An hour before add/drops began Thursday, students were already gathered in the Union walkway awaiting a chance to modify, lighten or untangle their spring semester schedules. Some, such as the student in front, put the waiting time to good use.

Add/drop wait pays benefits

Two who 'camp out' rewarded with classess they needed

By JEAN WRIGHT
Campus editor

Some people are just gluttons for punishment, especially those that confuse waiting to get into add/drops with waiting for Springsteen tickets to go on sale.

Sophomores Eric Platou and John Stein went to "camp out" to be first to get into the add/drops line at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday but were kicked out of the University Union only to return at 6 a.m. where they waited outside until the doors opened at 7 a.m.

But the wait was far from over. Once inside the Union, they had to wait until 1 p.m. for the doors to add/drops to open.

"At seven in the morning I was sixth in line," Platou said. "There was a guy ahead of us that had been there since five in the morning with blankets and everything."

Stein said he waited outside to get first in line because it was a "must situation."

Stein, a speech and journalism major, said he must get all of his requested classes or he will not graduate in four years.

"I was first in line for the speech table and it wasn't 20 seconds before there was a whole line of people behind me," Stein said. "It was really a do or die situation for me to get all of my classes."

Assistant Registration Director Dave Sardella said scheduling went "pretty well."

"Students seem to have full loads now," he said. "Now they're looking for the good times."

Sardella could not give an exact figure for the number of students who participated in add/drops Wednesday and Thursday but speculated that there were "hundreds."

Both Platou and Stein echoed what other students were saying: add/drops should not be held on a class day.

"Since we start classes on Wednesday, they should have add/drops on Monday to give us a couple of days to do it," Platou said.

Sardella couldn't say whether add/drops goes smoother on class days or not. "It's the old calender thing," he said. "It's worked both ways."

Add/drops will continue from 1-3:30 p.m. Friday in the Union Ballroom.

CAA passes 'Holocaust' seminar

By MIKE BURKE
Staff writer

A senior seminar for honors students that had originally been voted down, entitled "The Holocaust," was approved during the Council on Academic Affairs meeting Thursday.

The CAA overturned their original decision, making way for the course to be offered during the four-week intersession of summer school beginning this May.

"The Holocaust" was voted down by the council in December, but has since been restructured. The restructured course passed by a 9-1 vote.

Student CAA member Anthony Brunsvold cast the sole vote opposing the senior seminar. Brunsvold said he felt the amount of material covered in the class, as indicated in the course outline, was not sufficient enough to warrant the awarding of four credit hours.

"The Holocaust" examines the effects on individuals and nations due to the systematic destruction of European Jews by the Nazis from 1933 to 1945.

When first proposed, the course was to be taught over two summer school sessions, dividing the credit hours equally between the two. At that time, several council members disapproved, fearing the possibility of a student receiving two credit hours without completing the course.

However, Herb Lasky, director of the honors program, told the council that the credit hours were divided between the two sessions for reasons of clarity on a student's transcripts.

That disapproval by some council members prompted a tie vote and the course failed to get CAA approval. That vote, however, was rescinded later by the council after the course was restructured in order to be offered, in entirety, over one session of summer school.

Also at the meeting, initial steps were brought out as to how Eastern plans to deal with one aspect of a (See CAA, page 7A)

Parking plan OK'd, will be in use 'soon'

Lights needn't be left on

By PAMELA LILL
Government editor

Plans for the 15-minute parking spaces have been finalized and signs for the new spaces will go up as "soon as the grounds people can put them in," Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said Thursday.

However, because of some reservations about requiring students to leave their car lights on, that part of the plan has been eliminated.

Larson said Monday that 15-minute parking plan was not ready to be implemented because he wanted to discuss certain parts of the policy with Housing Director Lou Hencken and Student Body President Floyd Akins.

Larson said he had "difficulty with the concept of leaving the parking lights on" because if a student found after using one of the spaces that his battery was dead, the university could perhaps be held liable.

After meeting with Hencken and Akins, Larson said they decided it would "not be in the best interests of the university or the students" to require parking lights be left on.

Akins presented the proposal to the Residence Hall Association last December for approval after Hencken and Larson approved the idea.

Although Larson had earlier said that enforcing 15-minute parking might also be a problem, Akins said Thursday that the spaces will be "carefully monitored" and that he didn't feel "anybody is going to abuse the privilege."

Larson added that having the parking lights left on "really wouldn't help us any more in monitoring." In addition, having to leave the parking lights on "could cause damage to someone's vehicle," Larson said.

The 15-minute spots will be located "as conveniently to the front doors (of residence halls) as possible," Larson said.

Signs will be put up by Carman Hall, the Triad, in front of Stevenson and four on the south end for Andrews, Lawson, Taylor and Thomas, he said. A parking space already exists for Pemberton Hall, Larson added.

Although some RHA members voted against the plan last December because they thought it would reduce the number of spaces available to students living in residence halls, Akins said the 15-minute parking will only exist where spaces were unreserved.

The new 15-minute spaces are on a "trial-basis" this semester, Akins said. "If it gets abused, they'll (students) lose it," he added.

U.S. sees 'end of road' in Libya; Shultz hints at military action

Shuttle plans still up in the air

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—Engineers removed a pencil-size sensor from a stuck valve Thursday and NASA said it will try for a seventh time Friday to launch the remodeled space shuttle Columbia on its first flight in more than two years.

The launch has been postponed six times since Dec. 18 and, with rain and clouds forecast for Friday morning, it could be a record seven delays for the shuttle program.

"We are optimistic we will be able to find a hole (in the clouds)," said NASA spokesman Hugh Harris. The launch period extends from 6:55 a.m. to 9:33 a.m. EST.

Hopes of launching on Thursday were dashed before the countdown could start when technicians found a valve stuck open in a fuel line in one of Columbia's three main engines.

Study says AIDS hurts economy

CHICAGO—The nation's first 10,000 cases of AIDS will cost more than $6.3 billion in hospital fees and lost income, says a study believed to be the first to estimate economic impact of the deadly disease.

Researchers were not trying "to put a dollar figure on a life, which seems kind of heartless, but (to show) that this is a loss that everybody shares," said public health specialist Ann M. Hardy of the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"It's not just these health-care costs that are important, but we're losing people in the prime of their lives," Hardy, who led the study, said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

Toxic-shock risk the lesser evil?

CHICAGO—Using an over-the-counter contraceptive sponge linked to toxic-shock syndrome may be less dangerous than not using it because other contraceptive methods and pregnancy also pose risks, a public-health physician says.

"Withdrawal of the sponge from the market or non-use by consumers is not warranted by the available data," said Dr. Arthur L. Reingold of the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"Women need to be aware of the risks and benefits associated with the various forms of contraception. . .and then make an informed choice," he said in an editorial.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Thursday that the United States is near the "end of the road" in applying economic pressure on Libya and would consider using force, if necessary, to counter terrorism.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, meanwhile, ridiculed President Reagan as a "useless actor" and attacked the United States as "stinking" and "rotten," saying he will do whatever he can to end the U.S. military presence in the Mediterranean.

"We are preparing to use the means that will be effective and are necessary," Shultz said at a news conference dominated by the escalating U.S. effort to tame Khadafy.

"Force may not be the best means, but it may be necessary," he said.

Shultz announced, meanwhile, that he was sending his deputy, John C. Whitehead, to Europe to try to persuade U.S. allies to support the American campaign to isolate Libya economically.

With rising emotion, he suggested that the Europeans, who have been dragging their feet, should look at the photographs of the mayhem at the Rome and Vienna airports after terrorists struck at the check-in counters of El Al, Israeli airline, and other carriers.

"Other countries should take a good look, good hard look," Shultz said.

Khadafy, at a news conference Thursday in Tripoli, said economic sanctions will have no effect on his nation. He scoffed at the U.S. position as "silly and emotional. . .looked down upon by the international community."

Refusing to give up hope of support from allies, Shultz said "people's thinking is moving, it's dynamic." He said Whitehead, a former New York investment banker, would explain the U.S. view and be "as persuasive as he can."

Reagan calls for budget overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, who has been frustrated by the government's budget-writing process since coming to Washington five years ago, will ask Congress in his State of the Union address to put its economic house in order, administration officials said Thursday.

The officials, speaking on the condition they not be identified, said Reagan will use the Jan. 28 speech to present his vision not just for 1986 but for the closing years of the century and spell out what he believes still needs to be done.

Completing work on an overhaul of the income tax system, which the president proposed in last year's State of the Union address, will be a top priority, the sources said.

But they said Reagan also wants to tell Congress that the complex budget-writing process it adopted more than a decade ago may be redrawn if the government is to keep its own promise of balancing the budget by 1991.

One administration official described the current process as "a shambles" and said Reagan is tired of trying to work within constraints.

The president has tried unsuccessfully to win approval of a constitutional amendment to prohibit the government from spending more than it takes in and a measure that would give the president the power to veto individual spending items in appropriations bills without having to veto the entire bill.

The sources said the White House budget office and top Reagan aides are searching for new ideas for overhauling the existing system.

John Cafferty performance set for Jan. 24

By DEBBIE PIPPITT
Staff writer

The hard-hitting rock-n-roll of John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band will fill Lantz Gym at 8 p.m. Jan. 24.

The opening act for the band will be "Flash Kahan."

Ceci Brinker, assistant director of student activities, said the University Board concert committee had looked into several bands that would be available to perform on that date and also fit the concert budget.

Brinker said the concert committee started the search for an early spring semester performance last November.

Dave Shaw, administrative assistant to the concert committee, said the William Morris agency, Cafferty's agent, contacted the UB in December, expressing an interest to perform at Eastern.

Shaw said the cost of the performance will be $8,000 plus $1,000 for the opening act.

A "good ballpark figure" for the total cost of the concert, including advertising and labor, is around $10,000, Shaw said.

Brinker said, "We wanted a band that would appeal to the students."

Opening for the Beaver Brown Band is Flash Kahan, a relatively unknown group.

However, Shaw said, "The William Morris agency is the 'grandad' of the agencies. I would not think they would get a band that was just sprouting."

Because of the popularity of the Beaver Brown Band, both Brinker and Shaw are optimistic for a good turnout.

Since Lantz's seating capacity is 5,200, Brinker would like to see a crowd of at least 2,500 to 3,000.

"We would be pretty pleased," she said.

Shaw said, "I expect to do real well. We're not looking to make money, but just to break even."

Brinker added that the band had a recent album out called "Tough All Over," which will probably help bring in some fans.

John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band is probably best known for their platinum album for the movie "Eddie and the Cruisers."

Their new album contains such hits as "Tough All Over," "C-I-T-Y," and "Small Town Girl."

Cafferty also did a cut from the "Rocky IV" soundtrack called, "Hearts on Fire," which will be released in January.

Tickets are $6 with a student ID and $8 for the public. Students must also present their ID with the ticket to get into the concert.

Tickets went on sale Thursday at the Union ticket office and will be on sale between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Tickets are also available at Mazuma Records, 1406 Sixth St., and Mr. Music in Mattoon.

Shaw said any student interested in helping promote the concert should call the Student Activities Office at 581-3829.

Credit no-credit deadline Friday

The application deadline for taking a class credit/no credit is Friday, according to Registration Director Mike Taylor.

Taylor said students can stop by and pick up the cards outside of the Registration Office, located in the south basement of McAfee Gymnasium.

Credit/no credit was passed by the Council on Academic Affairs in 1983 and was first used for the summer 1985 session.

Students receive credit if they earn an A, B or C in the class. Students receive no credit if they earn a D or F.

Courses excluded from the credit/no credit option are university requirements, required professional education courses, senior seminars and courses which apply to the student's major.

AB approves money for Players trip

By BILL DENNIS
Staff writer

The Apportionment Board on Thursday gave $1,038 to the Players, Eastern's acting group, to compete at the American College Theater Festival at Northern Illinois University.

Theater instructor J. Sain said he was pleased with the amount, although it is $404.50 less than the $1,442.50 originally requested.

"I think that's great," Sain said when contacted after the meeting. "The AB has always been very fair to us."

The cut included $304.50 from the $654.50 requested for food and $100 requested for gasoline.

Instead, the board decided to give the Players $350 for food, $10 for each student per day. The seven Players will be in DeKalb for five days for the competition.

Bill Clark, AB advisor and Union area head, warned members about setting a specific amount for items, including food, because other school organizations would expect the same amount when they make their requests for funding.

"As we go into the budgeting period, we are going to have to treat equals as equals," Clark said. "If we are willing to give (the Players) $10, other organizations will expect the same."

Board chairman Ann Hasara said groups that are asking for money to compete for the school should receive more consideration than groups traveling for other reasons. Clark agreed with Hasara.

"You also have to realize that when student government or the University Board (travels) they are on a retreat or are going to a convention," Clark said. "These people (Players) are going to a competition. They are not a club."

Also, the gasoline money was cut from the request because board members said that gasoline is included in the 20-cent-per-mile charge for the use of a vehicle from the motor pool.

"The $100 for gas is not a great deal to me," he said. "I was given wrong information at the motor pool." Sain said he was told that he would have to pay for gas in addition to the 20-cent-per-mile fee.

Shoplifting hearing delayed further

By LARRY SMITH
Staff writer

A preliminary hearing Thursday for Eastern basketball players Jerry Strickland and Cornelius "Jay" Taylor was granted another continuance until 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Strickland, 19, and Taylor, 18, were arrested and charged with retail theft Dec. 26 for allegedly stealing $15 worth of film from Wilb Walkers, 505 W. Lincoln Ave.

Basketball Coach Rick Samuels suspended the pair from team trips to Hawaii and Northeast Louisiana, because he said they had indicated to him they did it.

They both attend Eastern on full athletic scholarships and have been reinstated.

Samuels posted bail for the two after he reached an agreement with their parents to be reimbursed.

Taylor, a 6-foot-2 freshman from East Aurora, has played in eight games averaging 8.4 points and 3.5 rebounds a game.

Strickland, a 6-foot-4 sophomore forward from Meridian Mounds, has played in six games and averages 3 points and 1.2 rebounds a game.

Transmitter installation nearing completion

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Activities editor

The Radio-TV Center is getting closer to its goal of over-the-air television broadcasts.

Construction workers are preparing to install a $226,370 television transmitter in room 126S of Buzzard Building, said John Beabout, Radio-TV Center director.

The transmitter is scheduled to arrive in March, he said.

Two air-conditioning units will also be installed to handle the heat generated by the transmitter, which will put out 50,000 watts of effective radiated power.

Room 126S already contains the radio transmitter, which has been in place since the end of spring semester last year. Over-the-air radio broadcasts began last July.

Eventually, Beabout said, the room will serve as a master-control room for operation. A semi-soundproof wall, now under construction, will reduce the noise and the heat created by the transmitter.

Beabout said having both transmitters in the same building as the station will be convenient.

"In a lot of instances the transmitter is miles from the station," he said.

Room 126S was chosen because it's close to the tower. A transmission feed line must run from the transmitter to the antenna on the tower. A long feed line loses signals more easily than a short one, Beabout said.

Both the radio and television antennas are on the same tower and the transmitters are in the same room, which saves money, Beabout said.

Chicago Bears beating path for Super Bowl win

Although the Super Bowl Shuffle may have appeared a little premature, it looks like the Chicago Bears may well be on their way to donning Super Bowl rings.

After a 15-1 regular season record and one playoff win under their belts the Bears will face the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in the second game of their Super Bowl quest.

It all began with the season's first game that produced a 38-28 win over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers that saw quarterback Jim McMahon pass for his first two touchdowns of the season.

The Bears were unstoppable until Dec. 3 when Miami gave the team its only season loss on Monday night football. The 38-24 loss crushed the team's hope to be the first undefeated National Football League team since the Dolphins finished with no losses in 1972.

However, Miami wasn't a total waste. During the game, running back Walter Payton became the first in NFL history to gain 100 yards rushing in eight straight games.

The Bears' clinched the NCF Central Division title when they routed the Dallas Cowboys 44-0 Nov. 17.

The Bears' defense, which is rated number one in the NFL for the second consecutive year, is responsible for much of Chicago's success by holding many teams to very few yards.

And no one will forget William "Refrigerator" Perry's rookie year. He became an overnight success after catching a touchdown pass in front of millions of fans on Monday night football.

As evidence of the Bears' winning season, nine players have been named to the Pro Bowl including Payton, McMahon, tackle Jim Covert, strong safety Dave Duerson, middle linebacker Mike Singletary, defensive ends Richard Dent and Dan Hampton, outside linebacker Otis Wilson, and center Jay Hilgenberg.

After the Bears' fantastic 1985 season and the disappointing loss in the second round of playoff games last year, Chicago deserves a Super Bowl champion.

Stereotype brings bruising remarks

Stereotypes are rampant on college campuses. Nerds, dumb jocks and socialites all are part of prejudices held by college students. But since I've come to Texas Tech, I've been bombarded with sly remarks about my dorm and how I'm not a member of fraternity. Apparently I'm not member of the "in" crowd.

I decided in February to go to Tech and sent my dorm application to Tech in March. I applied for Murdough, Weymouth and Coleman. I was bound to get one of the three. Little did I know come summer, when I got my dorm reservation, that I'd get to live in Sneed.

From that day on, all I hear is jokes about "the dorm ghetto," better known as the Bledsoe, Gordon and Sneed residence halls. The verbal abuse started when I told my friends which dorm I was assigned to live in. My friends who were assigned to live in one of the more popular "in" dorms were not impressed with my living arrangements. "Sneed? That place stinks, You got the worst dorm on campus," I was told.

When I came to the Lubbock for the first week of school, many mixers were taking place. Eager to participate in the activities, I asked a girl to dance and she accepted. Later on, she found it important to know where I lived in Lubbock. Not realizing how quickly I was about to be stereotyped, I replied honestly that Sneed was my new home. That was the last I saw of that girl.

The prejudice toward Bledsoe, Gordon and Sneed is uncalled for and typical of some stereotypes that float around Tech.

The involvement in fraternities and sororities is yet another status symbol considered necessary to be part of the "in" crowd at Tech.

Crossview:

Brian Marczynski

Some fraternity members do not care to see talking to a non-member.

There are advantages of not being in a fraternity or sorority which are overlooked. More time to yourself, not paying dues and freedom to do what you want on a weekend all are advantages non-members have.

The same holds true for students living in Bledsoe, Gordon and Sneed. Even though Bledsoe, Gordon and Sneed are older dorms, they make up for it in many other ways. The rooms may not be air-conditioned, but we have much more room compared to the sardine cans the "in" crowd lives in.

But most of all, the people at BGS make living in the "getto" a unique experience. The atmosphere is not as stuffy as the "in" dorms, and there's never any worry about what fraternity you're in, what clothes you're wearing or how much money you have to spend.

I'm hopeful that many of the students can drop these biased opinions. If being a part of the "in" crowd calls for me to have stereotypes like these, I don't need to be "in"—I'd just as soon be "out."

Wall Street's sudden drop no cause for big concern

Losses mean little compared to past gains

NEW YORK (AP)—The sudden drop in the stock market Wednesday and Thursday from record highs may have raised some unsettling questions about Wall Street's high hopes for the economic outlook this year.

But analysts in the financial world contend that the sell-off came as neither a big surprise nor a cause for great concern, viewed in the perspective of how far and how fast stock prices rose in the last few months.

The higher the market soared in recent weeks, they say, the more vulnerable it became to any sort of disappointment like the abrupt rise in interest rates that touched off the selling Wednesday.

"Considering the gains we've had, we've given up relatively little," said Newton Zinder, a veteran of more than two decades as a market analyst for E.F. Hutton & Co. "The market was very extended."

And President Reagan is so confident that the Dow Jones industrial average will rise again, he's taking bets on it, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in Washington.

"The stockmarket will go up and he's taking bets on July 1st—will it be up or down from the present," Speakes said.

When the Dow Jones industrial average, the oldest and best known measure of stock price trends, fell 39.10 points Wednesday, it nominally

“Considering the gains we've had, we've given up relatively little. The market was very extended.”

—Newton Zinder
E.F. Hutton market analyst

” broke the record for a single-day decline of 38.33 points set in the midst of the Great Crash of 1929.

But the two events were not even close to comparable on a percentage basis. Wednesday's decline amounted to 2.5 percent of the average's value, while the Oct. 28, 1929, drop was 12.8 percent.

In Thursday's trading, the Dow Jones industrials fell a further 8.38 points to close at 1,518.23.

From last Sept. 20 through Tuesday's close, the Dow had climbed 267.76 points with scarcely a pause along the way. The drop on Wednesday knocked out less than 15 percent of that gain.

From August of 1982 to their recent highs, the market value of more than 5,000 stocks increased from just over $1 trillion to more than $2 trillion, as measured by an index calculated by Wilshire Associates of Santa Monica.

Concert slated for Sunday

By VICKY WOLSTENHOLME
Staff writer

A guest artist recital featuring mezzo-soprano Donna Bruno, a 1979 Eastern graduate, will be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Dvorak Concert Hall in the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

Music instructor Robert E. Snyder said Bruno was asked to perform because she is developing a reputation as one of the finest young singers in the United States.

"We like to have our graduates come back here and perform," Snyder said.

"We like to show other music students that there is potential to make it in the music business if they work hard at it.

"Donna is a fine vocalist who has a beautiful voice. She is even in the process of trying out with Beverly Sills in New York City, and her career is also rising upwards," he said.

The recital will consist of Poulenc's "Banalites," Bernstein's "La bonne," Granados' "Canciones Amatorias," and songs by Purcell, Rossini and Schumann. Bruno will be accompanied by music instructor Alan Aulabaugh.

While Snyder was unsure of what type of turnout to expect, he said, "I suppose there will be a modest number of people to attend the recital.

"At some recitals we may have around a hundred people attend to others with a couple hundred who attend," Snyder said.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Union Board sets meeting dates

Eastern's Union Board Thursday scheduled dates to review the Union's operating budget.

The board will meet Jan. 22, 23, 29, 30 and Feb. 5 and 6. The Wednesday meeting will be conducted from 5 to 7 p.m., and Thursday meetings will be conducted from 3 to 7 p.m.

The final budget will be presented to Verna Armstrong, vice president for finance and administration, for consideration.

Union Board Chairman Bill Clark said part of the board's responsibility is to review the Union budget, make any recommendations and send it to Armstrong for approval.

Textbook library starts regular hours Friday; students without books may still get them

The Textbook Library, located in the south end of Pemberton Hall, resumes its regular hours Friday.

The regular hours for the library are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Director Richard Sandefer said.

Sandefer said students must present their validated ID or paid fee card to receive their books.

Students are not required to pick up their books during the first week of classes, he said. They can be obtained anytime during the semester with the proper identification.

In attempt to alleviate waiting in long lines, Sandefer said past years have shown the times with the least amount of traffic to be from 8 to 9:30 a.m. and after 4 p.m.

recent decision by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The IBHE has decided to impose statewide college admission requirements beginning in 1990. However, that decision allows each university to admit those students who do not meet the new requirements "provisionally."

Eastern has raised its admission requirements for 1988, and Edgar Schick, vice president of academic affairs, told the council that the university would begin admitting students on a "provisional" basis that year.

Schick asked the CAA to recommend several of its members to serve on a committee, along with a group of administrators, that will determine what those provisions will eventually be.

"There are a whole range of different possibilities as to what we might come up with," Schick said.

One alternative might be to require students admitted provisionally to complete those general education requirements Eastern now has.

Writing Competency Examination

Undergraduates: To satisfy graduation requirements for the Bachelor's degree at Eastern Illinois University, you must pass the Writing Competency Examination. Register to take this examination after you have completed sixty semester hours (junior standing) and have credit for both English 1001 and 1002. Register in person from 8:00 to 11:30 and 1:00 to 4:00 at Testing Services, 208 Student Services Building; bring your EIU ID and $5.00 for the fee. The first of the two examinations scheduled this semester will be given on 6 March. The registration deadline is 20 February and that also is the last day that you may cancel your registration and have your fee refunded. (Register early to be assured of obtaining one of the 544 seats available.)

Passing the Writing Competency Examination is a graduation requirement as stated on page 40 of the 1981-82 catalog, page 43 of the 1983-84 catalog, and page 45 of the 1985-86 catalog.

Insurance Clerk

Interdisciplinary Minor in Bus. Ad.

At the beginning of Fall Semester, 1986, all students interested in pursuing an Interdisciplinary Minor in Business Administration must make application at the College of Business Office of Undergraduate Studies in Business, Blair Hall 101.

Ted Ivarie
Dean

Part-time Health

Spring Semester students who are registered for 9, 10, 11 hours as resident student may purchase Student Accident & Sickness Insurance for the semester by obtaining an application from Student Health Insurance, Student Services East Wing, and making payment prior to 3:30 p.m. January 22, 1986 at the Cashier's Window in the Business Office. Those students who had the insurance fall semester and wish continuous coverage should make payment before January 7, 1986.

Joyce Cinq-Mars
Insurance Clerk

Student Insurance Refund

Students who can provide evidence of having health insurance equal or better than the EIU Student Sickness and Accident Insurance may request a "Petition for Insurance Refund" form from Student Health Insurance Student Services East Wing. January 22, 1985 is the last date these petitions will be accepted for Spring Semester 1985.

Joyce Cinq-Mars
Insurance Clerk

Grade Change Appeals

Appeals to change assigned grades must be initiated by the students through the appropriate instructors within four weeks after the start of the grading period following the one for which the contested grades are recorded. The deadline for Fall Semester 1985 grade change appeals is Wednesday, February 5, 1986.

Dent's contract still question as title approaches

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP)—Defensive end Richard Dent Thursday refused to discuss the possibility of boycotting the Super Bowl if the Chicago Bears happen to get that far.

"It's nothing that I want to talk about," said Dent. "All I'm interested in now is the championship game. You can't get to the Super Bowl unless you win the championship game."

That comes up Sunday when the Bears and the Los Angeles Rams clash in Chicago's Soldier Field for the NFC title.

The winner advances to Super Bowl XX in New Orleans Jan. 26 against the winner of Sunday's New England-Miami game for the AFC championship.

Dent, a sack specialist, is in the third and final year of a $90,000-a-year contract which he has attempted to renegotiate from the start of the season with little success.

His agent, Everett Glenn, recently brought up the possibility that Dent might not play in the Super Bowl if the contract dispute hadn't been settled.

Dent did not definitely close the issue one way or the other.

Asked if someone else wouldn't be crazy for refusing to play in the Super Bowl, Dent said "I don't know about that. You'd have to look at his situation."

The matter has been in limbo the past week.

"I haven't talked to my agent on a regular basis," said Dent. "I haven't been in touch with him because his father has been ill."

Dent claimed earlier in the season he was unable to perform to the level he did last season when he led the Bears with a team-record 17½ sacks, tops in the NFC.

That also earned him a spot in the Pro Bowl where he registered three more sacks.

Duckworth in the pivot and 6-4 senior Jon Collins and 6-5 freshman Dave Vance at forwards.

The game could develop into a shootout between Kraayenbrink and Collins, who scored 24 points in the Butler victory.

Senior Doug Crook and sophomore Norm Evans will man the Panthers' guard slots, which have become a major concern for Samuels.

"We have got to get some depth at guard," Samuels said. "We have got to get some other kids playing."

Freshman Jay Taylor has been Eastern's main guard force off the bench. Taylor netted seven points in six minutes of playing time Wednesday.

History is on the side of Eastern which leads the all-time series with Northern Iowa, 16-5. The Panthers have won four straight contests from Northern Iowa.

The game can be heard on a tape-delay on WLBH-FM (97). Broadcast time begins at 9:40 p.m.

Red-hot lady cagers set aim on SIU in Gateway shootout

Eastern's women's basketball team will face its biggest challenge of the young Gateway Conference season when 7-3 Southern Illinois invades Lantz Gym at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Panthers, 10-2, and Salukis are knotted in a three-way conference tie with preseason-conference favorite Drake. All are 2-0.

SIU has wiped the Panthers on the gym floor in the last 15 meetings between the two, and Panther coach Bobbie Hilke sees this game as a "yardstick" that should indicate how her unit will measure up in the competitive Gateway.

"SIU is a great team with outstanding personnel. They are bigger than we are in the middle," Hilke said.

Eastern has a six-game winning streak and the Salukis will carry a five-game winning stint into the showdown.

The Panthers are coming off a 70-57 road victory against Illinois-Chicago, while SIU overpowered conference opponent Southwest Missouri, 75-33.

Petra "Pistol Pete" Jackson, a 5-8 senior guard paves the way for the Saluki offense.

Jackson, the No. 4 scorer in the conference, has an 18.8 points-a-game average and 6.7 rebounds, a high sum for a guard.

Jackson ranks first in the Gateway with an 83.8

free-throw percentage and leads the team in steals and assists.

However, it has been the outstanding play of sophomore forward Bridgette Bonds that has carried SIU during its five straight wins.

In her last five starts, the 5-11 Bonds has averaged 16.9 points and nine rebounds, while shooting 60.8 percent from the field.

Meanwhile, the Panthers are led by seniors Chris Aldridge and Melanie Hatfield. Aldridge sports a 19.9 points-per-game average and 6.5 rebounds.

Hatfield is also ranked with Gateway leaders in assists (61) and steals (57) while averaging 15.3 points a game.

"I think Melanie and Chris are playing the best they have ever played since coming to Eastern," Hilke said. "They both want to have great senior seasons and are playing within themselves."

"The key will be if we can defense them properly and not let them control the tempo," Hilke said.

All season long, Eastern's opponents turned the ball over nine times more, while the Panthers have recorded 80 steals.

However, opponents have 42.6-35.6 rebounding edge against the Panthers.

Also, Eastern has not beaten a squad coached by nine-year coach Cindy Scott. Scott is a perfect 11-0 against Eastern.

Wrestlemania Panthers to test perfect mark

Eastern's wrestling team will bring its 3-0 record to Lantz Gym this weekend to stage the first two home meets of the season.

The Panthers will host Missouri at 7 p.m. Friday and will take on Central Missouri at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Northern Illinois was originally scheduled for Friday along with Missouri, but due to a conflict they have been rescheduled for Tuesday.

The grapplers are coming off a long break following wins over Northwest Missouri and Indiana State on Dec. 14. Coach Ralph McCausland believes the long rest may have helped his team.

"Having a long break we are coming back with several positive things," McCausland said. "We got rid of some injuries."

Only three wrestlers were able to compete in the Midlands Tournament during Christmas break due to injuries and illness.

However, McCausland is confident the team is ready to get back into the season and fare well against Missouri and Central Missouri.

"I think we've got a legitimate shot of doing quite well against them," he said. "We have to have good matches and everyone has to be aggressive."

McCausland points to the 118, 158, 167, 177 and heavyweight classes as the strong points for Missouri.

"This will be our first home meet of the year and I hope the guys will rise to the occasion in front of the home crowd."

McCausland looks for Central Missouri, which split with Missouri, to be tough at the 134, 142, 150, 177 and heavyweight classes.

"We should have some real good match-ups in the middle weights," he said.

"I'm excited and ready to get back into the season and I think we're ready for competition," McCausland added.

Eastern point guard Norm Evans works the ball upcourt during Wednesday's 81-66 win over Butler in Lantz Gym. The Panthers tip-off their 1986 AMCU

Panthers open AMCU-8 slate with battle at Northern Iowa

This weekend marks a turning point for Eastern's men's basketball team as the Panthers open their 1986 Association of Mid-Continent Universities' schedule.

Eastern, third-place finishers in AMCU play last season, will begin their drive for this year's title with a 7:35 p.m. Saturday matchup at Northern Iowa.

"We will have our work cut out at Northern Iowa," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said.

"Northern Iowa is tough at home and should be sky-high opening up the conference in the (Uni-)Dome," he said.

Eastern enters the contest with an 8-4 record, while Northern Iowa was 4-5 heading into a Thursday game with St. Francis.

The Panthers are coming off an 81-66 tuneup victory Wednesday over Butler. Yet, both Samuels and his players are concerned about their play.

"We did not play real consistently as a team," Samuels said of the Butler game. "Kevin (Duckworth) came alive in the second half (and) hit the boards, but he still didn't have the kind of night we expect him to have."

"I kept rushing my shot and my legs felt kind of tired," Duckworth said later. "I just couldn't get into the flow of the game."

Duckworth shot 10-for-18 from the field along with a pair of free throws to end the night with 22 points.

"He (Duckworth) missed some shots that were point-blank," Samuels said. "I think that's just a matter of concentration."

Samuels indeed has every right to be concerned with his center's performance since Northern Iowa's size is expected to play a large factor in the game.

"They will be the biggest team we will face the rest of the year," Samuels said.

Northern Iowa will field a frontline of 6-8, 220-pound sophomore Greg McDermott at center, 6-6 senior Nathan Harris and the AMCU's leading scorer 6-3 senior Randy Kraayenbrink at forwards.

Kraayenbrink, closing in rapidly on becoming the purple Panthers' all-time scoring leader, is averaging 22 points per game.

"I believe he (Kraayenbrink) is one, if not the finest, shooter in the country and should be drafted very high in the NBA," Northern Iowa coach Jim Berry said.

The purple Panthers will also start 6-1 sophomore Lamont Robinson (9.6 points per game) and 6-1 freshman Nick Nurse in their guard slots.

"Before his career is over, Nick Nurse could be the best point guard ever to play for Northern Iowa," Berry said.

Eastern will counter with the 7-0, 280-pound (See PANTHERS, page 11)

Now is the time for Bears to prove 'shuffle' no joke

The Bears should have thought of this long when they isolated themselves from the confusion of their city to hold training camp in quieter Plattville, Wis.

That's when and where their march to greatness and national celebrity began. A 15-1 season was great—for the players, media and especially the starved fans.

The buildup surrounding the near-perfect campaign has left the Bears as even-money favorites to wearing Super Bowl rings. But first they've got to prove themselves all over again.

For Chicagoans, that means approaching it with guarded optimism. The fear of what might happen is there. Ask any follower of Chicago sports.

And speaking of fans, they have been blossoming like dandelions with each successive win. Everybody has a ticket to the bandwagon, all wanting a piece of America's newest spectacle.

For eight weeks, smiles have broadened in Chicago, save a gloomy Monday night in the New Bowl. It's been two months since the Bears clinched the NFC Central, and it's been mind games for them ever since.

They've been saying that Bears don't form now. Now they must keep their division crown from choking them.

Last Sunday's cremation of the Giants proved the Bears are better physically than they are philosophically. It was their first meaningful game in more than eight weeks, but it was apparent the intensity hasn't been watered down.

What was surprising however, is that the Bears didn't get into celebrating.

For a team that already started its Super Bowl shuffle, a team that schucks and jives in countless commercials, the Bears are amazingly businesslike on Sundays.

But after all, this is a business, and there's nobody better in it right now than the Bears.

Of course, that opinion could change as early as Sunday if the Bears do what they've done only once this season. But don't count on it.

The 15-1 season was fun while it lasted—So was playing bully with the Giants. Now there are few teams left with only room for two to travel to Super Bowl XX.

The Bears found themselves in this very position last year. Again, they are so close they can taste it yet only four quarters away from complete erasure of a sparkling season.

Perhaps the enormous chip the Bears carry on the shoulder pads was implanted after their dream-shattering loss to San Francisco a year ago.

With that in mind, the Bears don't even appear slightly excited that they'll play the Los Angeles Rams for the NFC Championship this Sunday. Instead, it's one of two more blocking sleds standing in the way of the Bears' 'mission.'

Mission. That's how Bear coach Mike Ditka defines this 1985 drive. All that has taken place up to now has been mere scenery.

For a team that has won 16 times in 17 games to make the Super Bowl would be a travesty. The again, when everything boils down to 60 minutes of football to that right, it's not always the best team that wins.

It's no wonder the Bears have had their game plan for the Rams just hours after disposing of the overmatched Giants. Ditka is taking no shenanigans in this year's playoffs, nor is his team. It just may be the key to mixing pleasure with business down the road.

America's dieting craze leads to problems

By DEBBIE METZGER
Staff writer

Nothing seems to occupy more conversations, especially those of college-aged women, than dieting.

There always seems to be a new miracle diet to talk about. Yet, what happens when this normal behavior turns into an obsessive concern about food and weight? An eating disorder may be the result.

On Eastern's campus 10 to 15 percent of female students are being treated by the Counseling Center for eating disorders, Counseling Center Director Bud Sanders said.

Nationally, at least 20 percent of college-aged women suffer from some type of emotional eating disorder.

Sanders said there are two main types of these disorders. The first disorder is called Bulimia.

It is a psychological craving for food which results in uncontrollable eating which is known as bingeing, and is often followed by purging, he said.

The second disorder is known as Anorexia Nervosa. It is a willful starvation in the pursuit of slenderness.

Either way, women with these problems have a need to be thin along with an inability to see themselves as anything but fat.

Luke Burchard, a Mattoon physician who treats area women with such problems, said, "They have perceptual problems and disturbed body images that make them see fat when they are dangerously thin."

What would cause a young woman to develop such a distorted and suicidal pattern?

"They suffer from a deep-seated psychological and emotional problems," Burchard said. "They have the problem for years and a set of complex conditions brings it out in this behavior."

Sanders said there are several reasons for developing an eating disorder.

"Society's image of what the perfect woman should be is a big part of it. A woman, supposedly, can neither be too rich or too thin," he said.

Sanders said that another reason college-aged women get involved is "to avoid becoming a sexual person by being in the body of a little girl."

Both Sanders and Burchard agree that someone with this problem would usually develop it before coming to college. But moving away from home and the pressures of college could add to the problem.

Sanders and Burchard also said females are the majority who experience these disorders. Sanders said only two males have been treated by the Counseling Center in the four years that he has been dealing with eating disorders.

"Males and females view things such as weight differently," Sanders said. "You would never hear a man say he wanted to lose 10 pounds for a wedding, but women say it all the time."

Most residence hall counselors viewed eating disorders as a small, but important problem.

Lawson Hall counselor Lori Steinmetz said, "We have more problems with it because we are an all-girl dorm."

She said that when the problem comes to her attention she suggests the student go to the Counseling Center.

"It is up to the student," Steinmetz said. "We can only force them to get help if it's a life-threatening situation."

Triad counselor Pam Parker said the reason hall

Like the television show itself, the Miami Vice Soundtrack is a visually-oriented mode of entertainment.

The soundtrack and the television show go hand-in-hand. Thus, one cannot imagine one without the other.

Listening to Miami Vice readily conjures up images of Crockett and Tubbs concealed under a cover of darkness while cruising down the Miami strip in search of would-be vice.

The soundtrack radiates these and other visual pictures from the very start with Jan Hammer's hard-driving instrumental theme.

Although short in terms of song length, the "Original Miami Vice Theme" certainly isn't short on musical quality.

The opener is also the perfect table-setter for the following cut, "Smuggler's Blues" by Glenn Frey.

The fast-paced tune—which was the basis of an episode co-starring Frey—is the tale of drug smugglers "moving it through Miami so it can be sold in L.A."

The cut, which features Eagles-style guitar work, attempts to offer an explanation by the drug smugglers on why they choose their risky style of living.

"It's the lure of easy money, it's got a very strong appeal," Frey sings in one line.

Things keep moving right along on the following cut, Chaka Khan's "Own the Night."

The song glides along by offering the senses of the high adventure and glamour associated with the Miami nightlife.

Things settle down quite a bit with the soothing "You Belong to the City," Frey's second offering and best cut on the soundtrack.

"You Belong to the City" leads off with a steamy saxophone introduction that's soon joined by heady drum beat.

The cut soon blends into one of the album's most visual tunes. Even before the song's video came out, the listener could easily picture Don Johnson walking down a steamy Miami street chain-smoking drags off a cigarette.

The album's first side closes with Phil Collins' "In the Air Tonight." Although now five years old, the song fits well with the visual image of "Miami Vice's" MTV cops.

Side two leads off with the now-familiar "Miami Vice" theme, followed by jumpy "Vice" by Grandmaster Melle Mel.

"Vice," a rap-oriented cut, gives the Grandmaster's impressions of prostitution ("nothing she wouldn't do for a $1 or two"), cocaine ("it snows all day for $60 a gram") and other assorted vices.

Following along the dance-oriented line, Tina Turner's smash "Better Be Good to Me" follows.

Hammer takes center stage for album's final three cuts, all instrumentals.

The first such cut titled "Flashback" provides a reflective atmosphere with the subtle, yet strong instrumental mix of electronics, piano and percussion.

Hammer's next cut "Chase" re-sets the mood back to hard-driving "adventurous imagery" of vice work. The cut is highlighted by some strong drum work.

The LP's closer "Evan" speaks powerfully via heavy synthesizer instrumentation that makes this the album's finest cut musically.

The Miami Vice Soundtrack illustrates the commercial visual imagery that rock music has taken on in recent years, largely due to the impact of videos.

Students expose flaws in dieting practices

By ROSE ALCORN
Staff writer

The American obsession with thinness is not always as perfect as the figure or body one strives to achieve.

The "downfall" most often consumed by college students, if not often thought of as a weakness because it is not actually a "food," is alcohol.

Freshman Tim DeLisle said his dieting weakness is "going out and drinking beer," which turns into a double jeopardy because "then you get the munchies and eat pizza."

Senior Karen Kucera said alcohol is also her weakness, "mostly beer."

Pizza was another popular downfall among Eastern students.

Sophomore Michele Bridges said his biggest downfall was "ordering pizza because of food service."

My greatest dieting weakness is going out and drinking beer which turns into a double jeopardy because then you get the munchies and eat pizza.

—Tim DeLisle
Freshman

"Stuff with sugar," senior Dana Fazio said of her downfall, "especially cookies."

Freshman Susie Petefish said "sweets, especially chocolate," were her greatest downfall.

Junk and fast foods also proved to be a dieting failing among students.

Junior Theresa Gluszyk said fast foods broke her dieting, especially Hardees.

Junior Carolyn Riter said "junk food, like chips and dip," do her dieting intentions in.

Senior Kelly Plotts said her dieting shortcoming is "starches—potatoes, pasta, all that stuff."

But the downfall that beat everything else in popularity was good old chocolate.

Junior Connie Bloom and graduate student Carol Manhart both agree that they fall for chocolate.

Freshman Lori Lesniak knew exactly what particular kind of chocolate persuades her to fall: "Swensens' chocolate malted milkball sundaes."

But senior Rae Ruff included everything chocolate as her weakness.

For a unique approach, though, freshman Chris Sheldon said her greatest weakness is "macaroni and cheese."

Balanced diet with calorie count is best idea for diet

By MICHELLE MUELLER

After all the holiday dinners and Christmas candy, going on a diet is a part of many peoples' New Year's resolutions.

There are hundreds of diets. Some claim large weight losses in a short period of time. But the only safe, effective diet is "a balanced diet with a calorie count," Health Service Director Jerry Heath said.

Cutting down 3,500 calories results in a loss of one pound, he said. Dieters are generally advised to cut down caloric intake by 500 calories a day in order to lose one pound, Heath said.

A common dieting myth, he said, is the idea that calories eaten in the morning will be worked off during the day while calories eaten in the evening will turn to fat.

"It's a total per day. People fool themselves. They think they can eat a lot at one time of the day and get away with it," Heath said.

Before deciding how many calories a day are needed, a dieter should consider his or her lifestyle.

"It depends on their activity. People put on weight because of their sedentary habits," Heath said.

But he cautioned, "1,000 a day is about the minimum for anybody."

T.V. stations spotlight various problems society faces, but little focus on solution

By JUDY WEIDMAN
Television critic

1985 was a 'special' year.

At least twice a month the American public was taught how to deal with a problem and 'shattered spirits.'

The types of problems included such subjects as teenage suicide, Alzheimer's disease, and the 'right to kill.'

On Sunday, February 10, ABC tried to solve the puzzle of teenage suicide.

In the movie "Surviving," Molly Ringwald (The Breakfast Club), and Zach Galligan (Gremlins), portray two high school students who are in love but have been separated from each other by their parents.

Zach is the perfect son and will make great college material at an Ivy League school, while Molly is insecure and needs Zach's love and protection to make everything all right.

The two kids are sick of being separated so they sit in Zach's parent's car (the engine is running) with the garage door shut and die of carbon monoxide poisoning.

All of this takes place during the first half of the movie.

In the end the parents realize that they should have been more aware of their children's feelings and that they should have listened more.

ABC didn't quite solve the puzzle but they did put some key pieces into place.

CBS tried to explain Alzheimer's disease on May 21 with "Do You Remember Love," a story about a college English professor and author who has the disease and how she comes to terms with it.

According to University of Michigan's Research

News, Alzheimer's is an irreversible degenerative disorder in which the brain slowly 'forgets' to do perform of its functions.

Joanne Woodward plays the professor who starts out leading a normal life. Ten minutes into the movie she starts to become forgetful.

Her husband, played by Richard Kiley, notices the change in her and persuades her to see a doctor.

The doctor diagnosed her as having Alzheimer's and informed her that her condition would get worse.

About half way through the movie, Woodward's memory reached the point where she had to post signs everywhere describing what different objects were. Her husband couldn't handle the changes so he went to a support group for spouses with the disease.

She was also up for a literary award concerning her second book which was published right before her illness began.

The couple finally got a grasp on what was happening to them when they realized that they are both getting older.

In the end, she received the award and gave an acceptance speech reminding the people there that even if your memory isn't perfect that it is still capable of remembering love.

ABC counteracted this tear jerker on Wednesday, May 22 with a controversial special on 'Right to Kill,' a true story about a son's solution to an abusive father.

Fredric (One From the Heart) Forrest played the father, a self-centered military officer who strived for perfection allowing no room for human error.

Every time someone either forgot to empty the trash or accidentally spilled a glass of milk, the father would literally 'knock some sense into them' leaving both physical and psychological scars.

About half way through the movie one fight with son got too loud and the neighbors called the police.

When the police examined his son, Christopher (First Born) Collet, they saw the bruises but his mother and his sister wouldn't tell the truth for fear that they would be terrorized even more by the father.

The police ended the matter by sending a worker to the house and the father did a 'snow job' on her, painting the picture of a dutiful father.

One night the father starts beating up his wife because she spilled a glass of milk while fixing up their anniversary.

Right after the fight he said he was sorry and took her out to dinner hoping that it would make everything all right.

At this point the son had had enough of the father and plotted with his sister, Justin (Family Bateman), on how to end it.

They armed themselves with guns from the father's collection and the son opened fire on the father from the garage when the father got out of the car to open up the garage door.

The father died and the kids ran away to a house where they were picked up later that night.

A few weeks later the brother and sister went to school and the mother was comatose. She couldn't remember what happened.

The son was charged with voluntary manslaughter while the daughter was charged as an accomplice.

In the final scene, the two kids were standing in the driveway with the mother when she finally came down and admitted the truth.

In 1985 the specials on television spotlighted various problems in society. Maybe in 1986 they can find solutions.

counselors refer eating disorder victims to the Counseling Center is because they are not specifically trained in eating disorders.

Andrews Hall counselor Barbara Busch said she has had many encounters with residents with eating disorders.

"Several years ago one of our RA's had a disorder and had to withdraw from school and become institutionalized," Busch said. "The girl fit into the stereotype of a high achiever."

The Counseling Center has a 60 to 70 percent rate of progress.

"This is a good rate," Sanders said. "The problem is relatively new and we can't really tell if they are actually cured."

The treatment is both individual and group therapy, which both Sanders and Burchard believe is the best method.

"The whole treatment is a supportive, learning process to get them to see their problem exists," Burchard said. "We want them to know that this isn't the end to their problems, and that their personality is determined by a number on a scale."

Sanders said the Counseling Center only treats the tip of the iceberg and that resources can't help everyone."

Waiting lists for group therapy are established with counselor Gene Lenihan's open for healthy eating each semester.

Tale End

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

I am 22 years old and I have an eating disorder.

I disturb friends and family with it, but I feel no remorse.

Yes, I have the appetite of the "Fridge," but not quite his stopping power. In fact, the Fridge has twice my weight.

But why, I don't know. I am at a loss for words to explain the weight loss trend that's consumed the nation.

Diets have always been a mystery to me. I have a tough time understanding why they exist and what they're for. Someone told me they help you reduce weight. But as one relative of mine told me, she's lost 1,200 lbs. over the course of 20 years but gained back some 1,220 more.

It just doesn't sound right to try to hold back our appetites. And all the methods are unappetizing. Weight Watchers. Anorexia. Bulimia. Speeders. Seven, 14, 21 and 28-day diets. AIDS Diet plans. (Now there's an attractive name.)

But this is hardly a revelation that came to me this week. Realization of my eating disorder hit me in high school.

Back then, I sat at a table of football players and wrestlers. But the wrestlers in particular were always perturbed with my behavior. Wrestlers have that frame of mind where a coach can say, "Lose 23 pounds. By Friday."

And they just nod in agreement.

By Wednesday they became distraught seeing my tray of two entrees, three cups of vegetables, three milks, apple and cherry pie and two cookies.

By Friday—the day of their meets—they made me move to another table.

Twig has appetite of 'Fridge'

It didn't stop, though, at the high school lunch table. The hours with my mother in my doctor's office are still fresh memories. (I could never become accustomed to being 90 percent naked in front of both of them.)

Sitting in that antiseptic atmosphere, my doctor was forever reassuring my mother that I had one of those kinds of metabolisms. And when I hit 20 or so, he said, "it" would all catch up to me. I just sat there and shivered and blushed.

But 23 is nearly here, and "it" has yet to blow open my midsection. My appetite is still voracious and I still hover around a comfy 150.

So, do I eat less now? Hell, no. A Big Mac and Large Fries don't cut it. Try adding a Quarter Pounder, doubling the fries and throwing in a chocolate shake.

But junk food isn't my forte. I may not break scales, but I can break out. So, bring on those foods that even the starving Africans turn away. Just any taste will do. Spinach, cranberries, red meat, asparagus. Italian, French, Chinese, Greek—it's all lip-smacking, licking, appetizing and delightful.

And fat free.

There was an exception. They it vichyssoise and I recall that I was posed to be impressed. The date was "cold, potato" some "Viscious soup" was more like skip that one and serve me fried with a tasty sauce. I won't care still won't gain weight.

Sorry.

But while the rest of the world away at things, counts calories, and lobsters without the butter sauce, be sitting at the next table. Laughing.

Unless "it" catches up with me check comes.
