New tailgating policy disliked by students

by Amy Zurawski

Some students interviewed Monday expressed negative opinions toward the recent modifications made in Eastern's tailgate party policy.

The policy changes, made by university officials last week, will take affect at the next home football game. Changes include the elimination of kegs of beer from the designated student tailgating area and a time limitation on tailgate parties in the designated student area from 10:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. or 15 minutes prior to the start of the game.

The new rules were brought about after attendance at the tailgate parties escalated and the parties lasted long after the games ended, according to an official notice in The Daily Eastern News from Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs.

Officials reasoned the changes in regulations might stimulate attendance at the games.

However, sophomore Milan Kowacevich said the policy should not have been changed if the university wants more people to attend the games.

"A possible solution to the lack of attendance at the games would be to charge admission for the cars who want to park in the tailgate area," Kowacevich said. "This money could be used to benefit the sport programs just like the money that is collected from the ticket sales."

Freshman Mark Czopek said he believes the reasoning behind the policy change to stimulate attendance at the games will not be as successful as officials have planned.

"I don't think it will work, they (the university officials) know more people go to the tailgaters than the games so they want to change that," Czopek added. "The rules should be changed back to they way the used to be."

Junior Ada Dolz noted, "The stands were so crowded at the football game homecoming weekend even if the students who were at the tailgate parties would have wanted to go to the game, they couldn't have because there would have been no where for them to go."

Dolz said the university should keep the policy as it was prior to the modifications. "I think that the attendance of the games will stay the same but if you change it, I think the attendance might drop," she added.

Junior Kevin Lyman suggested students be required to purchase a football ticket before being allowed to attend any tailgate parties.

In addition, some students said they believed the policy concerning tailgate parties should not have been changed because the modifications will damage a social tradition.

Sophomore Peter Polovino said the policy should not have been changed because the tailgate parties are an important social aspect of the football game.

"Football is as much of a social event as an athletic one. If a student decides to party during the game because it adds to their enjoyment of it, they should be allowed to," Polovino said.

Sophomore John Ceasar noted that tailgate parties are a "school function that bring a lot of attention to the football games which is very positive."

"Without the regular tailgate parties, many students may come just for the pre-game activities and then go home," Caesar added. "You can't force anyone to go to the games who do not want to be there."

Kowacevich added, "What is a tailgate party without kegs? 'It's like a football game without a football.'"

Freshman Carol DeVore said the tailgate parties are an important aspect of the football game. She thinks the policy should not have changed because of the tradition of tailgate parties.

Devore added, "It's good that the tailgate parties aren't totally abolished because they build spirit and keep a tradition alive. The shorter times are probably good because people should go to the game, but the tradition of tailgating shouldn't be changed."

Presidential finalists announced

by Sheila Billerbeck

Thomas Porter, Stanley Rives and Donald Schwartz. One of these men will be Eastern's next president.

The three candidates were named Monday as finalists in the presidential search by Board of Governors Executive Director Donald Walters.

Porter is currently the executive officer for academic affairs at Connecticut State University, Rives is provost and vice president for academic affairs at Eastern and Schwartz is chancellor at the University of Colorado-Cororado Springs.

Walters said the BOG will meet in executive session Oct. 15 to conduct personal interviews with each of the finalists. The interviews will continue until approximately 3 p.m.

The BOG will then meet privately to select Eastern's new president, and then move into public session to vote on and appoint the new president, Walters said.

Finalist Porter said Monday he anticipates the board will question him on how he would maintain Eastern's quality if selected as the next president.

"It won't be a particularly difficult encounter," Porter said. "I met with BOG members in July and they appeared to be personable people."

Rives said Monday he is "looking forward to the final interview."

He added that he was impressed by the campus search committee's interviewing process, and said he believed "everyone got a good impression of the candidates."

Schwartz said Monday he is also looking forward to meeting with the board, and "I anticipate approaching the interviewing honestly and sincerely."

He added that the board will probably interview the candidates on areas concerning higher education and Eastern's academic process.

In other business, the BOG will move into executive session regarding the discussion of a collective bargaining agreement with the five BOG schools.

The special meeting of the BOG will be scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday at the O'Hare Hilton in Chicago.

Committee seeks election funds

CHICAGO (AP)—The first nationwide solicitation letter seeking funds for a possible Democratic presidential bid by the Rev. Jesse Jackson will be mailed out this week, an aide to the civil-rights leader said Monday.

Frank Watkins, a long-time Jackson aide now working on his presidential advisory committee, said the solicitation will be a "substantial mailing" but declined to say how many letters will be distributed or who is being targeted in the fund-raising drive.

Coalition urges rejection of bill

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Freedom of Information Council is urging the state Legislature to reject Governor Thompson's changes in a bill aimed at ensuring public access to government records.

The council, a coalition of Illinois journalism organizations and other groups said Thompson's rewriting of the bill did "serious damage" to the measure.

A resolution endorsed Sunday by the council said the Republican governor's changes "would have a detrimental effect on public access to government information."

Threat may provoke intervention

PARIS (AP)—The reported delivery of five Super-Etendard jetfighters to Iraq, still unconfirmed by the French government, has raised fears that Iran's threatened retaliation will widen the 3-year-old Persian Gulf war and perhaps provoke U.S. intervention.

But oil analysts say that even if Iran carries out its threat to block the strategic Hormuz Strait and close the gulf to petroleum exports, it will not cause an immediate crisis in world oil supplies.

The Super-Etendards launch surface-skimming Exocet missiles, which proved deadly when Argentina used them against Britain in last year's Falkland Islands war.

Marcos suffers political setback due to resignation of panelists

MANILLA, Philippines (AP)—President Ferdinand E. Marcos suffered another political setback Monday when all five panelists investigating the murder of opposition leader Benigno Aquino resigned because their impartiality had been questioned.

"It appears that the image of the commission for impartiality and capacity of its members to do justice to every man are being questioned," four of the five resigning commissioners said in a letter to Marcos.

Opposition leaders and Aquino's family have charged the panel was biased and under Marcos' control.

The presidential palace said in a news release that Marcos "remains receptive to suggestions in order to allow a full, impartial and unrestricted inquiry ... and to punish whoever might be guilty."

Aquino was gunned down at the Manila airport Aug. 21 as he returned from voluntary exile in the United States. The government says the assassination was a communist plot carried out by a gunman who was shot and killed at the scene by guards.

Mourners rally against bombing

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Thousands of outraged mourners rallied Monday to denounce the Burma bombing that killed 16 members of a South Korean presidential delegation. President Chun Doo-hwan said the blasts was aimed at him and accused communist North Korea of instigating it.

Chun, who avoided the Sunday explosion by minutes because his motorcade was delayed in traffic, announced nationwide mourning when he returned home early Monday. He decried the attack that killed his senior advisers, including four key Cabinet ministers, and his closest friends.

"We will not be the only ones who point to the North Korean communists, the most inhumane group of people on earth, as the perpetrators of the brutal crime to harm me as head of state of the republic," Chun said.

No group has claimed responsibility for the bombing, which wrecked a ceremonial site in the Burma capital of Rangoon, killing 19 people and wounding 48 on the first day of a scheduled 18-day Asian goodwill tour by Chun.

Expert warns against shipment

WASHINGTON (AP)—An environmental expert said Monday that shipment of high-level nuclear wastes across parts of the Midwest should be halted because the reliability of the containers is unknown.

A total of 114 truckloads of spent nuclear fuel is scheduled to be shipped from western New York, across Ohio and into Wisconsin. Federal officials have declined to disclose when and if the shipments have started.

The shipments would be the first to take place since a moratorium on the transportation of nuclear waste began in the late 1970s, allowing high-level nuclear wastes to pile up at temporary sites across the country.

Recent federal court rulings have limited the ability of cities and states to keep the wastes off of their highways.

Graduate school faces declining enrollment

by Crystal Schrof

Although Eastern's undergraduate enrollment reached record levels for fall 1983, graduate school enrollment declined for the second consecutive year.

Eastern's fall 1983 graduate school enrollment of 814 students shows a 28 student decrease from fall 1982's graduate school enrollment of 842 students. Eastern's fall 1981 graduate school enrollment was 913 students.

Dave Buchanan, acting graduate school dean, said the decline in graduate school enrollment is a "concern" among Eastern administrators.

"We are concerned about the enrollment and we are trying to do graduate school student recruiting," Buchanan said Wednesday.

However, "there is a nationwide trend in declining graduate school enrollment," he added. "This is not a problem unique to Eastern."

Buchanan said he believes some students are choosing not to go to graduate school because "they are out of the job market for a year."

In addition, Buchanan said he believes Eastern's graduate assistant stipend level is not comparable to stipends at other Illinois universities.

Without competitive stipends Eastern will not be

Graduate school enrollment

Daily Eastern News graphic by T. Broderick able "to recruit the numbers" and "high quality students," he said.

"There are a lot of benefits from our graduate assistants. Their pay is our major recruiting tool for graduate school," he said. "It is our primary recruiting tool for grad school. But we are constantly slipping in our stipends. We are among the lowest in the Board of Governors system."

Currently, Eastern has 178 graduate assistants with stipends of $330 or $440 a month. In fall 1982, Eastern had 164 graduate assistants with the same stipends.

However, in fall 1981 there were 187 graduate assistants who received a stipend of $300 or $400 per month.

Eastern's fiscal year 1984 graduate assistant budget was $527,340, while the FY 1983 graduate assistant budget was $530,420. In addition, the FY 1982 graduate assistant was $524,700.

"Our graduate assistant budget has remained constant for the last few years," Buchanan said, adding that he will ask for an increase in FY 1985's graduate assistant budget.

"We could easily justify an other $200,000 in the budget to increase the stipends," he said.

Proposal hits snag

Faculty opposes combining schools into college

by Crystal Schrof

Eastern's School of Home Economics faculty believe the combination of four academic units to establish the College of Applied Arts would create inefficient communications and a loss of school individuality.

A School of Home Economics Task Force, composed of eight Home Economics faculty members, drafted a position paper in response to Eastern's Acting President Stanley Rives' recent proposal.

Rives' proposal would establish the College of Applied Arts, a combination of the School of Home Economics, School of Technology, Career Occupations Program and Military Science Program.

In addition, under Rives' proposal, Barbara Owens, dean of the School of Home Economics, would become dean of the College of Applied Arts.

In the position paper, faculty stated that they prefer "to remain a separate academic unit" because "to relinquish an administrative structure that has been productive and successful is to take a high risk."

Joyce Crouse, School of Home Economics Task Force chairman, said the anticipated outcome of combining the academic units would not be "worth the risks related to management and communication effectiveness, program viability and program visibility."

Reorganizing the school would risk the school's "strength, viability and effectiveness," she added.

"The present administrative structure in the School of Home Economics is highly effective," Crouse said.

"A concept generally accepted by management and methods analysts holds that any time an organization adds a layer of middle management or supervision, administrative costs are increased," she said.

"It is also generally accepted that an additional level of middle management or supervision decreases effectiveness of communication and can result in as much as a 15 percent decrease in unit effectiveness," she added.

In addition, the College of Applied Arts proposal was made "in the interest of achieving a reduction in administrative overhead costs," according to the position paper.

"The proposal does achieve such a reduction; there does not appear to be any significant resulting economic benefit to the School of Home Economics," Crouse said.

Rives said earlier that the proposal would save the university "around $40,000."

Crouse said the current administrative structure of the School of Home Economics is cost effective.

"The overall program major cost is 12 percent less than the statewide average," she said. "The discipline unit cost for Home Economics is 21 percent less than the statewide average costs."

In addition, the School of Home Economics has maintained and increased enrollment, while other school's Home Economics programs have experienced a reduction.

"The program visibility afforded by the present administrative structure of the School of Home Economics has contributed to increased student enrollment," she said.

"The school has been able to recruit and retain a high quality of faculty; its ability to do so may be a reflection of the unit's autonomy and nationally-based reputation," she said.

Eastern teams need noble nickname

It's time Eastern's athletic teams had a new nickname.

Seriously, our longtime nickname, Panthers, is dull, boring and overused. As of last year 34 four-year universities and colleges used the same nickname, including Northern Iowa, Eastern's gridiron opponent this Saturday.

Besides, the name Panthers just doesn't present an appropriate picture of our athletes and the success Eastern has enjoyed the past decade.

When you pronounce Panthers, it's not with the fire and intensity that describes the animal ravishing its prey. It's a lazy, slow pronunciation that paints the picture of lazily panting cats.

Granted, some die-hard athletic boosters might gasp at the idea of changing Eastern's nickname. "It's tradition," they might say. "How can you change tradition?" But change is characteristic of society. If something fails to serve its purpose, we try to change it.

Eastern's nickname is failing to serve its purpose. We need a nickname which signifies power, vigilance and aggression. Eastern athletes are not lazy, panting cats. They have demonstrated from the pool to the field that they are aggressive and even intelligent athletic craftsmen.

They deserve the name Eastern Knights.

The name Knights is not dull, boring and overused. Few universities currently use it as a nickname and it's one which is not pronounced lazily. It has a smooth yet strong sound.

And chivalry is alive at Eastern. We have our castle, (Old Main), our quasi-moat (campus pond) and gallant athletes that often emerge victorious on the battlefield.

Knights is a more befitting name for Eastern athletes than Panthers. It paints the picture of a conqueror.

Also, Knights has advantages that Panthers do not offer. For instance, people would be more likely to join a booster club named the Knight Club, which advertised its night-life activities, instead of the Panther Club. And alumni athletes would be known as Knights to remember.

Editorial

Besides, now that Charleston's funding for animal control has been terminated, there just isn't room for any more Panthers.

Think about it. If you believe it's time for Eastern to have a new nickname, we at The Daily Eastern News would welcome your input. But take some time to think about it. In fact, sleep on it overKnight.

Crusader will give Charleston 'new image'

Good news!

Charleston has a crusader; a modern-day martyr.

In recent times, devotion to a cause is practically unheard of, except for such legendary television heroes as "Knight Rider" and the Fonz—people who give up nearly all their self respect in order to win adoration of zombies staring at televisions.

But now, instead of grabbing watered down, materialistic morals from the tube, blind followers can merely look to one man's dedicated vigil for what he thinks is right by picking up The Daily Eastern News or the Charleston Times Courier.

Who is our hero?

Why, it's Ron Tarvin.

Charleston landlord and lawyer, Tarvin intends to clean up this city, just like in the stereotypical westerns. He isn't packing a six gun, just a handful of ads in Charleston's two newspapers.

He has shouldered the problem of college-student parties and underage drinking and threatens to run the lawbreakers out of town, stating in advertisements essentially that Charleston has been abducted by drinking maniacs.

This town-saving gesture is a powerful one considering some of the students he's attacking are paying him considerable sums for rent of his properties.

We can trust Ron to throw his financial gains aside to vehemently defend "the honest and decent citizens of Charleston."

It takes an absolutist to see only the damage a few college students cause, rather than the money that Eastern rains

Personal file:

Gary Burrows

upon Charleston and Ron Tarvin. This can only illustrate how committed to the crusade he is.

But after all, Tarvin figures these students are asking for it by acting just like young adults all over the country. The time to deal with the problem sensibly is over. Ron Tarvin has taken over.

In one of his ads that threatened Gateway Liquors with "Four steps to liquor control", Tarvin has reduced the matter down to "good guys" and "bad guys". Guess what team Ron put himself on?

One can only wonder what Ron's "Charleston utopia" is. Will he not stop until he has run every college student out of Charleston? The student underage drinking problem would surely end, regardless of the fact that there are many students over 21, and have every right to drink.

Being a college student and 21 years old, I'm sure that Ron would shun my help. Therefore, I can only offer him a bit of advice—the same bit of advice he offers college students:

Ron, grow up.

IBHE proposal could eliminate electives option

On Sept. 21, Gov. James Thompson signed into law a set of requirements for high school graduation in Illinois. These requirements are in academic areas where there were no specific statewide requirements before.

Academic requirements for high school graduation is a wonderful idea. Illinois officials should be commended for their work in upgrading the quality of high schools.

It must be noted that many high school districts have academic requirements of their own. But by standardizing minimum levels of academic coursework, administrators now have a better base from which to educate students.

Enter the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

An IBHE staff proposal recommends substantially higher requirements for entrance into state universities. This leaves a gap for students to attempt to fill—and a large gap it is.

The new law, which first will affect the freshman class of 1984, requires three years of language arts, two years of math, one year of science, two years of social science and one year of humanities. These total nine credits—in addition to state statutory requirements such as physical education, consumer economics and health.

The IBHE proposal requires four years each of language arts, math, science and social science, and encourages two years of a foreign language. These total 16 to 18 credits also are in addition to the statutory requirements.

"It seems to be an over-reaction," one school district superintendent said. "Things that help to balance a person out would be cut."

That superintendent is quite correct. Students should have the opportunity to take classes in non-academic areas—music, industrial arts, and home economics are just a few. General education requirements do the job in college. So why would the IBHE want to effectively eliminate them in high school?

By requiring such stiff requirements, students would need to take in excess of 19 credits. Seventeen credits normally are required for graduation. Unless students want to stay in high school for an extra year, electives in non-academic areas would be unavailable to them.

On the practical side, there is a shortage of math and science teachers. These new requirements will create a demand that cannot be met in the near future.

Gateway continues sales; resident against decision

by Mary Holland

The Charleston resident who asked Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer to suspend Gateway Liquor's license said the decision not to is "a slap in the face" to Charleston residents.

"The mayor is playing the role of a liquor god here. He didn't do what the people wanted to do. He did what he wanted to do. That's a slap in the face to Charleston residents," local landlord Ron Tarvin said.

"In view of the fact that no one from Gateway showed up at the hearing to defend themselves, I think the mayor's decision was highly irresponsible."

Tarvin's comments came in the wake of Pfeiffer's decision not to suspend Gateway's liquor license for selling alcohol to minors.

Tarvin, in a complaint to Pfeiffer, said Jonathan L. White, a former employee of Gateway, had been found guilty twice of selling liquor to minors. He circulated a petition signed by five other residents urging the mayor to suspend Gateway's liquor license and requesting a hearing on the matter.

Pfeiffer responded to Tarvin's comments by saying his decision not to suspend the license was only an attempt "to be fair to everyone."

Pfeiffer said, "I intend to do what the citizens want but I refuse to be ramrodded by one individual."

Pfeiffer added that Tarvin, in his published statements, "makes it appear that I was besieged by calls regarding the Gateway problem."

However, Pfeiffer said the only phone call he has received about the Gateway problem came from one petitioner who called to say he couldn't attend the hearing.

Fall break aids in town's quiet

Fall Break helped quiet things down in Charleston this past weekend.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said Monday that there were "few" loud-music complaints and no students arrested over the three-day fall break weekend.

"If anything, we just got a few calls complaining about loud noise," Johnson said.

The reason for just a "few" complaints, Johnson said, may have been attributed to many Eastern students going home during the break.

"As far as a human cry of citizenry to make me aware of the Gateway problem, well there has been no such outcry," Pfeiffer said.

Pfeiffer said he established a specific format in an attempt to deal with liquor violations in a consistent manner. Under the format, an employee selling liquor to a minor is fined $250 for the first offense, $500 for the second offense, and the store involved is closed for a week after the third offense, he said.

However, Pfeiffer's format is "much too lenient," Tarvin said.

"If a store sells liquor to a minor, their license should be suspended for two or three days. It should not be long enough to put the store out of business but it should be long enough to send them a message," he said.

Tarvin said he believes the hearing established that Gateway was in violation of the Dram Shop Act. "The act makes the owner of the store responsible for what goes on in his store even when he's not there," Tarvin said.

But Pfeiffer said he believes every store is "entitled to one mistake." He added that the penalty for a second mistake should be "strict," while the penalty for a third mistake should be even "more strict."

Pfeiffer added that a letter was sent to Gateway owner Jerry Nikitas warning him of the consequences of future violations before Tarvin filed a complaint against the store.

"I had no way of knowing he was even concerned about it at the time I wrote the letter," Pfeiffer said. "If he was dissatisfied he should have talked to me personally."

However, Tarvin said Pfeiffer's letter "could" have been sent as a result of his statement notifying the city attorney and police department that he intended to file a complaint against Gateway.

"I talked to the city attorney and the police department around the same time the letter was sent. I don't know which came first," Tarvin said.

Tarvin added that his complaint was not directed at Gateway in particular, but was intended to address the general problem of underaged drinking in Charleston.

Pfeiffer said he agreed that alcohol abuse is a problem in Charleston. "He and I agree that alcohol is a problem but we don't agree on how to enforce it," Pfeiffer said.

Senate to discuss bylaws

Approval of Faculty Senate bylaws and revisions will be discussed at the senate meeting Tuesday, Richard Goodrick, senate chairman, said.

Because the bylaws "haven't been revised since 1973," the senate will discuss officially finalizing changes, he said.

Some bylaw sections are obsolete, so it is necessary "to clean up the bylaws," he added.

For instance, Goodrick said that although the senate buildings and ground and budget committees no longer exist, the current bylaws officially recognize their existence.

Because the senate has already "streamlined the committees" and their responsibilities, several committees are not needed, he said.

Goodrick said the bylaws will be "legitimized" unless 10 percent of faculty sign a petition for a referendum against bylaw approval.

The senate is scheduled to meet at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville room.

Auditions for 'Good' continue

Auditions for C.P. Taylor's play, "Good," will continue through Tuesday evening, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Playroom of the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

After the auditions, students will be chosen to play about 20 of the parts, Gerald Sullivan, chairman of the theatre arts department, said.

"Good" is a relatively new play about a "good" man getting caught up in the nightmare of the Third Reich, Sullivan said. "It's a holocaust type of show."

"Good" will be performed at 8 p.m. Dec. 2, 3, 5 and 6 with a 2 p.m. matinee performance on Dec. 4.

"Good" will also be Eastern's entry in the American College Theatre Regional Festival which is scheduled for February.

Democratic candidate to speak

Eric Jakobsson, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the 19th Congressional District seat currently held by Dan Crane, R-Danville, will speak Tuesday afternoon in the union.

Eastern political science instructor Andrew McNitt said Jakobsson is an Urbana resident and a professor of biophysics at the University of Illinois and is seeking his party's nomination in the March primary.

"Jakobsson is essentially in favor of a nuclear arms freeze, cutting the federal deficit by cutting waste in government spending and ensuring adequate funding for secondary and higher education," McNitt said.

A member of the American Federation of Teachers, Jakobsson was also named an "excellent instructor" at the U of I in 1982, he added.

Jakobsson will speak at a reception from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Union addition Kansas room. He will meet with members of student government at 5:30 p.m. following the reception, McNitt said.

Baltimore, Philadelphia set lineups for Series opener

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli announced a lineup Monday for the first game of the 1983 World Series that did not include designated hitter Ken Singleton.

"Believe me," Altobelli said, "I did some soul searching, even before we got this far, even while we were playing Chicago."

While the Orioles were beating the Chicago White Sox in four games in the American League Championship Series there was no problem. The designated hitter is a fixture in that league, including the playoffs.

The World Series, which begins Tuesday in Baltimore, is another story. This year, being an odd numbered year, the designated hitter is not used in the World Series, and Altobelli had a decision to make Monday.

"The biggest thing is I didn't want to put Kenny in the outfield and have him do something that would damage his career," Altobelli said.

"He hasn't played out there for two years, and that would be a tall order," he continued.

The only outfield position at which Altobelli had not planned to platoon was right field. But Dan Ford injured his ankle on the final day of the 1983 regular season, then reinjured it in Game One of the playoffs.

So, Altobelli announced a starting lineup, in batting order, of Al Bumbry, center field; Jim Dwyer, right field; Cal Ripken Jr., shortstop; Eddie Murray, first base; John Lowenstein, left field; Rich Dauer, second base; Todd Cruz, third base, and Rick Dempsey, catcher.

Left-hander Scott McGregor, 18-7, will start for Baltimore against Phillies right-hander John Denny, 19-6.

Notre Dame Invitational

Three harriers register best times

by Crystal Schrof

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Despite a "disappointing" 10th-place finish, three Eastern men harriers ran their personal best times last weekend at the prestigious Notre Dame Invitational.

Eastern's Bob Beine, Nick Whiteside and Mike Samuel registered their best races ever on the five-mile course, Eastern assistant coach Tom Akers said.

Beine placed 31st with a 25:12 time, while Whiteside notched 36th place at 25:15. Samuel grabbed 42nd place with a time of 25:23.

"Bob, Nick and Mike have been working hard all along," Akers said. "They have been consistently among our top five men all season."

"They went out on a fast course and did a fine job," Akers continued. "They didn't give up and went for it."

However, Eastern's team placed 10th out of 13 teams with 231 points in the Blue Division. Bowling Green University took top honors with 68 points, while Notre Dame notched second with 77 points.

"I am not discouraged," Akers said. "If we dwell on it too much and let it effect our training and our performances, we are going to have a disappointing season."

"If we want to have success at Intercollegiate, conference and nationals we are going to have to bury this weekend, get mean and go after it," he added. "If we don't do it, it will be tough at con-

U.S. Olympic athletes to undergo drug tests

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—American athletes competing in Olympic trials will undergo mandatory drug testing—and face disqualification from the 1984 Games if they flunk, U.S. Olympic Committee officials said Monday.

In some cases, drug testing crews will show up unannounced at other athletic events besides the Olympic trials, according to F. Don Miller, executive director of the USOC.

"We must clean this program up at once and for all," Miller said Monday at a news conference at the U.S. Olympic headquarters here.

Miller said the new program will feature both voluntary testing, which carries no punishment, and a formal testing, reserved mainly for Olympic trials.

An athlete found to be taking drugs before or during an Olympic trial will be disqualified from representing the United States at the summer of winter games.

"This is a war on drugs, not on our athletes," Miller said, reiterating comments he made earlier to a congressional committee.

Miller said the program is designed to "assist our athletes. The bottom line is that drugs are harmful to the individual. Those who take drugs and win are winning unfairly, and that goes to the heart of morality in sports."

Booters likely to move up in national ranks

by Mike Lynch

Eastern's soccer team, which captured its third straight Governor's Cup title Saturday, is expected to move to third place in the national Division I rankings Tuesday.

The Panthers, 10-0 and currently ranked fourth in the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America, could move ahead of third ranked Indiana University, Eastern head coach Schellas Hyndman said Monday.

"With Indiana tying Akron over the weekend, we're hoping to move up to that third spot," Hyndman said.

The Hoosiers' 1-1 tie with Akron Saturday coupled with the Panthers' pair of weekend shutouts over intrastate rivals Northern Illinois University and Western Illinois University could move Eastern ahead of Indiana.

Consequently, Tuesday's ISAA poll could rank Eastern behind frontrunners Duke University and Clemson University.

"We're not winning any of our games on luck, we're winning by dominating play," Hyndman said. "I just hope later on in the season if we need a little luck it's there," Hyndman said.

The Panthers strengthened their chances of making a move in the polls as they dominated their opponents last weekend in posting a pair of 4-0 victories to claim the Governor's Cup.

Eastern's defense registered its sixth and seventh shutouts of the season, while the offense boosted its scoring margin to 38-3.

"I'm really glad to see the amount of goals we've been scoring and the intensity we've been playing with," Hyndman said.

The Panthers, who captured their previous two Cup titles on penalty kicks, settled the issue this weekend well before the final horn. Eastern outshot Northern Illinois 24-1 on Friday and Western 25-0 in Saturday's title game.

"This is supposed to be one of the most prestigious tournaments in the nation and we just dominated it," Hyndman said.

Tom Isrov, a junior forward, led the Panthers against Northern Illinois on Friday by scoring a goal in each half. Meanwhile, Eastern had little trouble scoring on a Huskie team which almost totally concentrated on defense.

Isrov, who was playing in his first game since returning to the team after a two week absence, replaced Panther leading scorer Neil Swindells, who sat out the tournament with an eye injury.

"Tom adds a different level of play to our team than Neil does," Hyndman said. "Neil is more of a physical player whereas Tom works more on setting up play."

In Saturday's title game, Western, playing at Northern, concentrated on defense. However, Eastern's Leathernecks found little success as Eastern senior forward Damien Kelly notched two goals.
