EDGAR SQUEAKS TO VICTORY

Gubernatorial race goes down to wire

By MIKE CHAMBERS
City editor

The hometown boy made good. With 83 percent of the vote in by press time Tuesday, the Associated Press had declared Charleston native Jim Edgar the state's next governor. By press time, Edgar, a 1968 Eastern graduate, was defeating Democratic challenger Neil Hartigan by a 50 to 49 percent margin.

Pollsters were correct in predicting a close race for the governor's office, as the two candidates were fighting neck and neck right to the end. Earlier in the night, Hartigan had as much as a 6,000 vote lead on Edgar.

At the final tally at press time, Edgar led with 1,320,831 votes and Hartigan was close behind with 1,277,259 votes. Hartigan's biggest lead on Edgar was early, when he held a 54 to 46 percent lead in the race.

Edgar and his Lieutenant Governor Bob Kustra, a former state senator from Park ridge, will likely take office in January.

Coles County Republican Chair June McGowan has planned a bash for Charleston in Edgar's honor.

"We will have one Nov. 27 to thank all of the workers and we hope that Jim can make it," McGowan said early Wednesday morning.

When first asked for a reaction to the results, about 40 people gathered at Coles County Republican headquarters screamed into an outstretched telephone.

Faculty Senate curious about Furumo hiring

By CAM SIMPSON
Senior reporter

The awarding of another administrative post drew fire at Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting with members alleging that the hiring process may have violated university policies and that a pertinent document has since been altered.

Meanwhile, the senate's chair said — and a police report confirmed — that copies of some documents allegedly related to the hiring under scrutiny were recently stolen from an Eastern administrator's house.

David Carpenter, senate chair, told senate members he had found several alleged improprieties involved in the Aug. 15 hiring of Kim Furumo, currently Eastern's director of planning services.

Furumo was hired by Verna Armstrong, Eastern's vice president for administration and finance who is the direct supervisor of the planning services office. About a month and a half after receiving her job, Furumo hired Armstrong's son, Scott Walker, to work as assistant director of planning and institutional research.

The Walker hiring sparked charges of nepotism and a Board of Governors inquiry into hiring practices in areas under Armstrong's jurisdiction. Furumo's hiring is among those being investigated by the BOG, along with about 20 others.

At issue in the Furumo hiring, according to Carpenter's Tuesday statements, are several alleged internal and affirmative action policy violations.

According to Carpenter, the so-called "recruitment plan" drafted for the director's post was never approved by the office of affirmative action. Carpenter was given access by Eastern President Stan Rives to the "search file" compiled for the director's post.

The recruitment plan is the central document involved in the hiring process for administrators. It outlines all of the guidelines that will be followed before a position is opened. In addition, approval of the plan by the affirmative action director is mandated by university policies before a position can be opened.

Judith Anderson was director of affirmative action when the plan was filed. However, she now is on administrative leave and could not be reached for comment on Carpenter's allegation that the plan had not been approved.

Carpenter also alleged that Furumo's application packet was admitted into the process after a six-member screening committee had already made individual rankings of the final candidates.

When the committee members sat down to make group recommendations, Furumo's application packet was added to the group, Carpenter said. Other alleged policy violations also existed, Carpenter said.

In addition, Carpenter alleged

Coles County voter turnout tops 60 percent

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Administration editor

With Coles County native Jim Edgar bidding for the Illinois gubernatorial spot, more than 60 percent of the registered voters here actually cast a ballot at the polls Tuesday.

Coles County Clerk Betty Coffrin said Tuesday turnout, 62 percent, was the highest in a non-presidential election year during the past four off-years. About 17,510 ballots were cast in 52 Coles County precincts.

There were 27,538 residents registered to vote in Tuesday's general election.

"This is a great turnout for an off year," Coffrin said. "The average of the last four off years was approximately 54 percent."

Prior to this year, the highest turnout was 57 percent in 1982, when Gov. James Thompson defeated Democrat opponent Adlai Stevenson after a recount.

At the four on-campus precincts for Eastern students, the voter turnout was 35 percent. In past elections, Eastern's precincts have typically recorded a voter turnout of 10 percent or less.

- In Precinct 15 on the west side of campus, 355 voters cast a ballot Tuesday. About 650 people were registered there.
- In Precinct 16, made up of Taylor, Ford, Thomas, Weller, McKinney, Pemberton and Andrews Residence Halls, 191 students voted from a field of 1,150 who were registered.
- In Precinct 17, at Carman Hall, 115 people voted from a field of 900 who had been registered.
- And in Precinct 18, on the east side of campus, more than 600 people voted from a field of 899 who were registered.

"There were a lot more (voters) than we thought we would have," said Sabina McNutt, a Precinct 17 election judge. "Student turnout was good."

"The one problem with student turnout is that there are quite a few students still registered that have left campus," Coffrin said. "Voters must notify the County Clerk's office if they have a change of address."

Incumbent Bruce rolls to victory in 19th district

By PHILLIP LAIRD
Staff writer

Election '90

Terry Bruce went home a happy man Tuesday evening after winning re-election with 66.9 percent of the vote as Congressman from the 19th legislative district, which includes Charleston.

Bruce's large win followed hand in hand with Democratic Sen. Paul Simon's defeat over U.S. Rep. Lynn Martin, a Republican, in the Illinois Senate race. Simon received a total of 10,354 votes in Coles County — 63.4 percent of the total votes cast.

Bruce expressed surprise during a televised interview for his overwhelming defeat of Republican candidate Robert Kerans, who received 31.6 percent of the Coles County vote.

"I just want to keep on doing the good job I've done for my district in the past," Bruce said of his defeat over his two opponents. Third Party candidate Brian O'Neill played no role in the outcome, garnering only 245 of the 17,350 votes cast in the county.

Bruce's win was only one of several incumbent victories for the county, whose residents traditionally have voted Republican.

Rosemary Shepherd, incumbent Democratic candidate for Regional Superintendent of Schools, also won big, taking 71 percent of the votes to easily defeat Republican opponent Roger Lawson.

Lawson had not conceded defeat when the courthouse closed at 10:30 p.m., although Shepherd took a commanding lead from the beginning.

For Shepherd, who originally was appointed to fill the office, this was her first challenged general election for the post.

"I think this shows the confidence the people of Coles County have in my staff," Shepherd said late Tuesday. "I just keep working as hard as I have in the past."

Although the three biggest winners in local races were Democrats, Republican incumbents took the county. Most candidates, such as Sheriff Jim Kimball and Judge Ashton Waller, ran unopposed.

However, state representative

Mike Weaver of Mattoon easily defeated his Democratic opponent, Bob Waldrop.

Weaver took an early lead his way to a near 3 to 1 margin victory.

Former mayoral candidate Brian Nordin, also a former student, came up short in his bid to capture a county board seat.

"If I'd worked as hard as R. Roberts, I'd have won, also," Nordin said of his loss to Republican Dave Shick for District 11 seat.

Roberts defeated Republican incumbent Robert Saunders 63 to 347.

delighted right now," McGowan said. "And we are just ecstatic."

Edgar was in Chicago and unavailable for comment.

As for Coles County results, traditionally Republican territory, GOP hopefuls won all of Illinois' executive offices. By press time Tuesday, statewide results for other Illinois races were not available.

Edgar and Kustra easily defeated Hartigan and his running mate, Jim Burns by 3,721 votes. Edgar took 60 percent of the vote from Hartigan's 38 percent.

But the other three seats were more hotly contended.

- Jim Ryan, a Republican state's attorney from DuPage County, won a narrow 4 percent margin over Democratic hopeful and present Comptroller Roland Burris. Ryan received 8,585 votes to Burris's 7,757.

- George Ryan, Republican candidate for secretary of state and present lieutenant governor, took 9,814 votes to defeat Jerry Cosentino, who is presently state treasurer. Cosentino received 6,334 votes.

- Sue Suter, the Republican candidate for comptroller received 8,885 votes while Democrat Dawn Clark Netsch garnered 7,038 votes. For the first time in state history, a woman will be elected comptroller.

- In the race for treasurer, Republican Greg Baise defeated Democratic candidate and former Cook County Board of Appeals member Patrick Quinn by a 10 percent margin. Baise received 8,842 votes to Quinn's 7,073 votes.

Edgar built a 2 to 1 margin in northern DuPage and Lake counties while Hartigan maintained strong majorities in downstate counties such as Madison, St. Clair and Rock Island.

Edgar will be the first Coles County native to actually be elected to the state's highest office. In addition to serving as secretary of state, he is also been a state representative in East Central Illinois. He presently lives in Springfield with his wife and two children. However, he still votes in Charleston.

that when he went to see the Furumo file last week he found that portions of one document had been deleted under the direction of Richard Pyles, Armstrong's top assistant.

"Before I arrived to look at the search file, Mr. Pyles had instructed the acting director of affirmative action to white-out a section of the file," Carpenter said. "I have not yet been given permission to see an unaltered file ... if one exists."

Carpenter said the candidate rankings made by Rhonda Chasteen, acting director of affirmative action, were deleted from the documents.

Chasteen said she would respect a request made by Rives that no university officials comment on the case until the BOG investigation is completed.

Pyles could not be reached for comment Tuesday night.

Armstrong has already said the BOG investigation will vindicate her and that she was not aware of any wrongdoing involved in hirings under her jurisdiction.

Carpenter also said that some copies of documents made from the file and brought home by an Eastern administrator were stolen from that administrator's residence. He would not identify the administrator.

However, according to a report filed with the Charleston Police department, Chasteen's house had been entered into sometime before Oct. 19 and an unidentified report "she had copied ... at Eastern Illinois University" had been taken from her front room desk.

The police report, which was filed as "theft under $300," said the copied documents were the only thing reported missing by Chasteen. The Daily Eastern News could not identify any other police reports on thefts of Eastern documents from administrator's homes by press time Tuesday.

Chasteen, repeating Rives' directive, said she would not comment on the theft. The report said there were no known suspects.

Clark County residents vote to 'dump the dump'

By CAM SIMPSON
Senior reporter

Clark County residents overwhelmingly voted to "dump the dump" in a non-binding referendum Tuesday that asked whether they wanted a low-level nuclear waste storage facility located in their county.

Opponents of the controversial dump said late Tuesday they were elated by the vote, which ended with 73.54 percent of county voters opposing its location and 26.46 supporting it.

"I don't think there are any pro-dumpers in Martinsville celebrating tonight," said Steve Cloud, a spokesman for Concerned Citizens of Clark County, a group that has opposed the dump siting for years under the slogan of "Forever is too long to be wrong."

However, dump opponents were privately admitting Tuesday night that they were hoping for a victory by gubernatorial candidate Neil Hartigan, a Chicago Democrat running against Charleston native Jim Edgar.

Hartigan has made several public promises that he would not allow the dump to be sited in Clark County if he is elected governor.

"If he makes governor, hopefully we will have a little better chance," said Cathy Cloud, another dump opponent who works in Eastern's academic assistance center.

The efforts of the Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety to locate the dump in Martinsville have been mired in controversy and charges of malfeasance.

Last summer, the Illinois Senate conducted an extensive investigation into IDNS operations.

The Senate's report labeled the IDNS efforts to locate the dump in Martinsville as "misguided and reckless ... (and) dangerously irresponsible."

The town is about 25 miles southeast of Charleston.

Based on its investigation, the senate voted to take away the agency's power to make a final decision on the dump siting.

That power now rests with a three-member commission headed by former Illinois Supreme Court justice Seymour Simon.

However, the commission can only act on IDNS recommendations.

The members of Concerned Citizens said they hoped Tuesday's vote would send a clear message to the Simon commission.

One possible snag is that only two Clark County precincts which carried the pro-dump vote were located in Martinsville proper. There are 23 precincts in Clark County.

Residents of Martinsville 50 percent yes, 43.8 percent no.

The results were close, Steve Cloud said, despite what he called the systematic bribery of Martinsville residents.

The city has received a total of $1.2 million in unrestricted grant money from the IDNS since 1988.

The funds can be spent any way the city chooses.

Council OKs TIF funds

By PENNY N. WEAVER
Staff writer

The Charleston City Council at a public hearing Tuesday agreed to allot $10,000 in Tax Increment Funds for improvement of the town Square, but will not vote on the measure until its next session.

The council held the meeting prior to its regular session. City Attorney Brian Bower said the TIF funds would help revitalize the downtown area.

"These (TIF) monies would be funding a not-for-profit organization (to improve the Square)," Bower said, adding the allocation of funds would not trigger a tax increase. TIF funds are derived from sales tax from a specific area.

"We're just looking at the use of these (TIF) monies (already accumulated)," Bower said. The TIF funding area for the Square includes the Square and the one-block area around it.

Fred Preston, chair of the Downtown Business Committee formed by Mayor Wayne Lanman, has proposed a new group to improve the Square. The new organization, tentatively called "Friends of the Square for Marketing and Development," would benefit the downtown area on a long-term basis, Preston said.

"TIF funds cannot really be used for a short-term project," he said. "We would like to expand this (Downtown Committee). We'd like to act as a spark."

"We're all in favor of it (the use of TIF funds to revitalize the Square)," Lanman said. "We're very thankful for their (the committee's) work."

In its regular meeting, the Council agreed to set up a trust agreement with A.J. Walker & Sons Construction Co. for part of the money for the connector street project near Eastern. City Engineer Mark Dwiggins said that company will receive about 10 percent of the more than $1 million project cost.

In other business, the Council passed resolutions allowing for additional lighting on Taft and McKinley avenues and authorizing bids to remodel the city building at 520 Jackson Ave. Another ordinance passed will allow the city to tow any vehicle that violates the no parking policy on the Square from midnight to 4 a.m. on Mondays.

Iraq wants war Will not negotiate Kuwait

By The Associated Press

In a new outburst of belligerence, Iraq said Sunday it was ready to fight a "dangerous war" rather than ever give up Kuwait. One European official warned that divisions over the hostage issue are endangering the anti-Iraq alliance.

"Iraq is not going to negotiate on Kuwait," Iraq's information minister, Latif Jassim, told a news conference in Baghdad. He insisted Iraq's annexation of Kuwait, which it overran three months ago, would stand.

"We are going to defend our 19th province on any condition, even if we have to fight a dangerous war," he said, referring to Kuwait.

Iraq also said it was recalling an unspecified number of retired army officers to active duty.

Secretary of State James Baker III visited U.S. troops in the Saudi desert earlier Sunday and said it was hard to say whether they would be called into combat. The presidents of Egypt and France expressed hopes that economic pressure rather than military might could force Iraq out of Kuwait.

Meanwhile, four American ex-hostages were on their way home a day after being freed, and fifteen Europeans arrived in Jordan after being released by the Iraqis. They were among thousands of foreigners were trapped in Iraq and Kuwait when Saddam Hussein's troops took over the emirate Aug. 2.

The first POWs of the Persian Gulf crisis — three French soldiers — had a homecoming of their own in Paris on Sunday, but it wasn't exactly a hero's welcome. French officials have said the soldiers, who were captured last week, might have strayed into Iraqi territory, and that they probably face punishment for their carelessness.

The new Iraqi vow to keep Kuwait at all costs came only hours after a former Japanese prime minister, Yasuhiro Nakasone, met with Saddam — and said the Iraqi president had demonstrated "great earnestness and seriousness" about seeking peace.

Professors will debate on Gulf crisis

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

Recent actions by President George Bush and Secretary of State James Baker have prompted many people to believe the United States is headed toward war in the Persian Gulf.

Two Eastern professors agree it's a real possibility, although each will argue his differing views Wednesday during a public forum on the consequences of such a war.

The forum, "U.S. Policy in the Persian Gulf: Opposing Views," will feature John Faust of the political science department and Mark Weisbrot of the department of economics.

"We'll say some controversial things, there's no doubt," said Faust of the 7 p.m. forum in 229 Coleman Hall. "We do have differences of view."

"I feel that the current situation is one of extreme crisis, and the decision the United States has to make could have monumental consequences," he said.

"There's a great deal of talk about war and the consequences could be extremely significant to the United States and other people as well as other countries."

However, exactly what the specific consequences of a war remains to be debated between Weisbrot and Faust.

"I think there's a great danger of war in the Middle East, and we're going to discuss what the consequences are, because of what the administration — particularly Bush and Secretary of State Baker — have said in the last few days. I think they are preparing the American people for war."

The recent visit by Baker to the Middle East and a planned Thanksgiving week visit for Bush lend credibility to Faust's beliefs.

A handful of students showed up at Tuesday night's Student Government Election Forum, which was held to give students a chance to meet the candidates before the Nov. 14 Student Government election.

Forum draws sparse crowd

By ANITA MAIELLA
Staff writer

Most of the candidates were at the Student Government elections forum, but unfortunately for them, only a handful of students attended.

Approximately 10 students came to the forum Tuesday night to meet the candidates and ask them questions on their ideas and goals for representing the student body.

In the past student turnout at the forums has been low, said Elections Committee Chair Tiffany Points.

The purpose of the forum is to have the students meet the candidates and ask them questions, Points said. "It is hard to vote for a candidate if you don't know who they are."

Each candidate had three minutes to present their views and ideas on senate issues and students were given two minutes to ask questions.

The candidates running for the six at large seats are: Chris Zebig, Dennis Malloy, Martha Roman, Michelle Koehler, Rose Riggio, Audrey McKenna, Matt O'Brien and Brian Riordan.

The candidates running for the five on-campus seats are: Dave Kinsey, Mike Daniels, Ryan Hinthorne, Curtiss Cline, Debbi Canavan, Rachel Sunshine Tarr, Amy Jobin and William Wesley Cornwell.

The candidates running for the four off campus seats are: Kevin Lathrop, Meg Grimler and Thomas Jaminski.

There were four candidates who did not come to the forum to give their speech. These candidates include Debbi Canavan, Rose Riggio, Michael Daniels and Brian Riordan.

Students will have an opportunity to vote in the fall elections on Nov. 14.

It is important for the students to vote because the candidates chosen will be representing the whole student body, Points said, adding students should vote to give their input on the Textbook Rental System.

Eastern's textbook system was a major topic for most of the candidates.

At last Wednesday's meeting, senate passed a bill to place a referendum on the Student Government election ballot to assess whether students approve of the Eastern's current Textbook Rental System.

According to the bill, the student will vote on whether they are in favor of the current rental system, or if they are in favor of a purchasing system.

"It is the most effective way to find out how the students feel about the Textbook Rental System," said Steve Macaluso, senate's chief of staff.

"I feel the students are very important," Cline said. "The students should have some input on where there money is going to now and in the future."

The current rental system allows the student to rent their books, instead of purchasing them.

Faculty senate proposed to abolish the rental system and have a purchase system, so there would be a wider selection of books.

Senate member Curtiss Cline said the Textbook Investigative Committee, which is composed of senate members, will take the information from the election and set goals for each possible outcome.

Senate says no inequities exist between student scholarships

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Administration editor

After a deluge of statistics from Faculty Senate member Glenn Hild, the senate decided Tuesday that no apparent distribution inequities exist between athletic and academic scholarships.

Hild's report showed talented student awards and grant-in-aid awards are granted more often to the athletic department. However, the funds collected from the Eastern Foundation — which go almost entirely to academics — make the distribution comparatively even.

Hild's report came after the senate's investigation into apparent distribution disparity peaked many senate member's interests.

The senate decided not to take any actions until the members learned more about how much more money is given to athletes than to students who excel in academics and the total number of awards distributed each year.

Hild read pages and pages of figures from the Internal Governing Policy book among other sources from the financial aid office to provide answers to those questions.

He also quoted figures from Stephen Falk, vice president for development, on the distribution of all of the private funds collected by the Eastern Foundation.

Slightly more than 92 percent of the $606,956 grants given to the Foundation were channeled to the university's academic departments. A little more than 7.1 percent, or $55,840, went to athletics.

"The Foundation does the bulk of its fund raising for the colleges and departments of the university," Hild said. "The monies represented in the foundation that go to athletics, for the most part, are generated through the fundraising effort of the Panther Club.

Talented student awards come in the form of tuition waivers, while grant-in-aid awards are similar to cash stipends.

"My impression is when you just look at the figures in the policy book, (the inequity) is outrageous, but when you look at the big board, the distribution doesn't seem to be out of line."

"When you look at the institution's resources," Hild added, "The numbers didn't seem to me and the people I talked to to be a disparity or any need to pit two areas of campus against each other."

News' request for information shouldn't wait

The news never waits. That's a truism of journalism today, yesterday and tomorrow. But today, and for the last two weeks, The News (Daily Eastern, that is) has been waiting.

That's because Eastern officials have turned what should have been a routine request for access to public documents into a circus of errors, meaning The News has had to wait.

In turn, that has meant readers also have had to wait – wait to find out information about the operations of a public institution, operations that quite obviously should be kept “public.”

On Wednesday The News should find out how much longer its readers have to wait for the news about Scott Walker, son of Verna Armstrong, Eastern's vice president for administration and finance. Walker's most recent hiring, which was done by one of his mother's direct subordinates, has sparked a Board of Governors probe into hiring practices in areas under Armstrong's jurisdiction.

That probe, according to the attorney hired by the BOG to head the investigation, may justify denying a request for access to documents regarding a previous Walker appointment. A formal response from university and BOG officials is due, by law, Wednesday.

But the formal request for access to documents should have never landed in the investigator's hands. It is a request that belongs with the university and not with an “independent investigator.” It is a request that was made before a BOG investigation even was announced. It is a formal request that the university should have never mandated because the files in question should have been opened after a verbal request was made by The News.

The circus of errors resulting from the efforts to discover “public information” point to one inevitable conclusion: Those on the top have apparently forgotten that, in reality, they are supposed to be at the bottom. University and BOG officials, like all government officials, are here to serve the public – we are the masters and they are the servants, as the term “public servant” suggests.

Hopefully it's a message that won't be lost in Wednesday's paper shuffle. And hopefully it's a message that won't be smothered by the cover of an investigation. After all, it's a message that is the underpinning of our society, a message that grows more important – not less – in the face of an investigation.

News is here to serve our community

Just a few last words now that The News' 75th birthday has come and gone. Other than a few people who've been around for a long time, it's not often that someone, or something, on this university celebrates a 75th birthday. In fact, this newspaper is older than Eastern's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, one of the largest colleges on campus. We've been around for a long time.

And for 75 years, the students who run this place have continually struggled with how to produce a quality newspaper for this campus. Right now, I'd argue that you're reading one of the best college newspapers in the country.

That's primarily because we believe in covering Eastern like it's a community, not like it's a university where students come and go, without any kind of definite identity. If you read our newspaper, you'll discover that we really try to pay attention to what's happening here. However, if you read the Daily Illini, the student paper at the University of Illinois, you'll notice that they give preference to state, national and international news – particularly through the Associated Press.

I won't acknowledge that national and international news isn't important. If it is, we'll use it – maybe even on the front page. But what's happening on campus is more important to us nine times out of 10. Chances are if we have to choose between a story about a Wisconsin farmer who had aliens to his house for dinner or an exhibit this weekend at the Tarble Arts Center, we'll give the nod to the Tarble story.

That's because we like to treat Eastern as a community. Ultimately, any newspaper's primary concern should be its readers. We're not any different.

We want to make our readers just as much a part of this newspaper as our reporters. I don't want to sound like I'm preaching from a mountaintop, but your two cents is worth a whole lot to us.

If you have a complaint, give us a call. The number is 581-2812. But better yet, write a letter to the editor. Chances are three out of five others might be thinking the same thing.

I'll also note that perfection does not exist in the newspaper business, and The Daily Eastern News is no exception. We do try however, to come as close as we can. Sure we are occasionally prone to spelling mistakes, a few typos and an inaccurate quote or headline. But just as much as this place is a newsroom, it's also a classroom. I'm not defending our weaknesses, but take me to a concert where a performer plays off-key, or to a football game where a flanker doesn't drop a pass. The concert hall and the football field are classrooms, too – especially in a university setting. I can assure you though that we learn from our mistakes, as do the performer and the football player.

If you're ever curious about how things are done over here, come to the North Buzzard Gym and check us out. I think you'll be surprised. This is one of the smallest public universities with a daily newspaper in the nation and we print more than 1.5 million newspapers every year. If you're willing, we might even give you a story to cover or a photo to shoot.

Finally, if you have a news tip, story idea, or see a photo just waiting to be taken – call us. Contrary to popular belief, we're always anxious to get a good tip. Sometimes those turn out to be the best.

One athletic trainer 'grateful' for show of support at game

Dear editor:

Thank you.

This sincere message of gratitude goes out to all of those students who invited their gracious parents and assorted relatives to attend Eastern's Parents Weekend football game.

We on the sidelines greatly appreciate you fans not yelling and screaming the way fans do at other schools. You, by not making any ridiculous noise, let us concentrate on the task at hand. These past four home games were such a sigh of relief. To be able to play in complete silence was much better than in those noisy stadiums in the first half of the season. I mean it was ridiculous, can you believe that their fans actually made noise on a goal line stand? Heck, they even cheered for their defensive unit to stop a fourth and inches. They are a bunch of crazy people! They went so far as to cheer for a pass reception, even if it wasn't a touchdown! What a bunch of schmucks.

Thank God we don't have that here. If we did we couldn't hear the wonderful chorus of crickets echoing from our practice field. Fortunately, we have you, the loyal 1,258 fans who sit on their hands for enjoyment once a week. Unfortunately, there is a small handful of “those people” who insist on making some noise. I guess there must be a couple in every crowd though.

And don't forget basketball season is coming, so get your ticket now, because, from what I can recall from last year, Lane had only a 35-seat capacity. Just a lot of unused space between them.

12 Western students face charges in hazing death

MACOMB (AP) — Twelve members of a university lacrosse team were charged with misdemeanors in the death of a teammate who overdosed on alcohol during an alleged initiation, school officials said.

The 12 were arrested Monday and charged by the McDonough County state's attorney's office with hazing and unlawful delivery of alcohol to a minor.

Nicholas Haben, 18, of Oswego, was found dead Oct. 19 in a Western Illinois University dormitory room. Officials said he was forced to drink a large quantity of alcohol. Authorities refused to say how much alcohol was involved.

Haben died after he and other first-year players were led to a wooded area, swatted, and encouraged to consume "rookie juice," a concoction that included beer, schnapps, coffee, tuna, eggs and hot dogs, authorities said.

Brian Donchez, who is among those charged, said the students did nothing wrong.

"We didn't haze and that's all there is to it," said Donchez, 21, of Chicago.

The 12 students were released after each posted $100 on $1,000 bonds.

Western is one of five universities in the Board of Governors system, which also governs Eastern. After the incident, Eastern Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams said last week that he is encouraged that fraternities and sororities at Eastern have modified their pledge system to avoid incidents like the one that occurred at Western.

Stress workshop reveals dangers of procrastination

By EILEEN OLSON
Staff writer

Everyone puts things off occasionally, but procrastination can be a recurrent problem which can hamper productivity and increase stress in a person's life.

Claudia Lane of Eastern's Counseling Center addressed the topic to a crowd of about 15 people Monday night in the University Union. According to Lane, many students tend to put off proper study habits until the last minute.

The workshop was sponsored by the Counseling Center as part of its outreach program.

"People tend to get a shock after they receive their mid-term grades," Lane said.

"They had put off studying until the last minute, and their grades reflect that."

The workshop included audience participation, tips on how to overcome procrastination, the reasons people procrastinate and the effects it has on classroom performance.

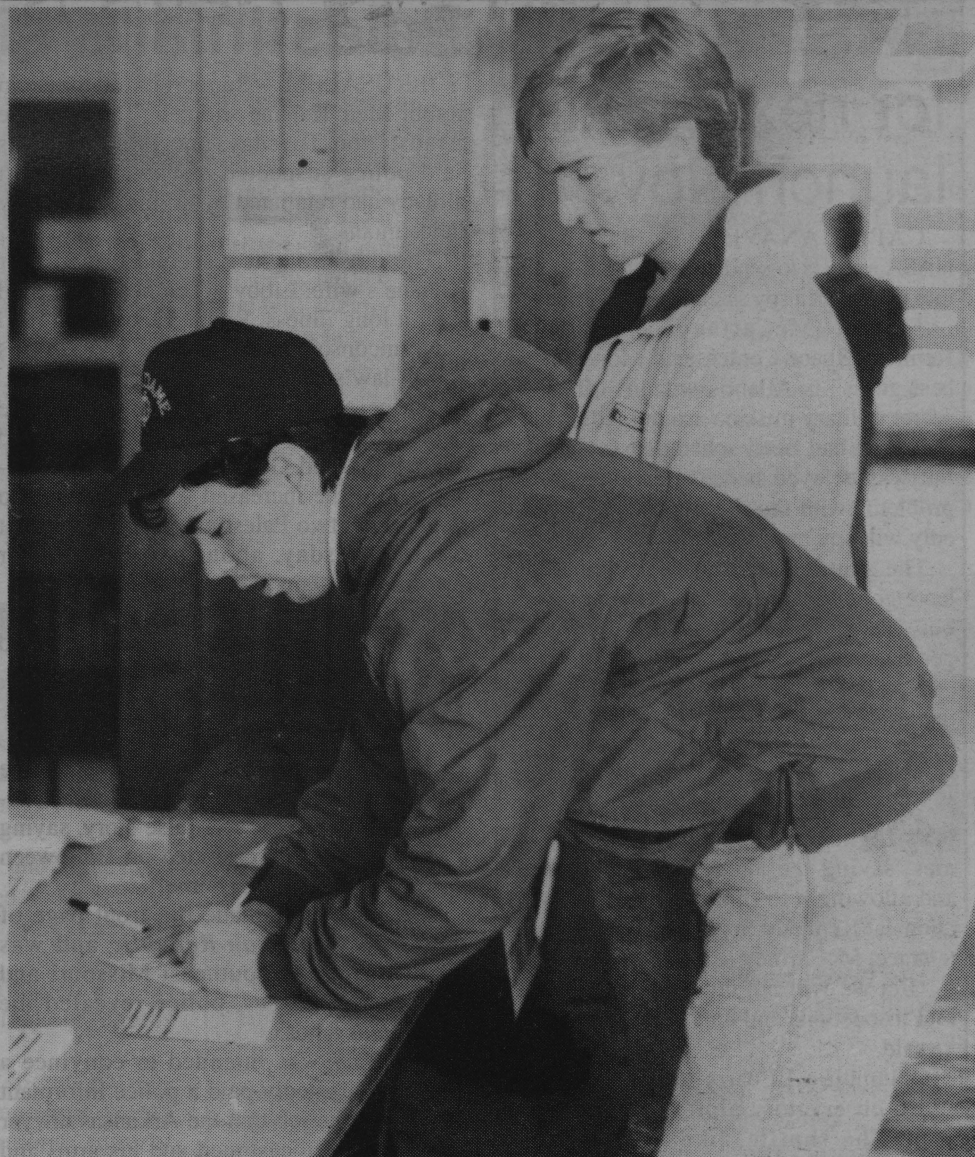

"Procrastination can be costly," Lane said. "Keep this in mind when studying for tests."

Lane suggested that students set realistic goals for themselves.

She also added that if those goals are met, the person should reward themselves.

Lane related to the students by giving personal experiences from her past as examples.

She also used comic strip cartoons to add humor to the workshop.

Social Security hiring program open for minority participation

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

A program is under way at Eastern to encourage more minority students to go into government-related jobs, particularly with social security.

Minority Affairs Director Johnetta Jones said the social security co-op education program is designed for minority students who want to work part time and go to school also.

Jones said the student must be either a junior or senior with a minimum 2.5 grade point average.

"They are trying to get more and more minorities into the federal workforce," she said. "This is one way of trying to find them."

The program works much like an internship in that the student will go to school for one semester, then work in the social security office the next. The student will continue on that cycle until he or she have worked 28 hours.

Once that requirement is met, the student is eligible for a full-time job after graduation.

"At completion of the program, you decide if you want to continue working there and the employers decide if they want to keep you, and hopefully you have a match."

Jones said students who are majoring in the social sciences, such as sociology and psychology, are generally preferred for the program, but she encourages others to apply.

"It's not limited exclusively to social science majors. Anybody can apply. It doesn't hurt to apply — sometimes you get lucky," Jones said. She added all applications should be returned to her office at 329 Coleman Hall by Nov. 20.

Once the application is done, the student will be reviewed by a reviewing committee, which will make recommendations to the social security people in Champaign.

"The person chosen will start in January," Jones said, noting Eastern only expects to choose one student to recommend to the Champaign offices.

"Since this is the first time Eastern has done this we're just selecting one. We're going to see how it works out," Jones said.

Funding one's own college career is one benefit students will receive with the program. "For someone who needs money to go to school, it's an excellent way of doing it,"

UB fills coordinator positions

By EVETTE PEARSON
Activities editor

The University Board recently filled two open coordinator positions, closing in the gaps left by a resignation and a graduation.

"We are here to provide entertainment for the students because this is where they live and it is totally impossible to have school, homework and tests in your life without some type of entertainment," UB Vice Chair Meg Meyers said.

The UB is made up of a 14-member group of coordinators, who handle much of the entertainment opportunities provided on campus, including Parents Weekend and the spring concert.

Sophomore Marc Wallace will take the place of the Mark Stovall, who is resigning as human potential coordinator, and freshman Lisa Neilson will fill the Subway coordinator position after senior Brian Moushon graduates in December.

Elections were held about two weeks ago to fill the human potential and Subway coordinators positions so the positions would be filled for the national conference on November 15-18, said Meyers.

The conference gives the coordinators a chance to see what types of entertainment are available.

"I believe that they are all qualified and fantastic people and it will be very fun working with the best UB at Eastern," Meyers said.

The human potential coordinator is responsible for providing minority entertainment on campus.

"In the past, they have provided lectures during Black History Month, such as last year's African speaker Shanta, and presentations during Women's Awareness Month and recently provided the Hot Mix Five dance party at the beginning of this semester," Meyers said.

The Subway coordinator will program comedians for the campus at least once a month.

NASA aiming for next shuttle launch Nov. 16

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA expects to send space shuttle Atlantis into orbit with a spy satellite next week.

Forrest McCartney, director of Kennedy Space Center, said Monday "the best guess" is Atlantis will lift off on its secret military mission around Nov. 16.

Liftoff had been scheduled for Nov. 9 but was delayed because of undisclosed problems with the satellite, which reportedly will spy on Iraq.

The shuttle actually was supposed to have gone up on a 10-day mission in July but was grounded all summer by hydrogen leaks.

NASA still plans to launch Columbia in early December, even though the agency likes to have at least three weeks between flights, McCartney said.

Work will be speeded up so Columbia's flight can be completed by Christmas, saving the agency on holiday pay and allowing it to shut down certain operations at Kennedy Space Center for maintenance, McCartney said.

"But we will not cut down on the normal inspections and data that we look at," he said.

Columbia will carry the $150 million Astro observatory aloft during its mission. The shuttle, like Atlantis, was grounded since the summer by hydrogen leaks.

Both shuttles were cleared for flight after fueling tests last month.

Palestinians slain after Kahane assassination

JERUSALEM — Supporters of the slain Rabbi Meir Kahane shouted "Death to the Arabs!" on Tuesday, and Israeli reports said police suspected a Jewish extremist already had retaliated by killing two elderly Palestinians.

The day brought a second tragedy for Kahane's wife, Libby, when her father died after a long illness. Rabbi Yacov Blum had been unconscious and did not know of his son-in-law's death.

Police and army reinforcements were deployed around Israel and in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to prevent violence. But the increased security came too late to save two Palestinians killed at about 6 a.m. Tuesday, about two hours after Kahane was slain in New York City.

Israeli police said they suspected an Israeli radical killed the Palestinians and that the slayings may have been prompted by Kahane's murder, the national Itim news agency reported.

Israel television said police received warnings of death threats against Israeli Arab members of Parliament and Palestinian leaders in the occupied territories.

Kahane was slain in New York Monday night by a gunman believed to be of Arab descent. Israel army radio said the man, identified by police as El Sayed Noseir, 34, formerly lived in the occupied territories.

Palestinians in Israel said the name as given by police was not typical and might be Said Nasser or Nasser el-Said.

The 58-year-old Kahane, a former member of Parliament and founder of the right-wing Kach movement, advocated the expulsion of all Arabs from Israeli-held territory.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry said Kahane's assassination was "an unprecedented assault on an Israeli political figure on American soil" and urged the United States to increase security against terrorism.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher called the killing "A despicable and cowardly act."

Asked about a possible vendetta by Kahane supporters, he said: "We don't see this as a time for revenge. Now is the time for restraint."

Missouri police feed media false Halloween story

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Police running an undercover sting fed radio stations and a newspaper a false story, saying a lawyer had been castrated on Halloween during an attack at his home.

After the story made the front page of the Daily American Republic and was broadcast across southeast Missouri and northeast Arkansas, police revealed the assault was a hoax.

The sting was intended to convince a man who allegedly paid a police informant $4,000 for the job that the Arkansas lawyer really had been castrated and his arms and legs broken, police said.

On Halloween night, officers acted out the assault at the lawyer's home, and rushed a phony injured man to the hospital.

When reporters heard on police scanners what they thought was a story, they contacted the sheriff's office in Clay County, Ark.

Sheriff Darvin Stow then told reporters that city attorney C.W. Knauts, of Piggott, Ark., was stabbed and rushed to a hospital.

Stow said the attorney had two broken arms and was bleeding from the groin.

The target of the sting, Harold Speer of Greenway, Ark., was charged Thursday in Stoddard County, Mo., with conspiracy, burglary and assault. He was arrested in Arkansas. Knauts represented Speer's former wife in a 1985 divorce.

Investigators said they wanted to keep the plan a secret for a few days rather than arresting Speer on the spot when he hired the informant because Speer allegedly told the bogus hit man of other jobs he wanted done.

Authorities also said they hoped Speer might provide information on the slaying of his ex-wife in Phoenix a month after their divorce.

Stow said he was sorry if anyone was offended, but it was necessary.

"It's pretty disturbing to me," Stan Berry, news editor of the Daily American Republic, said Monday. "We're not in the business of printing fake stories for anybody." The false information was given only by the Clay County Arkansas Sheriff's Department. No news conference was held and no press releases were issued by either the Missouri Highway Patrol or Arkansas State Police.

Postal Service gets a 'Low B' in outside rating

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service delivered about four-fifths of overnight mail on time in its first test by an outside consultant, a performance the postmaster general said Tuesday earns the agency a "low B."

Mail intended for overnight delivery arrived on time 80.61 percent of the time during a three-month test period that ended in mid-September, the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse reported.

"About as low a B as you can get, that's how I would characterize it," Postmaster General Anthony Frank said following the monthly meeting of the service's board of governors.

While the national rating was just over 80 percent, performance varied widely from place to place, with larger cities such as New York "dragging down" the average.

Overnight delivery of mail destined for the Big Apple was on time just 46.94 percent of the time, the lowest share anywhere in the 50 states.

Top rated for overnight mail was Kansas City, Mo., with 94.06 percent of overnight mail arriving on time.

In addition to the performance figures, Frank said that the postal rate increase scheduled for next year, including a 30-cent stamp, is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 3.

While the recent budget settlement signed by President Bush will cost the Postal Service $4.7 billion over five years, Frank said he hopes not to have to raise rates again until 1994 or 1995.

Previously he had said he did not expect another rate hike until 1996, but the cost of the budget settlement will mean "more, sooner" as far as rates go, he said.

Price Waterhouse conducted the delivery test by mailing 425,000 pieces of mail to 5,000 recipients in 286 ZIP codes across the country.

The mail included letters, post cards and large flat envelopes, some with typed addresses and some hand written.

In addition to the 81.61 percent performance for overnight mail, 74.38 percent of items intended for second day delivery arrived on time, and mail designated for three-day service was on time 81.11 percent of the time.

Overnight, second and three-day service depend on distance the mail has to travel.

A small share of mail took four, five or more days to arrive — an outcome that clearly annoyed the postmaster general.

"Maybe you can make a case for being a day late ... but you can't make one for being two, three or four days late," Frank said, promising an attack on that problem area.

French students march for funds

PARIS (AP) — Tens of thousands of high school students around France poured into the streets Tuesday, one day after 130,000 people joined nationwide marches to demand better education and improved security on campus.

The largest protests Tuesday involved 8,000 students in Besancon, 6,000 in Toulouse, and 4,000 each in Reims and Vannes, police reported.

Smaller marches unfolded in Marseille, Nancy, Metz, Belfort, Dijon, Nevers and Mulhouse.

No violence or arrests were reported, although a police officer directing traffic away from the march in Marseille was slightly injured when accidentally struck by a car.

Students have been holding protests for three weeks to seek more teachers, repairs to crumbling high schools, and more security guards on crime-ridden campuses in ghetto neighborhoods.

Conservative opposition parties proposed Tuesday that the Socialist government sell off state-owned industries to finance nationwide school renovation.

About 130,000 students around the country marched Monday as the National Assembly debated the Socialist government's proposal to increase education spending by 9 percent, to the equivalent of $49 billion.

Student leaders have criticized this as inadequate, although it outpaces the overall budget increase of 4.8 percent.

Education Minister Lionel Jospin won his proposal Monday to carry the debate over to next week while he pursues dialogue with the student movement, currently split into moderate and hard-line leftist factions.

The vast majority of the marches in more than a dozen cities

Monday were orderly.

But scores of youths threw stones and bottles at riot policemen deployed near the National Assembly in Paris as lawmakers debated the budget.

Five policeman and eight journalists were injured and a handful of rioters arrested, police reported.

The rioters damaged a cafe, several stores, telephone booths and newsstands.

Protests have spread nationwide since starting three weeks ago in the low-income suburbs north of Paris, where a student was raped in a school lavatory and several teachers and students were assaulted.

On Oct. 26, Premier Michel Rocard announced the creation of 10,000 new posts for school guards, teaching assistants, food service and maintenance workers.

Student leaders said the measures don't go far enough.

Militants use confrontation to combat anti-gay violence

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a quiet night at King Tut's Wah-Wah Hut bar — if quiet is the word for an East Village saloon where tattooed toughs gather to booze, play pool and listen to heavy metal.

Gradually, a very different crowd filtered in. They wore T-shirts with the legend "Queer Nation" emblazoned over a map of the United States, and settled in under the ultraviolet-lit painting of a skull on fire.

A beefy pool player was about to take a shot when he noticed a pair of the newcomers standing beside him. His jaw dropped.

The two men were kissing, mouth to mouth.

"Oh no! Oh no!" the man with the cue cried, retreating in revulsion to the other side of the table. "Stop that."

They ignored him. This was why they had come — to agitate, to confront people they blame for an increase in attacks on homosexuals. They are Queer Nation — one of several militant gay organizations which have discarded polite persuasion in favor of grab-them-by-the-lapels defiance.

There are Queer Nation chapters in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Boston, Detroit, Philadelphia, Providence, Toronto, Boulder, Colo., and Ithaca, N.Y.

Where groups like the Gay Men's Health Crisis responded to AIDS by lobbying for help and by providing services to sufferers, the new generation — ACT-UP, the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power — takes to the streets.

ACT-UP has thrown bagels and noodles at a hotel where President Bush was appearing, blocked Wall Street, disrupted services in St. Patrick's Cathedral — all protests against what it claims is political, business and religious indifference to the epidemic.

Illini expect decision Wednesday

CHAMPAIGN (AP) – The University of Illinois is expected to learn its basketball fate Wednesday when the NCAA announces a decision on alleged recruiting violations.

The NCAA started looking into the charges about 16 months ago.

Illinois recruiter Jimmy Collins is accused of using improper inducements to sign two high school basketball stars.

The NCAA charged that in 1987, LeRonso Ellis of East St. Louis was offered $5,000 to sign and $5,000 a year to play for Illinois, plus use of a car.

The organization said that two years later Deon Thomas of Chicago was offered $80,000 and a Chevrolet Blazer to join the Illini.

Collins has denied the accusations, saying, "I didn't offer anybody any money." Reports that Illinois' signing of Thomas had raised questions about basketball recruiting were confirmed in July 1989 when the university announced the NCAA had initiated a preliminary inquiry.

Illinois apparently was turned in by rival recruiter Bruce Pearl of Iowa.

He secretly recorded a telephone conversation with Thomas in which the 6-foot-9 Chicago Simeon star appeared to confirm that Illinois offered him cash and a car to sign.

Thomas later said there were no improper inducements and that he merely agreed with Pearl's accusations to get rid of him. He said the only improper offers were from Iowa.

But there was no immediate explanation for Ellis' statements to NCAA investigators that Illinois made a similar cash-and-car offer in its unsuccessful attempt to recruit him while he was at East St. Louis Lincoln.

The NCAA preliminary inquiry turned into a full investigation, and it accused Illinois in February 1990 of 11 violations of its recruiting rules.

The university's own internal investigation of the basketball program revealed some violations of NCAA rules: a $10 loan to Thomas for food, talking to prospective recruits at the Prairie State Games in Champaign and unauthorized use of players' complimentary gametickets.

UI officials have withheld Collins from off-campus recruiting and have frozen coaches' salaries and taken away one basketball scholarship. Thomas red-shirted his freshman year after the investigation began.

Illinois officials met with the NCAA in August and again in September to discuss the case, then continued to wait for the decision as basketball practice opened in October.

The NCAA said it would present its findings at a 9 a.m. CST news conference in Overland Park, Kan. University of Illinois officials scheduled a 10 a.m. news conference on campus to respond.

CHICAGO (AP) – Wisconsin-Green Bay is the favorite to win the Mid-Continent Conference basketball title, according to a poll released Tuesday.

The conference has a new name – changed from Association of Mid-Continent Universities. The league lost Southwest Missouri but has two new teams in Northern Illinois and Akron and welcomes back Cleveland State from NCAA probation.

Eastern junior forward Barry Johnson was selected with four other players for the preseason all-conference team. Green Bay's junior point guard Tony Bennett was unanimous selection to the team. They are joined by Brian Hill, a junior guard from Illinois-Chicago; Donnell Thomas, a senior forward from Northern Illinois; and Dale Turner, a junior guard from Northern Iowa.

Hollimon waits for next year

By R.J. GERBER
Associate sports editor

Maybe it was a good thing that senior midfielder LeBaron Hollimon had to red-shirt this year, as Eastern soccer team suffered its worst season ever.

Hollimon, from Wichita, Kan., suffered a broken ankle in the 1989 campaign and played much of his junior season with the injury. The injury caused him to sit out this year, although Hollimon has been able to practice with the team.

Hollimon said that he was glad his collegiate career didn't end on a bad note, like this season's 5-11-2 record.

LeBaron Hollimon

"I knew it was going to be a rebuilding year," Hollimon said. "But I didn't expect it to be like this. I was happy that I didn't go out like that."

Eastern's lack of offense was its biggest shortcoming this season. The Panthers scored just 23 goals and were shutout seven times – both school records.

Hollimon said that he hopes to improve on those totals when he returns to action.

"That's the area that I think I can help in," Hollimon said. "I'm gearing myself towards scoring."

Scoring is nothing new to Hollimon. The co-captain has scored 13 goals and added 11 assists in his three years of action. He also was an All-Mid-Continent Conference performer during his sophomore season when he placed seventh in the league in scoring with seven goals and four assists.

There is some question as to where Hollimon will be inserted into the Panther lineup next season. If head coach Cizo Mosnia recruits some scorers that can make an impact, then Hollimon will remain at midfield. If not, then he could possibly play forward.

"I was recruited to play forward," Hollimon said. But Mosnia said that Hollimon's position is uncertain.

"LeBaron is such a team player that he will play anywhere," Mosnia said. "I will try to accommodate him so that we get the best out of him."

Hollimon said that he could have seen some action this season, but that would have nullified his eligibility for next year.

"I could have played for the last month," Hollimon said. "I'm about 90 percent at this point. I hope to be 100 percent when we start the indoor season in February."

"I expect to be full strength and go out and have a good year," Hollimon said.

Hull, St. Louis edge Oilers

ST. LOUIS (AP) – Vincent Riendeau stopped 23 shots before being injured late in the game and Brett Hull scored his league-leading 17th goal as the St. Louis Blues defeated Edmonton 2-1 Tuesday night for the Oilers' club-record seventh straight loss.

The Oilers, the defending Stanley Cup champions, have been shut out twice and have scored only seven goals during their losing streak. They averted a third shutout when Glenn Anderson got his first goal of the season with 7:17 remaining off Curtis Joseph.

Edmonton got few solid scoring opportunities against Riendeau, who extended his unbeaten streak to 6-0-1. But Riendeau, working on his second shutout in nine days, was knocked out of the game when he apparently took a high drive from Charlie Huddy off his mask with 7:41 remaining and Anderson broke through soon after when he knocked the puck in off Joseph's skate.

Geoff Courtnall added his ninth goal for the Blues, who are 8-1-1 in their last 10 games. St. Louis also beat Edmonton 5-2 on Oct. 16 and has beaten the Oilers twice in a season for the first time since 1983-84.

The Oilers fell to 2-9-2, last in the Smythe Division, with a league-low 32 goals. With six points they're next-to-last in the NHL.

The Oilers also fell to 0-4-1 on the road and are one of only three teams that are winless on the road.

Hull's seventh power-play goal – tying him with Joey Mullen of Pittsburgh for the league lead – put the Blues ahead at 9:50 of the first period. Hull beat Bill Ranford on a wrist shot from the slot off a feed from Scott Stevens just after a two-man advantage had expired.

Courtnall grabbed a loose puck near the net and swatted it past an out-of-position Ranford at 11:24 of the second period to make it 2-0.

Blackhawks tie Whalers

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) – Pat Verbeek scored at 2:31 of the third period to give the struggling Hartford Whalers a 1-1 tie with the Chicago Blackhawks on Tuesday night.

Verbeek's goal enabled the Whalers, 4-8-3, to earn their first point since a 3-1 victory at Toronto on Oct. 17. During a seven-game winless slide, Hartford has been outscored 26-8.

Whaler goaltender Peter Sidorkiewicz stopped 29 shots with Steve Thomas scoring the lone Chicago goal. Rookie goaltender Dominik Hasek, making his first NHL start, turned aside 28 shots for the Blackhawks, 10-6-1, who are 5-2-1 since Oct. 21.

Verbeek forged the tie following a series of sharp passes. Bobby Holik gained control of a loose puck along the right boards and passed it to Ron Francis in the circle. Francis moved to the slot and hit Verbeek, who was alone at the left post and easily connected.

Lady Panthers prevail in four games

Senior tri-captains Deanna Lund and Diane Kruto set two Eastern volleyball records and helped their team to a 15-11, 15-8, 9-15 and 15-11 conference win over Southern Illinois Tuesday night in McAfee Gym.

Lund recorded 13 digs to give her a career total of 1,371 — an Eastern record — and Kruto had 20 kills to give her 404 for the year. It also put her over the 1,000-kill mark for her career at Eastern. Kruto and Lund are the only Lady Panthers to ever have 1,000 kills in their careers at Eastern.

Eastern won the first game with the strong serving of Amy Van Eekeren, who broke an 11-11 tie. Van Eekeren served the final four points to give Eastern the 15-11 win in game one. Cindy Geib served up in game two, putting Eastern ahead 10-8 before finishing the game for the Lady Panthers 15-8.

Eastern rallied from a 6-2 deficit in game three to bring the score to 9-8 before Southern put the game away 15-9.

Game four was tight with several rallies and some hard hitting net play. Eastern pulled away when Lund, Shannon Casey, Lori Olson, and Geib combined for the final points of the game for a 15-11 win and the match victory.

Kruto added 16 digs along with her 20 kills and Casey added 26 assists, while Van Eekeren chipped in 27 assists. Lund had 15 kills and Olson added six kills. Geib recorded 13 kills and 11 digs to round out the Eastern attack.

"Diane had a good game and Deanna had a good game. Cindy played well, too," said coach Betty Ralston. "I'm very encouraged. We played the same as we did at Western and I hope we can keep it up for two more matches."

The Lady Panthers are now 15-18 overall and 2-5 in conference play. Southern Illinois fell to 11-15 overall and 3-4 in conference action. Eastern will host Drake at 7 p.m. Friday in McAfee Gym in a conference matchup and then ends its season against conference frontrunner Northern Iowa Saturday at home.

"If we can play like this against Drake we should do pretty well," said Ralston.

Soccer team ends long, grueling year

Eastern's soccer team experienced its worst season in school history this year as it produced a 5-11-2 slate.

There were several school records set this season, but unfortunately for the Panthers, the records were negative. Eastern scored just 23 goals this year, while allowing 42. The 1967 Panther squad, which played only nine games, scored 23 as well.

Eastern also saw its four-year, Mid-Continent Conference unbeaten streak of 19 games go by the wayside during the season. Cleveland State beat the Panthers 5-0.

Eastern's lineup was in constant disarray because of injuries, red card suspensions and disciplinary setbacks. Mosnia said that was part of the problem this season.

"Right off the bat, the team concept was not there," Mosnia said. "The players were unsure of who would be next to them on their line."

Lack of an efficient and consistent scorer was another setback that the Panthers had to face. Junior halfback Steve Baker was the team's leading scorer with 10 points. Baker scored four goals, three coming on penalty kicks, and had two assists.

Mosnia said that the lack of scoring resulted in the team putting undo pressure on itself.

"Basically, that was it," Mosnia said. "We put added pressure on ourselves and that created instability."

The 11 losses are also a school record, as is seven shutouts against. Eastern's youthful lineup included only one senior, forward Mario Mihalic, who was suspended for a total of five games during the course of the year.

Mihalic was suspended for the first two games of the year by the NCAA for playing on a club team while practicing with Eastern's squad. He was then excused for the last three games with junior goalie Dave Middleton and freshman John Gouriotis — also a goalkeeper — for not meeting academic standards set by Mosnia. Mihalic finished his Eastern career with 13 goals, including one this season.

Eastern started its season on the road at Evansville. Several of the players had said that it would be a rebuilding year, but they couldn't have expected the harsh treatment that the Purple Aces dealt them.

Evansville beat the Panthers 5-0. Evansville is now 22-0-2 and ranked No. 1 in the country heading into the NCAA tournament.

The Panthers played three of the 28 teams that were invited to the tourney — Southern Methodist, Illinois State and Evansville. The Panthers came up short in each contest.

Mosnia said that although Eastern lost 3-0 to SMU in Dallas, it was perhaps one of its best efforts of the season.

"We played quite well at SMU," Mosnia said. "But one of the brighter spots of the season was when we beat Northern Illinois."

Eastern defeated the MCC champion Huskies 3-1 at Lakeside Field in its third game of the year. That was the only point of the year in which Eastern was above the .500 mark at 2-1.

Eastern placed fourth in the conference race with a 4-2-1 league mark. Northern won the title in its first year of MCC competition. Akron also joined the conference this season.

Junior midfielder Terry Dixon controls the ball as Wisconsin-Green Bay defenders converge on the ball during the Panthers' 3-1 overtime victory in their season finale at Lakeside Field Sunday.

Freshmen played a big role in Eastern's season. Jim Harkness was the team's second leading scorer with four goals and an assist. Vinko Kucinic was a mainstay on defense, using his size to win several head balls and he also added a goal in the final game of the season, a 3-1 victory over Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Eric Manibog was another rookie that made a difference this year. Manibog played eight games in the net, made 31 saves and shared a shutout with Gouriotis. Manibog had a goals-against average of 2.05, while Gouriotis' was 1.2. Manibog took over for Middleton — who made 57 saves — and had a goals-against average of 2.41.

The players that did produce on offense were sophomores Tom Waters and George Janovich.

Waters scored three goals and assisted on two others. Janovich, who missed five games because of a leg injury, scored four goals. Junior Terry Dixon had three goals and one assist.

Eastern's defense made some mistakes that resulted in goals against, but sophomore Julian Martinez and junior Jeff Bullock played solid for the Panthers throughout.

Captain Tom Pardo started the season at sweeperback, but with the lineup changes, he also saw some action at forward. Pardo said that he was a bit relieved that the season was over.

"I am sort of glad that the year is over," Pardo said. "Now we can start with a clean slate. We have a good group of guys coming back and we hope to have an exciting year."

The junior also said that the team should learn something from this season.

"You always learn something," Pardo said. "Experience is the main thing. We will be doing a lot of off-season work."

Mosnia said that his top priority is to recruit some goal scorers. "That is No. 1 on my list," Mosnia said. "It is definitely something that we need."

Mosnia also said that he was very pleased with the turnout of Eastern fans at Lakeside Field, even though the team didn't perform well.

"I thought that they were great," Mosnia said of the fans. "The support was really good. I had problems getting people when I first arrived here. We apologize that we couldn't have more victories."
