Instructor to visit White House

by Pam Johnson

A part-time Eastern journalism department faculty member Friday will be one of 30 editors and radio/tv news directors from across the nation invited to an all-day briefing at the White House.

Jim Roberts said Monday the press conference is one of several periodical conferences held for the non-Washington media that do not maintain bureaus in Washington.

The conference will include five 30-minute sessions with top cabinet members and a 30-minute question and answer session with President Carter, he said.

Members of the press invited to this conference were chosen by the White House press office for their prominence and experience in media, Roberts said.

Since Roberts comes from a primarily agricultural region, he said his questions will be farm-oriented.

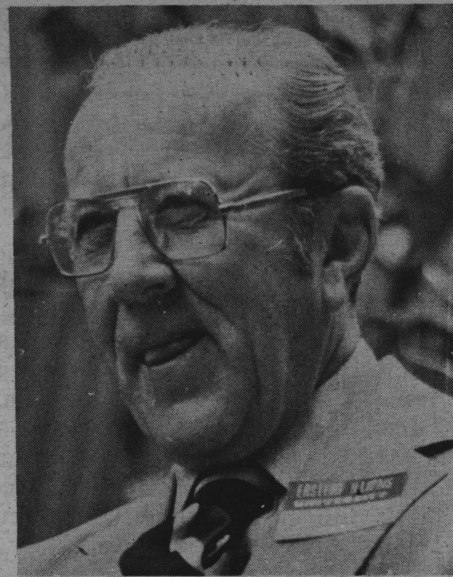

Roberts said a student also gave him a question concerning the disparity of financial aid or tax breaks for middle class families with college age students who do not qualify for other financial aid.

Roberts lectures a night class in advertising and one section of introduction to journalism.

He also is publisher of Cornbelt Press Inc., a group of 10 community newspapers.

Accorded "Distinguished Alumnus" honors by Eastern last fall, Roberts is first vice-president of the Illinois Press Association and a director of the National Newspaper Association.

Roberts said he has made several previous trips to Washington to attend a Gerald R. Ford press conference, two receptions for Richard M. Nixon, a

Jim Roberts

Ford reception, and a reception held by Rosalyn Carter.

Eastern cracks down on loan defaulters

by Phil Vettel

Eastern is now following stricter new federal guidelines in tracking down students who default on National Direct Student Loans, a financial aids spokesman said recently.

"We will take defaulters to court," Nancy Compton, collections specialist, said. "Under federal rules, we have to."

The new policy, which went into effect last October, requires collegest to turn over names of students who have defaulted on loans to a commercial collection agency.

After the loan payment is 15 days delinquent, the financial aids office sends the student a written notice, Compton said. Another notice is sent 30 days later if the loan has not been paid.

Two more notices, usually a phone call and a demand letter, follow on the 60th and 75th days of delinquency.

"After 105 days of non-payment, we are required by the government to turn the loans over to a commercial collection agency," Compton said.

In fact, defaulting Eastern students might find themselves saddled with an additional penalty.

"Many NDSL loans stipulate that defaulting students are responsible for collection costs," Compton said.

Since most commercial collection agencies charge at least 33 percent of the amount collected, a student defaulting on a $1,000 loan may find himself owing $1,500, Compton added.

At the end of fiscal year 1978, 17.5 percent of the NDSL money loaned by Eastern had not been repaid, Compton said.

This reflects the overdue debts of 696 former students who owe all or part of their loans, she said.

John Flynn, associate director of financial aids, said he does not think Eastern's 17.5 default percent rate is excessive, but he plans to do as the government requests.

"It isn't essential, but we feel we need the (federal) money," Flynn said. "Let's face it. The more money we have, the more loans we can give."

Currently, federal tax dollars pay for over 88 percent of the NDSL program, Flynn said. Without the money, Eastern would have to rely on repayment money from previous loans to continue the loan program, he added.

"Prior to the new regulations, we would wait a year or two before going to a collection agency," Compton said. "Now it's about six months."

She said students with delinquent accounts are contacted at least once a month in attempts to secure payment.

Compton, who began her collections job in September 1977, said she has not yet caught up on all of Eastern's delinquent accounts, some of which are many years old.

Flynn said, all NDSL collections prior to 1977 were processed by hand, but now they are handled by computer.

"We do as much as is humanly possible, considering that one person runs it," Flynn said. "We do a pretty damn good job. But it's simply impossible to keep up with the volume."

Thompson nixes funds for schools

CHICAGO—Gov. James R. Thompson said Tuesday he could not give school officials the amount of money they were seeking because that would lead to bankruptcy or a tax increase.

However, Thompson said if state spending is less than expected or state revenues are more than expected, he would provide more money for education next year.

He also predicted that 1981 would be a better year for the state economy and for education.

Thompson defended his fiscal 1980 budget recommendations during a brief appearance before the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

His $3 billion education budget is about $150 million less than requested by the Board of Higher Education and the Board of Education.

"If I were to recommend to the Illinois General Assembly that it fund higher education and elementary and secondary education at the recommended levels of both boards, we would have two choices," Thompson said.

He said he would not allow the state to become bankrupt and added, "There will not be a tax increase in Illinois in the next year."

"It is my hope that between now and July 1. . .through either cost savings or revised economic forecasts additional support can be found for your budget requests."

Thompson said he would like to add $6 million to $8 million to the $1.017 billion higher education budget he recommended "to insure the 7 percent pay raises that this board has made its No. 1 priority. If that becomes possible, I'll be the first one back here with the good news."

The Board of Higher Education now must create a plan to allocate the money that Thompson said would be available to the colleges and universities next year.

Jim Furman, executive director of the board, said it still could recommend its original budget figure to the legislature.

Iranian military shows loyalty

TEHRAN, Iran—Waves of jet fighters and helicopters flew in tight formation over Tehran Tuesday in a new show of government force as supporters of a rival government named by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini marched through the city.

The thousands of demonstrators supporting Khomeini defiantly waved their fists at the aircraft, shouting "Allah Akhbar" (God is great).

The flyover punctuated the resolve of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar to stay in power until elections can be held.

A top aide to Khomeini claimed the threat of a military coup has passed and that the ayatollah now has some military support. But he hinted broadly that more violence was likely before Iran's crisis eased.

The aide, Dr. Ibrahim Yazdi, formerly of Houston, Texas, said many elements of Iran's 430,000-man army had swung over to Mehdi Bazargan, Khomeini's choice as prime minister of provisional revolutionary government.

Carter orders fuel-saving drive

WASHINGTON—Concerned over the cutoff of Iranian oil, President Carter has ordered federal agencies to intensify fuel-saving efforts in a drive to head off mandatory conservation measures.

A memo from Carter to agency heads suggests reducing thermostat settings, lighting, vehicle use and energy-hungry research.

Energy Secretary James R.

(AP) News shorts

Schlesinger and his staff plan some heavy "jawboning" of industry officials to persuade them to save more fuel and switch from oil to coal or natural gas if possible.

An informed administration source said even more stringent measures were being drafted for Carter's consideration, such as restriction of parking privileges for federal employees and perhaps a limit on gasoline for the federal fleet of vehicles.

The continued shutdown of Iran's oil production due to political upheaval has just begun to affect imports into the United States, said the source, who asked not to be identified. The last oil tanker from Iran arrived this week, the source said.

The source said the continued absence of Iranian oil, unless offset by Saudi production or U.S. conservation measures, could lead to a shortage of about 1 million barrels a day in the United States, or about 5 percent of daily requirements.

"Unless we do everything we can voluntarily, we may be dragged reluctantly into allocation, Sunday service-station closing, easing environmental regulation, the kind of things we had to do during the Arab oil embargo in 1974," the source said.

Rep aims to ban special districts

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—After years of inaction, an effort may be building in the Illinois General Assembly to finally do away with many of the thousands of hodgepodge Illinois local government units that keep heaping new taxes on the local taxpayers.

Rep. Doug Kane, D-Springfield, says he plans to introduce legislation this year to abolish more than half of the estimated 3,000 "special districts" that levy taxes for everything from cemetery care to building monuments.

The 3,000 special districts are among 7,000 tax-levying units of local government in Illinois - more than in any other state and an arrangement that officials agree has fueled tax increases and has confused taxpayers.

If Kane's effort were to succeed, it would be a dramatic about-face for the Legislature - which regularly has created new districts or raised the tax rates for existing ones.

Militant farmers continue protest

WASHINGTON—Militant farmers vowed a return to the streets but most managed to drive in nothing but circles Tuesday as Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland assailed their demonstration as "an unmitigated disaster."

As the protesters fumed and threatened, in the words of Michigan farmer Jerry Hanning, "that all hell will break loose," it was the capital's commuters who were freed to go their own way.

Police kept hundreds of tractors and other farm vehicles penned on the Mall, the usually plush grounds between the Capitol and Lincoln Memorial.

There was some rock-throwing at police cars and slashing of tires, while other demonstrators took out their frustrations by setting one tractor ablaze, driving another into the reflecting pool and furiously churning up the earth with others.

At midafternoon, authorities did allow 200 tractors out of the encirclement for a brief, tightly escorted swing around the White House and back—before the evening rush hour—as a "trial run" of whether any further caravans might be allowed.

"We've got agreement on 200 tractors," said one protest leader. "Tomorrow we'll negotiate new numbers."

Chemotherapy verified as cure

CHICAGO—A Minnesota physician successfully cured a large cell lung cancer patient solely through chemotherapy, considered the first such instance, he reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Gerald J. Vosika of the University of Minnesota Hospitals said he began treating a 47-year-old man in March 1973 diagnosed as having metastatic large cell carcinoma, using the drug lomustine.

The condition constitutes about one-fifth of all lung cancer. It is considered much more difficult to treat with multi-drug usage than the prevalent small cell cancer.

Vosika said there are four types of lung cancer, with large cell comprising about 20 percent of the cases.

The patient survived about five years, dying about one year ago of pneumonia. "There was no evidence of any cancer," Vosika said.

Voter registration files updated by clerk's office

With no upcoming elections in store, Tom Hughes, the election coordinator for Coles County, said Monday the county clerk's office has been busy updating voter registration files.

All registered voters that have not voted in the past four years or those whose addresses have changed over that period without notifying the county have been sent forms to update their voting file.

"Precincts 14, 15, 16 and 17, which are composed mostly of students, were sent around 500 update forms," Hughes said.

He added the number of forms sent to student composed precincts were higher in number than other precincts, but with the overturn of students that take place in a college that the number was to be expected.

"If a student gets an update form then all they have to do is fill in the required information, be it a change of address or whatever, and mail it back in to the county clerk's office," he said.

Hughes added, "After we get the form back, we simply renew the voter's card and update their file."

Hughes said the clerk's office has sent out approximately 2500 update forms throughout the county.

"That's an unusually low number. With the computerization of our filing system we've really been able to keep our files up to date," Hughes said.

He added that before the filing system was computerized about 5000 update forms were sent out.

CGS approves six new courses

The Council on Graduate Studies Tuesday approved six new courses to be offered next fall and charges the title of an existing course.

Three of the new courses will be offered in the psychology department, 5999 Internship in School Psychology, 5560 Marriage and Family Counseling and 5580 Psychological Supervision.

Additional new courses are educational guidance 5360 Introduction to Family Counseling, music 5120 Music Theatre and special education 4800 Studies in Special Education.

Larry Williams, a member of the CGS, said Tuesday the special education class was the only one of three special education classes suggested which was approved.

The others, 4780 for one credit hour and 4790 for two credit hours were not approved and instead the CGS approved the 4800 course for a variable of one to three credit hours.

The CGS also approved a motion to change the title of educational psychology 5400 from Advanced Educational Psychology to Psychological Approaches to Learning.

Compton agreed and said her staff is large enough to handle the routine paperwork, but not to trace missing accounts. Eventually, however, all the accounts will be traced, and her office will do what is necessary to collect, she said.

"We have never gone into litigation," Compton said. "But we will have to start, because of these new regulations."

If Eastern is in trouble with the federal government, Flynn doesn't see it as an immediate problem.

Lair renovation plans need student input

Plans to renovate the University Union Panther Lair or rent its space to an outside food franchise appear to have been hastily conceived and should be reconsidered so their expense and necessity can be further explored.

Both the renovation and rental proposals were made to buck up the Union's ailing finances. The Lair is now operating at a deficit on weekends.

The renovation plans were designed shortly after revelation of the huge deficit in the total Union's operating budget. We think the plans are merely a way to draw out more student money to pay for the past administrative mistakes which led to the deficit.

Until the benefits of renovating the Lair can be clearly demonstrated, we oppose that proposal.

Offered as an alternate proposal is the rental plan, under which Union space would be leased to a fast food franchise, such as McDonald's or Burger King.

That plan may have merit, providing the Union can guarantee that students will not be charged exorbitant prices merely to eat at a "name" restaurant.

However, we feel that the Union, operated efficiently and staffed by students, could offer the same services to students as a franchise could, with the added advantage of keeping all profits within the university.

In all, four alternatives have been offered concerning the Lair's future: maintaining it as it is, renting Lair space to a commercial restaurant, undergoing limited renovation and going on with complete renovation.

We favor a fifth choice: ask students which alternative they prefer, what other ideas they have and what they are willing to pay for.

We suspect they will want to keep the decor as it is and spend any extra money on upgrading the quality and variety offered there.

However, we cannot know that for sure, and neither can the Union, until students are asked.

Letters to the editor

Film unfair

Editor,
Midnight Express is a bizarre, shameful movie.

While trying to get on the plane to the U.S. from an Istanbul, Turkey, airport, Billy Hayes is caught with a considerable amount of hashish and is sentenced to a lifetime imprisonment in a Turkish prison. After serving three years, in 1975 he somehow manages to find his way out, and upon arrival to the U.S. writes a story of what is called the "Incredible True Story of William Hayes."

Then an English producer, Alan Parker, takes the story, clips out the things he does not want, adds things where "he feels" appropriate, changes some of the characters and events and supplies the whole thing with special film techniques, camera effects, lots of blood and nerve racking torture scenes and creates an award winning "Best drama of the year."

It has been more than two months since I saw the movie and I still feel sick to my stomach every time I hear about it. What bothers me the most about Midnight Express is the fact that the film was trying to show a smuggler as a hero, and a whole country of people, namely over 45 million, as a "Nation of Pigs," the exact sentence used in the movie.

Turkey is a country where 75 percent of the population consists of farmers. The soil is favorable for growing hashish which is the only income for a large number of Turkish families. This production is strictly under the control of the government to be used definitely not as a dope to get one "high" but in various chemical and medical purposes.

Since Turkey does grow a relatively large amount of hashish, to see that it will be used in the areas it was meant for, the government has to make strict laws and regulations. These laws and regulations are exactly the same for a Turkish person or a foreigner who deviates from them.

I am not in a position to claim that Turkish prison are the best in the world. But I am sure there are a number of countries all over the world where the institution is not any better than it is in Turkey.

What basically makes me feel that an award winning film is worthless in spite of the fact that technically it is very well made, is the morality used throughout the whole movie.

The "hero" saw Turkey and met Turkish people only thru three years of imprisonment. Thus he sees the whole country from a cross section of criminals who the people of that country felt should be isolated from the society at least for some period of time.

Throughout the movie only bad and ugly is reflected. There is never the slightest indication of good and beautiful. To a handful of people who produced the film, Turkey is hell, and its people are the pits.

I strongly do believe that Midnight Express is the best "drama" of the year - a drama of a few pitiful people who, while trying to criticize a justice system, created a movie of shame, bizarre feelings, and worked on a theme of prejudice, bigotry and unfairness to the Turkish people.

Cartoonist introduced

From time to time we'll be running editorial cartoons like this one drawn by Paul Pinderski.

Pinderski, a senior journalism major, has written for the Eastern News for more than a year and last semester was co-city editor for the last half of the term.

This semester Pinderski decided to try his hand at editorial cartooning. We hope you'll find his insights into the issues useful.

Quota? We lost

Editor,
In Mr. Adducci's article on "New Rush Quota" appearing January 26, six sororities were interviewed concerning their reactions to the new rush system. There happen to be seven sororities on this campus that this new system will affect, and as members of Alpha Sigma Alpha we feel that the time should have been taken to interview us as well.

Being as we are one of the smaller houses on campus, this new system will have a greater effect on us, whether good or bad, than it will on most others. Therefore, we feel that we deserve equal time in expressing our reaction.

In theory, the quota total was designed to give more women the opportunity to become a part of the greek system by allowing the houses to exceed the previous maximum membership of 90 women. The intention of this plan was to increase the membership of all the houses.

However, we experienced a 75 percent decrease in membership under this new program. We feel that the new quota total system should be reviewed in order to make it effective for all involved.

New housing code promotes health, safety

by Paul Pinderski

Living in a cold, leaky or unsafe apartment is no paradise to a tenant who is paying rent for adequate housing.

Where can that tenant go to complain and get the problems solved?

Under the jurisdiction of Charleston's building and zoning officer Terry Sharp the city's relatively new Basic Property Maintenance Code sets minimum housing standards for all homeowners and renters including Eastern students and personnel.

"The code's purpose is to protect public health, promote safety in all existing structures by establishing minimum standards for basic equipment facilities for light, ventilation, space, heating, sanitation, and fire protection," Sharp said.

Sharp said before the new code was established last November, the old ordinance was "fuzzy" regarding who's jurisdiction it was.

City Planner Larry Stoeber said the old code did not specify exactly what was required by landlords and tenants.

Sharp said the new model code does specify basic housing requirements.

"Some of the basic requirements I look for when I inspect buildings is whether there is adequate heat, plumbing, ventilation and general upkeep," he added.

The standards of the code are that the furnace must be able to keep minimum temperature of 65 degrees in the winter, that most windows be openable and that plumbing is operating properly and garbage disposal is adequate.

Also on the inspection sheet are safety and sanitary maintenance elements. Foundations, exterior walls and roofs have to be weather and water tight and rodent proof.

Floors, interior walls and ceilings have to be rodent proof and in sound condition.

Stairways, porches and fire escapes have to be safe and able to support loads.

Chimneys and smokestacks must be in safe and sound condition.

Sharp said he prefers complaints in writing because it gives him access to the building to inspect with (tenant's permission) and it also gives him a record if there are any court proceedings.

Sharp added that any violations would be discussed with the landlord and tenant before any legal action is taken.

"I don't get involved in landlord-tenant lease disputes," Sharp added, just possible code violations.

Speech pathologists aid residents

by Janet Gorski

Speech pathology majors at Eastern are helping nearly fifty local residents a semester with their speech disabilities, Wayne Thurman, speech pathology department chairman, said Friday.

Approximately fifty upperclassmen and graduate students are involved in the speech therapy program developed at Eastern in the 1940s.

The free service provides about two hours a week of individual counselling to persons with speech and hearing disabilities.

"We explain to the residents that this help isn't on the professional level and that students-in-training will be working with them or their children," Thurman said.

These students-in-training prepare a lesson plan every week to be approved by a member of the speech pathology staff. After the therapy session the students write a brief report summarizing the session.

Speech help sessions are held at the Clinical Services building and the Developmental Center on campus and also at Lincoln and Jefferson schools.

"We have to observe each student at least 25 percent of the time," Thurman said.

"This training is essential to getting a job in the field," Thurman concluded.

The program is accredited by the American Speech and Hearing Association, he added.

Faculty voting light

The turnout Monday of Eastern faculty members voting on amendments to the newly revised constitution was "very light," Faculty Senate Chairman Robert Shuff said Tuesday.

Voting will continue until 1 p.m. today in the University Union lobby and results should be ready by 1:30 p.m. Shuff said.

The revised constitution needs majority approval from faculty members before it can be sent to Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin for final approval.

"If the constitution is approved by the faculty I feel the president will also approve it," Shuff said.

Business requirements to be cut by fall semester

by Sandy Young

A change in the required number of hours in the business core which will allow majors in this area to take more elective courses is planned to go into effect next fall, a business department chairman said recently.

Arthur Hoffman, chairman of the department of accountancy, data processing and finance said under this new program, the number of hours required for a business major will be changed from 59 to 54, allowing students more elective hours.

He explained that this will be accomplished by dropping three courses from the present requirements.

In the area of data processing, the two introductory courses, 1250 and 2300, will no longer be required for business majors.

Hoffman added that data processing 1250 will be available for non-business majors, and data processing majors will still be required to take 2300.

A new course, data processing 2175, will also be offered next fall and "will include introduction to computers, computer components and how it (the computer) is used," Hoffman said. The class will also cover BASIC programming and introduction to COBOL, which is a business programming language," he added.

"The purpose of the business core is to provide students with basic understandings of principles, and not to make them experts," Hoffman said.

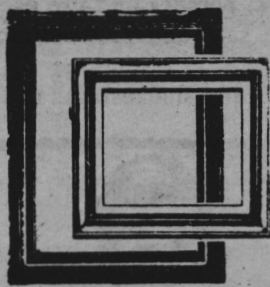

Other changes include the combination of two management classes, 3340 and 3010, into one comprehensive class called "management and organizational behavior."

Hoffman said management 3340 "created a complication because it included things that were already in 3010."

He explained that the decision was made to reduce the number of required hours in the business core because "it was getting out of hand."

Hoffman said in the business core "the minimum number of courses the student should take in this common body of knowledge is one year, including math and economics courses.

German instructor joins state committee

by Yvonne Beeler

A member of Eastern's foreign language department has been appointed to the Illinois Task Force on Foreign Language Education by State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin.

Gerald F. Carr, German instructor, is now serving on the committee which will assist the Illinois Office of Education in working with the Presidential Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies.

Carr said the task force will examine instructional programs in foreign languages and cultures in Illinois schools and recommend measures to strengthen them.

"Recommending ways of encouraging the study of foreign languages and cultures in Illinois schools is an additional responsibility of the task force," Carr added.

Members on the task force include parents, teachers and administrators from public, parochial and independent schools, kindergarten through university.

Associations of teachers, administrators, school boards and regional superintendents made nominations for the task force. Cronin then chose from among the nominees.

A letter from the Presidential Commission said it will focus its work on international education, foreign languages at all levels of education, and research in international and area studies.

Crane proposes salary decrease

Newly-elected Congressman Dan Crane's first bill, which he will introduce Thursday, would cut the pay of congressmen and senators by five percent if it passes.

Crane was quoted in a press release as estimating the savings to taxpayers to be over $1.5 million.

Crane said the reason for his introduction of the legislation "was to put it on the record to the other members of Congress my stand on fighting inflation and to show how serious each of them are about inflation."

Hockey club loses season opener to Kankakee 11-6

KANKAKEE--Kankakee's All-Star team overcame four goals by Eastern's Mike Noonan to hand the Hockey Club an 11-6 setback Saturday.

The match was Eastern's first of the semester after having two earlier scheduled games cancelled due to bad weather.

Kankakee broke open a close game with three goals in the final minutes for their victory Saturday.

Noonan, Eastern's team captain, was still the individual standout with his four goals plus an assist. He had his team's first three scores to keep Eastern tied with Kankakee.

Kankakee then got three quick goals to offset Noonan's final score to make it 7-4.

Dave Weaver's slap shot on an assist from defenseman Steve Wilson narrowed the gap to 7-5, but Eastern could come no closer.

The teams then traded scores, Eastern's coming on a Tom Wilson goal, but from then on it was all Kankakee.

Despite the loss, Noonan was not disappointed with his club's performance.

"Steve could be a great scorer for us, but we had to play him on defense, because two of our defenseman were out of action," Noonan pointed out.

"Tom is one of the strongest and fastest skaters we have," he added. "He sets up more goals than any player I've ever had the opportunity to play with."

Eastern will play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the University of Illinois.

Later in February the club has a rematch against Kankakee slated.

Baseball team returns minus nine players

by Carl Gerdovich

Forty-five days prior to the season's opening game, Eastern head baseball coach Tom McDevitt appears concerned, but relaxed.

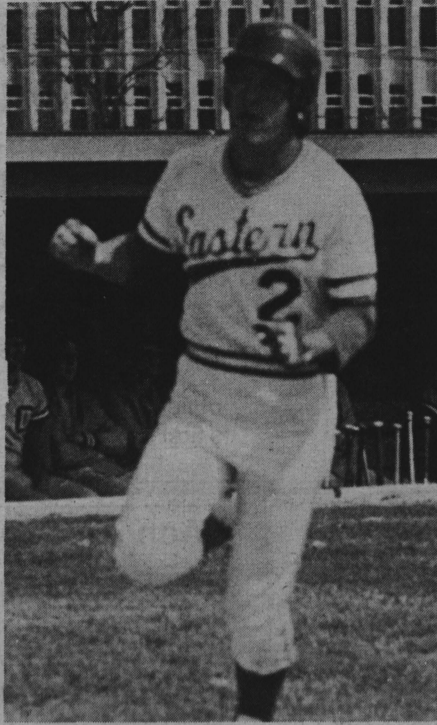

Following last year's fifth place finish in the Division II college World Series, McDevitt has lost nine players from his 27-19 club, including four via professional contracts.

Third baseman Rick Doss, shortstop Jeff Gossett and outfielder Pat Rooney all chose to pass up their final year of eligibility for an opportunity at the professional ranks, while catcher Tim West recently signed a major league contract following graduation last May.

"There's no doubt, it's going to be tough to repeat last year's accomplishment," McDevitt said Monday.

"If Doss, Gossett and Rooney were all back, hey, we'd be there. But now we have a lot to prove," McDevitt said.

Returning seniors this year include pitchers Rick Furmanski and Tom Ozga, infielders Dennis Conley and Cam Kennedy, and outfielders Paul

Paul Franson

Franson and Mike Nichols.

Having been practicing indoors for two weeks, the Panthers sport 10 new faces on the roster. McDevitt is well aware of the inexperience situation and is out to find the best in what is available.

After losing the left side of the infield, McDevitt knows the chore will be difficult in replacing the passing quality of Doss at third and Gossett at short.

"Those two were hard-nosed ball players along with Rooney and West. You just don't replace them," the head coach said. "We have some newcomers with potential, but only time will tell," he added.

Freshman Tim Pyznarski and junior college transfer Mike Dooley are currently the top prospects in filling the positions vacated by Doss and Gossett.

Conley (.237), a returning letterman, brings experience to the infield at his second base position as McDevitt looks to him to gear the infield.

"There's no doubt, Conley will be at second base and he will benefit the younger players," McDevitt said. "He has the best hands of any infielder around."

Cam Kennedy (.343), used regularly as a designated-hitter last spring, is the top candidate for first base along with Gordon Smith.

Kennedy set a new single-season home-run record (11) at Eastern last year, including a new World Series record when he hit three in a single game for nine RBI's.

"Cam is the finest long ball hitter Eastern has had in a good many years. He'll be an asset for us," McDevitt said.

Franson (.403) and Nichols (.298) along with junior Ken Saxe (.286) bolster the outfield spots while junior Marty Pulley is the prime candidate behind the plate.

McDevitt said Franson is "one of just three Eastern players to hit over .400 in the last 25 years." The head coach is counting on the consistency of Saxe saying "he may the sleeper."

"Right now, the outfield and catching are our strong points. Last year at this time, it was our infield as the strong point," McDevitt said.

"We will have to execute to a greater degree than last year to go anywhere," he added.

Panthers are still alive as playoffs draw near

It is getting near tournament time in college basketball, and it should be about time for the Eastern Panthers to put on their annual late-season rush to gain a berth in the Great Lakes Regional, right?

It may happen again this season, but then again, it may not.

At one point last season, Eastern was 9-6, and the NCAA tournament seemed far away. But then Charlie Thomas, Derrick Scott, and the rest of the Panthers caught fire and won nine of their last 11, and ended up 3rd in the nation.

The Panthers are obviously a talent-laden outfit this season, but will need a consistently strong effort through the season's final eight games if a tournament bid is to become a reality.

Five of the eight games are at home, so there is one big advantage. The Panthers are 12-7 on the season, and have played nine road contests, winning only three. With a big home stand left, the Panthers may pull off what last year's team did and roll into the tournament with a long winning streak.

The Panthers may end up in the NCAA tournament, but they will probably accomplish that feat on the basis on talent alone, without the emotion that last year's club had.

Eastern is currently 12-7 on the season, and is

Brad

Patterson

With the 77-66 loss to Wright State on Monday night, the Panthers now trail both Northern Michigan and Wright State in the ratings.

Northern Michigan is 15-5 overall, and is rated among the nation's top ten teams. They are also tied with Northern Iowa for the Mid-Continent Conference lead.

The Panthers are third in the MCC, but have five conference games remaining, four of them at home. So Eastern still has a good chance to win the league. Although the league champion doesn't automatically get a tourney bid, it would be almost a cinch that the NCAA would not overlook the MCC winner.

Northern Michigan plays here on Feb. 15, in what very well may decide the conference championship.

St. Joseph's College is fourth, and the Panthers play at Rensselaer on Monday. A loss there would be critical in that it would probably push Eastern down to fourth in the regional ratings.

That would not only make the Panthers vulnerable to get nosed out for a bid by another team that gets hot in the last few weeks, but also could allow the NCAA to bring a team from another region in to fill out the tournament.

Among the other teams still in contention are Indiana State-Evansville (10-8), Bellarmine, (10-8), and Indiana Central (10-9). An outside possibility is Northern Kentucky.

Eastern head coach Don Eddy probably summed up the situation the best when he said, "about anybody could get in there."

Eddy also said that the Panthers need to do well against other Great Lakes teams, which places even greater importance on Monday's game with St. Joe.

The Panthers play at home twice this week, on Thursday against Akron, and Saturday when Youngstown State is here.

There is still a lot of basketball left to played between now and Feb. 24, when the Panthers take on Western Illinois in Macomb. And the only sure bet is that nothing will be certain concerning the NCAA tournament until that contest is over.

Eastern may end up in another NCAA tournament in March, but it isn't going to be easy.

Swim team to battle Salukis

by Jane Meyer

A surprise may be in store for Eastern women's swimming team when they travel to Southern Illinois University-Carbondale Wednesday, - coach Sue Thompson said.

"I don't know what kind of a line-up Southern has this year," Thompson said. "Last year they only had four swimmers on the squad and they were very strong."

Thompson said that she heard from reports that Southern now has eight members on the squad, four of them being relatively strong performers.

Members of Eastern's squad said they expect wins in the distance freestyle from Lori Harris and a winning 1-2 combination in the breaststroke from Karen Moss and Lynn Minor.

Bonnie Lovett will be returning to competition in the 500-yard freestyle while Harris should grab the first place honors.

In other events, Thompson said Lovett and Farr will be going head to head in competition.

Team member Marianne Edwards said that if competition keeps going as it has been the Panthers can expect at least one improved timing in Wednesday's meet.

"In every meet so far, at least one person has improved her time in individual events," Edwards said. "I think we can also expect more than one timing to improve."

The squad on the whole feels that competing without the aid of divers has been a major factor in the team's losses.

"We are definitely hurting without divers," Edwards said. "We probably could have won a few more meets if we had divers."

Thompson said that she is still switching team members to different event to make the "final decision for state."

She said this especially includes the relay teams.

"I'm still switching to find the right combination," Thompson said. "The relay teams are always changeable."
