Students find add-drops hectic...

by Amy Zurawski

Some Eastern students still had trouble adding necessary classes, while others found no difficulty gaining courses to complete spring schedules after three days of add-drop sessions last week.

Senior Sheila McWeeny said all the classes she wanted to add were closed and her plans to graduate in May will have to be changed because she couldn't get the classes she needed.

"I needed just a few specific classes and I couldn't get them even after talking to people in the department," she said.

Junior Phil Lewandowski said he couldn't get the classes he needed during central registration so he tried to add them during add-drops and still had "no luck."

"I changed my major so I needed lower level classes. I couldn't even get them and I'm a junior," he said.

Freshman Mike Pichik said, "The add-drop situation was a messy one. All the classes I needed were closed."

Freshman Jeff Waddell said the most frustrating thing about add-drops was that classes which were open according to the course board, were actually closed when he tried to add them.

"It makes it very hard to get classes when even the supposed open ones are closed," he said.

Junior Rob Bell said he had trouble adding the classes he needed because all the Speech-Communication classes were closed throughout the add-drop period.

"I did end up with a full schedule but I couldn't add the classes that I wanted to. I'll just have to make the best out of the classes that I did get," he said.

Even though all students didn't get the classes they needed, some did end up with a full schedule that they were pleased with.

Freshman Sandra Dacheff said she did get one of the classes she needed, but added that she does not want to go through add-drops again.

"I think it was difficult to add a class because if the board read that the class was closed all day, it never opened again," she noted.

...while lines move quicker than previous semesters

by Amy Zurawski

Although some Eastern students said they believe the lines for textbook distribution and add-drops were moving faster this semester than past semesters, others said they still believe there is room for improvement.

Junior Tracie Lewis said last semester the Union Ballroom was much more congested during add-drop sessions.

"This semester it wasn't as busy. I think that the special alternate card helped calm the situation down a little," she said.

One student said he thought the decrease in people in the add-drop lines was because many students seemed to be getting the classes they needed prior to the add-drop session.

Senior William Cowley said there were less people in the add-drop lines because "people must be getting what they need the first time around."

Director of Registration Mike Taylor agreed that one possible reason that the add-drop lines may be moving quicker this semester was a decrease in the number of students needing to add classes.

He added that a new "Special Alternate Course Card," provided to students during early registration, may be the reason for fewer students attending the add-drop sessions.

The card was provided to students closed out of a course they pre-registered for who also did not receive a primary or secondary alternate, Taylor said.

"Something has to account for the difference in numbers. The card was used by many people and I think that it did help," Taylor said.

"Twice as many people last year at this time had added classes," he noted.

However, some students did not think the add-drop or textbook lines

Spring term enrollment may decline

by Crystal Schrof

Eastern's spring 1984 enrollment is expected to decline from fall 1983's all-time high of 10,028 students, Eastern President Stanley Rives said recently.

Spring 1984 enrollment is projected to be "around 9,400 students," Rives said. "Spring's enrollment should be lower than the fall's."

"We usually expect around 94 percent of our fall enrollment," Rives said. "It usually comes out to be around 9,400."

"So far we have nothing to indicate that the enrollment will be higher or lower than that," he added.

Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs, said official spring 1984 enrollment figures will not be released until Jan. 26.

"We will be somewhere in the ballpark of last year's enrollment," Williams said. Eastern's spring 1983 enrollment was 9,404 students.

Spring enrollment is "usually" lower than fall enrollment because of December graduation, Williams noted.

"We are down from fall because so many graduate and not as many new students enroll in spring," Williams noted.

However, Rives said if spring 1984 enrollment dips below the estimated 9,400 projected enrollment, it could be a result of a new probation policy implemented in the summer 1983.

"If the enrollment figures are lower than 94 percent we may look at the new retention policy as one of the causes," Rives said.

Under the new policy, a student's cumulative grade point average after he has been on probation one term determines the GPA he needs to achieve the following term to demonstrate satisfactory progress.

If, after one term on probation, a student's cumulative GPA is between 1.60 and 1.99, he must obtain a GPA of 2.10 for the next grading period to demonstrate satisfactory progress.

A student achieving a cumulative GPA between 1.00 and 1.59 after a semester on probation must earn a GPA of 2.20 for the next grading period.

Finally, a student whose cumulative GPA after a term on probation falls between 0.01 and 0.09 must receive a GPA of 2.30 for the next grading period.

Beirut casualty status changed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, responding to a protest from Sen. Charles Percy, R. Ill., said Monday that about 30 Marine victims of the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing in Beirut will be listed as battle casualties rather than accidental deaths.

Families of the 30 Marines received death certificates stating "non-battle death due to accidental injury." Percy, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and Illinois neighbor of one of the 30 Marines, objected.

On Monday, Weinberger sent Percy a letter saying the original designation would be reversed because "the fact that they were not killed in an accident is painfully obvious."

"Having died in the service of their country, members of a peacekeeping force, these men were casualties of a battle—while not necessarily active participants in the conflict," Weinberger wrote.

He added that the families will be informed of the change in designation, which does not affect the benefits to which the families of the Marines are entitled.

The issue arose when Percy visited Nancy Smith, a neighbor in Wilmette, Ill., whose son Marine Sgt. John A. Philips, was among the 24 U.S. servicemen killed in the explosion at the Marine compound near Beirut International Airport.

Supreme court refuses appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration effort to cut federal construction costs by changing a Depression-era wage law survived a Supreme Court test today.

The justices, without comment, rejected an appeal by organized labor that the changes undermine protection for workers enacted nearly 50 years ago. The court left intact a ruling that upheld the administration's actions.

A federal appeals court here ruled last July that Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan did not abuse his powers in revising regulations under the 1935 Davis-Bacon Act. The law guarantees to workers on federal construction projects a minimum wage based on locally prevailing rates.

Condominium blaze takes a life

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—An avalanche of debris crashed down after an explosion in three-story condominium set off a fire that roared through the structure in minutes. At least one person was killed and one was believed to be missing today, authorities said.

Residents of upper floors in the condominium's two adjoining brick buildings used sheets and ropes to escape from windows Sunday night. More than a dozen people were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation, cuts and bruises.

Squabble threatens road funds

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Illinois is among the states whose highway construction programs are being jeopardized by a congressional money squabble, officials say.

Mark Gordon, director of finance and administration for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said about $200 million in federal aid to the states is included in legislation stalled on Capitol Hill.

College loan fraud trials begin

QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—The first of 55 people accused of fraudulently obtaining taxpayer-backed college loans goes on trial Tuesday, which officials say could lead to loan crackdowns across Illinois.

David W. Pence of Quincy, one of those charged in an Adams County probe of the Illinois Guaranteed Student Loan Program, has pleaded innocent.

The Adams County grand jury handed down the indictments Nov. 19, charging the 55 western and central Illinois residents with obtaining loans through false pretenses, in violation of a 1983 state law.

The defendants are accused of getting the loans from Quincy's Gem City Savings and Loan, ostensibly to attend John Wood Community College. The charges also allege that the defendants either never enrolled in, attended or completed classes.

Robert Crites, a state Law Enforcement Department investigator, alleges that some loan recipients used the money to pay off debts, or to buy cars, stereos or motorcycles.

Lawyers say they expect the Pence case to go to the jury by Friday. Pence could be sentenced to five years in prison if convicted of a felony charge of state benefits fraud.

Two people, including a Quincy minister already have pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the investigation. Sentencing is set for February.

Other trials are scheduled through March. "We anticipate Quincy is not an isolated pocket," Crites said. "I anticipate once the trials are over in Quincy, we will begin looking at other parts of the state."

Under the guaranteed loan program, a qualified Illinois college student may borrow up to $2,500 a year from a bank at a comparatively low interest rate.

The money in earmarked for tuition, books, fees, housing, and incidental costs and recipients must begin repaying the loan after graduation or if they leave school.

If a student defaults and the bank is unable to collect, taxpayers pick up the tab.

Plan being debated

by Monique Wassenaar

A plan to change the current Student Safety Commission into an all-university task force is currently being discussed, Executive Vice President Meg Hart said.

Hart said she wants to form a task force because there are many overlapping ideas about campus security between various campus groups. She said a combined effort of all interested groups would have greater success than a single committee on the student level.

Hart contacted Housing Director Lou Hencken and Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs, to inform them of her idea and obtained their approval.

The prospective task force would consist of representatives from the Residence Hall Association, the Off-Campus Student Housing Association, the Student Safety Commission, the Campus police, an Eastern administrator and possibly another student, she added.

The commission had been discussing the possibility of obtaining additional lighting on campus, she said. The commission, first formed in September, has been working to provide extra security on campus.

Before the possible formation of a task force, Hart said, the commission plans to present programs from Jan. 23-26 in residence halls.

In addition, Hart said she hopes to schedule a representative from the Coles County Women Against Rape to speak.

Prisoners headed for temporary center

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)— The first batch of state prisoners is headed for a temporary pre-release center in Lincoln, the Illinois Department of Corrections announced Monday.

The agency said 25 inmates nearing the end of their sentences were to be transferred Tuesday to the Lincoln Pre-Release Center. As many as 150 inmates are expected to be housed in the facility over the next few months.

Corrections spokesman Nic Howell said that on the average, the prisoners will have about 30 days left on their sentences.

The pre-release facility, in an old administration building on the grounds of the Lincoln Development Center, will be closed when the new "pre-fab" prison in Lincoln is ready for occupancy— expected in November.

A similar pre-release center is being readied on the grounds of the Jacksonville Mental Health Center. Jacksonville, like Lincoln, is to be the site of a new prison constructed from pre-engineered materials.

In addition, the Corrections Department said about 100 inmates will be housed two-to-a-cell at the Sheridan Correctional Center over the next few weeks.

Summer school to be discussed

Recommendations concerning Eastern's summer school program will be the key item discussed by the Faculty Senate Tuesday, Chairman Richard Goodrick said.

Four recommendations concerning courses offered during the summer session will be presented by John LeDuc, faculty senate vice chairman, Goodrick said.

LeDuc compiled a report last semester documenting the erosion of course offerings and the affect on the student body and faculty, Goodrick said.

One recommendation states that offering courses other than general education classes during the summer would give students more incentive to attend summer school.

In addition, more faculty members would have the chance to earn extra money by teaching during a summer session.

The Faculty Senate will meet at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville room.

American forces need break from 'peacekeeping'

It is long past time we rethink our position in Lebanon.

Our American soldiers have been "peacekeeping" much too long in a land where our presence is met with too hostile of a reception.

If indeed, the presence of the multinational force was to be "peacekeeper," the purpose has been overused and abused.

Hundreds of "peacekeeper's" lives have been lost because of a multinational political move which was intended to be productive in ending conflict between Lebanese factions.

Instead, what has ensued are anti-American views which constantly put our boys under pressure.

With due respect to the member countries of the multinational force which have lost lives in an attempt to "keep peace" in Lebanon, the American costs have proved to be too expensive a price for peace.

The time has come to reconsider our presence in Lebanon. Our guides to justice in the Middle East must change.

Our presence, borne from an original 18-month peacekeeping mission, has thus far brought the return of hundreds of dead, "helpless" American Marines from a mission which seems to be accomplishing little.

Despite beefed up security measures at the defended Lebanese airport and the allowance of American forces to shoot back at aggressors, our fighting force is still the target of anti-American sentiments. Those sentiments could again manifest in an attack comparable to the Oct. 23, 1983 truck-bombing of American quarters at Beirut International Airport.

With dwindling Republican support in an election year, (President Ronald Reagan seems confirmed in his running for a second term) it would be wise for Reagan to make some sort of favorable move concerning the "peacekeeping" force.

With more than two years of dedication to the Lebanon conflict past, it is important for Reagan to woo public support by gaining protection for our forces and a reasonable conclusion to a politically irritating problem.

If the intention of forces in Lebanon is peace to benefit all allies, then such a purpose should be verifiably supported by all interested nations. A United Nations' intervention would not be much to ask of all parties involved.

Social conscience introduced; Norman Flash sparks comment

I met Norman Flash last night.

On a Monday night, attendance of the city bars reaches a lull for the week. An evening in Roc's can be met with the reasonably difficult opportunity to choose a place to sit among the many open seats.

During the two short years which I have spent at legal drinking age, I have learned to drink under a variety of situations. I can maintain at a large party, a small, intimate gathering of friends, or the comfortable introspection of drinking in solitude.

With the lack of present company, or any prospective acquaintances, on a slow Monday night I found myself in the third set of circumstances.

One of my affections for Roc's is that—despite the constant state of change which the atmosphere reflects—the place itself and the clientele never change. The "townies" will invariably perch upon the seats near the door. The students will always file through.

One of the freedoms allowed is for respective groups or solitary drinkers to stick together and not infringe upon the privacy of others.

Soon, Roc's will change its name. And upon practically the eve of the event, my privacy and attitudes were changed upon meeting Norman.

In my solitude, Norman was not exactly an unwelcome guest. In fact, his presence spurred a conscience which we all fail to perceive.

It would not be presumptuous to assume that Norman lives in all of us, although not in the sense that he would support a subjective, moral conscience. He would refuse the "I'm going for mine, Jack. Get the hell out of my way" attitude which seems to override our attitudes.

Instead, Norman's attitude sticks up for a needed social attention without the obsession for personal gain.

Of course, such an attitude cannot socially exist. But the message which traversed the Monday night air at Roc's stirred moral indignation which knew little personal gain over universal advancement.

Norman's unlikable physical presence hindered a mass marketed approach to spreading his message.

Insight out:

Gary Burrows

His spindly, awkward build; greasy, unkept long hair and pock-marked face are hardly acceptable to society which worships the gospel according to the beautiful.

But Norman saw fit to pass his message in a slow personalized fashion. And that was all right by me.

"You look lost in thought," he commented upon sitting down, uninvited.

"Lost, but not forgotten," I answered coldly.

"Hi, my name is Norman Sheppard. . . er. . . Flash," he announced decidedly. I gripped his extended hand and met his detached, petulant handshake.

After waiting several moments for acknowledgment which would not come, he took the conversation in hand.

"You know, I'm not of this world," he announced.

"You must have little problem arranging furniture. This world's rather cluttered," I answered, detached.

"Do you realize how little hope there is in future human survival? Do you know that in the face of current socio-political conflicts that our time left on this little planet looks quite limited?"

"I've had a hunch," I offered.

"But, looking around me, I know that given the spirit of our youth and the human conviction to do what's right, I know we'll someday turn the crises into a brilliant, new future," he reflected brightly.

"I'll sleep better tonight," raising my glass, I drank to such an unbelievable dream.

"And, I know you'll be there to help," he announced. Again I drank.

"You know, you could stand to lose a little weight," he commented.

I punched him in the nose.

Ex-official pleads guilty

by Karen Sisulak

Former Coles County National Bank executive Carl W. McSparin entered a guilty plea on Dec. 28 to two counts of embezzlement and misapplication of bank funds and is currently awaiting sentencing, Assistant U.S. District Attorney David Risley said Monday.

McSparin, formerly president of the Coles County National Bank, has been indicted on seven charges relating to embezzlement, misapplication of bank funds, making bank loans without proper authorization and writing false entries on bank records, Risley said.

"He did plead guilty on Dec. 28 before the trial took place to two counts of embezzlement and misapplication," Risley said. Court records show McSparin had previously entered a not guilty plea during arraignment in early December.

"This guilty plea came as a result of an agreement that at the time of sentencing, McSparin would receive probation on one count and be subject to up to five years of imprisonment," Risley noted.

The plea bargaining agreement could also involve dropping the five other charges brought against McSparin, but dropping those charges will be solely up to the discretion of U.S. District Judge Howard A. Baker, Risley noted.

"The judge is free to impose a maximum sentence of five years on the first count of embezzlement and probation on the second count of misapplication. We are going to argue for two years on the embezzlement charge," Risley said.

McSparin has "admitted to forging signatures to promisory notes which resulted in loans totaling $65,000 which were used to finance projects in which he had a personal interest," Risley said.

In a similar but unrelated case,

Richard G. Berg, former executive vice president of the First National and Trust Company of Tuscola, is facing the same charges as McSparin.

Berg, whose trial is scheduled for Jan. 25, has asked for a pre-trial conference this week to ask for a later trial date, Risley said.

"He has filed a motion to continue the case to collect documents to use in his defense," he said.

The documents are bank records currently filed with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, Risley added. The FBI, in conjunction with the U.S. Comptroller of Currency, conducted the investigation leading to the indictments filed against McSparin and Berg.

Auditions begin for musical play

Auditions for "The Point," a musical children's play, will be conducted Tuesday.

The play, written by Harry Nillson, will be directed by graduate student Cindy Urbaniak in conjunction with Eastern's theater department.

"We are looking for Eastern actors and actresses interested in children's theater. There are seven parts open," Urbaniak noted.

Urbaniak, who is directing the musical for her thesis, said the musical will tour different schools in Charleston and will be performed at Celebration '84.

She added that the musical play will begin touring in early March.

Auditions for "The Point" will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Fine Arts Center Playroom.

the early registration process.
 "If a couple computers were added, they could tell you what classes were closed as they closed and let you choose another one right away to prevent a mad race for all the open classes right before they start," he said.

Freshman Bruce Adams also said he believed that adding computers to Eastern's early registration process "would be a good idea."

"If we could determine what all of our classes would be by a computer without add-drops, it would save a lot of people a lot of time," he said.

However, Taylor said it is not likely that Eastern would ever switch the entire registration process to computers because it is "very expensive."

"I believe, after comparing Eastern's registration process to other schools, that the method we have is as good as any other method," he added.

Adams also suggested that appointments be set up with a counselor for all students that would establish a permanent schedule within a few weeks "so the last minute add-drop hassle could be avoided."

In addition, some students said they believed the textbook lines were moving faster and were not any longer than in past years.

Emrick also suggested that textbook distribution be done by a social security numbers schedule.

"Textbooks should be given out in a fashion similar to the way the add-drop session is arranged. I think this would make less people trying to get books at the same time," he said.

However, Taylor said the textbook library needs to be bigger to reduce the crowds. He added that the distribution can not be conducted any faster because it must be done by hand.

Reagan speech faults Soviet policies...

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, declaring that "1984 is a year of opportunities for peace," challenged the Soviet Union on Monday to revive nuclear arms control talks and said that fears of war are understandable but mistaken.

In an otherwise conciliatory speech, Reagan criticized Soviet violations of arms control agreements and the Kremlin's handling of human rights issues. But he stated that as a result of the military buildup of his first three years in office, "we are safer now."

Reagan's advisers acknowledged that the speech was intended to dispel impressions of the president as "warlike" in the face of concerns that his political standing could be damaged in the election year by a negative image of U.S.-Soviet relations.

The speech was given before an audience of top government officials and members of Congress and delivered by satellite in time for European evening news broadcasts. It opened a busy two-week period for Reagan. In coming days, he will deliver his State of the Union address, announce his political plans, and make two out-of-town trips as his participation in the 1984 presidential campaign picks up.

"I believe 1984 finds the United States in its strongest position in years to establish a constructive and realistic working relationship with the Soviet Union," the president said.

"The opportunity for progress in arms control exists; the Soviet leaders should take the advantage of it," he said.

Meanwhile, a senior administration official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, said the president continues to support research and development for an anti-ballistic missile system and that continuing funding is needed.

Reagan said the United States' military buildup may account for the "strident rhetoric from the Kremlin recently."

"These harsh words have led some to speak of heightened uncertainty and an increased danger of conflict," the president said. "This is understandable, but profoundly mistaken. Look beyond the words, and one fact stands out: America's deterrence is more credible and it is making the world a safer place; safer because now there is less danger that the Soviet leadership will underestimate our strength or question our resolve."

... as Shultz challenges Soviets to talk

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Denying that President Reagan is playing election-year politics with issues of war and peace, Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Monday challenged the Soviet Union to reopen arms talks and expand its proposal for a ban on chemical weapons.

Shultz made his comments after flying to Stockholm for a 35-nation European security conference, which is to start Tuesday. He plans to meet on Wednesday with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union for the first time since September.

President Reagan, who has bitterly castigated the Soviet Union in past speeches, took a conciliatory tone during a foreign policy speech on Monday. Shultz denied it was an election-year ploy.

"The president has run for office quite a few times and he has managed to win," Shultz said. "His stance has been rather anti-Soviet. I don't think he needs them in order to win elections."

Shultz challenged the Soviets and their East European allies to expand their proposal for a ban on chemical weapons in Europe into a worldwide pact that can be policed against cheating.

"It's easy enough to say let's have an area of something or another," Shultz said. "It's another to carry it out."

Gromyko, speaking to reporters on his arrival, said the Soviet delegation "will do everything" to solve the impasse between East and West. But he said resolutions of the differences "depends also on Sweden and other nations" taking part in the conference.

Shultz said he would propose the conference adopt a six-point program to prevent accidental war.

"The United States hopes the conference will achieve measures limiting the dangers of surprise attack and miscalculation in Europe by rendering military activities more open, more observable," he said.

Group helps gays cope

by Rajendra Sinhaa

Eastern's gay students don't have to deal with their problems alone.

Counselor Genie Lenihan said the Counseling Center sponsors a gay support group to help gay students overcome their individual problems such as guilt, isolation and feelings of distrust.

Lenihan explained that most gay students seek counseling because they suffer from a deep sense of guilt and a feeling of being constantly mocked or humiliated by straight people.

Although the exact number of gay students at Eastern is difficult to tabulate, Lenihan said, "around 10 percent of the student population at Eastern is gay."

Because of prevailing social attitudes, these students have to function with absolute anonymity, she said. Often, these students find it difficult to tell family and friends they are gay because of the fear of creating further obstacles in getting along with other people.

"Our primary concern is to provide counseling, ensuring absolute confidentiality, so that these students respond in personally supportive ways with each other," Lenihan said.

Students who have spent a semester or two in the group have shown remarkable improvement in their personality by developing positive attitudes, emotional happiness and higher self-esteem, she noted.

Students interested in joining the gay support group will be interviewed by Lenihan or Bud Sanders, Counseling Center director.

The time, date and place of the meetings are kept secret to protect the anonymity of the group members, she said.

The center does not provide dating or mating services, Lenihan said. "We discourage students from making personal contacts."

A newly organized campus group called Tri Lambda is getting geared to effectively coordinate the function of the gay support group, she added.

Activities such as inviting prominent guest speakers to talk to the group and coordinating hot line services are being planned.

Tipoff causes plane pot bust

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP)— About $500,000 worth of marijuana was confiscated from a plane that made an unscheduled weekend landing at this southeast Illinois town's airport, authorities say.

The Crawford County Sheriff's Department got a tip Saturday that a small private plane had landed and looked suspicious. The plane had run low on fuel.

Offices arrived at the airport and confiscated 600 pounds of marijuana. They arrested one person at the airport and two others at an area motel.

The FBI, which took over the case, said it would not release the names of those arrested until they were arraigned Tuesday in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis. The three were booked at Robinson but were in custody at an undisclosed location elsewhere.

The FBI said it had no further information, and the state Department of Criminal Investigation was closed today.

Ambulance service

Council debates funding

by Kevin McDermott

The Charleston City Council Tuesday will discuss an ambulance funding plan which calls for a substantial increase in the cost of ambulance service to non-Charleston residents.

The plan, proposed by Charleston Ambulance Director Tom Watson, calls for a $100 increase in the charge to individuals outside Charleston who use the ambulance service.

Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said he agrees with the proposal and will probably support it.

"I can't see anything wrong with it," Pfeiffer said Monday, but added that some council members are against the plan.

Concern over ambulance service developed in August when the Coles County Board terminated its annual $25,000 subsidy to Charleston's ambulance service.

In other business, the council will also discuss the possibility of applying to become a member of the Illinois Certified Cities Program.

If Charleston is approved as a Certified City of Illinois, the city's assets will be outlined for out-of-state industries which are coming to Illinois and will be considered as a possible site for those new industries, Pfeiffer said.

Pfeiffer said he believes the council will decide to apply because of the economic potential of the program.

The city council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers.

Doctors place boy in coma to save life after accident

CHICAGO (AP)—A 4-year-old boy who lay in a coma Monday after being trapped for 20 minutes beneath the ice of Lake Michigan has a fair chance for "useful survival," a neurosurgeon says.

"We're hoping to recover a child that is fully functional, but only time will tell," Dr. David McLone said of Jimmy Tontlewicz, who was in critical condition with hypothermia. The child also suffered cardiac arrest after a North Side sledding accident submerged him and his father in the icy water.

Rescuers were unaware of the boy's existence until his father was pulled from the lake and began calling for him.

Doctors placed the youngster in a barbiturate coma—a state of suspended animation induced by phenobarbital—in an effort to reduce blood flow to the brain and avert an expected increase in pressure within the skull, said McLone, chief of neurosurgery at Children's Memorial Hospital.

If pressure inside the skull and vital signs are normal in four or five days, the coma will be reversed and the boy awakened, McLone said. He estimated the risk of permanent brain damage at 50 percent. Extreme cold, which lowered the boy's metabolism and slowed his body's need for oxygen, was credited with helping save the boy from drowning. U.S. Navy research has indicated that abnormally low body temperatures can extend life for potential drowning victims.

The youngster was technically dead — showing no vital signs — when he was pulled from the water, McLone said.

The boy's father was pulling him on a sled, which slipped down an embankment and out onto the ice at about 2:30 p.m., McLone said.

The father, Terrence Tontlewicz, 35, went after his son, but the ice broke, plunging them both into 32-degree water. The elder Tontlewicz was released Monday.

The rescue was accomplished after cross-country skiers saw Tontlewicz and tried to pull him out of the lake with a ski pole. The man was "too cold to hold on," said paramedic Steven Baumgart.

A television film crew from Chicago station WGN then joined the effort. The skiers, police officer, firefighters and newsmen tried in vain to pull Tontlewicz out by forming a human chain.

He finally was snagged with a 50-foot, orange electrical cable normally used for TV lighting.

It wasn't until Tontlewicz was finally pulled from the lake, about 20 minutes after the accident, that he was able to gasp, "My baby's in there, my baby," said WGN cameraman Robin Whitmore, 45.

Fire department scuba divers then found the youngster beneath the ice.

The rescue ruled out dramatic TV footage, but "we had to forget about being news people for a while," said WGN reporter Larry Roderick. "I threw the tape recorder and note pad I was holding into the snowbank and grabbed hold of the cord. I had taken a look and I knew if I didn't do something, he'd die."

"I don't know how I could face myself if I kept filming while a guy was dying in front of me," the 47-year-old Roderick said.

Christmas sales boggle experts

NEW YORK (AP)— There has been a stunning and mysterious development in economic affairs that has a lot of people wondering just what to believe.

Christmas sales, it now appears, weren't anything outstanding after all, measuring about 0.1 percent higher than in November, after seasonal judgements.

This assessment, which comes from the U.S. Department of Commerce, seems to defy the evidence. Masses of shoppers seemed to have thronged the stores, for example, and the storeowners themselves reported that sales were up.

Storeowners have been known to say such things in the past, The purpose being to develop a sense of enthusiasm among shoppers. The shoppers could have been just window shopping.

Wrestlers end losing streak, roll to victories

by Jeff Long

After going winless in its first three dual meets, Eastern's wrestling team bounced back and captured consecutive home dual victories Friday and Saturday at Lantz Gym.

Eastern, 2-2-1, knocked off Northern Illinois University 22-20 Friday night but had to rally to down Central Missouri State University 26-19 Saturday afternoon.

The Panthers continue their road schedule 7:30 p.m. Tuesday against Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

The last time the two teams met, Eastern was soundly beaten 36-10 Dec. 6 at Lantz Gym. However, this time around, Panther head coach Ralph McCausland said his squad is up for the match.

"This weekend definitely picked our team up," McCausland said. "Getting two wins so quickly has really done a lot for us."

The Panthers jumped out to a quick lead Friday against the visiting Huskies by winning the meet's first five matches.

Yet, the highlight of the evening was the 142-pound match pitting Eastern's Bernie Ruettiger and Northern Illinois' Bruce Swierczewski.

Swierczewski entered Friday's action at 20-5, but failed to turn back Ruettiger who rolled to a 5-4 victory.

"Bernie controlled the match all the way," McCausland said. "Swierczewski got three escape points and one point for Bernie stalling, so his points earned were not hard-fought.

"Bernie really needed that match," he continued. "He wrestled very well and to beat a kid like Swierczewski says a lot."

Ruettiger was also victorious Saturday by virtue of a pin. The win made Ruettiger one of five double-winners for the Panthers this weekend and moved his record to 15-6.

Sophomore Chris McFarland (150 pounds) continued to lead all Panther wrestlers by notching two wins to up his record to 16-6.

In addition, Mark Ruettiger (134 pounds), Dan Sanko (177 pounds) and heavyweight Duane Clark were double-winners for the Panthers.

"This weekend felt like sweet revenge for our team," McCausland said. "I hope the momentum and intensity we picked up will stay with us for a long time."

Swim squads place third at Illinois meet

by Crystal Schrof

CHAMPAIGN—Despite some outstanding individual performances, Eastern's men's and women's swimming teams placed third Sunday at the Illini Invitational.

Bradley University captured first place in the men's competition with 881 points, while the host University of Illinois finished second with 743 points.

Eastern's men's squad followed with 695 points and the University of Illinois-Chicago (292) and the Illinois Institute of Technology (134) placed fourth and fifth, respectively.

In the women's competition, Illinois State University took first place with 951 points and the Illini grabbed second place with 860 points.

The Panthers were third with 575 points and Illinois-Chicago collected 404 points to place fourth.

Eastern junior Debbie Kroening set a new school-record in the 1,650-yard freestyle with a time of 18:32.9. Kroening also took third place in the 200-yard butterfly, clocking in at 2:13.2.

Junior Miguel Carrion and Robin Walker led the men's team, placing in two events. Carrion took third in the 200-yard backstroke (2:03.4) and second place in the 400-yard individual medley (2:23.5.)

Walker notched third place in the 200-yard and 500-yard freestyle clocking in at 1:45.7 and 4:47.3, respectively.

Sophomore Steve Burggraaf grabbed third place in the 400-yard individual medley (2:25.9), while junior Greg Freebeck took second place in the 1,650-yard freestyle (16:36.1.)

Women

Collegiate Athletic Conference record to 3-1.

"Defensively, we played well," Hilke said. "Had we been a little more patient offensively, we would have gotten more shots off."

Bauman collected 23 first-half markers to give the visitors a 37-27 halftime advantage, which proved to be all Drake needed Saturday night.

The Panthers scored nine unanswered points behind Collins and Chris Aldridge early in the second half to close within one point (39-38) with 16:25 to play.

Eastern later trimmed a Drake lead to five points with 7:09 left in the game, but Bauman hit from 20 feet out and Kay Riek added a free throw and a bucket to stay ahead 63-53.

"With about 3:00 to go, we really ran out of steam," Hilke said. "We needed to take it to them and we didn't."

Collins, who scored six points in the first half, came alive late in the game to score 12 more and lead the Panthers offensively. Melanie Hatfield also scored in double figures with 10 points.

Turnovers marked the entire game as

Hatfield took four away from Drake.

"Hatfield made a lot of things happen for us out there," Hilke said, "But it wasn't enough."

Castellanos, Techera leave Panther football program

by Mike Lynch

Henry Castellanos and Hector Techera, Eastern's top two returning place kickers have left the Panther football team, head coach Al Molde said Monday.

Castellanos opted to attend school closer to his Lawndale, Calif. home, while Techera was declared academically ineligible and left school, Molde said.

"I'm obviously disappointed, but I can't say I'm surprised by Henry's decision," he said. "He was the kind of player who preferred to be closer to home.

"He's (Castellanos) a great one and it certainly hurts to lose a player of his caliber," Molde continued.

Neither Castellanos nor Techera could be reached for comment Monday.

Castellanos, a junior college transfer, led the Panthers, 9-3, in scoring last season with 63 points and set an Eastern field goal record with 16.

In addition, Castellanos served as the Panthers' top punter compiling a 37.6-yard average in 54 attempts.

Meanwhile, Techera finished the season as the Panthers' sixth leading scorer with 14 points. The Arizona

Western Junior College transfer also replaced an injured Castellanos for two games early in the season.

Molde said there was a period in the fall when Castellanos contemplated leaving Eastern to be closer to home, but eventually stayed to finish the semester.

"I talked to Henry and he indicated that he was planning to enroll at Long Beach State (University of California)," Molde said.

However, Long Beach State head football coach Dave Currey was unavailable Monday to either confirm or deny the report of Castellanos' enrollment.

The departure of Castellanos and Techera leaves Eastern with only one experienced kicker in junior Dave Strauch. Strauch served as the Panthers' place kicker in 1982, but kicked just one field goal attempt last season.

Strauch said Saturday he expects Molde to do "some heavy recruiting for the spring.

Molde said recruiting a quality kicker for the upcoming season has become a major concern for him.

"I would certainly say recruiting a quality kicker is a major priority," he said.

Smelter helps cagers top Valparaiso 58-52

by John Humenik

VALPARAISO, Ind.—Vincent Smelter put his three points worth into Eastern's 58-52 come-from-behind victory over Valparaiso University Saturday night at Hilltop Gym.

The junior guard's rebound basket with 2:22 remaining not only marked his only bucket of the evening, it gave the Panthers a 54-52 advantage they never relinquished.

Eastern, rallying from deficits of as many as eight points, notched its second-straight Association of Mid-Continent Universities win and moved their record to 6-6 overall.

After Smelter sank guard Troy Richardson's missed basket, Valparaiso went to work. However, the hosts ran off over a minute on the clock trying to move its patient offense.

The Crusaders, who went to 1-1 in AMCU play and 6-7 overall, missed a chance to knot the contest with 1:27 left and the Panthers held on to win.

Smelter and Richardson both hit the front end of bonus free throw attempts to move the score to 56-52. After that Richardson added a bucket with 18 seconds left to put the game away.

Valparaiso used a well-balanced scoring attack in the first half to notch a 24-23 advantage at the intermission.

The Crusaders had similar success remaining in front in the final half before the Panthers' game-winning surge.

Valparaiso entered the game with what head coach Tom Smith termed "a troubled team" as standout center John Meyne and guard Rob Hardin were out of the lineup.

Meyne injured his back during a Wednesday practice and Hardin was suspended indefinitely by Smith for "conduct not representative to Valparaiso University."

Sophomore transfer Jon Collins, who tossed in 31 points against Cleveland State Jan. 11, again led the Panther offense with 21 points.

Although Collins was hot, the Panthers still only shot 39 percent from the floor while the host Crusaders tabbed a 51 percent field goal shooting mark.

Mudra a finalist

Corso named to NIU post

by John Humenik and the Associated Press

Former Indiana football coach Lee Corso will be named head coach at Northern Illinois University, according to a televised report aired Monday.

WREX-TV in Rockford reported that NIU would announce the decision at a news conference Tuesday morning. The television station said its information came from three unidentified sources.

In addition, a report published in the Indianapolis Star said Corso "is expected to be named head football coach" at Northern, replacing Bill Mallory, who was recently named head coach at Indiana.

In addition, sources close to the program said early Monday University of Northern Iowa and former Eastern head coach Darrell Mudra was the leading candidate.

Mudra could not be reached for comment, but it was confirmed Monday that the veteran coach interviewed with Northern Illinois officials over the weekend.

Meanwhile, Northern Illinois offensive coordinator Gary Durchik, one of reported three finalists, was eliminated from contention Monday afternoon.

"The coach is a head coach," Athletic Director Robert Brigham told The Northern Star, Northern Illinois' student newspaper.

According to WREX, Corso was selected from a list of 20 applicants by a ten-member screening committee.

"I can't say anything," Corso told the Star. "I'm still here in Bloomington." NIU spokesman Steve Nemeth said he could neither confirm or deny the reports.

Corso was head coach at Indiana from 1973 to 1982, where he compiled a 41-68-2 record. Last season Corso did not coach, but worked as a regional college football commentator for Metro Sports.

Women cagers lose big

by Mike Sengstock

When it came to stopping Drake University Saturday night, Eastern's women's basketball team had enough trouble shutting down All-American center Lorri Bauman.

Even Panther junior forward Toni Collins had a tough time stopping the 6-foot-3 center who tossed in 34 points and lifted Drake to a 70-59 league win over Eastern at Lantz Gym.

"Bauman is just outstanding," Eastern head coach Bobbie Hilke said. "I think it is a bonus that she is a member of the GCAC. I believe she'll make the Kodak All-American team.

"Collins played well against Bauman and one of the best teams in the country," she added.

For the Panthers, the loss snapped their seven-game winning streak and moved their Gateway (See WOMEN, page 15)
