First string

Area children take a bow

The instruments were designed in the Middle Ages and were first used by adult scholars of music, but Sunday, stringed instruments were played by 40 children ranging from 3 to 18 years of age.

More than 200 people attended the Eastern String Preparatory Concert this weekend at Dvorak Concert Hall.

Children performing at the concert were community children enrolled in graduate student Keven Johns' string preparatory class, Suzuki-method students of Vesta Rundle and private students of Dorothee Kim and Barbara Hardin.

Johns said that because the community schools discontinued their strings program a few years ago, she began offering lessons to area children this semester.

"The number of students involved show that strings are alive and not dead," Johns said.

ISSC votes to hike budget

by Dana Eastridge and Jane Meyer

Eastern News correspondents

CHICAGO—The Illinois State Scholarship Commission voted Monday to request from the General Assembly a $99 million Fiscal Year 1983 financial aid budget, even though the Illinois Board of Higher Education has recommended $91.7 million.

The ISSC agreed to go with the higher figure in order to emphasize to the General Assembly the amount that it actually needs.

Commission member David Eisenman said the ISSC must ask for the $99 million figure and inform the General Assembly that a lower figure would be a point "where there is no return."

Eisenman said the commission has to realize that the amount it received for FY 83 would be used as a base to cut from in succeeding years.

ISSC director Larry Matejka said the IBHE had requested that the ISSC not make any budget requests larger than the $91.7 million figure.

Matejka said that Gov. James R. Thompson's allocation may go below or above what the IBHE has requested. As to whether the General Assembly would agree to the governor's request, Matejka said he was uncertain, but "historically the General Assembly has been supportive of financial aid requests."

Matejka indicated to the commission that he has programs formed for budget amounts ranging from $127 million to $87 million and expects to begin with the higher figure before the legislature.

Matejka said it is possible that although the higher education budget has been decreased, internal reallocations could result in more funds for the ISSC.

Thompson announced last week that he would try to obtain more monies for higher education through the enactment of a 10 percent liquor tax and a 2 percent tax on insurance premiums.

Thompson said last week in a press conference he expects the taxes to generate more than $125 million in funds to be earmarked for education and mental health.

Matejka said the governor said higher education and mental health are his first priorities should the taxes be implemented.

At that time, Thompson said his top education priorities were salaries, student aid and retirement benefits.

In expectation of the Thompson budget reductions, the commission recently proposed several monetary award formula changes.

A review and adjustment of the system of allocating awards is expected to reduce expenditures from $127 million to $92.9 million.

Debaters question outlook of program

by Denise Skowron

A decision to consider changing Eastern's current debate style has sparked a controversy between the speech-communications department and the students on Eastern's debate squad.

The controversy has caused the members of the debate squad to question their future as debaters. They called a special meeting Monday night to discuss the issue.

Concern arose Monday because of a proposed change in the squad's current style of debate.

The squad uses the National Debate Tournament style in all of its competitions.

However, Director of Forensics Charles Harrison said the trend of NDT style of debate is "unethical and dishonest."

"There is a tendency to misinterpret propositions to catch the opposition (in debate tournaments) off guard," he said. "Some problems with NDT concern the style of speech—it's exceedingly rapid."

As a result of an evaluation of the debate program conducted this year by the speech-communications department, the department decided to emphasize a different debate style and attempt to hire a forensics director who would be willing to implement a different style, Harrison said.

Eastern's speech department will be interviewing a candidate for the position for next fall.

"We will very likely try to select someone willing to move into directions other than NDT,"—one who would consider alternatives such as Cross Examination Debate Association, he said.

Harrison said the CEDA style "is less dependent upon evidence and more dependent upon fully developed arguments."

Members of the debate squad, who have never competed in the CEDA style, discovered the department's candidate preference for forensics director "by accident," debate coach Mike Shelton said.

Even though debate squad is not familiar with the CEDA style, Harrison said, "If they have any ability to adaptation at all, they would adjust to CEDA."

Polish Union calls for talks

WARSAW, Poland—Solidarity leaders who have eluded the martial law regime's dragnet met in secret outside Warsaw last week and issued a call for talks between authorities and the union leadership, sources said Monday.

At the underground meeting last week, Solidarity leaders called for talks with authorities, on the condition that Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and other interned leaders and advisers be allowed to attend Walesa's daughter's baptism in Gdansk this month, the sources said.

Senator claims FBI frame

WASHINGTON—While virtually conceding failed judgment, Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. told his colleagues on Monday he was framed by the FBI in its Abscam investigation and pleaded to retain his office despite "this turmoil, this torture and this ordeal."

Williams, 62, declared repeatedly he was the victim of investigative abuse, suggesting his case has fearsome implications for the legislative branch. "Never before," he said, "had employees of the executive branch tried to frame a senator of the United States."

El Salvador continues to cope

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador—Amid bombings and killings, some foreigners are still working and living here, determined to keep their businesses going in El Salvador's war-torn economy.

Most are American, whose government gives millions of dollars in military and economic aid to help the ruling junta fight the leftist insurgency. Others are from Canada, West Germany and neighboring Central American nations.

Trying to stay in business in El Salvador means coping with little credit, no insurance, government restrictions on imported materials and almost daily disruptions of electric power, telephone service and transport.

GM, Toyota consider compact

DETROIT—General Motors Corp. and Toyota Motor Co. are considering a joint effort to build small cars in the United States, company officials said Monday.

The idea of a cooperative production venture was raised at a March 1 meeting in New York between GM Chairman Roger B. Smith and Toyota President Eije Toyoda, statements released by both companies said.

Israel: cease - fire is strong

JERUSALEM (AP)—U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib had a final meeting with Prime Minister Menachem Begin Monday and Israeli officials said the American troubleshooter apparently had strengthened the cease fire on the Israel-Lebanon border.

Habib kept his usual silence on details of his talks, commenting to reporters: "I had a good meeting with the prime minister."

Foreign Minister Yithak Shamir, Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and other top Israeli officials joined Begin and Habib in the final meeting.

Israeli officials said Habib, on his fifth Mideast peace mission in a year, had not solved the underlying tensions between Israel and the Palestinian guerrillas based in southern Lebanon, but he seemed confident there would not be a renewal of warfare.

"There seems to be a consensus that there will not be an outbreak now of hostilities," one Israeli official said.

Israel and Lebanon have accused each other of violating the truce Habib arranged last July and of amassing weapons along the border. The United States has been concerned Israel might launch a pre-emptive strike against the guerrillas.

Both Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization agree to abide by the cease-fire.

Habib, who also visited Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, was expected to return to Washington Tuesday.

Earlier in the day Sharon accompanied Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly on a helicopter flight along the Sinai border that will separate Israel and Egypt after April 25, when Israel completes its withdrawal under the terms of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

They decided on arrangements "that will not adversely affect the local population" in the Rafah area, the Defense Ministry announced.

Details of the arrangement were not announced, but Israel Radio reported that no houses would be torn down, and that a fence would be set up with numerous gates to permit the people to pass easily. About 60,000 people would live on the Israeli-controlled Gaza side and 10,000 on the Egyptian-controlled Sinai side, Israel radio said.

Israel and Egypt still have border problems to resolve and Aly is scheduled to visit Israel next Monday for more border talks.

New drug therapy may save lives

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government on Monday approved the first drug pump that can be implanted inside the body, saying the device can add more than two years to the life expectancy of liver cancer patients and prevent blood clots in victims of phlebitis and other ailments.

The Food and Drug Administration said it also is studying the drug pump as a way to dispense drugs to treat brain tumors or insulin for diabetics.

The pump holds promise as an improved treatment method for the 9,400 people who might otherwise die of liver cancer each year, the 745,000 who suffer from phlebitis and the 50,000 whose deaths are linked with pulmonary embolisms, FDA Commissioner Arthur Hull Hayes Jr. said.

The drug pump can be inserted in the chest or stomach and is the first one which need not be worn outside the body. It resembles the hockey puck in size and shape and provides continuous drug therapy.

Dr. William Ensminger, associate director of the University of Michigan's Clinical Research Center, said that for liver cancer patients, the pump "enables us to extend life expectancy from about four to six months to beyond two years."

Ensminger said experimental work with the pump revealed an 85 percent remission rate for liver cancer patients. But he warned that the drug pump is of proven benefit only in cases where cancer is confined to the liver since it is most effective when the treatment is applied to a single tumor site.

Implantation of a drug pump will lessen the need for hospitalization and, in the case of patients with clotting problems, the need for a painful and expensive regimen of injections. It can be refilled when necessary by a family physician using a hypodermic needle.

Faculty Senate will consider abolishing petitioning process

by Fran Brolley

Unhappy with the petitioning process in faculty elections, the Faculty Senate will vote Tuesday on a motion to abolish petitions and to replace them with a memo-method proposed by senator Herb Lasky, senate chairman Lavern Hamand said Monday.

Many senators spoke out in opposition to the nominating petitions at the senate's March 2 meeting.

Vice Chairman Scott Smith said the petition process was the "worst possible method" of running for a position in the Faculty Senate or a university council.

Lasky, acting on behalf of the nominations committee, proposed petitions be eliminated and candidates send a memo to the nominations committee indicating their interest in a position.

The motion also proposes the extension of the nominating period.

In other business, Sharon Bartling, chairperson of the faculty advisory committee, will read the formal positional statement the FAC made to the Illinois Board of Higher Education in reference to Governor James Thompson's budget cuts in higher education.

The senate will also discuss a memo asking about the possibility of having spring break for the 1983-84 school year immediately following midterms.

Faculty member June Johnson sent a memo to the senate stating her request that the senate look into the possibility of rescheduling break.

Concert fee survey plans to be finalized at meeting

by Cathy George

The recently formed concert fee survey committee will meet Tuesday to finalize plans for a fee survey, Booker Suggs, assistant student activities director said Monday.

The survey committee is composed of Suggs, Student Body President Bob Glover, former University Board chairman Al Siepker, UB concert coordinator Greg Ruwe, UB adviser Denise Turk and UB chairman Steven E. Jones.

Apportionment Board Chairman Mike Nowak said the first question which will need to be resolved by the survey is whether or not students want to pay a concert fee through student activity funds which the AB would distribute.

Nowak said no student fee increase would result from this plan.

However, Nowak said other AB-funded activities "would have to suffer" in order to use AB funds for concerts.

Nowak said a second plan would involve establishing a separate concert fee which would be set aside exclusively for concerts. Suggs said the amount of the fee has not yet been determined.

The survey is expected to be distributed in late March.

In addition, students will be asked in a referendum on the April student government ballot if they would be willing to support a concert fee.

COTE to review fulfillment plan

by Linda Fraembs

The Council on Teacher Education will consider how students in several programs can fulfill the requirements of Illinois House Bill 150 at its meeting Tuesday.

HB 150 requires all students seeking teacher certification to complete course work in special education.

COTE Chairman Ron Gholson said the council has "just about finished" reviewing campus programs for fulfillment of the HB 150 requirement.

He added that council members will discuss how students in the health education, business education and alternate secondary education programs can meet the special education requirement.

At the Feb. 23 COTE meeting, the committee on occupational teacher education proposed that occupational education students be allowed to fulfill the requirement by taking either Special Education 3700 or Special Education 3500.

COTE members will take action on that proposal Tuesday, Gholson said.

He added that a proposal to allow candidates for Board of Governors degrees into the teacher education program will be re-introduced for consideration.

Parks and Rec director to speak

by Kim Juveland

The executive director of the Illinois Park and Recreation Association is scheduled to speak at Eastern Tuesday.

Kay Forest will speak at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. The speech is sponsored by the Society for Advancement of Management and is part of the group's Career Year speaker series.

Forest runs all Illinois parks and recreation facilities. She will speak on career opportunities in recreation—especially careers for women, SAM President Jim McKenzie said.

Forest graduated from Western Illinois University with a degree in park and recreation and administration.

Forest was awarded the Alumni Achievement award in 1978 and in 1979 she was selected the Outstanding Young Woman in America.

Caucus opens road to lobbying

We commend Eastern's new Women Students' Caucus and its chairman, Isabel Parrott, for shaking the prevalent student apathy and getting involved.

The group was formed recently and has already involved itself in developing a petition to protest the proposed Central Illinois Public Service rate hike. Over 500 names have been collected on the petition.

Parrott has said the organization will function both socially and politically, acting as a lobbying agent with student government. It will also offer students a forum to voice their concerns.

The formation of a new campus group is not usually a cause for celebration by the campus community, but the caucus is different.

At last Eastern may have an organization which looks outside of the immediate campus concerns, at issues which affect students, instead of getting wrapped up in its own concerns that it loses sight of its purpose to improve life for Eastern students.

This is an organization which can work strongly for change and represent students in an organized manner.

And, in the midst of support of the organization,

Parrott herself should not be overlooked. She has the determination and outreach to make the caucus strong.

Despite its name, the caucus is not restricted to women or persons involved strictly in feminist issues. Parrott has said many issues the group will be involved in concern the student body and community as a whole, not just women. Men should not let the group's name prevent them from joining.

The organization offers an excellent opportunity for students to organize and voice their opinions. The organization could be a viable student voice—if enough students become involved and make it work.

So many vital issues face students today—the CIPS proposed rate hike, financial aid woes caused by funding shortages in the Illinois State Scholarship Commission and federal grant and loan programs, budget cuts in general, which threaten accessibility to higher education.

Faced with all these issues which could affect the quality of their lives and their education, students cannot afford to ignore this first opportunity to join a student lobbying organization right on campus.

Your Turn

Marixsm not Utopia

Editor:

We are writing in response to Mr. Apers' rebuttle of our article of March 1.

We have come to the conclusion that if we were the brass in the Kremlin, we would love to have a foot planted in Central America because that would bring us closer to our public goal of world domination and the total defeat of capitalism.

We do admit, Mr. Aper, that the U.S. should demand that Duarte clean up his act. We should threaten to withdraw all aid unless his regime starts observing the rights of the already downtrodden peasants. We think Duarte would think twice when faced with this decision.

As for our polaristic view (good-bad) of the world, all we can say is Marxism isn't going to bring eternal joy or prosperity to the people of Central America, because Communism is no more a Utopia today than it was the moment it spilled from Karl Marx's pen. Instead, it has been rammed down the throats of millions of now-captive people in almost every corner of the world since World War II. Mr. Aper, do you see any evidence that it has improved their lifestyles or freedom?

The stakes are very high. We feel that all those with Utopian views of the world situation should wake up and come back down to the real world.

Only limit freshmen

Editor:

As upperclassmen, we feel the 16-hour pre-enrollment class limit is unfair. For many of us, fall semester will be our last semester on campus before student teaching and graduation. If we are unable to obtain the courses needed, our careers will have to be postponed another semester.

We are told we will be able to pick up needed classes in the add-drop lines. Are we going to be guaranteed we will receive the needed hours? Hasn't class bargaining gone on long enough?

We believe students as well as the faculty have better things to do with their time than spend hours at the add-drop lines.

Why 16 hours when 18 hours is still considered a full load? Limit the hours students can pre-register for to 18. Most upperclass students are enrolled in 16 hours or more.

Since the tentative plan is for us to pay higher tuition fees, we should receive priority over underclassmen.

If a limit is needed, make it a requirement for incoming freshmen, since they have plenty of time to plan their education accordingly.

Making sense won't work at any angle

There are some things in life that just don't make sense no matter how many different angles we look at them.

Why is it the three time and temperature signs on Lincoln Avenue never seem to agree with each other? Somehow it's usually a minute or two later and always one degree cooler by IGA than it is in front of Old Main.

Speaking of Old Main—what about those towers on top of that building? It's hard to figure out why one of them is so much bigger than the other three. There's probably a perfectly logical reason for it, but it does make the building look unbalanced.

Actually, there are quite a few things about this campus that don't seem to add up. For instance, with all of the sidewalks around here designed for shortcuts across campus, why is it that most of us still cut across the grass for the shortest shortcut? Usually in the middle of the grass is a huge mud puddle that there is no going around anyway.

For convenience sake, a diagonal sidewalk could be constructed on the library quad beginning at the Union and ending by the Triad. For added convenience, a sidewalk reaching across the opposite corners would also be handy. Of course the library quad would no longer be scenic, just handier.

Sometimes parking stickers are a real pain. No matter how empty the rest of the lots are the lot you have a sticker for never has an empty space. And then there's the problem of finding a space near the library at night or on weekends. Many acquaintances brag that they "don't ever step foot in the library," yet most times it's hard to find a spot even reasonably close. Somebody is going there and not telling us!

Personal file:

Sue Ann Minor

What truly doesn't seem to make sense is how classwork is distributed throughout the semester. Why does it seem that everything seems to always be due the same week? We can coast along for a month or more with only a minor test or paper due here and there and then—BAM! Everything hits you at once and you find yourself burning the midnight oil all week trying to get it all done.

Speaking of studying, have you ever wondered why just when you're really psyched to do homework a friend calls and says, "Hey, there's a great band at (one of the bars) and everyone's getting together at 9 p.m." Of course, passing up a night out with the gang would be cruel and unusual punishment, so it's necessary put off the studying even longer.

A couple of other thoughts you might consider when classes get boring or you just plain don't want to think: why is it that the class you need to graduate is offered at the only time you can't take it; why is Coleman Hall hot year round, and what is the purpose of the flagpole in the South Quad, which never seems to fly "Old Glory."

Lincoln farm life revived

Area residents interested in pioneer history have an opportunity to play roles in a living history program at the Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic site in Lerna.

Persons interested in taking part in the Lincoln Log Cabin Volunteer Pioneer program should attend an informational meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the cabin site.

Persons of all ages may participate in the program. Preschool children may participate if they are accompanied by an adult who is also a volunteer.

Initiated in 1981, the program allows interested persons in the Coles County area to don costumes and participate in life on a Lincoln-era farm.

Men work in the fields and care for livestock, while women garden, prepare meals, cook on an open hearth, wash clothes and spin wool; children who volunteer will find themselves helping with chores and participating in games and activities of the period.

A new element has been added this year that will allow men to participate in the forming of a "black-powder" civilian militia. The men will recreate the Coles County militia company of the 1840's and will participate in militia musters, drills and other activities at the farm site.

There are also volunteer programs for those who do not want to participate in the living history program. These include working with the school program, concession sales, research, sewing costumes, typing and helping with building restoration.

For more information, contact Bill Combs or Tom Vance at the Lincoln Log Cabin, R.R. 1, Box 175, Lerna, Ill. 62440, or call 345-6489.

UB to discuss Union Station

At Tuesday's University Board meeting UB members will discuss the grand opening of Union Station April 5-6.

Union Station is a mini-mall under construction in the basement of the University Union. The UB is promoting the new lounge facility.

UB Chairman Steven E. Jones said the UB will also discuss the proposed move of the student activities office to the Union area now occupied by the Sargent Art Gallery.

In other business, the UB will discuss activities scheduled for Crazy Daze in May, which is sponsored by the Homecoming and Crazy Daze committee, Jones said.

The UB will meet at 5 p.m. in the Union addition Effingham Room.

MCC may be expanded...

by Steve Binder

The Mid-Continent Conference could possibly expand to seven teams by September, the league's commissioner said Monday.

Seven institutions met Tuesday and Wednesday in Chicago and discussed the possibility of MCC expansion, but the larger MCC would be focused around the school's basketball programs.

"We are interested in forming a viable conference with at least six teams and be recognized by the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association)," MCC Commissioner F.L. Ferzacca said. "We really just can't continue with a four-team conference."

Athletic directors from Valparaiso, University of Illinois-Chicago Circle and Cleveland State joined the current MCC members' Eastern, Western Illinois, Northern Iowa and Southwest Missouri athletic directors in the Chicago meeting.

Ferzacca said the main reason behind expanding the MCC is to eventually receive an automatic bid to the NCAA national basketball tournament.

"The main advantage to expansion is money," Ferzacca said. "If we can hurry and apply for NCAA conference affiliation before August, then we can apply for automatic qualification in basketball."

Under NCAA regulations, a conference can receive automatic qualification in basketball if the league is composed of at least six schools and each school sponsors at least six sports. After existing for two years, the conference is granted automatic qualification. A first-round entry in the NCAA's 1982 basketball tournament receives about $120,000 to be split among conference members.

Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said, "I'm eager to get this going, and I want to get it started in May. Although our meeting in Chicago was preliminary, I think this will probably take place."

However, Johnson said some athletic directors possessed different views of how the expanded MCC should operate and consequently, "Each school representative will meet with their president and review the MCC handbook and give any suggestions to me. Then we will try to meet again in May and decide where we go from here."

"The basketball aspect is the greatest magnet to expanding the MCC," Johnson continued. "But this new conference would facilitate basketball scheduling and give our men's non-revenue programs conference championships, which would be a springboard to nationals."

"Also, I'm really concerned about our women's programs and we're trying to coordinate this conference to include both men and women," Johnson said.

If the MCC is expanded with Chicago Circle, Valparaiso and Cleveland State accepting membership, the league's football programs would be considered independents, which does not please Johnson. Currently, Chicago Circle and Cleveland State do not have football programs.

"I'm not really happy about the football aspect, but right now this is the best route to take. I still think there is a possibility of forming some type of Illinois league with Illinois State, Indiana State and Carbondale but they have not indicated this to me," Johnson said.

"The Illinois league is what I believe to be the ideal conference, but this is the next best thing," Johnson added.

If Valparaiso, Chicago Circle and Cleveland State agree to join the MCC, Ferzacca said the MCC will send a conference-recognition application to the NCAA for approval in August.

Thus, if the NCAA recognizes the MCC as a viable conference, the league will receive an automatic bid to the national basketball tournament during the 1984-85 season.

...as prospective members react

by Steve Binder

Three athletic directors of schools involved in the possible expansion of the Mid-Continent Conference advocated the idea of enlarging the MCC to at least six teams.

Although athletic directors from the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle, Cleveland State and MCC member Southwest Missouri could not be reached for comment Monday, Northern Iowa Athletic Director Stan Sheriff expressed his concern to expanding the MCC.

"I think it's important in the near future to establish a viable conference with six or more schools. I'm hopeful something could happen," Sheriff said.

Valparaiso Athletic Director William Steinbrecker said he has discussed the possibility of joining a basketball-orientated conference with several schools, but he would name the schools. Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson confirmed Steinbrecker's presence at a Chicago meeting Tuesday and Wednesday to discuss MCC expansion.

"I have been meeting with several schools about joining a recognized conference," Steinbrecker said. "We're very much interested in finding a home for our basketball program in terms of a conference."

Western Athletic Director Gil Peterson said, "We're hoping that we'll have something ready for September and I think we can. A recognized conference would have many benefits."

If the seven institutions decide to form the expanded MCC, league Commissioner F.L. Ferzacca said a recognized-conference application will be sent to the NCAA for approval in August.

If approved by the NCAA, the MCC would become a seven-team conference eligible for an automatic bid to the national basketball tournament during the 1984-85 season. A first-round entry in the 1982 tournament receives about $120,000 to be divided among conference members.

The basketball automatic qualification aspect was the biggest advantage to expanding the MCC, athletic directors said.

Sheriff stated, "The basketball advantages are the most obvious. Financially, football is critical but basketball is more critical."

Under an expanded MCC, the schools' football programs would be declared independents.

Peterson said, "The automatic qualification is the most attractive aspect to expansion but there are others. I certainly hope our women's programs could be conference affiliated."

Although Johnson was not specific, he said some schools did not agree with the women competing under the expanded MCC at the Chicago meeting.

Steinbrecker said, "I'm really not enthusiastic about getting our women under the same conference as the men. Financially, I don't think it would help."

Valparaiso's women programs are currently NCAA Division II.

Sheriff said, "Looking at the other sports programs, the possibility for the women's programs is tremendous. It would make for a more viable conference atmosphere."

Badminton ends with last place finish

by Jill Anderson

MUNCIE, Ind.—Competing in its last national tournament, the Eastern badminton team finished a disappointing last place in the AIAW National Badminton Tournament Saturday at Ball State University.

Northern Illinois upset defending champion Arizona State in what Panther coach Karen Earley termed "a boost for the Midwest."

No. 4 seed Clare Choo of NIU won the singles title over top seeded Claire Allison of the University of Wisconsin-Madison 11-8, 11-9.

Top-seeded Allison and Ann French took revenge on NIU and defeated Pam Peard and Barb Morrison 15-8, 15-7 in the doubles final.

Northern finished with 45 points and edged out ASU's 41 points. Madison finished third with 36 followed by California State-Dominiquez Hills with 20, Illinois State with 18 and Western Illinois and Ball State each with 13.5.

George Washington University finished with 8.5 points; Temple posted 4, and Eastern ended with 3.

"I was hoping for at least a finish in the top eight and I think we should have won some matches we didn't," Earley said.

Playing in her last Eastern match, senior Janet Haberkorn highlighted the Panther's tournament by reaching the second round of championship play.

Haberkorn defeated her California State-Dominiquez Hills opponent 11-4, 11-3 in her opening round before losing to No. 8 seed Eileen Morrison of ASU 11-8, 11-1.

"Janet really pushed Eileen in the first game and moved her around extremely well," Earley said. "Eileen started out very nervous and Janet took advantage of it, but unfortunately, she came back to play well in the last game to win it."

Haberkorn was the only netter to make it past the first round as the rest of the Panther squad lost first-round matches.

Earley also praised the performance of Lisa Walz and her new partner Bernee Piech, who replaced an injured Nancy Szarzynski.

After losing their opening round to No. 2 seeded ASU, they lost their first round of consolation to Western's No. 1 team.

Super Sectional hosts super scorers

Super scorers Marty Simmons and Doug Novsek will lead Lawrenceville against standout 6-foot-7 forward Mark Taylor and Vandalia Tuesday in a Class A Super Sectional showdown at 7:30 p.m. in Lantz Gym.

Lawrenceville, behind Simmons and Novsek, who both average more than 20 points a game, brings a 30-0 record and the state's No. 1 ranking into Charleston.

Vandalia sports a 28-2 record and is ranked No. 5 in the state.

Although the contest is sold out, any returned tickets will go on sale at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Lantz ticket office. Ticket price is $3.

For Illinois Governor

Jim Thompson, Republican

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson, 45, is running for the Republican nomination for re-election to his third term in office.

Thompson, who was born and raised on the west side of Chicago, has served as a prosecutor for the Cook County State's Attorney, 1959-64; an associate professor at Northwestern University Law School, 1964-69; and chief of the Department of Law Enforcement and Public Protection, Attorney General's office, 1969.

He was appointed First Assistant U.S. Attorney in June 1970 and U.S. Attorney in November 1971. Thompson was first elected governor in 1976 and was re-elected to a four-year term in 1978.

A spokesman for the governor's office said balancing the state budget is one of Thompson's accomplishments as governor.

"This state's financial condition is one of the best...and he is solely responsible for this," he added.

John Roche, Republican

John E. Roche, 56, is running for the Republican nomination for governor in his second bid for a political office.

The physician from Palos Park, who has practiced medicine for 25 years, ran for the U.S. Senate on the American Independent Party ticket against Adlai E. Stevenson in 1974.

Roche said he is running for governor to be able to put his platform into effect, which includes full protection of human life from the moment of conception, the right to bear arms and a mandatory sentence of 10 years for committing a felony with a gun in addition to the sentence for the crime.

Roche also favors abolition of home rule units, and promotion of "any laws necessary to keep the farmers from going broke."

Adlai Stevenson, Democrat

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Adlai E. Stevenson, 51, of Washington, D.C., is running for public office after declining to run for re-election to his seat as U.S. senator from Illinois.

Stevenson's political background includes election to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1964 and Illinois

Treasurer in 1966.

He was elected to his senate seat in 1974 but declined to run for re-election in 1980.

Stevenson was born in Chicago and studied at the Milton Academy in Massachusetts, Harvard College and Harvard Law School. He also served in the U.S. Marine Corps.

For Illinois Lieutenant Governor

Donald Totten, Republican

Sen. Donald L. Totten, candidate for lieutenant governor, is a 10-year veteran of Illinois politics.

Totten, a Republican from Hoffman Estates, served as Illinois chairman for President Ronald Reagan both in 1976 and 1980. Upon Reagan's election, Totten was named to the President's Transition Team.

Totten was elected into the Illinois House of Representatives in 1972 and into the Senate in 1980.

Totten is on the Advisory Board for the Illinois Small Businessman's Association and was elected vice president for the National Tax Limitations Committee. He also served as chairman for the committee.

Grace Mary Stern, Democrat

Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern, 56, was chosen by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Adlai E. Stevenson to run for lieutenant governor on his ticket.

Stern of Highland Park said she was "honored to accept" Stevenson's offer to run for election with him because "I had been trying to get elected as state treasurer."

"I am more than a woman candidate," she said, adding that she thinks she is well-qualified for the job of lieutenant governor.

Stern was elected Lake County clerk in 1970 and is now serving her third term. She served on the Lake County Board from 1967-1970 and is currently a member of the Democratic National Committee.

George Ryan, Republican

If elected lieutenant governor, George Ryan, Republican, said he will continue to work on Illinois' business and economic development.

Elected Speaker of the House in 1981, Ryan has served in the General Assembly since 1971. He was appointed as a minority leader in 1977.

Ryan, 48, a Kankakee pharmacist, served on the Kankakee County Board for six years. During the last two years on the county board, Ryan was appointed chairman.

After 10 years on the General Assembly, Ryan said he wants to move up the political ladder in order to work on legislative problems.

Ryan is endorsed by Gov. Thompson. He is married and is the father of six children.

Susan Catania, Republican

Susan Catania, a Republican representative from the Chicago lakefront district since 1972, is now making a bid to be the first woman lieutenant governor of Illinois.

In addition to chairing the Commission on the Status of Women and the Public Institutions and Social Services Commission, Catania is also the principle sponsor of the Equal Rights Amendment in the Illinois House.

The post of lieutenant governor is a good position to serve as a link "between the government and the governed," Catania said.

Governor Thompson declared May 3, 1981 as Susan Catania Day in Illinois.

For Congress, 19th district

Dan Crane, Republican

Daniel B. Crane of Danville is a Republican U.S. representative incumbent in the 19th district.

"I let the people of my district decide what the major issues are," Crane said. "Right now I believe they feel that unemployment is the number one issue."

Crane added that he wants to maintain a sound social security policy. He said he agrees budget cuts are necessary, but he opposes severe cuts in any one area.

Crane said one of the areas suffering from cutbacks is education.

"The education budget is being cut by about 44 percent," Crane said. "I would rather see cuts in a budget that has more to spare, like defense."

Jon Linfield, Democrat

Jon W. Linfield, Democratic candidate for the 19th U.S. representative district, said he is primarily concerned with his district's unemployment rate.

"My first goal if elected is to get the employment programs operating," Linfield said.

Linfield added he thinks this can be accomplished by subsidizing housing and restrengthening the construction industry.

Another goal is lowering the prime interest rate because "it's killing the farmers," Linfield said.

Linfield described himself as a "constructive moderate" and said he believes that "our country needs a moderate fiscal policy to go along with the monetary policy."

John Gwinn, Democrat

John Gwinn, a Democrat from Urbana, is running for U.S. representative in the 19th district.

Gwinn practices law in the Champaign-Urbana area and is vice-chairman of the Champaign County Democratic Party.

Gwinn's views on education are "to continue student loans with an equitable and well-administered repayment policy and to support the arts, humanities and basic research."

Gwinn said he thinks an important issue is continuation of the Clean Air Act.

"I feel that Illinois' rich endowment of clean air, clean water and rich soil must be maintained for our nation's future and the individual health of our children and grandchildren," Gwinn said.

David Weir, Democrat

David Lee Weir of Mattoon is a Democratic congressional candidate for the 19th district.

"The economy is the number one issue in the country right now," Weir said.

Congress must start fulfilling its responsibility to provide for the general welfare of the people, he added.

"Unemployment is 30 percent in some parts of the 19th district," Weir said. "We must implement new incentives that will encourage the private sector to create jobs."

On education, Weir, a counselor at Eastern's counseling center, said, "I believe we should restore loan programs 100 percent and more grants and loans should be provided for vocational training and apprenticeships."

For Coles County Board

District 1

Paul Hawkins, Republican

Coles County Board Chairman Paul Hawkins is running for a second term in office on the Republican ticket.

Hawkins said he does not think Coles County is facing any major problems at this time. The only problem Hawkins can see is making revenue cover expenses.

Other counties also have that problem, he said, adding that Coles County is "in pretty good shape."

Hawkins' administrative experience is not limited to the county board. He served on the Oakland school board for 16 years and now serves as Agriculture Adviser on the advisory committee at Lake Land College.

Hawkins, 70, lives in Oakland.

Bruce Swango, Democrat

Bruce L. Swango of Oakland said he is running as a Democratic candidate for the Coles County Board because "it is just another way to serve my fellow man."

Swango, 60, said he has previously served on the board in 1972.

He added that he has been involved in local politics at various levels since 1950.

Swango said one goal the county board should strive for is to become more concerned with fiscal responsibility and "good, sound management" in the future.

District 3

Richard Goodrick, Democrat

Eastern political science instructor Richard P. Goodrick, 52, of 2411 Village Road, is running for his first public office as a Democratic candidate for county board.

Goodrick said he teaches and studies politics and has been involved in politics from the standpoint of a Charleston citizen.

He said he hopes to "get in there and see if I can put the book learning to practical use. I'm tired of reading about it and want to do it."

Goodrick said he chose to run for county board because it is a district election, and the idea of representing a district and students "appealed to me."

Tim Yow, Republican

Timothy R. Yow, Republican candidate for Coles County Board, would like to see the county run like a business.

"A county office is a business," Yow said.

Yow said he thinks his experience as a businessman and his past experience on the county board qualifies him for a seat on the board.

Yow had been on the board before, but he resigned his seat when he moved out of the district he was representing.

Yow said he has had a strong interest in Charleston since he first came here as an Eastern student. "I appreciate what the community has done for me, and I would like to be able to give a little bit of it back," Yow said.

Yow is 38 and resides in Charleston.

District 4

Eugene Bauer, Republican

Eugene Bauer, 67, of Mattoon said he is running for re-election to the Coles County Board because he enjoys the job and has "plenty of time" to devote to the board.

Bauer, a Republican, said he has served about six years on the board, completing one full term and part of another to which he was appointed.

The main emphasis of his campaign, Bauer said, is "the same old story of trying to hold down our costs and hold down our taxes."

Bauer has served on "a number of boards" in the past, although most were school boards and "not political in nature," he said.

Daniel Lawrence, Democrat

Born and raised in Mattoon, Democrat Dan Lawrence, 31, said he feels the Coles County Board is going to become more important in local area government.

"Some people run for the office because they think no one wants to be on the county board," Lawrence said. "I want to serve the people in this district and I want to be on the board."

With the shift of power and priorities to state and local levels, Lawrence said county government needs leaders with special expertise.

"My degree in Personnel Management will help supervision of the large number of county employees. Another major asset will be my specialization in computers as the county government is highly computerized," Lawrence said.

District 7

Larry Moore, Democrat

County board incumbent Larry Moore, 34, of Mattoon said he is running for re-election because "I've enjoyed my first two terms and I want to try for another term."

Moore, who works for the Downtown Insurance Agency of Mattoon, said he has served on the county board for six years and has been a precinct committeeman for six years.

The important goals for Moore's re-election campaign are to "try to get everything done within the limits of the money available," he said. "That's what you're always working for—to try to save a little money."

Moore, a Democratic candidate, is running unopposed.

For Illinois Attorney General

Ty Fahner, Republican

Illinois Attorney General Ty Fahner said he believes knowing the court system gives him the best qualifications for retaining his office.

Before his election to attorney general in 1980, Fahner served as assistant federal prosecutor to the U.S. District Attorney. He was responsible for the prosecution of more than 250 criminals.

Fahner directed the Consumer and Civil Rights Prosecution and in 1972 lead the Chicago Vote Fraud Invasion indictment.

Fahner also served as director for the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement. He has a background of law in both practice and teaching.

Fahner, 39, of Evanston, is married and has three children.

Neil Hartigan, Democrat

Serving as "the people's lawyer" is Neil Hartigan's definition of the office of attorney general. Hartigan, 43, of Chicago, is a Democratic candidate for attorney general.

Hartigan served as lieutenant governor from 1972-1976. During his term, he formed the first state cabinet on aging, was a major spokesman on the energy policy and funded a new airport for East St. Louis.

Hartigan acted as department administration officer to Chicago Mayor Daley and was counsel for Chicago in the 77th Illinois General Assembly.

He also served as general attorney for the Chicago Park District. Hartigan is senior vice president and head of World Wide Bank Division/Western Hemisphere for the First National Bank of Chicago.

For Illinois Treasurer

W. Robert Blair, Republican

W. Robert Blair, 51, Republican candidate for state treasurer, has been involved in politics for 25 years.

Blair was former speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives from 1971-74 and has been a state representative for the past 10 years.

If elected, the attorney from Crete plans to invest state funds in order to receive the best returns. In doing so, Blair said he would change the current system regarding state loans to farms, favoring banks that give loans to businesses.

Blair's campaign manager, Stan Stewart, said the candidate hopes President Reagan's new federalism will work, and that the survival of that program depends on how much money is given to the states along with their new responsibilities.

John Dailey, Republican

John P. Dailey from Peoria is running for state treasurer on the Republican ticket.

Dailey, an attorney and executive vice president of a real estate development firm, has been active in party politics since 1964.

Dailey was chief assistant to state senator Russell Arrington from 1964-68, and senior assistant to Gov. Richard Ogilvie from 1968-72. Dailey has also served as chairman of the Illinois Health Facilities Authority since 1979 when he was appointed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

If elected, Dailey plans to make investment policies of the treasurer's office available to smaller banks and provide leadership to the Republican party and the state as a spokesman for financial issues.

James Donnewald, Democrat

James Donnewald, 57, a state senator from Breese, is running for state treasurer on the Democratic ticket.

Donnewald, who has been a state senator since 1965, became assistant majority leader of the senate in 1971. He also served in the Illinois House of Representatives from 1961-65.

A spokesman for the senator said

Donnewald plans to use "a great deal of latitude" in issuing state loans, if he is elected, and that the criteria used in issuing loans "depends on the economy."

According to Donnewald's spokesman, the senator strongly disagrees with President Reagan's new federalism, though Donnewald would like to cut back on some programs.

For Illinois House, 106th District

For Coles County Board

District 2

Eugene Sims, Republican

Ernest "Eugene" Sims said he believes local government should support itself through its own tax.

Sims, a Republican, is running for a seat on the Coles County Board. If elected, Sims said he would be in favor of using property taxes to finance local government and support schools with income tax, the purpose being to keep property tax in the county.

Sims said he believes the road problem in Coles County is "getting out of hand." He would like to see the situation remedied.

Sims served on the county board for 12 years. Starting in 1968, he remained on the board until 1981 when the board was reapportioned. At that time, the board was reduced from 23 members to 12 members.

Sims lives in Hutton Township.

Jerry Myerscough, Democrat

Jerry Myerscough, Democratic candidate for Coles County Board, said he believes everyone should be involved in the political process.

Myerscough, 30, of Charleston said he thinks local governments need to become more "fiscally concerned" since President Reagan is determined to cut back on funding.

Cuts in foodstamps and block grants are examples of decreases local governments should be more concerned about, Myerscough said.

Myerscough said he became involved in politics a few years ago when he was upset about high property taxes. He said he wanted to find out where such tax money was used.

Myerscough was formerly elected a township trustee.

Elizabeth Coffey, Democrat

Elizabeth A. Coffey, 28, of Charleston said she is running as a Democratic candidate for Coles County Board because she believes she knows the problems facing the rural and city districts.

Coffey said one of these problems is the county's finances because the county's tax base is not increasing as rapidly as its expenses.

"We need to strive to use the money for the county wisely and efficiently," Coffey said.

Coffey is a lifelong Coles County resident.

'Babe' Woodyard, Republican

Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman, is seeking re-election to his term as representative from the 53rd district.

Woodyard is seeking his second complete term in office, after being appointed in March 1979 to fill a seat vacated by Jim Edgar.

Woodyard said in a recent appearance at Eastern that he sees three major issues in the primary election: the budget, transportation problems and property taxes.

Woodyard said he thinks the cuts in funds for education will mean education is "going to take a real beating."

Woodyard is running unopposed in the March primary.

For Illinois Secretary of State

Jim Edgar, Republican

Jim Edgar, a Republican from Charleston, is running for re-election to the office of Illinois Secretary of State.

A graduate of Eastern, Edgar said he got his start in politics in Coles County. He has served as an Illinois legislator from the 53rd district and has also served as Gov. James R. Thompson's legislative liaison.

On Nov. 26, 1980, Edgar replaced Alan Dixon as secretary of state after being appointed by Thompson.

One of Edgar's main concerns has been with drunk driving. He activated a crackdown on laws and fines involving drunk driving, which have been in effect since Jan. 1.

Jerry Cosentino, Democrat

Illinois State Treasurer Jerome "Jerry" Cosentino is running for secretary of state on the Democratic ticket.

Cosentino has served as state treasurer for four years.

Cosentino, who was born in 1931, is a resident of Palos Heights. He is a Chicago businessman and owns and operates a trucking company called Fast Motor Service.

Cosentino's political career includes an election as commissioner to the Metropolitan Sanitary District in 1974. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Committee in 1976 and 1980.

In 1975, Cosentino was honored by the Suburban Women's Organization with an Outstanding Public Official award.

For Illinois Senate, 53rd district

Max Coffey, Republican

Max E. Coffey, a Charleston resident, is running for re-election on the Republican ticket for the 53rd legislative district.

Coffey's political experience includes serving as Charleston town superintendent and a position for the Coles County Board, from 1971-1974.

In 1976 Coffey was elected to the 79th General Assembly in the Illinois House of Representatives, a position to which he was re-elected in 1978.

Coffey is minority spokesman for the Transportation Committee and serves on the Motor Vehicle Law Commission in the House.

Coffey said one of his main goals for if re-elected will be to work on lowering property taxes for Illinois citizens.

Jerry Nikitas, Democrat

Charleston businessman Jerry Nikitas is a candidate for state senator from the 53rd district.

Nikitas, a Democrat, said he thinks the main issues in the primary are unemployment, inflation of real estate tax assessments, unreasonable price hikes for electric and gas utilities, proposed increases in gasoline excise taxes and weakening of the farm economy.

Although these issues are well-known, little has been done to solve the problems, Nikitas said.

Nikitas is 38 and president of a corporation that operates retail liquor stores, a lounge, a restaurant and a computer service company.

Nikitas said he thinks he has demonstrated through his business the "energy, thoughtfulness and careful innovation sadly lacking in the senate district now."

For Illinois Comptroller

Cal Skinner, Republican

Calvin L. Skinner Jr., 39, of Woodstock is a candidate for comptroller on the Republican ticket.

Formerly a member of the Illinois House of Representatives from the 33rd district, Skinner in 1980 ran unsuccessfully for the 13th district congressional seat against Robert McClory of Lake Bluff, who has held that office since 1962.

A spokesman for the Senate Republican Staff in Springfield said Skinner is a late-comer to Gov. James R. Thompson's ticket and agreed to run for comptroller if the governor requested it.

Thompson asked Skinner to join the ticket after no other Republicans volunteered for the spot, the spokesman said.

Roland Burris, Democrat

Illinois Comptroller Roland W. Burris is running for re-election to his office on the Democratic ticket.

Burris, a native of Centralia, received a bachelor's degree in political science from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale in 1959. He has studied at the University of Hamburg and Howard University Law School, receiving his doctorate of jurisprudence in 1963.

Burris served as bank examiner with the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency in Chicago. He joined Continental Illinois in 1964 and later became the bank's vice president.

In 1972 Burris answered a request to join then-Gov. Dan Walker's cabinet as director of General Services for Illinois, and he held that position for four years.

For County Clerk of Coles County

Bruce Scism, Democrat

Bruce Scism, Democratic candidate for Coles County clerk, said if elected he hopes to update the clerk's office, and make more of an effort to register citizens in this area to vote.

Scism, 28, 1206 Garfield, is finishing his master's degree in political science. Previously he ran for Charleston Township Trustee and has worked on various political campaigns since 1972.

Scism said it is important to not let government spending swell during rough financial times. He said the clerk's office is overstaffed and money could be saved by reducing the number of employees.

Jacqueline Bacon, Republican

Experience is what incumbent Coles County Clerk candidate Jacqueline (Jackie) Bacon cites as her main qualification for being re-elected to a third term in office.

Bacon, who is running on the Republican ticket, said she has served a total of 40 years in the county clerk's office.

Starting as a deputy county clerk in 1942 she retained that post until 1959 when she became chief deputy county clerk. She held that office until 1973 when she was elected county clerk.

Bacon said she can offer residents of Coles County more in the way of lobbying at the state-level. She has previously worked for such issues as tax reformation and the Homestead Exemption Act for people over 65.

Bacon is 57 and lives in Charleston.

For Sheriff of Coles County

Kenneth Thomason, Republican

Kenneth Thomason, Republican candidate for sheriff, plans to reinstate the sheriff auxiliary deputy program if elected.

The program, which was discontinued, would train and deputize citizens who would be used only for special events, Thomason said.

Thomason of Ashmore would like to see more cooperation between the Coles County sheriff's department and other local police departments. Such cooperation, contends Thomason, would not need to be physical but rather informational.

Thomason, who has been a sheriff's deputy for five years, hopes to have the sheriff's department patrol unincorporated areas more and spend less time on the major highways.

"If elected, I plan to run the department efficiently, effectively and most of all honestly," Thomason said.

Charles Lister, Democrat

"The office of sheriff is still a challenge that I enjoy," Democrat Charles Lister, 32, said of the office he has held for the past three years. "I have reached many of the goals I set as sheriff, but I have continually seen more places for improvement."

Lister of Charleston said he believes the role of sheriff as administrator is essential. "The sheriff doesn't ride around in a car and issue tickets anymore," Lister said. "I know how to manage budgets and supervise people."

As sheriff, Lister said he has developed a "very aggressive detective staff" and has reduced the fuel consumption level by 18 percent while retaining the same mileage.

Alvin Dixon, Republican

Alvin Lee Dixon, a Republican from Humboldt, is running for the office of Coles County sheriff.

Dixon said he is a "lifelong resident of Coles County" and is currently working as a security guard.

He added he has worked for the Humboldt Police Department for 10 years and has completed training sessions with the Police Training Institute in Illinois.

Important issues include providing better patrols in rural areas, providing purchase records to the public, and establishing better communications with other law enforcement agencies.

Charles Coffey, Republican

Currently a member of the Mattoon school board and investigator for the States Attorney's office, Democrat Charles R. Coffey, 35, is seeking the office of Coles County sheriff.

"I believe we can have effective law enforcement through experienced leadership," Coffey said.

Coffey of Mattoon was elected to the school board in April 1979 for a term which runs until November 1983.

Coffey was a member of the Mattoon Police Department as a patrolman and detective for nine years. He began work as an investigator for the States Attorney's office in May 1982.

For Coles County Board

District 5

Ken Degler, Republican

Ken Degler, a lifelong Mattoon township resident, is running for re-election to the Coles County Board.

Degler, a Republican, has served on the board for five years and is a former chairman of the board and of the finance committee.

A retired farmer, Degler said he is concerned with the people of the county.

"I am interested in the welfare of the county as a citizen and a taxpayer," Degler said.

Degler said he is a member of the Lincoln Trails Toastmasters Club.

Charles McGuiness, Democrat

Democrat Charles McGuiness of Mattoon is running for re-election to the county board because he "enjoys looking after the business of the county."

"As a current member of the board, I see how important roads and bridges are to the people," McGuiness said. "We have improved quite a few roads in the past year and are constructing a new bridge across the Little Wabash River right now."

McGuiness, 68, said he believes operating his business has trained him to deal with the public. He has operated a service station in Mattoon for the past 40 years.

"The county board's budget runs around several million dollars. I feel this requires close scrutiny to see that none of it is wasted," McGuiness said.

For Treasurer of Coles County

Margaret Myers, Republican

Margaret L. "Maggie" Myers, Republican candidate for Coles County Treasurer, said she believes she will be able to run an "efficient office" if elected.

Although Myers has never held public office, she said she has had enough management experience to effectively carry out the treasurer's duties.

Myers of Charleston worked at General Electric for 15 years. She said during that time she worked in "almost every office." She also completed all of the management courses offered by G.E.

Myers, 49, said she believes she is qualified for the office and that "to serve others is to serve one's self."

Wayne Lanman, Republican

Wayne Lanman, currently a Charleston city commissioner, is running for Coles County Treasurer on the Republican ticket.

Lanman, a graduate of the Utterbach Business School in Mattoon, retired in October as assistant vice president and auditor of the Charleston National Bank after 34 years of service.

Lanman has been on the city council since 1965, serving three four-year terms as finance commissioner and two four-year terms as street commissioner.

Lanman added he believes his 34 years in banking and extensive knowledge of the financial world makes him a qualified candidate.

Jacqueline Record, Democrat

Jacqueline Record of Mattoon, said she is running again for Coles County Treasurer because of her past performance.

"I have modernized and revitalized the office and earned more interest than anyone before," Record said.

Record, a Democrat, said she believes she has not finished her job as treasurer, and if re-elected she hopes to computerize her office more, cut down on costs and improve mobile home tax collections.

Before being appointed county treasurer, Record served on the county board for 10 years and was involved in precinct work.

For Coles County Board

District 6

Estel Huffman, Republican

Estel "Bill" Huffman, Republican candidate for the Coles County Board, said he plans to do "what is best for the county" by using "good common sense" if he is re-elected.

Huffman of Mattoon has served on the county board for two years. He also works as a load dispatcher for Central Illinois Power Service.

Calling himself a conservative, Huffman said he agrees with President Ronald Reagan's new federalism but will fight the proposal if tax monies are withheld by the federal government.

Huffman also said he thinks current board members should be reinstated, since the current board represents a "good cross-section of Coles County."

Jerry Welch, Democrat

A lifelong resident of Mattoon, Jerry Welch, 34, said he would like to see more opportunities for public input in county government. He is running for a seat on Coles County Board.

Welch, who currently serves as a Democratic precinct committeeman in Paradise Township, has a background in teaching, farming and insurance.

"County board is not perceived as a major form of government, but I believe it is the major form for the county," Welch said.

Welch said he believes a county board member should have regular office hours in order to be accessible to the people of the county.

Welch earned his undergraduate degree from Eastern in social science and also did graduate work in history at Eastern.

District 8

Herman Janssen, Republican

Herman Jansen, a native of Mattoon, is running for the Coles County Board under the Republican banner.

Jansen has been on the board for one year. He is also a supervisor at the Young Radiator Company.

If re-elected, Jansen said he plans to serve the people of Coles County by utilizing a conservative budget program. Jansen said he agrees with President Ronald Reagan's new federalism although the program has "cut back too hard on social programs."

Jansen said he believes there are no real issues as of yet in the election.

John Slaughter, Democrat

Democratic Coles County Board member J.T. Slaughter, 45, is running for re-election to his seat.

A Mattoon resident since 1942, Slaughter said the board is the first public office to which he has been elected, although he has served in the past on many area boards.

Slaughter, an electrician, said he decided to run for the board again because "I found the job interesting and I thought I could represent the district well."

In his first term, Slaughter introduced the resolution stating the board would intervene in the proposed CIPS rate increase.

For Coles County Board Districts 9, 10, 11, 12

William Wood, Democrat

William "Jim" Wood, Republican candidate for Coles County Board, said he thinks that "people who are not politicians should be in office."

Wood of Charleston was active in President Ronald Reagan's local campaign and has run for public office in the past.

If elected, Wood said he would work toward a "common sense government" that has "fiscal responsibility."

"People should get involved in government," Wood added. "That is a personal conviction of mine."

Marjorie Knoop, Democrat

Marjorie F. Knoop, Democratic candidate for Coles County Board, is running unopposed this election.

Knoop has been a resident of Charleston for 28 years, and has served as a precinct committeeman.

Knoop said one change she would like to see concerns the time of county board meetings to sometime during the evenings.

The county board meetings are currently held in the mornings, which is an inconvenience for members and the public who work throughout the day, Knopp said.

Eli Sidwell, Republican

Republican Eli Sidwell is running for his first political office as a candidate for the Coles County Board.

Sidwell, 49, of Charleston said he decided to run because the board utilizes real estate taxes, and as a real estate broker he understands "people's anguish about having their real estate taxes raised."

"All programs are going to hinge on the money available, and federal revenue sharing will not be available," Sidwell said. "More recently with the federal budget the way it is, more control is going to come back to the county level."

Raymond Catron, Democrat

Raymond Catron, 61, is running for the Coles County Board on the Democratic ticket. Catron said he is a lifelong resident of Charleston.

Although this is his first involvement in politics, Catron said he thinks he would make an effective county board member.

Catron added that he believes he would be able to make a "great contribution as a citizen" to the people of Coles County.

Catron said he is currently employed at Eastern's heating plant and has worked there for 28 years.

Catron said he hopes to deal with the issues of zoning, maintenance and upkeep of the county courthouse, and any other issues which may confront the board.

Marion Bertolet, Republican

Marion Bertolet, 67, is running for re-election to the Coles County Board on the Republican ticket.

Bertolet, who has served on the board for two years, said he thinks the main issue in this campaign is holding down deficit spending at the county level.

"I am a property owner; I pay taxes, too," Bertolet said. "I am concerned that the county board only spend the money available through taxes and do not overspend."

Bertolet said he believes the main responsibility the county board has is to set the budget for the county and keep up with the "day-to-day things needed to run the county."

Clayton Daughenbaugh, Democrat

Clayton Daughenbaugh, 24-year-old Democratic candidate for Coles County Board, said the economy of the county should be the central issue of the campaign.

Daughenbaugh said he has proposed a two-pronged effort to assist local businesses and bring new industry into the area.

Daughenbaugh of Charleston has never run for political office before but said, "I feel my background gives me the ability and the desire to help improve our economic situation."

Daughenbaugh is a graduate of Charleston High School and Southern Methodist University.

He is currently employed as a bus chaperone for Charleston Community Unit 1 kindergarten and special education students and part-time minister for two churches.

Douglas Bonewitz, Republican

Douglas Bonewitz of Charleston is running on the Republican ticket for Coles County Board.

Bonewitz, a counselor at Lakeland College, has been a resident of Charleston for 15 years and is a former precinct committeeman.

Bonewitz, in his first bid for county office, said he decided to run because "it is important to be involved with the running of local government."

"I'm running because I'd like to be on the inside for a change," Bonewitz said.

"I want to be more informed with the inside workings of government and have a more direct voice in budgets," he added.

Dan Thornburgh, Democrat

Daniel Thornburgh, chairman of Eastern's journalism department, is a Democratic candidate for the Coles County Board.

Thornburgh, a Charleston resident, was a city commissioner from 1973-1977 and chairman of the recreation board from 1969-1973.

Thornburgh said one of his main concerns, and a main issue of the county board, is making assessments as economical as possible.

Another concern of Thornburgh's is voting rights and the exercise of that privilege.

"I believe the student vote is important," Thornburgh said.
