Many classes closed due to overcrowding

by Julie Cambria

Officials from the business school said recently that lower division classes are filled to capacity and many students were unable to obtain classes during the add-drop period.

Other departments reporting problems with overcrowding include the economics, political science, speech, and history departments.

Business School Dean Ted Ivarie said many students were turned away at add-drops because lower division classes were full.

"We could have had more sections if we would have had more faculty," Ivarie said. "We need more sections particularly at the sophomore level data processing and accounting classes."

Ivarie said faculty and sections were added to some business courses but students were still turned away at add-drops because considerably more students study business than any other curriculum at the university.

Due to overcrowding in business classes, the School of Business instituted a three-part admission process in 1982 aimed at decreasing the school's enrollment while improving the quality of the program.

As part of the policy, students interested in business are declared pre-business majors until they complete 42 semester hours with a grade of C in three of five specified courses.

Students who meet the needed criteria are then ranked according to academic standing and the bottom ten percent on the ranked list are not allowed to declare business as their major.

Ivarie said the admissions policy has helped ease overcrowding in upper-division courses but lower-division classes are still tight.

Wesley Ballsrud, chairman of the accounting and data processing department said classes are crowded, but not as tight as in previous years.

"All of our classes are full or overfull, but compared to the last couple of years we turned away fewer students," Ballsrud said.

Jerry Geisler, chairman of the management and marketing department, said his department has not had to turn any student away because of the business school's admission policy and added faculty and course sections.

"We are, in effect, upper-division classes, so students who have met admission requirements were able to get classes," Geisler said.

"Two years ago we were 3000 seats oversubscribed, so our admissions policy, added faculty and added course sections have worked," Geisler added.

Ahmad Murad, economics department chairman, said classes in the economics department are "over-

Student fees to pay for coffee shop

Noreen Reilly, Vice President for Student Affairs, said Tuesday that student fees will totally support the new faculty coffee shop, which is scheduled to open in October.

Williams estimated the shop will cost "a couple thousand dollars," including labor.

The coffee shop, which will be located in the area presently known as the Cargo Shoppe, is being opened because several faculty members have complained that Eastern did not offer a location where the faculty could eat without the distracting influences of loud music and unappetizing food.

However, faculty senate member Joe Heumann, one of the leaders in the quest for a faculty lounge area, said the shop will be open to both students and faculty.

"It will be a place for people to

" I think personally that Joe Heumann should pay for it out of his own pocket. " congregate," he said.

—Joe Butler

Student Body President Joe Butler said Tuesday he was unaware that the coffee shop was being funded by student fees. "I think personally that Joe Heumann should pay for it out of his own pocket," he said.

Heumann and another faculty senate member, Scott Smith, met Friday with Bill Clark, Union area head, to discuss the format of the coffee shop.

Clark "told us the kind of construction that needed to be done and equipment purchases that were needed to get the ball rolling," Heumann said.

Although Clark would not give an estimated cost of the coffee shop, he said he expects the final cost to be minimal. "We will use almost exclusively the equipment we have, but some room modifications have to be made," he said.

Clark said the Union still needs to take care of "standard things" related to opening a small business. "We have to refurbish a couple cases for pastries, bring in furniture from the Rathskellar, and order the products," Clark said.

Heumann said he and Smith will continue to work with the Union staff on an advisory basis.

"It's in the Union's hands—it's their baby," Heumann said.

No complaints by neighbors about loud band music

Kathy Compton and Lisa Green, several students who live near the marching band's practice field said Tuesday they aren't disturbed from loud music coming from the band.

The band, which practices south of the Tarble Arts Center on the field located between Seventh and Ninth streets, was recently the target of a lawsuit.

Last week, the observation platform on the band director used to observe their practice shows was destroyed and there were incidents earlier of water balloons and rocks being thrown at the band.

Greg Clemons, the band's director, said the band has received complaints about loud music in the past, but has tried to correct the problem by facing toward the TAC and away from the residential areas. The band practices from 3 to 5 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, usually from 6 to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and 3 to 3:50 on Thursdays. Clemons said the band will also practice from 10 to 11 a.m. on Saturdays when there are home football games.

Freshman Henry Coyle, who lives in the Ninth Street residence hall said, the band doesn't disturb him.

"You hear more music across the street from Regency Apartments" than from the band, Coyle said. "Plus, it doesn't go on too late."

Freshman Jeff Moore, who also lives in the Ninth Street Hall, agreed.

"It's not that much of a disturbance and it doesn't bother me that much. It's kind of a pain when you want to walk across the field and they're there, though," Moore said.

Alton Angus, a senior and Thomas Hall resident said, "I feel more sorry for" the band "than I do the guys in the dorm," because the band members are "out there practicing hard."

Thomas Hall Counselor Tom Condit said he had complaints from students during the spring about loud music, and the complaints may start again when the band practices on Saturdays before home football games.

Condit added that some students stay up late to study, get up early for classes or work in the food service and are sometimes trying to sleep during the hours the band practices.

Junior Mary Ruane, who lives in Lincolnwood Apartments located on South Ninth Street also said the band's music is not a disturbance. Ruane said she lived in the same place last year and could hear the music but it hasn't been a problem this semester.

Bill Thompson, a freshman and East Hall resident said, "you can hear them but I wouldn't say it's a disturbance. It's not for that long of a period and they take breaks," he added.

Andrea Tolbert, a sophomore who also lives in Regency Apartments said, "I can hear the band during the day but it doesn't bother me. It's not that

Teamster local endorses Mondale

CHICAGO—One of the nation's largest Teamster locals has broken ranks with the labor union's top leaders and voted to support Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale.

Members of Chicago Teamsters Local 743, which represents more than 24,000 workers, expressed their preference for the former vice president in a poll. The results were announced at a Monday night meeting of the local.

Of those responding, 2,534, or 72 percent, favored Mondale, compared to 882, or 25 percent, for President Ronald Reagan. Another 3 percent, or 105 union members, endorsed others or were undecided.

Right approves Israeli joint rule

TEL AVIV, Israel—The right-wing Herut Party of outgoing Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Tuesday endorsed an agreement for bipartisan rule with the rival Labor Party. The vote cleared the way for Labor's Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres to present a cabinet to Parliament.

Labor endorsed the joint rule accord Monday after a bitter debate. A new Labor-Likud bloc government could be installed Wednesday.

Shamir on Tuesday beat back a challenge from former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who appealed a show-of-hands vote approving Herut cabinet members, including Sharin as industry and trade minister.

U.S. weapon parts may be bad

WASHINGTON—Sophisticated weapons purchased by the Pentagon in the past decade may contain as many as 15 million defective microchips of the type which failed last month and delayed the launch of the space shuttle Discovery, the defense department said.

The chips—all built by Texas Instruments at a plant in Taiwan and sold to other defense contractors for installation in various weapons—may not have been properly tested, the Pentagon said.

Reagan, Gromyko will meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ronald Reagan announced Tuesday he will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the White House on Sept. 28 for his first face-to-face talk with any senior Kremlin leader since taking office nearly four years ago.

Reagan, whose political opponents blame him for rekindling an arms race with the Soviet Union, said the most important thing he hopes to accomplish by his private talk with the veteran Soviet official is "to maybe convince him the United States means no harm."

In a brief question-and-answer session with reporters at the White House after announcing that Gromyko had accepted his invitation, Reagan said he doesn't know how much can be expected from the meeting.

But he suggested that the failure of all his administration's arms control talks with the Soviets indicates it is time to start at a more basic level to reduce "suspicion or hostility," Reagan said.

Later Tuesday, Reagan announced an increase in the ceiling on grain sales to the Soviet Union to permit the Soviets to buy an additional 10 million metric tons of grain beginning Oct. 1, the start of the second year of a long-term trade agreement. Reagan did the same thing a year ago to increase U.S. farm exports.

Campaigning in Chicago, Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale said he hopes the president and Gromyko make progress, but added it was "pretty pathetic" that the session is to take place in the middle of Reagan's re-election campaign.

Republican congressional leaders who met with Reagan at the White House shortly before the announcement hailed it as a sign that the Kremlin is convinced Reagan will be re-elected and has decided it must deal with him.

Hurricane lashes Carolina shores

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Hurricane Diana, with 130 mph winds around its wandering eye, lashed southeastern North Carolina with blinding rain Tuesday and threatened to push tides up to 12 feet above normal.

Just before nightfall, the eye of the first Atlantic hurricane of the season was just off Cape Fear, 30-miles south-southeast of Wilmington. The hurricane's storm surge of high water was expected to coincide with a new moon high tide.

"Hurricane Diana is now a dangerous hurricane," the National Weather Service said. "Further strengthening is likely."

Gov. Jim Hunt declared a state of emergency and called out 200 National Guard troops to help with "traffic control and security," and urged residents of low-lying areas of five coastal counties to evacuate.

The Red Cross said 7,000 people were in 23 shelters in the Wilmington area counties of New Hanover, Brunswick, Columbus, Pender and Onslow, spokesman Martha Sellers said.

Sen. Jesse Holmes, R-N.C., asked President Ronald Reagan for quick emergency assistance needed.

Earlier in the day, roads were jammed as people headed for higher ground along the North and South Carolina coasts. Others secured boats and mobile homes, taped or boarded up windows and stocked up on emergency supplies. Island ferries shut down along the low-lying Outer Banks and barrier islands.

Some adventurers in South Carolina and others organized hurricane parties.

Vandals no more active than usual

by Amy Zurawski

The vandalism rate on Eastern's campus doesn't appear to have exceeded its normal level since the arrival of students on campus for the start of fall classes.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said, "For the first part of the year, we've had, I'd estimate, about a normal rate of damage."

However, Larson added that it is very difficult to project an accurate vandalism rate because of the amount of vandalism that is never reported.

Larson said the only reported acts of vandalism since school started have been done to cars. One had a tire slashed and another had the paint on the hood scratched with a foreign object.

He added that he believes Eastern has no more of a vandalism problem than any other school of similar size.

"It's hard to determine the exact dollar value of vandalism damage that occurs," Larson said, "but I don't think that we have any more of a problem than any other school of the same size."

Don Carmichael, director of the Tarble Arts Center, said he has not noticed any vandalism there this fall and he added, "I am keeping my fingers crossed."

"Last year at this time, the big stuff outside got turned over about once a week," he said. "It's disturbing when we ask outsiders to exhibit their work and then it gets vandalized."

He said one example of this occurred last fall when a piece of sculpture normally displayed on the north side of the Fine Arts building was apparently "rolled" to the steps of McKinney Hall.

Carmichael declined, however, to comment on any new security operations to protect the outside sculptures.

The security system for last fall, he said, was a 24-hour surveillance program, although officials were unable to find a solution to prevent vandalism of the sculptures displayed on campus.

Carmichael said the only possible way to prevent vandalism is to educate students so they "appreciate and respect art."

The residence halls have also apparently been free of the damage vandals create.

Judicial Officer Keith Kohanzo said there has been no reports of vandalism to Eastern's residence halls or campus.

"There have been a few incidents of theft and noise complaints," he said, "but there have been no vandalism reports brought to my attention."

Intends to motivate

Wesel to outline senate's fall goals

by Nancy Bridges
Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel will discuss the senate's fall goals during his State of the Senate address Wednesday. Wesel said he will outline his goals for the senate, and will "try to motivate everyone," he said. His address will also make sure senators understand their duties as stated in the bylaws. In other business, the senate will vote to approve eight new senators who will be recommended by the Legislative Leadership committee, which decided the list Tuesday. Wesel said 18 applications for the eight open seats were received. The senate will also approve additional voter registrars. The senate appointed two of the ten registrars it is allowed at last Wednesday's senate meeting. The registrars must be members of a senate committee and will be instructed on registration procedure in a class this week, he added. The instruction will be given by the Coles County Clerk's office. Wesel said he also plans to submit the minutes of the Summer Senate meetings. However, the minutes must be tabled one week before discussion because they will require bylaw changes. The bylaw revisions concern the specific powers and duties of the Summer Senate and some changes in the Auditing committee. The senate plans to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Stamp a 'veto' on CAA motion

Eastern President Stanley Rives ought to recognize that the structure of the Council on Academic Affairs does not need changing.

A petition currently being circulated among Eastern faculty asks Rives to cut the number of student CAA members from three to two. We believe Rives should not endorse that petition.

Since former CAA member Jane Lasky wrote the petition last spring, faculty members who have signed it did so for two reasons.

The first is that most councils on campus, such as the Council on University Planning and Budgeting, have only two student members. Secondly, faculty signers believe student CAA members ought to be elected by the student body instead of appointed by the student body president.

Faculty members who have refused to sign the petition, such as current CAA chairman Ron Wohlstein, argue the CAA's structure of nine faculty and three student voting members does not merit change.

Beyond the logic of not changing something that is already effective lies the importance of student voices. Voices that are strengthened with voting privileges that provide the student point of view.

The CAA is the body that recommends to Rives any courses or programs that Eastern should offer, change or discontinue. The council recommends courses and programs that students, not faculty, dish out about $1,400 a year to take.

Obviously, three students would better represent the student body's concerns than would two, especially to a council acting on issues of more pertinence to students.

The argument for electing instead of appointing the three student members hinges on "the possibility of a three-block vote," according to CAA faculty member James Quivey.

But Quivey should recognize that past CAA student members often have not voted as a block. They have served as individuals concerned about curriculum.

Rives should take note of how effective the CAA has operated in the past, realize the importance of three student members to the council and appropriately return the petition to Lasky with "vetoed" stamped on Abortion is cure?

Editor:

I would like to add a little to the letter by Anita Kent that appeared in last Friday's issue of The Daily Eastern News.

I was wondering if anyone knew what one of the most prevalent "diseases" in America is? Well, according to the U.S. Congress' Congressional Record, one of the prevalent diseases is pregnancy. (Shocking isn't it to learn that you are the by-product of a disease.) And listed as a cure for this disease is abortion.

Abortion certainly is one of the more controversial issues of the day. However, the word abortion, when it is used as the label for the cure of pregnancy, is nothing more than a euphemism for murder.

There are no authorities in the various fields of science (either pro-lifers or pro-choicers) that deny that life begins at conception, it is just that when the pro-choicers try to justify their position, they conveniently forget to bring it up.

Some may try to justify abortion by saying that tests have shown the child to be deformed or brain damaged. Or maybe the mother was the victim of rape, or possibly the child endangers the life of the mother.

Well, the fact remains that there is life in the womb and a woman who chooses to abort her child, even under these circumstances, is a partner in murder. Sure, the child may not be perfect, but doesn't he have as much a right to life as the rest of us?

I say that the mother is a partner in the murder of her child if she has an abortion and the other partner or partners would be the people actually performing the abortion.

Ever since the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion, doctors have been allowed to perform abortions even when the mother is preparing to deliver. Picture this: a woman is in labor in the delivery room.

All the woman would have to say is "kill it" and the doctor would be empowered to kill the child with only one restriction—the child still has to be within the mother. So, all the doctor has to do is slip the umbilical cord around the child's neck, tighten and hold it until the child has been strangled to death.

Therefore, when the dead child is taken from the mother, the death certificate can be filled out "death due to birth complications." What hypocrisy! It's murder and it's allowed by the law.

What is it in the world that allows even this one example of man's inhumanity to man to be legalized? For one thing, it's our public leaders. We have some like Geraldine Ferraro, who put aside their moral beliefs for the sake of votes. And, also, we have an apathetic majority who just sit back and do nothing.

Thank God that there are some people in the United States, especially President Reagan, who are trying to do something about abortion, but when are the multitudes going to hear the silent cries of the unborn children?

Lotto money can fulfill lots o' dreams

By now, I'm sure everyone has all thought about it; $2 million for the next 20 years. 40 million George Washingtons' just waiting to be spent on something, someone, somehow.

Unless you've been lost in one of the dark corners of Booth Library, I will assume you have all heard of Michael Wittkowski. Mr. Mike, a nice 28-year-old check printer from the North side of Chicago, picked the six winning numbers in the Illinois Lotto Jackpot last week.

"My lifestyle will probably not change," he said. "I've got a beautiful life with a family and a future fiancée."

No change in his lifestyle? Come on Mikey, get a clue.

What would I do if I had actually won that $40 million? That is, after I sobered up.

Looking at things logically, I think my first order of business would be to march right into President Rives' office and plop myself down in one of those nice, easy chairs.

"Dr. Stan, how about you and I go to Ike's for a burger and a beer? Yeah, it's on me this time."

After a few pitchers, sensing that I've gotten him loosened up, I'd hit him with the zinger question. Something like... "Stan, it's like this—I've got something you want and you've got something I want, so let's make a deal. You just put your John Hancock on this little diploma."

It would be as simple as that. I figure a cool million would keep both of us happy, maybe even two, if he got greedy.

Once back home, I'd pack my cameras, pay off the landlord, bid the roommates a fond farewell and hop on the next lear jet I could buy back to Chicago.

Through the lens:

Brian Ormiston

In Chicago, the first thing on the "things-to-do list" would be to get rid of this poor-starving-college-kid image. The new image would be of the rich college grad on the loose spending big bucks in the Windy City. For instance...

—a fire-engine-red Porsche would look good cruising Rush Street.

—my own bar strategically placed somewhere on the Magnificent Mile might be nice.

—a new condo on Lake Shore Drive might be a hit with the ladies.

—but the killer would be the 300-foot cruise ship with the built-in drive range to occupy my time when I'm not hitting the links at the country club or talking trades with my newly-acquired baseball team—the Chicago White Sox.

But then again, even if I had won the lottery, maybe I wouldn't take the money. There would be all those stock brokers, insurance salesmen, bankers, attorneys, accountants and, above all, the tax collector, as well as all sorts of other people trying to manage my life.

No, forget it. I wouldn't want to change my lifestyle. Let me be Joe regular. Just one of the boys. I like being poor.

Besides, with all that money, it would get boring after a while, right?

Wrong.

Sixth book by instructor Malehorn offers almost 1,000 teaching aids

by Lori Edwards

Although having a book published may seem like a difficult task, Eastern education instructor Hal Malehorn has managed to do it again.

Malehorn's sixth published book—The Elementary Teacher's Classroom Management Handbook—was released last week.

The book, published by Parker Publishing Co. of Nyack, N.Y., contains almost 1,000 teaching aids, including ways to provide better instruction and create a more effective learning environment, Malehorn said.

Collecting teaching aids began for Malehorn in 1957 when the superintendent at the school he was teaching at brought in new books that contained little valuable teaching material, he said.

This collection of ideas, he added, has grown to more than 30,000 three-by-five note cards which have been used for classroom instruction, workshops and books.

Using these ideas, Malehorn said, he writes—mainly during the late evening and early morning hours—to help teachers improve their teaching methods better and add spice to their lessons.

He added that he believes he is lucky that his profession and his hobby are one in the same because when he is working on one area, it aids helps other.

In addition to books, every three weeks Malehorn also prints a newsletter on improving instruction for faculty, teacher's assistants and administration.

Malehorn's opinion concerning teaching, he noted, is strong in ideas and practice, with proof to back them up.

He said he is against grades because grades are the "coinage of society. It's sad," that society judges students on grades rather than what they learn.

"Grades are an insult to most students," Malehorn said. They "become grade-grabbers instead of learners."

Instead of working on the normal grading system, he said, he works with a system of contracted learning. His students choose from a variety of projects and work toward a point total.

If a student turns something in that Malehorn believes is incomplete, he said, he has the student go back and add more to it.

In his opinion, Malehorn said, if a student does not learn something the first time he should do it again.

Malehorn said he is also against textbooks. In 1978 he wrote the book Open to Change—Options for teaching self-directed learners.

"It contradicts the best learning theory to have everyone doing the same thing or reading from the same textbook when students are all different," he said.

Malehorn added that he works hard at being a good teacher because teachers become "students of students."

OCSHA aims for long-term goals

by Laura Seymour

The Off-Campus Student Housing Agency will meet Wednesday to discuss new ideas and activities for the fall semester.

OCSHA president Terra Yarbrough said the group will be starting out new this semester with recruiting members as its main goal.

"We need to concentrate on getting new members now, so there will be a smooth transition from the fall semester into the spring semester," Yarbrough said.

She added that she would like a smooth transition so that any projects started in the fall would be completed in the spring.

"I want to pick up four or five big projects and finish them. I don't want any of them half way done."

A few of the goals to be discussed at Wednesday's meeting will be possible ways to improve this spring's Housingfest and putting a new OCSHA booklet together by next spring.

"The booklet will contain a list of apartment complexes, things to know about moving into an apartment and information on how to look for defects and how to hook up things, such as cable TV," Yarbrough said.

In other business, Yarbrough said the group will be looking into an off-campus rookie runner program, but would not comment on any possible details concerning the program.

OCSHA plans to meet at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Government office.

Karate club offering training in self-defense

by Noreen Reilly
If you like to participate in sports, self-defense and to keep in shape, a club which specializes in the martial arts may be your answer.

John Patterson, a junior at Eastern, heads the Shudo-Kan Karate Club, which is affiliated with the National Karate Association. His brother, Mike, organized the club last year because there was usually a waiting list to get enrolled in Eastern's karate class.

"People can use karate as a sport, for self-defense or to keep in shape. Patterson said he thinks a karate program works well in a college setting because the people involved are in the same age group and physically fit because they're younger and in a learning atmosphere.

The philosophies of karate, he said, "are better than that of any other, as far as we're concerned." Karate involves a high level of concentration, which can aid students when trying to study because of the self-discipline that is involved.

Last year the club had about 100 members. His karate class was mostly males, but there were several females in the self-defense class, he said.

Patterson became interested in karate about 2 and a half years ago because he was "a pretty small person and got picked on a lot in high school."

He joined the Shudo Kan Karate Club at Lincoln Land Community College in Springfield and stuck with karate because of the competitiveness. Last year he taught an accredited karate course at Lincoln Land.

Between conducting the classes and working on his own, Patterson said he spends about 20 hours a week practicing karate. "I'm a recreation major and would like to work karate into my career," he said.

Patterson is currently waiting for the club to become official on campus. He plans to take that request to the senate, he said.

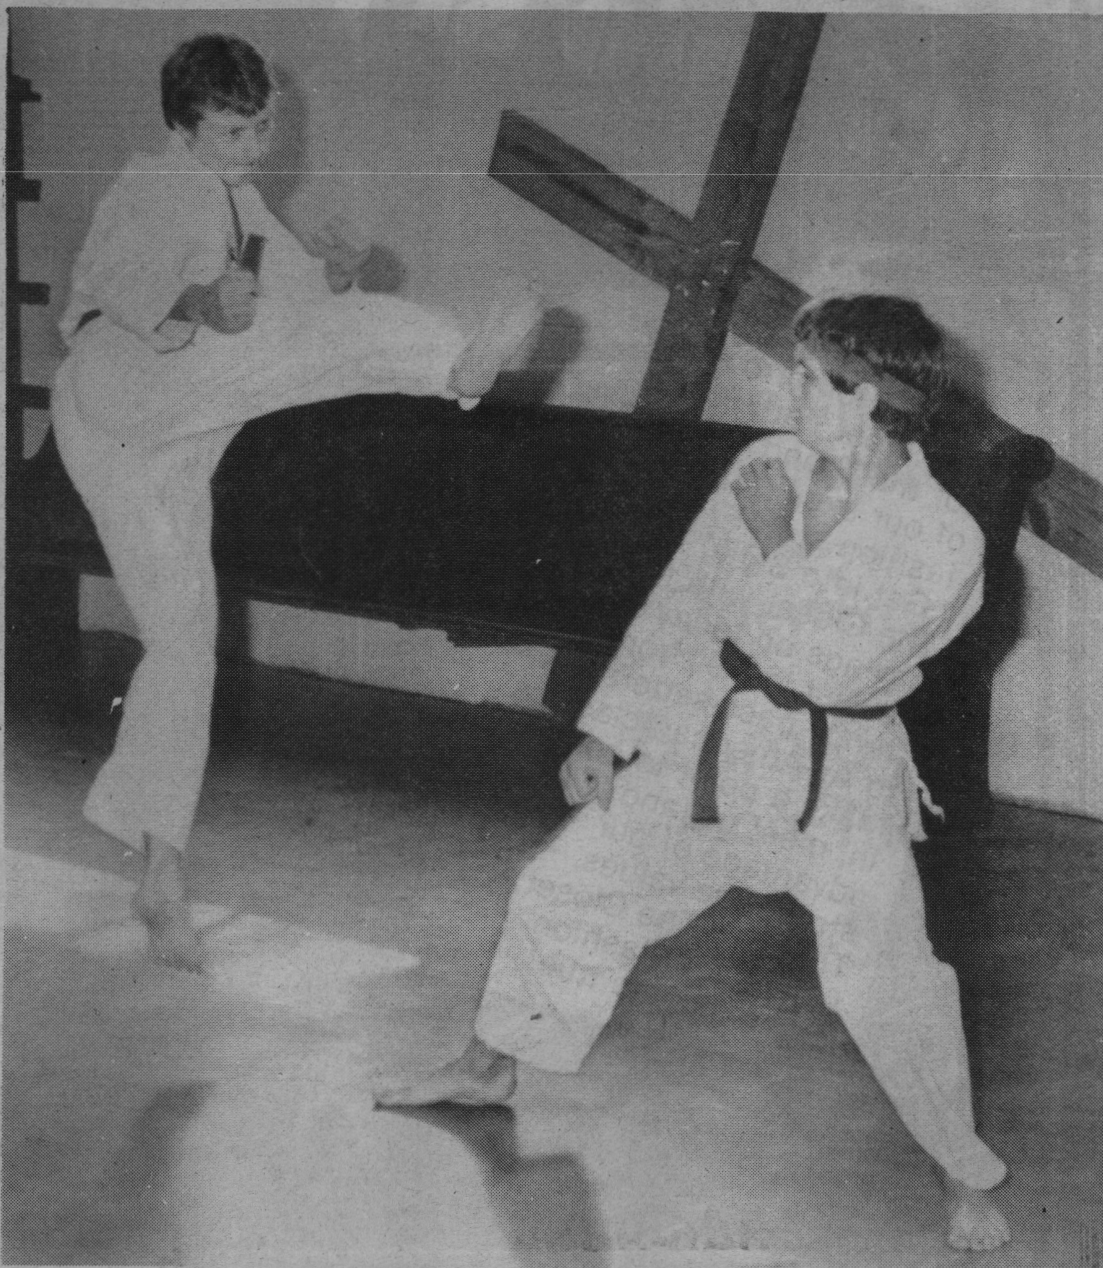

The club began offering free self defense seminars for anyone interested Sept. 5. Patterson is conducting the seminars. He said the objective of the seminars is to teach people "what to do instead of panic."

Patterson also said that the seminars are designed to explain what karate can do for a person and what it can't.

A self defense class will be conducted for 7 weeks, with two meetings each week, Patterson said. A fee of $10 will be charged to cover costs. A person must attend the self defense class more than once or twice if he really wants to learn, Patterson added.

"It's like studying for a test. You read a page once, but it doesn't sink in. You have to go over it a few times to get the complete meaning," he said.

Patterson said anyone interested in the self defense classes should contact him no later than mid-September.

AA ponders new math classes

The Council on Academic Affairs will vote on two new proposed math courses and a motion to change the wording of CAA bylaws regarding the election of a chairman and vice chairman Thursday.

The proposed new math courses, MAT 1270 "Algebra I" and MAT 1271 "Algebra II," would replace MAT 1270 "Algebra" if approved.

Members of the math department will be present at the meeting to discuss the proposed courses.

The motion to change the wording of the bylaws regarding the election of a chairman and vice chairman will be proposed by CAA member Sue Stoner.

The CAA is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

"like it's full blast."

Senior Dave Haring said, "I can hear them but it doesn't matter. We usually have music in the gym so it doesn't matter."

Senior Julie Allen said the band doesn't disturb her, though sometimes she hears them playing.

The band's platform, which was approved from the Athletic Department, was destroyed when the band was warming up for performances at Indiana State University and for the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field.

Because of the vandalism the band did not know how the shows were going to look.

However, Clemons said both performances "were great." He added that "things in Chicago went exceptionally well and we were well received. The band was encouraged by their performance."

Schick swaps ideas with senate

Vice President for Academic Affairs Larry Schick met with the faculty senate Tuesday to become acquainted with senate members. In answering various questions from senate members, Schick said he believes students should be given financial awards based on talent, and not just on grade point averages.

Schick also said students who have high grade point averages should be considered equally with athletes for financial awards.

ing with students." The demand for economics classes increasing at a very rapid pace and it has been increasing for the last three years," Murad said. "It is hard for us to turn students away," Murad added. "They are here and want to study." Political Science Chairman Larry Hansen said he is having similar problems in his department. "We had to turn away quite a few students at adds because we don't have the faculty to create the necessary sections to accommodate everyone," Hansen said. Doug Bock, chairman of the speech department, said classes in the speech department have been full since preregistration. "During central registration we were full by 10 a.m. and the doors opened at nine," Bock said. History Department Chairman Robert Hennings said he could have easily filled two more sections in HIS 2010, "U.S. History to 1877." "That's one course we could have used more sections in if we would have had the faculty," Hennings said. Chemistry department chairman David Ebdon said his department has 23 fewer majors this year than last. "We have been able to do some fancy footwork and we're pretty full but we didn't have to turn anyone away," Ebdon said.

Ex-'Puny Kid,' ex-fifth stringer,
now a 'class act'

Sean Payton is on his way to perhaps his best football season since his days as "just a puny kid" growing up in Naperville.

Wide-eyed and a bit wet behind the ears, Payton, as a high school freshman, merely took in the world around him. "I was just a puny kid glad to be there," he mused.

That was a good perspective, he thought, considering the scarce demand for puny, but certainly not wimpy, high school quarterbacks.

But he did demonstrate a flare for throwing footballs in a town which has always celebrated its high school signal callers. That ability brought Payton to Eastern.

However, his tales of throwing backup for three high school campaigns and earning all-state honors as a senior, ironically parallel his maturity as a college quarterback.

"A lot of maturity has gone on, and when you accomplish something you want to move on," he said. "It's just a good feeling to be a quarterback anywhere."

But it's hardly justifiable to label Payton a great college quarterback. Two games passing for over 300 yards this season isn't enough. Rather, it's an optimistic look toward the future.

Remember, Payton enjoys sophomore status with the Panthers. He'll be around for awhile. He's inexperienced, and no one has to convey that to him. He'll tell you.

He's a class act. His passing efforts are merely encores to a daily demonstration of his overall good nature. He's that nice of a person.

However, there was a time when frustration led him to doubt whether he was a college football player. He wasn't too naive to realize the fact that prep stars don't become instant college successes.

"I use to walk back from the stadium and question if I really wanted to play football. It's hard to keep your head up when you're the fifth quarterback."

Payton has endured. He's a starting college quarterback with the feeling of a young kid growing up through football all over again. He's certainly having fun.

While at Naperville Central, Payton palled around with John Highland, now a college baseball player, who beat him out for the starting freshman job. The two grew up together, like a pair of kids playing in the streets.

But Highland, who transferred to Eastern this fall, doesn't offer advice to Payton anymore. "If he ever tried to tell me anything about being a quarterback I'd laugh," Payton said. "But as freshmen, he was the best quarterback."

Now Payton chums with his backup, and last year's starting quarterback, sophomore John Rafferty. They room together with some other teammates, but hardly wish the other bad luck.

"We sometimes wish the other was a wide receiver instead—it would be easier as best friends," Payton said. "We're not always competing like people would think."

"But he's a bad bumper pool player, so I'll spot him balls. I'm the poor bowler. We're always kidding around, but when we hit the field we just want to win together."

Payton, already deemed by some as the best thing since admission to Eastern football games dropped to 50 cents, is certainly worth a look see.

Saturday afternoon, Payton will make his first start at O'Brien Stadium. Two excellent receivers in Jerry Wright and Roy Banks are his targets, but the concern is winning and not Sean Payton. He said he prefers it that way.

Run for your life

Eastern quarterback Sean Payton scrambles for more time Saturday in the Panther's 24-17 loss to Indiana State. In pursuit is Sycamore defensive tackle Brad Verdun (54). Payton who threw for 323 yards, also scrambled quite a bit, gaining 16 yards on 12 carries. (News photo by Sam Paisley)

Fall golf opensPanthers take fifth place at Indianapolis

by Ken Dickson

Eastern's golf team, which just began its first full fall schedule, placed fifth out of 19 teams at the Indiana Central College Invitational at Indianapolis Monday.

The Panther's Brent Richardson placed third overall with a four-over-par 76, while the medalist, a Ball State University golfer, shot a 75.

Ball State, which placed golfers in the number one and number four slots, took first place in the 18-hole event with a team total 309. Valparaiso University and the University of Louisville tied for second at 320.

St. Joseph's College and Eastern tied for third at 324, but fifth man scores were compared, and Valpo and St. Joseph's took second and fourth places, respectively. Louisville and Eastern settled at third and fifth, respectively.

"We just shot very average," Eastern coach Kevin Anglin said. But if it's any consolation, Richardson said, Eastern played like gang busters in the first meet last spring and then went into a gradual slide the rest of the schedule. Anglin suggested that the team's performance Monday may be indicative of a positive transition.

"We got our feet wet," Anglin said. "Our main focus of the season is the conference tournament and it's over a month away (Oct. 5-6), so we've got plenty of time."

Eastern's team score, which is calculated by adding the top four golfers' scores from each of the schools, translated into the 324 after Richardson's 76, Brent Herrin's 79, Dave Ransom's 83 and Clay Snyder's 86.

The 324-point tie was broken after a St. Joseph's player topped Joe Fremgen's 91.

"Joe just had a bad day," Anglin said of his College of DuPage transfer. "He said he was hitting over a lot of greens. Golf is that way, you can play good one day and have trouble the next."

"I was really impressed with the guys though," Anglin said. "We had a two-hour wait between the time we finished and when the rest of the field got done. The guys left on their own and spent an hour on the driving range working out their problems."

"It made me feel pretty good," Anglin continued. "They could have sat in the clubhouse and sulked, but they went out after 18 holes and hit more balls. They are a very dedicated bunch of guys."

The Panthers' tee-off their next match at 1:30 Sept. 18 at Mattoon Country Club against the University of Illinois and Valparaiso. And although Valpo finished ahead of Eastern Monday, Anglin said he wasn't too impressed with the fellow AMCU conference team.

"We definitely should have beaten them," Anglin said. "They aren't that good, so we plan on winning pretty big at home."

Athletic passes still available at Lantz

Eastern athletic promotions director Kevin Anglin said Tuesday that any student who has paid for, but not picked up his athletic season pass, should do so this week.

The passes can be picked up or purchased for $7 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday at the ticket office in Lantz Gym. Passes can also be claimed from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

The passes can be used for admission to all basketball and football games for the season.

Panthers to face Billikins

by Joseph Anglum
Eastern's women's volleyball team will be looking to get back on the winning track Wednesday when the spikers play host to St. Louis University in a 7 p.m. match at Lantz Gym.

Wednesday won't be the first time the two teams will have met this season. The Panthers defeated the Billikins at the Memphis State tournament this past weekend before falling to eventual champion Mississippi University.

Eastern had virtually no problems with St. Louis as they swept three straight games by scores of 15-7, 15-6 and 15-12.

However, the Billikins do sport a 6-foot-4-inch middle blocker that Eastern head coach Betty Ralston says the Panthers will "have to watch out for."

"We can't get intimidated by her," Ralston said. "She's definitely a factor. She's not a superstar, but she's not dead wood out there either."

Eastern has been hampered lately by lack of practice time. The cross between traveling and playing away from the friendly confines of Lantz have proved to be a deterrent to the team's performance.

Another contributing factor is that the Panthers practice in McAfee Gymnasium but play their home contests in Lantz.

Even with these factors in mind, Ralston feels her squad should be able to play the Billikins to a good match.

"We have to work on our specialty areas this week," Ralston said. "But we should be able to take care of them."

A crowd of 600 was in attendance at last Wednesday's home match against Illinois, and Ralston is hoping that the same kind of fan support will be in attendance Wednesday.

"I hope the fans will give us a chance," Ralston said. "The game against Illinois was the absolute worst that we've ever played. We've never played that bad before."

Virgil, Phillies rally past Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—Ozzie Virgil's two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth inning sparked the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Virgil's grounder was fielded behind second base by Cub shortstop Tom Arzyer, who attempted to flip the ball backhanded to second baseman Ryne Sandberg. The toss was wide and two runs scampered across the plate.

Charles Hudson, 9-10, picked up the victory, while Lee Smith, 9-6, was the loser. Al Holland hurled the ninth inning to record his 29th save.

The loss was the first in six home games for the National League Eastern Division-leading Cubs.

Jeff Stone led off the Phillies' ninth with an infield hit and stole second on a pickoff, his second of three steals in the game. Von Hayes walked and Stone and Hayes executed a double-play.

Mike Schmidt was walked intentionally and Tim Corcoran lifted a fly to short left, too shallow for Stone to score. After Len Matuszek struck out, Virgil singled up the middle, the tying and winning runs crossing the plate.

Your Health Care

SARAH BUSH LINCOLN FOUNDATION
PAYING YOUR HOSPITAL BILLS

None of us plans to be ill or injured. Surgery, special therapy, tests and other treatments, on the other hand, can be planned ahead. It is possible to budget for your important health care expenses just as you would any other major purchase. The Business Office at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center provides just this kind of financial counseling and planning as a free service. The financial counselor can help you understand your hospital bills, your insurance coverage, the provisions of Medicare and Medicaid, and she may know of some additional sources of financial assistance. Anyone can receive these services-you do not have to be a patient.

We believe that good health care planning comes from having the right information from people who know and care.

Call today for your appointment.
