Police bust 4 bars

By JEREMY R. KIRK
Staff writer

Four local bar owners reportedly were found in violation of the city's liquor code Friday night during compliance checks, police said.

Owners of Rosie's Restaurant and Bar, 615 Monroe Ave.; The Uptowner and Cellar, 623 Monroe Ave.; Friends & Co., 509 Van Buren Ave., and Marty's, 1666 Fourth St., allegedly sold alcohol to a minor.

The bar owners' names will be submitted to the city attorney and face a liquor hearing at a later date, according to a press release from Charleston police. At the hearing, Mayor Dan Cougill, acting as liquor commissioner, will decide what action to take.

Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger declined to comment Sunday regarding the compliance checks. No other details were available.

Cougill said when the bar-entry age was raised from 19 to 21 last April that Charleston police would conduct checks to ensure compliance.

In the past, police have con-

VP ready to put up fight against IBHE

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Student government editor

The Student Government Vice President for Public Affairs plans to "be a real pain" to the Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday.

Glenn Fundator said he will speak "adamantly" against a possible proposal to give the IBHE more power in several areas of state universities at the first IBHE meeting of the semester.

The board will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

"I don't want a situation where anyone dictates what we have to do," he said. "In this situation, if they say it, we would have to do it."

The legislation, which has not officially been introduced yet, would propose giving the IBHE control over decisions regarding tuition and fees, program termination, capital projects and several other areas.

In previous years, the IBHE would recommend action to the BOG, which would then decide what action to take. In the past, the IBHE has asked that Eastern cut its Afro-American Studies and

Panel to focus on women's roles

By KAREN WOLDEN

"Beyond the Veil: Perspectives on Middle Eastern Women" will be the subject of a panel Tuesday celebrating International Women's Day and Women's History and Awareness Month.

The forum, sponsored by the History Club and the Women's Studies Council, is scheduled for 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Kansas Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Panelists will include Eastern faculty members Anne Zahlan, Bonnie Irwin, and Susan Bazargan, all of whom have either studied the culture of the Middle East or have lived there.

"People tend to have this idea that Middle Eastern women are all the same," said Irwin, an assistant professor of English. "We want to get by some of the stereotypes."

Each panelist will offer a short introduction discussing specific Middle Eastern women and issues, Irwin said. Bazargan will talk about an Iranian poet, Irwin will discuss an Egyptian writer and political activist and Zahlan will cover the issue of veiling. After opening comments, the panel will be open for audience questions.

Tuesday's panel kicks off events for Women's History and Awareness Month, themed "Promises To Keep."

In other highlights of the month:

• "No Formula: Paths of Women in Science," a panel discussion covering women's contributions to science, will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Effingham Room of the Union.

• Achievement awards will be given out at the Women's Studies Council Awards Reception at 7 p.m. March 21 in the Tarble Arts Center.

• Also on that date, Bilby Appelly will present "The History of American Women: Famous and Infamous," a one-woman show of historical impressions, at 7 p.m. in Coleman Hall Auditorium.

• Women's rights advocate Anita Hill, the month's keynote speaker, will discuss race and gender issues at 8 p.m. March 22 in the Grand Ballroom of the Union.

• "Dancing at the Lughnasa," a play about five unmarried Irish sisters who dance at the festival of Lughnasa under a pagan spell, will be performed at 8 p.m. March 22-25, 29, 30 and April 1. Matinees will be shown at 2 p.m. on March 26 and April 2.

• Amosong, Champaign-Urbana's premier feminist chorus, will sing at 8 p.m. March 24 in Coleman Hall Auditorium.

• "One Night Only," a staged reading about women's voices, will be performed at 8 p.m. March 27 in the Studio of the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

• "Not the Angel in the House," a poetry reading by English department faculty members and students, will be at 4 p.m. March 28 in the Charleston-Mattoon Room of the Union.

• "What's Love Got To Do With It," the Tina Turner story, will be shown at 7 p.m. March 30 in the Booth Library Lecture Hall.

Athletes to discuss Title IX

By JAMIE RILEY

A group of student athletes will meet with the Faculty Senate Tuesday to share their opinions on various issues within the athletic department.

The Faculty Senate will meet at 2 p.m. in the Board of Governors Room of Booth Library.

Senate Chairman John Allison speculated that the students will probably want to discuss "the elimination of the two men's sports and how those eliminations might affect women's sports in the same areas."

Eastern announced last October that the men's swimming and

Jackson endorses Burris

CHICAGO (AP) - The Rev. Jesse Jackson has endorsed former Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris' independent bid for Chicago mayor.

Burris is challenging the re-election bid of Richard Daley.

At a meeting Saturday of the civil-rights group Operation PUSH, which Jackson helped found, Jackson said Burris would focus on rebuilding the inner-city community.

Daley beat Joseph Gardner in the Democratic primary Tuesday night.

Like Daley, Burris is a longtime Democrat. But Burris chose to run as an independent rather than risk splitting the black vote between himself and Gardner. Both Gardner and Burris are black.

Simpson's lawyers admit mistake

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It took three members of O.J. Simpson's Dream Team to present the apology.

Carl Douglas offered the excuse. Lawyers failed to turn over information, he said, because they were confused, because of an office move, because of the breakneck speed of the trial. He called it "falling through the cracks." Gerald Uelmen submitted the plea for forgiveness. "We appear before the court as penitents," he said. "We screwed up."

Robert Shapiro shouldered the blame.

"If there are sanctions to be imposed," he said, "those sanctions should not go towards Mr. Simpson because of his choice of lawyers, but should go to his lawyers who, in fact, are responsible."

Late Friday, Johnnie Cochran Jr. and Douglas each were fined $950 for withholding from prosecutors videotaped testimony of potential alibi witness Rosa Lopez. If they try to introduce that testimony later, Judge Lance Ito said he would tell jurors the lawyers broke the law and caused a delay in the trial.

It wasn't the first time the high-profile defense team was caught withholding evidence.

In January, Cochran was reprimanded for hiding other witnesses.

The judge told jurors to ignore what Cochran said about them in his opening statement and gave prosecutors a rare opportunity to postscript their opening statement.

The offenses raise an important question for the judge: If the lawyers make a mistake, should the client pay? Prosecutors say yes. After all, it's the client who benefits from lawyer misconduct. Defense lawyers argue if defendants suffer because their lawyers goofed, innocent people will be convicted.

"The first time someone makes a mistake it's easy to give them the benefit of the doubt," said Loyola Law School professor Laurie Levenson. "But this is the second time." "Give me a break," lawyer Harland Braun said. "You can't tell me there wasn't one lawyer who sat there while Carl Douglas told the judge there was no tape that didn't know there was a tape."

But even if lawyers intentionally hid the tape, it was they - not Simpson - who are responsible, Braun said.

"There is no logical relationship between what Cochran and Douglas did and O.J.'s innocence," he said. "It's just sort of nuts. Are prosecutors going to say, 'They broke the law, therefore their client is guilty?'" "It is a specious difference to say, 'Hurt the lawyers, don't hurt the defendant,'" said former Los Angeles County District Attorney Robert Philibosian.

The defense's actions hurt the prosecution's case and forced the judge to decide how much he would "level the playing field." Simpson is accused in the stabbing deaths of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend, Ronald Goldman.

Prosecutor Marcia Clark asked the judge for stiff sanctions.

"They will continue to flout the law unless the court makes them pay," she told Ito. "It's a cost benefit analysis, your honor: If it doesn't hurt badly enough, then they're going to keep doing it." But Friday's sanctions were $50 short of the threshold to report to the state bar association.

Masters in Business Administration programs.

Fundator said the legislation would contradict the elimination of the Board of Governors by taking away the autonomy Eastern would gain through the eliminations.

Gov. Jim Edgar signed a bill last Tuesday sponsored by Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, dissolving the two boards next year and replacing them with individual boards for seven of eight universities in the two systems.

"It goes totally against what the governor just did," he said. "Eliminating the Board of Governors and the Board of Regents was supposed to get rid of the bureaucracy, but if we let the IBHE control us, all we'll have is a bigger board."

"I kind of like the idea of Eastern being autonomous," he said. "I don't think the universities or the students would like the idea, and I'll state exactly that.

"Basically all I can do is be as vocal as I can," Fundator said. "I don't think they'll like me very much."

Also at the meeting, board members plan a review of the 1994-95 Priorities, Quality and Productivity Initiative, which is the IBHE's annual plan that reviews the efficiency of university departments. The board also plans to look at productivity improvements in intercollegiate athletics.

wrestling sports would be cut after the current seasons to bring the university into compliance with Title IX laws, which require state-funded schools to have equal opportunities for female and male athletes.

President David Jorns has asked the Office of Civil Rights in Washington, D.C., to extend the compliance deadline from 1998 to 2000. The OCR has yet to respond to Jorns' request.

About 70 students, including men and women, rallied against the proposed sports cuts in front of Old Main in February.

The student athletes are following Assistant Athletic Director Jerome Rogers, who met with the senate three weeks ago to discuss problems in athletics, including whether to award scholarships to student athletes who have been suspended from sports participation.

In other Faculty Senate business, Jorns told the executive committee of the senate on Thursday that he will support the senate constitution with the new governing board, Allison said, adding that it is unlikely the new board would vary from the president's recommendation.

Jorns also indicated that he will support Article 13, which mandates the Faculty Senate hold a referendum on any issue if a petition containing signatures of 20 percent of faculty members is presented to the senate.

Article 13 was approved by more than 70 percent of voting faculty in a referendum held in early December. Fewer than half of the 502 eligible faculty members cast ballots in the referendum.

ducted checks by sending an underage police informant into a bar to order a drink. If the informant was able to purchase alcohol, the bar owner would be charged with violating city code and face a liquor hearing.

In the most recent compliance check that led to charges, Mike Bickers, owner of Panther's Lounge, 1421 Fourth St., was found guilty last month of allowing underage customers into his establishment.

That charge marked Bickers' ninth, 10th, and 11th liquor code violations. Coughill revoked Bicker's liquor license permanently.

Council to talk about sewer line

By JEREMY R. KIRK
Staff writer

The Charleston City Council Tuesday will discuss several measures related to the proposed expansion of water and sewer lines along the Charleston-Mattoon corridor on Illinois Route 16.

The council will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, 520 Jackson Ave.

The corridor between Mattoon and Charleston is a stretch of land zoned for business development.

The council will discuss advertising for construction bids along the corridor and authorizing the city to acquire certain tracts of land for the project.

Commissioners also will discuss hiring an additional engineer for the project and authorizing the city to obtain an Illinois Environmental Protection Loan for the corridor.

In other business, the council will:

- Vote on the consent agenda, which contains an amendment to the city's liquor code that would prohibit the consumption of alcohol in establishments without a valid liquor license.

- The ordinance would allow alcohol to be consumed at non-licensed establishments, but the drinking cannot be part of the regular course of business.

- A provision of the ordinance requires anyone without a liquor license who wants to have alcohol at a function to make the function invitation-only.

- Violators of the ordinance would face a $100 fine. Eastern's campus would be exempt from the ordinance because it is under state's jurisdiction.

- Discuss a bid approval that would allow the city clerk to advertise for various water system parts for the city's utility department.

- Discuss a resolution authorizing $1,787 in grants for the promotion of tourism in Charleston.

Poetry reading tonight

The Coles County Arts Council will honor St. Patrick's Day and Women's History and Awareness Month at its open poetry reading at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday by featuring the poetry of various female Irish authors.

The reading, "Women in Irish Poetry," will be held at the Dudley House, 895 Seventh St. Admission is free, and the event is open to the public.

Carol Schumde, an Eastern English professor, will be the monthly reading's featured reader.

"(I will) focus on the work of contemporary poet Paula Meehan who writes about a whole assortment of women's experiences," Schumde said. "One (poem) that I especially like is about her father."

Scholarship applications available

By YAYOI TOMIZAWA
Staff writer

The Eastern chapter of the American Association of University Professors is currently accepting nominations for its annual Martin Luther King Jr. Award.

The award, established by the university's chapter of the association in 1969, is intended to honor students who work towards King's memory and perpetuate his ideals, said David Maurer, president of the local organization.

"The AAUP feels that anyone who is nominated should be proud of nomination," said Maurer, a member of the history department. "The nomination itself is the indication of their commitment and their recognition of their support of ideals of Dr. King."

Each year, monetary awards ranging from $200 to $250 are presented to full-time students by President David Jorns at a small ceremony held in the President's Office. The award may be, and has been, split between two or three recipients in previous years.

Students can be nominated for the award by administration, faculty, staff or other students. Nomination forms can be picked up from either Maurer or Kandy Baumgardner, secretary/treasurer of the AAUP.

The deadline to submit award applications is March 22.

Once all applications have been turned in, a three member committee reviews each of the applications.

Man says college debts led him to rob

CHICAGO (AP) - A 22-year-old West Side man arrested for holding up a bank last week says a growing backlog of student loans and college debts led him to commit the heist.

Russell Nash, a 1993 dropout of Indiana State University in Terra Haute, Ind., said he owed $3,000 to the university and another $3,000 in student loans. After he quit his banking job in December and couldn't find another, he said he decided to rob a bank.

"It's dumb, naturally," said Nash, who was released on $10,000 bond Friday. "I worry about the consequences now. The biggest single thing is the hurt and disappointment I caused my family."

Nash is a 1990 graduate of Lane Technical High School. He grew up in a stable home with strong parents and role models, he and his mother said. Other siblings including a brother who is a Stanford graduate, a brother who owns a public relations firm and a sis-

"I figured after I lost my job, there was no other way I could pay off my loans. And I'd never ask my folks for the money."

ter who works in marketing, they said.

"If I knew he had crazy thoughts like this, there would've been some intervention here," said his mother, Juanita Nash, an employee of the Chicago Public Schools system.

In the robbery, Nash said he obtained a .32-caliber handgun, walked into a bank in suburban Oak Park and handed the teller a note demanding money.

Authorities said Nash made off with $4,418 in cash. As Nash left, the teller yelled that he had been robbed. The cry alerted a security guard, the FBI said.

Edgar's tax proposal faces opposition

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Gov. Jim Edgar's proposal to renew the state's controversial taxes on health care providers may be the Democrats' best shot at emerging as more than bit players in the spring legislative session.

Within minutes of the GOP governor's budget address last week, legislative leaders said the tax would face difficulty in winning approval - even from the first Republican-controlled Legislature in a quarter-century.

House Speaker Lee Daniels, R-Elmhurst, declared outright opposition.

For Edgar, that can only mean a big headache. If the taxes are not extended, it would leave a major gap in his $33 billion spending plan for the upcoming fiscal year that begins July 1.

The taxes on hospitals, nursing homes and centers for the developmentally disabled are projected to raise $727 million, including federal matching money, to help fund the $5 billion-plus Medicaid program.

"Our budget hinges on it," Budget Director Joan Walters said.

If Republicans can't agree on a budget plan by the end of May, when the session is scheduled to adjourn, they won't have enough votes to pass one on their own when the overtime clock begins in June.

Under the state Constitution, it takes a three-fifths' vote in both the House and Senate for the budget to pass in overtime, rather than the simple majority requirement.

Republicans command the Senate with a 33-26 majority, meaning they would need at least four Democrats to help them on the budget as of June. In the House, where they lead 64-54, the GOP would need at least seven Democrats.

Nash, who said he had hoped to go back to school in Chicago, said he was headed to catch a bus home when a bystander tried to trip him as he left the bank. Regaining his balance, he turned around and saw the guard pointing a gun at him.

"I put my hands up and surrendered peacefully," he said.

Nash's mother said she was disappointed.

"I don't understand what would make him do something so stupid," she said. "I would've given him as much money as I could. Russell knows this. We'll go penniless if we have to."

Even Democrats inclined to back the tax could withhold their support in May, along with some Republicans, to force overtime. The Democrats could then come aboard on the tax but use their leverage to advance other issues.

House Democratic Leader Michael Madigan of Chicago, while denying his goal is to force an overtime, has said the burden of leadership is on the Republicans to renew the provider taxes.

Rep. Kay Wojcik, an assistant majority leader, says it's a familiar game of cat-and-mouse.

"Let's face it," said the Schaumburg Republican, "for 12 years, we in the minority taught the Dems what to do, and I think you can see today that they are doing exactly what we did." Republican lawmakers, knowing what some Democrats may like to accomplish, are determined not to see June in Springfield.

Diversity efforts must continue throughout year

Any substantive discussion of diversity and black-white relations probably ended a week ago.

A long-held concern about Black History Month at Eastern is that students will only talk about black-white relations during those 28 days. After that, the discussions will disappear - only to resurface next February.

Editorial

For the sake of our campus and society, we should not allow this to happen.

Issues of race don't just affect people of color. The effects are pervasive throughout our society. Some experts have called race the single-most important issue facing our country.

There needs to be constant substantive discussion about race, and the campus community needs to seriously rethink black-white relations at the university.

The issues we face deal more with the legacy of historical racism as opposed to the '60s issues of separate bathrooms and legalized hate. The separations in student organizations, religious faiths and everyday society are the result of years of institutional segregation.

We need to crush contemporary ideas about African Americans in athletics and interracial relationships, forged from age-old ideas about the races. Most importantly, the campus needs to come to grips with its ideas about diversity. So many people claim to support diversity, but the makeup of most of our campuswide organizations shows that hardly anyone has attempted an initiative to create a diverse university.

The issues we as a generation face are more complex than the basic right and wrongs faced in the 1960s. More than knocking down racist legislation and legal precedent, "Generation X" must come together as a community and eliminate the legacy of these laws: natural segregation and misconceptions of diversity.

The way we start knocking down these walls is through talking. Many readers spoke up this month about their feelings of race. This is only a start. The discussion needs to continue. And we can't try to outshout one another. We need to sit down, listen and learn.

If we don't, we'll see the same problems year after year.

Act of plagiarism was unfortunate oversight

While some learning experiences are positive, many times they are painful and can cause personal and professional hardship.

Such was the case of my suspension as editorial page editor and subsequent loss of my upcoming position as news editor for The Daily Eastern News.

I did not intentionally plagiarize Janet Cawley's article in the Feb. 14 edition of the Chicago Tribune. I know what plagiarism is. What happened in this case was I failed to return to the column the night before it ran and include attribution to the Tribune article.

I do regret this oversight and have learned from it. I also want it to be clear that I do not want this situation to reflect on the credibility of The Daily Eastern News.

What I do not agree with, however, is the loss of my impending title as news editor because of this oversight. I was to take over as news editor following an overall staff change at the end of March.

I do not question editor in chief Chris Seper's decision to suspend me from editorial page editor because the credibility of the paper was damaged. I would have done the same thing if I was in his position.

However, it was Heidi Keibler's (who will serve as the next editor in chief) decision to take the position of news editor away from me that I feel is unjust. The only thing that was taken into consideration was this incident. My three years of experience at The News was not taken into account by Keibler. I realize the seriousness of plagiarism (intentional or not) on the pages of a newspaper. But that should not have been the only thing considered in her decision.

Adam McHugh

"I hold the same morals and ethics that every staff member on The News holds."

I was the most qualified individual for the position of news editor. As a campus organization which stresses itself as a learning environment, I should have at least been given a good faith gesture and been appointed news editor.

I am not being given the chance to prove to everyone I am capable of being a voice on The News' executive staff and editorial board.

I will be the first to admit the timeliness of this unintentional plagiarism put Keibler between a rock and a hard place. However, this issue should have been discussed at length as I served my suspension.

As I said before, I understood Seper's decision to suspend me for the rest of the term, because judgments like that must be made swift to protect the credibility of the newspaper.

I wish nothing but the best to the incoming staff at The News. And I want the readers to know the circumstances surrounding this situation.

I hold the same morals and ethics that every staff member on The News holds. And I do not want that to be tarnished in any way.

Right now my future at The News is uncertain. I will likely return, however, as a writer. A writer who has learned from this experience and does not want it to follow him the rest of his career in journalism.

I do not want Eastern's students, faculty and members of The News to have the wrong impression of me.

I have worked very hard to learn the skills it takes to become a professional journalist.

And I want that learning process to continue.

- Adam McHugh is a senior journalism major and a guest columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

America's attitude has switched from 'I can' to 'I can't'

Dear editor:

America has gone soft. The days when saying "I am an American" made one stand a little taller is past. America used to be synonymous with doing the impossible.

Two organizations tried building the Panama Canal before the U.S. and said it was impossible. We did it.

Flying across the Atlantic Ocean solo was deemed impossible. Charles Lindbergh, an American, did it anyway.

The very name "American" is perfect in describing our great nation. Break it up into its parts. A-MER-I-CAN. "A" - beginning the alphabet, it's a place of importance. "A" also denotes unity. "MER" - French for sea. Like the ocean, we are a nation of constant change.

"I CAN" requires no explanation. Admitting defeat is easy. Accepting a challenge, no matter how great, requires an "I can" attitude.

The "I can" attitude has left us. In the past we have conquered disease, social injustice - namely the worst form, slavery - and tamed the atom without destroying ourselves in the process. In 219 years we Americans have grown from a fledgling upstart country to the greatest power in world history.

What face use now are not problems, but challenges demanding an answer. President John F. Kennedy, in describing our moon shot, said that we had reached a wall we could not climb.

Despite this, we threw our hat over that wall, forcing us to climb it - we said, "I can" and did.

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt as part of his inaugural speech said, "All we have to fear is fear itself."

We have become afraid of challenges and responsibilities to our fellow countrymen and the

Now is our time to go from "I can't" to "I can."

We have the talent and technology to beat all our challenges - disease, poverty, environmental damage, social inequity - but we're missing the most important part; the "I can" that lets us utilize it.

In closing, remember something about America.

Compared to ideal democracy, America is mediocre at best. Compared to the rest of the world, we are the greatest success story ever, and didn't get here by saying "I can't."

Why is fee increase back on agenda but not smoking issue?

Dear editor:

I will make this short and sweet. Why do students at Eastern even bother to vote?

In the Tuesday issue of The Daily Eastern News, the results of the election on a "smoke-free" campus and a $4.50 increase in student fees were printed.

Smokers lost by 59 votes, the student fee increase was a landslide.

Why do they get to call a "do over" for the student fee increase and not for the "smoke-free campus?"

Do Eastern students really have a say in politics here at Eastern, or is this a scaled down version of the U.S. government?

Any insight would be greatly appreciated.

Overgrazed public lands can lead to several problems

Dear editor:

I have 18 dogs and 27 cats (strays, now spayed or neutered).

I care about animals on our public lands, too.

Nobody can help every good cause but anyone can be part of "Save Our Overgrazed Public Lands - Don't Buy Beef" movement.

Cattle lobby activities, resulting in the defeat of candidates supporting good causes, may have been paid for by beef you ate.

Beef, eaten by those who otherwise care, may lead to further slaughter of wild horses (competing with cattle forage) and the extinction of species on our overgrazed public lands - land that is also being menaced by special interest backed groups trying to wrest control from our government and prevent range land reform.

Bank may have violated rules

LONDON (AP) — Barings may have violated Britain's banking rules when it transferred $1.3 billion to back a Singapore trader's financial gambles in the weeks before the bank's crash, two British newspapers reported Sunday.

There is also growing evidence that Barings knew about trader Nick Leeson's risky dealings, ignored warnings of a possible disaster and may have misled the Bank of England when it asked for help in putting together a rescue package. The Observer newspaper reported American regulators threatened to close Barings' New York brokerage office last year because of serious failures in management.

Barings insiders were quoted by the paper as saying that was another example of the bank's lax supervision of its overseas operations, which allowed Leeson to bust Britain's oldest investment bank.

A report released Saturday by accountants Price Waterhouse in Singapore said Barings transferred $890 million from its London head office in January and February in mandatory up front money to back Leeson's future trading.

The Sunday Telegraph said bankers in London insist that $1.3 billion was transferred to Singapore. It quoted top financial sources as saying the bank sent the money from London to Singapore and opened a special account in the Cayman Islands, a Caribbean tax haven, to cover Leeson's dealings in the Osaka stock market in Japan.

The huge transfers to Singapore represented more than twice the bank's capital, estimated at around $560 million.

The 1987 Banking Act prohibits banks from putting more than 25 percent of their money into any single "basket" without authorization from the Bank of England's supervisory committee.

It appears unlikely that Barings sought such permission because Bank of England Governor Eddie George said at the time of Barings' collapse that bank executives told him they had not known they had a problem until Feb. 23.

Investigators in Singapore said Saturday that Barings was warned seven months ago that Leeson held too much power with too little supervision. They also made public a letter showing Barings was told of the potential problem as far back as 1992.

Mexican politics: a story of two families

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The political drama unfolding in Mexico is the story of two powerful families long connected by friendship, marriage and partisan interests.

Former President Carlos Salinas and his brother Raul, and former federal prosecutor Mario Ruiz Massieu — now being held in New Jersey by U.S. officials — play key roles in a murder mystery swirling around Ruiz Massieu's assassinated brother, allegedly killed on Raul Salinas' orders.

In the latest twist, Mexican news media reported Sunday that the government on Monday will request Ruiz Massieu's extradition back to Mexico to be tried on charges of altering depositions to protect Raul Salinas.

"This is turning into a novel about power — full of suspense with improbable turns," said Homero Aridjis, a writer and political activist. "If this story was written by a novelist, some would doubt its believability."

Jose Francisco Ruiz

"This is turning into a novel about power — full of suspense with improbable turns."

writer and political activist

Massieu, the No. 2 man in the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, was shot to death in September as he left a Mexico City restaurant.

That killing followed the March 1994 assassination of Luis Donaldo Colosio, the PRI's original candidate for last year's presidential election — another subplot in the drama that has more closely touched Carlos Salinas.

The Mexico City daily La Jornada and other media quoted unnamed sources in the attorney general's office saying they would file charges against Mario Ruiz Massieu for making "deliberate omissions" in the probe into his brother's death. At the time Ruiz Massieu was deputy attorney general.

It will then ask the United States to have him extradited to Mexico for prosecution, La Jornada said. Late Saturday, Attorney General Antonio Lozano Gracia said only that Ruiz Massieu "could be extradited."

Ruiz Massieu was arrested Friday at Newark International Airport after he allegedly failed to declare $28,000 in cash as he was preparing to board a flight to Madrid. He is to be arraigned Monday in a federal court.

La Jornada said that the FBI, at Mexico's request, followed Ruiz Massieu after he went to Houston on Thursday for what was said to be a vacation. Earlier that day, he had been grilled by investigators in Mexico City.

Ruiz Massieu had quit his brother's case and the ruling party last year, alleging that the party had blocked his probe.

Over the weekend, former President Carlos Salinas conducted an on-again, off-again fast to oppose claims he covered up the killing of Colosio, his handpicked successor. President Ernesto Zedillo replaced Colosio as candidate.

Colosio was murdered at a campaign rally in Tijuana with the complicity of his own security agents, investigators said.

Salinas ended the fast Saturday after the attorney general's office issued a statement saying that he did not impede the Colosio investigation.

The roots of the unfolding drama actually stretch back more than a quarter of a century to when the Salinas brothers befriended the Ruiz Massieu brothers during their university years.

Internet meets the stars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — It was bound to happen: Cyberspace meets outer space.

For the first time, NASA is providing public computer access to virtually all aspects of a space shuttle flight via the Internet, including occasional exchanges with Endeavour's seven astronauts and continuous updates on their astronomical observations.

Computer users can even "Come Aboard," and receive pictures and audio tapes of the crew.

It's causing a cyberspace stampede.

More than 350,000 requests for mission information have poured in since Endeavour blasted off Thursday.

A sampling of computer messages from people logging on around the world: "One small step for the 'Net,' 'Absolutely amazing, beam me up!' " "This was great, I didn't even get airsick." "God-speed Endeavour! I always wanted to say that."

Clinton begins preparing for re-election

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — It was Valentine's Day and Hillary Rodham Clinton was in Iowa for a private political meeting with liberals and labor leaders. Suffice to say it was no lovefest.

"Our folks were frank and she was equally frank, if you will," was how Iowa Democratic Chairman Mike Peterson recalled the session.

"Safe to say she got an earful," said state AFL-CIO President James Wengert. "It was a very frank discussion." And a beginning, of sorts, of President Clinton's re-election effort.

Just Friday, the president insisted it was too soon to worry about 1996.

Yet as the Republican campaign begins to accelerate with formal candidate announcements, the Clinton White House is gearing up as well. For now, discouraging a Democratic challenge is a higher priority than worrying about constant salvos from GOP hopefuls.

Which is what brought Mrs. Clinton to Iowa.

In December, and then again in January, Jesse Jackson visited the state, and made no secret of the fact that he may challenge Clinton. Late last year there were rumors that Sen. Bob Kerrey of neighboring Nebraska was taking soundings, though Kerrey insists he has no plans to run. Former Pennsylvania Gov. Bob Casey has put out feelers, too, including calls by associates to several New Hampshire Democratic activists.

Despite his constant disavowals, House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri looks to many Democrats like he's positioning himself to run if Clinton appears weak toward the end of the year.

Gephardt won the 1988 Iowa presidential caucuses and still has deep support here.

Article: Decatur is yuppie hell

DECATUR (AP) - Compared with the woes two major strikes and a lockout have caused, the latest dig at Decatur amounts to little more than a flea bite, but flea bites can sting - at least a little.

The bite comes from a new magazine for the upwardly mobile, which says Decatur is one of the four worst places for yuppies to live.

The magazine, "Your Future," hits the newsstands Monday, and this is what it tells its intended readership of 21- to 34-year-olds about the city: "Decatur, Ill. A classic rust belter with lots of labor strife and lousy prospects for job growth, it's three hours by car from the nearest happening city: Chicago."

Sheryl Nance-Nash, one of the article's authors, said the magazine did not visit Decatur. Instead, she said, the magazine looked at job growth potential, unemployment, recreational opportunities and other assorted factors in assigning ratings.

In praising the four top-ranked cities, the magazine laid heavy emphasis on such factors as coffee bars, micro-breweries and music clubs. And to top off the insult to Decatur, one of the four top-ranked cities isn't even in the United States - it's Hong Kong.

"We looked at the projected job growth through 1997, and that was horrible."

— Sheryl Nance-Nash
Co-author

The other cities in the top four are: Fort Collins, Colo.; Austin, Texas; and Tampa, Fla. Decatur finished at the bottom of the rankings because of a 2.9 percent job growth rate through 1997, Nance-Nash said.

"We looked at the projected job growth through 1997, and that was horrible," she said - at least, compared to Austin's rate of 15.9 percent.

But the rating should be taken with a grain of salt, Nance-Nash added.

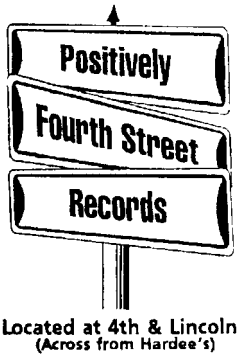

"This is a starting point," she said. "Just don't go and move to Austin or Fort Collins. Or if you were thinking about moving to Decatur, don't change your mind. Just follow up with your own research." One person who did move to Decatur was accountant Tim Selow, 32, a former Detroit resident.

"Decatur's been good to me," said Selow. "My attitude is if you can make it in Decatur, you can make it anywhere." "The only thing I miss in Decatur is being able to get on a plane and doing a non-stop someplace. Sometimes, the lay-over is too much." And, if Decatur residents are bothered by the slurs on their city, they can take some cold comfort in "Your Future's" comments on some of the other lowest-ranking cities - McAllen, Texas; Shreveport, La.; and even palatial Palm Springs, Calif.

Democrats take dead aim at Gingrich

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hardly a day goes by in the first Republican-run House in 40 years when Democrats haven't publicly questioned the ethics of Speaker Newt Gingrich.

Allies of Gingrich, who once rubbed Democratic nerves raw with similar tactics, are voicing outrage over the high-decibel attacks that have been accompanied by a flurry of formal complaints filed with the House ethics committee.

Take mid-January, for example.

The work of a Democratic communications group to coordinate the party's message had hit a lull.

And then, in rapid succession, there was a flurry of events: An anti-Gingrich speech was stopped cold on the House floor; Rupert Murdoch, whose company gave Gingrich his book deal, came to town.

And a committee chairman linked criticism of Gingrich to support for President Clinton's Mexican rescue plan.

The communications group was ready, coordinating a blizzard of speeches, news conferences and network appearances to trash the speaker's book deal with a publishing house that is part of Murdoch's empire and to question the financing arrangements for his college course and political organization.

"It's getting very close to political rape. It's a political assassination," said second-ranking Rep. Tom DeLay of Texas, who is a part of the House Republican leadership, referring to the Democrats' orchestrated attacks.

GOP plans health proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans, still boasting about scuttling President Clinton's convoluted health reforms last year, now face a more formidable task: trying to cobble together their own insurance remedies without doing more harm than good.

"Right now, health care is not very bright on anybody's radar screen," said Sen. William Bennett, R-Utah, the new head of a GOP Senate task force on health. But, he said, "this issue will be back center stage. We're going to have to deal with it."

Several GOP lawmakers have introduced bills to help small businesses pool together and buy insurance on better terms, and to help individuals with medical problems get coverage.

Although health reform was conspicuously absent from the GOP's "Contract With America," both Speaker Newt Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole have called for a hard look at the $162 billion Medicare program.

Dole has said the Republicans may seek $146 billion in savings from Medicare over five years and half that much from Medicaid.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the Finance Committee chairman, spoke of saving up to $400 billion over seven years.

Democrats, on the defensive last year over Clinton's plan to mandate health insurance for all, are now raising alarms about GOP plans to tap Medicare and Medicaid to pay for tax cuts and deficit reduction.

A year ago, the White House had its own designs on Medicare. It was seeking big savings to help cover the uninsured and, eventually, bring down the deficit.

"I bit off more than I could chew," Clinton acknowledged Friday.

"I think I made a mistake, but I think (the Republicans) did, too" in killing any reforms, the president said. Now, both parties should "figure out a way to help Americans get more affordable health care and to solve this problem. And if we do it in the right way, we will continue to substantially lower the cost of Medicare and Medicaid."

The Republicans are framing the debate now and talking about moving Medicare, one of the last bastions of fee-for-service medicine, more rapidly into the managed care arena.

Most working Americans have become accustomed to paying more if they want unrestricted choice of doctors — or less if they join a health maintenance organization or accept other restrictions.

Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Calif., the chairman of the Ways and Means health subcommittee, calls Medicare a dinosaur that must change or go bankrupt after the turn of the century.

Thomas has offered a bare-bones insurance reform bill that would require insurers to accept every small employer in their market and limit exclusions for pre-existing conditions to six to 12 months.

leagues for one-minute House floor speeches. And with each new revelation about Gingrich, the second-ranking House Democrat, Rep. Dave Bonior of Michigan, will hold a news conference typically flanked by a core group of Gingrich critics, who seem to rotate news conference duties.

"Virtually all of the information heads to Dave Bonior. He has become a magnet for information involving the speaker," Durbin said.

Bonior, who probably has held more news conferences in the last two months than in the last two years, also conducts strategy meetings with a half-dozen or so rabidly anti-Gingrich Democrats. Rather than focusing on the message, this particular group discusses the nitty-gritty of ethics complaints.

Rep. Harry Johnston, D-Fla., who participated in three such meetings, said others attending have been Democratic Reps. Lloyd Doggett of Texas, DeLauro and Patricia Schroeder of Colorado.

At one meeting, the group discussed an ethics complaint filed by congressional watchdog Ralph Nader, accusing Gingrich of allowing a political consultant to do official work out of the speaker's office. They focused on the fact that Nader "did not get much notoriety," Johnston said.

In late February they discussed the complaint by Schroeder accusing Gingrich of improperly receiving free cable television time for his college course. Johnston said he wanted to co-sign the complaint, and the group planned a news conference.

For his part, Gingrich has said he considers the attacks merely partisan politics by Democrats who have lost control of Congress and want to distract him and other GOP lawmakers from their legislative program.

Delay said it is now "my personal project to defend the speaker. I'll bypass the media and go straight to the people. I will hold rallies in their (critics of Gingrich) districts.

If I can raise the money, I'm going to put commercials on the air." The (Republican) revolution will survive even if Newt goes down," he said.

But Democrats are not inclined to back away, remembering that as a part of the minority in the late 1980s, Gingrich had hammered away incessantly at the ethics of then-Speaker Jim Wright, a Democrat who resigned amid questions surrounding the sales a book he wrote.

"You wait for an opportune event that you can build on," said Rep. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., head of the communications group. Maybe it will be an anti-Gingrich newspaper article, maybe an upcoming meeting of the ethics committee.

The strategy goes even further.

Red hot Belfour posts 3-0 shutout for Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) - Another game against Anaheim, another shutout for Ed Belfour.

"Eddie's unbelievable, on top of his game," teammate Joe Murphy said Sunday after the Chicago Blackhawks beat the Mighty Ducks 3-0 for Belfour's fourth shutout in seven career starts against Anaheim. "No question, he's the best in the game."

Belfour has blanked the Ducks in both starts against them this year and is 6-1 with a 1.43 goals-against average against them since they joined the NHL two years ago.

"It's definitely something you keep in the back of your mind going into the game," said Belfour, who leads the league with four shutouts and is second with 12 victories. "You feel comfortable when you know you're going to have a good game against them most of the time."

His 27th career shutout was one of his easiest. Anaheim managed only 16 shots, including just three in the third period, and had a precious few legitimate scoring opportunities.

At 4:09 of the first period, Gary Suter set up Roenick in front.

Roenick's shot hit the post but Anaheim defenseman Robert Dirk, who had been trailing on the play, inadvertently pushed the puck over the goal line.

"I'll take them any way they come," Roenick said. "That team's awful to play against. Just awful. Very boring. They play that trap system and do a lot of holding, clutching and hooking.

Baseball Panthers win pair

You could say it was worth the wait for Eastern's baseball squad.

After twice having games canceled with Indiana State because of inclement weather, the Panthers are unbeaten after topping Bradley University and Murray State University this past weekend in Murray, Ky.

On Saturday, Eastern beat Bradley in 11 innings by a 5-4 score, with senior infielder Melesio Salazar scoring three of those runs. Senior Willy Hilton pitched five scoreless innings to pick up the victory.

Sunday, the Panthers got out to a quick lead by scoring five runs in the first inning en route to a 6-0 win over Murray State.

Chris Hall and James Healey combined for a three-hitter, with Hall picking up the win. Rob Nicholes led the offensive attack with a home run and two runs batted in for the Panthers.

Head coach Jim Schmitz was unavailable for comment.

Softball team splits weekend

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

A tough question was the response Lady Panthers coach Beth Perine had when asked about her softball team's 2-2 start to its season at this weekend's Southern Illinois University Tournament.

Eastern improved to 2-1 Sunday morning after a 2-1 victory over Indiana University, last season's Big Ten Champions and NCAA qualifiers. But the Lady Panthers squandered an early 4-0 lead to the University of Missouri later in the day.

The 8-7 loss to Missouri, which reached the Final Eight in the NCAA Tournament this past spring, was a game which Perine felt her team should have won, which would have given the Panthers the tournament title.

"I'm pleased with the way we played in the tournament," Perine said. "But I'm not satisfied. We had a chance to win the game against Missouri and we let it go. But I'm excited how we progressed as a team."

In the Missouri game, Eastern, with the game tied 7-7, had the bases loaded with one out in the top of the seventh. But the Lady Panthers were unable to push the winning run home.

In the Indiana game, sophomore Jen Cherveney, who went 9-for-15 on the weekend, was 2-for-4, driving in both of Eastern's runs. Senior Coli Turley, who suffered the loss in a 6-5 defeat to Southern on Saturday, hurled the complete game for the Lady Panthers.

"I think the win against Indiana was a big win for our program," Perine said. "We played at our level of softball, the level we know we are capable of playing at."

The games on Sunday came without the services of Eastern's most dependable player, Nicole Chapman. In Saturday's loss to Southern, she was struck in the face with a pitch in the first inning. She suffered multiple fractures to her nose. She drove in a pair of runs in Eastern's 3-2 victory over Western on Saturday.

"All she will need some is some protective gear," she said. "We're just waiting for the prognosis. But what was encouraging was that after she left the game, we kept plugging away. Whether we were down or not, we kept scoring runs."

"But I know we can do better. Once we can put teams away, it will be there will be limit to what we can do. We need to take an attitude of arrogance onto the field. We are that good. We saw it in ourselves today. It was peeking through. But I want it to shine through."

the 400-meter run," said Akers.

Tim Thompson and Cory Utterbach showed signs of improvement in the high jump even though neither of them placed.

"Thompson cleared 6-feet-10-inches. We moved the bar to 7'1" 3/4 since he already cleared 7'1". He just barely missed his attempts," said Akers.

Utterbach jumped pretty well but barely missed 6'8" 1/4, according to Akers.

The 1,600-meter relay team consisting of Wilson, McAfee, Ralph Gardner and Neal Garrison showed off its brilliance once again with a time of 3:15.26 minutes. It was the fourth fastest time in Eastern history and earned the squad fourth place.

"I was pleased with the performances turned out this weekend. It was tough competition, though," said Akers.

At the Indiana Last Chance meet, Irma Perez took second in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 18:04.65 minutes.

Tiffany Jansen continued her brilliance in the high jump with a leap of 5'4", which was her second best of the year. That jump landed her into third place.

Jason Waldscmidt took second in the 35-pound weight throw with a toss of a 47'7".

Head coach John McNerney was unavailable for comment.

dence in the world," he said. "We're playing to go to the NCAA Tournament. We're not just hoping to win."

"Anything short of that, and our team will be disappointed."

The Valpo contest stayed close throughout. The Lady Crusaders never led Eastern by more than five points, and Eastern reciprocated by never going ahead by more than seven.

Freshman center Allison Lee, one of four Lady Panthers who scored in double figures, finished with a team-high 16 points, including a perfect six-for-six from the free throw line.

But it was far from a one-woman show for Eastern. Sarah Probst scored 15 points on six of 10 shooting and Garbova made three of seven shots from three-point range and totaled 13 points. Green scored 11 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Nicky Polka dished out a game-high 10 assists.

According to Klein, Eastern manhandled Valpo with its strong inside game.

"The key to the game was the good inside play by our post players," he said. "Allison and Sarah did a great job, and Jaime (Eades) and Missy (Beck) did really well coming off of the bench."

Valpo's biggest leads in the contest were early in the first half. In fact, the Lady Crusaders lost the lead for good with a minute left in the first half when a Beck layup made the score 29-28 in Eastern's favor.

After that point, Valpo managed to tie the game at 30, at 38, at 57 and at 64, but the Lady Panthers wouldn't allow them to take the lead.

remaining.

Buffalo then scored seven straight to bring the lead back to nine points.

But after an Eastern timeout, the Panthers burst into the lead with a 14-2 run that tilted the score in favor of Eastern at 61-58.

The Bulls then shut the door on Eastern's season, allowing just two Slaughter free throws and a Jordan layup the rest of the way.

Both teams shot poorly from the field with Buffalo at 36.8 percent and Eastern at 38.7 percent.

Sophomore guard Johnny Moore and freshman forward Eric Frankford played limited minutes with neither of them scoring.

Western coach suspended

NAPERVILLE (AP) - Western Illinois University basketball coach Regina Miller has been suspended for two games because of an unspecified ethics violation, the Mid-Continent Conference announced.

Miller will sit out a game in the second round of the Mid-Con's women's basketball tournament and will sit out the championship game if the top-seeded team advanced or the first game of next season if it didn't.

Miller violated the conference's code of ethics for an incident March 3 at the team's final regular-season game at Troy State University. The incident involved Miller and a basketball official, but spokesman Tom Lessig refused to elaborate.

Western Illinois assistant coach Julia McGhee will coach the team during Miller's absence, spokesman Mike McFarland said.

Surprise! Lady Panthers advance

Mid-Continent Conference Women's Basketball Tournament

Move on to face top-seed Western in semifinals

By TIM BROZENEK
 Staff writer

Two consecutive three-pointers in the last minute of the game by Kenya Green and Barbara Garbova broke a 67-67 tie in Valparaiso, Ind., as Eastern's women scored a first-round basketball victory over the Lady Crusaders in the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament Saturday.

The 78-73 win, Eastern's third in a row over Valpo, sets up tonight's clash with regular season champ Western Illinois at 7 p.m. in Macomb. Western received a first-round bye, but is a team without a coach for the next two games.

Western head coach Regina Miller has been suspended for the next two games, should the Westerwinds advance that far, for allegedly pushing a referee last week in a game at Troy State.

The winner of the Mid-Con Tourney will receive an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament, which starts next week. Eastern coach John Klein said the Lady Panthers plan on being there.

"The kids have all the confidence," Klein said. See LADY PANTHERS Page 11

Late collapse to Buffalo ousts Eastern from tournament

By PAUL DEMPSEY

Being on the road for almost a week finally did the Panthers in.

Eastern's men's basketball team bowed out of the Mid-Continent Conference tournament on Friday night with a 70-65 loss at the University of Buffalo.

The Panthers, who finished the season at 16-13, ended their three-game road trip where it had started almost a week ago — in Buffalo, N.Y.

The result was the same as Eastern had the lead late in the game but scored just two points in the final four minutes and 18 seconds.

Head coach Rick Samuels said that although his team started off the game slowly, it put forth a good second half that almost produced a victory.

"I just told our kids in the second half, I thought we really tried to play hard," Samuels

Panther guard Derrick Landrus scans the defense during an Eastern win earlier this season. Despite 14 points and a career-high 10 rebounds from Landrus, the Panthers still fell to third-seeded Buffalo 70-65 in the first round of the Mid-Con Postseason Tournament on Friday, marking the third straight season Eastern has bowed out in the opening round.

said in the postgame interview on WEIU radio.

"We had some shots roll out down that stretch when we had the five-point lead," he said. "We had a couple missed free throws that would have held them off a little bit longer and would have given us some time to maybe buy a basket or two or a stop at the defensive end."

Samuels said a couple questionable calls could also be attributed to the loss.

"Down the line we didn't get any breaks either," Samuels said. "We get a couple of turnovers — a charging call that I think is very questionable. It was just a hard night to play."

Fittingly, Eastern's two seniors, Louis Jordan and Derrick Landrus, led the Panthers in scoring with 14 points each. Landrus also had a game-high 10 rebounds.

Michael Slaughter's 13 points and eight rebounds, and Michael Odumuyiwa's career-high 10 points helped keep Eastern close.

The Panthers' game plan was to get the ball inside early and often.

Buffalo center Kelvin Robinson broke his foot in Buffalo's previous game so the Bulls did not have a big defensive presence in the middle.

"We got it to the post and we needed to get it inside and shoot," Samuels said. "We told our kids to get it inside and if there's no shot available, then we can come back out and look to create something on the perimeter, but let's at least start the offense by seeing if we can get it inside."

The Bulls started quickly as they built a 39-29 halftime lead behind steady scoring from Myron Banks (10 points in the game), Rasaun Young (21 points) and Mike Martinho (13 points), who combined for 22 of Buffalo's 39 first-half points.

But then it was the Panthers' turn as they opened the second half on an 18-10 run that brought Eastern to within two points at 49-47 with 11 minutes

For Wilson, green means go

Freshman sprinter shatters 19-year-old Eastern record

By CHET PIOTROWSKI
 Staff writer

When a coach gives an athlete 'the green light,' one of two things happens. Either the athlete collapses like a house built on the San Andreas Fault, or he responds in the face of pressure.

When it comes to freshman George Wilson, he responded to the latter.

Head men's track coach Tom Akers gave Wilson the opportunity to break Eastern's 19-year-old record in the 400-meter run, a record once thought to be unbreakable since Eddie Harch set it 19 years ago.

But Wilson ran the 400-meter in 48.34 seconds, breaking the old record by more than a second.

"I thought I could do it," Wilson said. "There always is an element of doubt. I thought ran my best. I could have ran faster if I was in the other (faster) heat."

"He knew he had the chance to break the record," said Akers. "Basically, it was the main reason we went up there. It was a fast track. I wanted to give George a shot at the record. He was feeling under the weather, but he won his heat."

"This is going to motivate me a lot," Wilson added. "It is going to make me work harder in the 200 (meter run). Since I got the record in the 400, I can run faster in the 200."

He finished seventh with a personal best.

Another fine performance turned out at the Iowa State Invitational was by Kert McAfee.

"I wanted to give Kert the shot to pop a good one since he ran in the 800-meter run in the conference championships. He is ready to get off to a great outdoor season in
