THE TORTOISE OR THE HARE?

Elsewhere in this issue appears the startling announcement that the E. I. enrollment dropped from greater than 600 in the winter term to 488 for the new term that has just commenced. As 16 new students are included in the 488 total, it does not take a mathematician to discover that approximately 60 winter term students failed to return for the spring term.

Doubtless several of the missing boys have stayed outside the fold to work on farms as the spring ploughing and planting season approaches. But in the spring E. I. should grow in enrollment instead of fall with so great a thud in the other direction. The 16 new students are, of themselves, a signal for rejoicing, but the yawning gap left by the 60 who failed to return is a signal for quite a different kind of mental reaction and introspection.

No fewer than 100 additional faces are expected to appear for mid-spring registration. But will they show up? A lot of noise was made in the drive last spring for 800 students this year, but only a slight increase in attendance actually materialized. And now even that increase has been sacrificed. What is wrong? This question is a serious one, and needs to receive long and thoughtful consideration from everybody who wants to see E. I. grow. Many students declare that they can spot some of the reasons why we remain practically at a standstill. They ought to submit their reasons to the faculty. Or if they feel a timidity about approaching the faculty with their ideas, the Student Council certainly is entitled to their confidence.

Let's thresh out whatever is dwarfing our position and stunting our growth. Let's all look within first, and then when we are sure that our own attitude is above reproach, let's find out what is wrong. Remember, the discovery of who is wrong is of secondary importance to what is wrong. The who, be it ever so many, will get in line when the what is determined. The Student Council and THE NEWS will be very grateful to receive the cooperation of the students and faculty in cracking this jaw-breaker.

—Dale D. Coyle.

ROADS

It is said that any road leads to Rome if only one follows it far enough. Most travelers to Rome wisely ignore the veiled challenge and make a very careful choice of their route.

So, too, in the land of Speech, there are many roads by which people may communicate with each other. Unfortunately few people choose roads in this land with care. Too many flounder and wallow in the quagmires of inexact speech; others are lost in the quicksands of articulation and enunciation; and still others grope in vile oily prose. These are the tramps, hoboes, and vagabonds that infest "Speech Land." Then there are the drab millions that plod wear-

OUR ADVERTISERS

SELL THE BEST

CHAPTER 24

As this issue of THE NEWS contains the fine word of the year about basketball, and features a lengthy review of the activities of the sensational T. C. High team, it is not amiss to dedicate this chapter of "Our Advertisers Sell the Best" to C. I. Birch, whose restaurant and confectionery is the south end headquarters of all basketball fans. There is no more loyal supporter of E. I. teams than Mr. Birch. He is for the fellows and the school first, last, and always.

When the team is away from home, the fans congregate at Birch's and wait for the score. When the team plays at home, the fans assemble at Birch's after the game for a fanning bee in which the game is played all over again. He believes in E. I., and the students find place to do they appreciate Birch's as a gathering place, but they like to trade there. His drinks and cake satisfy. More power to Birch's!

ily over the dusty, rutted, travelworn roads of Commonplace Repetition. These people are comparable to "the oxen that never see inside their heads," for they never coin a fresh phrase. And when there are the cultured few, who boldly climbing the hill of self-criticism, find themselves on the fresh smooth road of Charming Expression.

Which road are you traveling?
—Mary M. F. Whalen.

"MISFITS"

THE NEWS can not bring its basketball write-ups and reviews to a close without calling attention to the front-page heading—that it used over its description of the first game of the season, in which our T. C. High defeated the Toledo high school team by the one-sided score of 29 to 0. This particular heading was: "T. C. High Swamps Toledo Misfits," and appeared in the issue of Dec. 11.

On the following day after the paper reached the mails two or three E. I. students' comments on this heading was ill-chosen and likely to strike a disagreeable chord among the Toledo residents. Later information gained here and there in unofficial and casual conversations seemed to indicate that the above prediction had materialized, and that the good people of Toledo did not relish having their team referred to as "misfits."

To all who felt the slightest sense of disappointment or displeasure over the usage of the word, let it be said that no thought of sneering at the weakness of Toledo's team prompted the choice of the offending word. That is far from the policy of this paper—to speak in a slighting manner of a neighboring school or team. The writer was so unkind of the handicaps under which the Toledo boys worked in their efforts to develop a team, and felt and still feels, even though he may have carefully withheld this feeling from clean-cut expression in his write-up, that they are entitled to nothing less than liberal praise for making the effort that many other schools under like conditions would not have had the courage to make. "Misfits" was in no sense aimed as a thrust at the boys for "kidding themselves into believing that they could play basketball," as it seems to have been interpreted by some persons, nor was it an attempt to be funny. To the writer "misfits" conveyed rather the idea of misfortune in defeats that a team so handicapped is sure to receive. To this and all other such teams that have the "sand" to play under such discouraging conditions belong all honor and commendation.

If the unfortunate word could have been withdrawn from every copy of the paper after attention was called to the editor's lack of discretion, it would have withdrawn instantly. If Toledo friends, or any other friends, to feel more kindly towards THE NEWS and the school it represents, a more desirable victory than any 29-0 victory on the basketball floor will have been accomplished.

Miss Mildred Riechman of Central visited her sister, Corelia, and saw "Clarence" Tuesday evening. Mrs. James Merz of Terre Haute and Miss Knott and Miss Janet Mercer of Paris witnessed the "Clarence" performance Tuesday evening.

SPRING FOOTBALL GETS TRYOUT AT E. I. S. T. C.

To give the "rookies" a chance to become familiar with the game Coach Lantz decided to have two weeks of football practice this spring. Accordingly, a call for candidates was issued over a week ago. Fifteen or twenty pigskin warriors received suits and started practice during the last of the first week of this term. There were no preliminary workouts, but scrimmage was indulged in the first evening.

The squad was made up of last season's veterans, two C. H. S. seniors who intend to be E. I. football heroes next fall, and some recruits from the E. I. ranks together with several members of T. C. High's football machine of last fall. The following donned the moleskins for at least one session on the field south of the greenhouse: Creamer (Capt.-elect), Gilbert, Donaldson, H. Osborn, Funkhouser, Warner, Lee, Nolting, Sims, Replegue, McMurren, Seaman, Foreman, Stone, Green, and Brown.

Because of Mr. Lantz's enforced absence, the practice has been put in charge of Creamer and Funkhouser. As soon as the weather permits baseball and track will occupy the athletic stage and football will be put away until the 1923 champions occupy the gridiron.

Al'ert Dunn and Ralph Engling of Paris came over to see "Clarence" Tuesday evening. Thomas Franklin and Lois Anderson were home visitors in Mattoon over Sunday.

WATERS-COX

Another member of the freshman class took the great step when Mabel Waters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Waters, became the bride of Clifford Cox Saturday evening at Terre Haute. Mabel graduated in the class of '22 of Charleston High School and entered E. I. in September. Her marriage was a surprise to her large circle of friends. We are sorry to lose Mrs. Cox, but wish her success in her new life.

SMITH-HIPPARD

News was received last week of the marriage in Springfield of one of our popular alumni, Miss Nida Smith '19, who became the wife of George C. Hippard of Hammond, Indiana. Mrs. Hippard has been teaching school in Hammond for the last few years. Her new home is to be Hammond, Indiana.

KID PARTY

Age was forgotten when about 50 students dressed to represent children from 2 to 15 years of age, enjoyed the children's games in the gymnasium Saturday night. Refreshments of Eskimo pies were served, after which dancing took place. The music was furnished by Florence Aye and Katherine Briggs. The management of the party was in the hands of the twelfth year class.

Mrs. Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Awty, Jack and Inez Awty, and Miss Ellen Ford were dinner guests of Miss Ewalt Tuesday evening.

Flod Burrell Mattoon was a dinner guest at the Hall Sunday.

PLEASEING INTERPRETATION OF ELIOTS' "SILAS MARNER"

While the entire story of "Silas Marner" was not portrayed in the screen version of it shown Friday evening, this is not surprising. However, the most dramatic points were represented. Crawford Kent, as leading man, depicted the miser's life very sympathetically. Helen Rawland, as the young Eppie, was pleasingly effective. The whole picture was true to the points in George Eliot's novel. It moved with the dramatic intensity, with the same climaxes and suspense as the original.

It is hardly necessary to recount the story of "Silas Marner" here, familiar as this classic is to every school boy and girl. As well as being faithfully told in the motion pictures, it has been given beautiful settings and good interpretations. The atmosphere of the picture is charming with its quaint old English hamlet, its lovely manor house and its beautiful gardens.

BIG SLUMP IN SPRING TERM ENROLLMENT HERE

The enrollment figures for the spring term show the smallest attendance of the year. While the winter term totalled 505, the present term stands at 458. There are 16 new students. Several of these have been enrolled here before.

The new students are Mrs. Dolores Easton Adams, Garnet Armstrong, Nellie Bickel, William Dodds, Raymond Finney, Clinton Green, Clara Hoffman, Ada Kerns, James Lynch, Joseph Muchmore, Robert Painsion, Wynemah Rardin, Grace Selby, Jessie Springer, Mary Walter, and Mary Anne Whalen.

The Warbler management announces that all pledges for the 1923 annual must be turned in not later than Friday, March 23. No extra copies will be printed this year, so if you fail to get your pledge card on time you will be "out of luck." The time has been extended to March 23 for the benefit of non-resident readers of THE NEWS who may wish to sign up for a Warbler. Price $2.00; the annual has all of the attractions of former Warblers in addition to several new features; also stiff cover. Address Miss Paulina Mitchell, Business Manager, 908 Tenth Street, Charleston, Ill.

T. C. HIGH SHINES IN BASKETBALL CIRCLES

star of the district, faces a remarkable basketball career if he elects to remain in school. It would be a shame for college athletics to lose such a brilliant performer, as he is certain to shine there just as he has shone in high school games. Hall will look sweet in a varsity uniform next winter. During the past season he scored 235 points, which is 23 markers less than the total scored by T. C. High's opposing teams. Paul Osborn, selected by the officials at the tournament as an all-star guard, was a great defensive player, but did not measure up to expectations at forward. He was a bear at breaking up the opposition's team play. Captain Stone was a tower of strength on the defense, and possessed the coolness and good nature that gained for him the confidence and thorough cooperation of his fellow players. Gannaway was always dependable and had a habit of garnering the first basket in T. C. High victories. Whenever Gannaway caged the first basket, it was an unerring sign that the south enders would win the game. Bill also had a steady influence that never showed in the score book. Stillions was an air-tight guard that is sure to make a name for himself before he finishes his work at E. I. Many people feel that Stillions would have been picked for a berth on the all-star team at the tournament if he had possessed any offensive strength. Although the team was in a bad way for capable substitutes at the beginning of the season, there was an abundance of utility strength developed as the schedule progressed. Cooper and Hogue blossomed out as coming guards that are due for big deeds next season. Woodburn put up a good game at forward in all of his chances after the contest at Oakland when he failed to show much stuff. Veach and McIntosh ought to be ready by next winter for regular jobs filling Hall's and Woodburn's shoes. Shoemaker, Dudley, Titus, Kepner, and Balls were other second string players who, through their faithful work on the scrubs aided very materially in the development of the team to the dizzy heights to which it arose during the season just closed. An individual summary of games played, baskets, free throws, personal fouls, technical fouls, and total points for each member of the team follows:

T. C. HIGH	G	B	F	P	T	TP
Hall	18	91	53	26	2	235
Wilson	4	13	14	2	0	40
Gannaway	17	17	0	18	0	34
P. Osborn	14	13	2	23	0	28
Woodburn	12	8	1	10	0	17
Stone	16	2	2	12	1	6
Stillions	16	0	0	11	0	0
Cooper	11	0	0	3	0	0
Hogue	5	0	0	2	0	0
McIntosh	2	0	0	0	0	0

The T. C. High quintet has served E. I. well. It has been a distinct credit to the school, and deserves a place in the sun along with the varsity football champions. If in three short years T. C. High has risen to such great heights in basketball, what may not be coming three years bring? Good bye, ye Spooner tribe, and may you ever shine as you have shone in the glorious season of 1922-1923.

PERSONALS

Margaret Cairns of Centralia was the guest of Mildred Swengel and Genevieve Leacock last week and renewed old acquaintances at school. Betty Hull of Mattoon, a student here last year, has entered a nurse's training school in Battle Creek, Michigan. Francis Grafton '21 of Lerna was a school visitor Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Balch of Lerna visited their daughter, Bertha, Wednesday afternoon. Among the out of town people who enjoyed the class play were Hazel Garrison, Flod Burrell, Fern Hunt, Freda Bradley, and Mrs. Marian Aitca of Mattoon, Mr. and Mrs. William Garrison, and Florence Stockbine of Casey. Inez Farr of Neoga was the guest of her sister, Edna, over the week-end. Harold Hutton was an E. I. visitor Saturday. Ralph Adams '19 of Raymond visited his wife Saturday. Mrs. Adams is back in school again this spring. Miss Shortess came down from Urbana to spend the week-end in Charleston. Fern Nickerson '18 of Mattoon and Edith Hallowell of Oakland visited chapel Saturday morning. Coach Lantz was called to the home of his parents in Pennsylvania last week to spend several days. Lord Hargis of Redmon and Helen Harmon '22 saw "Silas Marner" Friday night. Lois Moore spent Sunday at her home in Humbolt. Hazel Montgomery went to Evansville Sunday to visit her mother. Louise Ring was the week-end guest of Margaret Popham at her home near town. Emily Fox went to her home in Allendale Saturday. Leonard Galbreath of Oakland visited friends here Friday. Edna Farr accompanied her sister to Neoga to visit over Sunday.
