Rec center, Regency up for BOG vote

By BOB SWINEY
Staff writer

The architectural design fees for Eastern's student recreation center may be approved for payment by the Board of Governors when it meets at Northeastern Illinois University in Chicago Thursday.

But the Illinois Board of Higher Education must first approve construction of the center and the university's purchase of Regency Apartments at a Tuesday meeting Tuesday before the BOG can approve the costs of the architectural services.

The details of the sale of revenue bonds must also be worked out by Thursday if the BOG is to approve the purchase of revenue bonds to finance the Regency purchase and fund construction of the rec center.

The Board of Governors is the governing board for Chicago State University, Governors State University, Northeastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and Eastern.

"It is possible, but not certain, that the BOG will approve the sale of the bonds Thursday," said Eastern President Stan Rives. "We need the IBHE approval of Regency Apartments and the rec center Tuesday.

"If approved, then the bonding folks are in a position to move ahead with the sale," Rives said. Rives said he expects the IBHE to approve the purchase of Regency and the construction of the rec center.

If the architectural services are approved, Bob Gruber, of Rettberg-Gruber Architects in Champaign, will be hired for $433,968 plus a $43,396 contingency fee to prepare drawings, specifications and bid documents; provide on-site construction work and to insure conformance of construction to specifications for the recreation facility.

"The contract is contingent on sale of the revenue bonds because we want the architect to be ready to go to work when the bonds are sold," Rives said.

The rec center was approved by the student body in the student elections on Nov. 8 and by the BOG on Nov. 13. The administration is hoping the rec center will increase student fees by no more than $60.

"Construction should get started this summer and we should have it completed by the fall of 1991," Rives said.

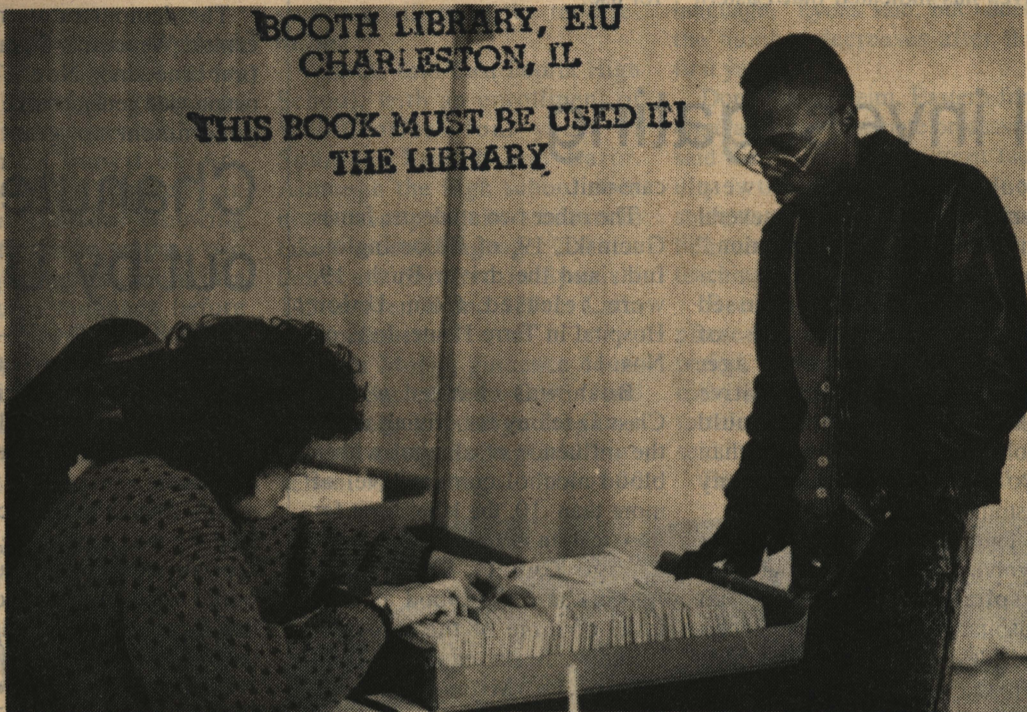

Rives will also be asking the BOG to approve the construction of Phase II of Greek Court.

The fraternity/sorority court was originally approved as a non-instructional capital improvement project by the BOG on Sept. 14, 1987 and by the IBHE on Jan. 5, 1988.

If the second phase is approved, two L-shaped complexes will be built east of the two existing complexes. Each will hold two houses.

The total cost of construction is $2,084,801 with a contingency fee of $208,480 which should cover any costs not predicted.

"The total (cost of construction) is within our expectation as to what the second phase would cost," Rives said, adding that the additional two units should be available for occupation by next fall.

Early enrollment continues

Students may continue completing early enrollment Tuesday through Thursday by presenting their Eastern IDs in the Union Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union according to a schedule based on the last digit of their social security numbers.

The doors will open at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday for students whose Social Security number ends with a 4 or 5. Beginning at noon, students whose number ends in 6 or 7 will be admitted.

On Wednesday, students whose number ends in 8 or 9 may pay at 8:30 a.m. Doors will close each day at 2:30 p.m.

Students unable to complete early enrollment at these times will have one last chance at noon Wednesday or at 8:30 a.m. Thursday. At this time, all pre-registered students may pay their tuition and service fees. Doors will close at 2:30 p.m. on each of these days.

Tuition costs for the fall of 1990 are $1,050.10 for full-time, lower division undergraduate students and $1,062.10 for upper-division undergraduate students. Graduate student fees are $1,104.10.

Students who fail to complete early enrollment by Thursday will lose the classes they pre-registered for.

Lanman still investigating car accident

By BOB McKEE
City editor

According to his findings so far, Charleston Mayor Wayne Lanman said Monday he believes E.L. Krackers did serve alcohol to four Indiana State University students who were hospitalized after a one-car accident on Nov. 8.

• City council to look at new alcohol rules and regulations. Page 3

However a final decision will not be rendered until Lanman, also the city liquor commissioner, conducts a hearing into the matter, during which Krackers' owner may present his side of the case. And that probably will not be until after the beginning of the year, Lanman added.

If Krackers, 1405 Fourth St., is found to have served alcohol to the four minors, punishments and/or fines also will be set at that hearing. Lanman said he will talk to city attorney Brian Bower and Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger to discuss possible punishments and set a hearing date on this incident.

The accident occurred at approximately 2:45 a.m. on U.S. 150 in Libertyville, Ind., when Scott Bush, of Schaumburg,

Eastern has $85 million wish list

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Managing editor

The Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday will be asked to approve a Christmas wish list for Eastern totaling more than $85 million for general operations and capital improvements for the fiscal year 1991.

And if Eastern President Stan Rives gets his wish, not only will the university have an additional $12 million from 1990 allocations, but remodeling and construction projects across campus will get underway with $22.5 million in funding.

"We feel fairly confident that the IBHE will approve our requests," said Michelle Brazell, spokeswoman for Eastern's Board of Governors. The BOG is the governing board for Chicago State University, Northeastern Illinois University, Governors State University, Western Illinois University and Eastern.

Of the five BOG universities, Eastern is in line for the largest increase from FY90 funding, a 24 percent increase. "We (BOG) think Eastern deserves a 24 percent increase, but we can't say what the IBHE will think," Brazell said. She added the Illinois General Assembly must also approve the FY91 budgets.

One of the largest capital improvement projects on the list is a $11.1 million expansion and remodeling project for Buzzard Building. Brazell said Eastern fac-

Physical Plant declared 'unsafe'

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Managing editor

The Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday is expected to approve construction of a $392,900 warehouse to remedy structural problems at Eastern's Physical Plant.

Michelle Brazell, a spokesperson from the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing board, said Tuesday that the current Physical Plant building on Grant Avenue, the only facility on campus designed for central receiving and storage, has been declared "unsafe for heavy loads" and poses a possible liability problem for the university.

"The second floor of the building has suffered structural damage and presents a possible danger of collapse," Brazell said, adding that three different types of safety code violations have been identified in the building.

Vic Robeson, director of Eastern's Physical Plant, said Tuesday evening he has been aware of the possible hazards for about a year. About six months ago, Robeson contacted Wickensheimer Engineers Inc., of Champaign to complete a structural evaluation of the building after a forklift penetrated concrete and metal decking between the upper and lower levels. No one was injured in the accident.

But the accident and subsequent evaluation did force Eastern to obtain a temporary warehouse facility in Mattoon. Robeson said the university is currently storing items at the Mattoon site, which could not be revealed because of security reasons.

Robeson said plans for the new building include a one-level structure with "typical warehouse loading docks." The existing structure would be maintained for offices and other uses.

ulty and students have listed the building as "one of the worst instructional facilities at Eastern."

The building, which was built in 1958 as an elementary school, is overcrowded, outdated and deteriorating, Brazell said. In addition, Buzzard currently serves over 30 percent of all declared majors on campus.

The remodeling and expansion project, which is scheduled to receive most of its funding in FY91 and an additional $1,016 in 1992, would provide additional classrooms, faculty offices, new laboratory space for the journalism department and improved facilities for Student Publications and the Radio/TV Center.

Eastern is also asking for $3.6 million in FY91 to remodel portions of McAfee Gym. Brazell said a 13,000 square-foot section of McAfee's roof must be replaced to avoid further damage due to leakage. Other mechanical, electrical and plumbing corrections are necessary at McAfee.

The BOG also is requesting that Eastern receive $2.9 million to plan remodeling and expansion projects for Booth Library, the Life Sciences Building and the Physical Sciences Building.

Also at Tuesday's IBHE meeting in Chicago, the purchase of Regency Apartments at a cost of $4.8 million will be up for approval. If approved, Rives has indicated that Eastern will use the 146-unit complex to supplement the residence hall operation.

The IBHE must also approve the $7.5 million student recreation center which was favored in a Nov. 8 student referendum. The center would be funded through the sale of revenue bonds to be repaid with student fees of not more than $60 per semester beginning the semester the center is available for use.

apparently lost control of the car, crossed lanes and struck a truck parked on the side of the road. The car then traveled through two yards, hit a tree and jackknifed from the tree into a house.

Krackers' owner may waive his right to participate in such a hearing, in which case a penalty would automatically be handed down, Lanman said.

Ken Keating, the owner of Krackers, did not wish to comment.

Lanman said after his Monday meeting with the Keating that several measures to prevent minors from being served alcohol at the bar were discussed. "We discussed several ways to improve the situation," Lanman said.

Two possibilities discussed were a different way of signifying customers' age, perhaps with a light sensitive ink; and a policy that would prohibit the sale of more than two drinks at a time to any customer, Lanman said.

Two of the four students involved in the accident are still hospitalized in Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. Robert D. Miles, 19, of Ellettsville, Ind., is listed in fair condition, and Heather Smith, 19, of Gosport, Ind., is listed in serious condition in the adult critical care unit.

The other two students, James Gucinski, 19, of Bloomington, Ind., and the driver Bush, 19, were released from Union Hospital in Terre Haute, Ind., on Nov. 11.

Bush was charged with a Class D felony for driving under the influence of alcohol with a blood alcohol content level of more than .10, the legal limit for intoxication in Indiana.

Vigo County Sheriff Jim Jenkins said the blood alcohol level of three of the students, including the driver, ranged from .13 to .18. Miles, who was initially listed in critical condition for multiple trauma, had a blood alcohol level of .03.

Demonstrators reject new government

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - More than 150,000 demonstrators chanting "They must go!" rejected the new Communist-dominated government Monday and Lesanded free elections in a roaring show of support for the opposition.

Also on Monday, thousands of tourists from Czechoslovakia freely visited the West for the first time in decades after the government lifted most travel restrictions.

The demonstrators massed in central Wenceslas Square for the first time since Nov. 27, when a nationwide general strike forced the government to grant historic concessions to the opposition. That demonstration capped 11 straight days of rallies in Czechoslovakia.

Monday's demonstrators waved red, white and blue national flags and applauded opposition demands for elections by July and a second general strike on Dec. 11 if there is no new government by Sunday.

"Resign! Resign!" they chanted.

The turnout at the rally and smaller ones elsewhere was a clear signal to the government that the opposition has massive popular support for its demands for real democracy.

Chanute lawsuit thrown out by U.S. District judge

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A federal judge Monday threw out a lawsuit filed by Illinois officials in an attempt to block the closings of Chanute Air Force Base and Fort Sheridan.

U.S. District Judge Richard Mills said he was sympathetic to the "certain emotional trauma" that would result from the closings, but that his court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

"Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction," Mills said in a 21-page ruling. "This court is limited to deciding actual cases or controversies. We must find that the complaint filed ...does not satisfy this requirement." Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan filed the lawsuit May 11, seeking to have the judge declare unconstitutional the federal Base Closure and Realignment Act and prohibit any base closures or realignments under the act.

An independent federal commission announced last December that 87 military installations, including Chanute in Rantoul and Fort Sheridan north of Chicago, should be closed to save money.

Under the law, the bases would be closed unless the secretary of defense did not agree to all the commission's recommendations or Congress rejected them.

Efforts to overturn the closures at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill proved unsuccessful.

Liquor code penalties to be proposed

Along with discussing Charleston Mayor Wayne Lanman's decision regarding the Kracker's incident, Lanman will propose a set of penalties for liquor code offenders at the City Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Lanman said the first time a minor is caught drinking alcohol, both the establishment and the minor would be fined $200 and the establishment would be suspended from operating for two days. For second time offenders, both the individual and the establishment would be fined $300 and the establishment would be suspended for one week. If it is the individual's first offense in this situation, he or she would be fined $200.

The increase of the City Liquor Commission from five members to seven, also may come up for vote at the meeting in the city municipal building at 520 Jackson Ave.

Freshmen expected to meet requirement

By KIM MIKUS
Senior reporter

Many high school counselors agree with Eastern's faculty that incoming freshmen will be prepared to meet exemptions from a recent foreign language requirement.

"If students show any indication of attending a four-year university, we highly recommend they take at least two years of a foreign language," said Will Jenkins, director of guidance at East Peoria High School.

He said he believes any East Peoria student would meet Eastern's foreign language exemption with no problem.

Eastern's Council on Academic Affairs passed an amendment Thursday requiring incoming freshmen to pass two courses equaling six hours in a single foreign language before graduating from Eastern.

However, those students who have completed three years of a single foreign language in high school with a grade of "C" or better will be exempt from the new requirement.

Students who have completed two years of a single foreign language in high school with a grade of "C" or better would have to complete just one three-hour course at Eastern.

"It is my understanding that the majority of students will meet the exemption," said Luis Clay-Mendez, an Eastern foreign language professor. He said because the Illinois Board of Education is now requiring that every high school in the state offer a foreign language, more students will meet the requirements.

Jenkins said East Peoria High School, with an enrollment of 1,200, offers four years of Spanish, French and Latin. Although the high school does not currently require students to take a second language, 209 students are enrolled in Spanish, 145 in French and 129 in Latin this semester.

Carol Morse, guidance counselor at Sacred Heart-Griffin, said attendance in foreign language classes at the Springfield high school is also high. "About 90 percent of the students take two years of a foreign language," she said.

The school requires anyone who is college bound to take at least two years, Morse said, adding that there is a high percentage of students who go on to the third and fourth-year level.

Barbara Lyons, director of guidance at Belleville East High School, said the school has a high number of students taking foreign language courses.

"About 40 to 50 percent of the freshman class takes a foreign language," Lyons said, but added the number decreases after the first year.

Donald Sundheim, Eastern foreign language associate professor, said the feeling among most faculty is that the vast majority of students will meet the exemption because high schools will be teaching more.

Because the plan will be phased in during a three-year period, "I don't think the requirement will force too many people to take a foreign language," he said.

Freshmen entering in the fall of 1991 will have to complete only one year of high school foreign language to satisfy the requirement.

Students entering in the fall term of 1992 would be required to have completed two years of a single high school foreign language, and in 1993 students would have to meet all the requirements of the language element.

There have been "mixed feelings" among faculty concerning the switching of foreign language classes from four hours to three hours. Sundheim said, "It might mean that teachers may have to teach an extra class here and there, but that's all right."

He added that a possible addition of a new foreign language lab will also accommodate the loss of one class hour.

Clay-Mendez said the faculty is considering various ways to cover the new requirement, which he calls "indispensable."

"Considering the state of the world today, we must consider all the benefits derived when taking a foreign language," he said.

Water line bursts blamed on dry spell

By CHARLA BRAUTIGAM
Campus editor

Dry weather is being blamed for a break in Eastern's water line in two places Sunday afternoon, keeping seven Physical Plant workers busy as late as 5 a.m. to patch up the damage.

"It's fairly typical (for water lines to break) when you have a long spell without rain," said Carol Strode, assistant to the director of Eastern's Physical Plant.

Eastern's main water line, which runs through the center of campus, was reported spewing water up to 8 inches off the ground on the Library Quad about 2:54 p.m.

About 4:25 p.m., another leak was reported at University Apartments.

When the weather is as dry as it has been, between three and four breaks can be expected during the year, Strode added.

Dry weather causes the ground to shrink which, in turn, caused the pressure of the dirt to "cut lines in two," Strode said.

To correct the problem, workers had to locate the leak, dig into the ground and place a stainless steel clamp on the line.

Workers then backfilled the hole with sand before putting a final layer, approximately 1 foot of soil, on top of the sand.

Sand is used to place around the water lines in an effort to reduce the amount of pressure on them, Strode said.

The reason it took workers longer to complete the project in front of Booth Library than it did at University Apartments is because an electrician had to be called in to locate high voltage lines around the library before digging 6 feet into the ground.

Detectors and blueprints of the university were used to locate the lines, Strode said.

Even though workers had to break concrete floors at University Apartments to fix the leak, there was a "minimal amount of damage" at either location, Strode said.

However, she was unable to estimate the amount of monetary damage sustained at either location.

Despite the leak, workers were not forced to turn water off to campus buildings, Strode said.

Changes in new textbook rental policy discussed

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Senior reporter

The Textbook Rental Service Advisory Committee discussed on Monday a draft incorporating suggested changes for the three-year cycle of adopting new textbooks, but tabled action on it until the committee meets next semester.

One of the three proposals discussed states a basic textbook shall remain on the approved textbook list for a course for two calendar years, or four semesters of scheduled use, whichever is longer.

A second proposal under discussion would keep the adoption of a new textbook at three calendar years or four semesters, but would allow a department chair, with permission from the appropriate academic dean, to recommend textbooks be changed every two years for no more than one-third of the courses offered by the department.

A third proposal is the same as the current policy but with a change in the "Exceptions" section.

"In instances where the body of knowledge in a discipline is undergoing rapid and substantial change, where new editions replace current ones on a cycle of less than three years, or where a textbook has substantial and serious shortcomings in its instructional value, the dean may, with the concurrence of the Textbook Rental Service Director, approve basic textbooks for a course for less than three years or four semesters of scheduled use."

Current textbook policy states a book shall remain on the approved textbook list for a course for three calendar years, or four semesters of scheduled use, whichever is longer.

The committee asked Monty Bennett, director of Textbook Rental Service, how difficult it would be from an operational standpoint if the first proposal discussed was adopted.

"I don't know for sure," he said. "I'm not saying it can't be done, but we might need a little more help."

Samuel Taber, dean of academic services and chair of the committee, said it would be tough to determine the financial impact of making the switch because of the number of issues and titles in the textbook rental service.

"It would take research and computer assistance we're not programmed for," he said.

Taber said he was concerned that if the first proposal was adopted without knowing its financial impact, it might cause problems for Eastern in the future.

Lawrence Bates, an economics professor, said the costs of adopting the first proposal should be looked into even if it required extra time to do it.

"I think it can be done, and I think the faculty would feel much more confident with A (the first proposal)," he said.

Sociology instructor Al DiChiara said one of his problems with the second proposal was it would slow down the process of adopting a new textbook.

He said an instructor would have to convince his or her colleagues to adopt the textbook, then their department chair and finally, the dean of their college.

"It would be a slow and unrewarding process," he said.

Jill Nilsen, an associate professor of communication disorders and sciences, said she didn't think going through a department chair of academic dean was a roadblock to the second proposal.

Nilsen said if the second proposal were changed by dropping four semesters and just going with three calendar years, faculty would have the flexibility they are looking for.

The committee tentatively will meet on Jan. 19, to continue discussion of the draft.

Proceed with caution to end the Cold War

It's almost too good to be true.

In what might be considered one of the most revolutionary steps of this decade, the United States and the Soviet Union are working to end the Cold War and move closer toward establishing permanent peaceful relations between the East and the West.

While democracy was bulldozing its way through Eastern Europe, President George Bush and Soviet Chairman Mikhail Gorbachev sat face to face on a Soviet ship this weekend, promising to strengthen economic ties, accelerate disarmament efforts and support continued reform in Eastern Europe.

The choppy seas of the Atlantic Ocean might have been a suitable setting for the two-day summit. Outside, the world was turbulent and unsympathizing. Inside, its two most powerful leaders were moving closer toward peace.

As a result, the United States will soon begin a liberalized trade program with the Soviet Union, encourage reform in the Soviet-block countries of Eastern Europe and by 1990, cut long-range nuclear weapons and conventional forces.

Here, where the government has spent the last four years combatting the spread of Communism, it seems unconceivable that now we are working toward permanent peace with what has become such a menacing foe.

We cannot criticize progress, especially when it takes the shape of democracy.

But if the United States and the Soviet Union are concerned about permanent peace relations, their efforts can not be acted upon hastily. We echo the sentiments of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Georgia., the Armed Services Committee chairman.

"There's nothing wrong with the leaders giving a push to the arms control negotiators, but there would be danger here if we pushed them so hard and so fast that we get a bad agreement."

Bush and Gorbachev will not be signing peace treaties until sometime in the upcoming year. Hopefully, the mark of a new decade also will mark the end of the Cold War and the beginning of a new political era.

Nerds, geeks unite to challenge the world

There's a newly-formed campus organization at Harvard University that just might be the most successful Eastern organization ever if a chapter were established here.

It's a group of people, both male and female, who will be the first to admit to you that they are nothing like the typical college student. In fact, these people are bound to generate some double-takes when they walk along the Library Quad.

And typically, they are usually the subject of jabbing ridicule.

They first surfaced in high school. Now their presence may not be as illuminating, but they're still out there, some of them here at Eastern.

Nerds and geeks.

In high school, partly due to a movie titled "Revenge of the Nerds," they were stereotyped as the class brains, packaged complete with plaid shirts, checkered pants, matted hair, black horn-rimmed glasses held together with a band-aid, and buck teeth.

Every high school has its own nerd. There are even some here at Eastern, but from what I've seen a lot of them aren't college students. (You figure that one out.)

At Harvard, perhaps one of the most prestigious universities on the face of the earth, SONG, the Society of Nerds and Geeks, is the school's newest organization, already boasting about 35 members. The group meets weekly to discuss studying tips and ways to improve academic standing.

"It has been my impression that our people, just because they think a little differently, find themselves isolated (from society)," said 20-year-old Jeremy Kahn, founder of the Society of Nerds and Geeks. "Some people claim it is unnecessary. But we're not picking up on an already-established issue, like women's rights.

"It's (SONG) sort of bringing people together based on common interests. We're bringing together academic consciousness and social consciousness. We're a group that gets together with a broad-minded approach to make it cool to study. Unfortunately, that makes us a novelty. It's almost like people come to college more to impress each other than they do to learn."

Kahn, a junior mathematics major, is not embarrassed to admit that he is a nerd.

"I'm not totally sure of the nerd stereotype, but I'm not at all concerned about the way I dress and I like to talk about math a lot. Most of us like to talk about math."

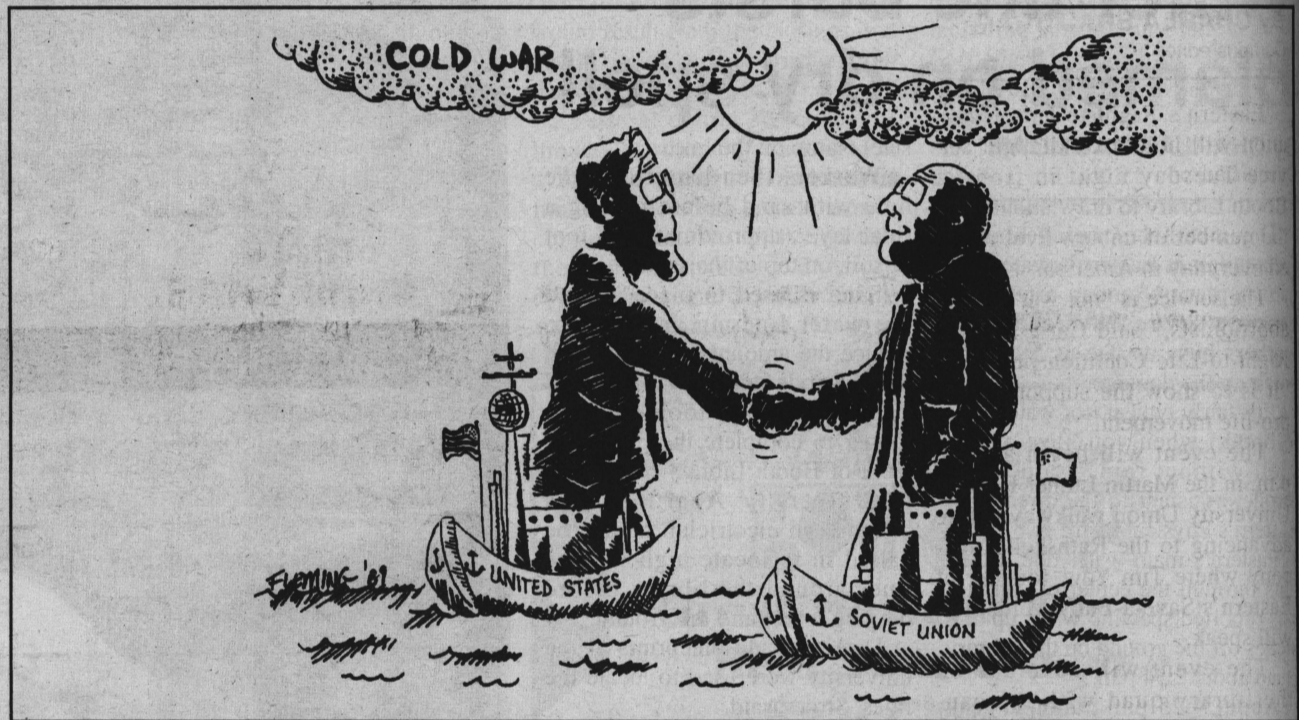

And Kahn said his nerdiness traces back to high school, where reportedly, most nerds and geeks would rather spend a Saturday night inventing a computer program or reading "1,001 Ways to Get the Most Out of Your Megabyte" than cavorting about town.

"I would say yeah, (that he is a nerd)," Kahn said. "And I can honestly say that I am a little more comfortable in college than high school. I don't exactly know why. I think it has something to do with the social environment at college."

Kahn noted the academia associated with Harvard may be more compatible to his social life than a typical high school or college student's.

"Becoming a nerd or a geek is really growing up in a sense," he added. "You have to make a decision to become a nerd, you're not born one. And at college, where you're on your own for the first time, you can make those kind of decisions."

Your turn

Thankfully, not all are moral majority

Dear Editor,

A young lady wrote a few weeks ago and asked for more information on abortion procedures.

The best way to get the information would be to talk with a licensed doctor who performs legal abortions, in order to prevent women from going to "back alley butchers" or using coat hangers, which were used when abortions were illegal. The second best way of getting information is spending a few hours reading in the library. The third best way is to continue reading this letter.

Abortion is a simple medical procedure and costs a few hundred dollars. Women stay afterwards for a few hours of observation to be sure there is no bleeding or fever, then they are free to walk away without spending the night. Early abortions are very similar to a test for uterine cancer, which is a common procedure that people don't exaggerate the risks for. Abortion by a trained doctor with clean, modern instruments is less risky than giving birth — more women die from giving birth than from abortions done by competent doctors. Old testament types who believe that women will go to hell if they have an abortion should just say so, instead of exaggerating medical risks and persecuting doctors and women with lies. I prefer to believe Christ's beliefs in forgiveness and treating others the way you want to be treated. I want my opinions to be respected, and try to do the same for others.

I would much rather have women prevent unwanted pregnancies by not having intercourse, or by using birth control before conception. If a woman feels she must have an abortion, I want it done legally and as safely as possible. Adoption is an alternative to abortion, but many women don't want to go through the pain and wrongly given shame of an unwanted pregnancy. Not all babies will be adopted — especially if they have birth defects or belong to a racial minority. Research shows that adopted children are more likely to be treated badly by parents.

The true American way is freedom of speech, press and religion as guaranteed in the first amendment. Not everyone is a self-proclaimed "moral majority" member, thank God.

Students do make a difference on CAA

Dear editor:

I have served a term of three years as a member of the Council on Academic Affairs. During that time, I came to appreciate and respect the contributions of the student members of the council.

The CAA is primarily a curriculum council. In that connection, I have seen student members raise questions concerning curriculum proposals before the Council which would have seldom occurred to the faculty members present.

The proposals often went on to passage in better form because of the participation of the students.

Most students do know what makes for a good education. We are right to capitalize on that knowledge by having their voice heard on CAA.

Moreover, as members of "the public to be served," students have a right to have a say in matters that affect them.

Ensemble to perform music selections

By STEPHANIE CARNES
Activities editor

The Eastern Symphonic Wind Ensemble will present its second concert of the semester, featuring a wide variety of musical works including a special holiday selection at the close.

The ensemble, which consists of approximately 50 music majors and graduate students, will be in the Dvorak Concert Hall at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"We have a wide variety of styles from a Russian symphony to an Italian overture, a circus march and a Christmas treat," said Tom Brawner, assistant professor of music conducting the ensemble.

Some selections included in the concert program are "Nabucco," "Break Forth," "O Beauteous Heavenly Light," "Entry of the Gladiators" and "Propagula."

ROTC escort service gains parent support

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
Staff writer

Eastern's Parent's Club has donated $500 to the ROTC escort system for the purchase of T-shirts to better identify the volunteers as escorts.

"We felt like it was a worthwhile cause," said Thalia Wetzel, recording secretary for the Parents Club. "Parents are always interested in their children's safety and want to help the students whenever possible," Wetzel added.

The club decided to donate the money to the escort system as a result of the three attacks on Eastern women in October and November.

ROTC Captain Rick Clifton was invited to speak at the club's board meeting in November to discuss what the escort system entailed and how the Parents Club could help.

"The escort system is going very well," Clifton said, adding it averages between 15 and 20 calls a night.

"We are expecting an increase in the amount of calls this week due to finals," Clifton said. "More people will be going to the library to study and therefore, will be calling for escorts."

Approximately 40 volunteers are involved in the escort system, Clifton added.

Some of the escorts have cars and will be using them in the upcoming months, Clifton said.

The cars will be used in order to get the escorts back faster when escorting students from places like Carman Hall to Old Main. The cars are also helpful because of the cold weather, he added.

Those requesting an escort will be given the option of walking or riding with the escort, Clifton said. It will be their decision, he added.

Aborted babies remembered

By CHARLA BRAUTIGAM
Campus editor

Eastern's Right-to-Life Coalition will hold a candlelight service Tuesday night in front of Booth Library to draw attention to the number of unborn lives aborted everyday in America.

The service is "not war on pro-abortionists," said Carie Heisler, Right-to-Life Coalition president. "It is to show the support of the pro-life movement."

The event will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union walkway before advancing to the Rathskeller balcony where Tim Yow, founder of Eastern's Save-a-Baby Ministries, will speak.

The event will conclude on the library quad with the candlelit ceremony and a moment of silent remembrance.

Eastern's Save-a-Baby Ministries and Eastern's Right-to-Life Coalition are different in that the latter organization is "more politically inclined," Heisler said.

Eastern's Save-a-Baby Ministries is committed to providing alternatives to abortion by caring for the needs of pregnant women and their unborn children while the Right-to-Life-Coalition lobbies legislators and congressmen to pass laws protecting unborn lives.

The Save-a-Baby Ministries is more of a "back-up group" to the coalition, Heisler added.

However, both organizations are similar in that they try to educate and provide alternatives to abortion.

Heisler said the Right-to-Life Coalition eventually hopes to raise enough money through fundraising activities "to help out with medical expenses" of women who decide against abortion, Heisler said.

However, since the organization was not recognized as a student organization until Nov. 15, it has not had enough time to raise money for the project, Heisler added.

The money raised so far is being used for such supplies as the candles and newsletter material, Heisler said.

In addition, since this is the first year for the candlelight service, Heisler is uncertain of the number of people who will attend the event.

More than 250 candles were ordered, Heisler said, adding she hopes area churches and the Coles County Right-to-Life Coalition attend along with Eastern students.

One organization Heisler hopes will remain silent during the event is Eastern's Concerned Citizens for Choice, an organization supporting a woman's choice to have an abortion.

However, Heisler is not expecting any confrontations with the organization.

"From what I've seen, they wouldn't do that (demonstrate)," Heisler said. "I hope they would be more professional than that."

The event is "for people who want to show their support for dying babies," Heisler said, adding "They don't have to be a radical to attend."

"We (Right-to-Life Coalition) don't consider ourselves radical," Heisler said. "We don't use scare tactics."

Nutcracker to perform

Almost as much a tradition as Christmas trees and presents, The Nutcracker holiday play will be presented Tuesday evening by the Indianapolis Ballet Theatre.

At 7:30 p.m., McAfee Gym will play host to a performance of the famous ballet.

Tickets will be available until 4 p.m. Tuesday and will continue from 6 p.m. until the beginning of the performance.

"We've sold over 800 tickets already," said Becky Welsh, the Performing Arts coordinator of the University Board.

Ticket prices will be $7 for general admission reserved seating, $5 for general admission bleacher seating, $4 for students reserved seating and $2 for students bleacher seating.

The Nutcracker matinee is co-sponsored by Eastern's Tarble Arts Center and the Physical Education of the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. It is presented in cooperation with Eastern's University Union Board and the Charleston Area Arts Council.

The ballet tells the story of toys which come to life when a little girl is given a toy nutcracker for Christmas. The story was first published in 1819 and has since become known as one of the best stories in world literature.

Seminar to discuss alcohol

Drinking alcoholic beverages in moderation at Christmas time is a traditional holiday activity for many people.

But for some families, drinking can get out of hand.

A Life Skills Seminar entitled "Too Much Holiday Cheer?" will be offered to Eastern students at noon Tuesday in the Effingham Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"It (the seminar) is targeted to adult children of alcoholics and stresses the dos and don'ts for the student who is a child of an alcoholic," said psychology instructor Marjorie Hanft-Martone, who is conducting the seminar.

Hanft-Martone will begin the workshop with general information on alcohol and the family.

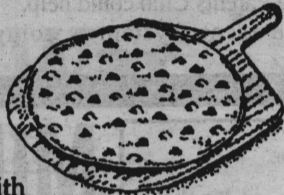

"I will talk about how alcohol affects the whole family system and the tendencies and roles that children might fall into and keep as adults," Hanft-Martone said.

"I'll go clearly into defining some of the roles that have been identified, such as the hero, the scapegoat, the lost child and the mascot," Hanft-Martone added.

Bush, Gorbachev wrap up summit

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - President Bush said Monday it's too early to proclaim an end to the Cold War, but added that Mikhail Gorbachev's acceptance of sweeping reform in Eastern Europe "absolutely mandates new thinking" by the West.

Wrapping up his weekend summit journey with a stop at NATO Headquarters, Bush also told reporters the United States would maintain "significant military forces in Europe as long as our allies desire our presence."

The president said he wants a treaty making initial cuts in superpowers conventional forces in Europe "in the bank" before seeking deeper reductions. He told NATO leaders he hoped a multinational summit could be convened in Europe next summer to sign such an accord.

Conventional forces aside, the United States and Soviet Union are negotiating a proposed 50 percent cut in long-range nuclear weapons.

Bush was in a buoyant mood as he neared the end of a journey that took him to last weekend's summit with Gorbachev.

Asked if it hadn't been risky to venture out in a small boat in the storm-tossed harbor in Malta during the weekend, he replied, "Hot dogging?... No. You know these charismatic, macho, visionary guys. They'll do anything." The president spoke as Gorbachev was convening a meeting of a radically reordered Warsaw Pact in Moscow to review the weekend summit.

The change in Europe continued uninterrupted during the day, as the Soviet Union and four other Warsaw Pact nations condemned their own invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Navy outdoes Greenpeace

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The Navy outmuscled Greenpeace anti-nuclear protesters Monday, crippling their vessels and towing them out of an area where they tried unsuccessfully to halt the test launch of a Trident 2 missile.

The high seas drama took place in the Atlantic 50 miles off the Florida coast just before the nuclear-powered submarine Tennessee unleashed the $26.5 million missile on a test that put the Trident 2 program back on track after two explosive failures in the first three undersea launches.

"We did a perfect launch, just beautiful," Vice Adm. Roger Bacon, commander of the Atlantic Submarine Fleet, said at a news conference.

The Navy said its ships had to "shoulder" aside a large ship carrying protesters, and capture and tow away two high-speed rafts called Zodiacs from the launch area.

Greenpeace USA peace activists said the Navy rammed their ship, aimed fire hoses down its smoke stacks to stop its engines and that Navy divers had sliced the fuel lines and punctured the pontoons on the Zodiacs.

Bacon said hoses were used and Navy sailors in rafts cut the fuel lines on one of the Zodiacs after the other broke in heavy seas.

Ditka knows Bears are done

LAKE FOREST (AP) - It ain't over 'til it's over ... but.

With three games remaining, the Bears still have a mathematical chance to make the NFL playoffs for the sixth straight year. But for all practical purposes, their season is over.

"We got to realize we've fallen into that category of teams that don't make the playoffs," Coach Mike Ditka said at his weekly news conference at Bears headquarters.

"I haven't been there for a long time," he said.

"It's part of life. I can accept it. I don't like it. I don't relish it." The opera may not be over until the Fat Lady sings, but the Bears' football extravaganza - which some have likened to a soap opera in recent years - hit the lowest note of the past half-dozen years Sunday night with a 27-16 loss to the Vikings at Minnesota.

They are 6-7, under .500 for the first time since December 1983.

A year ago, the Bears were 12-4.

"We've got 18 or 19 kids who are first- or second-year men, and we're a little different. They don't respond the same way the veterans did a couple years ago," Ditka said.

But he said he doesn't regret any personnel decisions.

"These are the guys we want to go to the well with," he said.

For Chicago to make the playoffs for a sixth consecutive year, the Vikings and Green Bay Packers - 8-5 and tied atop the NFC Central - would virtually have to collapse.

A wild-card spot in postseason is further out of reach. The wild-card leaders, the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams, are 9-4.

"Our goal ... is to go out and win three football games come heck or high water," Ditka said. "We're going to try to do it by playing better football than we played, by playing more aggressive football than we played and more intelligent football than we played."

The Packers are one of the three teams Chicago has left to play.

The Bears play host to Detroit on Sunday, then greet Green Bay before the schedule finale at San Francisco on Dec. 24.

Ditka said he thought that if a couple of third-down plays had gone differently, the Bears could have beaten the Vikings. He also was critical of a few calls by the game officials.

"I think it's justified to say somebody missed some plays," he said.

Several Bears limped away from Minnesota with injuries and may not play next week, including halfback Neal Anderson (ankles), defensive lineman William Perry (knee), guard John Wojciehowski (back), tackle Jim Covert (hamstring) and cornerback Lemuel Stinson (knee).

Ditka is considering replacing Mike Tomczak with Jim Harbaugh at quarterback if Harbaugh's hand, injured in Pittsburgh three weeks ago, has mended.

The coach praised Anderson, a 1,000-yard-a-year rusher who hasn't been able to reach terms on a new contract and could be a free agent at the end of the season.

"I think he's as good as any player in football right now running the football," said Ditka. "I hope he's always a Bear."

The Bears' lack of success on the gridiron has translated into no-shows among the Chicago-area media at Halas Hall.

Big Ten tabs Illinois' Mackovic top coach

SCHAUMBURG (AP) - Illinois football coach John Mackovic has been voted Big Ten Coach of the Year for the second straight season, conference officials said Monday.

Mackovic, who is finishing his second year as head coach of the Illini, accumulated 103 points in voting by sports journalists, beating out Michigan's Bo Schembechler, who finished second with 93 points, the Big Ten conference said in a news release.

Ohio State coach John Cooper finished third with 73 points.

Mackovic led Illinois to a second-place finish in the Big Ten this year with a 7-1 conference record and a 9-2 overall record. It was Illinois' best finish since 1984, when the Illini also finished second in the conference.

The record was good enough for a bowl berth: the Illini will face Virginia Jan. 1 in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Mackovic's Illini team relied on a strong passing game and the Big Ten's stiffest defense, allowing opponents only 285.1 yards per game. The team's defense against the pass was fourth in the nation, allowing an average of only 140.5 yards per game.

Last week, Illinois placed six players on the all-Big Ten team, including All-American defensive tackle Mo Gardner and quarterback Jeff George. Gardner, a junior, is also one of three finalists for the Outland Trophy, the award for the top defensive lineman in college football.

Last year, Mackovic, who came to Illinois a year after being fired as head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, led the Illini to a 6-4-1 overall record, a 5-2 Big Ten mark and an appearance in the All-American Bowl.

The Big Ten created the Coach of the Year award in 1972. It is formally called the Big Ten Dave McClain Coach of the Year award, named for the former Wisconsin coach who died suddenly in April 1986.

Montana

• From page 12

• First, the fans.

It costs a student only $.50 to get a ticket for an Eastern football game.

You'd never know it, though.

O'Brien Stadium averaged 6,150 lame patrons in each of its six games this season. But, save for 10,128 who dragged themselves and their parents to Ma and Pa Day when Eastern won a 16-15 thriller over Gateway Conference champs Southwest Missouri, Eastern topped off with 7,147 for Homecoming and Akron, but bottomed out with barely 3,000 the next weekend against defending conference champ Western Illinois.

Greek organizations had self-gratifying turnouts from time to time. They huddled in leather jackets and loafers and waved their spirit for the Homecoming game ... until halftime, when the organization winners of Spirit Week were announced. After all, the Alpha Gams and Delts (as they call themselves) won Spirit Week. And that's the important thing.

But, at least give these insecure tree house clubs credit for coming to the games. Otherwise, it was an absolute struggle to get people to sit on O'Brien's bleachers for three hours.

An Eastern player said it best, referring to Eastern fans this year as "quasi-fans."

O'Brien Stadium, though, was never too crowded.

• Now, the environment.

Ultimately, the best selling point is a good football team.

But that obviously doesn't work here. And the backup material to the team, promotions and giveaways, won't thrill you.

Just as there are "quasi-fans", there are quasi-promotions. Items like Pork Day, Beef Day and Bagel Day might be great for community relations, but it does little to get Eastern's lifeless students involved. Other so-called events - like the hugely successful Bagel Olympics - are too restrictive. They only pull in select organizations (Greeks, etc.).

Attractive supplements to the actual game are lacking at Eastern, despite what Paul Lueken might say. Nobody thought the Bagel Olympics were fun at football games and anyone who enjoyed the Bud Light Dare Devils at Saturday's basketball game has obviously never watched good college or pro players do the same thing ... without the aid of trampolines.

Montana didn't do too much better in this category either, though. It had three grizzly people hangglide to the field at halftime and shot off an annoying cannon (like nobody else does that) every time its Grizzlies scored.

The raucous Grizzly fans paid little respect to its opponents. One Eastern player called them rude "jerks".

His teammate corrected him, though.

"At least their fans show up and support them."

Both agreed on that.

Frozen, slippery field did Eastern no favors in 26-19 playoff loss

By DAVID BRUMMER
Staff writer

MISSOULA, Mont. - Although Eastern players won't use it as an excuse, the field conditions at frozen Washington-Grizzly Stadium were less than ideal for a playoff football game Saturday.

Players were slipping from a lack of traction when Montana beat Eastern 25-19 in the quarterfinals of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

A rock hard playing surfaces was supplemented only by helpless blades of unprotected grass.

"It was terrible," said Eastern senior cornerback R.L. Reynolds. "They (Montana) had on different types of shoes. They were a turf shoe that had more traction."

"I think it slowed us down some," said fellow cornerback Juan Cox.

Reynolds added, "If we'd played them on a nice grass field, we'd win."

Montana players did appear to have a more confident stride in the pregame; whereas, Panther players looked more apprehensive towards the turf in not finding its pregame grip.

Eastern receiver Mike Rummell said that he and some of his teammates changed shoes many times to get the proper traction, "but as the game went on, the field thawed out and it got better," Rummell said.

"It was a lot like a wet field," junior receiver John Metzger said. "It was really hard to get any kind of good footing."

However, Metzger said the slick field was only one element to Eastern's loss.

"I don't think you saw the real Eastern football team out there," he said. "Because if we'd have played a lot better we could have won. As it was we only lost by six points."

Kicker Ray D'Alesio, who slipped and fell while kicking into the practice net on the sidelines during the game, called the field conditions "inconsistent".

"Where I warmed up before the game was pretty good, cause I was kicking pretty well," D'Alesio said. "But there were other places where it was really bad."

Perhaps the turf partly explained Eastern weakened pass rush, which was bothered mostly by the huge Montana offensive line.

"I'm not using that as an excuse, but it was tough," said sophomore tackle Kent McIntyre. "When you rush inside it's not so bad. But when you rush on the outside you have to turn the corner on them."

BEAT THE SKIING CROWDS

Here's how to get the most out of your skiing dollar:

Best prices are always for mid-week skiing, excluding holiday weeks, in the East and West. This does not, however, hold true for some of the major Colorado resorts.

Off-season is the best deal at ski resorts: normally March and after in the United States, January in the Alps. Conversely, Washington's Birthday week is the busiest and most expensive time to ski in the United States, as is all of February in Europe.

To avoid long lift lines, consider the shorter, less popular slopes. You'll ski less distance in any one run, but over the course of the day you will wind up having skied more than if you'd spend half your time getting to the top of the long runs.

Taking ski classes may also give you better access to lifts, especially on busy days. Refresher courses are given even for advanced skiers, with minimum lecture time.

Whether you're wandering the world or week ending nearby, get help from your travel experts at Charleston Travel Bureau, 301 W. Lincoln, Phone 217-345-7731 or 1-800-728-2413 for People Who Are Going Places.

Panthers' defense keys 55-50 victory

By JEFF SMITH
Sports editor

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels cut quickly to the point in describing the Panthers' 55-50 win over Murray State Monday night at Lantz Gym.

"It was ugly," Samuels said, more specifically about the Panthers' 43.4 percent shooting.

Fortunately for Eastern, the Racers shot even worse - 31.5 percent - with credit in large part going to the Panthers' defense. "We were tough enough to hold them down offensively," Samuels said. "We couldn't shoot a lick, but neither could they."

The Panthers, 3-1, held off Murray State throughout most of the second half, never relinquishing a lead that fluctuated between one and seven points for the final 15 minutes.

"We never gave up the lead, and they shot terribly," center Jeff Mironcow said.

"They found a way to win; our backs were against the wall, but we never gave up," Samuels said.

Murray State's final run at Eastern's precarious leads came in the final 2:00. After center Popeye Jones hit a short shot in the lane to close within 49-47, freshman Racer guard Frank Allen committed the unthinkable, fouling 92.9 percent free-throw shooter Gerald Jones twice near half-court: with 1:44 and 1:15 left in the game.

The junior point guard sank four free throws, giving Eastern a 53-47 advantage.

But, Murray State then crept within 53-50 on guard Greg Coble's three-pointer with :32 remaining and shortly after had a chance to tie. But, after Eastern guards Kavien Martin and Jones each missed the front ends of one-and-ones, Allen shot a three-pointer short with :10 left, grabbed his own rebound on the baseline and proceeded to throw the ball off the bottom of the backboard with :06 left while trying to find an open teammate.

The Racers, 1-2, then fouled Barry Johnson with :05 left, and the sophomore forward hit both free throws to seal the win.

Defense and conservative offensive game plans typified the game, as both teams forced the offenses to work for most of their shots. "They used a 1-2-2 press to slow us down a bit, so we just ran our half-court offense," Mironcow, who scored eight points, said.

Eastern attempted just 39 shots, 19 below its average, and scored 18 points below its season average of 73.3. Murray State scored 17 points below its average.

Defensively, the Panthers accomplished their pre-game strategy: stop power forward Chris Ogden. The senior did not score a basket and finished with more fouls (five) than points (four, 10.5 below his average). "We've done a great job on two good power forwards, and we don't have a power forward," Samuels said.

Sophomore forward Rod McKinnis, who helped hold St. Louis All-American candidate Anthony Bonner to eight points Thursday night in an 82-76 loss, was assigned the primary task of defending Ogden. "Rod just sets the tempo on defense at the post," Mironcow said.

And, the defense as a whole did not rest. "Defense is going to win us games," Johnson said.

And Samuels had a prediction - albeit a guarded one. "If we start to get things going and have a decent year ... we're going to look back at this game as a huge game."

Montana is what O'Brien could be

MISSOULA, Mont. - The rustic view from the press box told me this wasn't going to be anything like watching football at O'Brien Stadium.

No offense to Maynard O'Brien, but this was a positively beautiful site of college football.

Washington-Grizzly Stadium, packed with more than 12,000 Montana maniac fans Saturday, is dropped in the comforting valleys of the Rocky Mountains. Two intimidatingly marvelous peaks are grounded in the distance. A freight train, looking miniature, rumbled out between the two pine-tree covered peaks just before game time.

It was a child's dream train set come to life. Better still, there was a great I-AA football quarterfinal playoff game being played right in the lap of this Big Sky landscape. Two real football teams with real football players and real football coaches played a real football game in front of real football fans.

But the only depressing part of it all wasn't the fact that Eastern lost. The truly sad aspect was that one of the best Eastern football teams in school history only played to atmospheres like this on the road.

Sure, it's time to bash the painfully apathetic students of Eastern, very few of whom go to football games. But this is also a criticism of what the college football environment here should be, but isn't.

Spoo nominated for Robinson Award; Jurkovic is finalist for Payton Award

By AL LAGATTOLLA
Associate sports editor

Eastern football coach Bob Spoo and defensive tackle John Jurkovic are finalists for national coach and player of the year honors.

Spoo, who guided the Panthers to a 9-4 season before Eastern lost in the NCAA Division I-AA quarterfinals to Montana 25-19, is one of 11 finalists for the Eddie Robinson Award, given yearly to the top coach in I-AA football.

Jurkovic, a 6-3, 285-pound senior from Thornton Fractional North High School in Calumet City who was recently named Gateway Conference Defensive Player of the Year for the second consecutive year, is one of 32 nominees for the Walter Payton Award, presented to the best player in I-AA.

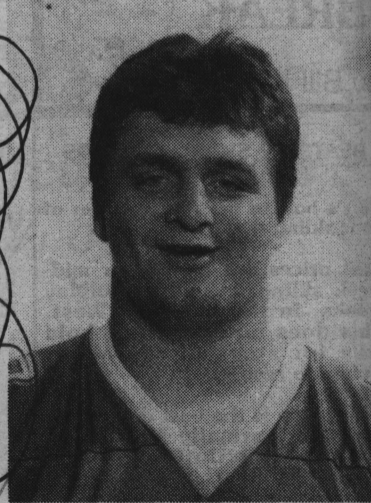

Jurkovic, who is expected to be named to many All-America teams, is the only defensive lineman among the finalists for player of the year.

He finished third on the team with 98 tackles (64 solos), had six sacks, forced two fumbles and had one pass deflection.

Among the favorites for the Payton Award are quarterbacks John Friesz of Idaho and Todd Hammell of Stephen F. Austin and running back Joe Ross of Georgia Southern.

Bob Spoo

John Jurkovic

Jurkovic said he was pleased to be nominated, but thinks one of his sack victims should probably receive the award. "It's probably an offensive award, and if anyone deserves it, it'd be Friesz," he said. "I'm just happy to be nominated for this award; it's just good recognition."

Southwest Missouri State quarterback DeAndre Smith and Northern Iowa linebacker Bryce Paup are also nominated.

Jesse Branch, coach of Gateway champion Southwest Missouri, is a finalist for coach of the year.

Spoo, who is 19-16 in three seasons at Eastern, was the only finalist whose team was not ranked in the preseason Top 20. In addition, the Panthers, who tied for second in the Gateway, were picked to finish no higher than fourth in the conference.

Are Spoo's chances to win the award good? "Yeah, especially considering that no one thought we would do anything this year," Jurkovic said.

The awards will be presented at the I-AA championship game Dec. 16 in Statesboro, Ga.
