Malfunctions not alarming hall residents

by Amy Zurawski

A malfunction in Carman Hall's alarm system sent weary residents out of the building for false alarms nine times last weekend and early this week.

Housing Director Lou Hencken said the nature of the alarms leads him to believe that mechanical errors are the root of the problem, not students.

"The fire alarms were all going off within 3 minutes of the hour," he said Thursday. "We believe that the clocks in the building are sending a type of signal to the smoke alarm systems, causing them to go off."

Until the problem can be fixed, Carman's alarm system has been turned off to prevent any more false alarms, but Hencken added both the pull alarm system and the heat detectors in the building are still operating properly, so protection is still adequate.

"We didn't want to cry wolf too often," he said, so the Housing Office chose to turn the smoke detectors off to prevent people from disregarding the alarms and staying in the building in the event of a fire.

He said after each false alarm sounded, fewer and fewer students came out of the building. "I don't agree with that, but I can't say I blame them."

Mark Shaklee, assistant director of student housing, said the students who live in Carman are still safe without the smoke alarm system being in operation.

The problem, Hencken said, is believed to be caused by the university's clocks.

The Simplex units, all on the same circuit, reset themselves at three minutes before the hour.

The clocks "send a pulse out," he said, and he thinks the clocks and the alarms "are talking to each other," causing the alarms to go off.

"The company that makes the clocks and alarms says that this is impossible, but they are sending an electrician from their headquarters in Indiana to look into the problem," Hencken added.

He said he was not sure when the smoke alarm system would be back in operation but he added that all possible problem areas would be thoroughly checked before the system would be turned on again to prevent any further false alarms.

Vandalism, harassment will not stop Marching Blue

by Lisa Green

Marching Blue members have been practicing since August 22, and six hours a day for the last two weeks, to prepare for two weekend performances.

However, Tuesday night the band's observation platform was the victim of vandalism and now the band has no way of knowing how their show is going to look.

Senior Scott Hellen, head drum major, said the 10-foot platform, which was posted in the ground, enabled band leaders to see the show from the perspective a stadium audience can.

The band is offering a $200 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for destroying the platform.

In addition, band director Greg Clemons said Thursday, "We've had a number of incidents of beer balloons being thrown and some students have thrown rocks have been thrown" at band members.

"That kind of behavior (vandalism) is inexcusable and has done a lot of damage to the band program," Clemons said. "There's no way for us to know what we're going to look like. We've had to prepare without seeing the show."

Hellen agreed, "The band is looking pretty good right now our biggest problem is harassment."

Hellen said the Campus Police have been notified about the harassment and agreed to have a squad patrol the area during the band's practice hours. "They can't give us armed guard protection," he added.

The band, which has been practicing south of the Table Arts Center on the field located between Seventh and Ninth Streets, has received complaints from students about loud music in the past, Clemons said.

"I'm not sure what the problem is. It seems that some people are dissatisfied with the fact that Eastern has a band and it has to practice somewhere. It's kind of an upsetting thing," he said.

Hellen said he knows of complaints about loud music but said the band doesn't practice at night, because there are no lights on the field.

"We have purposely aimed ourselves away from the residence halls," Hellen said. "This is my fourth year in the band and I don't remember anything being thrown at the band before. We put in a lot of work and the only payment we get is the gratification of pulling off a good show."

Clemons said, "Generally I think it's a very small group, maybe four or five that have a bone to pick." He added that he would be willing to meet with people who have complaints about loud music from the band to try to solve the problem.

As far as the band's weekend performances Clemons said, "I guess we'll just have to do our best and hope that's good enough."

Saturday, the band will share the half-time show with the home band at Indiana State University, and Sunday, they will perform for the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field.

School financing to be revamped

SPRINGFIELD—State School Superintendent Donald Gill unveiled a plan Thursday for revamping public school financing that, for the first time, would include personal income in measuring a district's ability to pay for education.

Gill said the wealth of a district should be taken into consideration because property assessments—currently a major factor in the school aid formula—are not calculated the same way statewide.

Using the income figures is one of several changes proposed by Gill in a plan that caps several years of study of public school financing.

Income tax cuts give back bucks

WASHINGTON—The automatic federal income tax cuts due to take effect in January—a major point of contention between the two presidential candidates—would give an extra $1 a week to the typical $25,000-a-year one-earner couple with two children, and $15 a week to the $250,000 family.

Assuming inflation forecasts prove correct, a two-earner couple with two children and earning $35,000 a year would take home an extra $2 a week; the $15,000 family, less than $1 a week and the $100,000 family, an additional $8 a week.

The latest tax reduction, which would show up in 1985 tax returns due April 15, 1986, will come from "indexing" the tax system to inflation—that is, adjusting it each year to squeeze out the increased tax burden caused by inflation.

Disneyland workers may strike

ANAHEIM, Calif.—Disneyland's workers are threatening to go on strike, saying their boss is acting more like Scrooge McDuck than the Fairy Godmother by asking many of them to take a pay cut because of sagging attendance.

"I know it sounds like it's against motherhood and apple pie, but we could be going out (on strike) against Mickey and the boys," said Robert Tiernan Jr., spokesman for Local 399 of the Service Employees International Union.

President's historic visit sparks new relations for Japan, Korea

TOKYO (AP)—Japan and South Korea moved toward a new relationship Thursday with the historic visit of South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan and a statement of contrition by Emperor Hirohito for the "unfortunate past" that has divided the two Asian neighbors.

Chun, the first Korean leader ever to visit the former colonial master of the Korean peninsula, arrived Thursday afternoon for a three-day visit amid the tightest security measures ever taken by Japanese police.

Several hours after his arrival, Chun met privately with Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone for 90 minutes. Foreign Ministry spokesman Shiro Amaye said the Japanese leader praised South Korea both for its defense efforts and its attempts to initiate a dialogue with communist North Korea.

But the climax of the day, and probably of the trip, came Thursday evening at a state banquet when Hirohito, 83, delivered an anticipated expression of regret for Japan's past domination of Korea.

"It is indeed regrettable that there was an unfortunate past between us for a period in the century, and I believe that it should not be repeated again," he said.

Hirohito's statement stopped short of a direct apology demanded by many Koreans who remain bitter about Japan's harsh colonial rule of the Korean peninsula from 1910 to 1945.

Hirohito added that he hoped Chun's visit would further promote the "new born relationship between our two countries."

Hirohito, who became emperor in 1925, is now regarded as a semi-divine ruler over Japan and its vassals until 1945 when World War II ended, although the military held actual power. He is now a symbolic head of state.

Israeli leaders to seal power pact

JERUSALEM (AP)—The leaders of Israel's two biggest political parties, seeking to end a six-week stalemate, concluded all but the minor details of a power-sharing agreement Thursday and said they hoped to install a new government by the end of next week.

Labor Party leader Shimon Peres and caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir of the Likud bloc said they would have to meet again next week to divide some of the minor Cabinet posts in a bipartisan government.

Negotiations on a government of "national unity" have been dragging on for six weeks and the difficulties presage the obstacles such a government may face.

The ideologically opposed parties have joined forces since former Prime Minister Menachem Begin, a Likud member, walked out of a bipartisan government in 1970 over a disagreement over territories.

However, Shamir said guidelines worked out between the two sides ensure that the government would work smoothly. The Cabinet will have an inner forum of 10 members where "some controversial issues will be worked out," he said.

Under the agreement, Peres will serve as prime minister for the first 25 months and then Shamir will take over. Shamir and Peres will serve as foreign minister and deputy premier under each other.

Wage hike set for workers

Dave Cooper
Members of the Eastern's Local 371 of the American Federation of Labor, County and Municipal Employees have ratified a new wage settlement.
Local president Judy Torbeck said negotiations began in the middle of July and ended Aug. 24 after members voted for an increase of 15 cents per hour and a four percent increase for everyone in the bargaining unit.
She added the average increase for service workers will be 7 percent.
Torbeck said now that the wage proposal has been approved by union members, the next step in the salary process is the settlement ratification by the Board of Governors at their next meeting Sept. 18.

A BOG negotiator will present the settlement to the Board of Governors for their approval now that the civil service workers have approved the contract's specifics.
Torbeck said she is pleased with the settlement, which will affect the 230 members of the union.
Members of the BOG's negotiating team could not be reached for comment.

Extension cord problem may have caused hall fire

by Amy Zurawski
Fire Chief Les Hickenbottom said Thursday the fire that broke out in Pemberton Hall Wednesday night may have been caused by a malfunction in an extension cord.
Hickenbottom added that it would be impossible to determine any further cause because of damage in the part of the room where the fire began.
Eastern's Safety Officer Eugene Hackett agreed, saying, "The exact cause will be hard to determine because the insulation was burnt off all the wires and there is no way to tell if that happened prior to or during the fire."
However, he said the fire was "caused by something the students hooked up" and not the wiring in the hall, which was built in 1908.
"The university electricians checked all the wiring of the building," Hackett noted, "and they found no problems there."

Hackett said a television, make-up mirror and cable box were connected to an extension cord which was plugged into the outlet where the fire is believed to have begun.
Housing Director Lou Hencken said the blaze, which caused about $500 damage, ruined a mattress and box spring. The fire and smoke also damaged the wall near the outlet, ceiling and one of the dressers in the room.
Pemberton Hall Counselor Party Krenz, who extinguished the blaze before firemen arrived on the scene, said repairmen were scheduled to begin repairs in the room today.
"The walls will have to be scraped and repainted and things need to be cleaned up, but the work should be completed in a few days," she added.
Krenz added that neither of the girls was present at the time the fire began.

Black Student Union plans telethon, academic goals

by Lesley Richards
This fall Eastern's Black Student Union will work on conducting a BSU-athon, three days of fun-filled athletic events and developing a new academically-oriented look.
BSU President Paul Robinson said the BSU-athon will be conducted like a telethon and participants will be required to obtain pledges to raise money for the organization.
Students will participate in a series of athletic events including volleyball, basketball, swimming and jump rope, Robinson said. The events are scheduled for Sept. 17 through Sept. 21.
He added that an entry fee of $1 per person will be charged to participants and the events will be open to all students.

Along with several other fundraisers and activities scheduled for this semester, the BSU is planning to put greater emphasis on academics, Robinson said.
BSU committees this year will include an Academic Committee, which will be responsible for organizing study and leadership seminars, and a Political Awareness Committee, which will inform members about local, state and national elections.
In addition, BSU is looking ahead to Homecoming. The organization is planning to sponsor a dance, a parade float and a queen candidate.
Robinson said BSU will also publish a weekly news letter to inform members of activities, meetings, and functions.

Rookies living off campus can use Runner too

Sometimes just a bit of friendliness can ease the traditional apprehension that most freshmen and transfer students feel when they attempt to ease into residence hall life.

The Residence Hall Association has taken an important step to provide this friendly assistance with the Rookie Runner program.

Editorial

The program, which was established two years ago, attempts to make the task of moving into residence halls a little easier for both new students and parents.

Not only did these Rookie Runners help by lugging heavy boxes and carrying the majority of the load, the volunteers also aided in acquainting the students with the campus community.

This year, the program expanded its program by including not only social activities, but also cultural and educational sessions.

New students were given the chance to learn how to get involved at Eastern, test their anxiety level and acquire campus security survival techniques.

And what did the volunteers get for all their hard work, time and energy? Besides a bright red T-shirt and free meals, any other benefits received by the Rookie Runners were purely psychological.

The Rookie Runner program is an admirable one that seems to be gaining in popularity. And one which should continue to be extended to off-campus students, too.

A bit of friendliness from off-campus Rookie Runners could have also helped ease the hard work and apprehension for new students moving into off-campus housing.

However, off-campus students were denied this opportunity to have volunteer students help move into a new apartment or house.

It is a shame that the restructuring of the Off-Campus Student Housing Agency caused the elimination of the off-campus Rookie Runner program.

We hope that next year, OCSHA will be on its feet and capable of organizing a Rookie Runner program that will grow to be a successful service like its on-campus partner.

Never forget film

Editor:

This year at the National Right to Life Convention, pro-lifers were shown a 20-minute film they will likely never forget. It was shown by Dr. Bernard Nathanson who was a leader in the effort to eliminate legal restraints on abortion and is now one of its most outspoken opponents.

He has prepared an ultrasound videotape of a scheduled abortion on a 10 week-old baby girl, from the victim's point of view. In the first few minutes of the tape, the child is seen sucking her thumb, moving about placidly in the womb.

The moment the suction tip touches the amniotic sac, the child knows it and begins to scuttle to the top of the womb. You can see her mouth open in a silent scream. Then the audience can see the heart speeding up and the limbs moving rapidly.

It's obvious that the child senses danger and feels pain. Finally, you see the child dismembered before your eyes, as she writhes with pain. In 12 to 15 minutes, her earthly life is over.

Although he was somewhat prepared when he saw the film,

Dr. Nathanson said he was stunned and the doctor who formed the abortion quit the abortion facility after seeing the film.

Abortion kills a human child a painful and barbaric way. We now have a president who is afraid to condemn this disgraceful billion-dollar industry that is eroding respect for all human life. Do we want this bloody tragedy to continue at the rate of one-half million screams a year?

Hot seat

Head-to-head battle heats up for supreme court seat, candidate Craven brings his campaign to Charleston

Karen Sisulak
 For the first time in 22 years, Illinois men in the Fourth Judicial District will participate in the election of a justice to the Illinois Supreme Court. And with the past Labor Day weekend marking the onslaught of campaigning, Democrat James C. Craven of Springfield has started his speaking tour across the thirty county judicial district. Although "there hasn't been a head-to-head race in quite a while," Craven said his decision to run for justice was prompted by the 1983 retirement of Justice Robert C. Underwood. Craven, boasting 17 years of service to the Fourth District Appellate Court, Craven explained that he had retired from the court in April 1981 and, at the time, vowed to "run in the election if Underwood would retire." Craven has hit the campaign trail in a race against Republican candidate Tom Miller, also of Springfield. However, Craven is handling his campaign fund differently than other candidates. "A media campaign is a tremendous expense—about a quarter million.

While most candidates take large contributions and special interest funds, I am not taking contributions," he said.

He did say his monetary flow has been derived strictly from political action committees though.

"So if you want to reach the 600,000 people" who reside in the Fourth Judicial District, "you have to wear yourself out," Craven admitted, and "rather than speaking to numbers of people, sometimes I think it's one person at a time."

Considering the district reaches from Indiana to Iowa, Craven recently campaigned in Quincy, Danville and Greenup, but finds campaigning difficult because judges "are precluded" from the usual political arena.

He said "there is no room in the court system for venting right wing or left wing theories. The court has to be free of all these extremes. I don't mean to say to be a homogeneous society."

"In court, you're there to decide cases on evidence and facts," he added. After writing close to 900 opinions for the Appellate Court, Craven guards that thought closely.

"You learn quickly not to get emotionally involved," he said of past issue confrontations. But he has shown devotion to certain issues with a special interest.

One of those issues being state constitutional interpretation of U.S. Supreme Court precedent. Craven believes "there will be more and more turning to state supreme courts for guarantees."

He also has observed "a concerted effort (by state supreme courts) against the United States Supreme Court because judgments concerning civil liberties have become restrictive."

Illinois is not the only state following this route. According to Craven, New Jersey, California and Alaska are working to retain wider civil liberty interpretations. "Brennan has even said in one of his opinions that he is disgusted with the Burger Court. The states' are trying to pick up this suggestion," he said.

Craven also said the First Amendment decisions by the Supreme Court "have been leaning heavily on media law for the past three years. This has resulted in a chilling effect due to the recent decisions."

"So far, their decisions about the media have been like Pablum," he commented.

Other than stating his view on state and federal judicialism, Craven as a citizen also has strong beliefs concerning higher education. Although he said, "the quality of anyone's life is directed by their education," he admitted he's "opposed to higher education."

But, he added, this is because he has supported all four children of his through four years of college and three years of law school.

"It's crazy. Higher education is prohibitively expensive. It's foolish that we spend so much money on unnecessary expenditures and not enough for higher and secondary education," he explained.

Speaking from an impressively educated background, Craven offered this advice to Eastern students... "not to vote in 1984 with all the Orwellian connotations is crazy. If students are concerned about their constitutional liberties, they will vote."

ISA vice president resigns

Nancy Bridges
 Student Senator and Illinois Student Association vice president Audrey Dumentat recently resigned both of her posts.

Dumentat, who will not be on campus during the spring semester, said she stepped from her posts in Student Association and ISA because "it is better to start out new with someone who could stay the entire year... I don't want to complicate things by coming in the middle of the year."

Dumentat was awarded the opportunity to serve an internship in the fall. The internship will involve working as a member of a congressman's staff in Washington, through the Sears Congressional Internship Program, she said.

The program selects 20 students from 12 institutions to participate in the internship program, she added.

However, Dumentat said she did not want to resign. "I feel like I'm letting you down," she said.

Consequently, she considered stepping down until the end of the semester, but said, "in doing that I would be letting down the people who look for me" as much as if she stepped down.

Dumentat said she did not believe her resignation would cause any problems in either organization because this is the beginning of a new year, and the major issues in ISA such as tuition and appropriations do not come up until spring.

ISA president Carlos Rodriguez said, "The time of year when she did resign is probably the best," he said.

Rodriguez said the ISA office would be elected at the Sept. 30 meeting by an unanimous board of directors' vote. Candidates will apply for the position at the meeting.

Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said Dumentat's resignation from ISA will not affect Eastern's representation at ISA because she was an officer, not Eastern's student representative.

Wesel added that he plans to appoint an ISA representative within the next two weeks.

In addition, Wesel said the open senate seat would be filled with the other seats left open this fall. Temporary appointments will be made until the November election of new senators.

Dance planned at historical site

Students interested in learning a new dance may want to attend a square dance and potluck dinner at the Lincoln Log Cabin State Park, located seven miles south of Charleston, Friday.

Gaye Harrison, a member of the Indian Creek Square Dancers, which is co-sponsoring of the event, said lessons for beginners in square dancing will be offered. There also will be live music by the the "official old time string band of Illinois," The Indian Creek Delta Boys, she said.

Eastern and the Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic Site are also sponsors of the dance and potluck dinner, which is open to the public.

Students who want more information or need a ride should contact Harrison at 345-4409.

IF CHRISTIANITY ONLY MEANS ONE MORE BIT OF GOOD ADVICE, THEN CHRISTIANITY IS OF NO IMPORTANCE. THERE HAS BEEN NO LACK OF GOOD ADVICE FOR THE LAST FOUR THOUSAND YEARS. (C.S. LEWIS)

Any advice needs to be absorbed to be of value. An important way we "absorb" it is through regular fellowship and worship. This helps us to grow. And for us one way to grow is to be able to tell good advice from bad.

Join us Tuesdays Noon--12:30 at the Episcopal Campus Ministry and Sundays 9 a.m. at Trinity Church, 2200 Western Ave., Mattoon. Phone 348-8191 for rides.

Our Treat A Friend Bonus is Real Nice. Buy One, Treat A Friend-Half Price.

Here's our 31derful offer. During the Baskin-Robbins Treat A Friend Bonus, you can buy any cone, carton, sundae, shake or split and treat a friend to an item of equal or lesser value for half-price. But hurry. It can't last forever.

Speech course tabled by CAA

The Council on Academic Affairs tabled a new course proposal from the Speech Communication Department for a second time at Thursday's meeting.

SPC 3630, "Communication in Organizations," was tabled during the final summer meeting because CAA members were waiting to see what other courses would be proposed by the Speech Communication department.

CAA Chairman Ron Wohlstein said the course was tabled at Thursday's meeting because "it appeared to be part of a larger curriculum proposal package that the council wanted to vote on as a whole."

Doug Bock, chairman of the Speech Communication Department, said he was not overly concerned that the course wasn't approved.

Date set to vote for senate post

A special election has been scheduled for Oct. 1 to fill the post of student government financial vice president, left open following John Cole's resignation July 30.

Elections committee co-chairman Becky Tichenor said petitions for the post will be available Monday in the student government office.

The petitions must contain 100 signatures and must be filed by noon Sept. 20, Tichenor said.

Senate election rules require Senate executive office candidates to "be a student at Eastern at least one semester preceding the election with a sophomore or above standing at the time of the election" and to have a grade point average of 2.0.

Class-Level Prerequisites

Your attention is called to page 92 of the University catalog which stipulates that there are student class-level prerequisites for courses. No exceptions as noted, freshmen may enroll in only 1000- and 2000-level courses; sophomores in 1000-, 2000- and 3000-level, etc. Faculty members are urged to check their class rosters carefully with respect to the aforementioned regulations.

Unless a student has a proved waiver permitting enrollment in courses at levels beyond those permitted by regulations or where a student presents evidence that additional transfer hours have not yet been credited to his or her cumulative hours thereby changing the class level, such student should be excluded from the class and advised to officially drop.

Spikers face little known opponents at Memphis St.

Joseph Anglum
 After a disappointing loss to the University of Illinois Wednesday, Eastern's women's volleyball team heads this weekend to take part in an eight-team tournament hosted by Memphis State University.
 Eastern, now 1-1 on the season, is ranked first in one of the two divisions.
 Louisiana University, Montevallo University and Mississippi University are out of the Panther's division's tournament.
 Teams representing the opposing divisions are Florida University, Indiana State University, Murray State University and Memphis State.
 Eastern head coach Betty Ralston is unsure what to expect from some of the teams participating in this weekend's tournament.
 "We don't know too much about any of these teams," Ralston said. "This is Florida's first year of volleyball in a long time."
 According to Ralston, Eastern is using these early match's as preparation for the upcoming conference season.

"We know this is an important time in the season because this is when we get the bugs worked out," Ralston said. "We also want to let everybody play and try to get the right combination."

"We have to work on plugging up the middle", Ralston said. "It's going to depend on how well we can read the opposing teams offense."

Team leadership this year has been handled by senior co-captains Donna Uhler and Gretchen Braker. However, Ralston believes her squad is definitely team oriented.

"We don't have a superstar, but rather we have a lot of people who do the job quietly," Ralston said.

Eastern returns home for a 7 p.m. contest Wednesday Sept. 12 at Lantz Gym against the Flyers of Lewis University.

Warriers look to upset Western

Don Verdun
 Eastern's women's cross country team will look to surprise Western Kentucky University in a revolving dual meet Friday at Macomb.
 "We're definitely underdogs going into this meet," Eastern head coach Don Lowery said.
 Lowery cited not only the fact that Western has an excellent team, but also that the Leathernecks will be running on their home course. Bradley University may also compete, thus making the meet a triangular one.
 "Our hopes to surprise Western depend on if we can separate their top five runners (in the standings)," Lowery said.
 Spearheading those hopes will be senior Anne Ogle. Ogle, who placed second last season against Western, finished first in the women's division at last Saturday's alumni meet. Ogle won the 3200-meter course in 1983.
 "She (Ogle) has a strong possibility of winning it all," Lowery said.
 But Lowery said the key to Eastern's success Friday will be how the rest of the team performs.

"To win, our top five runners have to beat Western's," Lowery said. "If we don't do that, we won't win; it's that simple."

That means sophomores Janine Jarris, Teresa Paul and Erin Healey must turn in strong performances, Lowery said. Jarris was second to Ogle in the alumni meet, while Healey placed third and Paul finished fourth.

Lowery also said he has hopes that freshman Lisa Jostes, sophomore LuAnn Meyers and junior Anne Sanderson can push Western's runners, thus helping Eastern's cause.

Sophomore Penni Lammon, despite nursing a foot injury, will also run at Macomb. Lowery said he would "put no pressure on her" as far as her performance goes.

"We'll definitely give Western a run for their money," Lowery said.

Lowery also announced a women's track meeting to be held Sept. 13 in Room 109, Lantz Gym at 7:30 p.m.

Swoope denies cocaine charges

SPRINGFIELD (AP)-University of Illinois foot ball star Craig Swoope said Wednesday that he was part of a conspiracy to sell cocaine, and said he once scolded his alleged accomplice for making a drug deal in his presence.
 Swoope, taking the witness stand for the first time, contradicted testimony given hours earlier by Herbert Lorenzo Siler, an admitted drug dealer who is the government's star witness.
 Swoope, 20, denied Siler's assertions that he stored cocaine and money received from Siler's drug sales. He also told the U.S. District Court jury that he never used cocaine, despite Siler's claim that he and Swoope had used the drug together.
 Swoope, a junior defensive back, said he did not know Siler was involved in drug trafficking until he saw him sell cocaine to a man later identified as an undercover agent. Shortly after the sale, he said he scolded Siler for dragging him into his drug business.

"I told him I didn't want to be involved in any of his drug deals," Swoope said. "I asked him why he told the guy my name."

He acknowledged that he brought a bag containing cocaine to Siler's apartment on the day of the sale, but said that he did not know the bag's contents.

"I figured it wasn't any of my business what was in the bag," he said.

Asked by defense attorney J. Steven Backett to describe his feelings during the drug transaction, Swoope replied, "I felt real uncomfortable about the whole thing."

Men's tennis meeting scheduled

There will be a meeting for all men interested in participating in varsity tennis at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 11 at the Weller Court bleachers, men's head tennis coach John Bennett said Thursday.

All prospective tennis players are invited to attend, Bennett added.

Eastern's first tennis match of the season is scheduled for Sept. 15 against Bradley at the Weller Courts.

Magic number drops to 16

MONTREAL (AP)—Ryne Sandberg's sacrifice fly scored Bob Dernier from third in the eighth inning to start the Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Thursday night.

The victory, Chicago's fifth in six games, increased the Cubs' lead in the National League Eastern Division to seven games over the New York Mets.

Dernier opened the eighth against Expos' starter Charlie Lea, 15-10, by tripling. Sandberg followed with a deep fly ball.

In the ninth, the Cubs loaded the bases on singles by Keith Moreland, Dave Lopes and Jody Davis. Expo shortstop Argenis Salazar threw wildly after fielding Dernier's grounder, allowing Moreland and Lopes to score.

George Frazier, 5-2, who worked two hitless innings in relief of starter Dennis Eckersley, earned the victory. Lee Smith pitched a hitless ninth for his 30th save.

Held to four hits by Lea, Chicago tied the score 1-1 in the seventh before he could retire a batter. Leon Durham led off with a double to left and scored on a single by Moreland.

The Expos used the speed of Tim Raines to take a 1-0 lead in the first. Raines singled and stole second and third, giving him 63 stolen bases for the season. He scored on Dan Driessen's grounder.

Pirates win 4-1, Mets fade

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Rick Rhoden and Rod Scurry threw a combined five-hitter and Jason Thompson hit a two-run homer as the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the New York Mets 2-0 Thursday night.

The setback, coupled with Chicago's 4-1 victory over Montreal, left the Mets seven games back of the Cubs in the National League East standings with 22 games left in the season.

Rhoden, 12-9, allowed only five hits, struck out four and walked two. He faltered in the eighth when Ray Knight doubled and Mike Fitzgerald walked. Scurry came on to end the threat and earned his third save.

Lee Lacy walked and stole second to start the Pirates' third before Thompson homered off rookie Calvin Schiraldi, 0-1, who was making his second major league start. He left after allowing two runs and five hits over five innings.

Rhoden, 6-2 in his last eight decisions, was in trouble in the Mets' seventh when Keith Hernandez singled and Darryl Strawberry walked. But Rhoden struck out Hubie Brooks and ended the inning by getting Danny Heep on a force play.

White Sox blast A's 7-3

CHICAGO (AP)—Greg Luzinski slashed a pair of two-run doubles and Vance Law added a two-run homer to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 7-3 victory over the Oakland A's Thursday night.

LaMarr Hoyt, 12-15, picked up his second consecutive complete game victory, striking out seven and allowing six hits, including two homers.

The game was played in a drizzle that started during the fifth inning.

Luzinski, in his first at-bat after sitting out three games, doubled home Scott Fletcher and Greg Walker in the first inning.

A single by Oakland's Jim Essian knocked in Dwayne Murphy to cut the lead to 2-1 in the second and Oakland tied the game in the third when leadoff batter Mike Davis homered into the center field bullpen.

Playoff loss still fresh as Panthers face ISU

by Jeff Long

Eastern's football team will take its chants of upset and revenge and let the proving begin Saturday when the Panthers tackle rival Indiana State 1:30 p.m. at Terre Haute's Memorial Stadium.

With last season's two heartbreaking losses to Indiana State etched on their minds, the Panthers will attempt to strike back in the Sycamores' back yard. But most observers agree that a Panther victory would definitely be considered an upset.

While Eastern has rearranged its lineup trying to replace 16 lost starters, the Sycamores have returned 16 of last season's starters from their NCAA I-AA quarterfinal squad.

What it all adds up to for Indiana State is a No. 2 ranking in Division I-AA from Sports Illustrated's preseason poll and a No. 1 ranking in several other power ratings. But Sycamore head coach Dennis Raetz says that means nothing.

"Nobody knows who's worthy of any ratings," Raetz professed. "Those (ratings) are based on last year's performance—this is a new year.

"Potentially, we have the chance to be a good team. Last year, we had good fortune in key games, and hope that continues Saturday."

Indiana State's record of 9-4 last season was the best in the team's history. Two of the Sycamore's victories, however, came at the expense of Eastern, and Panther head coach Al Molde admits his team has not forgotten.

"I think we look at this as a big game," Molde said. "It's got to be considered an 'up' game for us—Indiana State is a veteran team. We're pretty excited about playing this game."

The Sycamores downed Eastern 13 in a regular season game at O'Brien Stadium and then proceeded to knock out the Panthers with a 16-13 double overtime victory in the first round of the NCAA I-AA playoffs in Terre Haute.

"Everybody's been working a lot harder in practice this week," defensive end Randy Harms said. "It's been a little more intense."

Eastern will definitely need intensity in the trenches Saturday, where the Sycamores hold a sizable size advantage. Defensively, the Sycamores average 6-3, 250 pounds per man while the offensive line averages 6-2, 240 pounds.

"We aren't going to put big players on the field than we already have, so we just hope we execute well enough to win the ballgame," Molde said. "Size won't be that much of a factor if we play up to our abilities."

"Speed and execution," Harms agreed.

Eastern will be relying on its speed and execution to shut down the Sycamore's high-powered offense which is led by I-AA Honorable Mention All-American quarterback Jim Miller.

Miller holds ISU single season records for passing yardage (1,762), completions (143) and total offense (2,088). Last week, the Panthers lost to Grand Valley State to only nine points and no touchdowns.

"We need to play much better than we did at Grand Valley, because Indiana State is a better football team," Molde said. "It will have to be a team effort so we'll need to get outstanding performances from a lot of people for us to win Saturday."

Soccer shootout

Booters face tourney test

by Brent Feeny

Whenever sports fans think of Green Bay, Wisc., they usually think of the town's NFL team, the Green Bay Packers and its long football tradition.

This weekend Eastern's soccer team will be traveling to Green Bay, not to visit the Packers at Lambeau Field, but to participate in a tournament hosted by the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

The Panthers will begin play at 5 p.m. Friday against Minnesota and will then tackle host Wisconsin-Green Bay at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Also participating in the tournament is Avila College of Kansas City, MO.

Panther first-year coach Cizo Mosnia said he is expecting a tough tournament. "Wisconsin-Green Bay is a pretty good team," he said, "and Minnesota, despite the fact that they are only a club team, looks sharp. We'll play this just like any good teams we play."

The Panthers will enter the Minnesota game at full strength, with the exception of Neil Swindels, who received an automatic suspension after being ejected from last Saturday's 1-0 loss to Illinois State.

"We're getting pretty game-familiar," Mosnia said, "so I'm not worried about that. Robbie Mann will be back Saturday after turning his ankle, and Paul Kelly split his lip, but past that we're healthy."

"Of course, we won't know what we stand exactly until the season ends, but this tournament should give us some indication of where we are now," Mosnia said.

He'll be depending on Swindels, who will come off his suspension in time for the Wisconsin-Green Bay match, and Matt Gamache, a native of Florissant, Missouri, as well as Granite City State graduate Mann for scoring punch.

Defensively, Mosnia will be looking to Jamacian import Andre McKenna, Albert Adade, from Ghana, and Albert, Alberta native Kelly to block opposing shots out of the back of the net.

"This weekend will be a big step for us," Mosnia said. "I felt that we knew where we stood when we played Illinois State, but they turned the tables on us. We learned from that game, and we'll go on from there."

The realities of fantasizing brought into focus

by Pete Swanberg

Fantasies. Everyone has them. But exactly what role, if any, do they play in an average day? According to Dr. Bud Sanders from the counseling center, fantasizing is normal, and most fantasies can be used to one's advantage.

"Normal people all build castles in the air, and visit them occasionally," Sanders said, "but neurotic and psychotic people live in theirs. And psychologists collect the rent."

Sanders said most students spend at least some class time fantasizing. "Lectures are a constant alternation of attention, fantasies and memories."

Still, these fantasies can be either helpful or harmful, depending upon how they are used, Sanders said.

"If you're an adolescent boy and you picture yourself asking a girl out, and she says 'ok', the fantasy can help you do the actual asking, he said. "But if you picture her saying 'no', it can go the other way."

"Shy people have negative fantasies, and this can start working in adolescence and carry on throughout life," he added.

Adolescents and college students are not the only people who like to fantasize. Young children are some of the greatest fantasizers around. Sanders said a child may use fantasies to help get through childhood.

For example, "An imaginary playmate is very healthy," Sanders said. "It becomes a friend, an ally, and also an outlet for aggressions. A child can yell at an imaginary playmate when he knows it may not be best for him to yell at anyone else."

On the other hand, some childhood fantasy games might be harmful because they might limit role models and reinforce stereotypes, he said.

"When you have the boy always playing doctor and the girl always playing nurse, the game might be harmful in the long run."

Sanders also explained that fantasies can boost or burden a more adult male-female relationship.

"If your girlfriend or boyfriend is late, you can fantasize telling them off, and spend all your frustration before they come," he said.

"But," he added, "fantasizing about that could be like adding coal to a fire. If you can control it, it can be a positive release. If you do the opposite, you can overreact."

Other dangers of fantasies include using them as defense mechanisms or being unable to separate fantasies from reality, Sanders said.

"Also, some people may repeat a fantasy to themselves so many times that they actually can convince themselves it is true," he said.

"If a student spends all his time dreaming about becoming a millionaire, and never does anything about it, the fantasy is defeating his cause," Sanders said.

Sanders noted many people enjoy using "manufactured fantasies" such as watching soap operas or playing the lottery.

"No one seriously counts on winning the lottery, but it's a fantasy because it allows people to think and live like a millionaire for a few minutes," he said.

Sanders said these fantasies are healthy, as long as they are not allowed to get in the way. "If you skip class to watch a soap opera, it's one thing. But I know of students who arrange their classes around their favorite soaps, and that's a big difference."

Fantasies are not only used to solve mental woes, but have been considered as treatments for physical ills. Sanders said doctors are exploring the use of fantasies in cancer therapy.

"In therapy, the doctor asks the patient to picture in his mind his healthy white blood cells killing the deadly cancer cells, and in some cases, it seems to be working," he noted.

"It's not magic, but the mind convincing the body's healing mechanisms to work."

Student fantasize about future, watching dreams become fact

by Robert Fosnaugh

Fantasies are as unique as fingerprints—and a lot more interesting. Some Eastern students have some very interesting fantasies.

For example, freshman Charles Chiang wants to build a large circular house, complete with all the extras. He also wants his own speedway, and a Lamborghini to drive on the track.

Some people are more practical fanatasizers. Junior Cindy Leach, for instance, wants a nice career, a home in either Colorado or California and time off to travel. As you get older, Leach believes, your expectations become more realistic.

Naturally, many people have fantasies involving members of the opposite sex, rather than houses or cars. Sophomore Dessie Damory, for example, wants to date Tom Selleck. Before Selleck came along, she dreamed of Burt Reynolds.

Pete Diessel, a freshman, also finds his thoughts drifting to a certain member of the opposite sex. He wants to make love to Scandal lead singer Pattie Smythe. If she's not available, he'll settle for Stevie Nicks.

Laurie Tyler, a freshman, would like to go on a safari with Harrison Ford. She's attracted to Ford because he has "piercing eyes".

Another freshman, Julie Kay, doesn't necessarily want to start a relationship with an entertainer; but would like to be one. She wants to be a Broadway musical dancer. Dancing, Kay said, is an excellent way to express yourself.

Junior Donna Slattery would also like to be an entertainer. Her fantasy is to play a leading role in the soap opera "Days of Our Lives." Slattery said she would like to play an evil character.

By far the most ambitious fantasy belongs to sophomore Rick Kroebel. Kroebel wants to rule the entire continent of Antarctica. He wants it because, "No one else has it."

Band plays on the Quad

Students will be able to take a study break this Sunday and enjoy some fresh air and good music.

Kool Ray and the Polaroidz will bring their collection of New Wave, current rock and sixties music to the Library Quad at 5:30 p.m., University Board adviser Barry Bowman said. The band will play two 60 minute sets.

The Peoria area based band will be performing as part the UB mainstage committee's "Sunday On the Quad" series which will run through October. Bowman noted.

Fantasy and adventure

D & D Hobbies can fulfill your wildest fantasies

by Lisa Albarran

Briefing: International industrial magnate Ceuric Goldfinger is suspected of smuggling gold out of England. But there is no solid evidence against him. Also, he has backed suspicious gold mining explorations around the world.

Are Goldfinger's actions merely the work of a greedy man, or is he plotting some more sinister design against an unsuspecting world?

Mission: The British Secret Service has called on you, one of its top secret agents, to follow Goldfinger and unravel the mystery behind the man with the golden touch. But, you must be careful. If you tip Goldfinger to your real purpose or force his hand too early, you may find yourself having to confront his murderous bodyguard, Odd Job.

No, this is not a movie or a dream, this is the world where fantasy becomes a reality—fantasy games.

The fantasy games are popular with people of all ages. Richard Lawson, owner of D&D Hobbies, 718 Monroe, said.

"We have got everything for every type of imagination need," Lawson added.

However, Lawson added that over the past year or so the war situation games are becoming more popular with the older crowd of people.

Are you are tired of too much fantasy and want a little more reality?

"I think the more realistic games are more popular with the older crowd because they are growing up and becoming more mature," Lawson said.

"Don't get me wrong, we still do sell a lot of Dungeon and Dragon type games," Lawson added.

Some of D&D Hobbies' best sellers run from 007, James Bond to Marvel Super Heroes to Star Fire and Gamma World (a Dungeons and Dragons of the future).

Lawson noted that the Fantasy games run anywhere from $7 to $25. "That's not counting the modules which can cost anywhere from $5 to $12," he added.

Looking for adventure? "The 007 issues are a new series. They are quite popular and we have trouble keeping them in stock," Lawson said.

"Traveler is a science fiction type adventure in the far future. These space adventures have become a lot more popular because of all the popular movies that are out," Lawson said.

Lawson believes the fantasy games can be educational too. "There are modules or supplements that go with the more advanced games. It can be real heavy reading," Lawson said.

"The reading is good. It appeals to the male who needs to be encouraged to read," Lawson added.

Lawson said the fantasy games business is a lot more popular than people realize. "It is suprising, but we get people in here from all over the world. And a good number of our customers are college students," Lawson noted.

✚ IN·HOC·SIGNO·VINCES ·✚

D&D Hobbies stocks a wide variety of fantasy games with topics ranging from such realistic fantasies as making money through the stock market to space adventures. Although high fantasy games such as Dungeons and Dragons were quite popular a few years ago, students currently seem to be leaning toward realistic and space games.

Renaissance is reality with SCA

by Diane Schneidman

There are many societies in our society. There's the Humane Society, the Audobon Society, the John Birch Society and, of course, American society in general.

All of these organizations have two things in common: they all deal with very realistic issues and they all are concerned with the present.

There is one society at Eastern which doesn't really do any of the above. The Society for Creative Anachronisms (the Ancient Medieval and Renaissance Society) deals with the Renaissance through fictionalized situations.

"SCA is an international, non-profit research and re-enactment group," SCA seneschala (president) Jon Ziegler said.

The United States is divided into kingdoms, which are further divided into Barronies, which are split into Shires, Ziegler noted. Charleston is the St. Carol on the Moon Shire.

"We go about recreating life as it may have been up through the 17th Century," Ziegler said. "We use costuming, fighting, feasting, arts and science."

One technique which the society uses to return to the days of old is having each member chose a persona which could have lived in the Renaissance, Ziegler noted. This persona cannot be an actual historical figure, but a fictional character.

Members then design and sew their own costumes based upon historical research from books, Ziegler said.

Individuals from the organization get to wear these costumes to events, which is what everyone works for each year. "An event is a celebration of a saint, maiden or historical figure who actually lived; or a historical event," Ziegler said.

At one of the events which takes place in the fall, chapters from the Middle Kingdom (which encompasses most of the Midwest and lower Canada) select a Tannist (prince) who will reign as the next king.

In order to become a prince, one must battle with swords made from rattan and duck tape for a lady's "favor".

"A favor," Ziegler said, "is a piece of clothing taken from a maiden's clothes and given to the winner." The maiden who has donated her favor then becomes the queen when the prince's kingly reign begins.

This is usually followed by a feast consisting of such Renaissance foodstuffs as giant turkey legs, soups and wines. Four to six courses are usually served, Ziegler noted.

The new king, chosen during the previous event, then holds court. During court, special awards and titles are given out, Ziegler said.

However, battling for a maiden's hand, feasting and business concerns are not the only activities which take place at a SCA event. Some people sell items reminiscent of the period (known as merchanting) or entertainment is provided—especially at Eastern's events.

"Our group is mostly known for entertainment because the group here is mainly arts oriented,"

Ziegler said.

The event at Eastern is centered, as are most events, around the chapter's figurehead—St. Paul the Simple. Throughout the event members, after considerable research attempt to recreate situations which would pertain to St. Paul.

"St. Paul was considered too simple for knighthood; but he was persistent," Ziegler said. "So he was put through a series of tasks. We have set-up our own tasks to see who is the simplest person. We have an egg push, the Race of the Knights of the Red Cross (balancing a piece of spaghetti on one's finger without breaking it) and Pin the Halo on the Saint to name a few," Ziegler said.

Perhaps it would appear that all one does in SCA is research in order to recreate the Renaissance at the events. Not really. Most members have practices which they continue throughout the year. For example, at Eastern's chapter one student is a herbalist (someone who grows and studies herbs) and some people make and play their own instruments.

"We have someone who plays the recorder and one guy who makes harps," Ziegler said.

SCA was started in 1979 and is not an exclusively college-oriented organization. There are about 15 members at Eastern including students, teachers, Charleston residents and high school students.

So, if your fanatasies often drift back into the Renaissance, perhaps SCA could help these dreams become a reality.

Aren't fantasies great?
Whether you're in a dull class, an uninteresting lecture or you're just plain bored, fantasies can turn those stagnant moments into thrilling and exciting experiences. That is, if you utilize your imagination.

Go ahead! Indulge yourself, psychologists say it's healthy.

Suppose you're cruising down I-57 on your way to Champaign-Urbana. Pretty dull, right? It doesn't have to be!

If you like science fiction, imagine yourself as Captain Kirk. And your car—the Starship Enterprise. Let your imagination do the rest...

...You check the rearview mirror and see a car slowly catching up to you while Spock looks up from his scanner.

"Captain, we are being followed by an unidentified spacecraft. It is on an intercept course and closing fast."

"Shields up," you snap at Sulu. "Warp Factor Six," you say as you press the accelerator down slightly, feeling the car speed up.

"Lt. Uhura, open hailing frequencies."

You snap the radio on.

"This is the Starship Enterprise. We are on a peaceful mission. Please identify yourself."

Lt. Uhura turns to you. "They're not answering, sir."

"Captain," Spock says, "they have increased speed to Warp Factor Seven."

"Red alert! Mr Sulu, charge phasers and arm torps."

"Aye, aye Captain!"

You lean over to the cigarette lighter and push it in.

"Mr. Scott I need Warp Factor Eight!"

From the cigarette lighter comes Mr. Scott's voice. "Cap'n! I kin give ya Warp Factor Eight...but only for a short while."

You press the accelerator down even more. You are now going 80 miles per hour.

"Any change Spock?"

"They are still on an intercept course, sir."

"Fire phasers!"

You dump your candy wrappers out the window and watch the car behind you run them over.

"Phasers fired Captain. A direct hit!"

Spock looks up from his scanner.

"No damage done."
"Fire torps," you begin to say, but Spock interrupts.

"Captain, they are now flashing an extremely bright light at us. I believe it may be a signal."

You look in the rearview mirror and see that the car which has been following you is flashing a red light. "An undercover police car" you mutter.

Spock raises an eyebrow. "A what, Captain?"

"Shut up, Spock."

You take your foot off the accelerator and begin slowing down. Your fantasy has come to an unfortunate end.

As you can see, fantasies may be fun, but don't go overboard.

Years ago, when I had a habit of daydreaming a bit too much, my father (a psychologist) gave me some advice which everyone should follow: "Daydreams are good for you," he said, "as long as you separate the fantasy from reality."

Review Buckingham goes insane

GO INSANE

Lindsay Buckingham

The case: Is there life after Fleetwood Mac?

The verdict: If that life belongs to Lindsay Buckingham, life definitely exists.

The evidence: Buckingham's new album Go Insane.

If the album's title sounds intriguing, just give a listen to the music itself.

Side one opens abruptly with an alarm clock going off as a lead-in for the blatant I Want You. The song features a hard-driving guitar solo by Buckingham which fits perfectly in this mess of sexual passion:

"I guess I had to prove/
I was someone hard to lose"

Buckingham chants in the song's foreplay.

The title cut, which is reminiscent of Paul Revere and the Raiders, follows. This tune, which recently slipped its way into the Top 40, illustrates Buckingham's new found insolence. "There are two kinds of people in this world — winners, losers," sounds Buckingham as the single begins.

Later, this California-based musician sings:

"There are two kinds of trouble in this world/
livin', dyin'/"

I lost my power in this world/and the rumours are flying."

Buckingham then kicks into the catchy chorus proclaiming:

"So I go insane/
Like I always do/
Then I call your name/
She's a lot like you/"

Lyrics such as this coupled with the song's peppy beat give a sense of tart longing.

Appropriately, a lashing beat thrusts Slow Dancing from the listener's ears to his dancing shoes. "I come up fast, but I go down slow," Buckingham lauds in this dancable tune.

Still more pleas of longing appear in I Must Go as Buckingham moans, "Hey little girl, leave the little drug alone."

However, the lyrics are outdone by the shower of toe-tapping music on this song. Although Buckingham plays nearly every instrument on the album — as he did with his fist solo effort, Law and Order, he cleverly avoids the too perfect luster associated with West Coast music. By allowing the rough edges to remain, Buckingham brings out th emotional appeal of the album.

Buckingham also adds a dash of, well, pure insanity in the two-part Play in the Rain. Buckingham's fretboard runs provide some of the madness here. Despite the fact that this song appears to be a throwaway, its mysterious and intriguing sounds are worth at least one ear's listening.

Buckingham's stinging guitar takes over in the uptempo Loving Cups. The excellent guitar work teams up with lines such as: "You are the object of my desire/Open your mouth/I'll put out the fire," to give it a rough driving sense that beckons our emotions.

The album's finest cut comes next. In Bang the Drum, Buckingham summons all his emotional yearning. The scores ticktock drifts into a cascading chorus of ear-pleasing vocals as a helium balloon rises into the summer sky. Buckingham also tosses in a guitar solo for good measure.

The album closes with Buckingham's three-part farewell tribute to the late Dennis Wilson titled D.W. Suite. Buckingham really shows his ingenuity and creativity here by employing Laurie Anderson style vocals, a harp interlude, a synthesized Ed Sullivan introduction of the Beach Boys, a chorus bringing back fond memories of Wilson's music, and, yes, even a Scottish flute. I'm sure Wilson would have liked D.W. Suite.

Go Insane seems to be a real breakthrough for Buckingham. He has successfully fused the slick rock of the '70s with the avant-edge of the '80s. This daring and adventurous move on Buckingham's part is not just a breakthrough for him, but for rock music itself.
