High winds rip through Charleston

Compiled from staff reports

Although 50 mph winds caused extensive damage in Charleston Wednesday night, the only incidents reported to Campus Police were the loss of a parking sticker attached to a smashed car window and a broken window at Lantz gym.

Power outage was reported in most of the city according to a spokesman for Central Illinois Public Service. A complete damage report was not available Wednesday night because of the need to restore power.

However, trees, power, phone and cable lines were reported as down as the storm passed through the area.

A tree fell across the parked pickup truck of Charleston resident Gary Marquis, 1223 N. Third St. "I thought that thing would never come up," Marquis said of the fallen maple. Initial inspections of the Ford pickup showed no damage.

Branches of the tree also came to rest on the roof of the Golden Comb, 1205 N. Third St. Other than striking power lines, the tree caused no other visible damage to the tanning salon.

Several Eastern students in the area witnessed the uprooting. Junior Trish McGinley, running to her Third Street residence to close windows, said she was within 10 feet of the tree as it started to fall. "It was scary, really scary," McGinley said of the loud noises and falling branches.

Lakeland student Penny Hitch and her roommates, Allison Turner and Kim Pierce, both Eastern students, witnessed the uprooting of the tree from their house directly across the street from the site.

Hitch said she had just returned from Mattoon when the storm began to roll in to Charleston. "The sky was black and began cracking just as I came into Charleston," she said. "I had just shut my door and ran up on the porch when I heard the loud crack."

Turner and Pierce had been sitting in their living room looking out the porch window at the time the wind swept up, uprooting the tree.

"It was real dark and it was raining sheets," said Pierce. "We could barely even see out the window."

Turner said the lights in the house blinked several times, but "they never went off for good."

Hitch noted she wasn't sure if the cracking noise was the sidewalk or lightning striking the tree, but she thought the uprooting was caused by the high winds that hit just as she entered the house.

She said she wanted to run across the street and warn the neighbors of their fallen tree, but was worried of "getting fried."

Add/drops cause usual long wait for classes

By GRETCHEN IVES
Staff writer

As long lines of students waited throughout the day Wednesday in front of the Union Ballroom—waiting, hoping and praying that the class they had to have would not be full.

Although the add/drop process was not scheduled to begin until 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Union Ballroom, many students took it upon themselves to show up as early as 7:30 a.m.

"This line kind of stinks," said junior Mike Gummershimer, an accounting major, who had been standing in line since 7:30 a.m. "There should be a better way of doing this—like juniors or seniors going first."

Registration officials would not allow students waiting in the line admittance to add/drops until their scheduled time, which corresponds with the last digit of a social security number.

However, the long line may have been unnecessary. "I think it is foolish to stand in line," said Director of Registration Mike Taylor.

"People shouldn't stand in line, because they won't get in ahead of schedule. Those standing in line are just creating their own problems," Taylor added.

Taylor said he had no estimates of the number of students who went through add/drops Wednesday.

"We don't keep count of the actual number of people who go through add/drops, but I think it has been a little lighter" than last year, Taylor said.

Students who did go through add/drops may have noticed the absence of boards listing closed classes which had been used in years past.

Many students stood in lengthy lines inside the Ballroom, only to find out the class they wanted to add was closed.

"In the past, if a class was closed, it was closed all day because drops (cards) were taken at McAfee," Taylor said. "Now with classes being added and dropped simultaneously there is no use for the boards because a class is not closed for a long time."

Eastern's Faculty Senate discussed the inception of the new system last fall, Taylor said.

"The Faculty Senate preferred this system because it frees up classes faster. It is easier for the registration office because it doesn't have to work overtime to cross off all the drops from all the class rosters," Taylor said.

"From the student's standpoint, I really don't know which system is best," Taylor added.

"This new system does free up seats faster if students stand in line to drop classes. But it will become a disadvantage to those students needing classes if a large number of students refuse to stand in line to drop a class," he said.

Scheduling conflicts stir reactions from staff, students

By MA TT HORTENSTINE
Staff writer

Student and staff reaction to scheduling difficulties varied widely across campus Wednesday as students struggled to develop acceptable schedules for this semester.

Freshman Amy Rund was disgusted with the outcome of her schedule and the process that she had to work through.

"I hated it. I think it should be first come, first served," Rund said.

While she went through pre-registration and orientation, she was dropped from 16 to 12 hours, and some of those courses were not her original choices, Rund added.

On the other hand, Robb Frost, a sophomore transfer majoring in zoology, said he had no problem getting his courses.

"I got every course I wanted and every section I wanted too," Frost said, "I didn't even have to mess with add/drops."

Junior elementary education major Marcie Wright had to drop two courses.

"I spent about four hours in add/drops today, but it is about the same as last year," Wright said. She added this year is no different for her than any other year.

"I think this whole system is a pain in the neck," Wright added.

Cal Campbell, director of the academic assistance center, was generally pleased with the situation.

"Dean Laible and Vice President Kindrick have been working closely and have been able to provide the bulk of classes that we need," he said.

"We seem to be in fairly good shape," Campbell said. "I don't know how it was done at the higher levels," Campbell added.

Some departments felt the impact of budgetary belt tightening more so than others.

The psychology department was hit hard by the budget reduction.

"In our department, we eliminated one full time person (because of departmental budget cuts) and we've been full-up since yesterday," said psychology instructor John Rearden.

Because of the hiring freeze, one full-time position was not filled; however, the department was able to hire a person for a temporary position, said Dr. Carol Helwig, an elementary education instructor.

"We have seven sections now and for what we are doing, we need more," said Helwig.

Jon Laible, dean of the college of arts and sciences, stated that it is difficult to point to a single cause for the current difficulties.

Because of a higher rate of pre-registered students and a new add/drop system, the percentage of students has increased from last year, Laible explained.

Missing CIA cables under Walsh's scrutiny, government official says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chief of the CIA's clandestine service told Congress that Iran-Contra independent counsel Lawrence Walsh is probing the mystery of missing CIA cables alerting the spy agency in late 1985 that U.S.-made missiles were being shipped to Iran, according to testimony released Wednesday.

Clair George, the CIA's deputy director for operations, raised the possibility the cables could have been destroyed in a cover-up, but he discounted the likelihood.

George's private testimony on Aug. 5 and 6 before the congressional Iran-Contra committees was distributed Wednesday, although some sensitive portions remain classified and were blacked out.

In addition to his comments on the missing cables, George also: •Testified that the White House and the late CIA Director William J. Casey ignored his strong complaints that unsavory and untrustworthy people were helping run what George viewed as a total "arms for hostages deal" with Iran.

•Suggested that Lt. Col. Oliver North's engaging personality won him friends at the CIA, but a tendency toward exaggeration and melodrama kept even those who liked him skeptical about things he told them. Still, he said, North had endeared himself to Casey, in part because he was "action-oriented" and reminded Casey of his own exploits during World War II with the Office of Strategic Service, the military precursor to the CIA.

•Declared that the North-directed diversion of arms-sales profits to aid the Contras was something the CIA could not properly be involved in.

"You cannot take United weapons and just go out and use them for a profit and use profits as you see fit," he said. "That's the gospel."

In another development, the Republican Party's effort to capitalize on North's popularity has drawn a rebuke from Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, the senior member of the Senate Iran-Contra committee.

"If you're like me, you're proud of Oliver North," said a fund-raising letter signed by party chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr.

Rudman, however, said in a letter to Fahrenkopf that he had participated in deceiving the president and other officials. "these are not actions that Lincoln, Eisenhower or Reagan."

Landers holds cancer column

CHICAGO—Advice columnist Ann Landers pulled what she had said "may be the most important column I have ever written" when she was advised her report on a prostrate cancer treatment needed more research, an assistant said Wednesday.

The column was postponed temporarily so she could do more research," said Laurie Solomon, one of the nationally syndicated columnist's assistants in Chicago.

Eppie Lederer, who writes the Ann Landers column, had reported the treatment had a "remarkable success rate."

Solomon and President Richard Newcombe of Creators Syndicate Inc., which distributes the column two or three weeks in advance, said they didn't know who suggested more research was needed. But they speculated one of the columnist's medical advisers might have done so after reviewing an advance copy.

The column, pulled earlier this week after it was distributed for publication Sunday in 1,200 newspapers, described a prostate cancer treatment developed by a Canadian doctor.

Diarrhea affects dozens in state

OQUAWKA, Ill.—Experts from the federal Centers for Disease Control tried Wednesday to find the cause of an outbreak of chronic diarrhea that has afflicted dozens of people in three western Illinois counties.

"We do have an outbreak and it seems to be a type the doctors are unable to find a cause for or any treatment that's effective," said Joan Ray, administrator of the Henderson County Health Department.

"We now have more than 50 cases and more calls are pouring in. It's more widespread than we originally thought."

Federal experts arrived Tuesday and were interviewing afflicted county residents. Ray said they also were checking water supplies, dairy products and stool samples in an effort to find the cause of the outbreak.

"We began with an investigation in Henderson County, but now we're getting calls from Henry County and Rock Island," she said.

Health officials have gone on local television to warn of the outbreak and to ask anyone suffering such problems to notify the Henderson County health agency.

AIDS victim's parent threatens suit

BELLEVILLE (AP)—The mother of a young AIDS victim barred from his first-grade classroom is considering staging a legal battle to get her son into school, her lawyer said Wednesday.

"We haven't made that decision yet," said attorney Bob Hillebrand after the District 118 school board voted unanimously Tuesday night to ban the child from Jefferson School.

Hellebrand said the school board has agreed to a monthly evaluation of the case, "and we'll look into that."

The family of the youngster with AIDS has asked that their names not be reported.

Board President David Philip said Wednesday the district would provide the boy with "a home-bound teacher. It will be one-on-one teaching."

The boy's father called the decision "a shame because too smart not to go to school should be in the classroom."

Private instruction is "the same thing as being in a classroom with other kids," said. "He's a good little kid, nature boy and loves animals."

The father, who has been divorced from the boy's mother for about four years, said he didn't know how the boy was taking the setback.

Band gets in tune for Chicago Bears

By STUART TART
Staff writer

Few bands receive the honor of performing for a Chicago Bears football game, but for the Marching Panthers doing so is becoming "tradition."

Eastern's marching band, flag choir and Pink Panthers will perform the halftime show for the Chicago Bears opening game against the New York Giants Sept. 14.

"We open for them every year," said Marching Band Director Tom Brawner adding that the band has performed at the Bears' opening games for the last four or five years.

"They like our band to do it because it seems we're the only one (university band) willing to accept the challenge of getting a show ready that early in the year," he said.

The Marching Panthers began conducting practices Aug. 19, a full week before classes began for other Eastern students. Band members practiced three times a day, a total of nine hours a day.

Sophomore mellophone player Shelley Bailey described the practices as "long, hard and hot." However, she said the practices are worthwhile.

"It's (practicing) has been a lot of fun," she noted.

As well as preparing for this first performance, band members learn fundamental skills "that we'll use all year," Brawner said. "We're not just working on our first show," he said. "We're working on the whole season."

"(The Bears game) is not their only motivation," Brawner explained. "They know it's important to have a good band.

"They really enjoy going before 60,000 people and the TV audience, but that's just icing on the cake," he added. "We have more motivation than that."

Senior clarinet player Jo Ellen Ransden agreed the Bears game is not the band's only motivation for working hard.

However, Ransden, who will be performing on Soldier Field for her fourth time, said marching for the Chicago Bears is still a thrill.

"It's exciting and new each time we step on the field," she said.

Bailey marched with the Panthers on Soldier Field in 1986. "It was awesome!" she said. "The crowd overwhelms you."

Senior drum major Dan McCommis will have the responsibility of coordinating the band's activity on Soldier Field. Although McCommis has performed with the band on Soldier Field twice before, this will be the first Bears game he will lead the band.

"Before, I was a mallet player," he said. "I didn't even march. I stood on the sidelines."

McCommis said this performance will hold "a lot more responsibility" and "a lot more thrill" than his previous appearances at Soldier Field. However, he said he foresaw no problem with adapting to Soldier Field.

He pointed out that Soldier Field is the same size as O'Brien or any other football field. "There's just more stands," he said.

Lake Charleston's spillway waits for construction to begin. Its supports collapsed under pressure from heavy rains in November 1985.

Work to start on spillway

By RUSSELL STARE
Staff writer

Excavation has been completed and actual construction is about to begin soon on the Lake Charleston spillway, Chris Bezruki, city council executive assistant, said.

After record breaking rains in November 1985, five 76-ton cement supports from the Lake Charleston spillway collapsed under pressure from the Embarras River.

Instead of repairing the structure, officials decided the spillway would have to be replaced, later deciding to add a hydro-electric unit.

Bill Wilson, of Beam, Longest and Neff, the engineers of the new spillway, said that construction began on schedule in July of 1987, and that he is hopeful that the job will be completed in July of 1988.

The new spillway has been designed to be similar in size and dimension to the damaged structure, Bezruki said. The new spillway will be constructed to meet state standards imposed since the construction of the original structure in 1947.

He said $1.7 million in bond sales and $500,000 of state funding are being used to cover the costs of construction by the city-hired contractors, Mautz and Owens.

Wilson confirmed the bid by Mautz and Owens of $1,589,541. When asked if the work could be completed with this amount, he said, "It might run a little more, just like any construction job." Wilson refused to estimate what the final cost could be.

To control dangerous erosion of the main dike immediately following the collapse, the city spent an initial $35,000 for the construction of finger dikes extending from the main dike.

Wilson said he believes that because no further damage to the main dike has been reported, the finger dikes will remain as a permanent part of the lake.

According to Wilson, as the construction of the spillway progresses, Charleston residents should have no fear of losing water service.

New counselor plans to 'break the ice' with seminars

Claudia Lane is a new counselor in Buzzard House who plans to have seminars in workshops.

Lane is the first black counselor in the center.

By KIM MIKUS
Staff writer

Claudia Lane, a new counselor in Eastern's Buzzard House, has kicked off the fall semester by planning a series of life skills seminars.

The seminars are a series of self-discovery and personal growth mini-workshops and will cover such topics as "breaking the ice" and meeting people; panic attacks; insomnia and troubled relationships.

Although it may sound like a lot of work, Lane said she has enjoyed planning for the workshops. "We have many talented speakers speaking on subjects that have interested students in the past."

Lane is originally from Ville Platte, La., but has been living in Charleston for 13 years. She received her masters at Eastern and has worked in the advisement center in the past.

Before starting this new position, Lane taught first and second grade. "It is exciting to work with 8-year-olds one week and then 18-year-olds the next," Lane said.

Lane was hired for a temporary 9 month position in the counseling center and is scheduled to begin this fall. "My main project is to work with Counseling Center Director Bud Sanders on the outreach life seminars," she said.

Sanders said that to the best of his knowledge, Lane is the first black counselor in the center.

Lane said her main goal for the semester is to "work my way into the system and get my foot on the floor and help students have a more enjoyable time here (at Eastern)."

Depression, anxiety, roommate problems and eating disorders are some general topics that students may seek help from her about said Lane.

Currently Lane said she does not see the need to plan any special programs on the increasing drop-out rate of minorities, but said, "I am available if they need my help."

However, Lane has been involved in planning a leadership minority camp for high school juniors who are in the upper half of their class. She said the enrollment of blacks at Eastern has declined in the past few years and hopes this camp will show high school students what Eastern has to offer.

Music is also an important part of Lane's life.

"I am a music major and am involved with music in the community," Lane said, adding that she plays the piano and organ at her church with her husband Johnny,

Keeping peace in the hostile Persian Gulf

The United States is again coming perilously close to needless bloodshed over other nations squabbles in the Middle East.

With 17 war ships already in the Persian Gulf region and another 11 scheduled to join the U.S. armada there, the Reagan administration is going beyond keeping a military presence in that already hostile part of the world.

With a force of that size, the Reagan administration is placing the United States dangerously close to the brink of warfare.

Under the disguise of maintaining the free flow of oil from the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia, the United States is actually taunting the Iranians, who have seldom been shy about going berzerk.

The world's oil supply obviously isn't the U.S.'s interest in the gulf. With suffering petroleum farmers in the American southwest, the United States might be better off with a plugged Persian Gulf.

Reagan's only possible incentives for making such a forceful statement there is to prevent the Soviets from protecting UAE and Saudi ships and possibly gaining the first Soviet warm water sea port.

Since the UAE and Saudis are less friendly with the Soviets than with the United States, fear of the Soviets gaining an upper hand in the gulf is nonsense. The Saudis and UAE refused American requests to launch warplanes from inside their territories. The only way the Soviets would have gained such military bases there would be to repeat what they did in Afghanistan.

With other NATO nations finally sending ships to protect their own petroleum interests in the gulf region, the United States would be wise to withdraw some, but not all, of its naval forces there. Having France and England arm the gulf lessens the threat of combat.

Diluted American involvement there would protect United States interest more efficiently. English and French forces have at last taken the responsibility of protecting the transportation of their oil. A smaller U.S. force would still effectively deter the Soviets from creating a strong gulf presence.

Knowing that the Iranians are unpredictable, the only thing the United States can count on is that they will strike sometime. The American government must not run in fear from them, but it also shouldn't start provoking a conflict.

Running for the White House

With recent events developing the way they have been I have decided it's time I do more than be a passive observer.

Therefore I have decided to take this occasion to announce my candidacy for the presidency of the United States.

I know you're probably thinking: he's too young; he's doesn't know enough yet; he's black and you know blacks just can't win enough white votes; good grief he hasn't even graduated from college yet.

But you see that's why I'm the perfect candidate.

Why you ask? Why not?

Obviously the present president knew little when he first came to office, and apparently now he knows even less than he did before. Or is it that no one has told him what his administration is doing?

If I'm elected there will be definite changes in the executive branch of our government.

First and foremost my administration will work on ways to improve our crumbling educational system. There is an obvious need to educate our children.

But, we must make people who want an education work for it. The government shouldn't have to pay for people's education. If a person wants an education badly enough, he will be willing to work to raise the money to go to school.

There are plenty of minimum wage jobs out there for people to take in order to raise money for college. The government should not be subsidizing those ungrateful freeloaders.

Even though tuition averages about $4,000 a year at most institutions of higher learning, if you have a job at minimum wage it will only take you only 1194 hours to raise one year's tuition.

If people are not willing to do this then they are not deserving of a college education.

Larry Smith

It is true that my family is paying for most of my education but that's different. I deserve a college education.

I believe the only purpose of the federal government is to protect the country from enemies outside of our border. In order to do this we must concentrate our money in this area.

On the subject of taxes, I think poor people should pay more taxes because they use more of the benefits from those taxes. But corporations should not pay taxes because we can just raise the taxes of our employees.

We need to spend more money on the Strategic Defense Initiative because we have the technology to stop most of the missiles that the communists will send to us. All of the leading scientists in the world agree that it will work. There have been no problems from real scientists.

For cabinet members I would choose people like Col. Ollie "I love my country" North. He has demonstrated a lot of initiative and loyalty to this country.

How dare someone like Sen. Daniel Inouye tell me about being a hero. Just because Inouye was the most decorated unit of World War II and lost his leg the process doesn't mean much to me.

Ollie would be perfect. I wouldn't even have to brief him because I know he is able to take care of the small details himself. I will get people who are just like him to handle other parts of my administration.

In fact, I think I would make him my Secretary of State, yeah that's it, and he would tell Gorbachev to bite the bullet. Yeah, and he would blow up the Persian Gulf to make our country safe from the Sikh Moslems.

We definitely need more men like Ollie.

But most of all I would defend the Constitution in the best interpretation, I mean ability, and would make sure all people in this country are treated unequally.

Oops, I'm starting to sound like Uncle Ronnie.

Never mind.

Waiting in long lines for parking stickers

Editor:

I have just been through the harrowing experience of obtaining a parking sticker on campus!

I only waited in line for about 25 minutes while one person waited on people! However, one of my student workers was in line at 4 a.m. Tuesday and the line was ridiculous! It seems so obvious that a better solution would be to have tables at registration with several people to take applications.

If there is a problem with staff to help with this, I would volunteer my time to help, and I am sure there are other people on campus who would do so also, to avoid the lines that there have been in the past.

If there are applications that need special attention, one person with more experience could be there to handle them. This is a university and sometimes we act like we are running a business.

City Centre takes on three new additions

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT

City Centre, 820 Lincoln Ave., has given new homes to three Charleston businesses and made room for two others.

Pam's Sassy Scissors, Carlyle Apartment Rentals and Patton Quik Print opened up offices in the new building which still has openings for two more businesses.

The building is owned by Mike Carlyle, who also owns Carlyle Apartment Rentals.

Pam's Sassy Scissor, a new hair styling salon for both men and women, is owned by Pam Dever.

Dever, who worked at Donna's Hair Creations, 1408 Sixth St., for five years, said opening her own shop is something she's thought about for some time.

"There's a market for things that college students want and there's not that many places in Charleston that handle them. They (students) want the latest styles and the latest products," she said.

Besides specializing in the latest hair style and product trends, Dever also sells sweatclothes.

Business has been good so far in the 780-square foot shop, she said.

With business doing so well, University Super K, 419 Lincoln Ave., decided to do a little branching out over the summer—right down the road.

The new Panther Super K Deli Mart, 850 Lincoln Ave., took over both the building and merchandise of Huck's convenience store on July 29 after Super K executives discussed the idea for about three months.

Panther Super K marks the 25th Super K to be opened in Illinois by the Effingham-based Keller Oil Company.

"I guess we saw the possibilities of taking care of a very good market. It had potential. We thought it would work well in our chain," said Leon Chapman, merchandising manager for Keller Oil's Super K stores.

"Another thing that was attractive to us was the new office complex next door. We felt they could be an asset to us and we could be an asset to them," he said.

Being close to campus also influenced the decision to open the second Charleston store, Chapman said. Few changes will be made under the new ownership, he added.

this in a couple of years in Nashville, Tenn. My sister is a hairdresser there," said Dever, adding her uncle is also a hairdresser.

Carlyle Apartment Rentals, established in 1965 and owned by building owner Mike Carlyle, moved into the building from its location on West Route 16.

"We've wanted to move our apartment rentals for the last couple of years," Carlyle said. "We were located at Carlyle Interiors on Route 16, but that was just too far away for students."

After moving into the 500-square foot office, Carlyle said he made a few improvements on the business. "We've made it easier to rent an apartment from us by being handier. Also we've improved many of our concepts in renting. It's easier for tenants to rent from us," he said.

Besides renting apartments, Carlyle

Apartment Rentals also rents microwaves, refrigerators and vacuums. "We're trying to find rental areas that are open. We're open to suggestions. We can rent anything anybody wants."

The third store in the new building, Patton Quik Print, formerly located at 622 Lincoln Ave., has also changed locations by moving into City Centre.

Quick Print, which has been in Charleston for three years, is a full service printer, printing things like resumes and invitations, as well as offering professional typing and photo copying services.

General Manager Sandy Buechler, from the home office in Effingham, said one advantage of the new location is that it is closer to campus.

"It's worked out real well. This has been terrific. Business hasn't declined at all. In fact, we've been extremely busy," she said.

A variety of offers have been made to rent the remaining two spaces, Carlyle said, adding he still hasn't made a decision on them.

"I've had a lot of people come in to talk about a fast food place. That's not what I'd prefer. I'd prefer an office or retail store. I've probably talked to 30 or 40 people," Carlyle said.

Projects continue into fall

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

The Student Senate will start the fall session by continuing work on projects it worked on throughout the summer, according to Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis.

"We accomplished everything we set out to do for the summer sessions and its going to carry over into the fall," Wasetis said Wednesday.

Topping the list for the fall agenda is the campus carnival titled, "Animation Fascination," scheduled for the third weekend of September.

The carnival is sponsored by student government and will serve as a fund-raiser for Make Room for Art in addition to the Campus Lighting Program.

"We got the idea from Bradley University because they do it as a fund-raiser every year and it works really well," Wasetis said.

"We've got a 5-kilometer run scheduled, a hairy legs contest, a Carnival King and Queen, and a variety of different games and contests the fraternities, sororities and other campus organizations are going to sponsor," she added.

Student senators will be found strolling around campus in different costumes and student government is getting help from local businesses and Charleston High School.

Wasetis said student government will also be working on Traditions this fall. Traditions is a program giving a detailed history of Eastern.

It would include discussions with alumni and faculty members, thumbing through old yearbooks and a history of the landmark buildings on campus.

The senate also plans to place a special emphasis on letting more than 110 campus organizations know they can be recognized throughout the campus.

Wasetis said the senate will also review plans for a freshman orientation camp, which fell through this year.

UNI gunning for I-AA grid crown

By DAN VERDUN
Staff writer

Northern Iowa coach Darrell Mudra isn't just thinking Gateway Conference title for 1987. He's thinking national championship.

With all 11 starters returning on defense and six coming back on offense from last season's 7-3-1 squad, UNI appears a solid bet to take the '87 Gateway title and earn an automatic berth in the NCAA I-AA playoffs.

Yet, just a year ago UNI was in the same position. However, the purple Panthers were forced to settle for a third-place finish with a 4-2 league record.

Those two conference losses came at the hands of Eastern (31-30) and Southern Illinois (27-24) on consecutive Saturdays.

The loss to Eastern, which came on a last-second 58-yard field goal by Rich Ehmke, was an especially bitter pill for Mudra to swallow.

"We felt we played one of our best games last year at Eastern," Mudra said. "We outcoached Eastern, but still got beat."

"We should be a better team than we were in 1985 (when UNI went 11-2 and was a I-AA semi-finalist)," Mudra said. "But look at the schedule. Our record may not be as good."

The purple Panthers schedule features Minnesota, Iowa State, Montana State and McNeese State as its non-conference opponents.

The reason for Mudra's optimism is that the sophomores who helped take UNI within one game of a berth in the I-AA title game in 1985 are now seniors.

Heading that list of talented seniors is 5-10, 175-pound quarterback Mike Smith, the Gateway's Offensive Player of the Year two years ago.

"Mike's very bright. He has great determination and a marvelous attitude," Mudra said. "He's a real catalyst for us and has the potential to help us win a national championship."

Clark breaks out of slump

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jack Clark is hoping both he and the St. Louis Cardinals are over the bumps en route to the windup of an eventful season.

Clark already has reached an important milestone. He drove in his 100th run Tuesday night.

"It was a little tough," Clark said of the RBI plateau he attained for only the second time in his 11 major league seasons.

"You could have 98 or 99. I had 98 one year," he said of his effort in 1979. "You don't put yourself in a certain class unless you have 100. It's nice to have it out of the way."

Like St. Louis, which has played at less than .500 pace since the All-Star break, Clark has found the past six weeks a struggle.

The shoulder and arm bruises he sustained July 29 in a first-base collision with Mookie Wilson of the New York Mets have not helped. Nor have the large number of walks he has drawn from pitchers attempting to nullify the Cardinals' biggest source of power as division races heat up for the September stretch.

"I'm kind of tired of my walks and strikeouts," said Clark, whose 123 walks have already set a Cardinals record. He has struck out 126 times.

"My hit total is down. I missed some games because I walked so much, (but) you do have to count that as something," he said.

"Hopefully, the time has come for us to begin playing better."

Clark, of course, has a history of missing some of the goals he has set for himself because of injuries that have plagued his career.

Hand ailments twice cut short what started off as possible benchmark seasons.

Two years ago, his first with St. Louis, he missed nearly four weeks in August and September with strained rib-cage muscles. Last summer was a disaster, ending June 24 with a hand injury that required surgery.

"I feel pretty good," Clark said of his condition in returning from injuries last month that sidelined him for eight games and toned down his lusty swings longer.

"The last 3-4 games, I hadn't felt that good. A couple of times I injured it. I was pulled back because of that," he said. "We just kind of had to feel our way through."

Clark has 33 home runs.

five quarterback sacks last season.

Boykin, however, compiled only 12 tackles last year while seeing most of his action on special teams.

Last season's leading tackler, junior Jeff Mills, will be out indefinitely after receiving arthroscopic surgery on his right knee during the off season.

The youth movement in the defensive backfield is definitely in full swing with junior Scott Johnson as the elder statesman of the group.

Johnson, who had 69 tackles and five interceptions at safety last season, will see time along with sophomore returnees R.L. Reynolds (Gateway leader with seven interceptions in '86), Eugene Humphrey and Daryl Holcombe.

Freshman Tim Lance, Juan Cox and Tim Howlett have shown promise, according to

"They are going to be thrown in the fire and they're going to have to respond with maturity. They are going to have to grow up and mature in a hurry. Some are going to play out of necessity and some will play because they are ready."

But after coaching in the Gateway for four years and competing against Gateway teams for the last eight years, Smith conceded, "this may be the finest freshman class this league has seen."

"We may struggle early," Smith said, "but then again we may surprise some people at times. The only way teams are going to beat us is to play superior offense as opposed to inferior defensive play."

Emotion, youth to lead 1987 Panther defense

By BARRY BOTTINO
Sports editor

The key word for the Eastern Illinois defense this season is emotion.

"To have a successful defense we have to have a group of over-achievers. We have to play with a great deal of passion and emotion," said defensive coordinator John Smith.

"We have to play inspired football."

The inspiration is led by 10, 230-pound senior defensive lineman Carl Parker, who returned for summer practice in "tremendous shape" according to head coach Spoo.

The line is also bolstered by returnees Jeff Rolson (6-1, junior) and 6-0, 260-pound Aaron Thomas, who is coming along slowly after missing spring practice.

Senior defensive tackle Dan Lewandowski will see limited action early due to a chronic knee problem.

In the linebacking corps, Eastern will begin the season with only two returning starters from last season: senior Mike Briscoe (6-1, 215) and sophomore George Boyer (6-1, 215).

Briscoe was voted Eastern Panther 'Rookie of the Year' after recording 38 tackles last season. (See EMOTION, page 11)

ROBB MONTGOMERY / Staff photographer

Senior defensive lineman Carl Parker hits a blocking sled during a recent practice session behind O'Brien Stadium. The Evanston native is expected to be a mainstay on the Panther defense this season.

The 5-10, 230 pound tackle tied for sixth on the team last season with 69 tackles. Parker also recorded four quarterback sacks, eight tackles for loss of yardage and was named Gateway Conference Defensive 'Player of the Week'.

Ex-NFLer Henderson used drugs

DALLAS (AP)—Former linebacker Thomas 'Hollywood' Henderson says in his autobiography, "Out of Control," that he used drugs while playing for four different NFL teams and sniffed a cocaine-laced inhaler during Super Bowl XIII as a Dallas Cowboy.

Henderson, a former first-round draft pick of the Cowboys, traced his drug use from his days with Dallas to San Francisco, Houston and Miami to a stint in a California prison.

"Now I've changed my life. This is now the real story about Thomas Henderson. My book is brutal to Thomas Henderson. It's not a self-serving yearbook like some you read. I hope it does a service to the public."

Henderson, who gets a check for $700 a month from the NFL for a neck injury, said he hopes what happened to him helps someone else. "I know there are skeptics out there, but I've been chemically free for three years and 10 months. I don't even drink a beer when I play golf."

Although he visited recently with Cowboys coach Tom Landry, Henderson said none of his former teammates will talk to him about his book.

Lone senior Pacione lends experience as setter as Panthers shoot for winning year

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Staff writer

Experienced players are a necessary ingredient for a winning team, and Eastern's volleyball team has some experience at the position of setter.

Jeanne Pacione has more experience at setter than either sophomore Donna Sicher or freshman Kelly Stover who are also vying for the starting slot. Pacione, a senior from Mount Prospect, is the lone senior on the squad.

She played in all 34 matches for the 15-19 Panthers last season. Pacione finished second in assists with 557, fourth in digs with 276 and fourth in kills with 275.

Coach Betty Ralston will be counting on Pacione's experience at setter to help Eastern to its first winning season since 1983.

"Jeanne has the most experience of the setters because she's been in the system the longest," Ralston said.

Pacione's biggest goal is for Eastern to have a winning season.

"Basically our biggest goal is to have a winning season, and the only way to accomplish that is for the whole team to work together," Pacione said.

The Panthers have made some changes in order to achieve a winning season.

Eastern hired Nick Cheronis as a part-time assistant for Ralston. Cheronis is a graduate of Ball State and has coached volleyball at Parkland Junior College in Champaign and at Valparaiso University.

Cheronis has been working with Pacione, Sicher and Stover on improving their footwork in order to get in better position for passes from their teammates.

"We're working on their footwork," Cheronis said. "We want the setters to be where they are supposed to be because good setting is done with the feet."

"Once the setter gets to where she is supposed to be, she will make a better set."

Cheronis has been impressed with the progress Pacione has made thus far.

"She came into practice in real good shape. It's real difficult to move your feet and not to think about setting the ball, but once she gets that she will be 100 percent better," Cheronis said.

Pacione may also be used as a hitter because of her strength, but Pacione prefers playing setter as she's more involved in the game.

"There is a big difference between hitting and setting," Pacione said.

"Setting adds a new dimension to a game. It's exciting because you feel you're in control."

Pacione had one of the biggest games of her career as a setter against Memphis State two seasons ago when she had 51 assists.

She had season highs of 16 kills and 18 digs against Loyola (Ill.) and 11 assists against Idaho last year.

She cites the highlight of her career as a sophomore year when Eastern won two games but came back to lose two.

Pacione sees a slight difference in this year's edition of the Panther volleyball team as compared to previous years she has played on in her previous three years.

"All the teams in the last three years have not had a star on the team. This year it's the same way except there are more of a unit," Pacione said.

The Panthers hope to capitalize on Pacione's experience as a setter as well as strong team play to accomplish their goal of a winning season.
