AFT reacts favorably to likely pay increase

by Lori Miller

Reactions of several American Federation of Teachers members to news that extra money may be available for salaries varied Wednesday from those who called it good news to one who termed it "a piece of malarkey."

An extra $10.2 million in lapsed (unspent) funds is available, and Board of Higher Education Executive Director James Furman said Tuesday he is committed to returning that money to the salary line item.

Under the budget approved Tuesday by the board, faculty will receive a 6.2 percent increase. The BHE had recommended a seven percent increase and the AFT had originally lobbied for a higher increase in salaries.

The Decatur Herald reported Wednesday that Gov. James Thompson indicated he would support raising faculty salaries by seven percent if extra money becomes available.

AFT-Board of Governors President Margaret Schmid said there "shouldn't even be a question" that the money should be returned to salaries.

"The BHE and the legislature would be hard pressed not to return the money," she said.

She also said although higher education often finds lapsed funds, "the BHE is finally aggressively fighting for those funds. It's belated but we are happy that they are doing so."

Schmid said the AFT will direct its lobbying to the legislature to return the funds to faculty salaries.

However, Frank Abell, Eastern's representative to the AFT negotiating team, said Wednesday the idea "is another piece of nastiness on the part of the governor."

"I'm sure (the governor) will put the money back in. I'm sure he'll make a big deal of it," Abell said.

Abell said the money, which is left over from the past two fiscal years, should have been spent "last year when there were crucial needs in higher education."

The money came from two areas: unallocated state scholarship funds and community college funds, left over because the colleges experienced lower enrollments than expected.

"I think it's an unfair way to use that money," Abell said. "It means that public university students who needed money didn't get it. And that's a terrible way to treat the students of this state."

He also said he "didn't much give a damn" about lobbying for the return of the money to salaries.

"We're in the middle of negotiations and we've got much more important things to worry about," he said.

AFT treasurer Delmar Crabill said although he was aware some money would be left over he "was surprised at the amount."

He also said the "support given the union" would help determine if the extra funds are returned to faculty salaries.

He also said the state has a moral obligation to return the money to salaries.

"Whether this is actually just a PR ploy on the part of the governor remains to be seen," Crabill said.

"I think faculty feel they have a moral right to receive more than a seven percent increase," Crabill said. "Less will produce faculty action."

Crabill said states which have been traditionally considered as having a low priority for education are recruiting Eastern faculty members.

"This state is not competing with what used to be considered poorer states," he said. "Unless people see the emigration of our faculty to other states, it may be too late."

AFT member P. Scott Smith said the news of the money was a "pleasant surprise," but added he would not be "very hopeful until I see some of the money."

Thompson unveils record $12.3 billion budget

SPRINGFIELD, (AP) Gov. James R. Thompson unveiled Wednesday a record $12.3 billion budget with a 1½-cent gasoline tax hike and other fee increases, along with a proposal for ceilings on taxes and government spending by the early 1980s.

"The first business of government in Illinois should be to not take extra dollars out of the taxpayer's pocket ... Thompson said in an address to a joint session of the General Assembly.

Thompson said the proposed budget for next fiscal year would be 6.8 percent above this year, less than the growth of both inflation and the total personal income of Illinois residents.

The budget would authorize the expenditure of about $1,088 for every man, woman and child in the state, figures show.

That includes about $302 a person for education, $217 for transportation, $206 for welfare, $65 for health and human services and $15 for corrections - all major beneficiaries of increases.

To curb future increases Thompson also proposed constitutional lids on state spending and local property tax hikes, tied to growth in the total personal income of Illinois residents.

However, the Republican governor acknowledged in a press briefing that there were numerous loopholes in his ceilings, saying: "You can't draft a ceiling that doesn't have an escape for emergencies."

Reaction from Democrats, who control the General Assembly, appeared to be generally unfavorable.

"The proposals frankly are more symbolic than they are real," said Sen. Philip J. Rock, D-Oak Park, Senate president. "Sleight of hand," Rep. Eugene Barnes, D-Chicago, labeled the governor's budget.

Officially, Thompson's budget documents did not include his $870 million road construction program unveiled earlier. But Thompson said he felt the program "is necessary and necessary now."

Included are a proposed 1½-cent hike in the 7½-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax and increases of $3 to $5 in auto registration fees next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The increases would bring the state an extra $144 million, and boost the average motorist's registration costs between $9 and $15 next fiscal year.

Thompson also proposed fee hikes for liquor licenses, insurance-related activities and licenses for various state regulated professions. These would generate about $8 million, with the added costs likely passed on to consumers.

The only immediate tax relief proposed in the budget was for a modest expansion in a property-tax rebate program for the elderly and handicapped. Maximum income to qualify for the rebates would jump to $12,000 a year from the current $10,000.

Spending from the state's General Revenue Fund, the key all-purpose fund for day-to-day state operations, would total $7.4 billion. That's an increase of $453 million or 7.3 percent.

It compares with a projected 7.8 percent inflation (See $12.3 BILLION, page 5)

Nile river valley awaits Carter

CAIRO, Egypt — President Carter's whistle-stop train trip through the teeming Nile Valley Friday will take him past bullocks slaughtered for the occasion, howling, wailing pheasant women, documents of loyalty written in human blood and people - millions of them. There's nothing like it back home.

Carter and Sadat will take the five-hour trip from Cairo to the coastal city of Alexandria so Egyptians can show their support for the peace effort.

The trip, on Carter's first full day in Egypt, is something Sadat, himself a farmer-turned-president, planned in order to show Carter what the countryside looks like. Not incidentally, it should show that Sadat has the backing of his people in his peace drive with Israel.

To greet the crowds, they will stand in a wood-paneled Victorian coach with a carpeted open section in the center.

The slaughtering of bullocks is a traditional Arab sign of hospitality. If the train were to stop, Carter would probably be invited to feast on the meat.

For Richard Nixon, Sadat turned out some 3.5 million people along the 150-mile route. For Carter, the turnout is expected to be larger, said officials preparing the visit.

The two leaders will board the train from a siding at Kubbeh Palace, the former residence of King Farouk, where Carter will spend his first night in Cairo.

China accused of plundering

BANGKOK, Thailand — Vietnam accused Chinese troops of "plundering, burning people's homes and shelling" as they withdrew from Vietnam on Wednesday, but the Chinese-Vietnamese war appeared to be drawing to a close.

It was the first confirmation by the Vietnamese that the Chinese, who announced Monday that they were pulling out of Vietnam, had begun moving back.

The Chinese withdrawal might take two weeks or more because "pulling out is more difficult militarily than advancing," according to Chinese sources in Peking quoted by the Japanese news service Kyodo said.

(AP) News shorts

Kyodo also said China claimed to have killed or wounded 10,000 Vietnamese and to have taken 1,000 prisoners.

The Vietnamese news agency claimed Vietnam had "put out of action 45,000 enemy soldiers, knocked out 273 tanks and armored personnel carriers and hit hundreds of artillery piece and mortars." The claim was quoted in a dispatch by the Soviet news agency Tass from Hanoi.

The Vietnamese confirmation of the Chinese pullback, coupled with Vietnam's promise to refrain from attacking withdrawing troops, made it appear the 17-day-old war was nearing an end. Both countries have claimed victory.

High gas prices blamed on bill

WASHINGTON — Although some natural gas prices have risen 40 percent since Congress enacted President Carter's energy bill last fall, it remains to be seen whether higher prices will yield much more gas, Congress was told Wednesday.

Charles Curtis, chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, told a Senate hearing that one certain effect of the natural gas deregulation bill has been higher prices to consumers.

Newly drilled natural gas that sold for $1.51 per 1,000 cubic feet last October before Congress passed the energy legislation is now selling for the maximum allowable price for $2.11 for the same amount, about a 40 percent hike, Curtis said.

This top legal price under the 1978 law "will rise to roughly $4" by 1985, Curtis told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

Consumers should accept the fact that natural gas prices will be rising sharply, he testified. "That is the reality. Consumers will not be sheltered from it."

However, he said natural gas still remains cheaper than oil or other alternate fuels.

Curtis estimated that consumers would pay a total of from $1 billion to $2 billion this year as a result of the deregulation bill, one of the most fiercely fought parts of Carter's energy program.

Residents flee chemical fire

CRYSTAL CITY, Texas — Warned by the continuous clamoring of a fire alarm, nearly all 10,000 residents fled this Southwest Texas town Wednesday when a chemical plant fire sent clouds of toxic smoke over the area, a justice of the peace said.

Justice of the Peace Ron Carr said a fire alarm alerted residents about 6 a.m. to evacuate the town because of the potential danger. Townspeople were not going to be allowed back until 3 p.m. Carr said.

Carr said the fire caused no injuries, but he had heard of three auto wrecks and also three possible heart attacks caused by the evacuation.

The fire broke out about 5 a.m. at the Riverside chemical plant about a half-mile south of the city and was reported nearly extinguished four hours later. The plant makes pesticides and fertilizer.

As firefighters battled the flames and fumes, roads south of the city leading to Big Wells and Brundage were closed to incoming and outgoing traffic and residents fled along U.S. 83 north to La Pryor and Uvalde as the smoke gathered over the southeast portion of town.

Cause of the fire had not been determined, Carr said.

Pothole problem deep as ever

PEORIA, Ill. — Ray Pankey is angry and he wants justice.

"That pothole was a foot deep," he said, the color rising in his cheeks. "It bent the rim, put a big bubble in my radial tire, knocked the inside light off its brackets and did something to the car door. The door still won't close right."

"I'm aggravated," said Pankey, and he's not alone. The potholes which return each winter to pock highways and drive drivers batty are back again, only this year they appear to be worse than ever before. Three extremely rough winters have taken their toll, leaving Illinois' highway system in a state of disrepair.

A survey by the highway construction industry ranks Illinois fourth in the nation with 4.2 million potholes - nearly 40 for every mile of paved road in the state. If you drive a car, chances are you've hit more than one of them.

Gov. James Thompson, who last year vetoed a Democrat-backed $25 million pothole repair bill, came out this week with a program of his own to fix the roads and pay for it with an increase in the gas tax and license fees.

Satellite spots Jupiter rings

PASADENA, Calif. — A faintly visible ring of particles was discovered spinning around Jupiter - like a smaller version of the famous rings around Saturn - as Voyager I sailed by the giant planet, scientist said Wednesday.

Discovery of the ring, which resembles a thin, white string encircling the colorful Jupiter, was revealed at a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The unexpected finding makes Jupiter the third of the solar system's nine planets to have a ring. Saturn's broad and brilliant rings were discovered 350 years ago, while dim rings about Uranus were found by astronomers two years ago.

The rings around Jupiter may be composed of ice and rocky debris trapped in an orbit around the planet.

Longer drinking and purchasing hours for alcoholic beverages keynote recommendations in a report by the Charleston Liquor Commission.

Gameroom fire remains a mystery

Charleston Fire Chief Mel Taylor said Wednesday the fire that leveled the Regency gameroom Feb. 26 was still under investigation and the cause of the fire remains unknown.

"I won't be able to tell you anything about the fire until we get information back from the Springfield fire lab," Taylor said. "Right now we're justuling out possible causes one by one. There is not much else I can tell you."

Manager Pat Stanley said the owners of the apartments are planning to rebuild the gameroom as soon as possible.

"The new building should be basically the same as the destroyed one," she added.

Taylor had earlier estimated the damage to the destroyed gameroom to be "in excess of $50,000."

Wednesday he said he had not come up with a closer estimate of the damages because a complete inventory of the contents had not been completed.

Psychologist heads workshop

William Hillner of the psychology department will present an all-day workshop Thursday at the Illinois School Psychology conference in Peoria.

Hillner will speak to school psychologists on developing better consultations with their clients and preparing better reports.

The workshop will feature a lecture by Hillner, a slide presentation and six exercises for the members to perform.

The commission report recommends the closing hours for local bars be extended until 2 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights.

The commission also recommends that package liquor sales hours be extended two hours on Sunday. Liquor stores would be able to sell alcoholic beverages from noon to 7 p.m., instead of the present hours of 1-6 p.m.

The commission cited the results of their recent survey as basis for these recommendations.

The survey stated that college students strongly supported the 2 a.m. extension of bar hours on weekends.

In another recommendation relating to students, the commission stated they would not recommend raising the present drinking ages in the city to 21 for beer and wine purchases.

However, the report does stipulate that all persons should be 19 to enter a tavern. The existing age is 18 for females.

The commission also vetoed the idea of having grocery and drug stores sell hard liquor.

The report stated that the commission was divided on whether just beer and wine should be allowed to be sold.

The liquor commission also announced it will hold its second public meeting at 7:30, March 13, in the City Council Chambers in the Municipal Building.

The purpose of this meeting is to gather community input on the commission's recommendations through individuals submitting either oral or written comments.

Mayor Bob Hickman and city council members were unavailable Wednesday to comment on the commissions report.

Admission is 50 cents, Knuth added.

Education's auxiliary enterprise plan at Eastern will be discussed Thursday by the Council on University Planning and Budgeting.

Martha Morrow, CUPB secretary, said the council will discuss projects needing funds in the 1981 fiscal year.

Morrow said the CUPB also will hear Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin's recommendations for implementing the auxiliary enterprises plan. She added the council will not take any action on the plan.

The council will also review the operations for the Career Planning and Placement Office, University Relations and computer services, Morrow said.

"It's a five-year type review process," Morrow said. "We're asking members to go over the programs to see if they are meeting the guidelines the office has set up."

The CUPB will meet at 8:30 a.m. in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

EditorialEdgar's new position could boost Eastern

The newest addition to Gov. James Thompson's cabinet could be one of the best things ever to happen to Eastern.

Rep. Jim Edgar, R-Charleston, Wednesday officially accepted his new job in Thompson's administration. He will serve as Thompson's director of legislative affairs and his primary responsibility will be to help the governor's administrative programs pass the legislature.

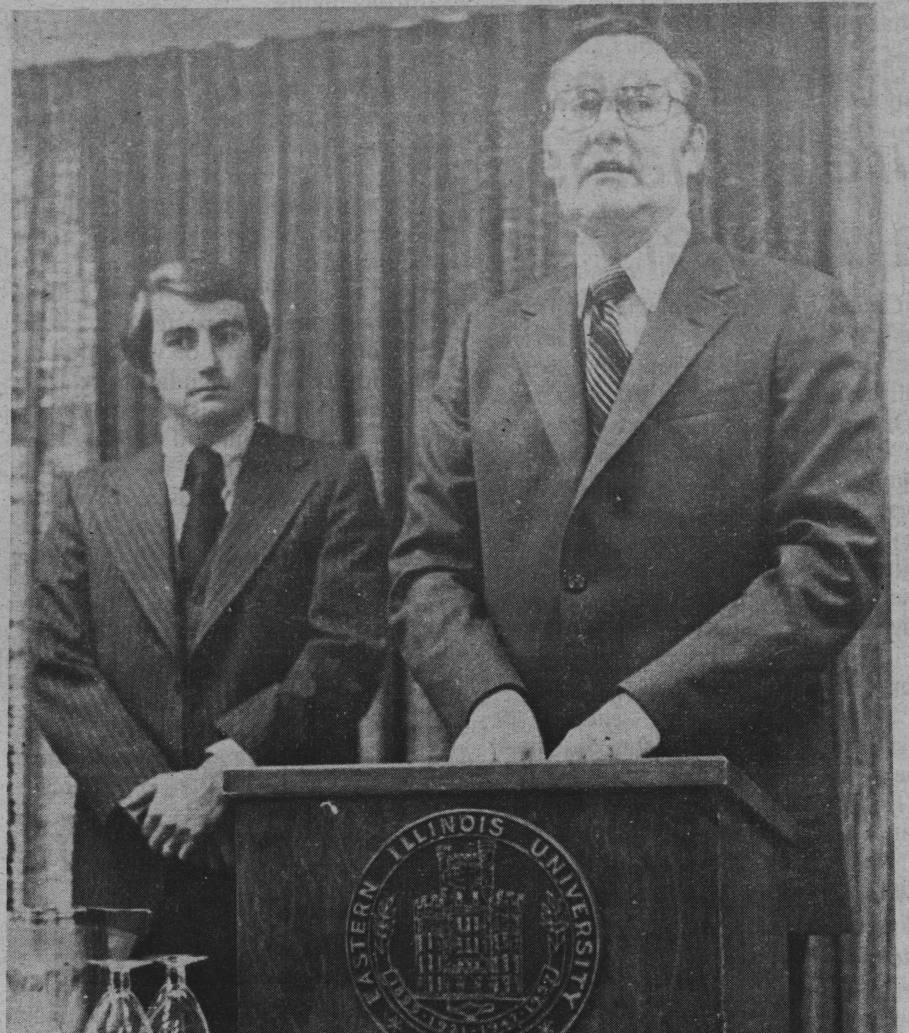

We hope he remembers his alma mater, Eastern, and higher education in general while he spends his days in close contact with the governor.

Thompson sometimes seems to need a gentle prod in the direction of supporting higher education and Edgar, who Thompson called the "very best person in the state" for his new position, could be just the person to provide that push.

We agree with Thompson's assessment that Edgar is a deservedly respected and effective legislator. We have appreciated his generally pro-Eastern voting record and his issue-oriented campaigns.

Edgar will now be in one of the best positions possible to help higher education. He obviously has gained the governor's confidence and will maintain his legislative ties. These assets could be used to represent the needs of the state universities, particularly now that higher education's budget is in the crucial phase of final consideration.

We congratulate Edgar on his job and hope he remembers he got his start in politics as Eastern's student body president, especially when matters concerning higher education come before Thompson and the Legislature.

Cross viewsJarvis' tax message not for us

(The following is written by Daily Illini columnist Pat Embry and is reprinted by permission.)

In his own way, Proposition 13 architect Howard Jarvis is telling us something very important.

"Us" refers to young adults, specifically to college students. The drug-ravaged, free-loving, longhaired protesting fools of bygone days are mere shadows of former selves; it takes only a glance down the Quad at 10:50 a.m. some school day to find examples.

Instead, these fossils have been replaced by armies of Young Republican role models, the Kens and Barbies of the Me Generation. That's us, folks.

Howard Jarvis, whose message is Tax Revolution, indeed may be stupid, but he's no fool. Jarvis not only tolerates, he embraces the young with gaping arms.

"College kids are coming around," the 75-year-old says. "I don't care if you're different, I just don't want you to be indifferent."

You say you want a revolution? Humble ("California couldn't have done it without me") Howie wants to be your leader. Heil Jarvis and all that.

Howard Jarvis likes us. Have I scared you yet?

I had the dubious pleasure of Jarvis' company last week in Chicago, where he was addressing the Inland Daily Press Association's annual meeting.

Speaking to an audience of mainly white-haired, gray-suited publishers and editors of small, family-owned and managed newspaper chains, Jarvis' rousing luncheon speech had the same effect on the audience as an 80/20 advertising-to-editorial ratio.

Question-and-answer time followed, and while others asked Jarvis how he was voting, how did he propose was the best way to make a buck, etc., I set my trap.

"Mr. Jarvis, sir," I said, standing. "I am a college student, and I was wondering if you thought there were any negative aspects to the tax movement, were there any needed services being cut, like education? I know from experience that educational funding is based on taxation."

"Ahem...yes, this young man is a college student..." Jarvis said, repeating my question for the audience. "No, I don't think education will be cut...they won't be getting the money from the personal property tax, they've got to get it from another source...."

Jarvis hemmed and hawed and proceeded to evade the question, going into a spiel on the down-trodden elderly, his eyes growing misty, then into my favorite quote of the day, "Everything should be cut except defense. The American people don't make the decision on how much defense we need—the Russians are deciding it for us."

Where does he think most of our taxes are going toward, anyway?

His speech finished, Jarvis sat behind the speaker's table, greeting well-wishers, and then he greeted me.

"Thank you for answering my question, Mr. Jarvis," I said, extending my hand, thinking the whole time that this looks and sounds like Ronald Reagan would if a 10-ton weight fell on his head.

"And by the way," I continued, and restated my earlier question to him.

It took only a couple of follow-ups to get the answer that I knew was the truth, the one behind Jarvis that the wire stories never hear.

"I know there will be bad things to come out of it (the tax movement)," he said, again mentioning the elderly and crippled, but without the dewy eyes. "But the welfare is not going to the poor."

"I don't know where education money will come from, but probably from income and sales taxes."

I wish Howard Jarvis and his friends would go away, but now I know enough not to expect that to happen for a while. And he won't have this journalist in his army, as long as I am without property or my own newspaper. As long as my senses hold out.

Lettersto the editor*Good news

Editor,

It seems that we very seldom see anything on the front page or even the second page other than news of price hikes, murders, wars or corruption. Therefore, we feel it is time that the good things that are going on get some recognition.

Throughout this week the American Red Cross has been holding a blood drive. Even though giving blood is not the most pleasant way one could spend an hour we feel that the minor discomforts are well worth the possibilities of saving a life.

We would like to thank all the nurses who were working with the blood drive and we feel it is especially important to recognize and thank some of the volunteers who helped make our visit more pleasurable. Thanks, Marcella, Betty, Mertle, Kathy, and Millie, your hospitality at the snack table was superb. Keep up the good work.

Schools mismanaging tax money—Thompson

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Saying that “schools must improve their management of the taxpayers’ dollars,” Gov. James R. Thompson Wednesday recommended a $3 billion state education budget providing the smallest proposed percentage increase since he became governor.

The governor proposed an increase of $136 million to educate Illinois’ 2.7 million students from kindergarten through post-graduate university studies.

The budget calls for a 4.9 percent increase in general state support of elementary and secondary education and colleges and universities. Thompson had offered education a 6.8 percent hike for this year opposed to a 4.94 percent increase the previous year.

“There will be demands that we spend more . . . but those demands cannot be met without crippling other services or driving taxes up,” Thompson said in an address to the General Assembly.

About 1,000 local school districts and the state’s education bureaucracy would get $2 billion next school year, or $81 million more than this year.

The state’s 51 community colleges and 10 university systems would get slightly more than $1 billion next year, $54.9 million more than this year.

Thompson said he neither favors nor opposes a tuition hike for higher education. But his proposed budget recommends that the General Assembly appropriate an extra $6 million for higher tuition sought by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

As he has done previously, Thompson told the state Board of Education and the Board of Higher Education to determine for themselves how best to divide his budget proposals among competing programs and interests.

But a budget official said between 75 and 80 percent of the proposed $136 million increase can be expected to underwrite higher teacher salaries.

Here, at a glance, is what Thompson recommended to the Legislature for education next fiscal year, beginning July:

-Elementary and Secondary schools would get a total $2.4 billion, including $400 million in federal money. That amount includes $2 billion in general state aid, and is $96 million less than the education board has requested. State School Superintendent Joseph M. Cronin says the board will fight this spring in the Legislature to get its requested amount.

-Higher education would get $1.019 billion, or $30 million less than it recommended in January.

Thompson said his budget proposal would allow local school districts to qualify for maximum per-student state aid without having to increase local property taxes, which this year are expected to provide about $1.8 billion to elementary and secondary schools.

$12.3 Billion from page 1 More prison funds called for Illinoisan's personal income.

Major beneficiaries of the General Revenue increase would be welfare, up $147 million; education, up $136 million; prisons and child care, up a total $44 million; and mental health up $30 million.

At the state level, Thompson would clamp a constitutional ceiling on spending increases for general government operations. The governor and General Assembly could authorize spending no more than 98 percent of available revenues.

Increases could be no more than the growth in the personal income of Illinois residents during the previous year. But spending to pay off the state debt and fully finance state pension programs would be exempted.

by The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill — An additional $22 million should be pumped into the Illinois Department of Corrections next year to guarantee safety for staff and prisoners, Gov. James R. Thompson said Wednesday in his budget message to state lawmakers.

Thompson’s proposed $173.5 million corrections budget for next year is a 14.2 percent increase over this year’s, and would include hiring another 144 guards. He said the agency added 692 guards this year.

Thompson said the new 750-bed, medium-security prisons under construction at Hillsboro and Centralia would help ease overcrowding in state prisons when they open—scheduled for next year.

Car accident victim is released from hospital

by Phil Vettel

The Eastern student who was struck on campus by a car Sunday is resting in Bloomington, while the man charged with the accident complained Wednesday that the case was mishandled.

Eastern junior Gail E. Decker has been released from Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, but does not know when she will be able to return to classes.

From her parents' home in Bloomington, Decker said Wednesday X-rays showed a bone chip on her left knee. While it is not serious, Decker said, it is too painful for her to walk.

Decker said she hopes she can return to school Monday, but added that her doctor in Bloomington would make the decision.

"He probably won't let me come back until I can walk on it," Decker said.

Crutches would not help because of the stairs she must climb to reach her apartment, she said.

Eastern senior Joshua Allotey was cited by University Police for failure to yield to a pedestrian in a crosswalk, campus security Chief Pauley said Wednesday.

Allotey is scheduled to appear in Coles County circuit court on March 20, Pauley added.

Allotey said Wednesday he was angry about the way the case was handled, charging that University police failed to obtain statements from witnesses before issuing the citation.

He added that he thought Decker had been outside the crosswalk when his car struck her.

After the accident, Allotey said, he carried Decker to the sidewalk because another car was approaching.

When police arrived, they accused Allotey of moving Decker to conceal the fact that she was in the Crosswalk, Allotey said.

Pauley denied Allotey charges.

"To our knowledge, there were no eyewitnesses to the accident," Pauley said. "No one accused him of that (moving the body intentionally). I took his statement myself, and accepted it as the truth. I had no reason to doubt him."

Clark: Brooks' post will not be refilled

by Beth Murphy

Herb Brooks, director of the University Union, will assume his new position as director of Veterans Services on March 15. His former job as Union director will not be filled.

Although Brooks made the decision to accept the veteran's position, Union Area Head Bill Clark said it was his decision not to replace the Union director.

He would "reassign Brooks' duties and functions to a number of building staff including myself."

He added it was his job to see that the Union runs as efficiently as possible and by not appointing a new Union director he would save the university and the students money.

"We are not filling the position simply because we can fill it internally," Clark said.

He added that he thought Brooks would "do a very good job in veterans affairs."

About his new position, Brooks said, "I'm looking forward to it with great anticipation."

Brooks chose to apply for the job because he is losing contact with students in his present position.

"I have reached the point that the higher you go, the less contact you have (with the students)," Brooks said he was excited about working with Vietnam veterans—because they "have special problems."

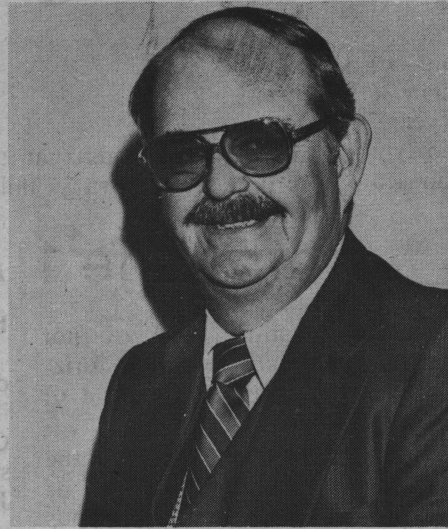

"There's been so much controversy over whether the Vietnam war was right or wrong."

Brooks said people who were committed to the United States fought in the war without receiving any thanks. Explaining, he added, as a result, many Vietnam veterans have emotional problems or are disillusioned.

Brooks is a veteran of the Korean conflict and attended Eastern on the GI Bill. He helped to organize a campus veteran's group in 1957 and has been co-sponsor of the Veterans Service since 1966.

He assumed his position as Union director in 1968.

Brooks will spend about four months working with the retiring Director of Veterans Services William Miner to learn the duties of the office.

Fourth year at Eastern

Conference offers administrators variety

by Mary Herrmann

Public administrators from as far away as the state of Washington will be at Eastern this weekend for the fourth annual Illinois Public Administration Conference.

The conference, which is partially funded by federal grants through the Illinois Board of Higher Education, offers presentations designed for both the public administrator and instructors in the field.

Richard Goodrick, director of the conference for three of its four years, summarized each day of the conference.

On Thursday, the emphasis will be on the opportunities for public officials to improve the delivery of public goods and services.

The agenda for Friday will include presentations in such areas as health planning, collective bargaining, energy conservation and rural renewal, Goodrick said.

The first of three day-long workshops on "Budgeting for the Small Government Unit" will begin Saturday, Goodrick said.

The conference is open to both faculty members and students, Goodrick said. However, the workshop on Saturday is limited to a pre-registration list of 20 persons.

The keynote address, "Re-Authorization of Title I of the Higher Education Act: Its Implication for Public Administrators," will be delivered by President Daniel E. Marvin. Marvin is a past chairman of the President's National Advisory Council on Continuing Education.

The key speaker for Friday will be H. George Frederickson, President of Eastern Washington University, in Cheney, Wash., Goodrick said.

Frederickson is the former national president of the American Society for Public Administration.

Frederickson's professional activities include membership on the Editorial Board for both "Policy Studies Journal" and "Policy Studies Review Annual."

Frederickson also served on the National Council of American Society for Public Administration from 1970-73, Goodrick said.

Frederickson has also written books and articles dealing with the public administrator, Goodrick said.

Frederickson will speak at noon Friday in the University Union Fox Ridge Room. The topic of his speech is "The New Public Administration and non-Metropolitan Governments," Goodrick said.

Implications of the Bakke decision in public sector employment will be discussed by Donald Burkholder, associate professor in political science at the University of Detroit and John W. Smith, adjunct professor in political science at the same university, Goodrick said.

The workshop on "Budgeting for Small Governmental Units" to be held from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday in Coleman Hall, Room 207, Goodrick said.

The workshop will be conducted by George Valentine, Deerfield Finance Director, Goodrick said. The second and third sessions of the budgeting workshop are scheduled for March 17 and 24. All sessions will be held in Coleman Hall, Goodrick said.

Senate to vote on joining ISA

The Student Senate will vote Thursday whether to join the Illinois Student Association, a state lobbying group, at the cost of $200 per year.

The senate will meet at 8 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

A representative from the ISA spoke to the senate last week.

The senate may also discuss their fall budget, if it is completed in time.

"I am hoping that the budget will be ready for us to discuss," Senate Speaker Kevin Sandefur said.

found the dead animal Feb. 27 while making rounds in Lawson after midnight.

Security chief John Pauley said the carcass could have come from several places.

One possibility, Pauley said, was the dead animal had been used for experiments by the zoology department.

Richard Andrews of the zoology department said carcasses of skinned coyotes were being used for a class.

Andrews said the zoology students used coyotes to study heart worms, a condition found in domestic and wild canines.

Remains of the carcasses were deposited in trash containers behind the Science Building, Andrews said.

Forty-six carcasses had been used the day of the incident, Andrews said.

Verne Kniskern of the zoology department said animals used for study are usually dissected to permit study of bones, fur and tissue.

Dotzauer tries to present student viewpoints

by Linda Charnesky

If you have a hard time understanding how he has time for it all, senior Don Dotzauer will say he does it because the students' view is important.

Dotzauer is a member of the Student Senate, Council on Academic Affairs, is student chairperson of the Intercollegiate Athletics Board, the only student member of the admissions committee and is also a resident assistant.

Last semester Dotzauer served as executive vice president of the student body and was influential in reinstating the golf team to the athletic program.

"I have a particular interest in the athletic program and athletics so the IAB is important to me," Dotzauer said.

He was appointed chairperson of the IAB at the start of this semester by Student Body President Bob Buckley.

In this position, Dotzauer hopes to speak out more for the students, as he hopes to do in all the positions he holds.

"With the IAB, I want to establish more accountability as to where student athletic funds are going, because I feel we have the best athletic program in Division II," Dotzauer said.

As one of four student members on the IAB, Dotzauer, along with the other members, advises President Daniel E. Marvin on intercollegiate athletics.

"If you can help a couple people working through these committees, it makes it all worth while," Dotzauer said.

Dotzauer did not seek a second term as executive vice president because he felt he had the resources to help out more in the senate.

"There was no specific reason why I didn't want to be in an executive position this semester, but you can only push yourself so much and being a student senator involves a lot less time," Dotzauer said.

"I just felt I had done my job," he added.

While working on the admissions committee of the CAA, Dotzauer again speaks out for student interests by dealing with students who are reapplying to the university for admission.

Dotzauer was the first student ever to be appointed to the admissions committee. He was appointed to the committee by Marvin.

City Council delays issue of better street lighting

by Cheryl Bennett

The Charleston City Council Tuesday night heard request from members of Eastern's Campus Relations Committee for additional street lighting on south Ninth Street, near campus.

Vandalism and several molestings have been reported in that area, between Ninth Street and Cleveland Street near the Immanuel Lutheran Church.

Steve Childress, director of public affairs, said the ordinance calls for the installation of one 400-watt street lamp near the Kappa Delta Sorority House and replace two 175-watt street lamps in the area with brighter 400-watt bulbs.

Childress added that the lighting around the sorority house is especially poor and is where the lights are needed most.

There was some speculation about who would pay for lights because the property in the area where the lighting improvements are tabbed is owned both by the city and Eastern.

The council decided to place the ordinance on file for public inspection and vote on the lighting request at the next meeting on March 20.

It's spring! Baseball exhibition games begin

by The Associated Press

Major league baseball's exhibition slate got under way Wednesday with plenty of balls, strikes, runs, hits and errors... but no big league umpires.

A slim five-game opening day schedule included only one game between major league teams. In that one, rookie Barry Evans drove in three runs to lead the San Diego Padres over the California Angels 4-1.

The three umpires who worked the contest at Palm Springs, Calif., belonged to the Coachella Valley Umpiring Association and work college games in the arva.

There was no word of any progress in the contract dispute between the two leagues and the Major League Umpires Associaton. The 51 big league umpires have authorized their attorney, Richie Phillips of Philadelphia, to negotiate individually even though the group's contract with baseball has a few more years to run.

The Padres collected 12 hits, including a first-inning homer by Evans off California ace Frank Tanana. The rookie third baseman later added a single and double.

Takao Obana, a 21-year-old right-hander, blanked Seattle on four hits as the Yakult Swallows, the defending Japanese champions, edged the Mariners 1-0. The run came on consecutive fourth-inning triples by Tsutomu Wakamatsu-center fielder Ruppert Jones lost the ball in the sun-and Katsuo Ohsugi off Floyd Banister.

Three members of the Central Arizona Umpires Association, which handles college and high school contests, worked the game.

Another Japanese team didn't fare as well. Willie Stargell's solo home run, Bill Robinson's two-run double and Steve Nicosia's two RBIs paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-3 triumph over the Seibu Lions with local umps doing the honors.

Reserve catcher Cliff Johnson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and rookie right-hander Mike Griffin pitched three scoreless innings as the world champion New York Yankees defeated Grambling State University 7-2. College umpires worked the game, which was halted by rain after six innings.

A three-run homer by Keith Hernandez in the first inning powered the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-3 decision over the University of Missouri with a couple of minor league umpires making the calls.

There was the usual abundance of ntrasquad games, most of them meaningless. However, Baltimore pitching ace Jim Palmer was tagged for three runs in the first inning, including a two-run homer by Eddie Murray. Palmer, a 20-game winner in eight of the last nine years, later said his back was a little sore.

the money is a benefit, but is simply an added feature for doing something you really enjoy doing.

"Baseball has always been fun for me. When it gets to be a job, that's when I'll get out. Right now, I just want to play ball," Gossett said.

While professional baseball prepares for another season, and individuals hold-out for greater demands, at least four promising youngsters are just looking for a chance.

DOONESBURY

SENATOR, THE POINT IS THAT ONCE YOU HAVE GUN CONTROL, THE ONLY PEOPLE LEFT WITH GUNS ARE CRIMINALS!

WHICH WOULD PREVENT A GREAT MANY MURDERS, MR. DUKE!

AS YOU WELL KNOW, ALMOST 70% OF ALL MURDERS ARE COMMITTED AMONG FAMILY MEMBERS OR FRIENDS. AND OVER HALF OF THEM INVOLVE HAND-GUNS!

EXACTLY! SO LOOK AT IT FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF THE VICTIM! WHAT IF YOUR WIFE WERE ATTACKING YOU WITH A HANDGUN?

I DON'T FOLLOW, MR. DUKE.

WELL, WOULDN'T YOU WANT TO BE IN A POSITION TO RETURN THE FIRE?

WELL, I..UH..

YOU DON'T HAVE TO ANSWER THAT, JIM.

Grapplers to battle 'major' foes

by Keith Palmgren

Five Panther wrestlers will move up a notch in competition this weekend at the NCAA Division II national championships at Iowa State University in Ames.

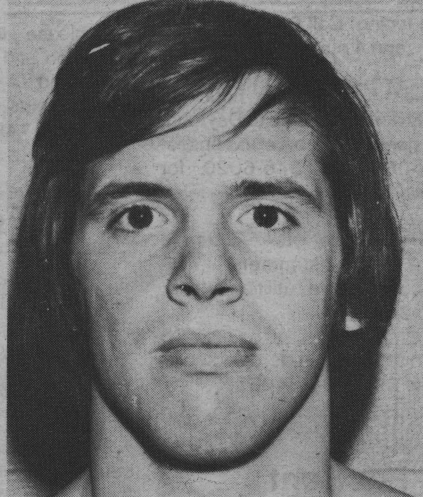

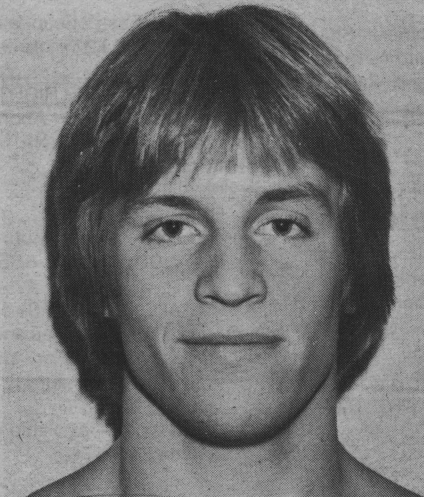

The five grapplers qualified to be in the Division I finals by placing in the top two of their respective weight class at the Division II national championships two weeks ago.

Bob McGuinn, Bob Holland, Bob Stout, Geno Savagnago, and Dave Klemm will represent Eastern in the prestigious event.

Eastern sent two wrestlers, Ralph McCausland and Robin Ayers, to the major school tournament a year ago, and coach Ron Clinton is excited at the prospects of sending five to the event this year.

"This is very significant for Eastern to send so many at this time. Our program is strong but relatively unknown," Clinton said.

Clinton would not make any predictions on how well his wrestlers will finish, but does believe Holland and Klemm have realistic shots at Division I titles.

Eastern's Bob Stout left, and Bob Holland will be in Ames, Iowa this weekend to participate in the NCAA Division I national wrestling championships.

Clinton also said that with a tournament such as this one it is hard to speculate where Eastern will finish as a team, but he believes the Panthers will finish in the top 20.

Clinton said the main difference between Division I and Division II schools is the talent and the competition between the schools.

"A division I school has more overall balance and team strength than a Division I school has," Clinton said.

Holland, a senior at 158 pounds and McGuinn, a sophomore at 134 pounds, were Eastern's only Division II champions. Stout and Savagnago placed second at 167 and 190 pounds respectively, enabling them to wrestle in the upper level event.

The only wrestler who didn't place in the top two was heavy-weight Dave Klemm, who finished third in the Division II tourney. Klemm received honorable mention enabling him to compete Thursday.

Clinton explained that for any Eastern wrestler to win his weight class, he would have to be "hot" to bring the championship home.

"I am just going to let them wrestle, and if they do well they will win it," Clinton said.

"They are all capable athletes."

Ex-Panthers set sights on majors, not money

by Carl Gerdovich

As professional baseball players salaries continue to skyrocket, four former Eastern standouts are simply hoping for an opportunity to play at the major league level.

"Money is the furthest thing from my mind, right now and I think I can speak for the rest of the guys too," Gossett said.

"Being in the position we're in now, just playing pro ball would be a thrill. There's money in this game but for now I just want to play," Gossett added.

The four Panthers draftees bring the number of former Eastern players in the pro leagues to six. They join the likes of Charleston's own Marty Pattin of the Kansas City Royals and Bill Tucker, drafted by the Atlanta Braves following the 1975 season.

All four athletes were members of Eastern's squad last spring which finished fifth in the NCAA II finals.

Doss, Gossett and Rooney all passed up their final year of collegiate eligibility after being drafted in the free agent draft last June.

West was passed up in the draft after graduating in May but signed a pro contract with Montreal last December.

"I was really shocked. I received a call and was asked if I wanted to play and of course I jumped at the chance," West said.

All four players have been enduring conditioning drills with the Panther team for the last two weeks and are scheduled to report to their respective clubs for spring training in the near future.

Rooney was recently invited to join the Montreal Expos parent club in practice, two weeks before the rookies are due to report.

Eastern coach Tom McDevitt, having lost the services of Doss, Gossett and Rooney for the upcoming season, expressed some disappointment but also praised his former players for their attained goal.

"They earned it. You can't take that away from them," McDevitt said.

Tim West left, and Rick Doss are two of six former Eastern players now playing professional baseball. West is in the Montreal Expos' training camp, while Doss is in the San Francisco organization.

"Let's face it. Every kid wants to play pro ball and the caliber these guys are, they deserve the chance," he added.

Gossett, the New York Mets' fifth-round pick in the free agent draft, became the highest drafted athlete in Eastern history.

He is due to report to the Mets' camp in St. Petersburg, Fla. March 16.

A former shortstop for Charleston High School and the Panthers, Gossett batted .353 last spring being named to the Sporting News All-American team.

After reporting to the Mets, Gossett was converted to third base and played 72 games for Little Falls, N.Y. in the rookie league. The Mets also selected Gossett as one of 23 players in the organization to play in the Florida Instructional league.

West will join Rooney March 18 at the Expos camp in Daytona.

In Rooney's initial season in the rookie league, he drove in 51 runs and hit eight home runs for his Jamestown team.

Participating in the Instructional league, he also led his team in runs-batted-in and fielding percentage.

Doss was selected by the San Francisco Giants after hitting only .267 with three home runs last spring. Reporting to the Giants' rookie team at Great Falls in Montreal, he was quickly moved up to the class A club at Cedar Rapids, Iowa of the Midwest league.

"Actually, that was a break for me to move up to a class A. The third baseman at Cedar Rapids was having a bad year and they brought me up to help out," Doss said.

Doss, Gossett and Rooney all agreed that adjusting to the different pitchers was the biggest concern in switching from college ball.

"There's a lot of potential in class A. The talent is the same but they stress development," Rooney explained.

Gossett said the "players are all consistent and it's the player who is ready mentally that has the advantage."

Recognizing the talent of his former regulars, McDevitt is about as anxious as the players in hopes of seeing them excel at the major league level.

"It's not everyday you see three or more players from one team drafted, especially at our level," McDevitt said. "That's saying something for these guys."

"Hey, the Instructional league is special invite, baby! Teams only take 20-23 players, so these guys are a bit special," McDevitt said.

Gossett and Rooney admitted that (See MAJORS, page 10)

DeWitt, Pickens, Stumpe honored

Awards were passed out this week for the Eastern Panthers basketball team.

Craig DeWitt added two individual honors to his already impressive list of credentials by being picked as the Panthers' Most Valuable Player in a vote by his teammates and coaches.

DeWitt was also named to the All-Great Lakes Region first team by the National Basketball Coaches Association.

In addition, DeWitt was named to the All-Tournament team at the recently concluded Great Lakes Regional at Dayton, Ohio.

DeWitt led Eastern in scoring this season, averaging 16.5 points a game. The 6-foot-8 junior also paced the Panthers in rebounding, pulling down 6.7 rebounds a contest.

DeWitt accomplished these statistics despite sitting out three full games and parts of others due to the effects of mononucleosis.

Other Panther award winners were senior Mike Stumpe and sophomore Mike Pickens.

Stumpe was elected honorary captain of the team while Pickens was chosen by his teammates as the team's best defensive player.

In addition, Panther center Dennis Mumford, a 6-foot-9 sophomore from Canton, Ohio, was named to the third team of the All-Great Lakes Region team.
