Eastern presidential candidate John Idoux and wife Frances meet members of the Eastern community Thursday evening during an open reception in the 1895 Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. Idoux will finish his on campus interview Friday before returning home to Beaumont, Texas.

Idoux addresses dismissal from Lamar

By CASSIE SIMPSON
 Administration editor

John Idoux, the second of four presidential candidates to visit Eastern, arrived Thursday to take part in a series of interviews and meet the different people associated with Eastern.

Idoux, the former vice president for academic and student affairs at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas, addressed the situation surrounding his dismissal from his position at Lamar at the beginning of the student government and student body interview session Thursday.

Idoux served as interim president at Lamar from August 1991 until March 18, 1992 and during that time was asked to authorize a payment to a former employee, a basketball coach that after a series of investigations was found to have made several NCAA infractions. Idoux refused to make the payment. His refusal cultivated into a disagreement that ensued over several months.

On Monday, the Board of Regents accepted his resignation that he had submitted earlier at the chancellor's request. Idoux said five days later he rescinded his resignation.

After explaining the situation, Idoux went on to answer questions from some members of the student body.

After an explanation of the textbook rental system and how members of the faculty senate and other faculty members want to implement a system of students purchasing books rather than renting, Idoux gave his opinion on the matter.

"When I first read about it (the rental system) here awhile back, I

“I think one of the first things the new president here is going to have to do is to come to grips with the future...”

thought well, that's a great idea," Idoux said. "Students like it and apparently it doesn't cost you as much money. I'd have to know a lot more about it."

However, Idoux stressed the idea that teachers need to have the right and freedom to choose the textbooks they feel are best for their students to have. After learning that the departments choose the textbooks every three years, Idoux said he didn't think that was unreasonable.

"For undergraduate experience, it's hard for me to imagine that the field advances enough in three years, that the fundamentals you're trying to teach students at an introductory level would change," Idoux said. "In some graduate areas, the advancing of knowledge may change rapidly enough that an instructor may want to have the freedom to choose a different textbook each year."

If he became Eastern's president, Idoux would be in charge of the President's Council where several of the members are new in their positions.

"There's advantages and disadvantages to that. If I had to make a choice between that situation and perhaps an executive leadership team that had all been in place for many years and might be not receptive to some change, I'd choose the first one," Idoux said. "It would be a more serious problem if they were all brand new to the university, but they are not. They are new to their positions - they are not new to the university."

Idoux said he feels something which he would implement at Eastern and would benefit Eastern is a guiding document called a strategic master plan.

"That's a very important process that's going on throughout the United States now in a lot of higher education institutions," Idoux said. "It's a single, guiding document, in which every and all constituents of that institution have had an involvement in that process."

Idoux said the strategic master plan is a blueprint of goals, objectives and strategies for the institution. It is a guideline for how the institution views itself and where it would like to go.

"I think one of the first things the new president here is going to have to do is to come to grips with the future in terms of institution and what are some of the priorities we want to identify," Idoux said, "because we are in a time frame now in the United States where resources are far more precious."

Poshard shares thoughts, goals

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of two articles reviewing the 19th Congressional District race. The Daily Eastern News will carry comments from Glenn Poshard's Republican opponent, Decatur attorney Douglas Lee, in Tuesday's edition.

By CHRIS SUNDHEIM
 City editor

Keeping his pledges on campaign finance reform, Congressman Glenn Poshard aims to retain his seat on Capitol Hill this fall by riding many of the same issues and philosophies that saw success in the primary.

Although his opponent appears to have hinted at a combative contest, Poshard has kept an easy-going, confident attitude while facing two months of campaigning across 27 counties. He came to Eastern Thursday as part of a swing through Coles County and shared with The Daily Eastern News some of his thoughts on the race.

Poshard, D-Carterville, faces Decatur attorney Douglas Lee in a battle for the 19th Congressional District - an expansive north-south strip of land containing nearly one-fourth of Illinois and ranking as the largest legislative district east of the Mississippi.

He said national health care and education continue to be among his top priorities. Although many of his stances fall in line with typically Democratic goals, Poshard refuses to accept contributions from his own national party or any special interest groups.

Voters in January heard him pledge to keep the funding forces out of his campaign finances while his March opponent, incumbent Terry Bruce, D-Olney, accepted more than $1.5 million. Poshard drew fire from his opposition for his vote on the 1990 budget agreement, but stands by many of his votes that have been labeled as spending bills. He supports a national health care system, that, for example, will save $67 billion more in the long run than current arrangements, he said.

"I intend to hold to all of those things (the special contributions)," Poshard said. "In many ways those of us who are trying to do that are trying by example to change some of the things we see wrong with Congress. The legislation to effect those changes may come more slowly, but if we don't hold to those things then I don't think we're ever going to get anywhere."

A former high school educator

with three teaching degrees, Poshard said this term he worked in the House to increase student aid levels and to route more money from research into practical job-finding programs.

"One of the things we'll probably be talking a lot more about in this (fall) campaign will be education," Poshard said, citing a Higher Education Act with more money for loan programs and Pell grants.

He also mentioned a piece of his legislation that would join university research with parts of the private business world for an economic and trade boost.

"Our universities do a lot of applied and basic research, but the problem is so much of it is done for research's sake alone," he said. "The legislation I'm sponsoring would sponsor university research getting together with small businesses who have a product in mind and do the research to get that product out on the market."

Many of the nation's fiercest foreign competitors take ideas from mainly academic research and return to make successful products that ultimately compete with goods produced in the U.S., he added.

That legislation has passed the House and moved onto the Senate, where Poshard expects it to pass and be signed by President Bush, perhaps before Election Day.

Poshard - originally from the state's 22nd District - was thrown into a unique race with fellow incumbent Bruce after the redrawn legislative map rearranged district boundaries and eliminated Poshard's home district.

His rejection of traditional campaign funding and his commitment to explain his votes to constituents are two reasons Poshard believes he earned 92 percent of the primary vote within portions of his present district.

"I think I've made a real concerted effort - when I disagree with the majority of the people - to come back to my district and educate people on why I voted the way I voted," he said.

A Congressman since 1988, Poshard said he does not support term limits on either the presidency or House seats, but vows not to remain on Capitol Hill more than 10 years.

"That's long enough for anybody to serve," he said. "I think we need to change the process - which I've tried to do - to make it possible for a challenger to have a reasonable shot at winning the seat. Then you'll see a good turnover in Congress. You'll see new faces coming in."

day after the primary to limit his total campaign spending to $250,000. Poshard said that arrangement is not as fair as Lee contends since his spring campaign cost about $125,000 while Lee's is estimated to have cost only $5,000.

Lee has also promised to return half of his $129,000 annual congressional salary if elected. Poshard twice voted against the most recent pay raises for House members, but said reducing salary amounts alone will only further stratify Washington legislators from the voting public.

"If you want to open up congressional seats to the lowest bidder then you will end up with the wealthiest people serving because they're the only ones who can afford it," he added.

Reallocation problem awaiting new president

By ELLIOTT PEPPERS
Staff writer

The search for a new university president is narrowed to four, and the problems awaiting the new president continue to mount.

Eastern faculty and administrators agree the issue the new president will have to attend to first is the reallocation of funds throughout the university.

The reallocation of resources within the university has been mandated by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and outweighs filling the vacant positions of Physical Plant director and vice president for student affairs, said Charles Colbert, vice president for business affairs.

"Obviously if the resources are at hand, the Physical Plant (and student affairs position) will be a smaller portion of the problem," he said.

With budget cuts statewide, developing a financial plan for the university should be a very high priority, said Barbara Hill, vice president for academic affairs.

"Such a university plan would provide objective direction for budget decisions as we continue to face budget constraints," she said.

"For any (university) president in Illinois right now, the main priorities include the budget situation and the impact it will have on each university and the need to focus on quality, productivity and priorities," said Thomas Layzell, Board of Governors chancellor.

The BOG is the governing body of Eastern and four other universities.

Budget restructuring will impact university programs, services to students, hiring, salaries and just about every other area that has to do with every university in Illinois, said Michelle Brazell, BOG spokeswoman.

"The fact that we do not see things getting better in the near future is going to impact many, many decisions made by the president," Brazell said.

With a tight budget, the new president will have to make adjustments that will satisfy both the students and the faculty, said Laurent Gosselin, president of Eastern's chapter of the teachers' union University Professionals of Illinois.

"The faculty need better support in such areas as salaries and resources for faculty development," Gosselin said. "With a new president, we will have to look hard at priorities and think how limited resources can be reallocated and always keep in mind what I believe to be the top priority, which is the welfare of students and faculty at the institution."

Gosselin said reallocations will have to occur within the administration.

"I believe administrators haven't felt the burden of low pay cuts," he said. "One thing we could look at is the elimination of some administrative positions and the shortening of some administrative contracts under certain circumstances."

Faculty renew contracts every nine months and administrators every year.

Even once the new president is selected, the university's difficulties are expected to continue for some time.

"The president's big challenge will be to help reshape the state's priorities so that education can fair better than it has," Gosselin said. "So in that sense, a new president has a tremendous responsibility to educating the citizens of this state as to the importance of education."

Gosselin also said Eastern's new president must aid in repairing damaged relations between faculty, staff and administrators.

"Hopefully, with some good guidance in that area we can work together and build a stronger future for Eastern."

Idoux emphasizes community relations

By ANN GILL and CASSIE SIMPSON
Staff editors

During his first day of interviews, John Idoux, candidate for president of Eastern, did some interviewing of his own.

"The thing that impressed me very much is that I haven't been in a group yet that hasn't been straightforward. People in Illinois aren't afraid to ask any questions," Idoux said. "People from Texas aren't afraid to ask questions either, but sometimes they don't ask the question they want the answer to," he added, referring to the current actions of the Lamar University Board of Regents.

The board dismissed Idoux from his position as vice president for academic and student affairs at Lamar University, Beaumont, Texas earlier this week.

After answering questions about the situation that has occurred at Lamar within the past few days, Idoux moved onto field questions about his views of Eastern.

"It's a good day, I've learned a lot and it has been a pleasant experience," Idoux said. "Here it is 8 p.m. on a Thursday night. A lot of you have other things to do, and you come out here to participate in and to speak to someone who is running for a presidential position, and that speaks a lot for the institution," he said.

Community relations is one area that Idoux has been involved with at Lamar.

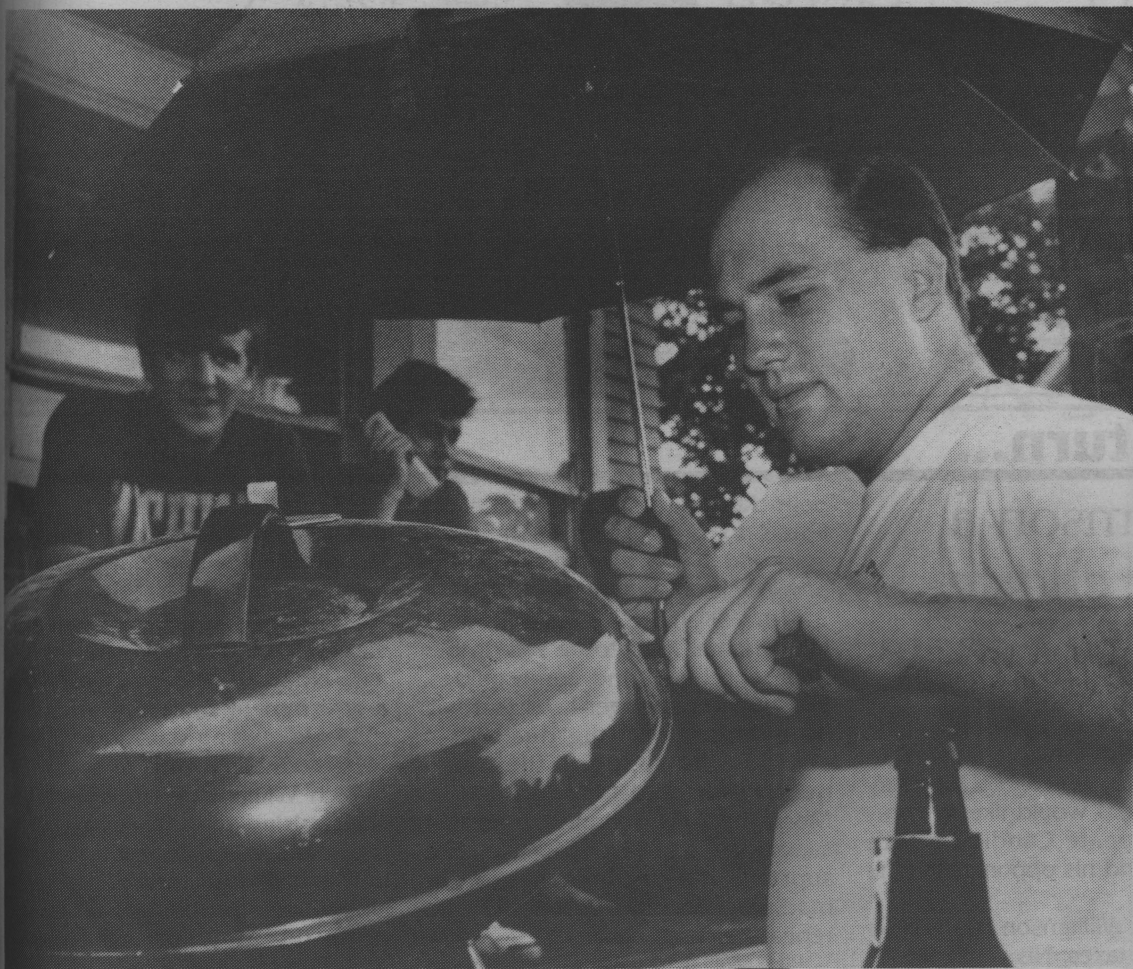

"Generally, in the past, there has been very good interaction; a lot of participation by the university faculty and staff in activities in the community," he said.

"Anything that promotes the university and the community that it's in is good for both of us," Idoux said in reference to bringing more events to campus to draw students and community members.

With current economic conditions, Idoux said, "In our own community our (Lamar University) presence there has meant the difference between several - what I think are substantial - new kinds of opportunities that have come to the community that they wouldn't have otherwise. The university has played a role in that, not just by being there, but its willingness to - at the highest level - participate in the development of those activities in advisory capacity."

In closing, Idoux commented on the importance of accountability and delegation of authority.

"One person can't run any kind of organization by himself. That goes for being a dean in an academic setting, a department chair, vice president or president," Idoux said. "But the way that works is you do make them accountable. You develop an understanding or plan of where you are trying to go. They, in turn, delegate authority and those people in turn delegate to the ones who work for them and they are held accountable for what happens."

Campus a silent partner in search for new president

Eastern's search for a new university president kicked-off full steam ahead Tuesday, with faculty, administrators and student senators all in attendance to greet the first of four candidates, Mary Williams Burger.

All day the candidate fielded questions from groups such as the Council on Academic Affairs, Student Government, Eastern's vice presidents and members of the alumni association.

But once again, seemingly buried under their only lethargy, are the regular students at Eastern.

While media coverage and attendance by student government members has been ongoing, appearances by the run-of-the-mill Eastern undergraduate has been, at best, few and far between.

Most students on the campus will have to live with the decisions made by the new president for anywhere from one to five years. Many issues may deal with faculty and upper-echelon administration, but policies concerning the dismantling of the Board of Governor's (an issue far from being over), what majors to keep and not keep, tuition increases and apportionment toward campus improvements are not far-reaching issues that will not affecting the majority of the student body.

While students have missed the chance to see Burger - one of two females in the final four candidates - Lamar University's Vice President for Academic and Student Affairs John Idoux, Indiana University of Pennsylvania VPAA Hilda Richards and Northern Kentucky University's VPAA David Jorns are still available to talk to and accept input.

Poor turnouts in senate elections, student opinions lacking in substance - this is the time to turn it around.

These candidates want to hear from the everyday students. When elected, the new president will probably be hard-pressed to remember most the two-day drudgery put forth by the faculty, but instead will remember intelligent input from the student body. These things will carry into a new administration.

What are the issues? What are the student's concerns? Those concerns can only be voiced straight out of the mouths of the entire student body.

TODAY'S QUOTE

To most people nothing is more troubling than the effort of thinking.

James Bryce

Campus unity a solid misrepresentation

So this entire nation is preaching unity based upon a return to family values and faith.

From the political leaders to the local civic-minded country clubbers, from local corporations to national sex and race leaders, all preach unity and equality but few, if any, deliver in any form beyond their own self-glorification and personal satisfaction.

The facts are that this nation, community and campus are embedded in about as much unity as what existed between Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis - or perhaps Sheri Lewis and Lamb Chop (you try having some woman's hand up inside you for over 25 years).

Case in point...

Amy Jobin, student body executive vice president, stated in the Thursday edition of The Daily Eastern News, that she seeks to promote a statewide conference for the student governments at all Illinois state schools.

"It would be a chance for us as various student governments to get together and share ideas," she said.

It is a wonderful excuse for the all important student governing bodies of this mighty state to get together and discuss important university concerns, how fall rush is going on each campus, debate governing structure and drink a hell of a lot of beer.

Whatever the letter, I guess we are all greek together. Even you Amy.

Keen idea - promotion of self-enjoyment before the good of the whole. Thanks for your help Amy, but no thanks.

I would like to see my fees and dues that I pay to the university go to something profitable like a giant Stan Rives Praying Hands display in front of Old Main, or perhaps completion on the world's largest Burl Ives statue slated for 1994.

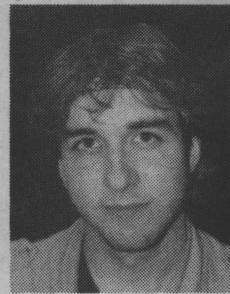

Thank you kids for promoting unity through your separation.

While on the topic of our productive student governing bodies...

Two years ago the Student Senate kids decided "wouldn't it be neat-o to have a student representative on the Charleston City Council." They got their wish.

But be careful what you wish for because you may just get it.

Tom Puch was appointed to the post last year for the spring semester. Now with the change in semesters he is no longer deemed responsible for showing up - which is all well and good - but when the Senate decides to take on a project like this and then wait to have their first meeting one week into school after the first council meeting, it is simply pure unadulterated stupidity.

Take on your pet projects, that's fine, but have the decency to follow through and not half-ass the situation. Like it or not ("not" for myself), but you fine folks are representing this university to the city and its council and this kind of lack of dedication doesn't fly.

Commitment is dead, I guess.

Let's go national, since the airwaves will be plastered with this guy in a matter of weeks.

Spike Lee wants to bring the races together through efforts of making us aware of one another - the only thing he has provided to society is the "white man bad; black man good" mentality.

Nice unity.

He has come out recently and told this nation (to all you Black Student Union folks with eager and ready pens to defend Spike put them down this is a paraphrase - a restatement of text in another form; not an exact quotation) to take the day off from work or from school - permission or no - and go see this "X" movie as soon as it comes out.

He feels it is just that important.

Well Spike, for a man who has strived to become a serious film maker, I don't seem to remember Martin Scorsese or Francis Ford Coppola overplaying the importance of their films nor begging for people to see them.

Spike, get off your knees, dust yourself off and have some respect for your audience - be careful about contempt for the audience... that's what killed Dennis Day.

Just a note to this university's defending champion in the "white man's worst nightmare" competition... I invite you to please use Dennis Day in your next letter or column. Thanks 3X.

So promotion of unity looks actually to be promotion of self-importance, self-gratification, and personal advancement rather than the good for all. Who do you believe?

First, believe in yourself and then question all those that approach you and claim that they are doing something for your good or on your behalf. Beware of wolves in sheep's clothing.

-J.A. Winders is verge editor and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Your turn...

Williamson a better choice for U.S. Senate

Dear editor:

In response to the column by Chris Sundheim which appeared in the Wednesday edition of The Daily Eastern News, I would like to compare U.S. Senate Candidate Rich Williamson and his opponent on the issues.

First, Rich Williamson has a bold approach on taxes. His plan calls for across the board tax cuts and reduced government spending. This plan will not only give the middle class a much needed tax break, but will also help to create jobs in the private sector. As a Chicago machine politician, Carol Mosely Braun has voted 11 times to raise personal taxes and over a dozen times to raise property taxes on her constituents.

Rich Williamson knows that it is a fundamental right to be safe in our homes, schools and communities. He supports stronger laws that will be enforced on drug dealers. In addition, he supports the death penalty for cold-blooded killers. Meanwhile, his opponent feels that current laws are much too strict. She supports the decriminalization of marijuana and has voted twice to repeal the death penalty.

Rich Williamson says, "It's time to clean up Illinois politics." Outrageous perks, corruption, special privileges and government waste is destroying faith and our nation is being destroyed. Braun seems to enjoy these special privileges all the way to the bank. As Cook County Record of Deeds, Carol gave campaign supporters numerous lucrative government contracts. She personally earned $100,000 in fees for work on a no-bid bond deal. Braun even gave a government consulting contract to a double-dipping state senator friend of hers... that's wrong.

Rich Williamson opposes politicians raising their own pay behind the voters backs. To put a stop to it he has called for recorded votes on all pay raise proposals and he supports the Madison Amendment which prevents congress from receiving a pay raise before they stand for election with the voters. Braun voted not once but twice to raise her pay and twice to raise her pension - behind the voter's back.

Local churches sponsor walk for the hungry

By ARINNE CURTIS
Staff writer

In an effort to raise money for the hungry, both locally and worldwide, several Charleston churches will sponsor the fifth annual CROP hunger walk on Oct. 3.

Registration for the 10 kilometer walk through Charleston will begin at 8 a.m. at the Campus Pond pavilion. At that time participants will present their pledges. The walk will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The theme for this year's CROP Hunger Walk, "We Walk Because They Walk," expresses the desire of the community to fight hunger. It also serves as a symbol to "people of low incomes in third world countries who must walk to get their water and their food," which is often substandard, said Joan Gregg, who is in charge of the arrangements for the CROP Hunger Walk.

Twenty percent of the proceeds from this year's walk will be apportioned to the Charleston Food Pantry, 5 percent will go to the Eastern Illinois Food Bank and the remaining 75 percent will go to the Church World Service.

The main generation of funds is through pledges, Gregg said. People planning to participate are asked to pick up a pledge envelope from a participating organization as soon as possible to begin collecting sponsors.

Gregg said anyone not belonging to a participating organization should contact her during the daytime at 345-3917.

Fast paced second act redeems Simon's 'Barefoot in the Park'

By JULIE KAUPERT
Staff writer

Despite a slow start, Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" quickly picked up speed and moved along at a quick comic pace after Act Two.

The 2 1/2 hour play opened Thursday night in the University Theatre with a lower than expected turnout of 30 to 35 people.

The main characters are Corie and Paul Bratter (Jean and David Wolski) who are newlyweds searching for happiness in their new life. They are disrupted by the presence of Corie's mother, Mrs.

Review

Banks (Majorie Duehmig) and an unusual neighbor named Victor Velasco (Jerry Eisenhower).

Once Act Two began, comedy started to soar through. Corie set up a dinner date with the four main characters, which turns into an unpleasant experience for Paul and Mrs. Banks, but an exciting and eventful evening for Corie and Mr. Velasco. In the morning an unexpected plot twist keeps the audience's attention going.

The acting in this performance is exquisite. The character of Victor Velasco, a refreshing nuisance, brings life to the play. Jean Wolski does an excellent performance along with her husband, David Wolski, whose "stuffed shirt" character is also comical and sarcastic.

Mrs. Banks is a typical mother who in the end does something not so typical of her character. The brief, but worthy performances of J. Sain and Patrick Swearingen, serve as breaks in the sometimes tense atmosphere.

The play will run at 8 p.m. Sept. 4, 5, 9, 10, 11 and 12 at 8 p.m. and at 2 p.m. on Sept. 13.

RHA resignations leave 2 open jobs

By JENNIFER KROGH
Staff writer

Failure of the Residence Hall Association secretary to return to school and the resignation of the treasurer at the first association meeting Thursday has left two open positions on the association board.

The association is seeking a secretary and treasurer because both members previously holding those positions resigned.

The previous secretary, Connie Catanzaora, did not return to Eastern this year for unknown reasons and treasurer Ann Hagen read her resignation at the meeting. Because of an overload of school work, Hagen said, she would be unable to fulfill her position, but she will still remain a member.

The Residence Hall Association had a large turnout Thursday for what RHA President Rich Ruscitti termed a very successful first meeting.

"It's great to see so many people here today," Ruscitti said.

Ruscitti was extremely pleased to see a turnout of about 120 students because the organization is used to having large groups, which makes it easier to run all of the committees.

Members were told they will be able to sign up for committees in the near future.

Among the committees are:

•The standing committee, which is in charge of coming up with new and exciting ideas for the association to sponsor and participate in.

•The student public relations committee, which does all of the association's advertising, as well as compile a scrapbook of pictures taken at association events throughout the year.

•The haunted house committee, which is in charge of finding a residence hall to sponsor a haunted house, decorating and finding people to dress up and pose as creatures in the house.

•The homecoming committee, which works on association activities during homecoming.

•The blood drive committee, which recruits people in the residence halls to donate blood.

In other business, the RHA retreat to Camp New Hope on Sept. 18-20 was discussed.

"We all go there not knowing many people, but we all leave there being good friends," Ruscitti said.

Second year member Lori Radzus said she enjoys the group and its activities.

"I think it is the most unified organization on campus because everyone sticks together once they get to know each other," she said.

Also, members Darcy Royster and John Biernbaum each received a $20 gift certificate from RHA for working a fund-raiser which took in about $1,000 for the organization.

"I'm so excited to be here, and we've got a great year planned ahead of us," Ruscitti said.

Ruscitti welcomes any new members to attend the next meeting at 5 p.m. Thursday in Pemberton Hall.

"Whether you live in Greek Court or University Court, you're still invited to attend," he said. "We'd really like to have you."

$1.6 million county jail addition to be voted on by county board

By ROBERT SANCHEZ
Staff writer

A $1.6 million proposal to increase the capacity of the Coles County Jail will be voted on by the County Board during its Sept. 8 meeting.

The proposal calls for a 56-bed, 10,500 square-foot addition to the current jail, which can hold approximately 75 prisoners.

Board members will consider issuing bonds in order to fund the construction. The bonds will be paid off over a 10-year period with revenue generated from the housing of out-of-state inmates.

County Sheriff Jim Kimball said Thursday the addition is necessary in order for Coles County to house an inmate population that is rising each year.

"The inmate population has increased 369 percent since 1979," Kimball said. "We are near capacity."

Despite the fact the jail is nine prisoners below its capacity of 75, Kimball said prison policy states the optimum occupancy for a jail is 80 percent - to provide better management of the inmate population.

Kimball said the increase was attributed to rises in county and out-of-county inmates. The jail is currently holding 57 Coles County inmates and nine Champaign prisoners.

"At our present rate of increase, we are going to need space for our own inmates," said David Shick, chair of the sheriff and law committee.

Though the out-of-county prisoners have helped increase the need for an addition to the jail, Shick said they will also contribute to the payment of it.

Currently, Coles County charges other counties $35 per prisoner per day to house their out-of-county inmates. Shick said this was for counties like Cumberland County, who do not have a jail.

Shick said last year in Illinois 10 jails were closed. He expects that as many as 60 jails will close in the next few years.

Out-of-state inmates have generated $750,000 for the county - $525,000 since 1986, Kimball said. He said if the out-of-county inmate population is maintained at 40 percent, the revenue they create will fund the payment of the bonds.

"We are building something for the future of Coles County, and the residents don't have to pay for it," Kimball added.

In the past, money that out-of-county inmates brought the county was placed into a general revenue fund. This fund was open for all the departments in the county to use. Once the bonds are paid off, the money will again be placed in the general revenue fund.

Kimball said he did not mind that the revenue earned through the jail was being used in other areas.

"We are a department of the county," he said. "It (the revenue) should go into the general fund."

Kimball also added that a certain percentage of the total revenue earned will be used to fund the jail. He said this was important because the staff is "overworked." The percentage of revenue will be determined in the future.

With the amount of inmates expecting to rise in the following years, Kimball expressed a need for a larger staff when those numbers increase.

Kimball said the need for a larger jail is great. The number of prisoners in some counties is greater than the amount of cells their jails have. As a result, some charges are being lessened, and some inmates are being given more opportunities to shorten their time in jail.

"I don't think the public should have to stand for this," Kimball said.

Shick said the addition to the current jail is "just a necessary thing to do."

The issue of the needed bonds would take three months, and the expansion will take one year to construct.

THE CAMPUS SECURITY REPORT

Eastern Illinois University is concerned about the safety and welfare of all campus members and guests. Because no community, including a campus community, is free from all crime, Eastern Illinois University has developed policies and procedures that are designed to ensure that every possible measure is taken to protect persons on campus.

UNIVERSITY POLICE DEPARTMENT

The Eastern Illinois University Police Department, located at the corner of 7th and Grant, provides service and protection to the campus community 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The 20-person force of armed and commissioned police officers have full arrest power and are graduates of the Illinois Police Training Institute. All are trained in emergency response procedures, first aid, and firearms proficiency; and are provided continuing training opportunities to upgrade their skills.

The university enforces state laws and university regulations. All criminal incidents are investigated. The University Police Department maintains a cooperative relationship with the Charleston City Police, the Coles County Sheriff's Department, and the Illinois State Police. Crimes reported to the Charleston Police Department involving students are forwarded to the University Police Department. The University Police Department is a member of the East Central Illinois Drug Task Force, which is comprised of 7 law enforcement agencies responsible for street-level drug investigations.

REPORTING SUSPICIOUS OR CRIMINAL ACTIVITY ON CAMPUS

Students, faculty, staff, and guests are encouraged to report any crime or suspicious incidents to the campus police. Trained dispatchers are on-duty 24 hours a day. University telephone service is provided to each on-campus student room and apartment and in the offices and lobbies of campus buildings. From these phones, the campus police can be contacted by dialing 3212. In addition to 35 exterior telephones, 4 call-box phones are placed strategically throughout campus, and 3 more are to be installed this fall. These telephone boxes can be easily identified by a blue light and require only the push of a button to place an emergency call.

UNIVERSITY HOUSING AND SECURITY

EIU provides on-campus housing for 5,600 students in 14 residence halls, 17 apartment buildings, and 12 fraternity/sorority houses. Freshmen are required to live in the residence halls. There are single-sex residence halls and coed halls by wing, floor, or suite.

The housing staff includes professional live-in counselors and graduate assistants who are on call 24 hours a day, and undergraduate resident assistants who reside on each residence hall floor. All undergo thorough training in upholding residence hall security policies. Outside residence hall doors are locked from 10:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. Guests are allowed to visit during visitation hours only, and all guests of the opposite sex must be escorted by the host student to and from the room. From midnight to 5:00 a.m., during the time the university is in session, the police force is augmented by student night assistants who aid in maintaining security in the halls and are in radio contact with the police dispatcher. Upon report of missing room keys, the room door lock is promptly recorded.

ACCESS TO CAMPUS FACILITIES

Access to buildings is limited in the evenings and on weekends. Only those who have clearly demonstrated a need are issued keys to a building. The campus police conduct routine security checks of the various buildings during evening and night hours.

CAMPUS MAINTENANCE

University buildings and grounds are maintained with a concern for safety and security. There is a campus Safety Officer, and safety and security hazards are first priority for the Physical Plant department. The campus academic areas, residential areas, and parking lots are well lighted. Sidewalks are designed and maintained to provide easily traveled, visible routes.

CRIME PREVENTION AND SAFETY AWARENESS

Crime prevention and safety awareness programs are an on-going facet of the university's attempt at reducing campus crime. Eastern's prevention programs are aimed at both minimizing criminal opportunities and encouraging students to be responsible for their own security and that of others. These programs stress the necessary cooperation and involvement of all campus members. Together with the Housing staff and student organizations, the University Police Department has developed the following programs and offers them each semester:

Programs	Frequency	Yearly # of Programs
Theft Prevention	Each semester	20
Residence and Street Safety	Each semester	20
Alcohol Abuse	Each semester	20
Drug Abuse	Each semester	6
Date & Acquaintance Rape	Each semester	6
Campus Crime Statistics	Published monthly	24

DRUG, ALCOHOL, AND WEAPONS POLICIES

The university enforces state laws and related university policies among which are those prohibiting the following activities on campus: 1) providing alcoholic beverages to individuals under 21 or possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages by individuals under 21, 2) distribution, possession, or use of illegal drugs or controlled substances, and 3) possession of firearms or other dangerous weapons. The abuse of alcohol by students, regardless of age, is prohibited by the Student Conduct Code. The university can, and will impose disciplinary sanctions for the above violations - ranging from a university reprimand to expulsion. Students are also subject to city ordinances and to state and federal law.

In addition to community resources, help is available on-campus for students and staff who are dependent on or abuse the use of alcohol or other drugs. The EIU Counseling Center, Health Service, the Office of AIDS, Alcohol and Drug Information, and the Office of Traffic Safety are available to provide information, assessment, and assistance.

CRIME STATISTICS

Crime statistics are reported to state and federal agencies and in a campus publication each month. Eastern Illinois University believes providing timely information arouses safety-consciousness. The following data represent the number of incidents, per offense type, for the three calendar years 1989-1991:

Offense Classification	1989	1990	1991

Valparaiso soccer team sets goal of .500 season

Editor's note: This is the seventh and final part in a series of previews of Eastern Illinois' soccer opponents in the Mid-Continent Conference for the 1992 season.

By RYAN GIUSTI
Staff writer

Valparaiso has won only one game in the Mid-Continent Conference in its four years in the league.

It used to be that if a team had the Crusaders on its schedule it could usually chalk it up as an easy win.

But that may no longer be the case as second year coach Mis' Mrak tries to bring his team to the next level. According to Mrak, the Crusaders will no longer be an easy win.

"Last season we made great strides in progressively making the team better," Mrak said. "Traditionally Valparaiso has always been in the cellar in the Mid-Continent Conference and we're hoping to improve on that mark somewhat. In that respect we should be a much improved squad. A tentative goal that I have set for the team is to be at least .500 this season."

Valparaiso finished last season with 6-11-2 record overall and a 1-6 conference mark. But Mrak said his team was greatly improved by the end of the season and thinks it will carry over to 1992.

"We should be able to surprise some teams," Mrak said. "Last year we earned some respectability. A lot of the games that Valparaiso had played in the past, before I got here, everybody would blow us away by six of seven goals religiously every game. Last year Notre Dame beat us 1-0 and we hit the post three times in the last minute. Three games we lost in overtime. A lot of the games that we never used to be competitive in, we were right at the door knocking to win. We just couldn't quite get over the hump. So we need to convert a couple of those games.

"We should be a much improved squad but we still have a long way to go until we're in the higher echelon of the conference. I realize and these guys realize that, but we should surprise a few teams this year and make more strides toward respectability."

Valparaiso has a strong group of returning players including five senior starters. However, one of those seniors, forward Dean Kleronomos, is hurt and may miss part of the season.

"We got four solid seniors that are spearheading our attack right now," Mrak said. "Those guys are very good and very experienced and they're going to be the solid nucleus of the team."

The four seniors to whom Mrak referred are midfielder Doug Dafforn, goalie Dan Naden, sweeper Alan Reilein and forward Brian Thiel. Thiel was the Crusaders leading scorer a year ago with 28 points, good for sixth in the league.

Also back is junior midfielder Marc Riedl who scored six goals last year and tallied 15 points.

Mrak is also high on a freshman recruit from Minnesota.

"We've got a shining freshman in Jason Braun," Mrak said. "He was a five time Olympic development player at the regional level. So I'm looking for Jason to be an impact player this season and help the squad."

With a solid returning core, Mrak is confident that Valparaiso can improve on last year's season.

"I think we have a pretty balanced team this year between offense and defense," Mrak said. "We don't have any players that are going to set the NCAA Division I on fire, by the same token we're not going to give up as many goals as we did last year."

"We're a pretty balanced team from offense to defense. We'll be adequate. Our defense will keep us in the game and our offense will get us over the hump."

can even snap the ball.
The team is loaded with players that haven't proven themselves yet. Stan Thomas, Jay Fontenet and Chris Spellman to name a few. I still think the Bears have enough to win the weak Central and they will finish 10-6, but that's only if Neal Anderson rebounds from a miserable 1991 season.

Other than winning the Central the Bears will be lucky to make it past the first round of the playoffs.

As far as the teams to beat, I think Buffalo and Washington will once again be the cream of the crop. Buffalo has the best quarterback in Jim Kelly; the best defensive player: Bruce Smith and one of the best running backs in Thurman Thomas. Washington has the most talented team in the NFL.

The New Orleans Saints, Philadelphia Eagles and Kansas City Chiefs, with Christian Okoye, will all make runs at the Super Bowl, but none will get there.

This year's Super Bowl will be between the Houston "out for blood" Oilers and the Dallas "soon to be America's team again," Cowboys.

The Cowboys are the team of the future, but this year the Oilers and Warren Moon will come out wearing the rings.

For the Loyola Ramblers from Chicago, this tournament will provide an opportunity to find out just what kind of nucleus returns from last year's 26-12 squad.

Senior outside-hitter Lori Miller returns for her final season hoping to capitalize on last year's fruitful campaign. Miller was second on the team with 446 kills and was first with 56 aces.

Another piece to the Loyola puzzle is senior setter Julie McShane. McShane finished the year with 1,612 assists while leading the team with 377 digs.

Lastly, middle-hitter Therese O'Neill from Mother McAuley hopes to bolster the offensive this year. O'Neill was No. 1 with 532 kills and second with 52 service aces.

Loyola's record is 2-1 in the young season. The Ramblers only loss came at the hands of Illinois, which is ranked in the top 20 in the nation. However, coach Theresa Boyle has been very pleased with the progress her club has shown thus far.

"We've done extremely well so far," Boyle said. "I think we match up with most of the teams in the tournament pretty good. Our key game in the tournament will be our contest with Purdue. We played them last spring and it was really a hard fought match that neither team would let up at any point."

Boyle talked about what she believes it will take in order to knock off Eastern.

"Eastern's a very deceptive team. They show a lot of hustle and provide a well-coached squad that Betty always has ready to play," Boyle said. "They have good make up and a solid chemistry. They are a great bunch of over achievers."

Eastern's first contest will take place Friday at 5:30 p.m. with the Panthers taking on the Duke Blue Devils, a Top 30 team.

"Duke returns 10 letter winners and five starters," Ralston said. "Although the ACC is not as strong as the Big Ten, Duke is still a very dangerous team."

Duke returns a team that has received almost as many awards as Michael Jackson's Thriller album.

Setter Karen Glover, ACC Player of the Year; Amy Verhoven a 6-foot-2-inch middle-blocker received the ACC Tournament MVP; outside-hitter Ashley Wachholder was named ACC Freshman of the Year and Adrian Nicol another middle-blocker, led the ACC in hitting percentage and was Second-Team All-ACC. All these players along with a solid recruiting class return for coach Jon Wilson, who was the ACC Coach of the Year.

Eastern ready to open season

By KEITH FARROLL
Associate sports editor

A disappointing 4-7 season has been shadowing the Panther football program since the end of last year, but the team has a chance to turn that disappointment around as Eastern kicks off the 1992 campaign at Austin Peay in Clarksville, Tenn., Saturday at 6:30 p.m. (CDT).

Good things happened for the Panthers in Austin Peay's and Eastern's last meeting in 1989. The Panthers dominated and won 36-0, but since then, the Governors found a new coach to try to change things around.

Second-year Austin Peay coach Roy Gregory is in the process of rebuilding the football program. The Governors, who went 5-6 last year and did not win a game in 1990, will be trying to put together its first winning season since 1984.

Spoo sees a big difference between the team he faced three years ago and the team he is about to face Saturday.

"There is a 180 degree (difference)," Spoo said. "It's an entirely new offense and they seem to be better coached. So you put those factors together and you have a better football team and they look like it. There is no comparison to when we played them in 1989."

Austin Peay is expected to give Eastern a run. Last season, the Governors beat Murray State handily, 27-7 and earlier in that year, the Racers beat Eastern, 27-26.

"They are a good, solid football team and we have got to be prepared," Spoo said.

The Panthers will be defending against Austin Peay's wishbone offense in which the quarterback and the backs running the wishbone will be returning. In addition, the game will be played on artificial surface which will make backs appear quicker.

"The wishbone is always a difficult offense to prepare for because you don't see it but once or twice a year," Spoo said. "I think there is initially going to be a reaction time (on defense) to their speed, power and finesse with which they run their offense."

Spoo said defending the wishbone is his only big concern with defensive unit composed of many new faces. He said the first thing the defense will have to do is stop junior Jody Smith, who led the Governors with 791 rushing yards.

"They have a fine fullback and if we are not able to contain then we are in trouble," Spoo said. "We have to start there because that is the first thing we are going to see."

"It's an offense that forces you to segment your defense. Someone has to be assigned to the pitch, quarterback and certain individuals have to be assigned to the dive. If there is a breakdown there are serious consequences."

Offensively for the Panthers, Spoo is confident that junior quarterback Jeff Thorne will be able to lead the Panther offensive unit to the end zone like he did last year.

Thorne, who is now a three-year starter, connected on 21 touchdown passes last season and averaged nearly 175 passing yards per game.

"He has taken on a more demanding role," Spoo said. "People know who is in charge."

Soccer kicks off '92 season against Mid-Con opponent

The Eastern soccer team will get its regular season going at 4 p.m. Monday against Valparaiso at Lakeside Field.

Not only is it the Panthers season opener, it will also open league play in the Mid-Continent Conference. Last season Eastern finished 9-9-1 overall and placed fourth in the conference with a 4-3-1 record.

Valparaiso has no where to go but up after last season's 6-11-2 overall record and 1-6 mark in the Mid-Con. The one conference win was the Crusaders first in their four years in the league.

Last season the Panthers opened up with Valparaiso and crushed the Crusaders, 9-0. But Eastern coach Cizo Mosnia said he does not think that this year's contest will be that easy.

"I'm sure it will be a different story this time around, it will not be 9-0," Mosnia said. "They've always been a weaker team, but their coach says they're much improved and I believe that's the case. All of the teams in the Mid-Con are getting much stronger so you don't have the drastic difference from the top of the league to the bottom. I think all of the teams will be competitive this year."

After last seasons game with Valparaiso, there could be a tendency to take the Crusaders lightly. But Mosnia said that will not be the case come Monday.

"I don't think that will happen," Mosnia said. "Especially after what happened against Butler on Wednesday (the Panthers lost and exhibition game to the Bulldogs 3-0). After you lose, you don't take anybody lightly."

Valparaiso coach Mis' Mrak says his team is much improved from last season's 9-0 blowout. The Crusaders return all of their players from that squad and bring in a talented freshman.

"I'm cautiously reserved, we got everybody coming back from last year's squad, we didn't lose anybody to graduation," Mrak said. "We made great strides last season and Eastern Illinois beat us 9-0. That was our first game of our season.

"Hopefully we'll be able to make a better showing against Eastern. Whether we win or not, we won't know until game time and when the game plays. I do have some nice goals set for the team but we'll just have to wait and see how the team plays come game day."

Mrak said he knows his team made several mistakes in last year's game but thinks he has remedied those errors.

"In the Eastern game last year we made a lot of basic, mental errors," Mrak said. "There was a lot of break away goals, a lot of unassisted goals or long passes that were assists for goals. So we're going to break that down a bit and see if we can slow up their attack."

"Eastern likes to knock it around in the back and look for something to open in front so were hoping to kind of fill up those holes a little bit that we had in our defense last year."

The Crusaders will have one regular season game already under their belt, playing Butler on Saturday. Valparaiso has not played a preseason game this year and Mrak is hoping that his team will be ready come Saturday and Monday.

"You can play all the inter-squad games you want, it doesn't replace that competitiveness and spirit that happens on the game field," Mrak said. "If these guys rise to the occasion it could be a good day for us, if they don't come mentally and psychologically prepared it could be a long day for us."

Either way Mrak says his team is much better than a year ago and warns Eastern to be ready.

"I think Eastern has a lot of memories of what the team was in the past, and after last year's game of beating us so handily, they may come in somewhat relaxed," Mrak said. "They're anxious to get its season going as well, but I wouldn't recommend that they take us too lightly. We're going to come out fast and we're going to come out hard."

Eastern starts tournament season at Purdue Premier

By JOHN FERA
Staff Writer

Think of all the great sports upsets in history. In Super Bowl III, Broadway Joe Namath commanded the Jets to a stunning victory over Johnny Unitas and the Baltimore Colts.

The Villanova Wildcats upended the dominating reign of Patrick Ewing and his Georgetown Hoyas in the 1985 NCAA basketball championship. And, of course, any time the Northwestern Wildcats ever win a football game.

Eastern's spikers also hope to join this immortal class Friday and Saturday. The undefeated Panthers will be competing in the prestigious Purdue Premier, a tournament which will feature some of the nation's top volleyball programs including 1991 Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke and Big Ten powerhouse, the Boilermakers of Purdue.

Purdue senior middle blocker Donna Gill and a dynamite supporting staff return from coach Carol Dewey's squad.

The 6-foot-1-inch Gill led Purdue in hitting percentage at .247, tops with 123 block assists, first on the team with 157 total blocks, giving her an outstanding 1.45 blocks per game.

"We have to stop Donna Gill, she's a very talented player," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said about Gill.

Other catalysts for Purdue include junior Alisha Mitro and senior Darcy Jones. Mitro, an outside-hitter, finished second on the Big Ten squad with 256 kills giving her a 2.56 avg. per game. Mitro topped the club with 315 digs.

The middle-blocker Jones led the team with 306 kills, a 2.9 average per game while she ended last fall's campaign with 106 block assists and 32 solo blocks.

Bears to fare no better than Cubs, White Sox

It's still may be baseball season, but if you're a Chicago fan, you might as well start looking forward to the start of the 1992 football campaign.

Contrary to what many Cubs fans think, it's all over for them.

The Cubs' pitching staff may be one of the best in baseball, but as far as their offense goes, Greg Maddux and Mike Harkey could do as good a job in the No. 6 and No. 7 spots in the lineup than any other position player.

Anyway, The Bears are ready to go. Or at least that's what Mike Ditka seems to think.

The only reason the Bears might have a chance of making the playoffs, is that they play in the NFC Central Division. The division, which just two years ago looked to be a division on the rise, has turned into one of the worst in the NFL.

The Detroit Lions are the only team I believe have a chance at beating the Bears. They have the best running back in football in Barry Sanders, but you can pick any one of their quarterbacks out of a hat and they still will not have anybody who can lead the offense.

The rest of the division, other than the Minnesota Vikings - who might be decent with the defense they have - will be a fight for last place because none of the teams will be worthy of finishing any higher.

The Bears still have too many question marks on their team. They traded away the game's best center of the last 10 years in Jay Hilgenberg and now they have nobody that
