In the January Teachers College at Pettibone by O. C. T. W. Caldwell, former of the faculty of this school, has an interesting picture of pettibone New School Building. Following this article is one on the library school library which is especially worth reading because of the little people on the lot. They have been reading.

Cooking, the chief cost, is a strange way to look at things.

Jude F. Wallis’s first book, "A Child’s Garden of Verses," is a beautiful book. The illustrations, with a few exceptions, are quite pretty, and the verses are simple and clear, and full of the charm of a child’s first verse and the love of the child who is reading. The book is a delight to read.
