City council OKs bonds for spillway

GRETCHEN IVES
Staff writer

The Charleston City Council gave the go-ahead Tuesday for the issuing of $1.3 million in bonds to pay for spillway repairs on the Lake Charleston Dam.

Tim Ryan, a representative of the Chicago-based Spear Service, said the bonds will pay for the spillway without raising taxes. The bond issuance will not cover the proposed hydroelectric unit that may be added to the spillway. Additional bonds of up to $1 million may be issued for the project.

The hydro unit would produce enough revenue by generating electricity to pay the bonds off. The hydro unit has a projected revenue of $1,000 annually over the 20-year lifetime of the unit.

The total cost of the spillway is estimated at $2.5 million. The state has earmarked $5,000 for the project. Unanimously, the Council passed the utility tax. The tax has raised $15,000 in the last nine months.

In other business, a resolution was passed to allow City Attorney Tony Sunderman to begin legal proceedings that will lead to the demolition of a house.

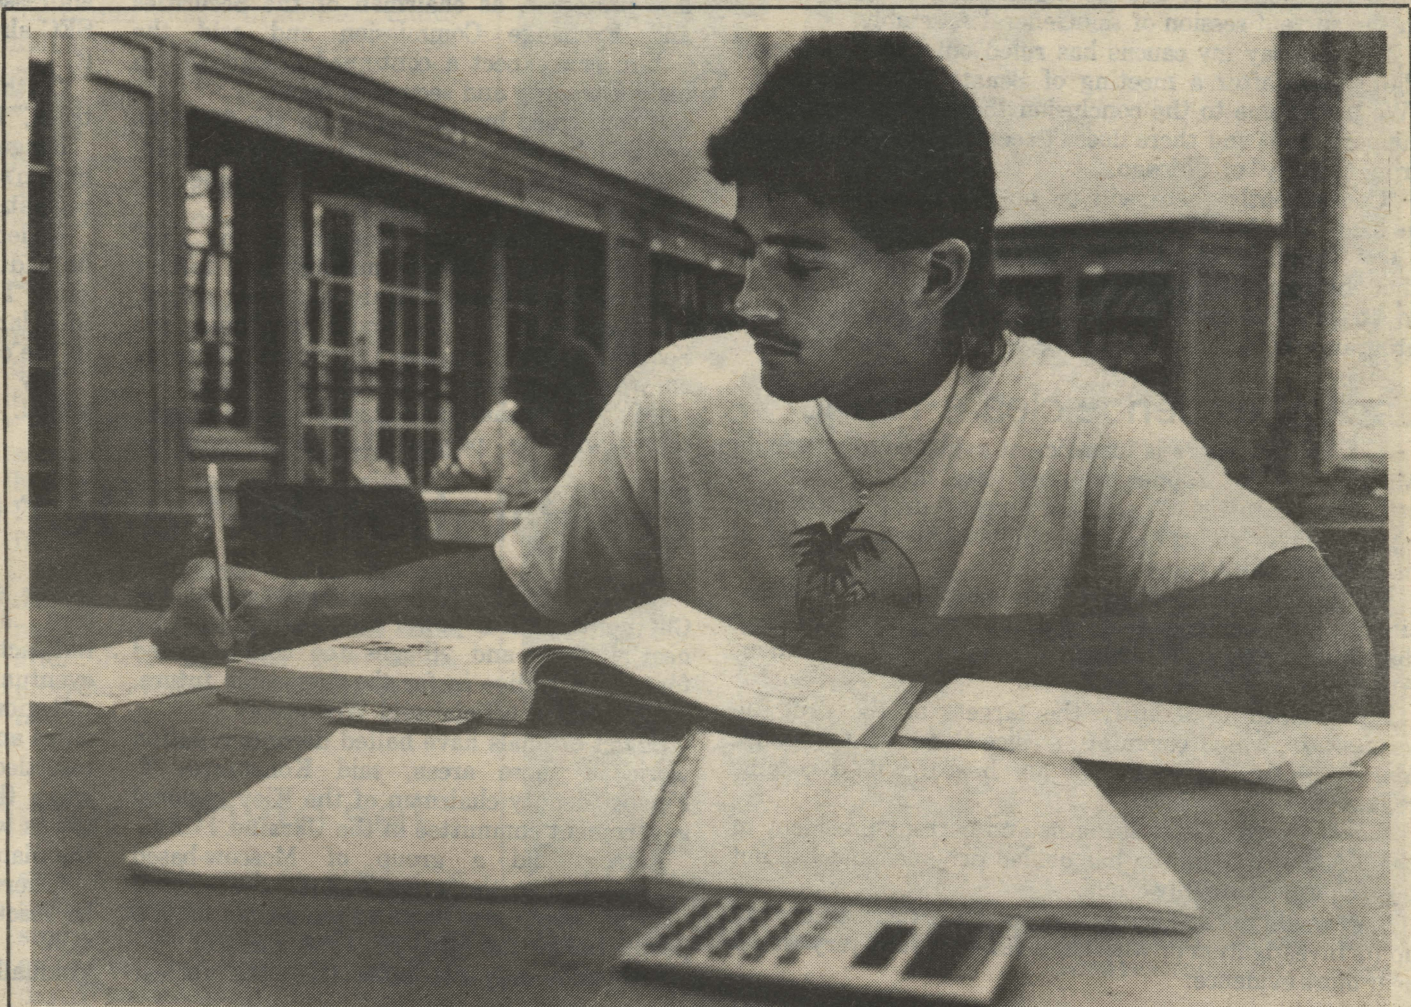

The house located at 345 N. Sixth is in "dangerous and delapidated condition," said Sunderman. He recommended the house be sprayed and treated for pest extermination well in advance of demolition.

An ordinance was proposed by Tony Sunderman requiring salvage yards to be licensed by the city. The ordinance would increase the regulations of junk yards in the city limits.

Some of the additional regulations on junk yards include: an increase from $25 to $50 to get a license, no collecting of more than 50 pounds of used copper without a state license, prohibits the sale or purchase of storage drums that contained hazardous materials, and a fine of $500 for junk dealers without an operating license.

Dick Corbin recommended not granting the annual license until the junk yard has passed an on-site inspection conducted by the city.

Although the city is likely to pass the ordinance, it won't be voted on until the changes have been made.

Thompson speaks at girl's state Governor says education reason for higher taxes

By JOHN STROUD
Editor in chief

Gov. James R. Thompson emphasized improved education as a top priority with his proposed tax increases in his address to Illini Girl's Staters in Dvorak Hall at Eastern Wednesday.

The 553 high school junior girls from all over the state are on campus this week to learn about citizenship and the Illinois government. It is the 47th anniversary of the event sponsored by various American Legion auxiliary units from throughout the state.

During the week, the girls will participate in a model Illinois government. This is the second straight year girl's state has been held at Eastern.

Sporting a button which read, "Just say now"—in a plea to the Illinois General Assembly to approve his tax increase plan—Thompson said,

"While you are here to learn about the Illinois government, real life traumas are taking place in Springfield this week. We are learning too.

"The American dream never settled for second best. Neither will this state."

Thompson said that the popular 'Just say no' slogan, which his message was derived from, is appropriate when referring to drugs and illicit sex. He said the 'now' slogan is directed at the tax legislation which will improve the quality of lives in Illinois.

"What's the money for?" Thompson asked. "It is important for the young people of Illinois to get a competitive education. If the education you receive isn't competitive with the education they're receiving in other countries, then where will the jobs go?"

Thompson referred to Japan as a model example in high education standards based on its culture and its drive to succeed.

"In Japan, the young people your age don't date, don't watch TV and don't drive cars. What they do do is study," Thompson said. "Look at where Japan is. . . look at where we are."

Thompson stressed that the education system in Illinois is not going to change overnight, but added that it can get a lot better than it currently is.

"One of my obligations as governor is to tell you where our great state should go," Thompson said.

He added that, with high welfare costs, our system is one which encourages people not to work. "We haven't done enough to help those people to get the education to get those jobs."

Thompson said it is also the people's responsibility to ensure a comfortable (See THOMPSON, page 5)

Library dean, Luquire, leaving Eastern

By DIANA WINSON
Staff writer

Wilson Luquire, dean of library services, will be leaving Eastern to work for a private business sector in southern California.

"It was a hard decision to make," Luquire said of his decision to leave the education field, adding that "it was difficult even to think of leaving Eastern."

However, Luquire said after taking some time to "survey (his) options," he decided "not to go ahead in higher education."

Despite going through six interviews for higher education-related positions, Luquire said he focused his attention on the southern California and southern Florida areas. He said "several things surfaced" in those areas, and he eventually found an opportunity near Los Angeles.

Luquire said he will be working for a 25-year-old corporation, which he declined to name because of "pending contractual negotiations," in the Marina Del Rey area.

The corporation, which has headquarters in the east, Luquire said, "deals with all aspects of job placement." Luquire will be responsible at first for opening and managing an office in Marina Del Rey, he said.

After that, the corporation plans to open more offices in the west, Luquire said, adding that his position will require him to be "personally responsible" for those offices.

Luquire, who has been at Eastern since July, 1980, said "the flexibility of (Booth Library's) faculty and staff" have made his term at the library's helm "a good seven years."

Updating old equipment and dealing with the ever-present heating/air conditioning problems are two problems, which Eastern's next dean will probably have to face, Luquire said. However, he encouraged the future administrator to "build upon the strengths of the faculty and staff which are already there."

Philip says tax increase 'dead'

SPRINGFIELD—Senate Republican Leader James "Pete" Philip on Wednesday became the second legislative leader to declare higher taxes a "dead" issue in the current session of the General Assembly.

"I would say my caucus has ruled out a tax increase," Philip said after a meeting of Senate GOP members. "We have come to the conclusion there is no Republican support for it and there doesn't seem to be much support from the city" of Chicago.

"Consequently there will be no tax increase, period," he said. "It's dead."

On Tuesday, Senate President Philip Rock said he thought Gov. James R. Thompson's call for higher taxes to boost state spending for education and other social programs would not pass the Legislature this session.

Lack of evidence clears Young

ATLANTA—There is insufficient evidence to prosecute Mayor Andrew Young or other city officials for obstruction of justice in the handling of drug allegations against civil rights activist Julian Bond, a federal prosecutor said Wednesday.

But U.S. Attorney Robert Barr said his office is continuing to investigate allegations of possession and distribution of illegal drugs by a number of prominent Atlantans.

He declined to identify the targets of the drug investigation, which began after Alice Bond went to police March 19 and reported that her husband used cocaine regularly.

Bond, a former state senator and current president of the NAACP in Atlanta, has denied drug use and has not been charged with any crime.

Barr would not speculate on when his office would wrap up its investigation or whether a federal grand jury would hear more evidence.

Ruder chosen to head SEC; Reagan vows crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Reagan on Wednesday chose David S. Ruder, a business law professor, as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and said the nation can expect a continued crackdown on insider trading and securities fraud.

If confirmed by the Senate for the $82,500-a-year job, Ruder would succeed John Shad, who resigned after six years to become ambassador to the Netherlands.

After meeting with Reagan in the Oval Office, Ruder, a faculty member and former dean of Northwestern University law school, told reporters: "I would continue the Securities and Exchange Commission's strong enforcement policy against insider trading."

"My view is that as long as there are people, there will be people that have criminal motives and that insider trading will be a problem for years to come and it needs to be addressed," he said. But he added that the SEC already is "doing a great deal" to combat it.

"I think the commission's on the right track," Ruder said.

Reagan hailed Ruder, 58, as one of the nation's foremost experts on securities regulation and corporate finance.

Ruder, discussing his qualifications, noted he had taught securities law for 25 years and said, "I believe myself to be as well informed in a large number of areas as almost anyone in the country."

"My knowledge is really extensive," he added.

KIEV, U.S.S.R (AP)—The explosion at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant left at least 27 nearby cities and villages too contaminated for people to live in for the foreseeable future, a government official said Wednesday.

Soviet officials have halted decontamination work in these areas, said Konstantin T. Fursov, deputy chairman of the Kiev regional government committee in the Ukraine.

Fursov told a group of Moscow-based reporters that the areas include the city of Prioyat, which was home to more than 50,000 people before the April 26, 1986, disaster.

Prioyat is only two miles from the nuclear power station, where an explosion and fire tore apart the No.4 reactor, spewed radioactivity that killed 31 Soviets and spread eventually around the world.

Regional officials contend most of the 69 cities and villages evacuated will eventually be resettled, but said they could not predict when the process will be complete. All the towns were in an 18-mile danger zone around the plant.

"There are 27 populated points that will not be resettled in the foreseeable future," Fursov said. The others will be repopulated gradually, he said.

New ICTC phone system cutover begins Friday

JOHN STROUD
Chief

Illinois Consolidated Telephone Co. begin cutover to a new telephone system at Eastern beginning at 5 p.m. Friday.

At that time, the old system will go down and the new system will be operational. Although not all sets have been installed, installation is expected to be completed over the weekend. About 500 sets remain to be installed, and ICTC expects them to be done by Monday morning.

The new Northern Telecom DMS-100 telecommunication system replaces the electromechanical switch installed by ICTC in 1966.

The new system will provide additional services and better quality transmission to Eastern, said ICTC Director of Public Relations Paul Keiser in a news release.

"This is a major gain for students, the university and the telephone company," said James Dean, Eastern's Director of administrative services.

Touch-tone sets will replace all rotary dial phones. In addition, multi-line, multi-feature electronic business sets will replace multi-line key sets, Keiser said.

One feature of the new system will be personal identification (PIN) numbers, which means students can identify their own calls when more than one person is included at one number.

Beginning in the fall, students who reside on campus will receive individual bills rather than one bill for each room.

Students will receive information about information about the new billing system and will be assigned a PIN number when they register in the fall.

Summer students will receive new dialing instructions and a PIN number for long distance calls made after June 26. The new billing procedure will not go into effect until fall, however.

Meetings for summer senate set

WICKY WOLSTENHOLME
Writer

The summer student senate will be holding its meetings at 7 p.m. in the La-Tuscola Room in the Union Building June 24, said Denise Wasetis, speaker of the summer and fall student senate.

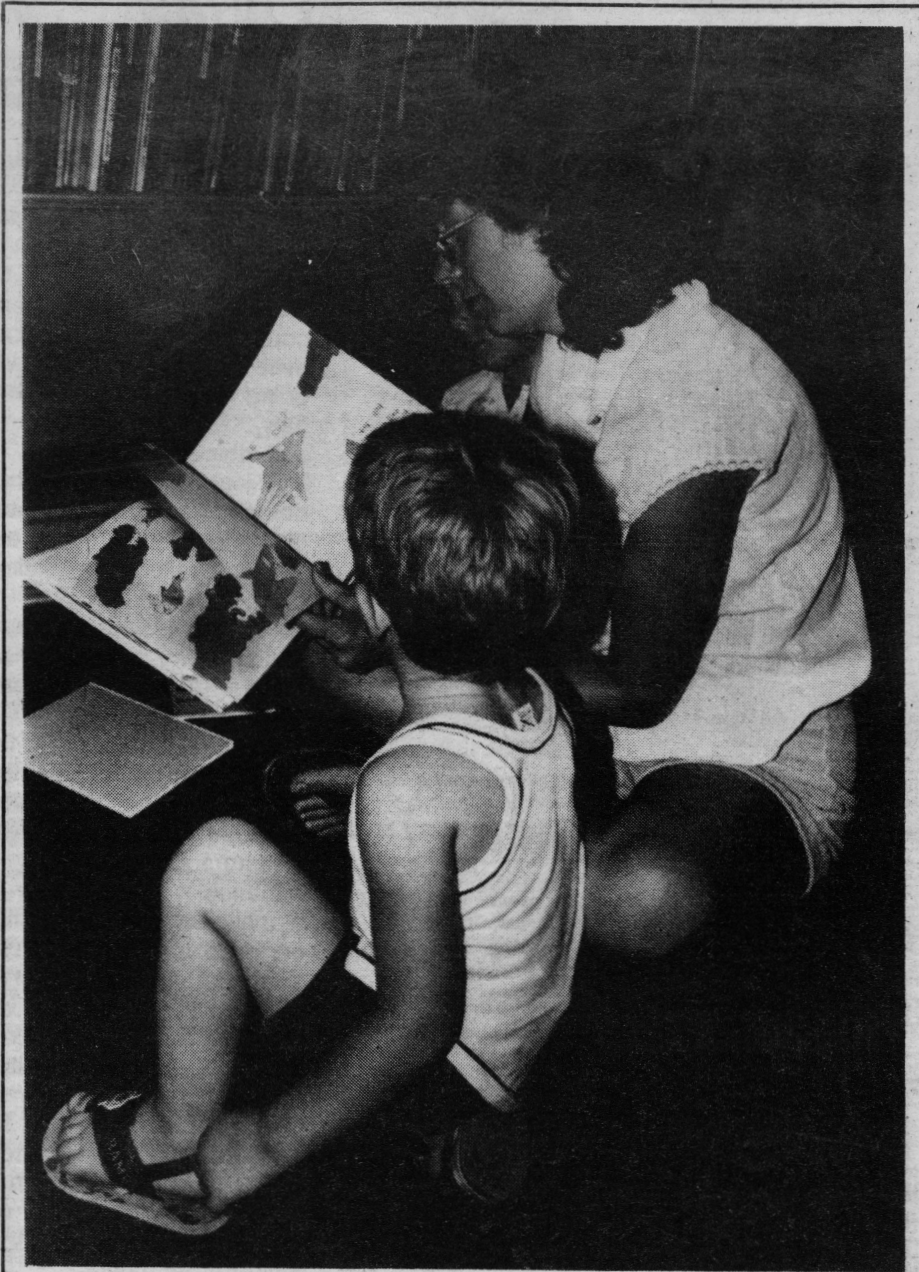

There are six senators that will be forming for the summer meetings," Wasetis said, "We are also interested in making other students that will be in the summer and possibly in fall. We can take up to the regular list of 30 student senators."

Some of the activities that the student senate will be working on include gaining recognition for the student organizations on campus and setting up a new freshman orientation day, Wasetis said.

"We are working on organizing a couple of projects for the fall as well as some smaller projects for the summer. We plan in our meetings to organize things that we have to do and to take things (projects) as they come in," said Wasetis.

Anyone interested in being on the summer student senate should contact Denise Wasetis at the student senate office in the University Union.

Education key in restoring U.S. economy

It has become apparent that one reason the United States is lagging in the world trade market behind other high-tech countries is because of decreased education standards since the Reagan administration has been in office.

Education must be restored as a priority item if our society is to remain a major competitor with countries like Japan. The individual states cannot continue to take the brunt of the education burden while the federal government continues defense overspending; much of which is waste.

Gov. James Thompson has established an improved education system in Illinois as a top priority if his tax increase package passes.

Other states are also recognizing the fact that the survival of our future generations depends on a good education system. But the individual states cannot do it themselves without more help on the national level.

The Japanese know the importance of education in a high-tech world. It is for this reason that the education system in Japan dwarfs that of the United States by such a large margin.

While one reason Japan places a high emphasis on education is because of its high cultural standards, the Japanese also recognize that their people are their future.

The United States must emphasize the same principles and invest more in its people if the people are to keep the country strong in return.

Disasters just an inconvenience

So, where were you last week during "Earthquake '87"?

I don't know about the rest of you, but I'm still not convinced there really was an earthquake. Oh sure, my roommates claimed that they felt the ground shaking, and a couple of my neighbors came over to ask if they were going crazy or if we'd just had an earthquake or something.

I just shook my head, because to be quite honest, I didn't feel a thing. Or, as one of my earthquake-skeptic colleagues claimed, the earth certainly didn't move for me.

Perhaps it was because I was walking, talking, and chewing gum at the same time. I don't know.

But, alas, the seismograph confirmed the suspicions: 5.0 on the ever-popular Richter scale. Not a major quake, but then again, we don't have one of those major fault lines nearby, either.

And I didn't even notice it. But that's OK, because I've never really liked those natural disasters anyway.

I think it all started in second grade when my teacher showed us a Civil Defense-sponsored film on tornado safety. That was back in the days when you clapped after every movie, no matter how raunchy you thought it was or how many of your previous teachers had already shown it.

But this movie, despite its graphic depiction of tornado destruction, was quite informative; and action-packed. I liked it.

My teacher promptly scolded the whole bunch of us for applauding a film of this nature. So I, the rebel 7-year-old, took it upon myself to defend the entire class by telling the teacher how much we enjoyed the movie.

My teacher promptly sent me to the office.

Diana Winson

A couple of years later, during spring, my fellow fourth graders and I were out playing kickball when the playground teacher—who, by no small coincidence, was the same teacher who I'd had for second grade—began blowing her whistle like there was no tomorrow.

Now, I'm not trying to claim to know more than any of the teachers or instructors I currently have or have had throughout my academic career. And I know what most of the psychologists have to say about humans not being born with natural instincts and all that stuff.

But when you're a grade schooler, there are two things you do instinctively know: when it's time for afternoon snacks and how long recess lasts.

And there was the silly playground teacher, huffing and puffing on her whistle a good 10 minutes before recess was supposed to be over!

Well, I certainly wasn't going to stand idly by when I knew full well we could get in at least two good innings before it was time to go in. So I told all my teammates to stay out there and keep playing, because the teacher obviously didn't know what time it was.

Of course, in the heat of competition, none of us realized that the sky had grown quite threatening. After all, it wasn't raining, so who would have suspected that a tornado had been sighted a few miles southwest of town?

Needless to say, the teacher began ranting and raving for all of us to get inside. Then we all went into the somewhat embarrassing and quite uncomfortable "tornado squat and bend" until the storm had passed.

I didn't get in trouble for that one, but right then and there I realized that above all else, disasters are more or less an inconvenience. So I'm pretty happy about not even noticing last week's big earthquake; at least I didn't get in trouble for it.

But I will admit I'm still waiting for the aftershocks.

Ethanol bill good for energy needs

U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Olney, is pushing a bill before the Energy and Power Subcommittee aimed at increasing the use of ethanol as an alternative automobile fuel source in America.

If passed, the bill would require a 10-percent blend of ethanol in half of America's gasoline by 1992.

Editorial

This bill is good from several standpoints.

It is good for Illinois and other Midwestern states feeling the farm crisis crunch, because it means there will be an increased demand for corn to make alcohol. Grain surpluses which have kept prices low will also be decreased as a native market is expanded.

It is good for the United States in its search for energy answers by lessening our dependence on foreign oil.

The economy will benefit as new jobs are created with increased production.

Finally, the environment will benefit because burning ethanol is less harmful to the atmosphere than some octane additives which means cleaner air.

Eastern Founder's Day set

BY MELANIE ANDERSON
Campus/activities editor

It's that time of year again when all concern takes time out to honor the beginning of Eastern's existence on Founder's Day, scheduled for Saturday.

Activities are scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. with a reception for visitors in Pemberton Hall from 8:30 a.m. to 10:20 a.m. The convention portion of the day, featuring an address by Dr. William Voris, is from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

Voris, who is president of the American Graduate School of International Management, is a graduate of Eastern.

Information on current issues of interest will be part of Founder's Day along with the opening of classes and seminars including one on business software on your home personal computer. It will be conducted by mathematics instructor Anthony Schaffer.

"It is a way to observe the actual founding of the university by the General Assembly," said Harry Read, director of information and publications.

There will be several speakers discussing various topics such as, Managing Your Most Important Resource: Time, Dr. Ted Ivarie, Dean of Lumpkin College of Business; Eating for the Health of It, home economics instructor Martha Brown; New choices for Job and Career, Robert Saltmarsh, educational psychology and guidance.

A special feature of the day consists of drive-by tours of historic Charleston homes from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

A buffet luncheon, including an ice cream social, is scheduled from 12 noon to 2 p.m. Tickets are priced at $8.50. Reservations may be made by calling (217) 581-3313. There is no charge for the reception, but persons are asked to register by calling the same number.

life for abused children, the elderly and the mentally ill.

"Where else can (these people) turn but to the compassionate citizens. It says something about our quality as human beings," Thompson said. "That's why we have taxes. That's why we sometimes have to pay a little more."

Not passing his tax bill would be a mistake, Thompson added, "and I'll let them know it."

Expert says TV religion distorted

NEW YORK (AP)—By buying into television, the "electronic church" is victimized because TV presents a distorted version of biblical faith, a noted church communication expert says.

Analyzing the predominant preachments and appeals of TV ministers, the Rev. William F. Fore says they play up self-interest.

They make religion the "key to maximizing self-interest," he says, obscuring the biblical demands for community, justice and service.

In a new book, "Television and Religion," published by Augsburg Press, Fore says:

"This corruption of the fundamental biblical concept of conscience into self-interest is perhaps the most serious of all the electronic church's distortions."

With it comes a variety of others, he says, including:

—The "give-to-get ploy," promising contributors will get back more than they give, sometimes called "seed faith," planting dollars to get more in return.

Fore calls it a kind of "heavenly lottery."

—A "strong dualism" that separates everything into light and darkness, spirit and matter, good and evil—an ancient Christian heresy.

"It is rampant on TV religion," Fore says.

—Highlights of belief by celebrities and successful people, implying that if viewers believe things also will be wonderful for them, and when it isn't, pushing them into self-doubt and alienation.

"The 'successful people' approach is bad psychology as well as bad theology," Fore says.

This "fits in nicely with the electronic church's emphasis on the individual," Fore writes.

Smoking policy in effect since intersession

By MELANIE ANDERSON
Campus/activities editor

For those who simply despise being in the same room as a smoker, your troubles at Eastern are now over. A new smoking policy approved by the council went into effect May 18.

The policy was proposed by President Stanley Rives' council, stating that, "The right of the non-smoker to protect his or her health and comfort will take precedence over another person's right to smoke."

These few words of wisdom comply with those of the Surgeon General who says that secondary smoke and primary smoke are equally as dangerous to one's health.

The policy states, "Eastern is dedicated to providing a healthy, comfortable, and productive work environment for employees and students.

"The right of the non-smoker to protect his or her health and comfort will take precedence over another person's right to smoke."

Guidelines which went into effect are as follows: 1) Smoking shall be specifically prohibited in the following places: classrooms, lecture and concert halls, gymnasiums, theaters, museums, laboratories, instructional shops, storage areas, mechanical equipment rooms, areas where woodworking is in process and areas where volatile, inflammable or explosive materials are in use; 2) Private offices (floor to ceiling partitions with doors closed) may be designated as "smoking permitted" or "no smoking" by the occupants. However, the occupant should refrain from smoking when a non-smoker is present; 3) Residence hall rooms and University Apartments may be designated "smoking permitted" or "no smoking" by occupants. When a non-smoking roommate is present, the smoking roommate should refrain from smoking; 4) An area not to exceed one-third of available space in restaurants, cafeterias, and other food service facilities shall be designated as "smoking permitted" areas; 5) Smoking is permitted in building hallways and corridors and other specifically designated "smoking permitted" areas.

"Natural Disturbance, Changing Landscapes, and the Management of Wilderness"

Tuesday, June 23 - 7:30 p.m.
Booth Library Lecture Room

Dr. Norman Christensen
Professor of Botany
Duke University

The mandate of the National Park Service is the preservation of "Vignettes of Primitive America." We now know the primeval landscape was constantly changing owing to short- and long-term shifts in climate, and periodic natural disturbances such as fire. How can we know what primitive America was like and what roles should natural disturbance play in management strategies?

Sponsored by EIU Summer School and University Board Summer Programs, advised through the Student Activities Office, a division of Student Affairs, Eastern Illinois University.

Softballers end season as conference champions

By JOHN STROUD
Editor-in-Chief

Eastern's women's softball squad finished the regular season as the Gateway Conference champions but were unable to double with the postseason conference tournament title as it tied for fifth with Northern Iowa.

The Panthers entered the tournament held in Normal on May 7-9 as the No. 1 seed after winning their second straight regular season title with a 13-5 mark in the Gateway. They finished 25-19-1 overall in coach Janet Marquis' second year.

Eastern received a bye in the first round before defeating No. 8 Northern Iowa 2-1 in the second round. But the Panthers lost to No. 5 Southwest Missouri 1-0 in nine innings and No. 6 Southern Illinois 3-2 in 10 innings. Western Illinois took the tournament title.

Three Eastern juniors were named to the Gateway all-Conference team: pitcher Zam Mogill, second baseman Sara Karcher and centerfielder Angel Lendvay. Lendvay was named for the third straight year while Mogill is a two-time selection and Karcher was named for the first time.

Mogill ended the season with a 19-13 pitching record and had a 0.86 earned run average. She had 11 shutouts and struck 170 batters this season for school records with career totals of 36 shutouts and 525 strikeouts. She had 30 complete games in 32 starts this season.

Karcher led the Panthers with a .324 batting average and also led the team with 46 hits, 142 at-bats, 25 runs scored, 14 RBIs, 13 doubles, five triples and 13 bases on balls.

Lendvay had a .268 batting average, 33 hits and 13 RBIs.

The Panthers will lose four seniors from this year's squad: third baseman Kathy Range, outfielder Ellen Castleman, first baseman Steff Spooner and outfielder/first baseman Cindy Streid.

Cubs shock Phillies, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP)—Jamie Moyer won his seventh game Wednesday behind Kieth Moreland's three-rbi's. But the Chicago lefthander said, "I still have to prove that I belong in the majors because of my inconsistency."

Moyer, 7-4, proved himself in the 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, allowing six hits and striking out seven. He walked none.

Moreland drove into runs with a fifth-inning single, and hit a sacrifice fly, while Andre Dawson snapped out of a 5-22 slump with three consecutive singles to pace a twelve-hit attack.

"I know my changeup was working because the hitters were always trying to guess when I'd throw the fastball," Moyer said. "But my problem has been—and still is—is to get the change over without walking a lot of batters."

Wednesday marked the fifth time in his last six decisions that he didn't walk anyone.

Lee Smith, who earned his 17th major league leading save by retiring three straight batters in the ninth, said, "I was really worried about Mike Schmidt, and I got away with a fastball over the plate that he fouled off before I got him out on a slider away."

Phillies manager Johnny Fieske called Moyer's changeup, "outstanding because of the way that he was able to get an occasional fastball over for a strike which meant my hitters were being outguessed all day."

Shane Rawley, 7-4 said, "It's a shame to lose a ball game on pitches, two by Dawson, and one by Moreland that went for hits when they hit balls away from the plate."

Only 'war' will stop Olympics

LONDON (AP)—Only war could force the international Olympic Committee to remove next year's Summer Games from Seoul, the IOC said Wednesday.

Recent political demonstrations in South Korea, some of them involving violent clashes with police, have done nothing to change the IOC's plans to stage the Games in the capital city next year, Michele Verdier, the IOC spokeswoman, said.

"The position is quite clear. The Games have been awarded to Seoul and there is absolutely no change in our position," Verdier said in a telephone interview from the IOC's headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland.

The Olympic Charter, the IOC's bylaws, provide for changing the site of the Games only in the case of "an act of war," she said.

Asked if that would mean a civil war as well as war against an outside force, the spokeswoman replied: "That could be an explanation for the IOC and that could be a reason for the IOC to move."

The situation was causing some concern at NBC, which will televise the Games.

Kevin Monaghan, a network spokesman, said, "Obviously it's a situation we're concerned with and one that we're following closely. But, at this point, it hasn't disrupted any of our work."

Nixed by NFL teams, Payton turns to Arena

By DAN VERDUN
Staff writer

Sean Payton finds himself in a whole new arena this summer.

Unable to latch on with a National Football League team following his graduation from Eastern this spring, Payton has signed on with the Chicago franchise of the new Arena Football League.

Payton—the Panthers' all-time leading passer who helped lead Eastern to an 11-2 record and a berth in the I-AA quarterfinals this past season—was not taken in the National Football League's annual player draft. Attempts to sign as a free agent also came up short.

Payton, a product of Naperville Central High School, did have a tryout with the Kansas City Chiefs. However, the Chiefs decided to sign a veteran quarterback instead.

"I felt I performed well in Kansas City, but they went with experience," Payton said in a telephone interview from the Bruisers' training camp in Des Plaines.

With the Canadian Football League teams breaking camp and getting ready to begin their seasons this week, Payton was left with the option of playing Arena football.

Thus, he signed with the Chicago Bruisers for the league base salary of $3,000 for the six-game schedule. The league did not pay signing bonuses.

"I decided to play in this league because it was my best option right now," Payton said.

However, Payton won't find himself in the starting lineup when Chicago takes the field at 8 p.m. Saturday in a game against Denver televised on ESPN. Instead, Payton will back up former South Carolina quarterback Mike Hold.

Meanwhile, Payton is still hoping to find his way into an NFL training camp.

"My agent has been talking to some teams both in Canada and in the NFL," Payton said. "If Canadian teams are going to make any roster additions this is the time they'll do it. I still am hopeful of going to an NFL camp this fall."

Payton said that the New York Giants, Detroit Lions, Cincinnati Bengals and Buffalo Bills have expressed interest in bringing him to camp.

However, should no NFL offers come, Payton will hold his breath that Arena football won't go the way of the recently disbanded USFL. Arena players will get base salaries of $25,000 with incentive bonuses raising them to the $40,000-to-$60,000 level if the league survives into a second season.

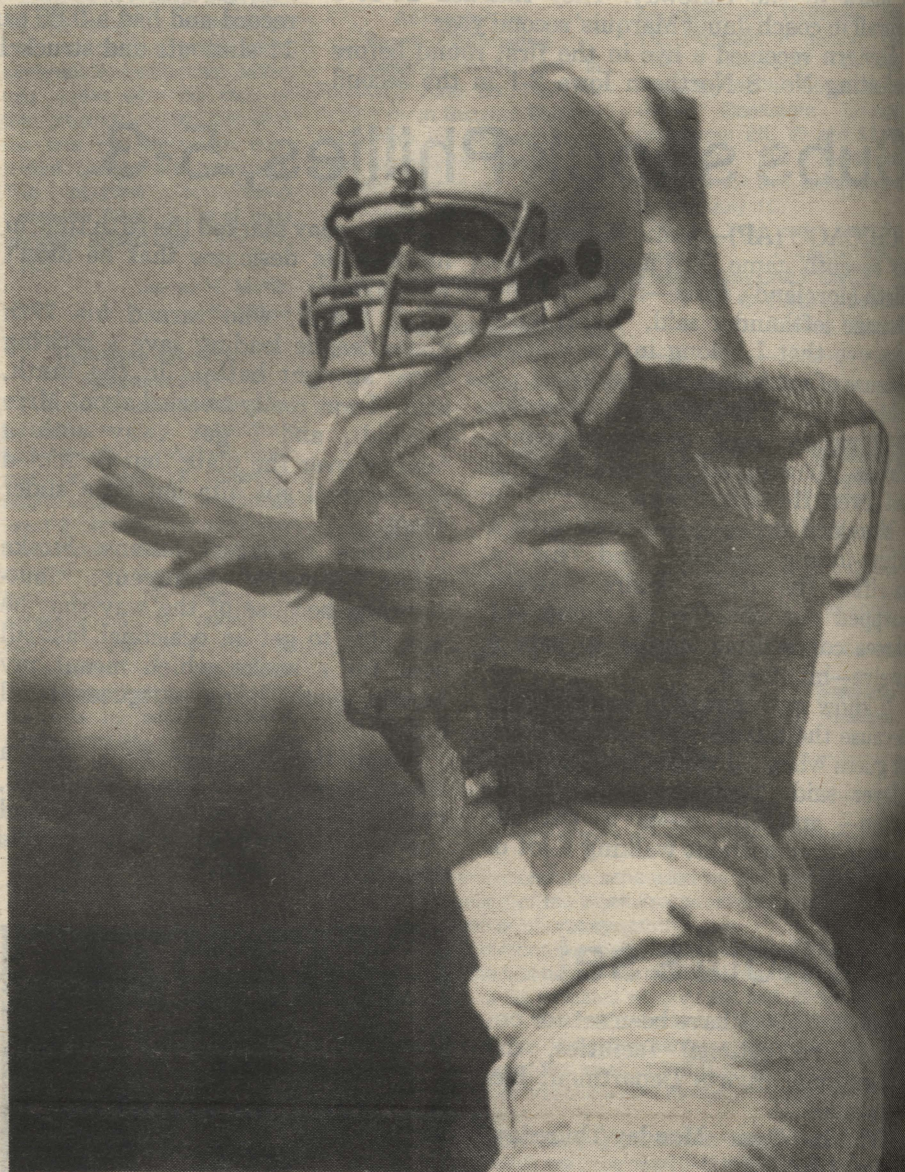

Arena football, the brainchild of former NFL and USFL executive Jim Foster, is different from conventional football in several ways.

To begin with, Arena football is not made up of separate franchises. Instead, stock is sold in Arena Sports Ventures. The league will be run by a board of directors. Thus, there will be no room for owners like Donald Trump or Bob Irsay to wreak havoc with the league structure.

Secondly, the league will utilize a two-platoon system for its players. Thus, players—with the exception of quarterbacks and kickers—will play both offense and defense. Rosters will be of only 16 players per team.

Arena football will feature only four teams in its first season consisting of just six games. These teams have been placed in football hotbeds—Washington, Chicago, Denver and Pittsburgh. Moreover, Washington and Denver won't have to compete with major league baseball in their respective cities.

"The league is approaching it in the right way," Payton said. "They're being conservative about it. In order for the league to be a success it must be competitive."

File photo

Former Panther quarterback Sean Payton cocks his harm to release a pass in practice last fall. Payton, who passed for over 10,000 yards while at Eastern will play in the new indoor Arena Football League with the Chicago Bruisers.

Arena football is played on a 50-yard field that is just 27 yards wide. Teams have four downs to score or kick a field goal. If a field-goal attempt is no good, nets placed behind the goalpost keep the ball in play. There is no punting.

"It's going to be interesting," Payton said. "You'll see a lot of play-action type of passes and scrambling. You'll see a lot of created situations in games."

Former Royals manager dies

Kansas City(AP)—Dick Howser, 51, former Kansas City Royals manager who had to retire last season because of cancer, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital for the last time June 4. Death came at 2:45 p.m., about 11 months after doctors partially removed a malignant tumor from the left side of his brain on July 22.

After 10 years as a coach for the New York Yankees, Howser became manager in 1980, and guided the team to 103 victories and the American League East title. Becoming manager of the Royals in 1981, he took them to AL West titles in 1984 and 1985 and to the '85 World Series championship. He never managed a team that finished worse than second.

Although the three operations had obviously weakened him, Howser vowed to return this season as manager of the Royals. He greeted the players when they opened spring camp but resigned just three days later, admitting that he overestimated his stamina.

"It just wouldn't be fair to the team," he said at the time. Howser made his last public appearance April 8 when the Royal opened their home season.

Just one week before his death, Howser's family had to hire help to handle a torrent of cards and letters from every continent in the world.

Attendance policy instituted

By LEE DIEKEMPER
Sports editor

In an effort to help Eastern's football program continue to keep its high academic standards, Eastern head football coach, Bob Spoo has instituted a class attendance policy for his players.

The class attendance policy is set to take into effect with this fall's classes.

"I've talked to each member of the team separately, and each individual agreed to the attendance policy," said Spoo. "This will not only benefit the team, but it will benefit the individual as well," Spoo said.

Stated in the attendance policy, if a player has two or more unexcused absences in a class during a given week, the player will be suspended for one game with the next scheduled opponent.

So far, the reaction from the administration and faculty has been favorable, according to Spoo.

"The reactions that I have heard from the administration and faculty have been generally positive," said Spoo. "A few people have pointed out some of the loopholes in the policy, and with almost every kind of policy, you are going to have some loopholes," Spoo said.

One major loophole in the attendance policy, Spoo pointed out is the fact that some instructors do not take attendance in some classes.

"It seems more prevalent in upper level classes that the instructors do not take attendance. To me, it doesn't seem right," said Spoo. I think that if you are going to take attendance in lower level classes, that you should also take attendance in the upper level classes," Spoo said.

"It's up to the instructor if they want to take attendance. I hope that they would agree to cooperate with us," Spoo added.

Another obstacle that Spoo has faced in his quest to have instructors take attendance is that some instructors don't want to single out a specific group of people, to which Spoo replied, "I respect that. But it's really for the good student if they do take attendance."

Spoo said when it comes to the players, he will enforce the attendance policy. Spoo mixed no words.

"I hope that I don't have to enforce the rule. But the first player who has an unexcused absence, it's very simple. He won't play. It will not only hurt the player, but it will hurt the team as well," Spoo added.

Spoo did add his philosophy of the success of the program.

"We have to work at this from the positive. The system has to be equitable."

Panther notes: Eastern's athletic department will hold a dinner fund raiser at the Holiday Inn Riverfront in St. Louis Saturday. . . Athletic Director R.C. Johnson will be interviewed by Cardinals' broadcaster Jack Buck during the middle of the Cardinals-Expos game on KMOX. The game will be carried locally by WEIC-AM (1270). . . Former Eastern baseball player Tim Bogar went 4-for-4 with all four hits being home runs in a Tuesday intrasquad game warmup for the Little Falls (N.Y.) Mets of the New York-Penn League.
