Construction of new annex slated for fall

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Construction on the proposed College of Business annex to Coleman Hall could begin next fall, State Sen. Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman, said Thursday.

Woodyard said he has met with Eastern officials, and although final plans have not been decided, preliminary indications are that they will try to get the $6.2 million project included in the regular fiscal year 1988 budget.

Woodyard said the process of drawing up the budget has already begun. By January, the budget has "become set in concrete," he said.

The budget legislation should be signed by July 1 and the Capital Development Board should release funds to contractors in mid-August, with construction beginning in fall or winter of '87, Woodyard said.

Woodyard said efforts to include the project on the budget will begin after November elections.

He said the project will stand a better chance of passing if it is included in the regular capital development budget instead of an add-on as it has been previously.

"It's going to be a whole lot easier than it has in the past," Woodyard said. The project has "a higher priority (from the IBHE) than it has in the past."

"I cannot believe legislators will allow the situation to continue where business students are spread across seven buildings on campus," Woodyard said.

The addition will allow the College of Business to operate from one building. Currently, most classes are held in Coleman and Blair halls. Students and teachers often have only 10 minutes to travel from one to the other between classes.

He said the fact that preliminary plans have been drawn will also aid funding efforts adding that a lack of plans probably caused funding to be denied last June.

Woodyard said legislators balked at including the addition on a list of Build Illinois projects because $230,000 in Build Illinois planning money allocated to Eastern for the project hadn't been spent yet.

However, by July preliminary plans for building the addition on the north end of the South Quad were revealed to the Council on University Planning and Budgeting.

The preliminary plans created by Rettburg-Gruber architects call for the structure to be built between old Coleman Hall and the Applied Arts and Sciences Building. Bridges will connect the three structures.

Faculty Senate to make selections

By CAROL ROEHM
Staff Writer

The first Faculty Senate meeting of the semester will begin Tuesday with a closed executive session, during which personnel selections for a vice presidential search committee may be discussed, said the senate chair.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

The executive session, which will be closed to the public and was called by Eastern President Stanley Rives, will open the meeting and is scheduled to last about one-half hour, said Mary Wohlrabe, senate chair.

Rives was not available for comment Tuesday on the subject matter that is to be discussed during the executive session, although it will be announced before the meeting ends, Wohlrabe said.

Wohlrabe speculated that the meeting might deal with either personnel or land acquisition matters.

"It won't necessarily be about the vice president of academic affairs (search committee) appointment," Wohlrabe said.

The senate is to nominate four faculty members for a search committee that is being formed to interview candidates and ultimately recommend a new vice president of academic affairs for Eastern. Rives will select two of the nominees to serve on the committee.

The senate's recommendations will be made public at the meeting, Wohlrabe said.

The committee is being formed to search for a replacement for Edgar Schick, who resigned as vice president for academic affairs last month. Schick's resignation becomes effective no later than April 1.

Rives is expected to name the search committee's members this week.

Also on the meeting's agenda is a motion concerning two departmental name changes.

The senate will hear requests to change the names of the speech pathology department and the department of business education and administration office management.

Wohlrabe said she will also be making yearly appointments to the various senate committees at the meeting.

Band jazzes up opening games for Bears and Eastern

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Assistant Verge editor

Eastern's football team and the Chicago Bears shared more than the same score at their respective home openers. They shared the same band.

Eastern's Panther Marching Band took the field Sunday during halftime at Soldier Field of the Bears home opener, a game that ended in the identical 41-31 score of Saturday's Eastern home opener, where the band also performed.

Thomas Brawner, marching band director, said the crowd of about 67,000 seemed to appreciate the performance. "I heard a lot of good comments from the spectators about our halftime show," Brawner said.

The band performed the same show on Sunday that they did at Eastern's Saturday night game. Brawner said there is a big difference between playing at O'Brien Field and playing at Soldier Field.

Brawner said the inserts and hash marks are closer together on the artificial turf than they are on college fields. "We have to make some adjustments in our drills," Brawner said. He also said it is more fun to play for a larger audience in a bigger stadium.

This is the third year Eastern's band has performed at the Bears' home opener. Brawner said that Pat McCaskey, one of the Bears' owners, invites the band to perform at opening day each year.

"We have a good, energetic and enthusiastic band," Brawner said. "That is one of the reasons we get invited to play for the Bears."

He said not many bands could prepare an entire show in the amount of time that Eastern can do it in.

Band members came to school a week early this fall to prepare for last weekend's performances.

Senior Janet Zielke has been in the band for two years. "It takes a lot of time and work to be a resident assistant and a member of the band," Zielke said, "But it's really worth it."

Zielke said the band spends about eight hours a week practicing for upcoming performances.

Zielke traveled to Chicago with the band last year and this year and said that this year's performance went much better.

"It was a sold-out crowd and there seemed to be much more audience reaction to our performance," Zielke said. She also said the attitude of the entire band is much better this year, "which makes for good team spirit."

The band's next performance will be Sept. 20, when the Panthers face Southern Illinois. Brawner said that show will include "Firebird Suite," "Spain," "Triumph" and "Stayin' Alive."

Soviets: Danilooff worked with CIA

MOSCOW—The newspaper Izvestia on Monday accused Nicholas Danilooff of using a journalist's cover to seek out military secrets about Afghanistan and claimed the American reporter worked with an alleged CIA agent in Moscow.

The government newspaper said the imprisoned correspondent for the U.S. News & World Report was charged by a military prosecutor with espionage under a law that imposes penalties ranging from seven years in prison to death.

The article elaborated on accusations already made against Danilooff and expanded the charges against the reporter beyond the scope of the original claim that he received secret documents during what was described as a secret meeting with a Soviet in a Moscow park.

Treatments acceptable—Panel

WASHINGTON—Most new infertility treatments are morally acceptable, but the practice of one woman carrying another's fetus should be restricted, a medical ethics committee said Monday.

In the first major report examining the ethics of new reproductive technology, a committee of doctors, lawyers, and ethicists said practices such as artificial insemination and using donor sperm and eggs producing test tube babies is morally acceptable in most cases.

However, the panel said some other procedures should be classified as experimental and not used routinely until more is known about them. These include using frozen eggs, or ova, and using surrogate mothers to carry someone else's fetus until birth.

Pakistan leader Bhutto released

KARACHI, Pakistan—The government released Benazir Bhutto and hundreds of other opposition leaders Monday who were arrested in a crackdown last month, but warned it would not tolerate further unrest.

Bhutto, released from Landhi Jail outside Karachi after 25 days in detention, said she would not abandon her drive to oust President Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq and force elections in this Moslem country.

Slums raided in Chile searching for leader's would-be assassins

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Security forces on Monday arrested opposition leaders and raided leftist strongholds in slum areas to search for the would-be assassins who ambushed President Augusto Pinochet's motorcade.

Three leading dissidents and three French activist priests were among those said to have been arrested. Five news magazines were banned.

"The government has enough support to do whatever it wants," declared Pinochet, his hand bandaged, as he arrived for work and waved to scores of applauding supporters outside the presidential palace.

The ruling four-man junta, dominated by Pinochet, decreed a 90-day siege throughout Chile after Sunday's rocket and machine gun attack. Five of Pinochet's bodyguards were killed and 11 wounded in the ambush.

Pinochet, a general and the commander of the army, suffered only cuts on his left hand in the ambush on a road in the Maipo Canyon, 18 miles southeast of the capital. He was returning from his weekend home.

It was the first reported attempt on Pinochet's life since he took power in a military coup 11 years ago Thursday.

Neither of the country's two Marxist guerrilla groups claimed responsibility for the attack.

Chile's Roman Catholic bishops and the broad-based moderate opposition movement condemned the assassination attempt.

Soldiers with blackened faces and several tanks surrounded La Victoria and Davila slums before dawn and security police began house-to-house searches, witnesses said. Both shantytowns in southwestern Santiago have strong Marxist political organizations.

Stevenson baffled by return leak

CHICAGO (AP)—Campaign aides to gubernatorial challenger Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday they had "no clear idea" how Gov. James R. Thompson's office obtained a copy of Stevenson's 1985 income tax return.

The document, which indicated Stevenson had an adjusted income of $114,924 last year, was received by the Chicago Tribune in an envelope indicating it came from the governor's office, the newspaper reported Monday.

A Thompson spokesman, James Prescott, said the governor's office had acquired 43 pages of Stevenson's financial records from "friendly sources," but declined to name them. Thompson denied knowing anything about the episode.

Stevenson on Friday released a financial statement indicating he has a net worth of more than $5.1 million, including holdings of stock and real estate in excess of $1 million each.

The statement also included a summary of Stevenson's 1985 federal tax return, but not the actual documents.

Stevenson spokesman Bob Benjamin said the campaign staff was trying to determine how the Republican governor's office obtained the tax return received by the Chicago Tribune.

"We have no clear idea," he said. "There are a number of possibilities. None of them are very savory."

He declined to elaborate.

Benjamin said the Stevenson campaign had earlier released a copy of the tax return to one reporter, John Torre of Tribune Radio Networks. Torre said he had not passed on copies of the document or allowed his copy to be duplicated.

Stevenson has permitted other reporters to examine his tax returns at his campaign headquarters.

RA finds 2 men climbing Old Main

ERIC WEDEKING
Staff writer

Two Naperville men were arrested early Sunday morning for allegedly climbing the west wall of Old Main.

According to campus police reports, Daniel Imburgia, 19, and Eric Kruk, 18, were arrested at 3:15 a.m. and were taken to the Coles County jail Sunday on charges of disorderly conduct and criminal trespass.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said neither of the men were Eastern students.

Pemberton Hall resident assistant Lisa Hikes told police she heard rustling sounds in the ivy of Old Main and observed two white males about 15 feet off the ground on the wall.

Hikes added she thought it was birds at first, but she believed the noise level was too loud for that. She then notified a hall counselor when she observed the two males climbing the walls.

After investigating the call by the hall counselor, campus police found the two males near Old Main, attempting to leave the vicinity.

Kruk was found to have bird feathers and vine leaves on his clothing when apprehended, police reports said.

Imburgia and Kruk posted $1,000 bond each and were released from the Coles County jail. Their preliminary hearing is at 9 a.m. Sept. 18.

Search committee finishes second of five interviews

TERI BROWN
Staff writer

The search committee for the new dean of adult and continuing education finished the second of five interviews for the position Monday.

Alleen Deutsch has been director of continuing education and professional development at Bradley University in Peoria since 1979.

"I like the structure of the continuing education program here," Deutsch said. "From what I understand, you have a very enviable program with the off-campus classes."

Deutsch said she believes that maintenance of credit courses is one of the most important aspects of the continuing education deanship.

"General trends show that continuing education will continue to grow," she said. "But I would also like to see proportional growth in the conference area."

"There isn't any reason to fix things that aren't broken," Deutsch said, "only enhancement of these fine programs."

When asked how she handles credit classes off campus, Deutsch said the dean or department chairman would first come to her and explain what classes they want offered.

"We talk in the preliminary stages about minimum enrollment, tuition rates and the time frame for beginning the class," she said. "It's pretty straightforward as long as the minimum enrollment is met."

Deutsch said the program has to be self-supporting with tuition income paying for overload and overhead expenses.

At Bradley, Deutsch helps continuing education students by coming to the first class meetings with registration materials and textbooks which the students can to buy.

Deutsch said there is also a book available to help off-campus students find where to register, buy books and how to reach instructors.

But Deutsch said that all off-campus programs aren't centered in Peoria.

"We did have a graduate program in Galesburg, but it's not active right now because there weren't enough students," she said. "But now we're looking into a Princeton (Ill.) location."

Deutsch said Bradley now offers two dozen off-campus credit courses, concentrating in engineering and baccalaureates in nursing. She said that 250 to 300 students are enrolled in the university programs offered in the Quad cities, Quincy, the Caterpillar plant in Mossville and the Methodist Medical Center in Peoria.

Although she admits the non-credit courses is what she knows the least about, Deutsch said Bradley offers 40-50 non-credit courses a semester, including 15 workshops or seminars.

"Eastern's conference program under Dr. (Carol) Holden is similar to Bradley because it's still relatively new," Deutsch said. "There is still a lot of room for potential growth."

She said Bradley averages one to two conferences a year. "We're not as successful as we'd like to be," she said. "But next spring we possibly have three conferences."

Senate seeks students for 10 open seats

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

Getting students to become involved has proved to be a problem for student government members and some say a lack of knowledge about what the organization does has caused the situation.

During the summer, only four of the 15 available seats were taken. Summer Senate Speaker Suzanne Allen said she had more problems than usual recruiting students for this year's summer positions.

"That's the summer, though," Allen said, explaining why there were few members.

Last summer, the senate filled its 11 seats.

There are currently 10 available seats on the senate, Senate Speaker Joe O'Mera said.

If the boards are filled with quality people, it would do nothing but help with our programs.

—Mike Madigan
Student body president

Student Body President Mike Madigan said although some students may be apathetic toward student government, apathy has little to do with the situation.

"Apathy a little bit," he said. "It's more of people not knowing how to do it (join student government)."

In addition, there has been "no great push" for student government to advertise open positions, Madigan said, adding that part of the reason is because funds for advertisements are not readily available.

"We need to publicize greater," he added.

However, Madigan said letters have been written to some Eastern department heads asking for students to join student government.

The business, political science, speech communication and journalism departments have been targeted areas, he said.

"If the boards are filled with quality people, it would do nothing but help with our programs," Madigan said.

Financial Vice President Christi Wolfe said students are also needed for the Apportionment Board.

Students wanting to join student government should pick up petitions from the student government office, located in the Union.

Students need to obtain 25 signatures from students in the district they are running for. The petitions are due in the student government office Sept. 15, O'Mera said.

In the area of teacher compensation, Deutsch said there needs to be joint leadership in deciding what the compensation should be. She suggested traveling to conferences or teaching experimental courses that can't be taught on campus.

Deutsch is the second of five candidates interviewed for the position of dean of adult and continuing education. The five were chosen from 80 applicants by the search committee. Each candidate will travel to Eastern to be interviewed by various academic groups such as the Council of Deans, the Faculty Senate, the Council of Academic Affairs and others.

Barbara Richter, search committee chair, said the committee hopes to have its recommendation to Eastern President Rives by Sept. 17. Rives will make the final decision.

The new dean will replace Carol Holden who was director of adult and continuing education for three years. The position was upgraded to a deanship this year.

Open council a necessity for democracy

There is nothing more necessary to democracy than an open government, unshielded from the scrutiny of the press and the public in general. Whether in Washington, D.C., or Charleston, Ill., a government "by the people" has to be a government watched by the people.

Editorial

But the Charleston City Council Thursday took an action that has become frightenly common here lately: The council met in what it calls "executive session"—closed session, in other words.

As far as anyone knows, the council is doing nothing illegal by holding frequent closed sessions after nearly every regular public council meeting.

The Illinois Open Meetings Act—a highly questionable document to begin with—lists a number of subjects which can legally be discussed by a public body during private meetings.

These "closed" subjects range from collective bargaining matters to the acquisition of real estate to lawsuits.

The public body in question is supposed to publicize the specific subject matter before the meeting takes place. No subject but that one is legally allowed to be discussed in the meeting.

But some of the official excuses for closed meetings are extremely general, including the one the council seems most fond of using: "Discussion of administrative responsibilities and duties."

That one is in the book, all right. But our question is, just what does any city council do that isn't an "administrative duty" in one way or another?

That weak description could apply to almost any discussion the council could have about almost any city matter—even a matter the public should be in on.

Considering how much time the council spends in closed session, we find it very hard to believe the discussion is limited solely to what can legally be hashed out in private—there simply aren't that many qualified issues brewing in Charleston.

We're calling on the council members to stop whispering with each other so much and start talking with the people who elected them.

They're supposed to be serving a democracy, and hiding behind one misnamed piece of state legislation doesn't relieve them of that responsibility.

Behind that man's smile lies pain

I feel like I've been violated.

Oh, they told me it was going to hurt. But, they didn't say it was going to hurt that much.

Yeah, yeah I heard the horror stories. Tales of gruesome pain, twisted sadism and miles of soft silver. But I didn't believe them.

Then it happened to me. I had my first cavity filled.

I left for the dentist's office on a bright, sunny Saturday morning. The kind of morning perfect for cartoons. Too bad for me. I was destined for "the chair".

The dentist's office was deceptively furnished. The pleasant plants, comfortable chairs, and mellow music were really nice. Ha, don't buy it. That place is a pain pit waiting for your business.

A bubbly little red-headed dental assistant bounced her way into the reception room to fetch me. More deceit. She may have looked harmless. Wrong. She was an accomplice.

She sat me in a dental chair, strapped a bib around my neck and left me to wait for the dentist. I waited and waited and waited and waited for him to show. I think it was a deliberate ploy to build peak anticipation. But I'm not sure.

And then, he stepped into my life. The dentist.

He was a pleasant looking man (of course). He had a little button with a picture of his smiling family pinned to his well-padded, white-cloaked chest. His gently twinkling eyes beamed at me from behind thick eye glasses. His cheerful brown mustache twitched when he smiled. The man was a cuddly walrus.

I was sucked into the lie of his appearance. I relaxed.

He made small talk while setting out row after row of cruel, gleaming metal instruments. And still I trusted him.

After a few X-rays he decided it was time to fill a cavity. Being a brave misguided trooper, I opted to do without any pain killers. A mistake on my part.

Personal file:

A.L. Landers

Then the drilling started. The sound filled my mouth and filtered through my body. It finally centered and concentrated in my tooth where each minute vibration hurt more than the one before.

The trust was gone. I called for mercy. I wanted the shots.

At least I thought I wanted the shots. Pain took on a new meaning when he pierced my inner mouth with the needle.

Those babies hurt.

A wonderful numbing tingling sensation slowly took over my mouth. The dentist, always one to finish a job, began drilling again.

The sound was still there but the pain was gone. In a way it was worse. I knew I was hurting, but I couldn't feel it. In a sense, it was frustrating. I guess some people are just never satisfied.

You know, looking back, maybe it wasn't so bad. I was a trifle miffed not to get a lollypop at the end. But I suppose it's bad for the dental image to give those things out.

And of course, I was due for a cavity.

Maybe that dentist wasn't so bad. He did have nice chit-chat.

On the other hand, I'm probably just trying to make myself feel better.

I have to go back and get three more filled next Saturday.

UB program waste of student fees

Editor:

The University Board's selection of "Growing Up Catholic" to inaugurate this year's lecture series runs true to their usual poor taste. It offers another good argument against student expenditure of taxpayer money.

Renegade Catholics are a dime a dozen nowadays, only too willing to turn an easy buck by mocking erstwhile religion. In fact, many agnostics long gone from the Catholic faith are finding it helpful to their image to identify themselves as Catholics.

The UB advertises the lecture as "irreverent but affectionate." There is no such thing; what is irreverent is malicious. Let's see an "irreverent but affectionate" mockery of the Jewish Holocaust.

For years Eastern has been known for its anti-Catholic bigotry, but I doubt that more than a handful are up to sitting through two hours of sado-masochist spitefulness.

Twenty years ago more than half of Eastern's students were Catholic, many bright girls from the Chicago suburbs. Not many of them come down here any more. More than a few of those who did come and then left are quite willing now to contribute to the organized efforts of those who would deny any funding for clodhopper bigotry and its sponsors.

Ethical concept greatly different

Editor:

I read the editorial "Protecting your belongings is your concern," which appeared in the September 3 edition of your paper, with a great deal of interest. I agree with your position that students "need to protect their personal belongings against theft." I must confess, however, that your moral value system is obviously much different than mine when you go on to say "the person who steals an article is only slightly worse than the person who did not take the proper steps to protect it."

I view the individual who steals as having acted immorally. On the other hand, I believe the person who, being aware of the necessity to protect their property from those who might steal it and fails to do so is naive. I do not, however, judge them to have acted immorally. According to your logic, the person who ventures across campus at night without an escort and is assaulted is only slightly better than the person committing the assault because they should not have been out at night without an escort.

I look forward to reading some more of your thoughts pertaining to the ethical concept that the victim of a crime is only slightly more moral than the perpetrator.

Students' drug trial has been postponed

CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

The trial of two Eastern students has been continued from their scheduled hearing Monday.

Junior Peter J. Olujic and senior Sandra C. Lopicola were charged with delivery of more than ten but less than 30 grams of cocaine on Aug. 8 in Charleston.

Olujic and Lopicola were both scheduled for preliminary hearings Tuesday but have been continued to Sept. 22 at 9:30 a.m.

Olujic, from Park Ridge, has also been charged on a separate count of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance, which court records identified as diazepam, as well as unlawful delivery of cannabis.

During Olujic's original arrest on Aug. 8 he escaped arresting officers and fled the scene but about an hour later turned himself in at the Charleston Police Station.

Eastern finds rivalry toward athletic strife

DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

In an effort to create a friendly rivalry between Eastern and Western Illinois University, Eastern's student government and an athletic official have decided to create a traveling trophy.

The rivalry is needed because Western receives "a disproportionate of state money" and because Eastern has "an academic rivalry with them" already, Student Body President Michael Madigan said.

"It's a great idea," Athletic Promotions Director Paul Lueken said. The trophy will "rekindle that fire (rivalry)."

Western's Student Body President Martin Green said he believed the trophy was a good idea. "There's a lot of potential there," he said.

"If there is a rivalry going on between Eastern and Western, it is sure to increase the attendance at the games," Martin added. "Our athletic department likes the idea, also."

But the shape the trophy would take has not yet been decided. A contest will be advertised on campus asking students to submit ideas of what the trophy should be to the student government office.

"One soccer team has a golden boot" for their trophy, Madigan cited as an example.

Eastern and Western would split the cost of the trophy, he said.

In addition to establishing a rivalry between the two schools, Madigan said he hopes the trophy would increase attendance at football and basketball games.

The trophy would be passed back and forth between the winning teams at the games, he added.

Greek organization helps chapters

By DONELLE PARDEE
Assistant activities editor

Eastern students who are unfamiliar of the Greek way of life may be unaware of the two legislative bodies that oversee the many fraternities and sororities on campus.

These two groups, the Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils, are made up of representatives from each fraternity and sorority.

The IFC is a service organization for Eastern's fraternities, said Al Greenberg, the council's president. They relay any news to the fraternities that may be a concern for them, he said.

Greenberg said if there are problems or complaints against any of the chapters, they are addressed at IFC meetings. The IFC is there to help the fraternities with anything they need, he added.

The IFC handles rush policies and other projects which involve the fraternities, Greenberg said. He said one policy change this year's was the current dry rush, in which alcohol can no longer be served to prospective new fraternity members at scheduled events.

In order to inform the fraternities of the policy change, the IFC held a seminar to advise each fraternity on how to deal with an all dry rush.

Just as the IFC helps Eastern's fraternities, the main function of the Panhellenic Council is to unify the sororities through programs and service projects, said Deanna Broggi, Panhellenic Council president.

Problems concerning the sororities are brought to Broggi and discussed at the meetings the same way as in the IFC.

The IFC and Panhellenic Council both have executive officers, committee chairpersons and at least one representative from each chapter.

Broggi said the IFC and the Panhellenic Council often work together on projects. For example, they worked on rush booklets this year, which listed and described each sorority and fraternity house. The booklets were given to students interested in pledging with a fraternity or sorority.

ROBB MONTGOMERY / Staff photographer

Alpha Sigma Tau sorority was the overall winner of the all sorority volleyball tournament played on 33 tons of sand and sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity Saturday.

The one major difference between the male and female rushes is that sororities have a more formal approach than the fraternities.

Greenberg said the men can go to any fraternity they want during rush while the sororities have official sign-ups with a fee of $10.

Broggi said she felt the fraternities are becoming more organized in their approach by arranging the IFC bus tour of the fraternity houses, which students had to sign up for in the Union.

Official: University pays high liability rate

By SEAN HOGAN
Staff writer

Eastern is paying one of the highest liability insurance rate in its self-insurance cooperative, said Eastern's risk manager.

"Student enrollment, I suppose," is why Eastern's rate is the second largest contribution among the five Board of Governor's schools, said Jack Sanders, risk manager which is an official who deals with insurance matters. He said contributions are based on student population.

"There is more of a risk of something going wrong," he said. Sanders said he assumes the enrollment for fall 1985 classes is what the BOG (Eastern's governing board) based its $219,632 price tag for Eastern's 1986-87 liability coverage on. Last year's fall enrollment was 10,491, including full- and part-time students.

The policy covers claims up to $1 million for interns of all departments, all university employees, board officials and agents. Sanders said Eastern interns are covered for on-the-job mistakes, but could supplement their insurance through the extra coverage. Interested students can pick up forms at the office of budget and planning in Old Main.

The BOG liability cooperative began coverage in the spring 1986 semester. Eastern paid $125,000 for $1 million coverage, for the spring only.

Sanders said this is money saving alternative to buying coverage through an agent. If the BOG continued with an agent payments for the same coverage would hover at $800,000, Sanders said.

A BOG study concluded that Eastern made $454,000 in payments on only $45,000 in claims during the last 10 years, Sanders said. The BOG's Insurance Program Reserve will keep the collected contributions in bank accounts and draw on them to pay claims.

Schools across the nation are also joining similar cooperatives to avoid rocketing insurance costs.

Western Illinois University, with an enrollment of 11,845 in fall '85, is paying $230,839 for its 1986-87 share. The lowest is Governor's State University at $47,654.

New businesses storm Charleston

Janice Lynn's, 401 Lincoln Ave., which was once known as Ruthie's, stands on the northeast corner of Lincoln Avenue and Fourth Street.

Ruthie's changes name

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

Just like the old saying, "You can't judge a book by its cover," Janice Lynn's, 401 Lincoln Ave., is not the same store as Ruthie's, even though it is in the same location.

Janice Lynn's has replaced Ruthie's and has lower prices and a wider selection, said Jan Dawes, owner and manager of the new store.

Ruthie's was basically a sports clothing store, Dawes said, and now the emphasis has been shifted.

"We are beginning to carry more career clothing, more clothing that will appeal to a wider range of customers," she said.

"We carry lingerie so the girls don't have to go to Mattoon or to Walmart now. It doesn't make any sense for someone to have to go to another store to buy a slip or a bra," she said.

Dawes said, unlike the small range of sizes Ruthie's carried, Janice Lynn's carries sizes for larger women and a larger range of sizes.

"We're trying to make shopping in the store a little more appealing," she said.

Dawes and her husband, Ronald, leased the store as a corporation, taking control on May 1. When they leased the store, they also purchased all the merchandise in the store.

Ruthie's was operated by the Altekruse Co. in Carbondale.

Jan said she had been looking for a business to buy for quite a while before she heard one was opening up at a good location in Charleston.

"We bought it because it was an existing business and because it has the highest traffic count in town. You can't beat that," she said.

Jan said most of the changes she had in mind she has already implemented.

La Roma's heats pizza war utilizing fresh ingredients

By CAM SIMPSON
Staff writer

Students who are searching for a spicy Italian alternative to Eastern's food service can add one more choice to an already long list of Charleston pizza parlors.

La Roma's Pizza, 636 W. Lincoln Ave., opened its doors this week to a "receptive" student population, co-owner Burl Williams said.

The new pizzeria, the 10th to serve the Charleston-Eastern area, will be facing some stiff competition from already established restaurants.

Williams said the competition doesn't bother him, though, because La Roma's offers good service and a very good product.

"Many of the pizza parlors around now use frozen ingredients such as dough and sausage," Williams said. "We use only fresh ingredients and make all our pizzas from scratch each day."

Types of pizza offered by La Roma's include thin crust, deep pan and stuffed.

The new restaurant also has several promotions currently running. With every small or medium pizza purchased, La Roma's offers a free 16-ounce Pepsi. When a large or extra large is ordered, two Pepsis come with the pizza.

Coupons have also been running in The Daily Eastern News offering one dollar off on the purchase of a medium, large or extra large pizza.

La Roma's is part of a larger corporation and has covered two other college towns with restaurants in Champaign and Bloomington.

Eastern's police purchase new squad car

CINDY BEAKE / Staff photographer

The new police cars purchased for the campus police sit parked in the lot outside the campus police station Monday. Eastern purchased the car, a 1986 blue Caprice, for $8,880.25 after trading in an older car. The Caprice had a base price of $12,325.

By ERIC WEDEKING
Staff writer

Running from campus police in speedy cars may become a bit more difficult for wayward drivers this semester.

The campus police have purchased a new squad car that is more powerful than an old one traded-in over the summer, Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said.

Campus Police Officers are now driving a blue 1986 Chevrolet Caprice with features such as a V-6 engine complimented with an automatic overdrive transmission for quick response, Larson said.

The Caprice also has such extras as auto-lock doors, tinted glass, power brakes and steering, a heavy-duty battery, air conditioning, radio, remote-control mirror, and a rear window defogger.

Base price for the Caprice was $12,325.00. Eastern traded in their 1984 Citation with V-6 engine and about 75,000 miles of wear. With the trade-in Eastern purchased the car for a total $8,880.25, Larson said.

Police re-installed the lights from the old squad car onto the top of the new Caprice which is a four door sedan body style.

According to Larson, the university likes to trade in their police car every two years or when the car accumulates about 80,000 miles.

Buying the new car was handled by Eastern's purchasing office in the administration and finance department, Larson said. Bids were taken from local dealers. A first bid fell through and after a short wait, a second was accepted, Larson said.

Counseling Center extends aid for students

Alcoholics Anonymous offers assistance for Eastern alcoholics

By DONELLE PARDEE
Assistant activities editor

An Alcoholics Anonymous branch will be started on Eastern's campus with a little help from the Counseling Center and a transfer student who is a current AA member.

Where and when the meetings will take place has not been determined, said Marjorie Hanft-Maytone, a new counselor at the center.

However, she said the meetings will probably be take place on Monday or Wednesday nights in the Union.

The student organizer, who because of AA bylaws cannot be identified, will be called Jane in this story.

Because her name cannot be revealed, Maytone said students who want to join AA should contact the Counseling Center.

Maytone said since she herself is not a recovering alcoholic she can only inform students how to reach Jane.

Jane said she got the idea to start AA meetings on campus from a university in Minnesota where she spent her freshman year.

"They (the university) had a lot of AA meetings on campus," she said. "There were also meetings off campus, but since I didn't have a car I couldn't get off campus."

Jane said with AA on campus it's easier for students to meet people and make friends than if the meetings were off campus, she said.

Another advantage of having AA on campus is that members receive support from their peers, which in this case are other students, Jane added.

Jane said she hopes the campus AA meetings become permanent. "It should help new students who either need help or are already receiving help."

Jane said she believed Eastern was party-orientated and there is a need for AA on campus. This way there is a place for people to go if they need and want help, she added.

The idea of AA is to help members get away from using alcohol. "They (AA) will also set up meeting schedules and arrange for detoxication if it is necessary," Jane said.

"AA is a fellowship of men and women who share the desire to stop drinking," she said. "It's a self-help program."

AA is not affiliated with anyone, and does not accept donations.

AA was founded by two men known as Dr. Bob and Bill. They were both alcoholics who needed support to stay sober.

She said they helped each other by talking about their reasons for drinking. "They found that helping others stop drinking can keep their sobriety."

The only requirements needed to join AA is the desire to stop drinking and the realization that it is a lifetime commitment, Jane said.

Once a person becomes an AA member, he is paired up with a sponsor. Jane said the sponsor is someone who has had a year of sobriety and acts as somewhat of a "best friend."

He is there to help out, to talk to and to guide the new member along. When a member gets the urge to drink he can call his sponsor and they will talk until the urge has been defeated.

Jane said sponsors are just a part of the help available. There are also meetings where members discuss why people drink.

The meetings deal with the problems that cause people to drink, how to deal with those problems and how to cope without the alcohol, Jane said.

One reason members have to learn to cope with today's problems is that the emotional level of the alcoholic remains the same even after he stops drinking.

For example, if a person started to drink when he was 16 years old he will have the emotional level of a 16-year-old when he stops drinking.

Once in AA, a member is given a list of 12 steps called the "Program For Living." The list helps a person to admit that alcohol is controlling their lives.

Jane said many people believe AA is religious because in the "Program For Living" it is mentioned about relying on a higher power to help give up alcohol.

Sooners get AP's top bid

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma remained a runaway leader Monday in the Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll while Miami, Fla., outdied Michigan for second place, setting up a possible shootout between No. 1 and No. 2 later this month.

Oklahoma's impressive 38-3 drubbing of fourth-ranked UCLA earned the Sooners 55 of 59 first-place votes and 1,175 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of 59 sports writers and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, Miami upped its record to 2-0 by defeating No. 13 Florida 23-15. The Hurricanes received one first-place to second. Oklahoma visits Miami on Sept. 27 in an attempt to avenge the only loss the Sooners suffered en route to the 1985 national championships.

Michigan, which opens its season Saturday at Notre Dame, slipped from season place to third with one first-place vote and 1,026 points.

UCLA's embarrassment at the hands of Oklahoma dropped the Bruins from fourth place to 16th. Alabama, a 42-10 winner over Vanderbilt, moved up from fifth to fourth with 986 points.

Saluki out for season

CARBONDALE (AP)—Southern Illinois University's starting quarterback, Kevin Brown, will be sidelined for the rest of the season because of a broken collarbone, football Coach Ray Dorr said Monday.

The sophomore starter from Galveston, Ind., was injured Saturday in the fourth quarter of the Salukis' 24-17 victory over Austin Peay State when he was tackled from behind and landed on his shoulder, Dorr said.

Brown, a 6-foot-3, 207-pounder, will have only two years of eligibility left because he was redshirted due to an injury once before, the coach said.

As a freshman, Brown passed for 1,043 yards including nine touchdowns. He completed eight of 19 passes for 84 yards in Saturday's game and had gone 12-for-23, including one touchdown, in the Saluki's 22-7 loss to Arkansas State a week earlier.

Brown will be replaced as starting quarterback by Pat King, a 6-foot-3, 190-pound junior from Pittsburgh, Dorr said.

The loss of Brown came two weeks after Southern Illinois lost the services of running back Byron Mitchell, last season's leading rusher in the Gateway Conference, who injured his right knee in practice.

"It's really somewhat annoying, because we don't have that much depth," Dorr said of the injuries. "I really feel our defense will right now defense is our strength."

Sanderson may relieve next year

CHICAGO (AP)—Scott Sanderson's 2 2-3 inning of one-hit relief Monday may have earned the Chicago Cubs right-hander a part-time assignment in the bullpen.

Sanderson, making only his second appearance as a reliever this season, held Philadelphia in check to help the Cubs score a 7-4 victory over the Phillies. Lee Smith pitched the final inning to collect his 26th save.

Sanderson had relieved starter Ed Lynch, 5-4, with one out in the sixth after Glenn Wilson and Juan Samuel had singled. But, Sanderson, who pitched 1 1-3 perfect innings of relief in Cincinnati last Saturday, struck out John Russell and got Steve Jeltz on a fly ball.

"I've decided to give Scott a chance at middle relief after a not too good performance last week and from where I sit, he's done an outstanding job," said Cub manager Gene Michael.

"Not only do I think I'm going to give him more work the rest of the year, but I'm toying with the idea of letting him start next year and letting him relieve in key situations."

While Leon Durham's three-run homer and Keith Moreland's two RBI sparked the Cubs to victory, "I't was watching my new rookie, Rafael Palmeiro, handle the bat that made me feel good," Michael said.

Palmeiro, in his major-league debut after driving in 95 runs in Class AA, got his first major-league hit in the eighth, driving in Durham.

"I feel quite comfortable up here. I feel there's very little difference because up here, let's face it, the pitchers can't hide the ball."

Bears' McMahon sidelined

LAKE FOREST (AP)—Quarterback Jim McMahon will be lost to the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears for at least three weeks because of a shoulder injury.

McMahon, the team's "free spirit," suffered the injury in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 41-31 opening victory over the Cleveland Browns.

"It's a second-degree separation in the right shoulder," said trainer Fred Caito. "He did not dislocate it. He will miss about three weeks."

Caito said X-rays were negative and that McMahon had movement of the arm.

"At the end of this week he will begin to work with weights and in 10 to 14 days he will do some throwing," said Caito. "There was no damage to the rotator cuff. It is tender and sore and we will treat it with care."

Caito said that a first-degree shoulder injury is mild and takes about a week to heal. A second-degree injury is pain and swelling and takes three weeks and a third-degree injury is a severe separation that can take six weeks.

Coach Mike Ditka said Mike Tomczak, a second-year quarterback out of Ohio State, will start Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"Three weeks is optimistic," said Ditka of the McMahon injury. "If he can pop it (the ball) in three weeks, he'll be back in there."

"I'm disappointed for Jim's sake, it's not a good situation for us," said Ditka. "Hopefully, we're not a team that depends on one man that much. But so much revolves around the quarterback."

"Jim is not injury prone, it's just crazy things happen to him."

McMahon, a first-round draft choice out of Brigham Young University in 1982, has had a history of injuries. But in games that he started, the Bears have a 27-4 record.

McMahon was in camp early Monday morning but left for New York to appear on a talk show Monday night and was not available for comment.

"He said 'Let's get on with the treatment, get well and get back to work' when he learned of the situation," said Caito.

Caito said McMahon's arm would be in a sling for several days for comfort and that he would receive anti-inflammatory medication.

McMahon was injured when Cleveland defensive end Reggie Camp fell on him. He remained in the game for two more plays before taking himself out.

"Why does all this have to happen to me?" he asked after the game.

Last year he missed three games with shoulder tendinitis. In 1984, he missed seven games. He suffered a hairline fracture of the right hand in the second game."

Harriers Scheffler, Kitchel prove hard work pays off

by HARRELL KERKHOFF
Staff writer

Even though it's true that experience pays off in the world of athletics, two of Eastern's men's cross country runners have proven that experience can be replaced by hard work and perseverance.

Junior Dan Scheffler and freshman Bill Kitchel showed just how much those traits did for them after running in their first cross country meet for the Panthers in the season-opening 16th Annual Alumni Open, Aug. 30.

Scheffler won the open with a time of 20:59. Kitchel, a 22-year-old Navy veteran, finished fifth just seven seconds behind Scheffler with a time of 21:06.

Despite both doing well in their first collegiate meet ever, the similarities between the two runners and their experiences that led them to Eastern ends there.

After participating in cross country and graduating from Wheaton-North High School, Scheffler enrolled at North Central College at Naperville and was to run cross country there, but suffered a knee injury and was out for the entire season.

He then decided to enroll at Eastern last year because of Eastern's "strong pre-engineering program," and to also run cross country for the Panthers. Bad luck, however, had followed him and he was unable to compete because of his troubled injured knee and an injured Achilles' tendon.

This season, for the first time in his collegiate career, Scheffler is healthy and according to Panther assistant coach Tom Akers has three years of eligibility left in cross country if he chooses to use it.

Scheffler also plans to be on Eastern's track team this year, possibly running in the 5,000- and 10,000-meter runs.

The road to Eastern was a much longer one for Kitchel. After graduating from Homewood-Flossmoor High School where he participated in track, Kitchel enlisted in the Navy for three years where he worked at a naval hospital in Oakland, Calif.

While in the Navy, Kitchel mainly played tennis and during his last six months of duty was on a Navy tennis team.

Kitchel got interested in running again about a year and half ago and started entering 5-and 10K-road races.

After his Navy stint was over, Kitchel wanted to continue his education where he could also run cross country. After some looking around, he found Eastern.

"A friend of mine called the coaching staff and told them about me. They (head track and cross country coach Neil Moore and coach Akers) offered me a partial scholarship so I decided to come here," Kitchel said.

Kitchel is majoring in elementary education at Eastern.

As far as their recent success in the Alumni Open is concerned, Akers said he is more surprised by the performance of Scheffler than of Kitchel, mainly because of Scheffler's past injuries.

"We didn't know what to expect from Dan this season. Sometimes after a long-lasting injury, a runner tends not to come back as strong as he once was," Akers said adding that Scheffler has definitely exceeded what was expected of him.

"It just goes to show what a little hard work can do over the summer," Akers said.

We have good team unity here. I feel we'll all come together and run well.

As far as Kitchel is concerned, Akers said that being a 22-year-old freshman is definitely an advantage for him.

"Distance runners don't usually reach their peak until about 27 years of age, so he should definitely help us in the years to come," Akers said. "Coming in as a 22-year-old freshman gives him three more years to mature and build up his strength as a runner."

Both runners seem pleased with their performances in the Alumni Open and both expressed hope for the upcoming cross country season.

"I was really surprised," Scheffler said about his Alumni Open win. "I am real happy with the way everything is going so far."

Scheffler also believes the Panthers have a shot at being a very good cross country team.

"We have good team unity here. I feel we'll all come together and run well," Scheffler said.

Kitchel also seemed happy with his running in the open but was a bit disappointed that he did not win.

"I led throughout most of the race but I didn't push it as much as I should have," Kitchel said.

Kitchel attributes his recent running success to the road races he ran over the summer and lifting weights.

Panthers face familiar battle due to injuries

Sportscene:

Dan Verdun

Inconsistency.

It's a term well-known to Eastern football coach Al Molde. It's a problem the Panthers have battled for the past two seasons, and they're threatening to make it three.

Following a stumbling offensive performance in Eastern's opening-season loss at Illinois State, the Panther defense ran into its problems in Saturday's home opener with Northeast Missouri by surrendering 31 points and 531 yards in total offense.

"I thought we had a pretty good first quarter both offensively and defensively," Molde said of the NEMO game.

"But once the second quarter got here, it was just Jekyll and Hyde. It seems like we play great for one part of the game and then we just fall apart."

Two games into the season, the echoes of pre-season hype and optimism are quickly being replaced by aching muscles and next week's game like a cold slap in the face prior to an eight o'clock class.

"It's incredible, I couldn't believe what was happening out there," Molde said in reference to the ability of NEMO quarterback Matt Heidman to not only get off passes but to also have them completed in the face of pressure by the Panther pass rush.

"It's like we're snake-bitten out there," Molde said shaking his head in his office following the game.

Snake-bitten or not, Eastern is facing a problem of youth and inexperience, particularly in the defensive secondary.

"We're going to have to do a lot better," Molde said. "We played like a young football team out there tonight in a lot of respects. We made a lot of mistakes."

"Our secondary is young. About the only guy back there who is a senior is Greg Rhea," Molde said.

Yet, defense isn't the only area of Panther inconsistency. Despite putting 41 points on the scoreboard against Division-II Northeast Missouri, the highly-touted "Eastern Airlines" offense has seen its share of terrorism this season.

The Panthers have played their share of "20-to-20" football this year. Potential touchdown drives have not only stalled into field-goal attempts, but been plagued by turnovers and penalties.

Eastern has lived and died by the big play this season. Even quarterback Sean Payton—generally brimming with confidence and acclamation—admitted the Panthers' biggest opponent is not an intimidating pass rush or a high-powered offensive foe, but rather themselves.

"When we were stopped, it was because we stopped ourselves," Payton said.

Speedy wide receiver Roy Banks added, "It's a lack of concentration. We have to concentrate more. The more we concentrate, the less mistakes."

An easy solution right? It's just like following step-by-step directions to putting a kid's bike or swing set together.

But while Eastern strives to put things together, the season rolls onward toward week three and a road date at Northern Michigan—not exactly a brisk walk across the street.

Yet, it is there in the far-reaching territory of Marquette, Mich. that Eastern's destiny could be determined. For this week's coming game could well set the tone for the rest of the Panthers' season.

The best is yet to come.

Or is it?

Only time will tell. But that time could be this Saturday on a field in Marquette, Mich.

Pitts shelved by ankle injury

Panther back cops weekly Gateway award

Eastern running back DuWayne Pitts received both good and bad news Monday.

The good news is that the Panther running back was selected as the Gateway Conference's Offensive Player of the Week. Lineman John Kropke of Illinois State was picked as the Defensive Player of the Week.

The bad news is that Pitts is likely to miss two to three weeks due to an injury sustained in Saturday night's home opener at O'Brien Stadium.

Pitts, who rushed for 159 yards on 24 carries in Eastern's 41-31 win over Northeast Missouri, suffered a sprain to both his left foot and ankle, according to team doctor Jerry Heath.

"He's probably going to miss the next two-to-three weeks," Heath said Monday afternoon. "The injury appears to be more in the ankle (than in the foot)."

The Panthers will obviously miss Pitts, their leading rusher and receiver from a year ago, in their lineup. Consequently, sophomore James Marable, who scored three touchdowns and rushed for 40 yards Saturday, will likely replace Pitts in Eastern's starting lineup.

If there is a bright side to Pitts' injury, it is that it comes at a time when the Panthers will have an open date in their schedule Sept. 27 thus taking off some of the pressure for him to return to the lineup.

However, his sidelining could play havoc with Eastern's attempt to utilize the two-back set to take some of the pressure off the Panthers' passing game.

"It hurts; it's painful," Pitts said. "I hope to be back as soon as possible."

Heath also said that cornerback Daryl Holcombe and free safety Dave Whitehead sustained minor injuries against Northeast Missouri. Both however, will be available for Saturday's game at Northern Michigan.

Free safety Scott Johnson, who suffered a concussion in the Panther home opener while covering a kickoff, is also listed as available for playing time by Heath.

Spikers meet Illini in home opener

By JOHN STROUD

Eastern's volleyball team will have more than enough to handle in what is likely to be the toughest home opener the Panthers have ever had.

Ninth-ranked (last week's poll) Illinois will take the short trip to Charleston Tuesday for a 7 p.m. match against Eastern at Lantz Gym.

The 6-0 Illini are expected to move up in this week's poll after five teams ahead of them lost over the weekend. "Maybe even into the top five," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said.

Ralston knows the Illini won't be coming to Panther country for a mere pow wow.

"The biggest thing for us to do is going to be stopping Mary Eggers," she said.

The powerful middle hitter led the Big Ten in hitting and was selected as the outstanding newcomer to the conference as a freshman last season.

Illinois defeated Eastern twice last year; once on the road and the second time at home. Ralston said that the Panthers were able to control Eggers in the home contest.

"We were able to stop her in the second match last year, because we concentrated on the middle," Ralston said. "Then they beat us on the outside."

"So we are going to need a little more concentrated efforts in every position."

The Panthers enter their home opener 2-6 after taking third in the University of San Diego Classic to wind up a trip to California over the weekend. But they are going to have to play smart to be successful against a nationally ranked team, Ralston said.

"Overall, we still have to be a little bit smarter at critical points in the matches; especially when the score gets into double digits. Those are the crucial times."

"And we can't let them run more than two or three points in a row," Ralston added. "We need to stay in the game with them."

Illinois returns five of six starters from last season including sophomore setter Disa Johnson, a high school teammate of Panther sophomores Laura Bruce and Gianna Galanti.

"She is probably the single most important player for Illinois," Ralston said. "But there is no one you can overlook. They aren't weak at any position—except possibly in depth."

Senior Maura LeFevour and Galanti currently lead the team in hitting with 65 and 64 kills respectively. LeFevour is averaging 2.32 kills per game while Galanti adds 2.29 kills.

Freshman Donna Sicher leads Eastern in assists with 123 (4.29 per game) while junior Jeanne Padon has 115 (4.11).

"The caliber of competition they (Illinois) play is higher," Ralston added. "But the experience we gain from the weekend should really help."
