Campus authorities
quiet about date rape

Editor's note: This is the first in a three-part series examining date rape on campus.

By CHRIS SEPER
Editor in chief

Victims' advocates will tell you acquaintance rapes are rarely reported to the authorities.

At Eastern, reported date rapes are rarely made public.

Since 1988, there has been at least one date rape each year reported to campus authorities. During the 1992-93 academic year, nine were reported.

But the University Police Department won't make the police reports public. Last week, Eastern President David Jorns upheld a university decision rejecting a Freedom of Information Act request by The Daily Eastern News to make police reports of date rape available.

The only way date rape figures are reported publicly is through Judicial Affairs, which releases monthly and yearly figures on conduct violations.

Campus activists and officials are torn between protecting victims of date rape and informing the campus that date rape does happen here.

Some say university officials are protecting their own interests by withholding the reports, claiming students are more likely to take notice of the issue of date rape if reports are released immediately after the incidents occur.

"(Date rape) is alarming to parents," said Sharon Bartling, member of the Women's Studies Council. "That's probably why the administration does not want it made public."

"The police think they are protecting priva-

Hot seat Race begins for House candidates

By TRAVIS SPENCER
City editor

The race for the seat to represent Charleston-area voters in the state House of Representatives is fully under way, with both candidates trading barbs over "cheap-shot" tactics and campaign spending.

The race for the 106th District pits an Eastern English professor, Democrat David Carpenter of Charleston, against incumbent Mike Weaver, a five-term Republican from Ashmore.

Weaver said this campaign is more negative than the contest in 1992.

"This is nastier than my last campaign," Weaver said. "My opponent's friends take cheap shots at me through letters to the editors in the local papers."

Carpenter said the letters are by voters who have a right to express their opinions.

"The letters I've read criticizing Mr. Weaver ... deal solely with issues," Carpenter said.

However, Weaver said the race has not been an issue-oriented campaign.

"He has a cheap-shot campaign," Weaver said.

Carpenter added that he hopes to arrange a debate with Weaver within the next few weeks.

The two candidates have discussed a limit on campaign spending. Neither one, though, has made headway with spending-cap proposals.

Weaver initially challenged Carpenter on Aug. 9 to limit campaign spending to $25,000 from July 1 to the upcoming

Forum to discuss Eastern's strategic plan

By ADAM McHUGH
Administration editor

Understanding is a word Faculty Senate Chairman John Allison said he would like to hear from people when describing Eastern's strategic plan.

This is why he said he felt a forum dealing with the various components of the plan would be an excellent chance for faculty and students to learn about it.

"A lot of people are really stumped about the plan," Allison said. "I am not going to pretend to know how the entire faculty feels about this program, but I know that many people have problems with it."

The strategic plan, which was developed in early 1993, is supposed to guide the university into the year 2000 through adjustments made by different academic departments.

Eastern President David Jorns held two multi-media presentations last month in an attempt to quell misconceptions faculty and students had about the plan.

Allison said the presentations were informative and helped him understand the program, but he felt faculty were not given enough time to question Jorns.

"There were a lot of things that were not addressed in his presentation," Allison said. "I don't think the faculty had enough time to talk to Jorns about it."

The senate will moderate the forum, which will be held at 2 p.m. Sept. 13 in the Coleman Hall Auditorium (Room 120).

"We hope this forum will let faculty and students vent their concerns on the issue," Allison said. "Maybe they can work out some of the problems they have with it."

Allison said the forum is not a new idea. The senate held several forums last year during the consolidation of Eastern's colleges.

Allison and senate member Lankford Walker, who both received an onslaught of questions from faculty about the program, decided now might be a good time to hold another forum.

The major problems faculty and students have with the plan are its "rapidity" and how they fit into the program.

"A lot of people want to know about the process and the time table on it," Allison said. "Others want to know the role their department will play in it."

Allison said he is encouraging students to attend the forum, which will give everyone in attendance about five minutes each to speak.

The forum will be discussed at today's senate meeting. The senate will meet at 2 p.m. in the Board of Governors Room of Booth Library.

Council to discuss Eastern's Centennial

The Charleston City Council Tuesday will consider a resolution to recognize Eastern's centennial year from Sept. 7 to May 6.

The council will meet at 7:30 p.m. in its chambers in the Municipal Building, 520 Jackson Ave.

The proclamation urges all citizens to reflect on the university's impact and importance to the community. The document says Eastern has "enhanced the quality of life" for Charleston residents in the past 100 years.

Mayor Dan Cougill says in the document that Charleston and Eastern have enjoyed a 100-year partnership that has had "a far-reaching effect on individuals and organizations."

The council will also vote on a proclaim designating Sept. 18-24 as Chamber of Commerce Week in recognition of the chamber's 156 years of service.

The Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce works with local businesses to advance the civic, economic and cultural welfare of the community.

The proclamation will mark the 75th anniversary of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

In other business, the council will discuss street closings during Eastern's Homecoming parade on Oct. 8. Several streets will be closed from 3 a.m. to noon.

cy," Bartling said. "I can understand that on the students' part. But at the same time, those cases might make people cautious."

But University Police Chief Tom Larson said reports are withheld to protect the privacy of the individuals. He said since the cases are handled by the Judicial Board and not a criminal court, there is no need to release them to the public.

J-Board hearings are closed to the public.

However, protecting the privacy of victims is not an issue in the campus media. The News' policy is not to identify rape victims.

Larson also said date rapes are dangerous to report to the media because they are often the result of "a difference of opinion" and because of the damage the reports can do to both the victim and the person accused of date rape.

"Sometimes you get a difference of opinion on what took place," Larson said. "There's not necessarily such a difference in opinion on what happened in the story itself. There's very little difference ... until the final moments."

Larson confirmed that no stranger rapes occurred last year, adding that reports of stranger rape would be released immediately because of the danger to the campus community.

■ A 1993 survey by a campus date rape task force reported that 15 percent of Eastern women are sexually assaulted on campus each year. But critics said the report was inaccurate, broad and feminist propaganda.

Some students and victims' advocates argue there would be a greater impact on the campus if date rapes were publicly reported immediately after they occurred.

"I think when something occurs on a weekend and is reported in the paper, it seems to make people sit up and take notice more so than say, when we do a program and give statistics that say we worked with 'x' amount of date rapes," said Bonnie Buckley, coordinator for the Sexual Assault Counseling and Information Service in Lawson Hall.

But Buckley also said she was concerned that publicity would hurt rape victims. She said students might make fun of victims if they read in the newspaper that a date rape has occurred, adding that students might not realize that rape victims could be in the same room with them.

Kristie Kahles, Student Government executive vice president who has held campus date rape seminars, said she thinks the university withholds rape records to protect its own image.

Larson disagreed. "They are not kept quiet — (J-Board) releases the statistics. The (reports) are an issue of privacy."

Many said making reports of rape public may increase the number of people who report the crime to police, saying that victims often won't report the crime out of shame or a fear that the attacker won't be punished.

Estimations of exactly how many date rapes actually occur on campus are sketchy. More than 20 students a year are treated for date rape at the Sexual Assault Counseling and Information Service, but not all of those attacks happened at Eastern.

A 1993 survey by the Date Rape Task Force said 15 percent of Eastern women are sexually assaulted on campus each year. But critics who dispute the report said it was inaccurate, broad and feminist propaganda.

National statistics suggest anywhere from 20 to 33 percent of women have been sexually assaulted by the time they finish college.

election in November.

"He never contacted me on my initial challenge," Weaver said last week. "I assume he refused the offer."

In the challenge, Weaver allowed 10 working days to respond.

Weaver said state statutes don't limit campaign spending. He has proposed legislation to place a ceiling on spending, but the bill never passed through a committee.

Carpenter said the challenge is "hypocritical and self-serving." In an Aug. 19 speech, he said that Weaver spent $19,067 on his reelection bid from Jan. 1 to June 30.

"I myself have been frugal and will continue to limit my campaign spending," Carpenter said in his speech. "I have spent only $2,748 between January and June."

Carpenter said a limitation on only the second leg of the campaign would let Weaver spend up to $44,067 in the entire race, while limiting himself to $27,748.

Carpenter challenged Weaver last month to capping his campaign spending at $25,000 from July 1 to the November election.

Weaver said Carpenter has never contacted him with any challenges.

Carpenter said he thinks voters are "fed up with incumbents spending big bucks to buy the office."

Possible tuition hike met with negative reactions

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Campus editor

Last week's Board of Governors' announcement of a possible tuition increase proposal has met with a negative reaction from three students.

The tuition hike proposal, which is currently under consideration, comes on the heels of a 3.1 percent tuition increase that took effect this fall. The amount of the possible increase has not yet been released.

A tuition hike must be officially proposed by the BOG and approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to take effect.

Jason Kirby, a sophomore industrial education major, said a tuition increase would be unfair to students attending Eastern.

"I just transferred here from Parkland College, and I have enough trouble just trying to pay this tuition," Kirby said. "I don't want to see tuition raised any higher than it already is."

"Students should be given more input on if a hike is necessary," Kirby said. "Maybe then the tuitions would not be so high."

Other students said they thought the tuition hike that took effect this fall increased tuition more than enough. The hike increased undergraduate tuition to $1,902 per year.

"I don't understand how they expect us to afford to pay tuition to (Eastern) if they raise it two or three percent each year," said Anita Beaman, a junior English and history major. "If it must be increased, it should be done on a gradual basis so that students can cope with it."

"I don't understand how they expect us to afford to pay tuition to (Eastern) if they raise it two or three percent each year."

— Anita Beaman

Junior English and history major

Sophomore English major Tina Gilbert said although she understands the university needs funds to pay for programs, she thinks increasing tuition again is going too far.

"Students must be able to afford the tuition if Eastern wants them to come here," Gilbert said.

Gilbert added that Eastern's teachers do not support a tuition increase either.

"If the professors don't want the tuition increase, then why should we have one?" Gilbert said. "Wouldn't they know what Eastern needs better than someone who doesn't even work here?"

Students at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and Southern Illinois at Carbondale have already been hit with a second tuition increase after beginning this semester with tuition increases of 5.5 and 5.3 percent respectively.

"Every university you look at, they are raising the tuition," Kirby said. "You almost have to go out of state."

Poetry readings to begin

By THERESA GAVLIN
Staff Writer

The Dudley House will reopen Tuesday for regular poetry readings in connection with the Coles County Arts Council.

Poetry readings will begin at 7:30 p.m. and are expected to last at least one hour. The Dudley House is open to all students who wish to read poems aloud or listen to others read poetry. The house is located at 895 Seventh St.

Nan Hennings, director of literature for the arts council, is the organizer of the poetry readings. Hennings said she begins meetings by greeting people and then reading three or four poems to get the evening started.

She said audience members are encouraged to read their own poems or poems from other authors from any time period. Hennings said poems for the first poetry reading should have autumn or back-to-school themes, although readers are generally allowed to choose poems from any topic unless a majority of the poems appear to be about the same subject.

Hennings said featured readers have been part of regular meetings in the past, but none are scheduled for Tuesday.

Rosie's receives liquor suspension

Mayor Dan Coughlin Thursday handed down a seven-day liquor license suspension and bar for serving alcohol to an 18-year-old police informant.

Coughlin, who serves as Charleston's liquor commissioner, suspended the license after Rosie's owner Taki Iatropoulos tried to prove that the bartender, Paul Lanman, made an honest mistake.

Lanman admitted to serving the informant but said the hologram on his driver's license made it difficult to read the date. Lanman said he thought the date on the driver's license read 1972, so he served him a beer. The license actually read 1975.

Rosie's, 611 Monroe Ave., will begin serving its suspension Sept. 28. The restaurant may stay open for business but will not be permitted to serve alcohol.

This is the second alcohol offense for Rosie's in the last year. The first was in December 1993, when the bar received a three-day liquor license suspension.

Coughlin could have fined the bar $500 instead of suspending its liquor license. Since taking office in April 1993, Coughlin has never issued a fine to bar owners for serving underage drinkers.

BOG could use refresher course in salary history

The Board of Governors must have a really short memory.

When salary increase negotiations with Eastern's teachers union, the University Professionals of Illinois, broke down in 1991, a federal mediator had to be brought in to settle the talks.

Editorial

When the BOG eventually granted the union the pay increase it was asking for, it seemed apparent the board had learned its lesson.

But last week's actions show the BOG hasn't learned a thing since the ugly 1991 negotiations.

On Tuesday, local UPI President Laurent Gosselin brought the latest salary increase offer from the BOG to Eastern faculty.

What ensued was a feeling of shock and betrayal among the university's more than 500 professors represented by the UPI, as it was announced the board offered only a 0.84 percent salary increase.

Ordinarily, this offer would be described by UPI representatives as troubling. But there were special circumstances surrounding this year's negotiations.

This year, the General Assembly set aside funds for a 3.5 percent salary increase for state educators.

So why did the BOG offer the union a pay increase more than 2 percent lower than that figure? Why did the board come up with a number that wouldn't even remain consistent with rising inflation? And, more to the point, why did the board even present such an insulting offer?

Gosselin described the negotiations perfectly when he said the offer was "a slap in the face" to Eastern faculty.

With the offer, the BOG turned negotiations which were expected to run smoothly because of the additional state funding into a painful process that brought back talk of 1991.

If the BOG is serious about these negotiations, they will have to polish up on its history — a class board members must have fallen asleep in.

When the 1991 history lesson is complete, they should put the 3.5 percent increase on the table. It should serve as a minimum starting point in salary talks.

If they don't, they may find a lot of classrooms empty.

TODAY'S QUOTE

Look at me: I've worked myself up from nothing to a state of extreme poverty.

S.J. Perelman

Telethon is merely an epic whinefest

We all knew it was coming. We tried to run, we tried to hide, we tried to pull the plugs on our TV sets. But still, there it was, pervading the airwaves and darkening our already miserable lives.

It was the 412th annual Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon/Weekend with the Has-Been Stars, Friends, Relatives and Casual Acquaintances of Jerry Lewis. It was a chance to watch our local news anchors and weather forecasters play dress up and speak in serious tones they normally reserve for talking about approaching tornados or the latest Amtrak disaster.

It was a chance to experience a warm, fuzzy moment with a victim of muscular dystrophy.

It was a chance to watch second-rate sideshow acts and performers who haven't been seen or heard from since Elvis was appearing in places other than 7-11's and rural trailer parks.

What can possibly be said about an event that showcases the "talents" of Yakoff Smirnoff and Billy Ray Cyrus, deceptively billing such things as entertainment? Haven't Jerry's Kids suffered enough?

Apparently not, judging from some of the other doses of visual morphine that have appeared on my TV screen over the past few days. Maybe acts such as Confederate Railroad and Charo, the oldest and easily the largest piece of human fluff to ever inhabit the earth or the planet Silicon, are enough to make Eastern's own University Board wet its collective pants with excitement.

But they somehow failed to inspire me to get up out of my chair and phone in my pledge/guilt offering. They did, however, inspire me to get up and change the channel.

A friend of mine best summed up the feeling of utter annoyance this yearly telethon inspires when he said, "I would personally be willing to donate $1,000 of my money to any cause that would keep Jerry Lewis off the airwaves this time next year."

Jerry could save us all a lot of time and personal suffering

Sherry Sidwell

"What can possibly be said about an event that showcases the 'talents' of Yakoff Smirnoff and Billy Ray Cyrus...?"

if he did away with the dancing poodles and the tear-jerking inspirational stories altogether and quit attempting to disguise his beg-a-thon as anything other than what it really is — one long whine for money.

Wouldn't it be so much more to the point if Jerry simply appeared on our televisions minus the cheesy band, rental tux and 8.5 gallons of hair lubricant to announce in as calm a voice as he can manage that he's not going off the air until he gets whatever amount he's asking for?

I'm not knocking those who spend their time attempting to raise money for worthy causes. And I'm not knocking those who truly feel compelled to donate time or money to causes they sincerely believe in.

But we shouldn't allow ourselves to be guilted into making donations we can ill-afford by an oily-haired, second-rate 1950s movie star best known for "The Nutty Professor" and having his own cult following in France.

And we shouldn't blandly write out a check to Jerry's Kids and believe that we've done our part to make the world a better place. Tossing a few dollars their way may ease our conscience but it doesn't automatically let us off the hook.

If you truly and sincerely want to donate money to the cause or charity of your choice, that's fine. Donate to Greenpeace, the American Cancer Society or the Clinton Defense Fund. Donate to the political party of your choice or your neighbor's dog.

And if you're in a truly philanthropic mood but can't find just the right cause, donate to me.

Just don't part with your hard-earned money because somebody tells you it's the right thing to do, whether that person is a greasy, aging telethon host or a financially-strapped newspaper columnist.

MIA Student Senate members can make impact by resigning

Dear editor:

I would like to comment on the current state of affairs of Eastern's Student Government. At the senate meeting this past Wednesday, approximately 15 of the 30 voting senate members failed to show for the meeting, four out of five executive officers (who had promised to make an IMPACT on this campus) also found other activities to occupy their time, and the meeting had to be cancelled.

In addition to failing to attend the weekly Student Senate meetings, members have also neglected to organize the annual Recognized Student Organization Days during registration, address the issue of alternative social activities for Eastern students, and publicize the opportunity for all students on campus to apply to be members of student/faculty boards.

As a former senate member and executive member of Eastern's Student Government, I am very disappointed in many of the members' performances this year.

To the members of Student Government who believe that meetings do not need to be attended, that campus issues will take care of themselves, that opportunities do not need to be offered to all students, and who think that this will look great on a resume, I strongly encourage you to resign. That might be the best IMPACT you can make on the campus this year.

Amy Jobin

Reader distorted license plate facts to support candidate

Dear editor:

I am writing in response to a recent letter to the editor written by Carolyn Brown Hodge. Hodge complained that she had been waiting three months for new license plates.

I am concerned by any unnecessary delays in processing applications. Hodge's case deserved a thorough review and here are the facts:

Hodge stated that she applied for plates on May 19 and was issued a Temporary Registration Permit valid for two months.

Her signed application received June 28 in the Special Plated Division of Vehicle Services indicated a June 26 purchase date (not May 19) of a 1994 Chrysler Lebaron. The dealership from which she purchased this vehicle did not complete the application correctly and therefore it was returned with a letter explaining the error on July 11. The corrected paperwork was received July 14 and Hodge's personalized license plates were sent to her residence on Aug. 23.

So you see Hodge, your custom ordered license plates took less than 30 business days from receipt of the request to the mail date.

Thanks to Secretary of State George Ryan's continuing effort to create one-stop shopping for all vehicle services, it is now possible to purchase license plate stickers at no additional cost over the counter at almost all Secretary of State facilities across the state.

Public satisfaction with the office is at an all-time high with 90 percent of customers at facilities rating services between "outstanding" and "very good."

It is unfortunate that Hodge chose to distort the facts of her own particular transaction in order to promote the candidate she is working for.

Hodge is a Pat Quinn campaign coordinator in eastern Illinois, and her biased comments should be viewed as such.

said head coach Cizo Mosnia. "We had miscommunication to pick up the free man."

Kelly put the Panthers up ahead for good in the second half, when he headed in a pass from sophomore Henry Ospina, making it a 2-1 score.

Mosnia explained that he was pleased with Kelly's performance, especially since Kelly's goal came shortly after he entered the playing field.

"This guy very calmly put the ball in. I'm very happy with his performance," Mosnia said.

Steve Van Dyke then rounded out the scoring with a head shot for a score. The insurance goal was assisted by McTighe and sophomore Josh Cournaya.

As a team, Mosnia stated that his team committed "silly, little mistakes" and that he was "not really" pleased with his team's performance.

"We played well at times, and other times we didn't," Mosnia said.

But Mosnia added that those mistakes were "nothing drastic," and that his team "can adjust" to what will be expected of them before their next game.

The Panthers will try to capitalize on their "mistakes" on Wednesday, Sept. 7, when they open their Mid-Continent Conference schedule against Quincy University. The contest is set for 4 p.m. at Lakeside Field.

• From Page 12

junior tailback ran for only 58 yards on 18 carries in the 31-15 loss to non-conference foe Murray State.

After the High number of accolades the Mattoon native garnered during the preseason, anything short of parting the Red Sea may be considered a lost season for No. 32.

Personally, I think those expectations are just a little too High. Willie rushed for the 1,487 yards he did a year ago because nobody had heard of him. Thorne was last year's feared weapon, and when he did not produce, Willie filled (or found) the gaps a High percentage of the time.

Such is not the case this year. I'm Highly disappointed to announce that while we hope the North Koreans remain without nuclear capability, even they have Highly confirmed reports of Willie's ability.

Willie's High single-game rushing totals this year will likely be fewer and much more appreciated.

And Jasper says he's discovered the cause of what ails me.

"You've got to be sick of all the puns on Willie's last name," Hornswoggle said. "I know I am."

Volleyball team drops 3 in opening matches

Ralston upbeat after 4th-place tourney finish

By TIM BROZENEC
Staff writer

Despite three losses this weekend at the University of New Mexico Tournament, Eastern volleyball coach Betty Ralston isn't about to turn pessimistic.

"The caliber of competition at the tournament was very strong," Ralston said. "The teams that were there are far and above anyone we'll see this year. This will help us prepare for this coming weekend (at the University of Wisconsin Invite)."

The four-team field included Weber State, host New Mexico and Texas, ranked eighth nationally, and whom Eastern gave a good test.

In that game, played Friday evening, the Lady Panthers were defeated 12-15, 14-16 and 10-15.

"We served five game points in that second game," Ralston said. "We played very well. We lost Sherri (outside hitter Piwowarczyk) to an ankle injury on game point in the first game. And in the second game (of the match), middle hitter Lorri Sommer sprained her ankle. So considering that we lost two starters, we did a very good job."

Kaaryn Sadler, named to the all-tournament team with a total of 50 kills and 44 digs, led Eastern with 20 kills and 22 digs, while sophomore Vanessa Wells had 10 and 12, respectively.

On Saturday, New Mexico was a different opponent, but the result was the same in a 8-15, 7-15 and 2-15 loss.

In that match, Eastern's worst showing in the tournament, the percentage of Eastern errors to total attempts was a Major League pitcher-like .089. Wells led the team in kills with 12 while Sadler had a team-high 10 digs.

In its final match against Weber State, Eastern won the first game 15-9, but dropped the next three 13-15, 10-15 and 10-15, lowering its early-season record to 0-3.

Sadler led the team with 19 kills and seven service aces, but strong play from her was expected. Ralston was impressed with the play of junior Amy Poynton and freshman Kara Harper.

"Amy came through with the second highest kill total (13) to Kaaryn," she said. "Kara did a very good job in the tournament. She had 105 assists in the ten games, and she served very well in what was her first collegiate experience."

As for Piwowarczyk and Sommer, Ralston said both are questionable for this weekend. But for those who will be playing, she has a few tips for improvement.

"We need to work on hitting percentages. They were very, very low this weekend and need work. And we got outblocked by everybody. Texas had 21 blocks to our three," she said.

Something's got me feelin' awfully sick

I fell ill at last Thursday's season-opening football game.

The folks over at Health Service assured me there was no connection between my mystery illness and the level of play on Eastern's side of the ball.

Unfortunately, that was the only thing the good doctors (they are doctors, right?) were capable of ruling out. But that's fodder for another canon.

Speaking of cannons, Pete Mauch's debut in the starting-quarterback role looked about as good as anything Jeff Thorne put together last year.

Even though my yet-undiagnosed ailment relegated me to bed rest at home during the second half, Mauch's somewhat-auspicious showing should not put his starting job in jeopardy.

As head coach Bob Spoo has already said, Mauch will probably get the nod when the Panthers travel to the University of Texas at El Paso next weekend.

While I'm told junior-transfer Ron Reichert looked good in a fourth-quarter relief appearance (remember, I was sick and sleeping at home, thoughts of a winning season dancing in my head), that should not be enough to strip Mauch of the No. 1 role after just one game.

I do, however, question the original selection of Mauch as the starting signal-caller. Mauch must have brought a much better passing efficiency or some undisclosed intangibles to the position that Reichert didn't offer.

Seems to me that Reichert's and Mauch's football abilities would be best used with Reichert at QB. Have Mauch return punts and do spot work at wide receiver, and I think the entire team would benefit.

I applaud Spoo for sticking with Mauch next week. You don't read those words out of this writer's pen very often. Treasure them. But Reichert should, and will, start later in the season.

"Mauch's got to put up some better numbers in the next two weeks, or he's done at QB," says Jasper Hornswoggle, self-proclaimed, long-time, Panther-football analyst. "And Health Service has got to learn that you don't treat nausea with cough medicine."

Maybe our hopes were just too "High" - Willie High that is.

UTEP up next for 0-1 Panthers

Most times it's tough for a Division I-AA football team to compete with a program on the Division I-A level, just because of the differences in size, facilities and opponents.

Eastern was sunk 31-10 when it traveled to Annapolis to take on Division I-A Navy a year ago, and the Midshipmen were not considered one of the country's powerhouses by anybody.

Nevertheless, the Panthers have two I-A schools on their schedule this year, and are preparing to face the first of them when they head down to Texas to battle the Miners of Texas-El Paso on Saturday at the Sun Bowl.

UTEP had a tough season last year, finishing 1-11 overall and 0-8 in the WAC, and the Miners appear to be continuing that trend this season, dropping their season-opener Saturday to Wyoming, 36-13.

El Paso has had it so rough recently that its biggest name is its place-kicker, All-WAC first-teamer and All-American candidate Marshall Young.

Taking the reins of the Miners this year is former defensive coordinator Charlie Bailey, who took over for David Lee with five games remaining last season. Bailey has marked his territory, shifting his offense from an option attack to a pro-style, one-back set and simplifying things defensively.

"The biggest change we made was offensively, going from an option type to a pro-style offense," said Bailey. "(Defensively), we've made some major revamps in our scheme. We've simplified a lot of things so the defense isn't quite as complicated as we had it before."

UTEP returns 16 starters and 43 lettermen in an attempt to finish with its first winning season in six years. The Miners have won only one more game the past five years than they won in 1988, when they went 10-3. Since then, UTEP has gone a horrific 11-46.

Keying the new offense is senior fullback Kaio Aumua, who led the Miners in rushing last year with 656 yards and four touchdowns on 129 carries, and junior tailback Toraino Singleton, who picked up 107 yards and a touchdown on nine attempts Saturday.

Sophomore quarterback Shawn Gray got racked around in his UTEP debut this weekend, getting sacked four times and hitting on only eight of 26 passes for 114 yards. The Miners were haunted by four turnovers, all of which they lost on fumbles.

Defensively, UTEP will try to improve on a system that produced only 13 sacks last year and that allowed an average of 37.4 points a game.

The Miners return their entire secondary, including senior cornerback Kevin Goolsby, who led the team with four interceptions. And sophomore middle linebacker Michael Comer recorded a team-high 16 tackles and forced a fumble in his debut Saturday.

Calabrese named Gateway Player of Week

By PAUL DEMPSEY

Eastern receiver Jason Calabrese was named the Gateway Conference's offensive player of the week after his impressive performance in the Panthers' 31-15 loss to Murray State last Thursday.

Calabrese had six catches for 146 yards and two touchdowns (14 and 48 yards).

Coming into the game, the Panther wide receivers were considered the weak part of the offense, but with the Murray State defense holding running back Willie High to just 53 yards on 18 carries, Calabrese stepped forward for the big plays.

With time running out in the first half, quarterback Pete Mauch eluded the defensive rush twice and scrambled to hit Calabrese for a 48-yard touchdown with 0.7 seconds remaining.

Calabrese also caught a touchdown pass late in the fourth quarter.

Head Coach Bob Spoo said he was impressed with the play of Calabrese and that he (Calabrese) was deserving of the award.

"He had a really fine game for us," Spoo said. "It really came as a very pleasant surprise."

Also receiving votes for offensive player of the week were quarterback Brett O'Donnell of Northern Iowa and running back Tim Ardis of Western Illinois.

• On the quarterback front, Pete Mauch will likely start Saturday's game at Texas-El Paso despite a strong backup performance by Ron Reichert, according to Spoo.

"I think he will be (the starting quarterback). He didn't play that badly nor did the other guy (Reichert) play that well to dislodge him," Spoo said.

Mauch completed 14 of 26 passes for 212 yards and one touchdown, but he also threw three interceptions.

The 5-foot 10-inch Mauch had three passes deflected at the line by Murray players, but Spoo said that had nothing to do with Mauch's height. While Mauch will probably get the nod, Spoo said Reichert will get a lot of work with the offense during practice this week.

Reichert entered the game with 7:49 remaining in the fourth quarter and drove the Panthers to a touchdown in just 2:06. Though on Eastern's next possession, Reichert was intercepted to end any hope for a victory.

Soccer 1st team to win this fall

The Eastern soccer team began this season on the right foot as they scalped the Bradley Braves 3-1 in Peoria.

Besides outshooting Bradley 17-8, the Panthers (1-0) were helped in part by goals from junior Jason Specht and sophomores Brian Kelly and Steve Van Dyke.

Specht began yesterday afternoon's scoring in the first half when he recovered a shot from sophomore Brad McTighe.

McTighe's shot hit the crossbar, and Specht finished off the unassisted goal to make the score 1-0.

The Braves knotted the score 1-1 when an 18-yard shot went past sophomore Brian Ritschel who recorded six saves.

"We made a mistake in the back-
