Eastern enters death threat author search

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

University Police have joined other law enforcement agencies in working to track down the writer of an anonymous letter threatening the life of Charleston's mayor, police said Thursday.

Meanwhile, three other commissioners—who were all implicated in the death threat—all said Thursday they were only somewhat concerned with the threat.

University Police Chief Tom Larson confirmed Eastern was working on the case, but said he could not provide specific details on his department's involvement.

Larson said University Police have been collecting information on Eastern's campus for the Charleston Police and the FBI, the two other agencies investigating the letter.

The letter, received at city hall Monday, has been perceived by law enforcement officials as a probable prank, but Larson said, "It's still a crime. "Unless something shows up to show us more validity to the letter," Larson said, Eastern officers will continue to maintain minimal surveillance of Old Main where Mayor Murray Choate works as an assistant director of admissions.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said he expected to get fingerprint information—if there is any—returned from the Illinois Crime Lab by Friday.

Johnson said he, too, could not release any specific information, but said there are a potential 35,000 to 40,000 suspects. "It could be anybody, anywhere, anytime. (I'm) the only person I know didn't do it."

In the letter received at city hall Monday, the author wrote that he had received a contract to assassinate Choate with $500,000 bonuses for executing other city commissioners and another bonus for doing it in public before March 18.

The author of the letter also claimed that he has already received a $10,000 downpayment for the killing, and that he does not give refunds. The author wrote that he would receive $5 million for killing Choate.

Officials have all said their main concern is that the person who wrote the letter is not suffering from delusions of grandeur and could be sparked to follow through on his threat.

While Choate said he has faced danger before in flying for the military, one commissioner said it wasn't the first threat to his life since taking office.

Public Works Commissioner Wayne Lanman said Thursday, "Well, I have had those before. Years ago, a guy was disappointed with the way a vote went and he said, 'I think I ought to shoot you.'"

The citizen later apologized, Lanman said. "This is a little different, though. Maybe they'll come up with something, but this is an entirely different ball game. You've got to take it seriously," Lanman said.

Finance Commissioner John Winnett said he thinks $5 million is an "unreal" sum to pay for a mayor's murder. "$500,000 seems pretty unreal for a commissioner, too. Most people get bumped off for (See EASTERN, page 6A)

Law forces large reductions in aids

By CAM SIMPSON
Staff writer

Eastern students would have lost $494,325 in Pell Grants this year if linear reductions forced on by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget act were in effect, Financial Aids Director John Flynn said Thursday.

According to Flynn and Illinois State Scholarship Commission spokesman Bob Clements, Illinois students will be "hard hit" by the education reductions looming in Congress' attempt to reduce the national debt.

Clements said Illinois students receive a larger portion of aid, through programs such as Pell, than many of the nation's other states.

The Gramm-Rudman law, which automatically provides for across-the-board cuts if Congress doesn't make reductions itself, has already taken affect in a first wave of cuts implemented March 1, with the second wave looming over September.

The aim of the law is for a balanced federal budget by 1991.

The reductions, 4.3 percent nationally in the aid available to students, will not hit their peak until next September because, Flynn said, money for this year is already secured through "forward funding."

Flynn said the linear reduction would have affected 1,121 Eastern students receiving aid through the Pell program if it had been in effect this year.

Flynn said, "421 students would have lost their Pells completely, and the remainder would have faced varied reductions."

Pell Grants won't be the only aid-cut affected program.

A proposed cut to the interest allowance of Guaranteed Loan lenders could cause some banks to leave the program.

President Ronald Reagan is also proposing major cuts from the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan, College Work Study, and State Student Incentive Grant programs for next year.

According to the American Council on Education, these cuts would eliminate 896,000 student awards next year.

However, if these reductions are passed, they won't be the only cuts facing students.

According to the Gramm-Rudman law, all social programs will be cut. Therefore, students receiving money through other programs for education (such as the GI bill) will begin noticing the reductions in their March pay checks.

Flynn and Clements both agreed there is very little that can be done to make up for the lost aid. Both said it is doubtful that the state will step in to come to students' rescue.

"I'm sure many schools are asking if the state will make up the difference, but that could be a very large (See LAW, page 6A)

House panels oppose aid to Contra rebels

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan's plan for sending $100 million in military aid to Nicaraguan rebels bogged down Thursday as several key members of Congress objected to harsh White House rhetoric aimed at opponents, and two more House panels opposed the request.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, by a vote of 23-18, recommended, that the proposals be defeated. Earlier in the day, the House Appropriations Committee voted against the measure and the House Armed Services Committee approved it. Two House panels had voted against it Wednesday.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, complained that attacks on the patriotism of opponents was "highly offensive" and announced she would oppose Reagan's package "as it is now formulated."

In the House, Rep. Dave McCurdy, D+Okla., a principal swing vote in sending non-lethal aid to rebels last year, said "the tactics by the administration are backfiring. The level of rhetoric, the shrillness of attack, has lost them votes."

Rep. Michael Barnes, D+Md.,

chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Western Hemisphere Affairs, said the administration is "using red-baiting tactics like we haven't seen in this city since Spiro Agnew was vice president."

But Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said both sides had used "harsh rhetoric" and said that he and other Reagan backers were not questioning "the unyielding patriotism" of the opponents.

Regardless of committee actions, special rules governing the handling of the request require that the president's proposal be sent to the full House and Senate.

Math teacher shot by student

DOLTON—A freshman student stood up in a Thornridge High School classroom Thursday, pulled a .357-magnum pistol out of a gym bag and shot a math teacher who had suggested his suspension earlier in the year, authorities said.

The teacher, Norma Cooper, 52, was in fair condition with a shoulder wound at Ingalls Memorial Hospital in nearby Harvey, a south Chicago suburb.

Miss Cooper did not wish to talk to reporters, said hospital spokeswoman Susan Fine, adding, "I think she was just grateful" that the injury was not more serious.

The boy, who lives in Harvey, was charged in a juvenile petition with attempted murder, unlawful use of a weapon and aggravated battery, said Dolton Police Chief George Pfothenauer.

Two hurt when ejected from jet

GULFPORT, Miss.—Two Air National Guardsmen from Illinois escaped serious injury Wednesday when they were forced to eject from their jet fighter before it crashed at Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport.

Other members of the 183rd Tactical Fighter Group from Springfield had lesser problems after the crash.

Lt. Art Haubold, Keesler public affairs officer, identified the crew members as the pilot, Maj. John R. "Randy" Patchett, 36, of Marion, and the weapons system officer, Maj. Wayne Rosenthal, 35, of Morrisonville.

New virus may help cause AIDS

NEW YORK—An African virus that causes an AIDS-like illness in pigs may have been present in some American AIDS patients and could be a contributing cause of human AIDS infections, according to a new study.

Evidence of infection with African swine fever virus, or ASFV, was found in nine of 21 American AIDS patients tested, and in only one of 16 healthy Americans, according to a study to be published Saturday in the Lancet, a British medical journal.

If future experiments prove the existence of a link between African swine fever and AIDS, it would mean that doctors now searching for a cure for AIDS are aiming at the wrong target.

Exxon pays Illinois its refund

CHICAGO—Illinois received a $96 million check Thursday as its part of a $2.1 billion refund the Exxon Corp. was ordered to pay for overcharging consumers.

States are to use their share of the money for energy conservation programs, including low-income energy assistance and weatherization programs.

The state Department of Energy and Natural Resources will conduct three hearings later this month to decide how the money should be spent.

"The hearings will give consumers who paid inflated prices for gasoline, heating oil and other Exxon products in the 1970s an opportunity to speak out before decisions are made," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

Soviet scientists claim triumph as spacecraft encounters comet

MOSCOW (AP)—Jubilant scientists hailed a Soviet spacecraft's encounter with Halley's comet Thursday as a space triumph and said early data indicated smooth sailing for probes that will venture even nearer next week.

The crowded control room at Moscow's Institute for Space Research erupted in applause as images of the comet arrived nine minutes after the Vega 1 passed 5,270 miles from it at 10:20 a.m. (2:20 a.m. EST).

The pictures provided the closest look at a comet and were believed to be the first view of a comet's icy core.

Television monitors showed color-enhanced images of a fiery red-brown center, believed to be the nucleus, surrounded by wide bands of yellow and blue. The core is believed to be about 2 1/2 miles in diameter.

"It is a triumph, it is truly a triumph," said Fred Whipple of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., one of the many foreign scientists monitoring the mission. "It's the first time in history we have had this sort of imaging system this close to a comet."

Whipple hypothesized in 1950 that comets had solid cores in what became known as the "dirty snowball" theory.

When asked whether he thought the images from Vega 1 supported his theory, he replied, "I think so."

Vega 1 is the first of five probes scheduled to fly by the comet in the next eight days. Data from the missions will take months to analyze and are expected to provide an unprecedented glimpse into the origins of the universe.

Ronald A. Sagdeyev, head of the Vega program, said comets "were born at the first moment of creation of our solar system, about 4.5 billion years ago ... They should be preserved rather well in the space refrigerator," a reference to the extreme cold of space.

Halley's comet, which is named after the English astronomer Edmund Halley, swung around the sun every 76 years and last was seen in 1910. On Thursday, it was about 105 million miles from Earth and 74 million miles from the sun, traveling about 104,000 mph.

Some of the most useful early data came from the only U.S. experiment aboard, a "dust counter" engineered by John Simpson, a physics professor at the University of Chicago.

He said he was nervous because his invention had never been tested in space and "there were all kinds of possible problems. There weren't. There was beautiful cooperation."

Vega 2 is expected to pass within 4,986 miles of Halley's on Sunday. The European Space Agency's Giotto probe is to pass within 310 miles of the comet Thursday. It has a television camera expected to provide the most vivid pictures of the comet's mysterious core.

Task force urges death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential task force recommended the death penalty for the murder of American hostages anywhere in the world on Thursday, but described U.S. policies against terrorism as generally sound and recommended no major overhaul.

The Cabinet-level task force headed by Vice President George Bush called for increased use of spies to penetrate terrorist organizations as well as strengthened extradition treaties to bring terrorists to justice.

Repeating a note that the Reagan administration has sounded in the face of bloody terrorist assaults in the Middle East, Europe and elsewhere, Bush said the group favors pinpoint strikes but opposes "wanton destruction of human life in order to show some muscle."

Immediately after taking office in the wake of the Iranian hostage crisis, President Reagan pledged that terrorists would face "swift and effective retribution." In reacting to more recent terrorist incidents, however, he has refused to use force that he said might harm innocent victims or bystanders.

"The principal conclusion of the task force is that U.S. policies and priorities are sound, well conceived and properly organized," said Admiral James Holloway, former chief of naval operations, who headed the task force working group.

Holloway said the task force endorsed the president's policy and favored "swift and effective retribution against the perpetrators, not just random retaliation against people that may involve innocent lives."

The task force released a declassified version of its report.

Holloway said a classified version containing 44 recommendations went to the president on Dec. 20 and that he approved it in full Jan. 20.

The report suggested consideration of raising rewards for information on terrorists from $500,000 to $1 million. It also urged that immunity from prosecution and grants of U.S. citizenship be included among incentives for those who help identify terrorists.

Water plant springs leak

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

Charleston's water problems apparently know no end.

It was learned late Thursday that two major pipes leading into Charleston's water plant east of the city sprang leaks and may need replacement, a city official said.

A 30-inch diameter pipe, which feeds water from one holding "pit" outside the plant into another tank inside, was found releasing water on Wednesday, said Water Plant Supervisor Richard Sherman.

Water plant workers drained the tanks Thursday, Sherman said, and then realized the problem was bigger than they thought.

Earlier Thursday, Council Executive Assistant Chris Bezruki said the problem was "no big deal," after visiting the plant.

But Finance Commissioner John Winnett—also the owner of a plumbing supply firm—said the pipe breakage will likely cost the city at least $5,000 in repairs.

The leak in the 30-inch pipe alone, Sherman said, is releasing about 75 gallons of water a minute. A smaller 24-inch diameter pipe is letting go of less water, he said.

Sherman said the plant will not need to be shut down for repairs as water plant workers will be able to bypass the lines and continue pumping water from the outdoor holding tanks.

Officials from the engineering firm, Beam, Longest and Neff along with Assistant City Engineer Dan England were expected to visit the site at 10 a.m. Friday to assess the damage.

Sherman said the pipe leak is probably not related to the chemical explosion which shook the water plant and injured two city workers last August.

"It's probably just deterioration of the pipe, not something you could have foreseen," Sherman said.

Students give differing opinions on raffle license fee

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Activities editor

Several fraternities and sororities questioned had mixed feelings about a proposed city ordinance that would require a $25 license for any organization conducting a raffle.

Sophomore Mike Korzyniewski, sergeant of arms for Delta Tau Delta fraternity, said he is against the proposal because $25 would eat up too much of a raffle's profits.

And Public Works Commissioner Wayne Lanman said Wednesday he agreed the fee might be exorbitant.

Lanman said he thinks the required $25 license fee is too high and that it should be reduced. A better price, he said, would be "$10 or so, and that's below the cost of administration."

"I really don't think it's fair," Korzyniewski said. "We do hold a lot of raffle drives." He said the $25 license could eat up the raffle profits if not much money was raised.

"Sometimes it would and sometimes it wouldn't" take away the profits, depending on how much money was raised, he said. He added that a $10 fee would be more fair.

Sigma Sigma Sigma holds raffles, but does not anticipate a problem with the ordinance.

Senior Sue Schmider, vice president of Sigma Sigma Sigma, who said her sorority conducts two or three raffles a year, said she does not think $25 is too high. "It really doesn't matter to me," Schmider said.

Junior Cathy Jacobs, social chairman of Delta Zeta sorority, said, "If we had to pay for each raffle, we would probably do something else," but "if the fee was low enough, $5 or $10 tops," raffles could still be used as a fund-raiser.

Her sorority averages two or three raffles a year, she said. "A lot of times we don't make that much, maybe $100," Jacobs said, noting that $25 would take 25 percent of the profits.

Another student agreed $25 is too high.

Senior Francis Fagan, vice president of Delta Chi, said the $25 fee is "definitely" too high because "$25 is a lot of money for a fraternity."

"I think that's a very absurd thing. I think it's a very stupid proposal from the city of Charleston once again," Fagan said.

Sophomore Sue Clough, treasurer of Alpha Sigma Tau, also disagrees with the ordinance as it is now written.

"I agree with the point to make it, so everybody knows" a raffle is being done legitimately, but she said $25 is too high.

Clough said her sorority holds two or three raffles a year and "that would get pretty costly" if each one cost $25.

She said she thought a better policy would be for each organization to buy one license at $25, then to have it routinely approved by the city before each raffle.

Clough said the raffles "all go to a good cause." She noted that her sorority and Delta Tau Delta will be raffling off door prizes March 15 at a dance marathon to benefit leukemia.

Ed Huber, president of Sigma Chi, said his fraternity "occasionally" holds raffles. "We have in the past."

He said he is against the proposal. "If it's a request (from the State's Attorney's office) they should hold off," until it becomes mandatory, Huber said.

CAA proposal cuts withdrawal days by 40

By BILL DENNIS
Staff writer

Students would have less time to withdraw from classes under a proposal presented Thursday to the Council on Academic Affairs.

The CAA also sent three proposed special education courses and one junior high education course back for revisions.

The class-withdrawal policy, proposed by CAA member Dan Hockman, would give students 20 class days from the start of a semester to withdraw from a course without receiving a grade. Currently, students have 60 calendar days to drop classes.

Hockman said the policy was suggested because of the attendance policy currently being considered by the CAA, which was submitted by Samuel Taber, dean of student academic services.

"I agreed with the goals of the policy, but I thought he (Taber) had the wrong approach," Hockman said.

He said the purpose of his proposal was to "get an earlier commitment from students to get serious about classes."

Discussion on Hockman's proposal will begin next week.

In other business, Stoner scheduled a vote on the proposed attendance policy for next week's meeting. There was no discussion on the attendance policy Thursday.

The proposed courses which the CAA sent back for revision are: Special Education 3201, "Observation of Individuals Labeled Mildly/Moderately Exceptional;" Special Education 4900, "Instructional Strategies for Individuals Labeled Mildly Handicapped;" and Special Education 4901, "Practicum with Individuals Labeled Mildly Handicapped."

CAA members said they didn't understand why the word "labeled" was used in the titles of the proposed special education courses.

"It seems to me, a few years ago we were moving away from labeling (exceptional children)," CAA chairman Sue Stoner said.

The word labeled was added to the course titles to remind student teachers to concentrate on what their students' behaviors are, not on what they are labeled, special education instructor Kathy Shank said.

However, CAA members said this would have the opposite effect and asked that the proposal be revised.

Words such as "handicapped," "mildly/moderately handicapped" or "exceptional" must be included in the title or the state will not give certification for these courses, said CAA member and special education instructor Judith Ivarie.

The proposed courses are part of an effort to "cross categorize" special education, Shank said.

Shank said schools now are more often hiring special education instructors with more than one area of specialization.

She said a survey shows nearly half of Eastern's special education graduates teach in a "resource room" environment and must deal with a variety of special education problems.

Also sent back for revision was Junior High School Education 4760, "Exploratory Programs and Teacher-Based Advisory in the Middle/Junior High School."

CAA member Jeff Lynch said the word "expertise" in the rationale for the course would incorrectly lead students to believe they are being trained as counselors.

Tom Dickinson, junior high education instructor, said the course is designed to train junior high school teachers in "awareness and recognition" of the problems faced by junior high school students.

“ I think it's a very stupid proposal from the city of Charleston once again.

Attorney's office tendered it (the proposal) to us for approval" and that the city had "been requested to pass" the ordinance. However, the city is not required to pass it.

Besides the $25 license fee, the organization would be requested to post a $5,000 fidelity bond, Sunderman said.

He added that the organization would not actually put up $5,000, but rather a percentage of that figure. It could be "as little as $10 or $1,000."

Sunderman said the fidelity bond "guarantees performance," or guarantees that any prizes promised would be given away. The organization would get the money back after completion of the raffle, he said.

If someone had a complaint that the raffle was fraudulent, the State's attorney would prosecute, Lanman said.

Sunderman said the city would probably make little if any money from the ordinance, even if left at $25. "Two hundred (dollars per year) is probably max," Sunderman said.

Providing extra voting places strong notion

The idea of putting voting booths in Buzzard Building and Lantz Gym should be studied carefully by the Student Senate and then adopted.

Having booths in more class buildings would provide better student representation and greater participation in voting.

Editorial Student Body President Floyd Akins came up with the idea for the additional voting booths after a proposal to put booths in each residence hall failed.

Under the new proposal, booths would still be open in Coleman Hall and the Union along with two additional voting sites. This would allow every sector of campus, and the most heavily-trafficked classroom areas, to be covered.

If the senate's aim is to get more students involved, then the proposal is a step toward achieving its goal. However, it will not solve any communication problems between the senate and students.

And while the proposal does seem to be a good idea on the face of it, the senate be prepared for the additional problems it could cause.

For example, senators will have to find more students to work the polls and serve as poll watchers. Also, charges of election violations will be harder to verify and control.

While none of these problems are insurmountable, senators should be aware they might have to deal with them before they vote on Akins' proposal.

The small amount of extra work that will be necessary by adding the two new polling places to the roster should not deter senators from voting for the proposal because it will benefit students and save them time.

The work is worth the extra student input which may be achieved because student government elections have a notoriously bad reputation for not bringing students to the polls.

Some extra voting booths can help solve some of the problem. The senate should initiate the proposal, but realize it's not a total cure.

Dr. Ruth gives 'right' information about sex

Editor:

I would like to address this letter to Dan and Chris Hickey, Joe and Becky Pepp and Brad Smith. These names appear on the "Freedom of Choice" flyer that was handed out at Dr. Ruth Westheimer's presentation Monday.

I wonder if any of you attended and listened, really listened to what Dr. Ruth had to say. You state in your flyer, "Please don't let her deceive you and, above all, if you are a virgin [guy or girl (woman, I would say, since we are all adults)], don't let her talk you into giving up something that is precious to you—and God!"

Dr. Ruth began her presentation by stating that she is not promoting promiscuity, she is only providing information to people who want to listen. When a question arose concerning a Catholic woman being pressured by her boyfriend to have sex, Dr. Ruth was very adamant in telling her to stick to her religious convictions if she believed pre-marital sex is wrong.

This country needs more teachers like Dr. Ruth, not only for this generation but for those to come. When our country has 1 million unwanted pregnancies a year, we need someone to be frank and honest concerning sexual issues.

We have the freedom to choose, but to choose the right information. You can either listen or remain in ignorance, but please do not judge others for offering the right information.

Help needed to locate Vietnam POWs, MIAs

Editor:

First, I'd like to thank everyone involved in setting up the ceremony for the POWs and MIAs. Second, I'd also like to thank Brian Neighbors for covering the story. It was a job well done.

On March 2, I attended this ceremony with mixed feelings, feelings of guilt for the men forgotten, feelings of sadness for their families and feelings of gratitude for the men who fought for this country and never returned.

As I sat through the ceremony I began to think: What can we do to help this cause? I'm doing my best to bring home the POWs and MIAs of Vietnam. During the candle lighting ceremony, I lit a candle for one of the 103 POWs and MIAs. His name is Maj. Arthur G. Ecklund, United States Army. He has been missing since April 3, 1969. Now I wear a crimson band bearing his name with a vow not to remove it until his return.

When one assumes a one-to-one bond with a stranger who is unable even to ask for your concern and enter the pain his family experiences, something happens to you. You are taught a lesson about the old concepts of unity, caring and brotherhood. You can also help by becoming actively involved in the POW-MIA program.

At the ceremony I counted five college students. If you could have seen some of the pain in the faces of the children, wives and fathers, you'd know how I feel.

Walk in mud requires university's attention

Editor:

I'll make this letter brief as I don't want to take up valuable space in your newspaper for an issue that should not even need to be addressed.

The issue I'm speaking of is the university's lack of parkway sidewalk on Lincoln Avenue between Fourth and Seventh streets.

Year after year, during the months of February, March and April students are forced to travel through inches of mud and water when trying to get to the main thoroughfare of campus. Granted this area is not governed by a traffic light, however, it still serves for a main route for many students to get to and from campus.

I hope the proper Eastern officials investigate this issue.

Professional wrestling craze catches up with everyone

It may be a little late to be writing about Christmas, but that is when I became aware of the "soap opera in lights."

I went over to my friend Gail's house Christmas night. While I was sitting there making "happy talk" with her parents and relatives, I heard strange, actually weird, noises coming from the basement.

"Ah ha, now I've got you in a headlock and there's no escape."

"Don't worry, I'll put you in my famous airplane spin so long you'll be dizzy for a week."

"You'll have to get through my claw before you can do that."

When I asked Gail if everything was OK downstairs, she said her brother and cousin were playing with the professional wrestling set they got for Christmas.

Not being to hip on this trend, I had to see for myself.

Sure enough, there was a mini-wrestling ring and two 12-inch wrestlers. I recognized one of them as Hulk Hogan.

Some of the hold-out fans of this sport are saying wrestling is coming back "with a vengeance and with the biggest media hype since the invention of the hula hoop."

They're right.

When I saw my first wrestling match in Peoria, I couldn't believe the mixture of people there. There were women in fur coats, entire families, teenagers and hold-out fans from the 60's whose faces looked like rumpled bed sheets with cigarettes stuffed in the wrinkles.

Wrestling may be a theater of the absurd, but it is a theater. All matches are planned in advance. The outcome is fixed and all moves are choreographed before the wrestlers take to the ring. That's why they are never called a contest or competition.

Whether or not moves are planned in advance, these "stuntmen" do get hurt. They suffer more injuries than football players. Broken bones, torn ligaments and cuts are reality to wrestlers.

OK, so professional wrestling is basically a farce. But I did find rules governing the sport.

- Rule One—In order to win a match, a wrestler must pin his opponent's shoulders to the mat for a three-count.

- Rule Two—No choking.

- Rule Three—Punching with the fist is prohibited. You may strike your opponent with an open hand.

- Rule Four—A wrestler out of the ring or on the ropes for a count of five is disqualified.

- Rule Five—Hitting below the belt with a large folding chair is permitted.

- Rule Six—Hitting after the bell is illegal, unless you didn't hear it.

- Rule Seven—A wrestler detected of using an illegal hold or foreign object on his opponent must cease at the referee's count of five.

Failure to follow the rules will result in a stern warning, a reprimand or a new count of five.

Now you have the rules, but to be a real fan you need to know the terms and moves. Get yourself a partner and try these out during a study break.

- Dropkick—Jump up, pull feet back and drive legs out. Strike your victim on the chest or stomach. May be repeated if necessary.

- Pile Driver—Stoop and grasp your victim by crotch and one shoulder. Lift, turn upside down and drive victim head first into mat or other surface.

- Body Slam—Lift victim as if you were going to do a pile driver. Rotate body 180 degrees and slam victim's back into mat.

- Brain Scrambler—Grasp victim's head with both hands and smash repeatedly into the corner of the ring or your room.

- Elbow Smash—Make a fist and lift it to one shoulder. Pull elbow back away from victim to increase power of blow. Drive elbow into victim's face.

- The Claw—Hold hand in rigid position with fingers splayed and dig deep into victim's stomach, arms or legs. A sure paralyzer. Can also be used to rake eyes and face.

When I was in Peoria, I talked with one middle-aged gentleman. He said, "I'm not surprised wrestling has made a comeback. Professional wrestling is like sex. You can rally against it, legislate against it, condemn it, threaten it with punishment or campaign against it. But you will never make it unpopular with the masses."

With this in mind, I want to leave you with something to think about—professional women's wrestling.

Dear Stan: Want to even the score with Mayor Choate?

Harry Reynolds
Mid-Illinois Newspapers

Stanley Rives, President
Eastern Illinois University
Old Main
Charleston, Ill. 61920

Dear Stan:

I understand you are having a bit of a problem with the Charleston City Council in connection with its action in hiking Eastern's water rates from $2.73 per 1,000 gallons to $4 March 1 and $5.16 July 1, 1987.

I also understand that the eventual 87-percent increase came as an unwelcome surprise to you and other university officials who believed the ordinance would include a provision for rates to be reduced by 10 cents after three years.

I can sympathize with you, Stan. The compromise was apparently different from what Mayor Murray Choate had discussed with you and other university officials.

There are several courses of action that the university might take. The obvious one—assuming you are bent on revenge—would be to express your displeasure to the mayor.

Choate works for the university in the Admissions Office as I understand it. You might consider relocating his desk in the center of Panther Lair or having it moved into one of the towers that adorn Old Main. If you are in a really nasty frame of mind, you might put it in the parking lot behind Booth Library.

Crossview:

Harry Reynolds

Another course of action would be to perform a ritual in the vein of a military court martial. Line the mayor up before the student body, tear the tassels off his cap and robe, take the cap and stomp it in the dirt (assuming the event is outside), rip the ribbons apart and read him out of the academic community as the drums roll.

Such a public display of displeasure, it must be admitted, might cast you in the role of the heavy. Merely daydreaming about such a ceremony might be a comfort, however, as you contemplate the university's latest water bill.

But, Stan, I guess we have to be realistic. As president of the university, you could issue a directive putting him in charge of mopping floors. Of course, that would necessitate rewriting his job classification.

It should be quite clear by now that working with Choate and the other members of the Charleston City Council is virtually impossible.

They have difficulty remembering from one meeting to the next what they agreed to do. It wouldn't be so bad except for the fact that the confusion appears to be contagious.

No, Stan, while you might get great personal satisfaction exacting revenge, it would fail to solve the main problem: persuading the City of Charleston to lower Eastern's water rates.

It's ironic that the university is having difficulties with city officials over water rates. You are well aware, Stan, that the decision to locate the college in Charleston came about as a result of water.

City officials were not wringing their hands over water at the time they were trying to persuade the selection committee of build the college in Charleston, eh, Stan.

Charleston won out over Mattoon after officials sprayed streams of water over the courthouse to impress the selection committee.

I would like to suggest that you consider moving the university—lock, stock and barrel—to Mattoon.

Sure, there would be some minor problems in connections with the relocation. Old Main, that great, grey fortress, would have to be moved block by block.

But, why bother yourself with such mundane problems? Just pick up the phone, call Choate and tell him you have a special project for him.

With regards and sympathy,
Harry Reynolds

Chamber ensemble set to play at Tarble

By JENNIFER RETZINGER
Staff writer

The Eastern Chamber Ensemble will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Main Gallery at Tarble Arts Center.

The concert will feature an opera written by music instructor/composer Peter Hesterman called "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in the People's Ears."

The opera is the fourth presentation in the Tarble Arts Center Chamber Music Series, music instructor Barbara Sturgis-Everett said.

The opera, which includes singing, narration, puppets and chamber orchestra, is based on Verna Aardema's African folk tale of the same name.

The puppets, designed by TAC curator Jim Krehbiel, are called "shadow" puppets because the audience sees them as silhouettes.

Holes are punched in the puppets to show eyes, a nose and mouth and to distinguish different animals.

The three puppeteers are music instructors and will operate 10 puppets, Sturgis-Everett said.

Hesterman said he chose to use puppets because "it has not been used too much."

Hesterman was persuaded by colleague Don Tracy to compose the opera.

Hesterman said he has been thinking about ideas for the opera for about two years but began writing it last summer. The opera was completed Jan. 19, Hesterman said.

The narrative parts and dialogue are taken from the book, but some things were "modified" to the music, which is original, Hesterman said.

The music to the 25-minute opera will be performed by music instructors and psychology instructor William Kirk will play the trumpet, Hesterman said.

Music instructors Alan Aulabaugh and Catherine Smith, who are retiring after this year, will also perform.

amount," Clements said.

Flynn, who testified Tuesday in Washington D.C. before a House subcommittee on negative affects of the Gramm-Rudman Bill on higher education, said there is very little in the way of other funds that Eastern can obtain.

The problem, he said, is that Eastern is a public institution majorly dependent on government funding.

Flynn reported to the subcommittee that in fiscal year 1985, 67.2 percent of Eastern students received some type of financial assistance from either federal, state, institutional, or private sources totalling more than $16.5 million.

"One question that they (the subcommittee) asked, was 'accepting the fact that we must make reductions, where would you like to see them?' I'd rather see Pell and guaranteed loans untouched," Flynn said.

He said he believes families and students "do everything possible" finance education but without the Guaranteed Loan and Pell program Flynn fears students and their families will have nowhere to turn.

"How far will families be able to go until they have to say, 'We can't do it?'" Flynn said.

Although "middle class" is a term Flynn said he is unfavorable toward he said the families classified in the bracket already have limited capital draw from and the aid cuts could mean "big trouble" for them.

"These are the major student drawing from Guaranteed Loan and Pell programs," he said. "If you take away the major portion of the educational finance, there's going to be big trouble."

Flynn added he that he hopes the cuts will not make these programs "inaccessible to the very students who need them most."

$10,000 or so. It'd be more than likely it's nothing but a joke and it's already kind of blown out of proportion a little."

Public Property Commissioner Richard Corbin said he hopes it is a prank.

"There's not much you can do about (the letter arriving.) I can think of things I'd rather happen. Hopefully there's nothing to it," Corbin said.

"But a professional isn't going to write you and tell you he's going to do it—he's just going to do it."

Churches offer dinners

By PAM METZ
Staff writer

Students looking for a good Sunday dinner can look beyond the fast food restaurants and enjoy a home-cooked meal at one of the local churches.

The Sunday dinners were initiated to give students who live in residence halls a place to eat at a low price. However, the dinners are open to all students.

The meals, which are prepared by students, vary from week to week. Some entrees include pizza, spaghetti, tuna casserole, hot dogs or hamburgers.

George Loveland, director of the Wesley Foundation dinners, 1206

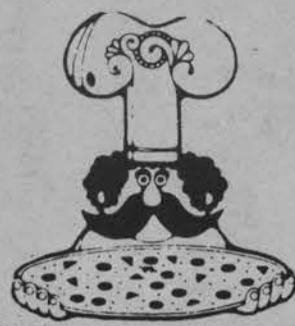

4th St., said they have what is called a "cost-supper." The cost is $1.25 for the meal and 35 cents for soda.

Campus minister Rev. Roger Songer of the Christian Campus House, 2231 S. 4th St., said they also offer the "cost-supper." Songer added that "if it's your first time it's free and after that the cost is $1."

Songer asks that students interested in the dinners make reservations Sunday mornings. Dinner is served at 5 p.m.

The Rev. Bob Hackler of the Immanuel Lutheran Church and Student Center, 902 Cleveland, said their dinner is served at 5:30 p.m. and a $2 donation is requested.

High school students take aptitude exams

By LISA BRAND
Staff writer

About 170 students from 12 central Illinois high schools will participate in the Eighth Test of Engineering, Aptitude, Mathematics and Science regional contest Saturday at Eastern.

Bill Cloud, a physics instructor and pre-engineering advisor, said this will be the fourth year Eastern has hosted the regional TEAMS contest.

Eastern was chosen because of its location and also because Cloud is a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers, a contest sponsor.

The contest, also sponsored by the Junior Engineering Technical Society, was started to stimulate and reward academic excellence by high school students, Cloud said.

NSPE wanted to give recognition to those students in the area of academics, he said.

The objective test, which is computer-scored, covers biology, chemistry, English, engineering graphics, mathematics and physics.

Teams of two are tested in two subject areas in two forty-minute sessions.

The first subject is chosen by the team's high school while individual teams can choose the second subject. In addition to the district and regional competitions, students will compete at the state and national levels.

The 12 schools who won Class A district contests are: Oblong, Joseph-Ogden, Shelbyville, Warrensburg-Latham, and Hoopston-East Lynn.

Class AA winners are: Urbana University High School, Decatur, Mt. Carmel, Mattoon and Danville.

There are two top individual scorers in each of the six areas, Cloud said, however these two may or may not be part of the competing teams.

Saturday's winners will advance to the state finals at the University of Illinois March 25 for Class A and March 26 for Class AA.

Cloud said "Since the test is identical for each state, the national champions are determined by comparing the winning scores."

Trophies will be awarded to the three regional teams in each class and medallions will be awarded to the three students in each subject, Cloud said.

Cloud said the test will probably be at Eastern again next year.

REJECT petition moves to Union

By JANET SIWICKI
Staff writer

A petition to oust Mayor Murray Choate will be presented for signatures in the Union Friday, Student Senate Housing Chairman Tracy Frederick told Residence Hall Association members Thursday.

The Residents for Ejecting Choate (REJECT) committee approached the Student Senate Wednesday hoping to receive their backing, but the senate tabled the proposal until next week.

REJECT was started by sophomore Jim East and former Eastern student John Best to force Choate to resign. The resolution alleges that the mayor has "shown severe incompetence and faulty reasoning in governing city affairs."

The RHA had no comment concerning the issue.

In addition, awards won at the recent Illinois Residence Hall Association held last weekend at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago were discussed.

One of the highest awards, the spirit award, was captured by Eastern's RHA. Two of a possible five best of the best sessions at a workshop were also awarded, as were two programs of the month.

"I was very, very proud of everyone," RHA President Dave Ascolani said.

"We showed our state, now lets show our campus. That's our bread and butter," he said.

Ascolani added that RHA vice president Janice Horsman was chosen as IRHA vice president of administration.

In other business, the RHA announced that applications for the positions of Rookie Runner will be available Friday in the halls. They are due March 21.

Also, whistles for the Whistle Stop program will be sold in the Union walkway on March 14. The whistles are also available in the women's halls for $1.50.

Applicants will be accepted by RHA members for the National Residence Hall Honorary and Enoch Scholarship.

Instructor injured in fall

An Eastern home economics instructor is in stable condition at Mercy Hospital in Urbana after an accident in her home.

Edith Hedges fell down the stairs in her home Feb. 7. Home economics instructor Jayne Ozier said Hedges lost her balance on a "uniquely structured" stairwell resulting in a back injury that has left her paralyzed from the waist down.

Hedges was taken to Burnham Hospital in Champaign and was later transferred to Mercy.

Hedges teaches Home Economics 1120 "Foods One," HEC 3140 "Family Food Management" and HEC 3925 "Demonstration Techniques."

Other home economic instructors are currently taking over Hedges' classes.

Joan Schroeder is teaching HEC 1120, Nancy Southworth is teaching HEC 3425 and graduate assistant Rossanne Weber is teaching HEC 3140.

Agent claims Sirhan alone

KANKAKEE (AP)—A former FBI agent who helped investigate the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy says he agrees with a newly-released report concluding that gunman Sirhan B. Sirhan acted alone.

Thomas Judd, now a Kankakee attorney, helped provide security for the Kennedy entourage immediately after the 1968 shooting and also conducted part of the investigation of Sirhan.

Judd said checks of Sirhan indicated he was "well-liked, a nice enough sort of kid" with "nothing unusual" in his background.

"Most people (who knew him) were in sort of a state of shock that Sirhan would be involved in that sort of thing," he said.

"There's always the possibility that he may have had some sort of assistance—somebody may have loaned him money, somebody may have loaned him a car . . . he may have had some kind of contact with other people," said Judd, who spent six years with the FBI.

"But I doubt that he was hired by anybody or that he was put up to this by anybody."

The Los Angeles Police Commission on Tuesday released an edited version of the summary of a 17-year-old police report on the Kennedy assassination, which concludes that Sirhan acted alone.

Judd recalls that he was driving home from the FBI's Los Angeles office the evening of June 5, 1968, when radio news reports alerted him to the shooting.

Kennedy, a New York senator, was fatally shot at the Ambassador Hotel, where he was celebrating his victory in California's Democratic presidential primary.

Judd returned to the office and was sent to Central Receiving Hospital with another agent to observe everything and provide security for the senator's entourage.

Eastern to host bluegrass concert

By LESLEY RICHARDS
Staff writer

Bluegrass isn't that plastic, stringy mess that lies in the bottom of Easter baskets.

It's "traditional country music, the way it was before amplification," said music instructor Chet Kingery, co-organizer of the 37th annual Bluegrass Jam Session, which will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

Kingery and co-organizer Jerry Ellis have been associated with these jam session concerts since 1974 and have been playing bluegrass music for about 10 years.

According to Ellis, because it is a "jam session," no specific bands have been booked. Instead, the participants are voluntary musicians who come from surrounding states.

"These jam sessions provide an opportunity for musicians to get together in a family-oriented atmosphere to play their instruments," Ellis said.

In keeping with the family atmosphere, Ellis said alcohol and drugs are not permitted.

Bluegrass music, originating in Kentucky and Tennessee, consists mainly of the guitar, five string banjo, mandolin, fiddle and a steel guitar called a dobro, all of which are acoustic.

He said the musicians will not always perform on stage.

"You might find the best music being played in the hallways," he said.

Jazz band 'gig' set for Eastern

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Activities editor

James Dapogny's Chicago Jazz Band will bring the sounds of Chicago and New Orleans jazz to Eastern at 8 p.m. Friday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

Bob Boedecker, administrative assistant of student activities, said Dapogny was being paid $4,350 for the performance.

"We're expecting a pretty decent attendance," he said.

As of Wednesday, about 130 tickets had been sold. Tickets went on sale Feb. 24, Boedecker said.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students and children and $5 for the general public. Tickets are available from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday at the Union ticket office, or at the door.

The show is the third in the Performing Arts Series. The series will conclude April 17 with "Austin on Tap," a tap-dancing troupe, Boedecker said.

Dapogny's performance will contain a concert, with the second part designed for dancing. Dapogny will take requests, Boedecker said.

Dapogny is "well known around the Chicago area," and has several records out. He was nominated for a Grammy for the record "Sippie," Boedecker said.

Dapogny is a music instructor at the University of Michigan.

Before the concert, Dapogny will give a "presentation on the evolution of jazz until World War II," Boedecker said.

The presentation will take place at 4 p.m. in the Doudna Fine Arts Center and is open to the public.

Faculty members to present play

By ROBIN KNOWLES
Staff writer

The play "Don Juan in Hell" by George Bernard Shaw will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at the Taekwondo studio, 619 Monroe Ave.

Tanya Wood, the play's director and owner/operator of the Lincoln Book Store, has organized three Eastern English instructors, Walter Lazenby, Lee Steinmetz and Richard Rogers, and Susan Eisenhour of the Booth Library staff to put on the "reading performance," Lazenby said.

The play is not staged, but is a reading performance in which characters are acted out, Lazenby said.

The manner of performing is an emulation of the Drama Quartet which consisted of well-knowns such as Charles Boyer, Agnes Moorehead, Charles Laughton and Sir Seddrick Hardwick, Lazenby said.

"Don Juan in Hell" is a part of the framework of a larger play called "Man and Superman," Lazenby said.

It is a play that "most educated people should know about," Lazenby said, and "it is a play of much philosophical substance, as well as humor."

The play concentrates on the "turnaround of the sexes" in which the true drives of males and females are exemplified, Lazenby said.

Lazenby said he hopes the play will attract the Charleston community, as well as Eastern students and faculty.

The cost is $1.50, and tickets are available through the actors in the play, the Lincoln Bookstore and at the door, Lazenby said.

Lazenby said the cast is not in the play for money, but to provide a reading of the play and "just for fun."

The play will last about two hours, Lazenby said.

Graduation Requirements Deadline

For a student to be considered a Spring Semester 1986 graduate ALL graduation requirements must be met by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 30, 1986. This means that any removals of incompletes, changes of grades, or official transcripts of academic work from other institutions MUST reach Records Office by that date. If all requirements are not met, the student should reapply for graduation for Summer Term 1986 no later than Monday, June 23, 1986.

James Martin
Registrar

Unclear Records

The academic records for students who have outstanding obligations with such departments as Textbook Rental Service, Booth Library, Athletic Department, Financial Aids, Chemistry Department, Security, Housing, etc., will be marked unclear. Each student should check with all departments to clear all obligations prior to semester or summer term breaks, and/or leaving the University permanently. Transcripts of the academic records of any student with an unclear record will be withheld and not sent to any one or any place. If the obligations is extremely serious or prolonged, it may result in a complete hold on a student's record which includes withholding grade reports and precludes readmission, registration, or graduation.

Hatfield, Aldridge on all-conference team

By DARIN BLAIR
Staff writer

Seniors Melanie Hatfield and Chris Aldridge were chosen to represent Eastern on the 1986 All-Gateway Conference basketball teams, which were announced Thursday by conference officials.

Hatfield was named first team All-Gateway, while Aldridge garnered second team honors.

"This just thrills me!" Hatfield said when told of her honors. "I'm excited. I've worked hard all season to become an all-conference player and this just stuns me."

The hard work paid off for Hatfield, who led Eastern in scoring with 17.7 points per game. She also led the Gateway in steals with 4.1 and assists with 4.5.

Aldridge, who was All-Gateway last season, led the team in rebounding with 7.3 boards per game. She was also second in scoring with a 16.1 average.

Eastern Coach Bobbie Hilke was equally excited.

"I think it's super that we had two kids make it," Hilke said. "Both girls had outstanding years and they deserve it."

"Melanie was in double figures in 16 out of 18 conference games and she scored more than 20 points in nine of those games... And for Chris to make it two years in a row is just phenomenal," Hilke commented.

Wanda Ford of Drake was voted the league's Most Valuable Player, while Petra Jackson of Southern Illinois University, Allison Daniel of Wichita State and Amy Hile of Indiana State rounded out the first team selections.

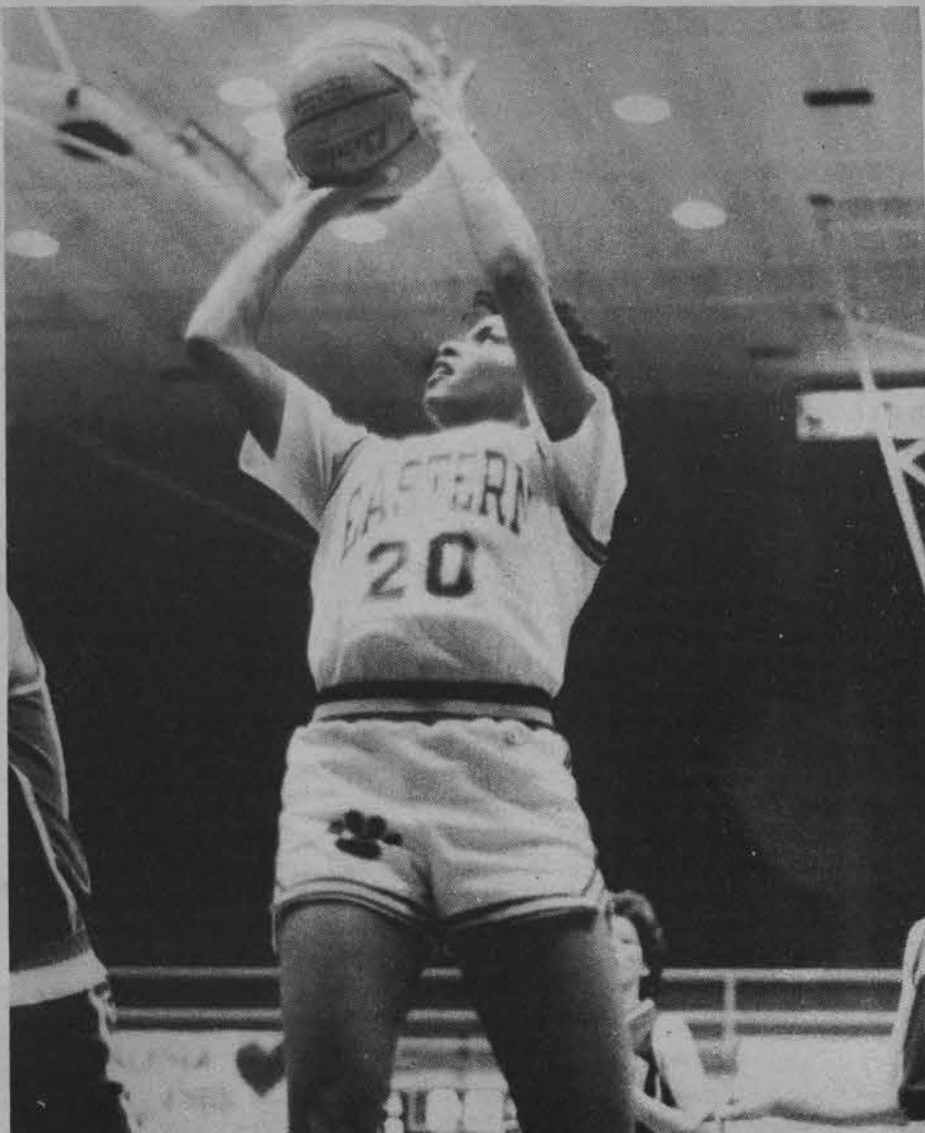

Ford, the Gateway's leading All-America candidate, has led the nation in both scoring and rebounding for eight consecutive weeks this season with a 30.4 points per game scoring average and 17 rebounds. Ford has also led Drake to a probable NCAA tournament bid with a 21-7 record.

Missy Slockett of Drake was voted Outstanding freshman of the year. Cindy Slockett, head coach at Southern Illinois University, took Coach of the Year honors.

Second team honors went to Tammi Turner, Illinois State University; Michelle Braud, Bradley; Jeanette Tendai, Southwest Missouri; and Bridgette Bonds of Southern Illinois.

Three players were named to the honorable mention team. Kim Harris, Bradley; Diane Roberts, University of Northern Iowa; and Karlin Hayes of Drake, each received honorable mention.

Southern won the Gateway title and thus received an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

Class A action kicks off '86 March Madness

CHAMPAIGN (AP)—New faces, new interest could be the theme of this season's Class A Illinois High School basketball tournament.

Three of the contenders, including top-ranked and undefeated Teutopolis, will be making their first appearance in the Elite Eight field, which begins Friday with quarter-final play.

Joining Teutopolis in making first appearances will be Winchester and Westmont.

New interest is reflected by the run on tickets.

IHSA officials are expecting the crowds to average at least 13,000 a session. They could near the 14,166 average of 1976, when the Class A Tournament's overall attendance record of 56,667 was set.

Two schools, Kewanee and West Frankfort, will be making their first appearance in the finals since the tournament went to the two-class system in 1972.

And Ohio's Bulldogs are the smallest school ever to crack the Elite Eight with an enrollment of 70, breaking the record set by St. Paul of Odell in 1951 with 72 students.

Decatur St. Teresa will have made one of the biggest comebacks—the Bulldogs were 1-22 last season.

If there is any advantage to tournament experience, it will go to second-ranked Hoopeston-East Lynn, whose Cornjerkers will be making their third straight appearance in the Elite Eight.

The Cornjerkers lost in quarterfinals two years ago and finished third last year, when Providence-St. Mel captured the championship.

Hoopeston-East Lynn, 30-1, will kick off the quarterfinal action against Winchester, 29-3.

The second game Friday afternoon pits Teutopolis, 30-0, against Westmont, 28-3.

Friday's first game will be a "Bulldog" affair with Ohio's Bulldogs, 27-2, taking on St. Teresa's Bulldogs, 22-8.

The final game finds Kewanee, 27-3, going against West Frankfort, 19-9.

Along with Hoopeston's edge in experience, the Cornjerkers—led by 6-10 All-State David Busch—will have a distinct height advantage against Winchester.

"We haven't faced anyone with Busch's size," said Winchester Coach Bob Moore.

"We definitely feel we can play with them, though. We will have to handle their press and do a good job of helping out on the big guy to have any chance."

Teutopolis, ranked No. 1 most of the season, squeezed by Venice 75-73 Tuesday night in Charleston to make it into the Assembly Hall after being knocked out of the tournament by Flora the past two years.

"Flora beat us by one point and two the year before," said Teutopolis Coach Ken Crawford.

The Wooden Shoes are paced by Bob Zerrusen and Ted Weissing. Both are 6-6 and excellent rebounders.

Bear veterans select Butler as Piccolo winner

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP)—Kevin Butler, the Chicago Bears' fourth-round draft choice in 1985, was named the winner of the team's Brian Piccolo Award in voting by veteran players, the team announced Thursday.

A trophy will be presented to the 6-foot-1, 190-pound place kicker June 16, at the annual cancer-benefit golf tournament at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale.

Butler, 23, is the 16th recipient of the award going to a rookie judged most like Piccolo in off-the-field qualities such as courage, loyalty, teamwork, dedication and sense of humor.

Piccolo died of cancer June 10, 1970, after playing nine games of the 1969 season.

Butler, a graduate of Georgia, set a National Football League record for rookies by scoring 144 points, breaking Gale Sayers' 1965 club mark of 132 points. The Savannah, Ga., native converted on 31 of 38 field-goal attempts.

Bravery

Bradley undaunted by Tulsa defeat

PEORIA (AP)—Dissatisfied but undaunted, Bradley University's ninth-ranked basketball team returned home to a hero's welcome Thursday, after their 22-game winning streak was snapped by Tulsa in the Missouri Valley Conference post-season tournament's title game.

Several hundred fans cheered and waved Bradley pennants as the team's commercial airline flight from Tulsa, Okla., landed Thursday afternoon at Peoria's airport.

The team looked forward to a three-day rest before a party Sunday on the 5,000-Student campus to watch the NCAA Tournament selection on television, said senior guard Jim Les, the MVC's Player of the Year.

Les, surrounded inside the airport by teen-age girls seeking his autograph—as he has been sought all season—said the 74-58 loss Wednesday night to Tulsa would not break the team's high spirits.

"This team will regroup," Les vowed. "Coach (Dick Versace) has given us a couple days off from basketball. We're going to rest, relax and get back to school work."

"We'll be ready mentally and physically to start another winning streak, which hopefully will last six games," Les said, smiling. Six victories are needed to win the NCAA title.

The Bradley Braves, even after the 74-58 thumping by Tulsa, still boasted the best record among major colleges at 31-2, and were virtually assured a berth in the 64-field NCAA Tournament, Versace said.

The team's only other loss this season was an 81-76 defeat Dec. 28 by Clemson at the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii.

Tulsa's victory gave the Hurricanes (23-8) the MVC's automatic NCAA berth.

The NCAA tourney gets underway next week.

Bradley's successful basketball season has dominated tavern and lunchroom conversation in this industrial Illinois River city for weeks, and Thursday was no different, despite the previous evening's loss.

The consensus among fans seemed to be that of the upset by Tulsa meant Bradley may not be one of the so-called "protected 16" in the NCAA Tournament. Those are the top-seeded teams in each of the eight regionals who are assured an easier route through the draw.

Versace was unconcerned over whether his squad would be among those top 16.

Panthers mop up Valpo 85-65

Collins becomes all-time scorer despite flu

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—The flu bug couldn't stop Jon Collins, so how could Vaparaiso expect to hold down the AMCU-8 Player of the Year?

Despite seeing just 27 minutes of playing time due to a bout with the flu, Collins managed to score 18 points to lead Eastern to an 85-65 blowout of Valparaiso in the opening round of the AMCU-8 Tournament.

The win lifted the Panthers' overall record to 18-12, and sent Eastern into Friday's semifinal matchup with second-seed Southwest Missouri at 8:30 p.m.

Collins—wearing a t-shirt under his jersey to keep in his body heat—shot a blistering 9-for-10 from the floor. In doing so, the 6-foot-4 forward moved past John Milholland (1956-58) to become the Panthers' all-time leading scorer.

"I really thought it might be a closer game because we have some trouble guarding Valparaiso," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said in a post-game radio interview.

"Our offense really took over and things just got roaring for us in the second half," Samuels added. "We really got into the offensive rhythm."

The victory also gave Eastern revenge against Valparaiso for two losses the Crusaders had handed the Panthers during the regular season.

All-AMCU-8 performer Kevin Duckworth led Eastern in scoring with 19 points despite a sub-par 8-for-18 shooting performance.

Duckworth also pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds. The Panthers held a 36-29 edge on the boards for the game.

Starting guards Doug Crook and Jay Taylor added 14 points each to the Panther cause.

High hopes

Midwest swim awaits tankers

By JOE LEWNARD
Staff writer

Eastern's men's swimming team is ready to make their months of training pay off in this weekend's Midwest Championships at Illinois-Chicago.

The men's team will have to face the tough competition of Western Kentucky, Southwest Missouri, Western Illinois and eight other teams, but Eastern coach Ray Padovan feels his team should perform well in the meet.

Padovan expects his team to finish in the top half of the highly-competitive meet. The Panther coach feels that Western Kentucky will most likely finish in first place.

Southwest Missouri defeated Western Kentucky in a dual meet earlier this season. But a dual meet and the Midwest Championships are two completely different events, Padovan said, thus Western Kentucky should come back and win this weekend's meet.

Padovan said that the men's meet should be more competitive than the women's championship meet, which took place last weekend, because most of the men's teams have larger rosters than the women's teams.

Most of the teams in this weekend's competition will be carrying the maximum allowed roster of 18 swimmers.

As expected, the swimmers are quite excited and mentally prepared for the meet.

Scott Conover said he has been feeling great and that he expects some good performances from the whole team.

"I'm out of my mind about it," Conover said. "I have been daydreaming in class all week about my goals for the meet."

One of Conover's main goals for the meet is to beat some swimmers he lost to earlier in the season.

"There were some people who touched out Paul (Mulcrone) and I in the 500-yard freestyle earlier in the season, but it's not going to happen this time," Sophomore guard Norm Evans, who saw considerable action due to Collins' illness, came off the bench to chip in nine points and four assists.

"Norm Evans came in and really played well," Samuels said. "He was really an asset, especially on defense by knocking some passes away and getting things going."

Center Jim Steuve and All-AMCU-8 forward Harry Bell paced the Valparaiso offense with 16 and 15 points respectively.

Eastern shot a red-hot 64.5 percent in the second half, and wound up shooting 38-of-63 from the floor.

Samuels noted a difference in the Panthers' game readiness.

"I could see we were ready to play. I could see some spark in their eyes," Samuels said. "We really had a lot of intensity, which definitely is what we really needed."

"The key to winning three games in three days (to take the tournament title) is to play with that kind of aggressive attitude."

Scores from the rest of Thursday's action: Illinois-Chicago 71, Western Illinois 68. Cleveland State 75, Northern Iowa 68, Southwest Missouri 63, Wisconsin-Green Bay 50.

Valparaiso (65)

Smith 4 1-2 9, Bell 6 3-4 15, Anselm 4 0-0 8, Steuve 8 0-0 16, Harris 3 0-0 6, Battle 0 0-0 0, Ford 0 0-0 0, Bayne 0 2-2 2, Hughes 1 0-0 2, McMahon 3 1-1 7. Totals 29-65 7-9 65.

Eastern (85)

Crook 7 0-0 14, Taylor 6 2-2 14, Vance 1 2-2 4, Collins 9 0-0 18, K. Duckworth 8 3-3 19, Evans 4 1-2 9, R. Duckworth 0 0-0 0, Murphy 0 0-0 0, Beck 1 0-0 2, West 0 0-0 0, Peavey 1 1-1 3, Strickland 1 0-0 2, Emro 0 0-0 0. Totals 38-63 9-11 85.

Rebounds—Eastern 36 (K. Duckworth 11), Valpo 29 (Bell, Steuve 6).

Halftime—Eastern 38, Valpo 25.

A-308.

Conover said.

As with all the swimmers on the team, Conover would also like to set some personal-best timings.

He said he has been training for this meet since last June. Conover added that he had been feeling drawn out from the large amounts of swimming he had been doing for the past nine months, but now he has been feeling quite well.

Conover said one of the highlights of the meet is to watch some of the swimmers from the other teams.

"Some of the most talented swimmers in the nation will be at this meet," Conover said.

Sophomore Mark Brandt said one of his main goals for the meet is to make the finals.

Though he was swimming well during the first half of the season, Brandt began to slump during the second half.

He said he has been feeling better after the taper, which is a gradual resting period which the swimmers took last week.

Conover said Padovan has a very effective taper.

Unlike most coaches who set the workout for the taper, Padovan simply tells the swimmers to do between 1,500-2,000 yards, and they can swim it as hard as they want, Conover said.

Senior Paul Mulcrone said it is going to be a fun meet and that he is anxiously looking forward to it.

Mulcrone said his main goal for the meet is to set personal-best times.

Mulcrone said he has been preparing himself to meet these goals for several years.

He added that he is not only trying to beat the swimmers he will be racing against this weekend, but to beat his own times from this season as well.

Mulcrone added there is not much a swimmer can do to help his team win except swim to his peak performance.

"This sport is so individualized that all you can do is prepare yourself and do your best," Mulcrone said.

Eastern forward Jon Collins was named AMCU-8 Player of the Year for the second consecutive season Thursday. Collins edged teammate Kevin Duckworth by just one vote for the honor.

Collins edges Duckworth for AMCU-8 award

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Eastern forward Jon Collins was selected Thursday as the AMCU-8 Player of the Year by the league coaches for the second consecutive year.

Collins, a 6-foot-4 senior, edged Panther teammate Kevin Duckworth by just one point in the balloting.

Duckworth, Eastern's all-time rebounding leader, and Collins both landed spots on the first team of all-conference performers.

Collins, Eastern's all-time scorer, led Eastern in scoring with a 19.8 average. He has scored in 51 consecutive games and 85 of his last 88.

Duckworth, named Most Underrated Player in the Country by CBS Sports, averaged 19.1 points and 9.1 rebounds per game. He was also tabbed by Basketball Weekly as one of the top 50 seniors in the nation.

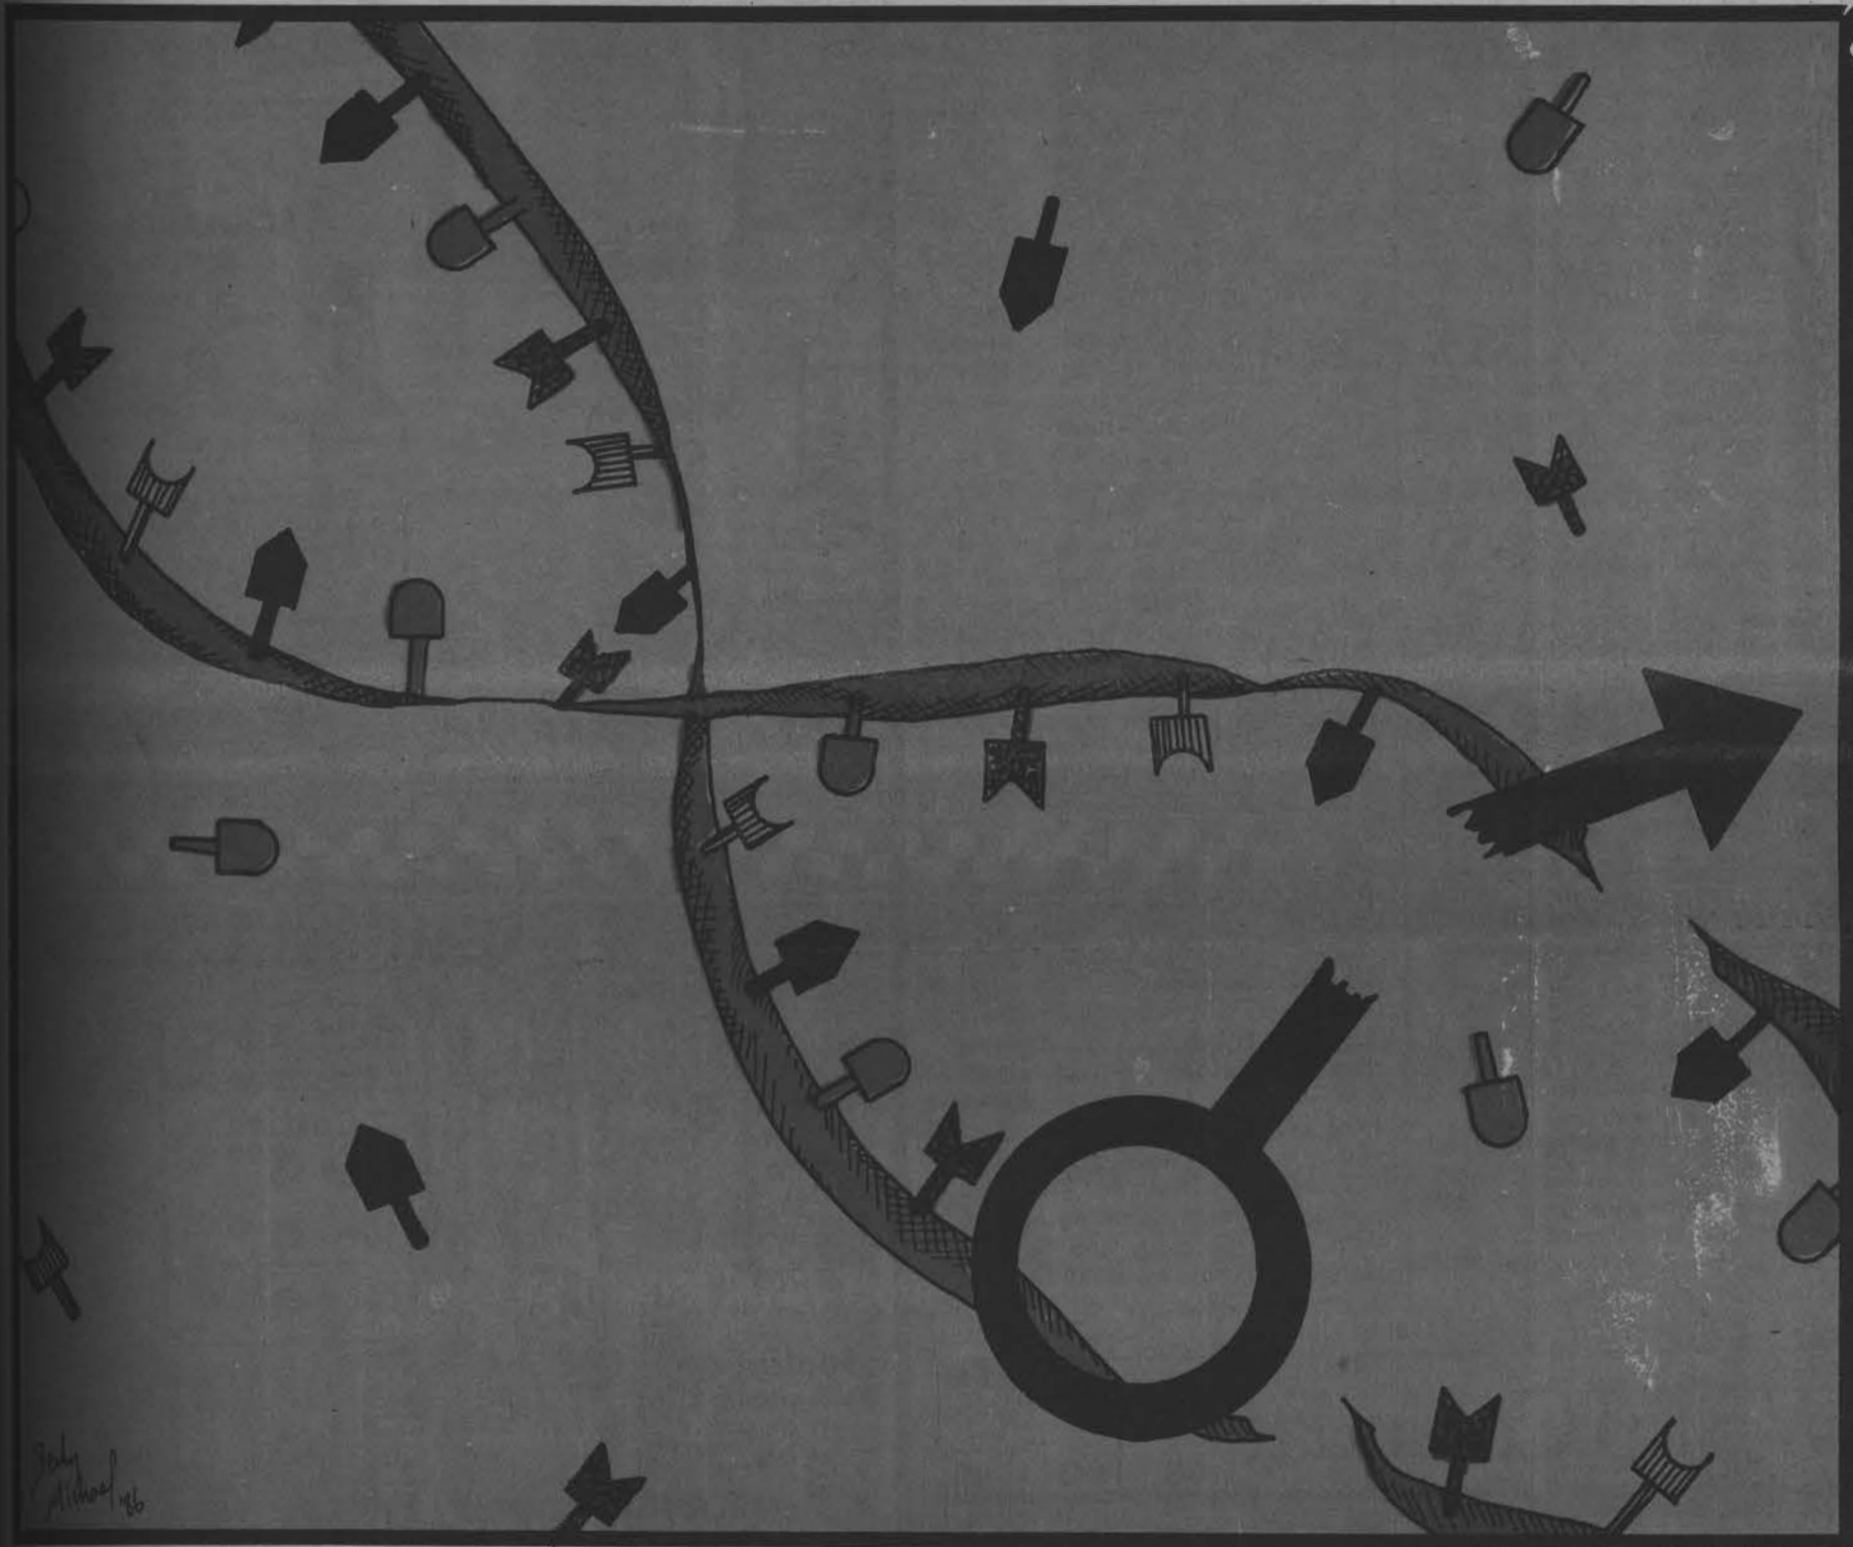

Cleveland State coach Kevin Mackey was voted AMCU-8 Coach of the Year.

Like Eastern, Cleveland State also landed players on the first team All-AMCU-8 squad. Senior Clinton Smith and junior Clinton Rann were the Vikings' representatives.

Conference scoring leader Randy Kraayenbrink of Northern Iowa headed the list of second-team honorees.

Other players named to the squad were: junior Eric Mudd and Ken McFadden of Cleveland State; senior Phil Schlegel of Southwest Missouri; sophomore Harry Bell of Valparaiso and sophomore Eric Longino of Illinois-Chicago.

Male birth control—fact or fiction

By GREGG TRAPPINI
Staff writer

For the past 10 years researchers have been trying to find a safe and effective male birth control pill.

A study done by Johns Hopkins University showed that since 1975 use of the female birth control has been dropping steadily. This has prompted scientists to study an alternate contraceptive, the male birth control pill.

Researchers were skeptical about the demand for a male birth control pill mainly because for many years now it's been the women who took the pill and could men get used to the idea of taking "The pill."

Dr. Daniel Patinelli, a reproduction physiologist at the contraceptive research branch of The National Institute of Health, said that after announcing this new idea at a lecture, "The phone rang off the hook. . . out of the blue men would call up asking when the pill would be available."

The National Institute of Health said if the male birth control pill can be perfected it would be 4-10 years until it would be commercially available.

One main problem with this new "pill" is the male reproductive system.

A woman produces one egg monthly, a man on the other hand, produces on the average anywhere between 80 to 100 million sperm daily.

The female pill has to knock out one egg while the male pill has to deal with 80 to 100 million sperm.

For the male birth control pill to be effective it would have to take care of at least 96 percent of the sperms.

Some methods that have been tried include using hormones and chemicals to inhibit sperm movement and suppressing production.

The main problem with using these chemicals and hormones is the adverse side effects.

The adverse effects include impotency, loss of libido, continued drop in sperm count after using the drug, loss of appetite and weight, enlarged heart and growth retardation.

In an area of China there was an astonishing amount of cases of impotent men.

This prompted researchers to study the area and the men that were experiencing these problems.

Vaughan finds his way from 'Soul to Soul' with music

By DAMON LEE DILLARD

Music critic

Stevie is back and better than ever. The new 10 song album release "Soul To Soul," will absolutely thrill Stevie Ray Vaughan fans.

With the first release, "Texas Flood," Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble established themselves as some of the best Blues-Rockers around. With songs like "Pride and Joy" and "Love Struck Baby," Vaughan and Double Trouble commanded an immediate following.

Then in 1984, Vaughan was voted the "Guitar Player of the Year" by almost every music magazine you can name.

"Soul to Soul" is every bit as good as the two previous releases, "Texas Flood" and "Couldn't Stand the Weather," but is strong where the other two had weaknesses.

The first three songs on side one are real screamers. Stevie jams relentlessly on his Gibson, playing riffs that will make even the most accomplished guitarist stand up and take notice.

They slow down on the last two tracks "Ain't Gone 'N' Give Up On Love" and "Gone Home." These two are bluesy and laid back, slow but ever present guitar in the background.

On side two, he is back up to full steam playing his heart out on "Change It." The pace keeps up on "You'll Be Mine" and "Empty Arms," but again slows down on the last two.

The bass player and drummer are still with Stevie but he has added a keyboardist. A move that could unsettle die hard fans of "Texas Flood." Still, I think it adds another dimension to the band.

The influence of Hendrix on Stevie is still evident, but not as much as on the previous two albums. Double Trouble is better than ever and the rhythm section seems more fluid, more polished.

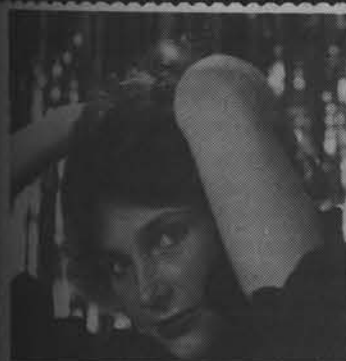

I don't really have any gripes about "Soul To Soul," except maybe one—if you're not into fast-rockin' blues with a lot of Jimi's influence, you won't like this album. If you are, go out and get it. You will be more than pleased with Stevie's latest work.

'Quicksilver' makes fast exit in critique

By LLOYD TRESSEL
Movie critic

Well, it's time for another underdog movie, and guess what this one features—bicycling. And I think this movie contains just about every element that has ever been in movies that have been successful.

Sure, it's got all the regulars: sex, violence, and car chases, but it's got a few others too.

Quicksilver is a story about a young man, Jack Case played by Kevin Bacon, (you may remember him as the character, Wren, from the movie Footloose) a stock broker who loses everything. And I mean everything—$30 million of his own, his girlfriend and even his parents' savings account.

After this event, Bacon drops out of sight and re-emerges in the ghettos of New York.

Guess what helps him forget about all his problems? Yep, riding his bicycle. So, he decides to take a job as a bicycle delivery boy.

Along with his new job, Bacon gets a new bunch of friends with all of different ethnic backgrounds. But they all have two things in common—they all ride bicycles and they all admire Bacon.

Of course Bacon develops a romantic relationship with one of his co-workers, played by Jami Gertz and tosses out his old girlfriend who is from the upper echelons of society. And typically he saves the heroine from the clutches of death in the end.

He also develops a strong relationship with another co-worker, comedian Paul Rodriguez, and saves him from the clutches of evil.

Some of the people Bacon works with get mixed up making deliveries for a drug dealer, which is another story in itself. Surprisingly enough, Bacon saves these people too.

Between scenes of Bacon whizzing through traffic and crowded sidewalks on his bicycle, we get a procession of scenes that all have to do with different characters.

First we see a scene of Bacon with his new girlfriend, Gertz. Next we get a scene of him with his newly adopted chum, Rodriguez. Then his parents and then his stock broker friends. After this, the whole process starts again. It seems like the director tried to jam a handful of stories and elements all into one movie.

Even though Quicksilver contains all the elements that make movies successful, it's not very entertaining. The story progresses in an orderly and very predictable manner leaving us unstimulated.

The only bright spot in this movie is the acting done by Bacon. He does a very good job at portraying his character in a believable manner. Unlike most of the other characters in the movie.

The other characters seem like cardboard replicas of people. Only one side of their personalities are shown throughout the movie and frankly it gets dull.

The one problem that I had with Bacon's character, is that we don't know if he's supposed to be some kind of whiz kid, or if he's a YUPPIE.

I think that Bacon, as an actor is trying to make the transition from teenage characters to more adult-type characters, and it leaves us confused like the rest of the movie does.

All in all, Quicksilver leaves us asking too many questions about the characters and the events of the movie. Questions that need to be answered for understanding and enjoyment of the movie.

To tell you the truth, the projector broke down right in the middle of the movie, so I got up and walked over to the next theater where Delta Force was playing. The only reason that I returned to see the end of Quicksilver, was because I had to see the rest so I could write this review.

Television and alter persona

By JUDY WEIDMAN
Television critic

That was then, this is now.

Male actors on television have gone through some changes over the past few years.

A long time ago there was an actor named Major Anthony Nelson who was controlled by a jeannie which he had on a desert island.

This wholesome astronaut was played by Larry Hagman who is now playing J.R. Ewing on the hit prime time series.

As J.R., Hagman is head of the dynasty and has complete control over his life.

He also has more potential to do more than just act as a businessman who has more in common with other civilians than playing the major in the U.S. Armed Forces who has conducted business with other armed forces members.

Another actor who was at one time in a 'mechanical' role was Lee Majors who played Steve Austin in television series "The Magnificent Seven" and "The Green Hornet".

He worked for Rudy at the OSI and he rebuilt both of his legs, his right arm and his eye with bionics making him stronger than any other man.

After using his super strength for several seasons, the popularity of this bionic man has faded.

In the fall of 1984, Majors returned to television as Colt Seavers, a stunt man and bounty hunter.

Now Majors' character relies on his bionics more than his bionic eye, but he has more experiences as a stunt man and his character is more interesting (Bruce Boxletter).

Audience tunes in to 'Condition 90'

SHEILA HESS
 For those who are sick of the weekend scene, a new band will be playing at the Top of Roc's on Saturday.
 The band, Condition 90, will be appearing at 9:00 p.m. at Page One Room, 410 6th St.
 The band features three members who have been together for the past two years and plan on making a future together.
 The members include Tony

Beeknan on drums, Tom Irwin on bass and lead vocals, and John Walker on guitar.
 The soundman and acting manager is Ralph Sordyl, who told The Daily Eastern News, "The band forms around pop rock, and features their own music. Each member has their own ideas and we try to incorporate them into a whole."
 The band will generally play about 80 percent of their music and 20 percent of the music done by other artists. They have found the Monkees, Beatles and the Police as a favorite with their audiences.

 "But our music does well," Sordyl said. "Requests are made for ours."
 Not only has the band become familiar through its live performances, it has also done work in the studio.
 "We have a demo tape already, which was sold and 500 copies were bought...a 45, which was released last April, has been playing at local nightclubs," Sordyl said.

The two songs on the 45 are In the Moon and Big Bomb.
 "Our music isn't top 40, but it has clean lines in voice and guitar," Sordyl said. "Our music is geared at the audience and what they like."
 "We're going back into the studio in the near future with hopes to release an album," Sordyl said.
 "We aim to have a good time while we perform. Because if we don't how can our audience... We play for them, not for us," Sordyl said.

Students share opinions about male birth control pill

LAURA SEYMOUR
 After the presentation of Dr. Ruth Westheimer this week, whose talk was to dispel sexual myths, it's clear students on campus are still talking about the issue of male birth control.
 At the moment the only type of male birth control on the market is the condom.
 Women on the other hand have their choice of pill, sponge, diaphragm and IUDs, not to mention a host of others.
 For a long time society believed that it was the man's responsibility to use some form of birth control.
 But times are changing and more men would like to use birth control because of the increase in unwanted pregnancies and the concern of dangerous side effects that might be caused by woman's form of birth control.
 Unfortunately, there is only one form of male birth control, besides vasectomies and abstinence, and most men don't like the way condoms feel so they would rather do without.

 There is a male birth control pill being studied for effectiveness and whether or not it will have dangerous side effects on males.
 Just when the male birth control pill would be put on the market is hard to say, but some students believe that a male birth control pill would be a definite asset.
 "I wish there was something men could use. I would use it if it wouldn't make me sterile tomorrow," said junior Gary Krohn.
 "I think it's a good idea. I think it's about time men took some responsibility. I would have my boyfriend use it, but I would have to trust the guy a lot. It would be too easy for a guy to lie about," said senior Mary Gaulke.
 "I like the idea of having a pill for men because the guy should take on responsibility. The guy should take on as much responsibility as the girl," said senior Mary Gress.

"An excellent idea. I would have my boyfriend use it. We would probably switch off," said sophomore Janis Thurmond.
 "It would be great if it didn't have any sterility effects," said senior Greg Rhea.
 "I think that men and women should take the same precautions because both are responsible and the responsibility should not lay on the girls' shoulders. Yes. I think I would use it," said senior Brian Savage.
 "I think it's great. I would use it if the moment ever arose," said senior Craig Stockman.
 A few men had some reservations about whether they would use birth control if it was made available to them.
 "I would probably take it as long as it was scientifically proven that it was safe. I would probably use it as a last resort," said junior Don Baker.
 "I wouldn't use it because I think it would make me sterile," said junior Chris Raynic.

Ninth Street Band creates exciting entertaining flavor

By BILL GILMORE
Staff writer

The Shelbyville based Ninth Street Band is expected to once again fill Ted's Warehouse, 102 N. 6th St., with energetic dance music Saturday night.

The Ninth Street Band is one of the fastest developing groups in East Central Illinois playing area clubs every weekend.

Ted Bertuca, owner of Ted's Warehouse, said they are the "number one band."

Although they have only been playing together for the last seven months, they have been playing instruments for the past eight years.

Band member Paul Wright described their music as "the best dance music around."

They play a wide variety of music including songs from bands such as; Brian Adams, Bruce Springsteen, Billy Idol, The Romantics, VanHalen and the Beatles.

They are planning on writing and playing their own music in the near future, but basically want to be successful.

Although they excel in vocals and the keyboard, they are a overall solid band, Wright said.

The audience usually consists of different types of listeners, townies, groupies, college students and friends.

The band consists of five members; Brad Reynolds lead vocals and guitar, Paul Wright vocals and guitar, Donny Foster keyboards and synthesizer, Mike Wheeler drums, and Rick Weaver bass.

The Ninth Street Band creates an atmosphere of excitement and entertainment. That combined with what guitarist Paul Wright sights as "an excellent crowd at Ted's" should provide a fun night of dancing and entertainment.

these problems.

The scientists concluded that it was a chemical in cotton seed oil called Gossypol that was causing the impotencies.

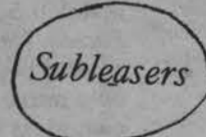

So the Chinese began to research the chemical but they still had the problem of adverse side effects.

A Brazilian study showed that if Gossypol was injected in the proper dosages it had no side effects, except the intended one, infertility.

Dr. Jerry Heath, Health Service director, said it's a great idea but they still have the problems of side effects and until they can overcome them it will be some time before we will see a male birth control pill commercially available in the U.S.

Helpful hints to better contraception strategy control

By MIKE SABINE
Staff writer

There is a popular misconception these days that most of the successful contraceptions and chemicals for controlling unwanted births are dependant on female use.

A careful study of medical annals reveals that nothing could be farther from the truth.

There are many strategies open to the male for temporarily short circuiting his reproductive system, these are but a few.

HOT BATHS: Immersion in water over 100 degrees for more than 20 minutes will provide short term contraception.

The principle is similar to the increased action of water molecules when it is heated. The sperm start going crazy, swimming willy nilly in circles, banging headlong into each other. Dazed by the heat and collisions with each other, they are hardly able to make the swim upstream.

LONG BICYCLE RIDES: The modern bicycle seat may look cool, but it wasn't designed with the frail male anatomy in mind. After several hours on a bike, no male could undergo his part of the intercourse process. Look at France for example, where bicycling is very popular. The birth rate hardly exceeds the death rate, and there is a long-noted effeminate streak in males, who become obsessed with fashion and pastry cooking.

There are a variety of different condoms on the market available for consumers at Osco Drug, 566 W. Lincoln Ave.

TOO TIGHT PANTS: The male may think he looks like a stud in those skin-tight pants, but after several hours in them he's pretty unlikely to be producing any offspring.

The resulting poor blood circulation makes the possibility of sex pretty iffy.

THE PILL: Yes, the pill is not for women only. The same little monkey wrench can be thrown into the male system also. Counteracting those hairy-chested male hormones, the puts the entire male system in a temporary state of bewilderment.

The sperm will be unlikely to contemplate anything as violent as penetrating an egg, they will probably spend the time doing their version of a water ballet.

The male should be warned against long term use, however. It can result in a fascination with eye shadow and lipstick.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES: It has long been known that color televisions, microwave ovens, video disc terminals and other modern conveniences emit low-level radiation.

Overexposure to these appliances will result in burned-out wiring in the male system, and in extreme cases semen that glows in the dark.

However, the right dosage, say watching "Gilligan's Island" reruns viewed down while eating a microwave burrito will result in short-term blockage in time for that big date.

So guys, save that needless trip to the drug store next time. Take a hot bath, go for a long bike ride, put on those jeans right out of the dryer. Take it from me, you won't have anything to worry about.
