Minuteman test missile explodes over Pacific Ocean

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An unarmed intercontinental ballistic missile was blown up during a test flight over the Pacific Ocean on Thursday because of an undisclosed problem, the Air Force said.

"The destruct signal was sent well into the missile's 30 minute test flight," said Tech. Sgt. Bolinger of the Strategic Aerospace Division's public affairs staff at Vandenberg.

The 78,000-pound Minuteman 3 missile, an ICBM capable of carrying explosives to three separate targets,

Undisclosed difficulties blamed lifted off from an underground silo at 7:04 a.m. for its 30-minute flight across the Pacific Ocean to the Kwajalein Atoll, Sgt. Fred Bolinger said.

"An anomaly occurred during the flight which caused the early termination," Bolinger said.

A team of Air Force and Department of Defense contractor engineers was investigating.

It was not immediately known how close the 60-foot-tall missile got to its target before the destruct command was given, the spokesman said.

Bolinger said there was no danger to anyone in the ocean area where the rocket fell. Its altitude at the time was not disclosed.

The aborted ICBM flight comes at a time when America's space program and missile program has been plagued by failures.

Those include the Jan. 28 shuttle explosion in Florida that killed seven Challenger crew members; the April 18 blow-up of a Titan missile carrying a spy satellite over Vandenberg; the April 25 failure of a Nike-Orion rocket at White Sands, N.M.; the May 3 destruction of an out-of-control Delta rocket in Florida; and last Saturday's destruction of an Aries rocket carrying an X-ray telescope from White Sands.

The last time a Minuteman 3 was destroyed was on Feb. 5, 1985, Bolinger said. Since that time, there have been 10 successful Minuteman launches. Another failure had occurred in February 1983. The cause of those failures was not disclosed.

Moped thefts up from last year

By ERIC WEDEKING
Staff writer

Moped thefts this year have already equaled the total number of motorcycle thefts of last year and a trend may be forming, said Campus Police Chief Tom Larson.

According to Larson, figures for moped thefts have already shown an increase as compared to last year, when only about three of the small motorcycles stolen.

Three mopeds have been reported stolen within the past week, Larson said.

Two mopeds were stolen from campus locations and one at a near campus location, police said.

According to police reports, a 1984 white Honda Spree moped was reported missing from the rear parking lot of an apartment complex located one block south of Lincoln Avenue on Fourth Street. The moped was reported missing by its owner, Melissa Bowman, on Sunday morning.

According to Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson, the owner stated that the moped's front wheel was locked and chained to a utility pole.

On Tuesday, Charleston police officer Rob Conforti discovered the moped parked in an apartment parking lot one block south of Lincoln Avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets.

Johnson said a tow truck was called and the moped was impounded, as is normal procedure.

Currently there are no leads into the investigation, Johnson said.

On Monday morning a black 1986 Honda Spree moped belonging to Scott Pfiel was reported (See MOPED, page 7A)

ISSC decreases stipends by $25 due to fund cut

By JEFF BRITT
Staff writer

Although the maximum Illinois State Scholarship award has increased from last year, most students will receive $25 less than last year.

At its Aug. 11 meeting, the ISSC decided to cut awards because of an unexpected decrease in funding, said ISSC spokesman Bob Clement.

The commission requested $162.4 million to fund the 1986 Monetary Award Program. However, Gov. James Thompson approved only $132.1 million for the program.

ISSC Executive Director Larry Matejka said he did not believe students would be hurt by the cutback.

Matejka said commissioners believed the loss of $25 over a nine-month period didn't seem to be that burdensome to students.

"It's a decision no one likes to make," Matejka said. "We didn't have a whole lot of choices."

It's a decision no one likes to make. We didn't have a whole lot of choices.

—Larry Matejka
ISSC executive director

Matejka said the cutback was necessary in order for the commission to be able to pay second semester awards and was preferable to another proposed plan to move ahead the deadline for fall applications.

"If you do that, basically we'd save two to three million dollars and cut out four to five thousand students from second-semester awards," Matejka said. "The commission is committed to funding students in a year-round process."

The ISSC received a $12.6 million increase for awards to cover an estimated 7-percent tuition increase from state colleges and universities.

The new $3,100 maximum award, a $250 increase from last year, was set by the General Assembly and approved by Thompson. About 105,000 students will receive awards, Clement said.

Matejka said the increase in the maximum award will help students accommodate reductions in Pell grant awards and an average 7-percent tuition increase at state universities.

Thompson signed a bill last week to authorize the commission to process only 320,000 applications. The ceiling on accepted applications began last year, Clement said.

Last year, the commission cut $50 from all second-semester awards because a high number of late applicants cut into its budget.

Convicted spy sentenced

SAN FRANCISCO—Convicted spy Jerry Whitworth was sentenced to 365 years in prison and fined $410,000 Thursday for his role in a spy ring that peddled the Navy's most sensitive communications secrets to the Soviet Union.

Whitworth, convicted on seven counts of espionage, must serve at least 60 years before he will be eligible for parole.

The Navy radioman, called by the government the central figure in the most damaging spy ring in U.S. military history, said just one line as he was sentenced by U.S. District Judge John Vulkasin.

"I just want to say I'm very, very sorry," Whitworth said.

Whitworth, 47, of Davis, Calif., was convicted July 24 of selling to the Walker family spy ring the secrets of Navy decoding equipment, code keys and communications systems he gathered and photographed for nearly a decade as a trusted radio operator at ship ashore stations.

He also was convicted of tax evasion on the $332,000 that he was paid by John Walker Jr., Whitworth's longtime friend, former fellow radio instructor and confessed leader of the spy ring.

EPA: Farm chemical dangerous

WASHINGTON—The Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday that the insecticide-herbicide dinoseb—widely used on fields of soybeans, potatoes, cotton and peanuts—may cause birth defects.

The agency warned pregnant women to avoid contact with the toxic agricultural chemical.

The EPA said it has received studies indicating dinoseb has caused irreversible neurological and skeletal malformation in the offspring of lab animals exposed to the chemical.

EPA's announcement also said other studies show dinoseb causing sterility in male rats and mice. But Al Heier, an agency spokesman, said officials believe dinoseb poses less risk to men than it does to pregnant women.

For women, Heier said, the biggest danger appears to lie in the first three months of pregnancy—a time when some women do not know they are pregnant.

Deputy EPA Administrator James Barnes said the agency plans to take prompt steps to regulate dinoseb, which is an active ingredient in about 180 commercial products, none of them intended for use by homeowners.

Democrats form opposition

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Illinois Democrats "learned a lesson—the hard way" by ignoring two followers of Lyndon LaRouche until their stunning primary upsets, and Democrats in LaRouche's native New Hampshire must be more vigilant, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Thursday.

Simon spoke by telephone from California at a news conference called by state Democratic Party Chairman George Bruno, who has conceded that at least one of three LaRouche candidates for Congress could beat a mainstream Democrat in the Sept. 9 primary.

"The lesson from Germany back in the early 30s is a clear one—don't ignore the fringe groups," Simon said.

"People regarded the Nazi's as a little fringe group that nobody needed to pay attention to," he said. "Suddenly they started creeping up in the polls . . . they got elected, and the rest is history."

Bruno said he called the news conference, attended by all the mainstream Democrats running for Senate and in both of New Hampshire's congressional districts, to educate voters about the existence of LaRouche candidates in all three races.

"I don't think that a LaRouche candidate could be elected to a public office in this state but there is a possibility that unless the public is informed, that one of them could get nomination," Bruno said Wednesday.

But one LaRouche adherent, Senate hopeful Robert Patton, charged that party officials were echoing slanders spread by "the drug lobby" and said, "The slanders don't sell. They scare few people—people who aren't so well educated."

"We represent across the land the policies that used to be represented by the Democratic Party," said Patton.

"We've been all over the state, educating voters," said Patton, who aspires to Republican Warren Rudman's seat. "And people are listening. That's what happened in Illinois."

In March Illinois primary, Mark Fairchild won the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor and Janice Hart the nomination for secretary of state, defeating allies of Adlai Stevenson, who won the gubernatorial nomination and subsequently resigned. Stevenson refused to run on a ticket with Fairchild and now is mounting a third-party campaign.

Airline washed up without capital

DENVER (AP)—Robert Joedicke, an airline analyst for the New York investment firm Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., had said earlier that even if Frontier filed under Chapter 11 to reorganize, he did not see how it would be possible to be put back into operation.

"It has no working capital left. Their remaining assets are not of great magnitude," Joedicke said.

People Express, the discount airline company that bought Frontier in November as part of an ill-fated expansion, shut it down Sunday because Frontier had run out of money and faced an immediate $5 million payment.

Frontier reportedly lost an average of $10 million a month during the first six months of this year and put heavy pressure on People

Express, which now faces serious financial problems of its own.

United failed to reach agreement with the Air Line Pilots Association on a timetable for merging Frontier pilots into United's 60 percent higher pay scale.

A Boeing 737 pilot at Frontier was paid $68,000 a year, compared with $115,000 at United.

Jamie Lindsay, ALPA vice chairman, said United's offer would have given Frontier pilots parity with the United wage scale over five years. The union wanted it in 30 months.

Frontier's closure has put its 4,700 employees out of work and affected about 17,000 ticketholders per day.

Women gather outside the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority house for rush week activities. Friday marks the end of sorority rush week with Pledge Day.

Fraternity bus tour kicks off men's rush

By DONELLE PARDEE
Assistant activities editor

Just as Eastern's sorority rush is winding down with Pledge Day on Friday, fraternity rush is beginning Tuesday with a bus tour.

Interfraternity Council Secretary John Barrett said the bus tour was designed to take interested men to visit to all of the fraternity houses.

This gives the men an opportunity to talk with the members of each house and get a first impression of greek life, Barrett said.

"It's an unbiased way to show rushees all the houses because we will be at each house for only 10 minutes," he said.

Barrett said they started bus tours because they needed a way to introduce the men to each house. He also said the sororities have rush counselors which are called rho chis.

"A rho chi is a sorority member that gives up her sorority identity in order to take girls around to each sorority house before rush starts," Barrett said.

This is the first year the fraternities participated in an all-dry rush. Barrett said this could cause only men who really want to be a part of a greek life to go through rush, not just those who were there to drink beer.

"We may get less guys to pledge, but we will have more quality," he said.

"The men will have a better idea what they are getting into," Barrett said, adding that IFC is positive about the dry rush.

Barrett said dry rush may also help the smaller fraternities. "It helps bring about a closer brotherhood," he said.

Barrett said IFC had a table at Tuesday's Organization Day to sign up men for the bus tour and will be signing up men in the Union all week starting Tuesday.

The sororities started their rush with an open house Sunday so rushees could get a chance to see all the different houses and what they had to offer.

Monday was the starting date for sorority rush parties. This gave interested girls a chance to get to know the members of the sorority of their choice.

Charleston residents hope to find MD cure

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

All Virginia Richelderfer wants to do is find a cure.

Richelderfer has been coordinator of the Charleston Muscular Dystrophy Telethon pledge center for eight years and with her husband, John, co-chairs the Charleston-area Muscular Dystrophy organization.

"Someday they're going to find a cure," she said. "I just hope they find it soon," Virginia said.

"Those kids are so brave and so wonderful and so strong," she said. "I'm so softhearted. Everybody around them has to be strong, too."

John and Virginia both credited their own healthy children as the reason for getting involved with the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"Between my wife and I—we both have children from previous marriages—we raised eight healthy kids," John said. "To see healthy kids and then to see kids that are in this shape—if I could help one kid in this shape, it would make it all worthwhile."

Having had polio when he was younger, John said he knows what it is like to be seriously ill.

Virginia said, "I felt like that when you have healthy children you should help those who are less fortunate. We just felt like we owed something for our healthy kids."

"We have one young man here in Charleston," she said, "who has MD. He is the cutest little kid I've ever seen."

"His parents don't want it known (who he is or that he has it) because they want him to lead as normal of a life as possible," she said.

John said the young man is expected to die by the time he is 16 if a cure is not found.

The Charleston-area telethon headquarters will be at the Charleston Moose Lodge, 615 Seventh St., and will be open between 8 p.m. Sunday and 5:30 p.m. Monday.

The Charleston organization, which usually raises between $7,000 and $10,000 every year, has already raised

Pledge center coordinator

$2,715 in the five events which have been held so far this year.

"We'd like to get one dollar more than last year," he said.

Earlier in the year the Moose Club held a supper dance and raised $635. The Walmart employees participated in a bowl-a-thon and raised $155.

The Charleston Jaycees sponsored a bowl-a-thon at the Eastern bowling lanes and raised $143. The Ninth annual softball tournament was held two weeks ago at Baker Field and $469 was raised.

The most money collected came from a group of Eastern students, the Sigma Pi fraternity. The fraternity held a Shramrock Tag Day, which collected $1,312.

During Labor Day Weekend, while the National Muscular Dystrophy Association Telethon is airing, the Richelderfers will be coordinating both a fishbowl and three phone lines for people donating money.

John will be outside with the fishbowl. He said the fishbowl raises an average of $2,000 every year. People dumping in $30 or more will receive a green MDA t-shirt.

Inside will be three people answering phones, one on an adding machine and one sorting out pledges, John said.

Between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday, the person who brings in the most money will get their choice of a "jam box," John said, or a black and white television. Second prize is whichever prize the first place person does not choose.

John said most of the money raised in Charleston will stay here to help local children.

High-priced beer has students foaming at the mouth

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

Eastern students will need to have a little more money this year if they plan on drinking pitchers of beer.

Among the many other changes greeting students as they returned this week was an increase in pitcher prices at many of the Charleston bars.

Mother's, 506 Monroe, Page One Tavern, 410 Sixth St., and the Uptowner/Cellar, 623 E. Monroe St. have all raised their pitcher prices from $3 to $3.50.

Tim Ipema, a graduate assistant in English, is outraged at the price hike.

"I think it's another manipulation of the city to take advantage of the student body as a whole—that is especially certain financially disadvantaged students—without those realizing it," he said.

Gonzalo Ascarrunz, a senior political science major from Bolivia, said that he wasn't the least bit discouraged by the rise in prices, nor was it going to affect his drinking habits.

"I don't think anything could decrease my beer consumption," he said. "I'll just eat less."

There are several factors which could contribute to a price hike, said senior Chris Scroggins, a graphic design major who works at Friends & Co., 509 Van Buren. The distributor could raise his prices or there is the usual price increase around January every year.

"The distributors' prices really haven't gone up," he said. "The last time our prices went up was January."

Ronchetti Distributing, 2621 Lakeland Blvd., had no one available for comment Wednesday or Thursday.

Kathleen Polanek, a senior environmental biology and zoology major, has already become quite discouraged by the increase.

"I think it's pitiful," she said. "Why are they (the prices) raised anyway? Are they trying to screw the students around or what?"

Although she said she hardly ever bought pitchers before the price increase, Polanek said, "Now I won't ever, for sure."

Some bars have found a way to keep students from becoming discouraged by high prices by offering specials. Thirsty's, 221 6th St., combats the prices by offer a $1.25 special on pitchers for one hour every Thursday night.

Alcohol abuse should not be overshadowed

Issues sometimes are too much like fads. When a new issue becomes a major topic of the day, usually an old issue is ignored and forgotten.

Drug use, especially the use of cocaine, is a hot topic today. It is not that drug use is so new, but national attention was focused on the issue again this summer after the cocaine-induced deaths of two young, prominent athletes.

Eastern President Stanley Rives properly put the issue of drug use in perspective. Alcohol is a greater problem at this institution than is the use of hard drugs like cocaine, he said this week.

We don't think that anyone denies that drug use can be dangerous and can create problems. However, we doubt that the problem of drug use has grown over the summer. Only the attention that is being given to the problem has grown.

So, as drastic measures are being contemplated on how to combat this "new" problem, take some time to think about one of our old ones.

Alcohol is part of college life. For some students it is a large part, almost the only part, of college life. It is much more prevalent at Eastern than hard drugs, and therefore the potential is much greater for it to become a problem.

Students should be aware of the substance-abuse counseling that the university offers through the Counseling Center. Knowing when to seek help is not easy, but if someone's alcohol or drug use begins to create problems for friends and family, or even the university, it may be time to get counseling.

Bud Sanders, Eastern's counseling director, said 92 percent of the students here use alcohol. Moderation is the key to prevent that use from becoming abuse.

Letter policy

The Daily Eastern News welcomes letters to the editor from any reader addressing issues relating to the campus community.

The name and telephone number of at least one author must be submitted with each letter to the editor.

Only the first three names from letters containing more than three authors will be published unless further specified.

Letters submitted without a name (or a pseudonym)-or without a telephone number or other means of verifying authorships will not be published.

Who's hiding what from whom?

Picture this: I make this incredibly powerful weapon that can destroy a whole city in about five seconds.

Now being the careless slob that I am, I kind of drop it from an airplane accidentally. It's over deserted land and no one saw me do it.

I happened to be real lucky and no one was hurt. The only real damage was a crater 12 feet deep and 25 feet in diameter. So I figure, what you don't know won't hurt you so I don't tell you about it.

But gosh darn it, thirty years later some of those nosy newspaper reporters look through my records of it and tell you what I did.

This may sound kind of preposterous, but it really happened.

In 1957, good ol' Uncle Sam accidentally dropped a 42,000 pound thermonuclear bomb, one of the most powerful ever made. There was no nuclear blast but some non-nuclear explosives were triggered and they did find traces of radioactivity in the crater.

No one is sure how much explosive power the bomb contained but some experts believe it was more than 10 megatons, or ten million tons of dynamite. Compare this to the largest weapon in the U.S. arsenal today which is nine megatons.

The bomb that was dropped on Hiroshima at the end of World War II was only 16 kilotons, a mere fraction of the bomb in the accident. We all know what that bomb did.

I don't know about you, but this scares me a tad bit. I don't profess to be an expert on nuclear weaponry. But I do know that dropping bombs and saying, oops, I won't tell anybody if you won't, doesn't make me feel too safe.

This new revelation really makes me wonder if another accident happened and people might have been hurt.

It's stuff like this that makes me wonder what I'm not being told about and what kind of minds are deciding what I should know.

Personal file:

Larry Smith

Don't get me wrong; I'm not saying the government should tell us everything it does, but why does it take 30 years? Count'em, three decades. In some families there are two generations that weren't even born yet.

If accidents like that can happen, it is really depressing if you think that we have thousands more missiles and bombs. I'm not a mathematician, but don't the chances of an accident increase with the number of nuclear weapons?

You may be saying to yourself, "This happened 30 years ago," but, what has happened in the last decade, year, week or yesterday that they're not telling us about?

Just recently, when a top secret plane crashed in California, military police moved in quickly and sealed off the area to any spectators.

What was on that plane? Why won't the military acknowledge what kind of plane crashed?

National Security is probably the answer government officials will give you.

But what are we securing ourselves from? The enemies outside our borders or the incompetents within our borders?

If another bomb accidentally drops, it might explode the nuclear charge and kill millions of people. Do we really want to mess around with these?

With the U.S. military's record on telling us about a boo boos, World War III might be started because of another accident.

Do you think they will tell us about that?

Brother Jed to 'bless' campuses with visits

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—Evangelist George E. Smock, known as "Brother Jed" to the students who've jeered and abused him for more than a decade, is looking forward to another year of preaching on campuses from coast to coast.

Smock usually makes a stop on Eastern's campus and has been known to cause quite an upstir of emotion.

In years past Smock has been known to have scuffles with other preachers while vying for student attention.

He and his band of followers, known formally as The Campus Ministry and informally as the "Destroyers," are coordinating their itineraries with college schedules in the hope they can lead tomorrow's leader down a path of Christianity and away from sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll.

"This generation has become amoral," Smock claims, saying students are defending sexual promiscuity and drug use. "They refuse to admit it's wrong."

"We believe college students are the key ones to reach," Smock, entering his 12th year of touring campuses, has traveled to more than 500 schools in every state but Alaska. He usually attracts afternoon gatherings of a few hundred students or less, but has become a fixture at many colleges.

During a recent interview at his summer home in Terre Haute, Smock admitted his message, usually presented in strident tones with epithets aimed at abusive students, finds few receptive ears.

"It's definitely a small percentage. We probably turn most people off . . . so did Jesus and the Apostles. They told people things they didn't want to hear. But we think we have an influence. We get people thinking," he said.

The son of an English professor, Smock, 43, said he once was a hippie drug user who fled to the tranquility of Moroccan beaches to smoke hashish. "I dropped out of society for a while," he said.

But an encounter there with an Arab carrying a cross on Christmas Day and a reunion with a high school classmate preaching to teen-agers in a Terre Haute parking lot changed his curse.

Now he's changing lives, including that of his wife, Sister Cindy, 28, whom he met while crusading at the University of Florida, and an associate, Brother Jim Gilles, 24, who says he was reborn at a Van Halen show after hearing former lead singer David Lee Roth proclaim, "Not even God can save your soul at a Van Halen concert."

Smock's preaching almost always provokes verbal attacks and sometimes physical assaults, but Smock relishes the attention his visits attract.

Smock was banned from the Princeton campus for one year after a fervent follower jumped a woman who had questioned Smock's ideas. At Ohio University, he says he's been hit with a pie in the face, sprayed with beer and had a cherry bomb explode next to his head, leaving a ringing in his ears for several years.

Last year at the University of Wisconsin, he was knocked to the ground and sprained an ankle, forcing him to preach on crutches for several weeks.

There's no question about his politics, with which he laces his sermons. He's added South Africa to his agenda, spent two months there this summer and in late July announced the establishment of "Americans for South Africa," a group he hopes will "combat the distortions and misinformation flooding the American public."

Smock fears divestment by American corporations, a cause taken up on many campuses, will create an atmosphere in which the African National Congress will seize power and embrace the Soviet Union and communism.

...ing to campus police. Pfiel told police he parked his scooter in the portion of the Carman Hall parking lot reserved for motorcycles.

"I can't believe anyone from around here would do anything like that," Pfiel replied concerning the theft of his moped.

Thursday, Larson said the station received an anonymous phone call that said the stolen scooter could be found in a cornfield behind Carman Hall.

The moped was recovered, but the case is still under investigation, Larson said.

Mary Irving reported her moped stolen and had it returned to her after police recovered the vehicle after a routine traffic stop.

Early Tuesday morning, Campus Police Officer Chris Stone observed two people riding on a scooter that was traveling from Grant Avenue onto Fourth Street without the headlight turned on.

Stone followed the moped to the White Hen Pantry, 200 E. Lincoln Ave., and observed one of the passengers dismount the moped to enter the store.

Officer Stone attempted to question the driver of the moped about the headlight, but the driver escaped on foot.

Stone didn't apprehend the driver, but brought the passenger in for questioning.

Larson said the increase in moped thefts reflects an increase in ownership of mopeds, as well as the ignorance of those doing the stealing. Larson noted that in many cases the thieves don't realize the offense is considered a felony.

"If a person is caught stealing a moped, the Class IV felony charges brought against them could bring anywhere from one to four years with the possibility of probation, depending on the circumstances," Larson said.

Johnson advised students to "find the most secure area possible and keep your moped or bicycle locked at all times."

Privacy Act Rights

Under the Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, each student of Eastern Illinois University is granted the right to inspect and review his education records in accordance with the policies and procedures adopted by the University to implement the Act.

Copies of the Eastern Illinois University policy on the Privacy Rights of Eastern Illinois University Students are available in the Office of University Relations, 111 Old Main.

A student requesting access to his education records shall proceed as follow:

1. A student wishing to review his education records shall complete a request to inspect personal records at the designated office where those records are maintained.

2. A student shall be granted review of his education records as soon as possible and no later than 45 days after receipt of his request. The specific time and location for such review shall be determined by the custodian of the record.

The Custodian shall ensure that the student (a) has filed a written request, (b) presents appropriate identification, (c) views only his record, and (d) reviews his own record under appropriate supervision.

3. Records or portions of records may be provided to the student upon request for a fee which covers the cost to the university for copying the record. The amount charged shall be copying charges regularly established by the university.

4. A student may challenge the content of his education record on the basis that one or more items are misleading, inaccurate, or otherwise inappropriate. He may request that the item(s) be amended, corrected, or deleted. (Grade appeals are administered under a separate university policy.)

If his challenge is not resolved to his satisfaction, the student may make a formal request for a hearing on a form available at the designated office where the records in question are maintained.

The student and custodian of the records shall thereafter schedule a meeting with a review officer appointed by the President. An ad hoc committee of faculty and administrative personnel, appointed by the President, shall act as an appeal review committee in the event a challenge is not resolved. The review committee shall conduct its hearing according to established federal regulations and report its decision within 14 calendar days from the date of the request for a hearing. All decisions may be appealed to the President.

If a student believes that the university has failed to comply with requirements of the Act, he may make a formal complaint to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Office (FERPA) of the Department of Education.

Students are herein advised that it is university policy to forward appropriate education records on request to a school in which a student seeks or intends to enroll.

The following is a list of student records maintained by the University, including the location and custodian of each:

Barometer meet

Harriers battle alumni in opener

by DINO TIBERI
staff writer

Women's cross country coach John Craft is looking toward Saturday's alumni meet for an indication of how his team is looking after a summer of hard work.

The meet will be a non-scoring one which will be run with the men, and the women's team from Purdue, Craft said.

He also said that he will be taking a low-keyed approach to the meet, as they will only have a few practices before Saturday.

Craft said that he is excited about the prospects of this year's squad, which has a good blend of youth and experience.

Captain Janine Jarris, a senior, is the leader of the team, according to Craft. "She has worked very hard this summer and she is very capable of getting her time down under 18 minutes" (for 3.1 miles), Craft said.

He added that she was down to about 18:09 before being injured last season and that Jarris is very excited about the upcoming season.

Senior Kerry Sperry from Litchfield, is "a hard-nosed runner who has made a lot of improvement," Craft said. "She ran quite a bit over the summer and has worked hard."

Craft is also expecting good things from sophomore Marcy Novak, who has a real positive attitude about the season.

This will be the first season of cross-country running for Lauren Lynch, who is the school record holder of the half-mile run. "Lauren is a gutsy competitor who will become a good distance runner for us," Craft said.

Junior Tracy Olawumi is another runner who Craft will be counting on to have a good season. Sophomore Lorri Plutz and freshman Lisa Albro, who will be beginning her first season of cross country, are also being counted upon to bolster the team's success.

Craft said that he hopes to place in the upper five teams in the Gateway Conference and that the league will have some strong teams again, such as Southern Illinois, Drake, Western Illinois and Wichita State.

Craft also said that anyone interested in running for the team should contact him at 581-6007.

Veteran back opts to stay with St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Veteran defensive back Dennis Thurman, the NFL's interception leader among active players, joined some old friends with the St. Louis Cardinals on Thursday.

St. Louis claimed the eight-year veteran, but the option of refusing the waiver claim by St. Louis and declaring himself a free agent.

But he decided to join the Cardinals after talking with Gene Stallings, the former Dallas defensive secondary coach who now is head coach of St. Louis, and Larry Wilson, the Cardinals director of pro personnel.

Thurman will find two other familiar faces on the Cardinals coaching staff—Jim Shofner, the Cowboys quarterback coach who is Stallings' offensive coordinator; and secondary coach Mel Renfro, the former Cowboy all-pro cornerback who Thurman said signed him to his original Cowboys contract in 1978.

"Gene said my role will basically be the same as the last two years with the Cowboys," Thurman said. "I will be in the pass situation defense. The systems are a lot alike. Gene made me feel wanted. He said, 'If I didn't want you, I wouldn't have claimed you.'"

To make room on the roster for Thurman and defensive end Al "Bubba" Baker who signed a contract this week after holding out most of training camp, the Cardinals placed veteran linebacker Bob Harris on the injured reserve list and cut rookie safety Kent Kafentzis, the ninth-round draft pick this year out of Hawaii.

The Cowboys' release of Thurman was greeted with dismay by several Dallas players, who called Thurman a valuable leader of the team and particularly the secondary, even as a non-starter. They likened him to a coach on the field.

With the Cardinals, he will back up starting safeties Leonard Smith and Lonnie Young.

On Wednesday, the Cardinals signed veteran running back Ottis Anderson, the club's all-time leading rusher, to a new three-year contract.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported that Anderson's base salary would be about $450,000. Incentives could push his salary into the $600,000 range, the newspaper said.

Anderson is the NFL's 11th all-time leading rusher with 7,845 yards, and needs only 238 yards to pass Larry Csonka on the list.

The signing ended weeks of negotiations between the club and Anderson, who was about to enter the option year of a contract that he signed as the team's No. 1 draft choice in 1979.

Panthers make a date with Gateway foe ISU

By DAN VERDUN
Sports editor

Saturday marks an important date on Eastern's football calendar. That's the night the 18th-ranked Panthers open their 1986 season by traveling to Illinois State.

The game, the 76th meeting between the Panthers and Redbirds, will take on added significance since it will also mark the Gateway Conference opener for both teams.

"It's a very, very important conference game," Eastern coach Al Molde said. "I think both coaches would rather not open with a conference game, but that's the way it is."

Molde also noted the added pressure of opening on the road.

"It's tough to open on the road and plus we also have to play on artificial turf, which could be a factor (in the game)," Molde said.

Last season Eastern stumbled in its opener by losing on the road to Division-II Northeast Missouri 31-24.

The game figures to be a matchup of Eastern's high-powered offense against ISU's stingy veteran defense.

The Redbirds, 6-3-2 last season, return nine starters on a defense which was ranked first in the Missouri Valley Conference in yards allowed and was tops in the Gateway for points given up a year ago.

Spearheading the ISU defense is a trio of preseason Sporting News All-Americans: linebacker Brian Gant, defensive back Jeff Smith and defensive tackle John Kropke.

"The defense certainly has the ability to have the kind of season it had last year, but we have to stop the big play," sixth-year ISU coach Bob Otolski said.

In order for the Redbirds to stop the big play Saturday, ISU must contain the multi-weaponed Panther offense sparked by All-Americans Sean Payton at quarterback and Roy Banks at wide receiver.

"They have an explosive passing

Game time corrected

Saturday's Eastern football game at Illinois State's Hancock Stadium will start at 6:30 p.m.

Some preseason Panther schedules had incorrectly listed the starting time as 7:30 p.m.

offense and a quarterback who really throws the ball well," Otolski said.

However, it isn't only Payton and Banks with which ISU must contend.

Versatile junior running back DuWayne Pitts provides the Panthers with both a running and pass catching threat out of the backfield.

Pitts, Banks and senior slotback Calvin Pierce ranked as the Gateway's top three receivers last season.

Meanwhile, ISU has a young, unproven offensive unit which returns just two starters from a year ago. Consequently, a pair of Drake transfers, quarterback Ed Cheatham and fullback Marty Casper, are being counted upon heavily.

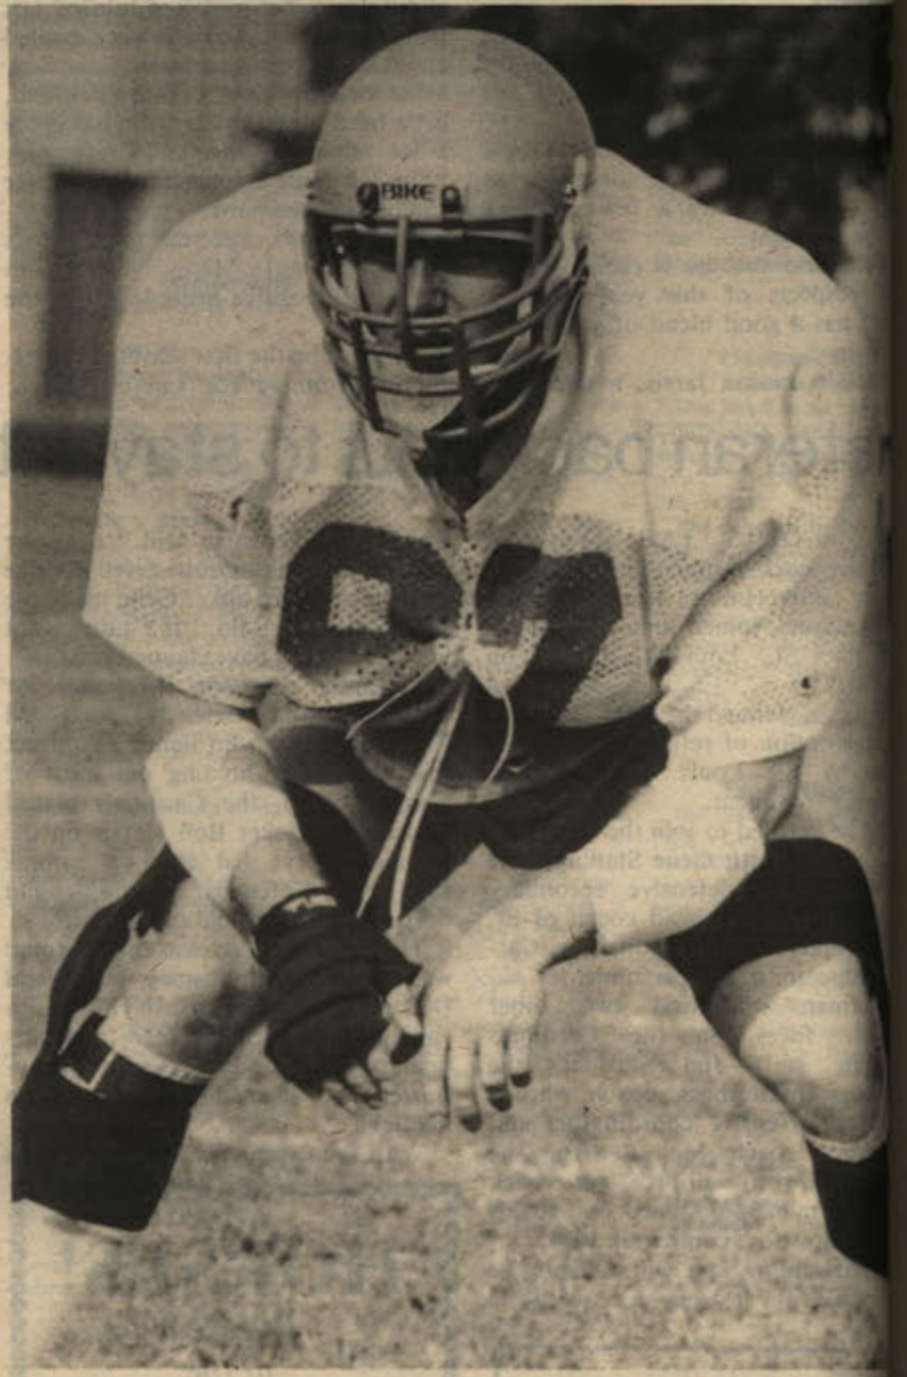

"On offense, we've changed a few things to take advantage of the maneuverability of our quarterback," Otolski said. "We might roll out more than you've seen from our quarterbacks."

Should the game come down to special teams, ISU appears to have the advantage. The Redbirds return senior kicker Paul Politi, an honorable mention All-American last season.

"We'll just have to go up there and see what happens," Molde said. "I feel good about our potential."

ISU leads the all-time series 38-29-8. Last year, the Panthers defeated the Redbirds 21-14 at O'Brien Stadium on Homecoming.

Eastern has won six of the last eight games in the series. The last time the teams met in Normal, the Panthers bombed ISU 38-7 in the 1983 season opener.

Panther defender Rick Zeimann sets up for a play in a recent practice. Zeimann and junior Mike Briscoe have the starting nod at outside linebacker for Saturday's contest against Gateway Conference rival Illinois State.

Bears' rookie to miss final NFL preseason bout

LAKE FOREST (AP)—Vestee Jackson's campaign for a starting cornerback job suffered a mild setback Thursday when Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said a bad back clouded the rookie's readiness for the Bears' final NFL exhibition contest.

All things considered, Saturday's game might be the best one of the preseason bouts for the second-round draft choice to miss.

That's because the Buffalo Bills will be unveiling Jim Kelly, a quarterback already considered among the game's finest—even though he hasn't thrown a single pass in the National Football League.

The former passer for the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League last week signed a contract reportedly worth between $7.5 million and $8 million for five years.

Jackson, however, might not be one of defenders who force him to earn it Saturday.

The Washington product has suffered from back spasms all week and his status for Saturday's clash at Notre Dame Stadium in South Bend, Ind., remains questionable, said the spokesman Bryan Harlan.

But linebacker Otis Wilson says not to worry.

"When I hit him ... I'm going to ask him about how many points he thinks he can score on us," said the Pro Bowl linebacker.

Spikers open at Huskie Invitational

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

Eastern's volleyball team will get the chance to show its stuff when they open the season at the Northern Illinois Huskie Invitational this weekend.

With a trip to California coming up next week, coach Betty Ralston believes the team is at least ready and eager to get into competition. The Panthers are hoping to rebound from last year's roller coaster season which ended with a disappointing 16-17 mark.

Ralston admits the team enters the Northern tournament a little blindly, but the other three teams are in the same boat with this being the first tournament of the season.

"They're ready to play—mentally," she said. "But we could always use more practice. Overall we're looking strong. We've been intense in practices."

The Panthers open the round-robin tournament with Loyola at 6 p.m. Friday. They come back Saturday with matches against Northern Illinois at 10 a.m. and Bowling Green at 3 p.m.

Eastern lost to Loyola in four games last year. Ralston believes the Ramblers will be a little more experienced since they have the opportunity to play in city leagues in the Chicago area.

"They run a pretty fast offense, so our middle blockers are going to have to be ready," Ralston said. "Our blocking definitely looks better this year than it has in the past two years."

Saturday's match with Northern will be the first meeting between the two teams in two years. Ralston knows what to expect as the Huskies return two veteran starters of four years.

One test the Panthers will have is seeing how they handle the switch to a 6-2 rotation from a 5-1 which they used last year.

The 6-2 set-up offers the advantage of having the hitters in the front row at all times.

"We felt we lost a lot of points (with the 5-1) last year," Ralston said.

However, the loss of third setter LeAnn Thomas who quit the team last week, leaves the Panthers with only two setters, Jeanne Pacione and Donna Sibley. Should an injury situation arise at a setter position the team would be forced to go back to the 5-1 rotation.

One consolation to the loss of Thomas was the addition of another outside hitter, sophomore Paul Frigo, who joined the team this week.

Ralston had recruited Frigo out of high school but decided the team didn't need an outside hitter of that height, 5-8, last season.

We've changed —a little, anyway

Hello, and welcome to On the Verge of the Weekend.

On the What?

Relax, it's just a name change. And a logo change. And a format change.

But really, things are basically just the same as they have been in the past . . . sort of.

We—by we I mean myself and the "powers-that-be" on the executive side of The Daily Eastern News—have decided to give The Verge its old name back. And with that, we hope to redefine its purpose for the readers.

On the Verge of the Weekend is intended for entertainment purposes only. Our goal is to keep you informed of the weekend happenings, in addition to keeping you interested through various feature stories and photos.

In the past, The Verge has focused on a weekly

New sounds from Case, Jazz Butcher and more

By DOUG CLOSE
staff writer

Most students miss out on great music released during the summer because it is only played on campus radio stations. The following mini-reviews represent some of the best albums of the summer. The following selections can be requested and heard on WEIU (88.9 FM).

Peter Case (Geffen). This ex-Plimsoul leaves his old sound "A Million Miles Away" and shows his roots. This new American rock-folkie is not only bright but a musical genius. Case hires producer T-Bone Burnett (Elvis Costello, Bob Dylan) and they generate one of the best albums of the year.

Case's gritty vocals, personalized lyrics and acoustically oriented songs are delightful from start to finish. Rolling Stone magazine calls this an "unusually strong solo debut, it's a pull-out-the-steps masterpiece, an Americanized Imperial Bedroom." Hell, Bruce Springsteen bought it.

True Believers (EMI). Just as Jason and the Scorchers grinded their way out of Nashville with their guitars, the True Believers are riding the wave of American music out of Austin. The Believers' desert-country-rock sound packs a trio of perfectly interwoven guitars proving most "border patrol" rockers wimpy. Excellent production, chemistry and unforgettable guitar riffs combine to make a superb album.

The Jazz Butcher/Bloody Nonsense (Big Time). A record that touches all bases with pure originality. The Jazz Butcher is the newest of the angry young men from the U.K. combining the beat of Graham Parker, the jazz of Joe Jackson, the delicacy of Elvis Costello and the funk of Ian Dury. Then, add an unstable mentality writing socially conscious lyrics and this best accounts for an almost indescribable album.

This album is entertainment from the soft, funky beginning to the country-rockin' end.

Mojo Nixon and Skid Roper/Frenzy (Restless). Picture this: Earnest T. Bass ("The Andy Griffith Show") jumping around, strumming Andy's guitar and singing whatever is on his mind. Then, add some guy banging a stick on a washboard and hitting a bell. Wow! That describes this duo.

Hilarious, psychotic, blues, boogie and a touch of C&W melt into an album sure to please your grandparents. "Stuffin' Martha's Muffin," a song about Mojo's lust for Martha Quinn, will make any party a success.

Alex Chilton/No Sex (Big Time). Alex Chilton has made great music over the years with The Box Tops ("The Letter"), Big Star and sparse solo outings. This three-song EP is worth the price of admission just for the AIDS-related song, "No Sex." Chilton will, no foolin', make your feet tap with his bluesy, country-ish rock 'n' roll. Hopefully, an LP is in the making.

R&B Cadets/Top Happy (Twin/Tone). Duke Ellington once said, "Keep your top happy," and this album will. The Cadets give us a music history lesson using gospel, blues, '40s swing and soul. Understanding nobody can come close to the original sounds, the Cadets do a damn good job. An album to be played several times.

Bobby McFerrin/Spontaneous Inventions (Blue Note). A master of vocalization, McFerrin creates extraordinary sounds of bass guitars, saxophones, harmonicas and some sounds yet to be classified. He sometimes sings at the same time while improvising songs in a jazz format. McFerrin and Robin Williams on "Beverly Hills Blues" highlight this very interesting album.

The Celibate Rifles/The Turgid Miasma of Existence (Rough Trade). The Celibate Rifles (Sex Pistols, get it?) from "Down Under" explode on your turntable with their harsh, twisted pop-rock. Low-key vocals narrate simplistic political statements while backed with crashing guitars bursting into psychedelic solos. This record will please Clash fans and maybe even Squeeze fans.

This column will be written weekly and will include reviews, music news, local events and any answers to questions readers may have. Please direct your comments, ideas and questions to Doug Close, WEIU-FM, 139 Buzzard Building.

We've

theme. In some cases, theme Verges were successful; in others, they fell flat, usually because the themes weren't strong enough to carry the story ideas.

I'm going to steer away from the theme format—not that I'm sick of themes, and in fact I will use them whenever they're applicable, such as "On the Verge of Homecoming Weekend" or "On the Verge of Parents Weekend." But on a weekly basis, I think themes are best avoided.

I plan to keep you informed on what there is to do at Eastern and in the east central Illinois area in terms of concerts, theater, lectures, arts, etc.

Also, I'd like to keep readers up-to-date on what's going on in the entertainment industry through "Top 10" listings for albums, videos and even books, and also through reviews of television, movies and albums.

Above all, I want you to find On the Verge of the Weekend to be entertaining, so we're hoping to have some fun features this semester.

However, in order for me to know what types of things you want to read about, I must have reader input. That can include anything from giving me a call, putting a note in my mailbox or dropping by to tell me about a story idea you might have.

Never think you're idea isn't good enough for a story. Some of the best stories come out of ideas that readers bring in after they've heard about an interesting person, place, event, etc. If it appeals to you, there's a good chance it will appeal to other readers.

I'd also like to take this opportunity (hey, how often do I get the lead story space for my own personal column?) to welcome any potential writers/artists/photographers, or anyone else who'd like to try their hand at working on this publication, to join the On the Verge of the Weekend staff. Right now, there are only five of us, and we'd enjoy the company.

Don't think you have to be a journalism major, either. The more staff members there are, the more input we have; the more input we have, the better On the Verge of the Weekend will be.

This week's supplement may seem a little heavy on the music side, but in the future I'm hoping to have more balanced coverage on various aspects of entertainment in the area.

Beginning this week, Doug Close, music director for the campus radio station, WEIU-FM, will be presenting his views and reviews of music news. Doug is a talented writer and has a lot to say about the latest happenings.

This week, you will also find an album and concert review on the Eurythmics, who appeared at Alpine Valley Aug. 20 and at Poplar Creek the following night.

Why the Eurythmics? Well, I think they just might be on the verge (no pun intended) of becoming one of the top groups ever, after just a few short years of recording. In fact, one person whose musical opinion I regard very highly says he thinks Dave Stewart is going to have a heavy influence on the music industry in the future.

That remains to be seen, of course, but I do know there are a lot of concert-goers out there—which is why I intend to plan reviews of area performances throughout the year. And if you are a person who enjoys concerts, why not give some thought to writing a review?

Finally, although On the Verge of the Weekend has some changes, it is still meant, above all, to be entertaining. Let me know what you think—if you have any ideas, comments, suggestions or questions, please bring them to my attention.

Good luck, and have a fun semester!

ALBUM

'Revenge' proves different, but distinctly styled

Upon first listening, many people are going to wonder what the Eurythmics are up to on their latest album, Revenge.

Fans of their older stuff (In the Garden, Sweet Dreams Are Made of This and Touch) won't appreciate the pop sound of some of the numbers on Revenge until at least the fifth time through, if ever.

Those die-hard Top 40 fans who didn't even begin to understand the Eurythmics' music until the 1985 release Be Yourself Tonight will find a distinctly different style on this album, perhaps one they can truly enjoy.

However, in spite of and perhaps because of the changes in the Eurythmics' sound, Revenge proves to be a likable and even entertaining collection of songs from the Annie Lennox-Dave Stewart duo.

Revenge starts off with "Missionary Man," a song that has been getting a lot of airplay, both radio and video.

"Missionary Man" presents a cynical look at religion (perhaps prompted by Lennox's short-lived marriage to a Hare Krishna?) set to a driving drum beat. Also included in this number is some fine work on the harmonica by band member Jimmy "Z" Zavala.

Another recent airwave hit is next, "Thorn in My Side." The premise of this song is good, and the words are to the point: "Thorn in my side/You know that's all you ever were/A bundle of lies/You know that's all that it was worth."

However, although this song has potential to be a good glad-you're-gone number, it's just a little too hokey. For example, at the song's beginning, Lennox says a few unconvincing words to her ex-whatever. Then the chorus turns into a modified takeoff on "Da Doo Ron Ron."

It smacks a little too much of Shaun Cassidyism, and the Eurythmics are far too talented for that.

"Thorn in My Side" is followed by an upbeat, optimistic number, "When Tomorrow Comes."

The song which accomplishes what "Thorn in My

Revenge, the latest release from the Eurythmics, whose first hit was "Sweet Dreams Are Made of This" in spring of '83, is distinctly different from past albums the group has had.

Annie Lennox and Dave Stewart, the song-writing duo who also combine on the group's musical tracks and singing, have formulated an entertaining package consisting of some danceable tunes, though-provoking lyrics and plain good music.

Side" set out to do—let the ex-lover know that he/she/it is old news—is next, "Last Time."

This song combines some neat keyboard patterns with drums to make for an enjoyable tune tinged with the reality of lost love. "Last time you're gonna let me down/Last time you're gonna fool around with me" are the chorus lines from this song—one of the album's better numbers.

The tempo slows dramatically as the following song opens with a piano-electric guitar duet, which later drifts into a full orchestra.

"The Miracle of Love" is, without a doubt, one of the best songs on Revenge, both lyrically and musically. But perhaps its finest feature is that it is quite different from anything the Eurythmics have done before: it's a love song.

Which just goes to prove that even people who write lyrics like "Love you like a ball and chain" (from the song of the same name on Be Yourself Tonight, 1985) can also turn their talents to mellow love songs.

Side two begins with a rousing number, another good one, called "Let's Go!"

The lyrics in this one are quite original, and even daring at times, with such lines as "And the great big moon/Was a shinin' down/He said, 'Forget about the preacher man,/Let's do it on the ground.'"

Imagine saying that to a missionary man. The result could be scary.

"Take Your Pain Away," a likable song but nothing worth noting, is next, followed by another wish-you-were-gone song, "A Little of You."

"In This Town" follows, a somewhat bitter look at a place which could quite easily be the singer's long-since-left hometown.

Musically, the song is nothing spectacular, although Stewart's repetition of the phrase "I'll never make the grade/And I can't stop the rain" are applicable.

Revenge wraps up with "I Remember You," a wistful number which showcases Lennox's excellent vocal qualities.

Thanks to Stewart's work on the production and guitars and Lennox's vocals, in addition to the duo's understanding of successful song-writing, Revenge has all the makings to be a hit album. And, although some of the songs pale in comparison to others the Eurythmics have done in the past, the album still proves to be quite entertaining.

CONCERT

Lennox, Stewart steal stage

Eurythmics combine music, theatrics

DIANA WINSON
Staff Editor

At their Aug. 20 Alpine Valley stop on the 1986-87 "Revenge Tour," the Eurythmics presented excellent music combined with more than just a touch of theatrics in a two-hour concert.

Jean Beauvoir, a flashy, loud and hard-rocking lead, warmed the audience perfectly, but the night truly belonged to Annie Lennox, Dave Stewart and the five other members of the Eurythmics.

After the curtain—which resembled a giant paper—went down on a stage filled with a smoky haze and effective lighting, the band opened with the driving "Sexcrime," from the 1984: For the Love of Big Brother album.

Although the song was never really a radio hit—after being banned from several stations—it is probably one of their best ever, both musically and theatrically, representing the Eurythmics' crossover from noisy drums and keyboards to more danceable music.

The band then played some of the songs from the recently released Revenge album, including "Thorn in My Side," "When Tomorrow Comes," "Last Time" and "Let's Go!"

Lennox and Stewart, both clad in black leather pants, pants and long jackets over white shirts, ruled the stage when performing their new music and several selections from the Be Yourself Tonight album, including "Would I Lie to You?," "There Must Be an Angel," "(Love You Like a) Ball and Chain," "Conditioned Soul" and "It's Alright (Baby's Coming Back)." However, their talents were used best when they presented some of their older stuff.

"Here Comes the Rain Again," solely a keyboard number when released on the Touch album, took on a distinctly different sound when performed live. Stewart's mastery of the electric guitar, combined with Lennox's chilling voice, proved effective.

Similarly, Lennox and Stewart brought down the house with their rendition of "Who's That Girl?," easily one of the concert's best performances. The two took center stage, with Lennox soulfully singing while Stewart jammed on the jazz guitar, eventually sitting on the edge of the stage and playing.

The band later performed a slowed version of their first hit, "Sweet Dreams Are Made of This," from the album of the same name, then presented a UB40-sounding, reggae-oriented, sing-along "Right By Your Side."

Stewart and Lennox are unmistakably the core of the Eurythmics' style, but they get a lot of help from the members of their band. Keyboard player Patrick Seymour, drummer Clem Burke and bass guitar player John McKenzie contributed to the overall quality of the sound, with occasional solo opportunities for each.

Flashy work on both the harmonica and the tenor saxophone was provided by the talented Jimmy "Z" Zavala. Back-up vocalist Joniece Jamison's singing blended perfectly with the lead vocalist's, especially on their duet of the hit "Sisters Are Doin' it for Themselves."

Lennox, who later in the concert performed in just her boots, pants and red bra, silenced any rumors about her lack of live singing ability, as her voice seemed to get stronger throughout the performance. Stewart, who added some back-up vocals, showed his musical genius on the guitar.

For their first encore, the Eurythmics performed current hit "Missionary Man" and "Sisters Are Doin' it for Themselves."

The audience wouldn't let up, and the band members returned, some draped in towels—while Stewart wore a white terry-cloth bathrobe and carried a martini.

The band then drifted into a song from Revenge, "The Miracle of Love." The mellow Lennox-Stewart duet proved to be a fitting end to the show, and left the audience more than satisfied.

Both Lennox and Stewart performed in black leather pants, boots and jackets over white shirts, but neither kept that attire for the entire concert. Lennox eventually stripped to a red bra, while Stewart appeared for an encore in a white terry-cloth bathrobe—with martini in hand.

TALE-END

Life of a 'dropper' is thought-provoking at best

By JULIE LEWIS
Activities editor

So, the summer is over. All my friends have been coming back to school with exciting stories to tell about their summer jobs.

For some odd reason, the conversation always takes a turn when I proudly tell what my summer duties entailed.

I was a seasonal employee for General Mills Inc., located in Toledo, Ohio. Yes, famous home of M*A*S*H's Klinger and the Toledo Mudhens.

General Mills, for those of you who thrive on those Brand X cereals, is the big factory that puts out those famous household names: Trix, Kaboom, Boo Berry, Body Buddies and of course, Cheerios!

Yes, I did have connections within the plant. My uncle serves as the operations control manager and pulled a few strings to get my interview arranged.

It was quite a thrill to pull through those big security gates for the first time and flash my personal GMI ID to the guard.

Everyone who was anyone was dressed in all-white uniforms, with clipboards in hand and hairnets on head.

Yes, General Mills, notorious for their stylish white hairnets that make you look like you're being scrubbed for a lobotomy.

I approached the packaging department, where my supervisor informed me of my summer duties. I was to be a dropper.

I tried to imagine all the things that a person labeled as a "dropper" would do. I couldn't think of one.

Well, to make a long story short, I turned out to be the little woman who sits alongside a conveyor belt and drops the toy surprises in the BIG G cereals.

If my friends could see me now! Boy, was it a really thought-provoking job that required my partially acquired college education to be tested to the limits.

Grab the prize, see the box, drop it in! I dropped everything from watermelon Fruit Roll-ups to Life Savers, Starburst and who could forget the black wax moustaches.

Now occasionally, I would miss. It wasn't that I meant to cause a little kid a heart attack when his Boo Berries came up empty, it's just that dropping moustaches at 4 a.m. in the morning is hard, especially when you are snoozing.

Ok, so maybe I wasn't stretching my intellectual capabilities, but I did occasionally learn the meaning of real manual labor.

For two weeks I was transferred from packaging to processing (a real four letter word to GMI droppers).

They came and got me on a Tuesday. There were four of them dressed in those spotless white uniforms, much like the ones worn in a mental facility.

They took me to the highest and hottest level of the plant, up near the roof. They called it the penthouse, but it was nothing like a place to live in and boast to your friends about.

When I walked through the door, I saw the biggest, highest mountain of Cheerios that you could imagine in your worst nightmare!

I looked over at the nice, middle-aged man with the smirky grin on his face and said, "What would you like for me to do, sir?"

He proceeded to hand me a shovel and said, "Clean it!"

Taking the chance that I might look very stupid or sound ridiculous, I looked that nice, father of four in the eyes and said, "How?"

He smiled at me like a deranged killer. "It's like jumping in leaves when you were a kid," he said. "Just dive in!" I could see that he was enjoying this little fiasco.

So, being the proper, obedient employee that I am, I did just that.

After they dug me out from the initial avalanche of Cheerios, I shovelled 15 carts off to be made into dog food.

It makes me appreciate my nice comfortable life as a mild-mannered reporter trying to make ends meet at college.

So, when my friends ask me what I did this summer and I proceed to tell them about the wonderful world of General Mills, I guess I shouldn't be surprised at the usual "You're kidding" response.

But, being the proud, yet somewhat humble person I am, I always try to get the last laugh by adding, "Oh, yeah, forgot to tell you that I made $10 an hour!"
