Lebanese say British envoy seen alive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Two taxi drivers said they saw missing hostage negotiator Terry Waite walking in a southern Beirut suburb Thursday with an escort of about 10 gunmen and four turbaned Shiite Moslem sheiks.

Waite, the 6-foot-7 Anglican church envoy, was last seen by reporters Jan. 20 when he left the Riviera Hotel in west Beirut to meet the kidnapers of two Americans. Since then, Waite has not contacted the church or his family.

The taxi drivers, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press they saw Waite walking with his escorts in a street close to the Lebanese capital's airport highway at about 3 p.m. Thursday.

"I saw him smiling and waving his hand to onlookers as he walked. He wore a gray raincoat," said one witness. "I stopped my taxicab to watch, but the escorts waved me away, saying: 'Don't stop. Drive on.' I did."

Waite wore a raincoat when he was last seen by reporters.

Another taxi driver said he saw Waite at the same time in the same procession, smiling and waving his right arm to onlookers on the left side of the street.

Both drivers work in the neighborhood of the Riviera Hotel, where Waite stayed between his arrival in Lebanon on Jan. 12 and the time he dropped from sight Jan. 20.

Waite came to Beirut to try to win the freedom of foreign hostages. A total of 26 foreigners, including eight Americans, are missing and presumed kidnapped in Lebanon. Many are believed held by Shiite Moslem captors.

Student's bond set at $10,000 for armed robbery

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

A 21-year-old Eastern student has been arrested for armed robbery and had his bond was set at $10,000 Wednesday.

Senior Jonathan L. Patterson was arrested Monday and charged with the armed robbery of Gregory L. Anderson. According to court records, Patterson allegedly pointed a revolver at the head of Anderson and told Anderson not to move or say anything.

Patterson and another suspect, who has yet to be apprehended, allegedly intended to get $450 from Anderson.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said the three men knew each other. Anderson owed one of the two men $450 and guy they were attempting to try and get it back, Johnson said.

Patterson is currently in custody at the Coles County jail.

During the hearing Wednesday, Patterson requested that he be released on his own recognizance.

A hearing on his request has been set for 9:30 a.m. Feb. 9.

Upon Patterson's request, Lonnie Lutz was appointed by the court to represent him.

Armed robbery is a class one felony which carries a sentence of four to 15 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Dunlap stresses general education

William Dunlap, the third of candidates for the position of president and vice president for academic affairs at Eastern, stressed a strong emphasis on general education courses.

"I believe that a college needs a good general education background," Dunlap said Thursday to a group of students and faculty members. "I will continue to interview several campus groups Friday."

Upon the amount of credit hours on general education, I think maybe we need to take a look at it," he added.

Dunlap also expressed some concern about increasing the number

Top cocaine smuggler arrested

TAMPA, Fla.—A neo-Nazi who allegedly vowed to "kill a federal judge a week" if arrested was brought under heavy guard before federal magistrate Thursday on charges of heading the world's largest cocaine smuggling ring.

Carlos Lehder Rivas, who was seized by Colombian troops in his jungle hideout Wednesday and flown here by U.S. Air Force jet, was ordered held for a formal hearing Monday in Jacksonville, where he is under a 6-year-old indictment on drug and conspiracy charges.

Federal authorities refused to say where they would hold Lehder, a self-proclaimed Nazi, until Monday. He was escorted into court by four U.S. marshals and several other federal agents.

CIA must win trust of Congress

WASHINGTON—The chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Thursday the Iran-Contra uproar shows the need to restore trust between Congress and the spy agencies, while Reagan administration officials appealed to Congress to continue the flow of U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., predicted there will be some proposals to tighten procedures for informing Congress of undercover activities. He said that while he would endorse some changes in that respect, "I think the most important thing is attitude. You have to rebuild trust."

The senator said he expected relations between Congress and intelligence community to improve following the resignation of William J. Casey as CIA director.

Condoms not foolproof for AIDS

CHICAGO—Condoms help, but they cannot provide foolproof protection against AIDS for the same reasons they cannot guarantee protection against pregnancy, says an author of a new study.

"The only guarantee (against AIDS) was abstinence," said Dr. Margaret A. Fischl, co-author of the University of Miami School of Medicine study of 45 AIDS patients and their families.

The spouse of one AIDS victim contracted the deadly disease despite consistent use of condoms, she said.

"Condoms appeared to decrease the incidence of transmission but did not decrease it to a zero level," said Fischl.

Illinois seeking new speed limit; going for 65 mph interstate limit

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Pending federal legislation would allow Illinois to set a 65 mph limit on more than 1,300 miles of interstate highway, officials say.

A measure approved earlier this week by the U.S. Senate and now headed for a House-Senate conference committee would allow states to raise the speed limit on interstates in rural areas.

The plan's future is uncertain, as a similar measure died at the end of the last Congress along with funding for highway and mass-transit projects.

But if the federal government gives states the option of raising the current 55 mph speed limit, in effect since 1974, some Illinois lawmakers say the state should take the opportunity.

"I support the legislation because it's realistic," said Sen. Earlean Collins, D-Chicago, who heads the state Senate Transportation Committee. "People are not obeying the 55 mph limit, so the law should be brought into accord with what people are doing."

In addition, Gov. James R. Thompson says he would sign a state 65 mph bill if state officials assured him they could enforce it in rural areas and crack down on violators of the 55 mph limit in urban areas.

The federal legislation defines a rural interstate eligible for a 65 mph limit as one outside a metropolitan area with a population of 50,000 or more.

Of the 1,788 miles of interstate highway in Illinois, 1,342 miles meet that definition, according to an analysis by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The 55 mph limit would still apply on 446 miles of interstates in the Chicago metropolitan area and 52 miles in East St. Louis, Belleville and adjacent areas.

Seib to leave Iran within one day

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Iran said Thursday that American journalist Gerald F. Seib had not left the country but would do so within 24 hours. He was arrested during a government-sponsored press tour and accused of spying.

Seib, a 30-year-old Cairo-based reporter for the Wall Street Journal, was in a group of 57 foreign journalists invited to visit the southern front in the 6½-year-old war with Iraq.

In Ottawa, Canada's Foreign office said it had been advised that Philip Eng, a Canadian engineer arrested Dec. 2 on espionage charges, also would be released soon. An American telecommunications specialist and a British businessman also are imprisoned in Iran on similar charges.

An official of Iran's Information Ministry, reached by telephone in Tehran on Thursday, said of Seib, "He has still not left, but will leave within the next 24 hours." The official spoke on condition of anonymity and would not elaborate, except to say:

"No one can give you more information. I don't show any more curiosity. When it happens (Seib's departure), you will definitely find out about it."

Officials at Tehran's Mehrabad airport said they had no information about when Seib would leave the country.

The Swiss Embassy in Tehran, which handles U.S. interests, refused comment on Seib's whereabouts. Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Said Rajai-Khorassani, said in a statement late Wednesday that Seib had been taken over to the embassy.

An announcement Wednesday by the Information Ministry said authorities decided to expel Seib the next day after "a judicial proceeding into his case ended."

Student Body President Mike Madigan and multiple sclerosis victim Lisa Persinger release a bevy of balloons on the Library Quad Thursday. Students Against Multiple Sclerosis sponsored the 2,000 balloon launch.

Students battle disease with MS balloon launch

By CATHY VELASCO
Staff writer

A rainbow of colors floated over Booth Library Thursday as 2,000 balloons soared through the air during a balloon launch for Multiple Sclerosis.

Students Against Multiple Sclerosis sponsored the balloon launch. "I am very happy we sold 500-600 balloons to students. We knew it would be hard to sell all 2,000 balloons—that would be one out of every five students," said SAMS campus coordinator Ann Hasara.

"Local businesses are donating money to the launch. We have sold 1,200 balloons, but 2,000 balloons are going up no matter what," said Jennifer Davis, SAMS main events chairperson.

MS has to do with the central nervous system and college students are at the prime age for this disease, which has no cure, Hasara said. The money from the balloon launch will go toward research, she said.

"This balloon launch is a kick off for other events and it will show Eastern that there is a MS organization on campus," Davis said.

"This is good for Eastern. MTV and Ford are sponsoring us and 250 other campuses are participating. The campus with the most earnings from fundraisers will get a free concert which will be taped by MTV," she said.

"My next door neighbor had MS and I wanted to help the cause," said junior Deric Cramer, a pre-business major. "You cannot ignore the situation, it will still be there."

"The band Simulating Stimulation is playing free for us, for the cause," Hasara said. "I really appreciate it. They are attracting a lot of attention."

"Students at Booth Library are complaining and as soon as the security guards come the band will have to stop," Davis added. "This just shows the apathy some Eastern students have for this cause."

About 100 students showed up for the 3 p.m. balloon launch and to listen to the band. The band played for about 20 minutes until they were asked to stop.

"We had to stop. A lady from the University Union complained," said Lee Clayton, who played bass guitar. "We were out here in the cold doing a constructive thing for MS. It is not fair. I am thinking about making a formal protest to the Union."

"Luckily we got to play for awhile and we did draw a good crowd," Clayton said. "If we were doing it for our own benefit, I would understand. But it's for a good cause and it's just for one afternoon."

Reform law hangs tax over grad students

By BILL DENNIS
Senior reporter

The new tax reform law may put the bite on graduate students, an Eastern official said Wednesday.

Larry Williams, dean of graduate studies, said Eastern's more than 270 graduate students receiving financial aid may have to pay extra taxes because of the tax reform law which goes into effect this year.

Under the new tax law, students working as graduate assistants may face taxes on both tuition waivers and monthly stipends, Williams said. Previously, only financial aid above the cost of tuition was considered taxable income.

These graduate students work as tutors, teaching and laboratory workers in return for the stipend, Williams said.

Williams, a member of the board of directors of the Council of Graduate Schools of the United States, said the status of graduate students under the new tax law is still unclear, and the group has requested a clarification from the Internal Revenue Service. The clarification could take only two weeks or as long as next year to arrive.

Williams said what graduate deans see as a fallacy, for example, is that if a graduate student gets $4,000 and a tuition waiver of $1,000, then income tax must be paid on $5,000. But if a student gets $5,000 and then pays $1,000 in tuition out of that money, the student pays income tax on only $4,000. The tuition portion is not taxable if it is a fellowship, but is taxable if it is an assistantship.

"What we really believe as graduate deans is that lawmakers simply didn't take into consideration what is obviously a contradiction in the existing tax law," Williams said. "What we're trying to do is to get clarification as to whether that was really the intent."

Because of the relatively low tuition at Eastern, graduate students here won't be affected as much as students at the more expensive private or doctoral degree colleges.

"It's not really serious for a school like Eastern because, relatively speaking, our tuition is low," he said. "But if you think about the impact that this would have on a private university whose tuition may be eight or ten thousand dollars . . . graduate deans see a really unfair burden on the graduate student who elects to attend a private university."

Eastern graduate students will be sent a letter during the next few days telling them that at this point tuition waivers will not be taxable, but will warn them that an unfavorable tax ruling forcing them to pay taxes on their waivers, will possibly retroactive back to the beginning of this year.

Proposed cuts won't pass without changes—Flynn

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Staff writer

John Flynn, Eastern's director of financial aid, said he does not believe Reagan's proposal to cut federal financial aid to college students by 45 percent will pass without modifications.

If the proposal were to pass, however, the College Work Study Program, the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant program and the National Direct Student Loan (Perkins) program would lose all funding, Flynn said.

Flynn has estimated that the cuts in these three programs would have an impact of $926,989 on Eastern students, but he said the estimate is at the "low end."

The estimate does not take Guaranteed Student Loans into consideration, Flynn said, because he has no way of assessing their impact.

The total number of Eastern students affected is also difficult to assess, Flynn said, because some students participate in several programs. Perkins loans would still be available for a while because the same money is loaned out again and again on a revolving basis. However, Flynn said, funds would eventually dwindle down to nothing because of defaults.

In the case of the College Work Study Program, Flynn said he did not know who would do the work currently being done by the students in the work study program.

"That's a good question," Flynn said. "A better question is 'Can Eastern afford to pick it up?' My guess is no."

Pell grants would also be hurt under the proposed cuts.

Education Secretary William Bennett "obviously approves of the (Reagan's proposed) budget," Flynn said, and apparently believes that the state will step in. "The state of Illinois cannot afford to step in," Flynn said.

In addition, Flynn said, the Reagan administration hasn't "given a convincing argument why it should be done."

Law agencies report $154,000 in drugs netted locally

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
Staff writer

Area law enforcement agencies reportedly brought in more than $70,000 worth of cocaine, $16,000 in drug related cash and more than $68,000 worth of an assortment of other drugs in drug related arrests last year.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said the recently released figures are a summary of what the agencies accomplished on the drug scene in 1986.

"It's a continuing thing. That's just the cases they cracked in 1986," he said.

The agencies—the Charleston Police Department, the Coles County Sheriff's Department, Eastern's security police, the Mattoon Police Department, the Douglas County Sheriff's Office, the Tuscola Police Department, the Douglas County State's Attorney's Office, the Division of Criminal Investigation of the Illinois State Police, the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency, and the Coles County State's Attorney's Office—worked in a combined effort on more than 40 drug cases. In each of the 40 cases, either an arrest or a conviction was made.

Drugs seized and/or purchased included methamphetamine, pharmaceutical amphetamines and barbiturates, LSD, psilocybin, marijuana and cocaine.

The $16,000 in cash seized has been confiscated by the federal agencies, Johnson said. "I think the internal revenue generally takes over when it gets into the larger dollars."

Johnson said many of the cases the agencies cracked were first started from leads the detectives got.

"My detectives get leads. They hear things and then follow them up. They just work it and keep working it up," he said.

The important part in any drug case is the pushers, he said. "When you get a guy using dope, you really don't have anything. You've got to get the pushers. "We're always interested in the seller, the big dealer. We try to get the seller and then the guy that supplies that guy and then the guy who supplies that guy and so on," Johnson said.

Drugs are about the biggest problem in law enforcement, he said. "Due to the money you can make from it, it's a big business. The interest in drugs is just as strong as ever. I don't see any decline."

Johnson said not only are drugs a problem in themselves, but that they also contribute to other problems.

"I don't like the suckers who are behind it all," he said. "I think they ought to be stopped."

Johnson did say, however, "It's (cracking drug cases) probably the most exciting and most glorious (job), but our main job is still to protect the people. They have rights to peace and tranquility. We still owe it to the people, the best we can give them," he said.

Smoking policy a step in right direction for all

The new smoking policy, which was proposed by the the President's Council, stresses non-smokers' rights for clean air.

It is a policy that limits smoking under a common courtesy approach. The policy states smoking areas will be limited, and smokers "should" refrain from lighting up when non-smokers ask them.

Editorial

The new policy will broaden the Eastern's current smoking policy, which is based on fire prevention instead of the rights of non-smokers. The new policy prohibits smoking in indoor lines, restrooms, classrooms and work areas.

The policy comes on the heels of a surgeon general report which says secondary smoke and primary smoke are equally dangerous to health.

The President's Council submitted the policy to various groups on campus to receive feedback, before voting on it next month.

Although there is some question about how the administration plans to enforce the policy, we believe it is a step in the right direction.

Stressing the importance of the non-smokers' rights to healthiness is a positive movement to a safer, more comfortable environment for everyone.

It is more of a matter of courtesy to others rather than an act punishable if violated. Many people already adhere to such courtesies by refraining from smoking when asked by non-smokers.

It appears that the smoking policy is not so much for applying strict rules on smokers, as it is one that advances public awareness of the hazards of smoking for both non-smokers and smokers alike.

Although the proposal is somewhat controversial, many organizations and individuals have voiced their approval of it.

Members of the Student and Faculty Senates have discussed the issue and given positive reactions for its support. The Residence Hall Association also voted its approval on the policy.

Although a few residence hall councils have turned the policy down due to its limits on smoking in rooms where non-smoking roommates request it, we believe, as a matter of health precautions, that the policy is reasonable.

Enforcement, however, will mainly lie upon the responsibility of the smoker and his desire to follow the courtesy rule.

Your turn

Drinking—a choice that's ours to make

Editor:

This is in response to A.L. Landers' column "Drinking will be the death of us all," which is not about "going to hell in a handbasket," it is about choices. After reading her column, I was surprised to find a journalist supporting such a one-dimensional attitude towards our society.

"Why did they ever, ever do away with prohibition?" Because our founding fathers had the good sense to make us the best country in the whole universe by giving us rights provided for in the Constitution. We have the right to choose for ourselves whether we can drink or not. Maybe we should all be made to drink vodka. It is my choice not yours. Incidentally, the local pubs do serve soda.

Maybe if our children can't get "dirty" books in a house of literature then our problem of profanity and pornography would be solved. Do you suspect censorship, too?

I commend you for wanting to better our society, but Carrie Nation couldn't do it and neither can you.

Dana Barfield

No fun column will be death of A.L. Landers

Editor:

I am finally fed up with the column authored by

A.L. Landers. Her Jan. 27 column on drinking took the cake. It angers me.

First of all, in refutation of her ill-sighted views Prohibition was repealed because of organized crime and also so that health standards could be administered to the processing of alcohol. (That was stupid for her to even ask such a question.)

As to flunking out at Eastern (because of drinking) what about flunking out at Brigham Young University where drinking occurs as often as you have fun.

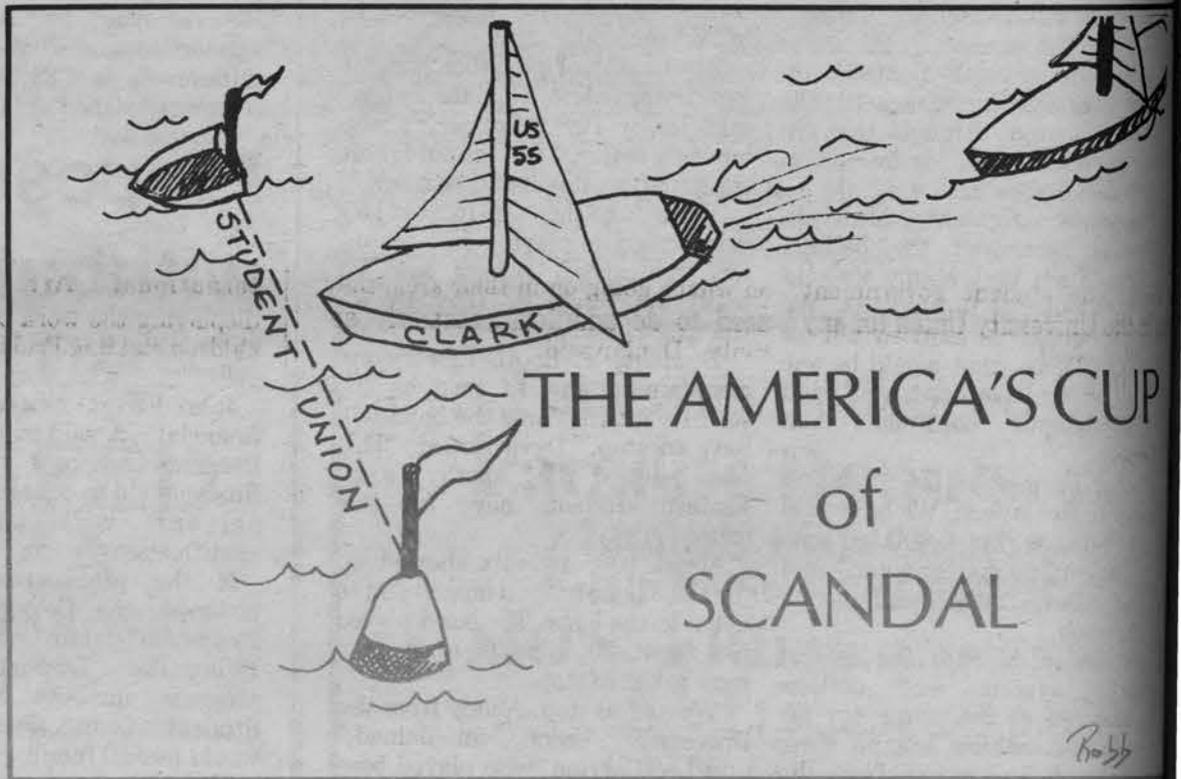

Ten years from now we'll still be going to the sacred after bars at 1 a.m. (I assume that by 1 a.m. she would be already having dreams of libel lynching.)

Drinking habits? I'll put my drinking habits up against her social habits (or lack of) anyway. As alternatives to drinking she lists activities to drinking you list activities ranging from soaps to bingo to homework. Bingo is boring. I have class all day and then my friends and I go drinking after our homework is done. I drink because I want to and have even been sober on a Saturday night at least once or twice in my life.

In her conclusion, she refers to mind-altering drugs. Maybe it's time she tried some. Even President Reagan drinks. Here's an alternative to you A.L. Why don't you start a recipe and household tips column? At least no one will be shocked when you reveal your ignorance. The Daily Eastern News is a fine newspaper given its resources and should be embarrassed to have you on its staff.

All work and no play makes Jane a dull girl. As you a dull girl Miss Landers?

Speaker says history key to knowing future

By MELANIE ANDERSON
Staff writer

William Coleman, a former director of black studies at Illinois State University, spoke to students Thursday about the importance of knowing black history.

"A man without a past has no future. To determine the future, you must know something about your past," Coleman said.

Knowing your history was the theme for the evening as Coleman stressed how history paves the way for the future.

"Africans reached the continent before Columbus," he said. Through consistent studying of Black America, he found that the Africans made several attempts to cross the water over into America, some being wrecked under by a whirlpool. Those that did make it left behind remains of wrecked ships that assured their existence.

The first blacks to arrive in America were brought here by Spanish explorers to help erect buildings, but managed to escape and make friends with the Indians,"

Black History Month

Coleman said.

When asked about the plight of Black Americans in the future, Coleman stated, "The biggest problem we will face is a diminish in jobs and education." The space shuttle Challenger was a true representation of American soil. It demonstrated joint efforts and in 10 years we should be looking at a better day, he added.

He then spoke on the comparison of U.S. blacks opposed to those of foreign descent. "We are far more advanced than the African, but he will look you in the eyes and tell you what's on his mind. He is not ashamed of his way of life."

Coleman then ended his speech with a few words of wisdom. "Those of us who feel that history is just dead people and events can expel that feeling. They are the reasons why you are here today," Coleman concluded.

...ficial to students and would be a reasonable amount of course hours to complete within four years. "120 hours, that kind of limits your lifespan," Dunlap said.

He also argued that he is against publishing reports of faculty evaluations. Eastern does not publish these evaluations. However, they are filed in the student government office in the University Union for any interested student.

Should Dunlap be chosen to replace Edgar Schick, whose resignation becomes effective no later than April, he plans to look into a variety of changes.

Beside from the topic of general education, Dunlap would like to look at ways to improve minority enrollment and improve retention of students. At the end of five years, only 50 to 60 percent of those students who originally enrolled at Eastern actually receive degrees, he said.

He would also like to look into a reallocation of resources to facilitate faculty research. Faculty members expressed concern about the limited amount of funds available for research.

"In order to keep the faculty fresh on what's going on in their area, they need to do additional scholarly activity," Dunlap said.

Dunlap, who also held the position of chair of the department of elementary and early childhood education at the University of South Alabama, believes he is ready for the transition to vice president.

"It is a big jump between department chair and dean and I made that. And there's a big jump between dean and vice president and I think I'm ready to make that."

Michael Watts, Tarble Arts Center director, hangs an entry in the fifth annual Children's International Art Exhibition. The exhibition displaying the work of area school children opens Friday at Tarble.

Tarble hosts show of children

By MELANIE ANDERSON
Staff writer

The Tarble Arts Center is hosting the fifth annual Children's International Art Exhibition, displaying the work of local school children starting Friday.

Since 1983, the International Children's Art Exhibitions have been an important educational program in the Charleston school district. The exhibits have been organized by Charleston art teachers with cooperation from the Tarble staff.

"The exhibit is non-competitive," Tarble Director Michael Watts said, adding that the teachers choose the work to represent their schools.

Historically, the first International Children's Art Exhibit was initiated when art work from the Charleston schools represented Illinois at the "10th International Exhibition of Fine Arts" in Czechoslovakia.

On Feb. 15, from 2-4 p.m, there will be a reception at which individual participants will receive a certificate from Tarble and possibly a award from their school.

"One of the biggest turn-outs of the year is the reception," said Watts. The exhibit is scheduled to run until March 5.

Student placement

Career day success giving opportunities

By JENNIFER LOFTUS
Staff writer

Although graduation may seem to be a long way off to some, Eastern's Placement Center offers students the opportunity to participate in a day of "career shopping."

Director of Placement Jay Knott said career day is scheduled each fall semester during Eastern's Business Week. It gives students the opportunity to get a broad view of the many careers available in the future.

The last career day, cosponsored by the school of business and the Placement Center in the fall of 1986, was a "huge success," said Ted Ivarie, dean of business.

Knott said, "This past career day was the best we have had." He said it's like "career shopping" because it gives a student the chance to talk to many different representatives.

Knott described the program as an "information exchange process" that lets students inquire and receive valuable and helpful information.

There were over 70 companies present during last fall's program. Among the 70 were Kraft, Sears, Quaker Oats and Pizza Hut, Knott said.

Ivarie said in the past many companies seeking business-related majors came to Eastern "because of our overall great image and reputation as business students."

Ivarie estimated that 80 percent of the Eastern students in the school of business take advantage of career day.

According to Ivarie, 99 percent of the business students had good results with their job interviews and making contacts during the program.

The most demanding jobs to include accounting, marketing and finance, Ivarie said.

He stressed that students should acquire a general educational background in business-related courses, such as management, accounting and data processing, as well as some type of job preparation such as an internship.

Knott said it is important for students to be active on campus and get work experience. He encouraged all seniors to register with the Placement Center.

The center works with students individually, he said.

The next career day is scheduled for Oct. 7, 1987.

Student Housing Office wants resident assistants

By MELANIE ANDERSON
Staff writer

If you are an out-going individual that enjoys working with people, the Student Housing Office wants you to become a resident assistant.

"I would like to see as many people as possible apply," Assistant Housing Director Patrick Bradley said.

He added that applicants must have a cumulative grade point average of at least 2.25 or higher, currently live or have lived at least one semester in residence halls at Eastern and completed a minimum of 30 university credit hours prior to their first day as an RA.

Persons interested in becoming RAs may obtain an application from their current hall counselor. Off-campus students can get applications at the Housing Office.

The application deadline is noon Wednesday.

Some of the characteristics that potential RAs should have are the ability to relate to others, emotional stability and maturity of judgement, Bradley said.

When asked how she keeps peace on her floor, Angela Gowan, a RA at Taylor Hall, said that she maintains a "community like atmosphere starting at the beginning of the semester."

The selection process consists of two-steps. First the candidate is interviewed in the resident hall at which they are applying. If the applicant passes the first round, he is invited to interview with the professional staff.

The residence hall counselor does the selecting of resident assistants upon need, Bradley said.

He added that room and board is free for RAs, who are also paid a stipend of $160 each semester.

"It gives me a lot of confidence knowing that I can communicate with different people, its encouraging," added senior David Wilm, a RA for Taylor Hall.

Senate to poll students on Senior Seminar

By ERIC WEDEKING
Government writer

Board of Governors Representative Mike Ashack told the Student Senate Wednesday about a future report on Eastern's senior seminar.

Ashack told the senate he hoped his letter printed in The Daily Eastern News Monday was read by students and announced that he was planning to releasing a report on the seminar Feb. 27.

Controversy arose after last week's senate meeting when Ashack told the senate he had met with BOG Vice Chancellor Robert Pringle to discuss the feasibility of scrapping Eastern's required two-semester hour senior seminar.

Students are required to enroll in one of several seminars after they have completed at least 75 hours of study.

Senior seminar was started at Eastern the fall semester of 1982. Since that time, students have been required to take a subject outside of their major.

Seminar officials said Eastern's unique seminar program was created to broaden a student's curriculum outside.

At the meeting, Ashack told the senate in his executive report he had referred the senior seminar question to senator Lori Lockman, academic affairs committee chair, for further investigation.

Following the meeting, Ashack said Lockman's committee had already been circulating a survey to juniors and seniors asking them their opinions on the seminar.

After the committee is satisfied with the information collected, Ashack said a memo would be circulated to Pringle and Eastern's Council on Academic Affairs, which would have first say on any student government recommendations.

Ashack changed his tune slightly from last week's meeting when he proposed the idea of getting rid of the senior seminar entirely.

CAA chair Kandy Baumgardner said that any proposed changes in the senior seminar would have to go through her committee first, and referred to Ashack talking with Pringle by saying, "It's not up to anyone on the BOG."

She said Ashack would probably benefit from suggestions from Pringle, but any changes in Eastern's senior seminar was up to the university itself.

According to Ashack, if any changes are proposed, the final decision would be with Edgar Shick, vice president for academic affairs.

Residence Hall Association offers 'You Gotta Laugh' presentation

By JEFF BRITT
Staff writer

"You Gotta Laugh" was the presentation given to the Residence Hall Association Thursday by associate Housing Director Kevin Cannon and Mary Henricksen, a Carman Hall counselor.

"Laughing does some really good things for you," said Henricksen. "It's kind of a medical thing. It has a relaxing effect."

The two showed stand-up comics on television and cartoons on an overhead projector.

Some of the benefits of laughing are that it lowers blood pressure, prolongs life and helps the digestive system, Cannon said.

"You can find the bleakest opportunity and still find something funny," said Henricksen. "If you can't do anything else, laugh." She also read a quote: "If you don't have a sense of humor, you don't have any sense at all."

They also pointed out some of the things to watch out for, such as hurting feelings, excluding people (making them feel left out) and lessening the impact of a key issue, as people may not take you seriously if you joke. Henricksen also said "you have to know when to quit."

"It's really important that you realize when it's business and when it's fun. And don't try to mix the two trying to be funny," she said.

"Humor is basically used as a metaphor," said Cannon. "You want to use humor to diffuse a confrontation."

In other business, Tony Barilla, a Thomas Hall representative to RHA, said Thomas Hall is having a Las Vegas Night Monday in the lobby.

Tana Horsman announced "POM's (Programs of the month) are due at midnight tonight—no later."

The program of the month is a competition between the residence halls in which they compete on things including RHA meeting participation and hall council participation.

Stevenson Tower won last semester.

Concert features woodwind quintet

By ROBB MONTGOMERY
Staff writer

Venti Da Camera, a woodwind quintet, will be featured in the third concert of the five-part Chamber Music Series at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Tarble Arts Center.

Venti Da Camera will present a variety of works from the Baroque, Classic, Romantic and Twentieth Century periods.

Its members are all full-time music instructors at Bowling Green State University and perform in 20 to 30 concerts each year.

They have been performing together since 1972 at community concerts, grade schools, high schools and colleges.

The performance is scheduled to take place in the main gallery of Tarble and tickets may be bought either in advance in the music department office or at the door prior to the concert.

Admission is $2 for students and $3.50 for the general public.

Panther big men Vince Macciocchi (44) and Brian Murphy (50) battle for a rebound against Northern Iowa in a recent game at Lantz Gym. The Panthers lost to the St. Louis Billikens Thursday night in St. Louis 94-59.

Coach Moore, tracksters running for recognition

By BARRY BOTTINO
Staff Writer

Eastern men's track coach Neil Moore is looking for recognition. And this weekend may be the perfect chance to get it.

Moore and his team will host a Friday meet at Lantz Fieldhouse beginning at 6 p.m. and will travel to Illinois Saturday to compete in the Illini Orange and Blue meet.

Friday night's non-scoring meet with Millikin, Lewis, Rose-Hulman and Illinois Wesleyan is basically "a developmental meet for our younger people," said Moore. "But we need it to develop some depth."

The Panthers will be competing on the Friday-Saturday format for the rest of the month since that is the AMCU-8 Tournament format.

"We need to get used to it for the conference meet schedule," Moore said.

Eastern will host the conference tourney Feb. 27-28 in Lantz Fieldhouse.

On Saturday, the Panthers will take 28 competitors to face Ohio State, Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Illinois in a scoring meet at the Armory in Champaign. But Moore isn't worried about points at all.

"We just want to get some good times," said Moore, who thinks the larger track at Illinois and the high level of competition will produce some good times.

Moore is especially looking forward to noon Saturday when Eastern will put its two-mile relay team of Steve Conlon, Phil Maton, Al Oaks and Jim Maton on the track.

"There will be a qualifier Saturday," Moore said.

"Whoever wins it will be qualifying (for the NCAA indoor nationals)," said Moore.

The NCAA two-mile relay qualifying time is 7:27.

"We're going to put the best relay team Eastern's ever had on the track," said Moore, who will hold out the team for Friday's competition.

The varsity record for the two-mile relay is 7:36.26, set two weeks ago at Illinois.

Lady tracksters slow down by hosting quadrangular

By JOHN PLETZ
Staff writer

Following two invitational appearances in as many weeks, Eastern's women's track team will be slowing down its grueling pace this weekend by hosting a quadrangular meet Saturday at Lantz Fieldhouse.

Teams competing will be Indiana State, the Terre Haute Track Club and Principia College. Field events will start at 12:30 p.m. with the running events beginning at 1 p.m.

Eastern, who placed fifth in its own Lady Panther Invitational last weekend and was the runner-up the week before at the Illinois State Redbird Invitational, is looking forward to the rest before the upcoming Illini Classic next Saturday.

Coach John Craft said he will use the quadrangular meet to make some adjustments in the Panther attack.

"We'd like to come out on top and we've got some people running some more events than they're used to running," Craft said. "We've had a pretty rigorous schedule as you can see, so this is where we can kind of let our hair down."

"This meet's gonna be kind of nice after running all the big meets at the beginning of the season," assistant coach Lisa Einheuser said. "This will be kind of low-key."

Although the Panthers have already scored decisive victories over Indiana State twice this season, Einheuser doesn't believe the Panthers will take their opponents for granted on Saturday.

"I think we can win. I don't know that much about Terre Haute Track Club, but they've turned in some times comparable to teams we've competed against," Einheuser said. "I think (the Panthers) will give their best performances as they usually do."

However, the Panthers will need strong performances this weekend from senior shot putters Valeta Strickland and Debbie Zubik, who tallied one-two finishes at both the Lady Panther and Redbird Invitationals.

Strickland and Zubik will have to help their squad pick up the slack for sophomore Tina Dawson who competes in the long, triple and high jumps but is out for the season with stress fractures in both tibias.

Wrestlers looking to build momentum for regionals

By MIKE NELSON
Staff Writer

With a month left to regionals, Eastern's wrestlers are looking to build momentum when they host Illinois State in a dual meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Lantz Gym.

"We only have six more dual meets, so every match is important on the home stretch," said Eastern coach Ralph McCausland.

Eastern is coming off a fifth place finish in the Hoosier Invitational last weekend. In that tournament, the Panthers faced several Redbird wrestlers in individual matches, but McCausland believes this meet will be a total team effort.

"We have to come together as a team and wrestle well as a team to Illinois State," McCausland said. "We can't count on one or two guys to carry us, everyone has to do a good job." The starting line-up will be the same as last year for the 150-pound weight class. In that class Todd Matchak will be replaced by Chris Simcox. Simcox is out for the season with a knee injury.

The rest of the starters will be Craig

Sterr (118), Pat Flynn (126), Dean Souder (134), Terry Boes (142), Chris Bonds (158), Henry Teverbaugh (167), Marty Molina (177), and Demetrius Harper (Hwt).

"The key match-ups will be in the 142-, 150-, and 158-pound classes," McCausland said. "These are their strongest weight classes."

With the NCAA Western Regionals coming up on March 7, this will be Eastern's first meet that will help determine seedings at the regionals, according to McCausland. "This head-to-head competition is crucial for our seedings."

"We really need to have team cohesion in this meet," said McCausland. "We've had some good performances throughout the season, now we just need to put it all together."

The only other time Eastern has seen Illinois State in action this season was at the Redbird Duals in January. "We didn't go head-to-head with them then because we knew we would face them later in the season," McCausland said.

New rec facilities would need more than just talk

(This is the final article in a series of three examining the repercussions of a growing recreational program. Friday's article addresses the administration's stand on the new facility question.)

By CINDY BEAKE
Staff writer

There has been discussion among students, faculty and the administration about the possibility of building a new recreational facility or adding to the existing facility on campus.

But it will take a lot more than just talk to get the ball rolling, Eastern President Stanley Rives said.

"It wouldn't be realistic to ask for state appropriations to build the facility," Rives said. "The only way it would be feasible is by a student referendum."

The University of California®Berkeley, with an enrollment of about 30,000, recently spent $19.9 million adding to and renovated its existing facility and building an entirely new facility, said Bill Manning, director of recreational sports at Berkeley.

"We renovated an old facility for approximately $3 million and built a new facility attached to it for $17 million," Manning said.

The new student-funded facility at Berkeley contains three gyms totaling 45,000 square feet, a martial arts room, a multi-purpose room for fencing and wrestling, a dance studio and a 5,000-square-foot weightroom, Manning said. Nine racquetball courts were added to eight existing ones in addition to remodeling an Olympic-size pool.

With all the renovation and additions almost completed, Manning said the facility is the "pride of Berkeley."

The students' recreation fees were raised $28. (See NEW, page 10A)

Lady Panthers down Illinois-Chicago 70-61

Eastern evens record at 10-10

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Staff writer

Eastern center Brenda Webb and guard Shelly Ethridge led a 17-0 spurt at the beginning of the second half to propel Eastern to a 70-61 victory over Illinois-Chicago.

The Panthers raise their record to 10-10 overall with the win over non-conference Illinois-Chicago. The Flames fall to 3-16 on the year.

Eastern led the Flames 39-32 with 17:43 left in the game, but UIC managed to tie the Panthers at 39 on a basket by Flames guard Julie VanEwyk.

Then the Panthers, who had not been able to hold a sizeable lead all night, went on a tear.

Forward Lisa Tyler, who had been in a mild shooting slump, hit a jumper from the baseline to put Eastern up 41-39.

Webb scored five points in a row to put the Panthers up 48-39 with 13:43 left in the game.

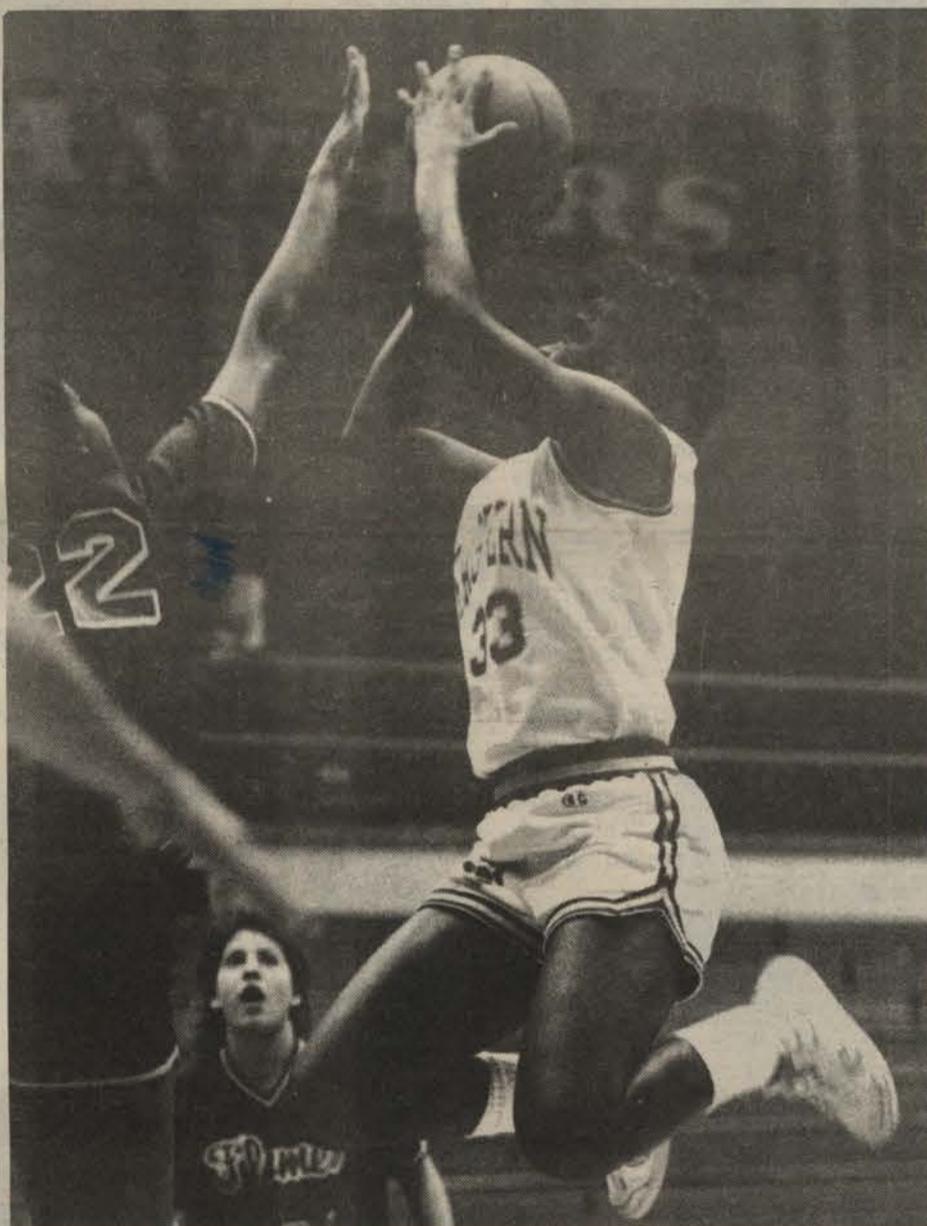

Ethridge scored four points and dished out two assists, one of which went to guard Barb Perkes who nailed a three-point field goal that put Eastern up 51-39.

From that point on the Panthers stayed in control and never lead by less than 11 points until the final buzzer.

Eastern coach Bobbie Hilke was pleased with the play of Webb and Ethridge.

"Brenda Webb did an outstanding job against their height, and Shelly Ethridge was the spark on the 17-0 run," Hilke said.

The Flames were led in scoring by forward Ellen Stenkamp and center

FRANK POLICH / Staff photographer

Eastern forward Ann Brown shoots over a University of Illinois-Chicago opponent during Thursday's game in Lantz Gym. The Panthers defeated the Flames 70-61.

Donna Clark who had 15 points each.

It was Clark though who gave the Panthers the most problems.

"She's tough, she does everything she can possibly do out there. She adds another dimension to the team.

She has a great shot for a player of her height," Hilke said.

Webb, who had to guard her most of the night, agreed.

"It was tough playing against her. I had to pass the ball out to the guards more when I got it than I usually do, and I had to work harder to front her," Webb said.

The first half went back and forth with the Panthers finally opening up a 29-20 lead with 3:36 left.

The Flames managed to pull to 33-29 at the half.

A key to the Eastern victory was a combination of good defense and team composure.

"I thought our defense got better in the second half. We were able to put more pressure on the wings," Hilke said.

Webb believes that the team's composure, along with better defense, played a key role.

"Not losing our heads when things weren't going that good and playing together as a team were the keys to the game," Webb said.

Webb led Eastern in scoring with 15 points. Guard Pat Hamilton chipped in 12 points and forward Ann Brown had a team high 11 boards to lead the Panthers.

Both Brown and Tyler drew praise from Hilke, not only for their work on the glass, but also for their defense.

"Ann did a great job on the boards," Hilke said. "Our post players play more confident because her play on the weakside allowed us to gamble in front."

"Lisa grabbed a lot of important rebounds late in the game and also put a lot of defensive pressure on them," Hilke said.

Eastern travels to Southern Illinois on Saturday to play the the Gateway Conference leaders.

Billikens drop Panthers, 94-59; losing streak at eight

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

Sophomore forward Roland Gray powered St. Louis University with 30 points en route to a completely dominating win over a hapless Eastern men's basketball team Thursday, 94-59.

The non-conference loss is the Panthers eighth in a row as the struggling team continued to bow out to defensive pressure by their opponent.

The Billikens, now 17-6, took control from the opening tip-off, building a commanding 45-22 advantage by the half. Gray poured in 22 first-half points and junior guard Ted Mimplitz reached double figures with 10 points as St. Louis shot 58.8 percent from the field.

Eastern drops to 5-12 on the season. Coach Rick Samuels was impressed with the aggressive Billikens, but he can't ignore the fact that the Panthers simply didn't play a competitive game.

"They were extremely aggressive on defense, and they took advantage of their strengths," Samuels said in a post-game radio interview.

But, as has been the case all season, the Panthers failed to respond to the Billikens' defensive changes, couldn't make the easy shots and lost their competitiveness early in the game, Samuels noted.

"It was over very early," he said. "We didn't compete."

With at least 10 games left on Eastern's schedule, the season is far from over. Samuels is looking to each game now as a chance to turn things in the other direction.

The Panthers return to AMCU-8 Conference action Saturday when they host Western. The Leathernecks are in the same boat as Eastern in the conference in seventh place at 1-5, but still remain ahead of the 0-6 Panthers who bring up the rear.

"I just feel like there's nothing left for us to do right now other than just go out on the floor and give it all we've got," Samuels said.

Referring to Eastern's poor shooting from the field, he added, "That's where we've been all season. We have not been able to (put the ball in).

"Obviously we're not going to do very many good things if we don't change those things."

The Billikens connected on five three-point shots while Eastern countered with four. Two of those were by freshman David Paul for his only points of the evening.

Gray's half-court shot at the buzzer ending the first half reflected the one-sidedness of the game. The Billikens continued to burn the net in the second half, extending their lead to 39 points midway through the period 79-41.

Music 'pops' for art this weekend

By MIKE SABINE
Staff writer

As part of its effort to raise money for the "Make Room for Art" fund-raising campaign, Eastern's Music Department will present "Music Pops for Art" this weekend, featuring a stage performance, various musical talent and even a television star.

The show will feature performances by groups in the music department, ranging from current pop tunes to a Baroque flute recital.

Eastern alumni Sal Viviano, who played bad boy Kevin Lyon on the daytime soap opera "Ryan's Hope" and made his Broadway debut in "The Three Musketeers," will guest host the production and perform Broadway show numbers.

"The production is really unique in that it's being held to benefit another department," Viviano said. "It should be a powerhouse evening of entertainment. They (the department) have talented people and a great variety of music."

The show will include performances by the Jazz Ensemble, Concert Choir and the String Orchestra.

"It will be a 'potpourri' concert. Each ensemble director selects his own material," said Jerry Daniels, director of Music Pops for Art. "We have excellent students; what I've heard so far has been good."

The show's goal is to raise $15,000 for the new studio building, which is needed to replace two previously used houses which had to be demolished as irreparable, said public relations director Gaye Harrison.

The total cost of the 20-studio building will be about $350,000, she said, noting that the facility will be used by art graduate students and faculty.

Tickets for the performances are $5 for adults and $3 for students.

As part of its "Make Room for Art" fund-raising campaign, the music department will sponsor the "Music Pops for Art" program Friday and Saturday.

Tarble features works by Japanese students

By DANE BUCZKOWSKI
Staff writer

What is art to you? Some think of art as being purely visual. This may be painting, sculpture, architecture, or photography. Of course, art goes beyond this realm.

There is art in music. There is art in speaking and in sports. Art is in just about anything the individual desires.

With this in mind, let us examine some art on campus. Namely, the display at the Tarble Arts Center.

Earlier this week I was fortunate enough to get a sneak preview of the children's art exhibit at Tarble. There are paintings, drawings, sculptures and other visual art forms. The display has a nice surprise, also—works by children from Japan.

Comparing the Eastern and Western art, I noticed differences, but mostly similarities.

When I heard that Japanese children's art would be at Tarble, my thoughts were generalized. I expected things with Japanese writing and oriental characteristics—of course. But in comparison, I saw that children are children—no matter what their culture or background.

The American and Japanese art had many of the same interpretations of every day ideas. The kids used birds, buildings and people.

The importance of art tends to be realized at a more mature age. While the children who created this art may have a great time working, they may not realize the benefits until later in life. Beauty is in the thoughts of the interpreter and it is vital that the artists of tomorrow start today.

In other business on the cultural scene, the music department will present Music Pops for Art Friday and Saturday night. This is a show to help raise money for new art studios in Eastern's "Make Room for Art" campaign.

Since art is such an important part of life, I think we should all do as much as possible to support this production. A nationally known actor who attended Eastern, Sal Viviano, will host the various events. Eastern's sizzling jazz ensemble will perform along with several pops singers. There will also be a light classical highlight in the show.

George and Karen Sanders of the Eastern keyboard department will perform "Variations on a Theme of Paganini." This arrangement was created by a very distant Polish relative of mine (I think).

That's about all for this week in the world of culture at Eastern. Don't forget, I am open to review any event on campus that would fit in this space. So either give me a call, write a letter, or stop and talk to me—let's drink a little less and refine a little more.

I'll leave you with this note: if Beethoven would have gone out drinking with his rowdy little brother instead of composing the Fifth Symphony, where would we be today?

Madonna takes on dubious title of pop queen

By DIANA WINSON
Verge editor

She's gone from a sometimes squealing dance queen to a materialistic-yet-virginal "boy toy" to her current stage as a Marilyn Monroe-ish, true-blue vocalist.

But no matter what your opinion has been throughout her transitions to date, one almost indisputable fact remains: Madonna is the pop queen of the '80s.

With her 1986 release of the True Blue album, her third LP, Madonna has transcended yet another image level. But with this one, on at least two songs, Madonna concerns herself with some new themes: social issues.

Pro-lifers and pro-abortionists alike were up in arms during the last months of '86 when Madonna's "Papa Don't Preach," complemented by a well-done, emotional video, hit the airwaves. Madonna, never one to mince words, made no real claims or supporting statements for either cause, letting the song speak for itself.

Another song on the True Blue album which concerns itself with social issues is "Love Makes the World Go Around." The number may be a bit naive, though, as she seems to imply that every problem in the world can be solved through love (a unique concept, however).

She does throw some good lyrics into this surprisingly danceable number, which she co-wrote with drummer/keyboardist Patrick Leonard: "Don't judge a man 'til you've been standin' in his shoes. . . Make love not war/It's easy to recite/But it don't mean a damn/Unless we're gonna fight."

Much of the rest of the album is danceable as well, such as current hits "True Blue" and "Open Your Heart," along with "Where's the Party" and "La Isla Bonita."

However, the song in which Madonna showcases her vocal qualities best is in the dramatic "Live to Tell," another MTV-promoted number.

It wasn't until the release of "Crazy for You," from the movie "Vision Quest," that Madonna actually revealed to the world that she did indeed have a singing voice. "Live to Tell" contains similar qualities—a slower, more serious number, written in a lower key, keeping Madonna away from her tendencies toward that high-pitched, little-girlish voice she uses on many of her dance numbers.

True Blue, although similar in many songs to the previous Madonna and Like a Virgin LPs, carries Madonna into what is undoubtedly yet another phase in her progression. But some songs—especially "Papa Don't Preach" and "Live to Tell"—contain a new maturity, perhaps as the singer tries to reach another plateau.

One problem that true-blue pop stars like Madonna face now, as they focus on videos, sold-out tours and other aspects of commercialism, is one concerning their value as true artists.

Musically, however, Madonna's albums are locked into the pop sound which, although vogue today, does not represent a lasting contribution to the art.

Just because Madonna is queen today doesn't mean she will be long—which could be good or bad depending on your outlook. With proven female vocalists like Cyndi Lauper and Whitney Houston also on the forefront, Madonna could be in for a challenge from some of her pop competition.

On the other hand, perhaps she should recognize the potential she has to change not her image but her approach next time. If so, Madonna fans and even those who dislike her now could be in for a real treat.

Platoon action-packed, not meant for serious reader

By JUDY WEIDMAN
Assistant Verge editor

The first casualty of war is innocence.

That is what Pfc. Chris Taylor, who was raised in a white-collar New York family, discovered in Vietnam.

"Platoon," a novel by Dale A. Dye, based on the movie of the same name, takes you with Taylor back to the '60s where he fights against his superior officers and "gooks" while searching for a purpose in life.

Taylor survived basic training with Lemuel Gardner, a country bumpkin from Georgia who decided he and Chris would be buddies.

They begin their voyage together on a helicopter en route to Vietnam. When they land, they glance at whom they've replaced—long-haired and tattered soldiers whose vocabulary has been primarily reduced to four-letter words.

Afterwards, they pack their gear and head into the jungle to face the Viet Cong—or "Gooks," as Taylor refers to them.

After trekking through the terrain for several days, they are told to prepare for an ambush that evening. Taylor is paired up with Junior to keep an eye out for "gooks" behind Tex, the gunner, before they attack the platoon.

He ends up at an army hospital and is helped to fit in by King, the point member of the platoon, who introduces him to marijuana and members of the underground.

Although King helps him through tough situations and Taylor works well with others in combat, the lead character still remains a loner throughout the war.

Although the novel is action-packed, the countless names in this platoon are faceless and mentioned sporadically, and the endless military abbreviations make "Platoon" a very difficult book to follow.

For those interested in character development, Chris Taylor has feelings about the war but they remain unclear and disorganized, leaving the reader to wonder whether Taylor has his head together and whether war is necessary.

After the results (not disclosed here) of an explosive ending battle involving Taylor, he realizes the only enemy man has ever fought is within himself.

Perhaps the novel is intended more as a supplement to the movie, trying to "get inside the head" of the main character to define some of his motives. However, for the average reader, the novel seems a bit vague in some parts to make it a complete work of art.

Viviano talks about life as a professional actor

RICK STUCKEY / Staff photographer

RICK STUCKEY / Staff photographer

By MIKE SABINE
Staff writer

Who played Broadway in "The Three Musketeers," raised the ire of millions as the villain Kevin Lyon on "Ryan's Hope," met the Reagans at the White House—and went to Eastern?

1982-graduate Sal Viviano, that's who.

Viviano was originally recruited to play football, but said "after I got my head kicked in a few too many times, I decided I was too small. I switched to parks and recreation, then auditioned at the music department and received a scholarship there."

Viviano had only limited experience in music but came from a musical family.

"Everyone in my family has talent, though no one else has chosen to make a career of it like I have," he said.

The Detroit native, who moved to Schaumburg while in high school, credits the music department at Eastern with helping him choose his career path. "It exposed me to different kinds of creative people, to a lifestyle that appealed to me," he said.

While at Eastern, Viviano appeared in lead roles in "Oklahoma," "Hair" and "The Pirates of Penzance," among other musicals, dramas and operas.

"The musical training was invaluable; I had an opportunity to do a lot of performing in many areas," he said.

Viviano said he never had a "big break" but a series of small ones, the first being his role in "Shenandoah" at the Marriott Lincolnshire. "I got my union card there," he noted.

Singing the national anthem for the Chicago Cubs in 1983 was Viviano's first national television exposure. He now sings for the New York Mets and has chosen them to root for, as "the Cubs have been having a tough time lately."

Viviano now lives in Manhattan. "New York has a hectic pace; it's a city of strangers, of strange people.

"I wouldn't make it a permanent home, but it's the hub of the industry. It's big difference from Charleston," he said.

About working in the soaps, he said, "It's good work, but tedious and difficult."

RICK STUCKEY / Staff photographer

"The only immediate response is in the paycheck—it's a lucrative business. There were repercussions from that (the Kevin Lyon role on "Ryan's Hope"); people who met me were surprised I was not such a jerk and idiot like on TV."

Viviano has met President and Mrs. Reagan, Paul Newman, John Forsythe, Patty LaBelle and Larry Bud Melman. "Larry Bud just started expounding on all these critical issues. He's one of those people a generation will remember."

A former Ivory Girl, Lorin Graye, is his current companion. She has also done shampoo commercials and is a reporter for a radio station in New York. "She's blonde, blue-eyed—beautiful," Viviano said.

For the future, Viviano hopes for "long-term success in film and TV. Just to make a living you have to branch out."

"There's no way of measuring stardom, it's the respect others give your work," he said.

Sal Viviano—who is known to soap opera viewers as villainous Kevin Lyons of "Ryan's Hope"—rehearses with Eastern students for a song and dance number. During a lull in the rehearsal, Viviano clowns with the photographer. In the background, choir members rehearse for the Friday and Saturday night performances.

TALE-~~END~~

The tale of a tale that is sort of a different tale

By GARRICK SPEARS
Staff writer

Do it. Just—just do it!

That's what everyone's been saying lately. It's not like I have enough to do already. And now Di asks me to write a Tale End.

So, I'm here, you're here, and I'm supposed to entertain you. I've done it before, so now they want me to do it again.

You know, I never really respected the columnists who write a couple times a week until now. But pretty soon here I'm going to jump into some kind of little tale and you'll be so wrapped up in it you won't even realize that I have no topic to write about.

But just do it!

For instance, I could take you back to when my sister started dating and how much of a fool I was.

Actually, I wasn't that much of a fool. I was just testing my memory. You see, her boyfriend—now husband—wears extra-tall clothes which are more expensive; therefore, he doesn't have many clothes.

Well, it seems that the second time he came over to our house two weeks had past. I thought to myself,

"My, that shirt looks familiar."

So I asked him, "Hey, Dale. . . is that the shirt you wore last time you were here?" Needless to say, the look on his face told me I had just made a major social faux pas.

But that's just a for instance.

I'm not going to write about that.

Or I might write about all the times that you run out of money when you need it the most.

Not for, like, major bills or tuition. No, those don't really matter. You can always find that kind of money somewhere.

I'm talking about when you need just one more beer. Or worse yet, another cigarette and you're already on your way home with no money.

It happened to me just the other day. I was giving a friend a ride home and both of us needed not just one, but a whole pack of cigarettes each. Well, our state of minds were such that we didn't know that we had about $15 between us; we both had bills in our pockets but our wallets were empty.

From the look on the lady's face at White Hen when we asked how much a pack cost while digging through the pennies we had found on the floor of the car, I knew we were bad off.

But I don't think that's what this tale's about either.

It's about when you sit down to write something, you just do it. Sometimes it'll come and sometimes it won't.

Like my first real girlfriend in seventh grade, the story flows out, especially when I talk about the time for both seventh and eighth graders.

I guess I was kind of naive at the time because she said follow her out into the empty hallway, I said, "Why?"

Silly me. But not quite as silly as when she said, "Tongue or no tongue?"

Oh my! Needless to say that at the time I opted for the "tongue" action. And I think that at the time I was grateful. But then she dumped me. . . oh, well.

And I caught you, didn't I? You actually got wrapped up in this. And I know what the reason was. Sex. Well, I don't blame you. That's what a Tale needs anyway. And that's what you got!
