthen U.S. agriculture.

"There is in the U.S. a feeling that past governmental programs led to the economic recession in American agriculture," said the state representative from Henry at a Springfield news conference. "It is necessary to help farmers in times of distress."

"I am not advocating immediate dismissal of the federal government from all aspects of agriculture," said Koehler, who was reared on a farm.

Former Panther looks forward to newly formed NWBL

By DOBIE HOLLAND
Staff writer

In the wake of a new basketball league, a former Panther basketball star will receive the chance to continue her pursuits as a professional basketball player.

Former Panther Chris Aldridge will be among the pioneers of the National Women's Basketball League.

The league is still in the finishing stages making details rather sketchy, Aldridge explained, but play is scheduled to begin about in mid-November.

"I think it will give women a chance to dream a little bit," Eastern basketball coach Bobbie Hilke said. "Some kids reach a level of maturity at the college level and they're done. They can now look pass the college level if they choose."

Following four years at Eastern highlighted by her sound inside play in the Gateway Conference, Aldridge is thrilled about her chance to continue playing power and small forward for the Iowa Pride.

"I'm excited. I think it's (pro basketball's) going to be a good experience," said Aldridge, a Taylorville native.

Her former teammates send along their good wishes to a popular former team leader.

"I think it's excellent that she made it (to the pros)," senior guard Pat Hamilton said. "The last time I talked to her (last week), she didn't know if she made the cut or not."

"Now that she made it, I'm so proud of her. That says a lot for us (Eastern's program) having her going pro," she added.

The possible heir to Aldridge's power forward position is sophomore Lisa Tyler, and she, too, was excited for Aldridge.

"I think she will be an incentive for our team, with us knowing a person who made a pro team," Tyler said.

Aldridge herself praised Hilke and assistant coach Deanna D'Abbraccio for what they have done for her as a player and as a person.

Her destiny lies in Des Moines, Iowa, when she reports to the Pride camp Friday in preparation for her season which is scheduled to begin in mid-November.

A physical education major and Academic All-Region member, Aldridge will not be playing just for pride.

Aldridge said she signed a one-year deal for about $10-18,000 depending on her performance in addition to a $2,000 bonus if she gets her degree.

"I think the league has some good ideas like salary caps and trying to get the kids to finish their education," Hilke said.

Although she completed four years, student teaching remains in Aldridge's way of getting her degree.

Aldridge was scheduled to student teach during the fall term at Pana High School, but chose not to in order to attend the rookie camp from Sept. 14-21. Now she will postpone student teaching until the summer.

"I do plan to student teach in the summer and get my degree. I probably won't teach until after I'm done playing ball," Aldridge said.

Big Ten coaches divided on round-robin question

EVANSTON (AP)—Big Ten football coaches, heading into the conference race Saturday, are divided in their sentiments about playing a round-robin schedule.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan, Earle Bruce of Ohio State and Mike White of Illinois are in favor of a round-robin, with everyone playing everyone else, in order to get a true champion.

But Leon Burnett of Purdue, John Gutekunst of Minnesota, Bill Mallory of Indiana and Francis Peay of Northwestern are for cutting down the conference schedule to possibly six or seven games.

And George Perles of Michigan State and John Hilles of Wisconsin don't care one way or the other.

Schembechler, dean of Big Ten coaches who will be shooting for his 200th victory against Wisconsin Saturday, said, "I have always felt the most important games are those in the conference. The conference championship is what you play for. A true champion should play every team in the league."

He said teams that favor cutting down the Big Ten schedule want to play teams they can defeat to inflate their records, win half of their conference games and get a bowl bid.

Bruce is of the same opinion.

"I've always been for a nine-game conference schedule. Some people think going to less games means we won't be knocking each other off and there will be more bowl bids."

White said he was "extremely disappointed when we gave up the round-robin. I think everybody should play everybody to win the championship."

Opponents of the round-robin also make some good points.

"Winning the Big Ten and going to the Rose Bowl is still the main objective," said Burnett, "but I am in favor of six or seven conference games. We should cut back to fewer conference games, say six or seven, like the Southeast Conference does."

Spikers turn away Evansville; win streak at 8

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

Eastern volleyball coach Betty Ralston left it up to the bench to put away the Purple Aces of Evansville Wednesday night at Lantz Gym.

And it was a job done well as the secondary front line entered the third game to complete the three game-sweep 15-10, 15-1, 15-12. The win raises the Panthers to 10-8 and extends an Eastern winning streak to eight straight matches. Evansville falls to 3-10 with the loss.

The Panthers return to action Thursday when they host 1-18 St. Louis University for a 7 p.m. contest at Lantz—a place that doesn't seem to do justice to the "home-court advantage" theory.

"We just do not play well in here (Lantz)," Ralston said. "I just really don't know what the reason is."

Eastern was plagued by a slow start against the Aces, struggling to a 5-1 lead only to let Evansville back to tie 7-7. Ralston believes the team could have showed considerable more dominance from the start.

"It was just a case of not pushing early. Our setters were running fast sets, and the hitters weren't ready for it."

"I just told them (setters Donna Sicher and Jeanne Pacione) to give some higher sets and find the holes—give the hitters a little more time," Ralston said.

And it worked: The second game was all Eastern as the Panthers dominated for a 9-0 jump on the Aces en route to the win.

Pacione led the team in assisting the hitters with 17 assists. She also knew things weren't completely on for the Panthers.

"We definitely didn't play to our potential; not purposely, but sometimes that kind of thing happens," she said. She stressed that the only thing the team can do at this point is keep looking down the road.

"We need to stay intense; keep thinking that no team is unbeatable."

"We need to stay intense; keep thinking that no team is unbeatable."

Sophomore Patti Frigo was confident with the way she and the rest of the bench played in the third game to save the match.

"It was hard coming off the bench in the third game," Frigo said. "Everyone talked and worked together."

"The first game we came out really slow," Frigo said. "We have to start playing, then the fans get going."

Ralston was also encouraged to see the bench respond to the task presented them.

"I was glad they held them (Evansville) off. We know what they (the bench) can do when they get the job," Ralston added.

Thursday's match will pit Eastern's winning streak against St. Louis' 17-game losing streak. Ralston would like to see the Panthers dominate from the opening serve.

"I am hoping we can get off to a better start. We know what to do," but, "we need to show what we can do. We have to make sure we put the hits away early."

USFL QB agrees to one-year contract with NFL Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—The Green Bay Packers reached a contract agreement with former USFL quarterback Chuck Fusina on Wednesday, his agent said.

Fusina and 1984 Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie were in Green Bay on Tuesday to try out with the Packers.

The 29-year-old Fusina agreed to a one-year contract this morning and will return to Green Bay tonight, said agent Jeff Briscoe of Cherry Hill, N.J. The talks began at 7 a.m. and took only 2½ hours to reach the NFL contract.

Fusina led the Baltimore Stars to a United States Football League title, but the league canceled its season this year after winning a partial victory in an anti-trust suit against the NFL.

The Packers made no immediate announcement on the deal.

But the 6-foot-1-inch Fusina told the Green Bay Press Gazette on Tuesday night from his New Berlin, N.J. home that he expected to sign with the Packers.

"They want me there as soon as I can get there," said Fusina, whose previous National Football League experience included three years as a backup at Tampa Bay. "I'd be lying if I said I wasn't pretty excited about it."

The offense of the 0-4 Packers has been struggling under quarterbacks Randy Wright and Vince Ferragamo. After Sunday's 42-7 loss to Minnesota, Green Bay coach Forrest Gregg said he was looking for quarterbacking help.

Liberty: On a mission from Falwell

By DAN VERDUN
Sports editor

Liberty University, Eastern's football opponent Saturday night at O'Brien Stadium, is far from being just another competitive school at the Division-II level.

While most people around Eastern's campus may be asking just who in the world Liberty is, the school of 6,000 students in Lynchburg, Va. definitely isn't questioning itself.

Liberty, a fundamentalist Christian university founded in 1971 by evangelist Jerry Falwell, has set out on a mission to establish itself as a sports power similar to Notre Dame and Brigham Young.

While that may seem a lofty goal for an institution currently at the Division-II level, Liberty officials are willing to take the time required of their task.

"He (Falwell) looks at football as a spoke in the wheel of ministry," Liberty Assistant Athletic Director Chuck Burch said.

"It (becoming the Protestant Notre Dame) has to be a long-term goal," Burch said. "By the 1988-89 season, we'll be at the Division I-AA level with all our sports."

But as Flames' football coach Morgan Hout said, "I-AA is a heck of a long way from Notre Dame."

Yet, Hout added that the Flames' program is already progressing in its quest of its long-range goal.

"We're getting things that way," Hout said. "Our equipment has really improved over the past few seasons, and we've been getting national recognition."

Liberty has indeed received its share of national exposure of late. Sport magazine did a feature article on the emergence of Liberty's athletic department and its goals during the summer.

Since that time Liberty has been featured in newspapers around the nation. Earlier this week the NBC Nightly News televised a brief segment on the Flame program. Newsday magazine is also planning a feature for an upcoming issue.

Being in the national limelight has definitely paid dividends for the school.

"It has helped us a great deal in our recruiting," Hout said. "In fact, we recently had a high school quarterback from Texas turn down a scholarship to Rice for Liberty."

Yet, Liberty only recruits athletes that have same religious convictions as that of the university.

"Our coaches only recruit athletes that have been saved," said Burch who also serves as the school's sports information director. "If the person says he is committed to Jesus Christ, then we take his word for it. We're not here to pass judgment."

Hout added, "I don't think any self-respecting university can have separate guidelines for its athletes and its students."

While Liberty is a far cry from having attained the mystique of Notre Dame or BYU, the Flames have made a few strides in that direction.

"We've had four of our players sign with the NFL," Hout said.

However, of those players only wide receiver Kelvin Edwards of the New Orleans Saints is with the team he signed.

In addition, Liberty has defeated Division-I opponent James Madison in games the last two seasons.

But football isn't the only sport on the rise at Liberty.

"Our baseball team is already playing at the Division-I level," Burch said.

If that doesn't mean much to you, consider that it was Liberty's baseball team that produced Pittsburgh Pirates' first baseman Sid Bream.

Liberty has also enjoyed off-the-field benefits. The school's enrollment has doubled in the past three years.

"Notre Dame has been in business a long time," Hout said. "It's not going to happen overnight."
