Bar-entry age may be raised to 21

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Staff writer

Charleston's bar-entry age is likely to be raised from 19 to 21 regardless of the recommendation from the liquor task force, the City Council student representative said Wednesday.

Michael Smyth, who serves in a non-voting capacity as a student adviser on the council, said he thinks the council is leaning toward raising the age.

"I truly think there is a good chance that it will be raised,"

Smyth said. "I haven't asked them how they will vote, but the council tends to be conservative."

Smyth said only one City Council member attended any of the task force meetings to hear student and community opinions about the entry-age issue.

Senate member Katina Gillespie said the liquor task force hearings were probably pointless.

"I would say from the day Cougill got elected, his plan was to raise the entry age," Gillespie said. "The forums were just a show to pretend they were listening to students."

Senate Speaker Bobby Smith and Student Body President Luke Neumann, members of the liquor task force, said they still support leaving the bar-entry age at 19.

"I am still swaying towards 19 with the condition of extreme and heavy enforcement," Smith said. "I didn't hear anything that would change my opinion."

Neumann is also in favor of keeping the entry age at 19 and agreed that enforcement is the key. He said he opposes using drunk-driving statistics to support an entry age increase.

"If people don't go to bars, they'll go somewhere else to drink and then drive home," said Neumann. "Some bars are on campus anyway and students can walk home."

Other senate members echoed Smith and Neumann's stance on the issue.

Senate member Jodi Chapman said she came to Eastern from a city with a 21 bar-entry age and doesn't think a higher entry age will stop underage drinking.

"There are more chances of things getting out of control with a

Sigma Nu placed under censure

By ANDY PURCELL
Campus editor

Eastern's chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity was officially placed under censure by the university Wednesday, said Eileen Sullivan, assistant director of student affairs for Greek activities.

The censure is the result of an investigation into mental hazing that centered around the fraternity's ritualistic pledge ceremony.

As punishment, the fraternity will be prohibited from conducting more than 10 weeks of programs involving new members and must make pledges active members before the 10-week period elapses, Sullivan said.

"There will never be any more locally created rituals," she said.

The chapter must also end the pledge period with a ceremony established by the national headquarters and complete 50 hours of community service.

During the ceremony, pledges were individually told by fraternity executive officers that they failed their final pledge exam and would be given one more chance to pass.

The pledges were told that every time they answered a question incorrectly one of three lit candles would be extinguished, and if all three candles were blown out, the pledge would not become a member of the fraternity.

Greek Court expansion expected to begin by summer

By ANDY PURCELL
Campus editor

Construction to expand Greek Court should begin by late summer and could be completed as early as fall of 1995, said Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs.

Hencken said the Greek Court project and other future campus projects will be funded by the estimated $7.5 million expected to be generated by refinancing university revenue bonds.

The expansion project has already been approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the Board of Governors, Hencken said.

"What we need to do next is get the funds," Hencken said. "We're in the process right now of working with the banks. We are refinancing our bonds to take advantage of lower interest rates."

"This is expected to generate approximately $7.5 million. One of the things we would use that money for would be to build new Greek housing, which we have a demand for."

He said the next step of the process will occur April 20 when the university plans to sell its current bonds to take advantage of lower interest rates.

Hencken said the process of refinancing revenue bonds is similar to that used in refinancing a mortgage on a house but on a bigger scale.

He said the money will be available as soon as the bonds are sold.

"If we sell them in the morning, we'll have the money by the afternoon," Hencken said.

Kelly Miller, director of Greek Housing, said the expansion project will include the construction of two houses like the 12 that currently exist in Greek Court and four smaller houses.

Miller said the two large houses, which will hold approximately 40 people, will be occupied by the Sigma Sigma Sigma and Sigma Kappa sororities.

The smaller houses will be occupied by the Sigma Gamma Rho, Delta Sigma Theta and Zeta Phi Beta

Serbs intensify offensive in Bosnia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) – Bosnian Serbs launched three rocket-propelled grenades Wednesday at government troops in Sarajevo, prompting a gunbattle that violated the U.N. cease-fire and raised fears that the city's recent calm will shatter.

The skirmish around the Jewish cemetery in downtown Sarajevo ended after the U.N. commander in Bosnia, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, threatened to send in British U.N. troops, said U.N. officials speaking on condition of anonymity. No casualties were immediately reported.

Elsewhere, Serbs pounded two Muslim enclaves and continued to block relief convoys – despite their encouraging promise a day earlier to open an airport in the region to relief flights.

In the capital region, Serb artillery also fired Tuesday on the Muslim town of Breza, just north of Sarajevo, said U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Bill Aikman.

While the Breza and Sarajevo attacks clearly breached the 3-week-old U.N. cease-fire, they were apparently not serious enough to trigger a NATO air strike under the alliance's Feb. 9 ultimatum.

Grenade-launchers were not listed among the heavy weapons that had to be removed from a 13-mile radius around Sarajevo, and Breza is outside the zone.

U.N. officials quoted Serbs as saying they fired the grenades because Muslim-led government forces were violating the cease-fire themselves by reinforcing their trenches. The United Nations had reported government forces were doing so last week.

Russian troops are in the Jewish Cemetery on the Serb side, French soldiers are on the Bosnian side, and "tensions are certainly increased in that area," Aikman said.

Problems with aid convoys also continued. Serb, Muslim and Croat leaders all have signed accords pledging free passage for aid convoys, but they have been ignored repeatedly, especially by Serb commanders.

U.N. officials had suggested they would get tough with Serbs to ensure smooth movement of relief convoys, but two of them remained stranded Wednesday.

Kris Janowski, spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Sarajevo, said a convoy for Sarajevo, blocked since Monday by Serb women, was still stuck at Hadzici, 10 miles from the capital.

Another convoy for Maglaj in northern Bosnia was stranded in Zenica, and it may take two or three days before permits are approved by the Serbs to proceed through a half-mile of Serb territory past the last Croat checkpoint at Brankovici, Janowski said.

Some 19,000 refugees in Maglaj have been under siege most of the past year. The town depends almost entirely on airdropped aid, which is risky to retrieve from combat zones and often does not reach intended recipients.

Bosnian radio said Serbs fired 300 tank, howitzer and mortar rounds at Maglaj early Wednesday, and at least two people had been killed the previous 24 hours. The United Nations could not confirm details of the attack.

Teen baby swap victim runs away from home

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) – Seven months ago, Kimberly Mays took the stand in a custody battle and tearfully recounted how she pleaded with the father who raised her after she was switched at birth in a hospital, "Please don't let them take me away."

Now she has run away from home to a Sarasota YMCA Youth Shelter for troubled teens. She voluntarily went to the shelter with the signed permission of Bob Mays, who won custody at a hearing in which the judge said Kimberly never had to see her biological parents again.

"Kimberly Mays is experiencing adolescent difficulties that are not uncommon for youth today," said a statement from Jack Greer, the shelter's executive director. "There are absolutely no allegations of abuse of any kind involved in this voluntary admission."

Kimberly has been at the shelter since last week.

"I don't think it has anything to do with the litigation or the decision in the case. It has to do with Kimberly being a teen-ager," attorney George Russ said Wednesday.

Russ helped the 15-year-old sever ties with her birth parents Ernest and Regina Twigg last August, ending a bitter, high-profile battle between the Twiggs and Mays over custody and visitation rights.

Kimberly was described by one of her lawyers as "yipping and yelping for joy" after the judge's Aug. 18 ruling.

Kimberly was switched with another child just after birth in 1978. The swap came to light after Arlena, the child raised by the Twiggs, died of a heart defect in 1988.

"The last five years all the pressure on Kim has caused her to have some problems," Russ said. He would not elaborate.

"It is not as serious as everyone would like to think it is," Russ said, adding he had spoken with Mays and his wife, Darlena. "They would like to keep it a private matter."

A Sarasota sheriff's deputy from the criminal investigation unit was dispatched to the shelter Friday, but information is classified under Florida's child abuse law.

keg than if people are paying as they go along," Chapman said. "People were drinking at one party and then getting in cars and driving looking for more parties. At least with bars you don't have to go search for the social life."

Chief of Staff Matt Giordano said community residents are naive to think changing the entry age will cut down on underage drinking.

"Instead of busting Mother's bar, they'll be busting John's apartment," Giordano said. "It's safer to keep the drinking in an enclosed environment."

The executive members would continue to ask questions until the pledge missed three, at which time the pledge would be asked what the executive is holding in a closed fist. Pledges were led to believe it was their pledge pin, but it was actually an active pin.

Sullivan said the conditions of the censure involving pledge programs and initiation ceremonies are permanent. Temporary restrictions are also included.

"The fraternity shall submit a list of the new member programs, including initiation week activities, to the Office of Student Activities for approval," Sullivan said. "This must be done immediately for this semester and no later than the first day of the semester in the fall."

The fraternity must also host an educational program on respect and human dignity by the end of the semester; all chapter members must attend.

All chapter members must also participate in the fraternity's national Leadership, Ethics, Achievement and Development program that focuses on ethical leadership and group dynamics, Sullivan said.

Sullivan said she met with chapter president Jason Conder Wednesday and informed him of the terms of the censure.

Conder declined to comment on the hazing incident or the censure.

sororities and the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, all of which are members of the Black Greek Council.

Miller said the BGC organizations will be housed in smaller buildings because they have fewer members than the other organizations.

"The number of members in the Black Greek Council organizations range anywhere from 7 to 8 members in the smaller ones and 15 to 20 members in the larger ones," Miller said. "For us to build houses for forty (residents) doesn't make a lot of sense. We're building smaller units, so they're able to have the same facilities just on a smaller scale."

Hencken said the expansion will include building additional athletic fields for the west side of campus including lighted basketball and tennis courts and softball and football fields.

Hencken said many students have called for expanding Booth Library, but he said bond money can only be used to fund improvements to bond revenue buildings.

Buildings funded by bond revenue include student housing and dining services, O'Brien Stadium, Lantz Gymnasium, the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union, University Court and University Apartments.

Hencken said improvements to the library, Old Main and other campus buildings are funding by appropriated money from the state legislature.

AB to cut funds for advertising

By NATALIE GOTT
Staff writer

Several student coordinators who presented their budget requests at Tuesday night's Apportionment Board meeting said if cuts have to be made, they would prefer AB cut funds from their original advertising requests.

Curt Knox, UB's Special Events Committee Chairman, said his committee's request of $1,830 for promotional items could be reduced if Special Events does not run eight of the 44 Daily Eastern News advertisements the committee listed in its 1994-95 budget request.

"I realize cuts have to be made because the AB has received such a large request," Knox said Wednesday. "If they are, I would like them to cut $216 in promotions."

Blake Wood, AB Chairman, said the board will have to cut at least $100,000 in budget requests. Wood said budget requests submitted to the AB total about $425,000. Based on student enrollment figures and a $14.50 per semester student activity fee, Wood said the AB can only allocate slightly more than $300,000 for 1994-95 budgets.

The Special Event's Committee submitted a total budget request of $17,300, which is $4,225 more than last year's request of $13,345.

Carl Zuccarelli, UB's Subway Committee chairman, said the AB should begin making cuts from the committee's promotional request of $1,830. The Subway Committee, which brings comedy acts to campus, submitted a total request of $19,990 from student fees — $3,800 more than last year's approved budget.

Included with the suggestion to cut student payroll, David Dutler, director of Sports and Recreation, said the AB could reduce their $7,600 request for promotional items.

"I feel guilty if every student isn't aware of what we offer," Dutler said. "If cuts are made, though, split it between promotions and payroll."

Zuccarelli said another portion of the comedy budget the AB could reduce is the amount of weekend shows figured into the comedy budget request.

He said the Subway Committee is asking for $22,000 for entertainment and performers. The committee has scheduled eight small acts, four weekend acts and two major acts.

If further cuts need to be made, Zuccarelli said he would prefer that funds for two weekend acts be cut to allow the committee to work within a budget of $1,200, half of what they have requested for weekend acts.

IBHE focuses on college costs

By CHRISSY MOCH
Staff writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education's committee to study affordability is considering alternative ways of setting tuition at the 12 state universities as part of its efforts to cut costs for college students.

The committee's recommendations on tuition range from allowing the IBHE to set a common tuition rate for the 12 state universities to making tuition rates dependent on a student's income. Currently, the authority to set tuition rests with the governing boards of each university.

IBHE spokeswoman Deborah Smitley said the committee to study affordability is currently formulating a document that identifies the policy goals related to affordability.

"(The document) looks at existing progress related to college affordability," IBHE spokeswoman Deborah Smitley said. "It attempts to summarize some of the options that have been considered."

Smitley said there are 13 policy options being considered. Some of them include changing the academic calendar, offering a three-year bachelor's degree program, and allowing individual institutions to calculate their financial aid awards.

Smitley said the committee has met three times and has three more meetings scheduled. It has also held four public hearings since December to solicit comments from university officials and students.

"(The hearings were) held for people to come and testify about the affordability issue," Smitley said.

Smitley said no set of recommendations will be officially adopted until June. The committee's final recommendations will be presented to the IBHE in September. The board is expected to take action on the recommendations in October.

Smitley said she expects

Council is seeking to award women

By AMY HEEREN
Staff writer

The Women's Studies Council is seeking nominations from area residents for the annual Women of Achievement Awards.

Charleston residents are being encouraged to nominate local women who have made outstanding contribution to Eastern and the community.

The awards will be part of the celebration of Women's History and Awareness Month in March, and recipients will be the guests of honor at the Women's Studies Council Awards Banquet on March 31, where they will receive their awards.

"This is our way of recognizing and celebrating the accomplishments of women in the area," said Jayne Ozier, chairwoman of the women's studies awards committee. "The women will only receive a certificate of recognition, but it really is quite an honor."

Ozier said people have received awards in the past for leadership roles in business, the arts, theater clubs and other organizations. The awards have also been given as special recognition to a woman's talent.

Last year, the Women's Studies Council Awards Committee chose two Charleston community leaders and one campus leader to receive the award.

Eastern's blood drive last week totaled 1,333 pints of donated blood. The goal for the week goal was 1,200. Eastern was in competition for blood donations with Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, which had a 6-day total of 1,283 pints of blood. Eastern's blood drive was held for 4 days. This information was incorrectly reported in Friday's edition of The Daily Eastern News.

Diversity should be celebrated all year long

Black History Month officially ended a few days ago. Traditionally, this means the end of nearly all discussion on matters of race and multiculturalism, and most people return to their segregated lives until the same time next year when they will once again dust off words such as unity, brotherhood and racial equality.

Similarly, we are now into the third day of Women's History Month. Many people who might otherwise never give women's history or interests a second thought will be showing signs of a heightened awareness and sensitivity toward women's issues. At least they will do so until April 1 – the first day of Latino Awareness Month.

Prominent black politicians, administrators and authors often comment they are more in demand during the month of February than they are during the other 11 months of the year combined. Prominent women and Latinos generally concur when asked about their own awareness months.

Students who wish to attend events celebrating their race or gender often find themselves attending events on top of events crammed into only a few short weeks. It seems that despite efforts to incorporate these different racial, cultural or gender groups, every other month during the rest of the year still remains White Male History and Awareness Month.

Very few may remember the last time a black performer or speaker came to Eastern outside of Black History Month – Bill Cosby's performance at Parent's Weekend is one in a handful of appearances. Would Eastern be so willing to part with nearly $8,900 in student fee money to bring the likes of Deborah Norville to campus if March wasn't Women's History Month?

The problem arises not from celebrating these special months, which were originally intended to ensure that ethnic and gender groups were not left out completely, but from limiting our awareness of the cultural and historical achievements of these groups to a few specified weeks each year.

A person can be just as much aware of black history in October as in February.

Is Mayor Cougill the next coffeehouse guru?

Mayor Dan Cougill stood tall on April 13, 1993.

In a mayoral candidate debate against then Charleston Mayor Wayne Lanman, Cougill made a firm appeal for his principles.

He is a former military man. And in the grand tradition of Oliver North, Cougill could never lie to the people.

He shot straight from the hip when he said, "I will not, not, not change the bar-entry age."

However, his firm statements fell limp when given time, reflection and the proper number of votes to be elected. Once in office, Cougill soon distanced himself from his campaign remarks.

He explained what he meant to say was that he "will not, not, not change the bar-entry age" unless or until a suitable bar alternative surfaces.

The mayor never explained the definition of a suitable bar alternative, nor did he explain why he prefers the name Dan to Roscoe.

Theories abound for the reasoning behind his opinion swing. None, however, have been raised concerning the name preference.

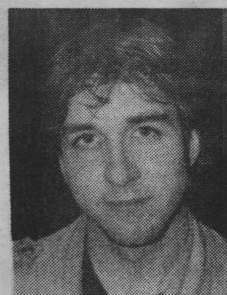

Independent observers of the mayor attribute the debate remarks to his evil twin, Moe. Others blame possession of the mayor's mind by freakish, alien gnomes.

However, both findings are inconclusive and, as of yet, unproven.

The best theory voters are left to consider is that Cougill simply lied.

So enter Dan Cougill's suitable bar alternative – a coffeehouse.

In a story in Tuesday's Daily Eastern News, Cougill suggested a coffeehouse as a bar alternative for socializing and hours of caffeine swilling.

J.A. Winders

"In the grand tradition of Oliver North, Cougill could never lie to the people."

"A coffeehouse down close to campus or on campus," Cougill said, "is an alternative to the requirement for people to socialize in bars."

The "requirement" the mayor refers to in this quotation is a 1964 city ordinance that mandates individuals entering bars "must mingle, mix and socialize freely with at least seven but no more than nine other individuals."

The Drink and Chat

Ordinance was spawned from a trend that came to a head in the summer of 1964. Hundreds of residents complained about groups of college students gathering in local establishments, standing quietly and keeping to themselves.

"The coffeehouse should probably be built in a way where you can have poetry reading in one corner and another totally separate event on the other end," Cougill said.

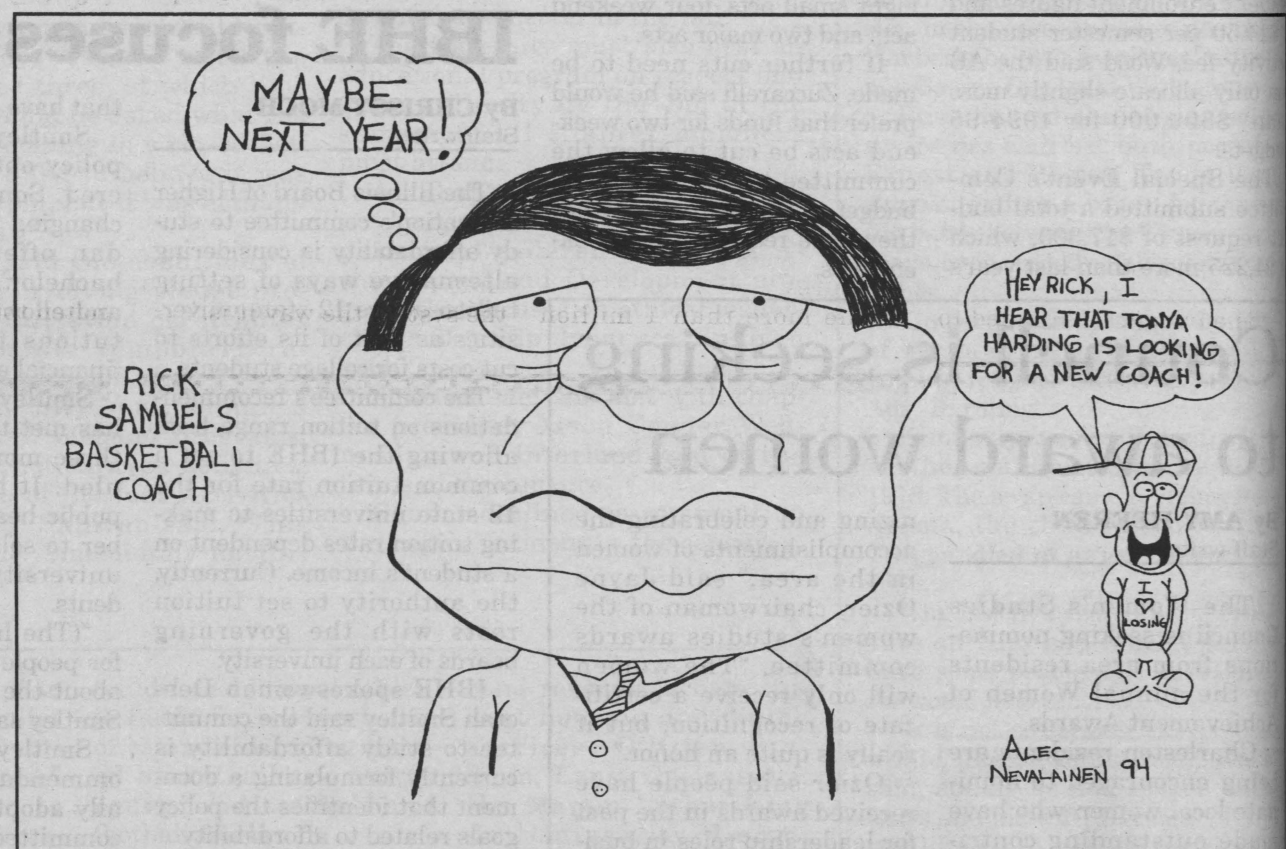

Showing faith in his own ideas, Cougill will open the coffeehouse poetry forum with an essay titled, "My Gulf War: How to crush an under-armed, under-manned, generally over-matched opponent and still look cool."

His reading will be followed by an interpretive dance – performed by members of the liquor task force – depicting the recent public hearings concerning the bar-entry age.

The idea has been pitched to the community and free enterprise. And nobody is biting.

So the race is now on between the coffeehouse's opening and the possibility of Cougill once again changing his mind.

– J.A. Winders is a guest columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Columnist was wrong in declaring health care a failure

Dear editor:

David Putney's column in the Feb. 17 edition of The Daily Eastern News criticizes both President Clinton's health insurance plan and the whole idea of reforming the health insurance system. I agree that the Clinton reform would be costly and administratively inefficient. As to reform itself, however, I take issue with Putney's dismissal of universal health insurance as a "proven failure."

To equate universal health insurance with Medicaid, an inadequately financed and poorly administered program, is misleading. Compare it instead with Medicare, to which it would be far more similar, a program whose recipients, the elderly and disabled, are fighting to retain it.

To claim European single-payer health insurance systems are responsible for high unemployment there is to ignore decades of low unemployment during which those systems operated successfully. To say that the Clinton plan is similar to European plans is simply wrong. In fact, a single-payer European plan would be the most beneficial for the United States and superior to the Clinton plan for several reasons.

Most importantly, everyone would be fully covered for health care expense – no exceptions, no surprises. How can we do this? By having everyone participate, this bringing the cost down for each individual, 90 percent of Americans would pay the same or less under such a single-payer system than they pay now for health insurance and out-of-pocket health care costs. The Congressional Budget Office finds that single-payer reform with cut U.S. health care expenditures by $319 billion over five years, whereas the Clinton plan will increase spending by $214 billion over the same period.

Second, financing would be simpler, handled through an employer-employee payroll tax. Before you cry "No new taxes," understand that all of your and your employer's current expenditures for health insurance and health care would cease.

Third, administration would be far less costly and more efficient, at a cost of about 2 percent of premium payments rather than the 26 percent we pay with our private insurance. We would eliminate that extra layer of bureaucracy that both private insurance companies and the Clinton plan's health insurance purchasing alliances represent.

Fourth, health care would remain private and everyone would retain free choice of physicians. The Clinton managed care proposal would restrict our choice of physicians.

A single-payer system would be very similar to Medicare in administration and financing, but would provide full coverage for everyone, not partial coverage for a selected group. Don't be taken in by those who pass it off by implying that government social programs will automatically bankrupt the nation. Let's talk facts, not sloppy slogans.

Over 90 Congressmen support the single-payer bill. The 60,000 members of the American College of Surgeons support it. It works in Canada and Europe, and it is the best plan to insure that we stop rationing health care in this country by ability to pay.

Edgar proposes new budget

Governor proposes Medicaid overhaul

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Rather than raise taxes, Gov. Jim Edgar on Wednesday proposed restructuring state debt to pay Medicaid bills and changing a law requiring more money for pensions than the state can afford.

"This budget balances our present day needs with the hopes of tomorrow, against the priorities I have set and within the bounds of reality and responsibility," the Republican told a joint session of the Legislature.

Edgar's 37-minute address was interrupted about 18 times by applause, but almost without exception it was limited to GOP lawmakers, who also gave him a standing ovation when he said the budget had no new taxes.

Democratic leaders took a wait-and-see attitude to much of the $31.5 billion budget plan for the fiscal year starting July 1, but suggested Edgar delivered it with his re-election in mind.

"The budget is designed to Holding steady. . .

Highlights of Gov. Jim Edgar's budget proposal for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1994:

Size

- $31.5 billion, an increase of $1.2 billion (4.2 percent).

Taxes and Fees

- Edgar proposes no new taxes.
- If Medicaid is revamped, a hospital tax expected to produce $336 million this year would expire.

Spending Increases

- Grade schools and high schools would get an additional $160 million (4.6 percent).
- Colleges would get $86 million more (5.5 percent).
- The Department of Children and Family Services would get $153 million more (17 percent).
- $13 million would help start an initiative announced in January requiring mothers 18 and under to complete high school as a condition for getting public aid. The money would go for child care, transportation and other services.

get him past the November election," said Senate Minority Leader Emily Jones, D-Chicago.

Edgar urged restructuring state debt to save enough interest money so the state could pay off $1.2 billion in Medicaid bills over the next two budget years, including $750 million in the year starting July 1.

Under a plan to root out fraud, abuse and make the cost of delivering health care more affordable, Edgar also would emphasize preventive measures.

The more than 1 million

Medicaid clients could choose from a number of health-coverage options, including a system of health maintenance organizations or state-subsidized private health insurance.

Senate President James "Pate" Philip embraced Edgar's budget but said the complicated Medicaid proposal could face difficulties.

"I don't know whether we will be able to pass it," the Wood Dale Republican said. "There are certain elements in the General Assembly that don't want to disturb the system the way it is."

Budget to assist children, students

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Children, college students and businesses would benefit from spending increases in Gov. Jim Edgar's budget proposal released Wednesday.

Most state agencies would remain at current levels or get conservative increases, and a few would take mild cuts under Edgar's $31.5 billion plan.

Edgar's proposal is the first step in the long process of agreeing on a plan for the state's new budget year, which begins July 1.

The Republican governor credits a healthy economic outlook for the relatively upbeat budget, but his re-election bid is an extra incentive to make this year's proposal as attractive as possible.

One of the only agencies that would take a funding hit is the Department of Employment Security, which provides unemployment insurance benefits and job referral services. Its allocation would be cut by $34.1 million, about 13 percent.

A spokeswoman for the department said an expected drop in unemployment figures and a subsequent decline in the agency's workload soften the blow.

"We don't expect a decrease in services," said Shari Kertez. "There are 11 satellite outposts, and a few might possibly be cut. But none of the 60 regular offices will be closed. People will still be within a reasonable distance to services."

Higher education was one of the biggest winners, with proposed funds for grants and operations increasing by 5.5 percent, or $86.4 million. The amount includes a $37 million boost for financial aid.

"We were very pleasantly surprised," said Ross Hodel, deputy director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education. "This will increase the number of students receiving scholarships and increase the amount of those scholarships."

Hodel also said university faculty and staff members would receive salary increases if the budget is passed.

Elementary and secondary education funds would increase by $160 million. The additional money will pay for pre-school programs, a tuition program for special education classes for children living in state care, and a computer system to link schools to one another and to on-line information systems.

Art conference scheduled for Saturday at Doudna

By KARI SWIFT
Staff writer

Registration is now under way for the 10th Annual Media and Methods in Arts Conference, which will be held from 8 a.m. until 3:45 p.m. on Saturday in the Doudna Fine Arts Building and the Tarble Arts Center.

The conference, which is being sponsored by the School of Adult and Continuing Education, will cover media and methods in art education, said

Nanette Carli, conference coordinator.

David M. Smith, an art teacher from Aurora, will be the keynote speaker. His speech, titled "Validation of Inclusion in Public Education," will discuss the importance of including all students in art regardless of their ability.

In 1994, Smith received the Illinois Art Education Association's Art Educator of the Year Award. He is also on the board of directors for Very Special Art Illinois.

The conference will feature hands-on workshops covering such topics as new products, jewelry, grant writing and ways to create art using everyday objects like a brown paper bag.

Carli said the conference will offer an opportunity to learn techniques in art that can be easily used.

The fee for registration is $32, which includes all materials, a continental breakfast and the conference luncheon.

Counseling Center will offer career development seminar

By ADAM McHUGH
Activities editor

Students seeking information about potentially lucrative careers are encouraged to attend a workshop today on career development, said officials at Eastern Counseling Center.

"The Art of Developing a Career," a Life Skills Workshop moderated by Bud Sanders, director of the Counseling Center, will begin at 8 p.m. today at the center.

The workshop, which has been offered at Eastern for more than 20 years, outlines the process students must go through to decide the right career for them.

"We want to show students how deciding a major here relates to their future in whatever career they select," Sanders said.

The workshop will also highlight what careers are currently popular and those careers that may eventually become popular.

"The computer and health fields are hot right now, but teaching is coming back," Sanders said.

He said college students must realize why they are in college and how important it is to decide on a major within the first two years at a university.

"Statistics show that when people come in as freshmen, one-third have some kind of business major, one-third have some other major and the other one-third are undecided," Sanders said.

He said the workshop has been successful because coordinators have learned through time that students with a goal do much better than undecided majors.

"If you are undecided and don't know which direction you're going, it gets harder and harder to get up in the morning and go to class," Sanders said.

Sanders said those who attend the workshop range from students who "don't have the foggiest idea of what they're going to do to students who simply need a push in the right direction."

No rest for swimmers

By JOHN COX
Staff writer

Another season at pool side falls along the wayside.

Eastern's swim season came to an end last weekend after a little more than four months of practicing and competing. Or has it actually ended?

A cycle never ends. When one season starts, off-season training begins. Everyone who expects to be back for next year's swim campaign has already begun to lift, pedal and run.

According to coach Ray Padovan, those who are not coming back will be greatly missed. All four of this year's captains, Ronae Scheuer, Heather Hofman, Brian Huey and Shawn O'Neill, swam in their final meet, while Tony Cichowicz and Bret Killus hang up the goggles for the Panthers as well.

"On the women's side, we're not losing too many, but we're losing great people," Padovan said. "Ronae was just as solid as a rock for us. She had great consistency."

"Heather was our No. 1 breaststroker on and off for the past four years," Padovan said of the swimmer he calls Miss February. "She always swam her best at the end of the season."

While Padovan loses a couple key Panthers, the Eastern pack hasn't lost all of it's punch.

"Mark Donahue will be returning and Mike McKay continued to improve," Padovan said. "Chad Jessen wasn't around for the whole year, but when he was swimming he was a real help."

"Ron Steffey came through for us where we needed help in the distance events," Padovan said. "And Taff Nielsen came in with great backstrokes and allowed Brian Huey to do other things like the IM, really helping us with depth on the team."

Taff Nielsen

Padovan said that this year's men's team rejuvenated a program that was previously otherwise shipwrecked.

"The men were much improved this year. To be honest, a year ago, the men's program was close to being non-existent," Padovan said.

The women came off of a very good season two years ago, and this season was more of a stabilizing year for the Lady Panthers.

"The women were not quite as good this year as the last couple of years, but we had a lot of injury problems and a lot of kids graduate from the program," Padovan said. "But that's not to say we didn't have some good swims."

A few Lady Panthers that did have exceptional seasons were Kim Batson, a newcomer to the team and a blossoming diver; Catrina Crociani, a versatile freshman swimmer who concentrated on the breaststroke and the IM; Becca Wolf, a sprinter who Padovan said came through in the end; and Shelley Untersee, a powerful force and point-scorer in the backstroke.

"We had a lot of people on both sides who gave good, overall contributions," Padovan said. "The women just lost some people to graduation and injuries and needed a few extra people."

"Now we are interested in filling our needs in recruiting by just looking for people to come in and swim, since we don't offer much as far as scholarships."

Padovan has been speaking to about 30 swimmers during the recruiting process and said that he has a few people coming down in the next two to three weeks to visit the campus and check out Eastern's swimming facilities.

Start of baseball season delayed one more time

The Eastern baseball team's game against Indiana State, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, was postponed and rescheduled as part of a doubleheader March 30 in Terre Haute, Ind. Game time for the first game will be 3 p.m.

Wednesday's game was originally scheduled to be at home but was later moved to Terre Haute after Eastern's Monier Field was rendered unplayable. Indiana State's Astroturf field was later determined to be unplayable as well.

The Panthers, who have had each of their first two games washed out because of unplayable field conditions, are scheduled to play in the SIU Classic Saturday through Monday in Carbondale. Other teams in the tournament include Southern, Iowa and Eastern Michigan.

Eastern's next scheduled home game is an April 2 Mid-Continent Conference doubleheader against Wright State.

Wisconsin upsets Michigan

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Michael Finley scored 20 points and used his defense to shut down Jalen Rose as Wisconsin snapped a four-game losing streak with a 71-58 upset of third-ranked Michigan on Wednesday night.

The slumping Badgers (16-8, 7-8 Big Ten), losers of eight of 12 after a promising 11-0 start, snapped the Wolverines' nine-game winning streak and kept their own slim NCAA tournament hopes alive.

Conference-leading Michigan (20-5, 12-3), which hadn't played since Feb. 22, shot just 36 percent compared to the Badgers' 54 percent. The Wolverines, who trailed 31-26 at halftime, also got outrebounded 38-31.

Finley, who averaged 24.6 points in five previous games against Michigan, held Rose to 15 points, six below his average. Seven-foot freshman center Rashard Griffith added 11 points and 12 rebounds for Wisconsin.

The Wolverines, led by Rose and Juwan Howard with 15 points each, got the first basket of the game but never led again.

They trailed 48-42 with 10 minutes left, but Jimmy King dunked off a steal by Rose to spark an 8-3 run that pulled the Wolverines to 51-50 with 7:47 left.

Murry looking for more at regional competition

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

Rich Murry was born into a family of wrestlers and has been around the sport all his life.

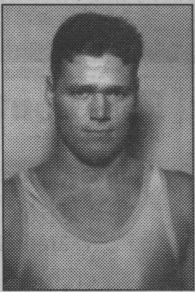

And although he has far surpassed any wrestling accomplishments of his brothers, he is still looking for more.

"Last year was a learning experience and I was really happy to make it to nationals," Murry said of his accomplishment at last year's regional tournament. "This year I'm not over-looking regionals, it's just that I want more."

"I want to take first (in the regional tournament), and I want to qualify for nationals and ultimately place."

These may seem like words of overconfidence from the New Lenox, Ill., native, but Murry assures that he is not looking past anyone.

"I'm never overconfident, no matter who it is," Murry said.

Rich Murry

think once I get there, I should definitely give them a run for their money."

Murry, who currently holds a 20-6 record, will probably be the No. 2 seed at this week-end's regional tournament in Springfield, Mo., and he credits part of his success to teammate Darnell Thomas.

"He's got a lot of motivation," Murry said of Thomas. "He keeps me going. When I'm down, he kind of brings me up."

Thomas rolls into regional

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

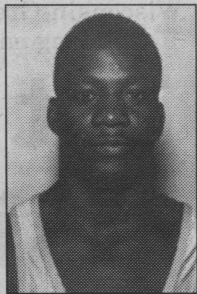

Darnell Thomas enters this weekend's NCAA West Regional wrestling tournament with a 19-17 record at 158 pounds and even though he is not completely pleased with his performance this year, he has faith in his ability to win.

"I'm not really pleased with it (this season) but it's getting better," Thomas said. "I feel myself progressing, so that's an important thing."

Thomas is in his final season on the Panther squad and he hopes to make it a year to remember.

"This is my last chance, so there's no holding back," Thomas said. "I'm going to have fun, give it all I got and hopefully it's enough to succeed."

Although Thomas does not have as good a record as his teammates Joe Daubach and Rich Murry, who have been to the national tournament before, he is still confident in his chances to reach the finals.

Darnell Thomas

"I have a good chance. I'm looking forward to being in the finals," Thomas said. "I feel I'm in shape physically so I've been working on myself more mentally."

Thomas has competed against a lot of very talented wrestlers this year and he says it should help him in the regional tournament.

Thomas had very strong matches against such wrestlers as Jim Prendergast of Southwest Missouri State who is ranked fifth in the nation at 158, and he also wrestled Ernest Benion of the University of Illinois who was 21-5 at the time of their match.

Thomas will probably be a third seed in this weekend's tournament and knows it will take a lot of work, as well as a little luck to qualify for Nationals.

"I'm looking for an upset," said Thomas.

Room.

Friday's schedule will have Billick meeting with the student athletic advisory board from 8 to 8:50 a.m., with deans, directors, chairpersons and the Council of University Administrators from 9 to 9:50 a.m. and the athletic director search committee once again from 10 to 11:15 a.m., again, all in the 1895 Room.

Billick will then meet with Jorns again from 11:30 a.m. to noon before leaving Friday afternoon.

The itinerary for each of the other three finalist's visits will be the same.

Robert McBee, athletic director at Robert Morris College, will visit Eastern next Monday through Wednesday. William Weidner, assistant athletic director at Southern Methodist, will be in Charleston from March 9-11. Bobby Thompson, athletic director at Texas-San Antonio, will interview March 13-15.

Charles Colbert, Eastern vice president of business affairs and chairman of the athletic director search committee, and Jorns have both said they expect to have a new athletic director chosen by the end of the current semester.

movie Hoosiers — at least four passes before you can shoot. Then bring a guy around a double-screen and watch him bury a three. Simple stuff, but the Phoenix do it well.

What about Eastern, you say? Well, the Panthers aren't even in the equation. Granted, they play better at home than on the road, and for all intents and purposes, Mid-Con tourney games are considered away games.

But Valparaiso is a lousy draw for the Panthers. The Crusaders smashed Eastern a about two weeks ago, 70-55, and also beat them in Lantz Gym, 65-60.

The Panthers would have been better off facing UIC, which Eastern has beaten once this season, or even Green Bay, whom the Panthers could at least try and use some of their athletic ability to blow past. Valparaiso is just as athletic as Eastern, if not more.

Valpo also has a lot riding on this game. After finishing the regular-season with a 19-7 record, the Crusaders will not let their best season in 25 years go by the wayside because of some sixth-seed down in Charleston.

On the other hand, the Panthers do have a bit of history on their side. It was Eastern, with the sixth seed, who upset a heavily-favored Green Bay squad in the semi-finals in 1992.

This is not 1992, however. The Panthers had a rough time with league doormat Western Illinois over the weekend and are caught in a late-winter slump, losing five of their last six games.

Maybe the Panthers will surprise some people, as they predicted to do back in November. Maybe the Panthers will knock down the open jumper, play a full 40 minutes, and if not beat anyone, scare an opponent to some degree.

Which brings us back to Green Bay and UIC, popular league-favorites.

Supposedly the Flames would have somewhat of a homecourt advantage, with the tourney being held at the Rosemont Horizon. The Flames have been nearly unbeatable at home this year, going 10-2 at the UIC Pavilion.

But the Horizon isn't the Pavilion, and should they meet in the final, Green Bay has defeated UIC twice.

"We will beat them in the tournament," said Flames forward Sherell Ford after his team's 80-66 loss to Green Bay two weeks ago.

Tough talk, Sherell, but maybe next year.

Panthers to meet Valpo in tourney

By RANDY LISS
Staff writer

After four months of practices and games, and more practices and more games, it has come down to this.

Welcome to March Madness in the Mid-Continent Conference.

The Mid-Con postseason tournament will kick off this Sunday at the Rosemont Horizon near Chicago, with the top eight teams in the league playing for the right to advance to the NCAA tourney.

After winding up the regular-season with a 12-14 overall record and a 7-11 Mid-Con mark, Eastern earned the sixth seed in the tournament and will face No. 3 Valparaiso in the first-round on Sunday. Tipoff is at 6:00 p.m.

The Panthers finished their schedule tied with Northern Illinois and Wisconsin-Milwaukee in sixth place in the conference. Milwaukee is ineligible for the tourney and Eastern won the tie-breaker over the Huskies by the virtue of defeating No. 2 Illinois-Chicago earlier this year.

"We didn't care who we were matched with in the first round," said Panther coach Rick Samuels. "We can beat Valparaiso, but to be successful in the tournament, we know we're going to have to lift our level of play a notch."

With five schools moving to the Midwestern Collegiate Conference next year, this will be the last Mid-Con tournament for Green Bay, Illinois-

Women travel to UIC

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

Eastern's women's basketball team will look to bounce back from Saturday's 68-54 defeat to Wright State when it travels to Chicago to take on the Flames of Illinois-Chicago.

Though hopes of qualifying for the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament were dashed in their weekend defeat to Wright State, head coach John Klein is pleased by the recent turnaround by the Lady Panthers (5-19, 3-13). He is looking toward a strong performance against the Flames (10-14, 8-8).

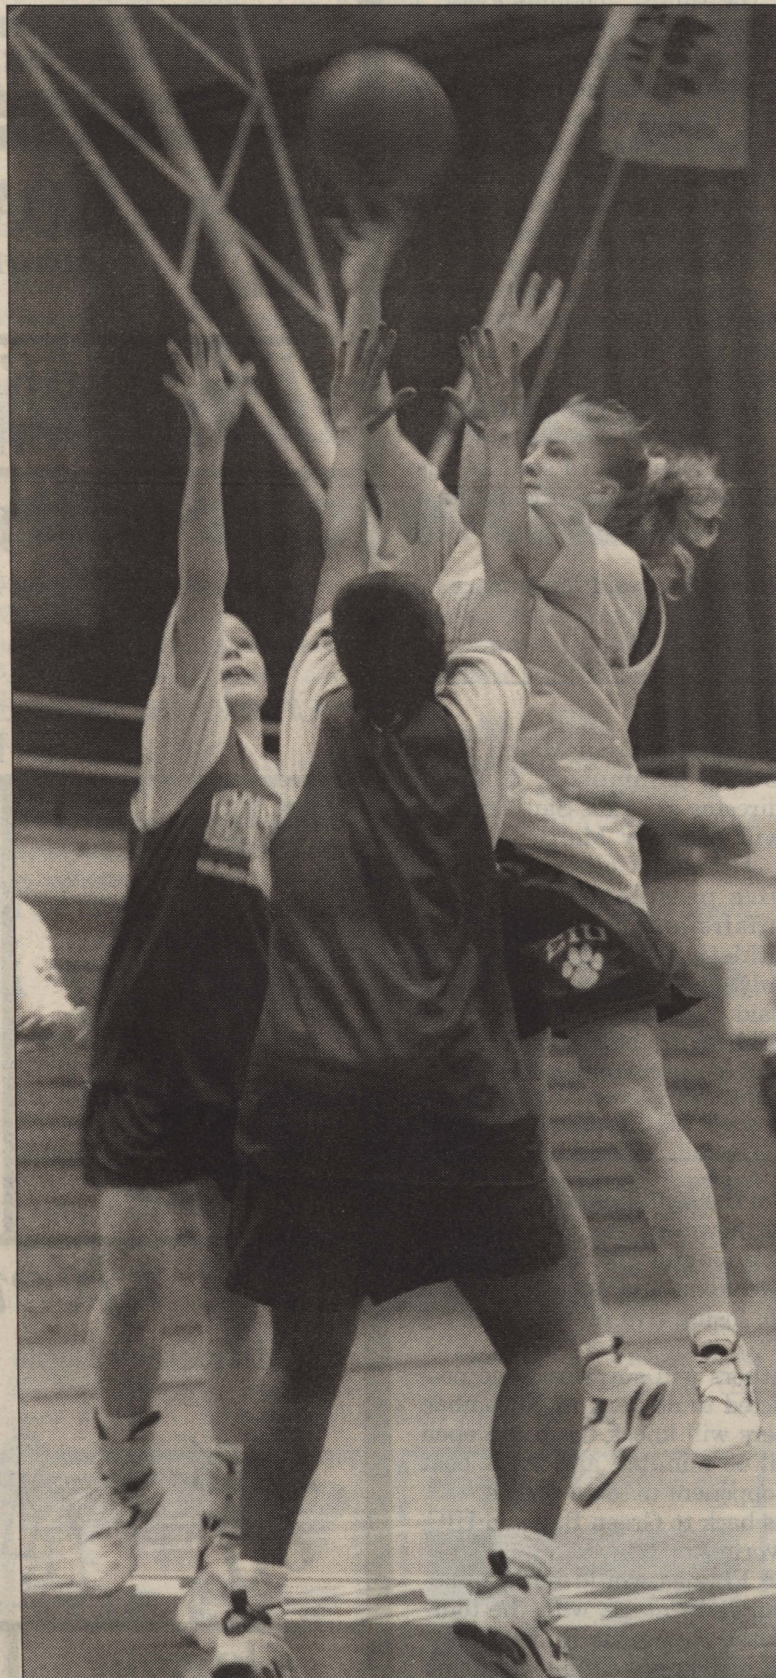

"I want to emphasize that I am proud of the kids," Klein said. "We worked hard to get to that point. We just have to stay focused in finishing the season on a positive note."

"We feel the way we have felt all along - like we're capable of winning ball games," Klein said. "It all comes down to the kids and if they're ready to play or not, no less than 100 percent effort from our players."

Eastern's biggest threats tonight are expected to come from the Flames' Penny Armstrong (21.4 points per game), who led UIC's scoring in 18 of their 24 games, and Heather McKenna (10.5 points per game).

Meanwhile, the Lady Panthers' scoring leader Shannon Baugh (14.9 points per game) will look to get back on track after a nine-point performance against Wright State. The senior, who racked up her second Mid-Con "Player of the Week" award recently, has averaged 22 points over the last four games.

Klein is also taking into consideration where Eastern was heading the last time they faced the Flames.

The Lady Panthers had just two wins under their belts when the Flames handed Eastern a 66-58 defeat at Lantz Gym.

And their recent success helps fuel Klein's optimism for tonight.

"The only thing different now is the mental approach we might take, being a lot more positive than the last time we played them," Klein said. "So I'm hoping we'll be ready to play."

Mid-Continent Conference Tournament

Chicago, Northern, Cleveland State and Wright State.

Other pairings in the quarterfinal round will find No. 1 Wisconsin-Green Bay (23-6, 15-3) taking on No. 8 Western Illinois (7-19, 5-13), No. 2 Illinois-Chicago (19-7, 14-4) against No. 7 Northern (10-16, 7-11), and No. 4 Cleveland State (12-14, 9-9) against No. 5 Wright State (12-17, 9-9).

1st candidate visits campus

By ROBERT MANKER
Associate sports editor

The first of the four finalists to interview for the vacant position of Eastern athletic director is on campus and will be here through Friday afternoon.

W. Dean Billick, a former associate athletic director and sports information director at the University of Pittsburgh, was scheduled to have dinner with Eastern President David Jorns Tuesday night before beginning a full day of interviews this morning.

After breakfast, Billick is scheduled to interview with the athletic director search committee from 8:15 to 9 a.m., with Eastern coaches from 9 to 10:20 and with staff and staff senate from 10:30 to 11:20, all in the 1895 Room of Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union.

Billick will then be given a tour of the Eastern campus from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

After lunch, Billick will meet with the administrative athletics staff from 1 to 1:50 p.m., faculty and faculty senate from 2 to 2:50 p.m., students and student senate from 3 to 3:50 p.m., vice presidents from 4 to 4:45 p.m. and the intercollegiate athletics board from 4:45 to 5:30 p.m., all in the 1895 Room.

After dinner, Billick will attend a reception in his honor attended by members of the Panther Club, the EIU Club and the Charleston community, also in the 1895

Phoenix will fly to league crown

This weekend's Mid-Continent Conference postseason tournament will mark the end of the league as we have known it the past few years. Six teams are leaving, six others are coming in and there will be no automatic bid to the NCAA tournament next year.

On that note, trying to figure out this year's Mid-Con tourney is sort of like adding. So bust out your calculators and check out this rationale.

Defense wins championships. Wisconsin-Green Bay plays great defense. One plus one equals two and Wisconsin-Green-Bay will win the Mid-Con championship.

Why Green-Bay, you say? Because the Phoenix went 23-6 on the season, flew through the conference with a 15-3 mark and bottled up opponent after opponent with a defense that allowed only 55 points a game.

Randy Liss

Granted, the Phoenix are loaded with tall, dorky-looking guys with bad haircuts and names that look like intentional misspellings. Vander Velden, Nord-gaard, Grzesk, Zavada. Huh? But Green Bay has surpassed all expectations for this year already, and in the process has knocked out every challenge tossed in front of it, including defeating league-favorite Illinois-Chicago twice.

The Phoenix win not only with defense, but by running a very slow, deliberate offense which bores opponents to sleep.

It's kind of like the offense run by Hickory High in the
