Phone deposits too high

ICC ruling favors students hit by unjust ICTC policy

By AMY CARR
Staff writer

Students living off campus who were required to pay a $110 phone deposit before receiving service from Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company can be expecting at least a partial refund soon.

The deposit, which has been required for Eastern students but not non-student Charleston residents requesting phone service, violates guidelines set by the Illinois Commerce Commission, Chris Westerlund, ICC consumer counselor said.

Westerlund said she contacted ICTC last Thursday and was told the telephone company had returned to its former policy a day earlier. That policy requires only a hookup charge and the first month's service fee in advance.

Customers can be required to pay an additional deposit if they have a poor credit rating, Westerlund said.

An ICTC official also said the company would be refunding those students' deposits if they had the needed credit rating, Westerlund said.

It is, however, within ICC guidelines for the phone company to charge customers an installation fee of $42, Westerlund said.

She added that this amount may be deducted from the $110 deposits at the time of the refunds.

A representative of ICTC said

Tuesday that any information regarding the matter would have to come through the company's public relations department and that no one from that department would be available until Wednesday.

Although there is no deadline set for refunding the deposits, Westerlund said she assumes the phone company will refund them "in as timely a fashion as possible."

The ICC first learned of the violation in late August when an Eastern student filed a formal complaint against the ICTC, Westerlund said.

The same day the complaint was filed, Steve Davis, student legal services attorney, addressed the ICC on the issue.

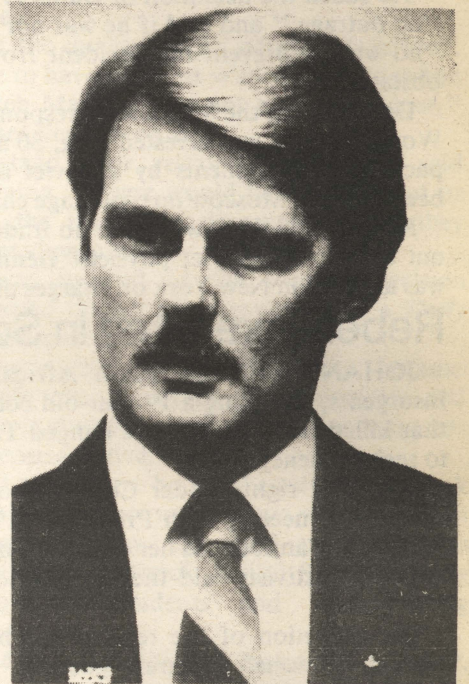

Davis was contacted by Student Body President Mike Madigan after Madigan had received complaints and questions on the legality of the deposit.

Westerlund said she initially contacted the ICTC in August and informed them that the policy would have to be altered.

After seeing no results, Madigan called U.S. Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, and informed him of the situation.

Weaver said Tuesday he then contacted the ICC to check the progress of the investigation.

Weaver said he received a phone call

State Rep. Mike Weaver
Sped issue along from ICC about a week later saying that the ICTC had been told to immediately discontinue the deposits and to refund the money as soon as possible.

The policy requiring only students to pay the deposit was started this year, "to make things simpler," Pat Mettes, an ICTC hourly employee, said.

"We have more problems with students (with payment) than with the general population," Mettes said.

Mettes added that she believed the policy was standard for most phone companies that deal with university

Foundation rebuffs paper's claim of divestiture with 'little or no loss'

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

EIU Foundation fiscal agent Daniel Thornburgh "categorically" denied Tuesday that the foundation was told by Harris Bank and Trust this summer that divesting from companies with South African ties would not decrease the worth of Eastern's stock holdings.

The Decatur Herald & Review reported this summer that the Harris Bank told the foundation that divestment would cause it "little or no" loss of income.

The Harris Bank is the foundation's investing agent. The bank is responsible for the foundation's stock portfolio, which includes about $486,000 worth of investments in companies with South African subsidiaries.

The Harris Bank provided a detailed report on divestment to the foundation this summer, yet it does not say Eastern could divest without losing money, Thornburgh said.

Thornburgh released a copy of that report to the Eastern News Tuesday on the grounds that financial information included in it is not quoted directly. Thornburgh said that since the foundation had purchased the report and that the bank is in the business of researching and referring financial information to clients, it would not be proper to release that information to the general public.

The report states that universities with South African free investments tend to have larger, yet more volatile returns. It also stated that total divestiture would eliminate most blue-chip companies as possibilities in the foundation's stock portfolio.

Thornburgh said smaller companies might have a greater chance for short-term gains but that the large companies is a better long-term investment.

"Typically, larger, blue-chip companies have invested in South Africa," Thornburgh said. "The smaller, more volatile companies have not."

Thornburgh said the foundation, because it considers itself to be investing money for the people

Gunmen kidnap American in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—An American who runs a private school in Beirut was kidnapped by two armed men while on his way to play golf Tuesday, and a caller claimed responsibility in the name of the Shiite Moslem group Islamic Jihad.

It was the first kidnapping of an American in Lebanon in 15 months.

The U.S. Embassy identified the victim as Frank Herbert Reed, 53, of Malden, Mass., director of the Lebanese International School in Moslem west Beirut.

A number of politically motivated kidnappings in west Beirut in 1985 prompted most Americans and other Westerners to leave the city.

A school associate said Reed has lived in Lebanon about eight years and had converted to Islam before marrying Sahmiya Dalati, a Syrian. The associate, who insisted on anonymity, said the couple have a five-year old son, Tareq.

Islamic Jihad, which espouses the fundamentalist teaching of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has said it holds at least three other Americans hostages.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Christopher P. English said the embassy "does not have many details about it (the kidnap) now."

At the State Department in Washington, spokesman Bernard Kalb said, "We call on those who may be holding Mr. Reed as well as the other foreign hostages in Lebanon to release their captives immediately. We remind them further that we hold them responsible for the well-being of their captives."

Reagan won't trade for Daniloff

DENVER—President Reagan today said there would be no trade for the freedom of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff and warned Soviet authorities that Daniloff's continued detention could become a "major obstacle" to improved superpower relations.

"I call upon the Soviet authorities to act responsibly and quickly," Reagan said in a campaign speech.

He called the detention of Daniloff on espionage charges "an outrage," and said if he was not freed soon, there was "no way to prevent this incident from becoming a major obstacle."

Daniloff, 51, the Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, was arrested Aug. 30 after he was handed a package of documents by a Soviet acquaintance. He has been jailed in Moscow on espionage charges.

Reagan said there would be no trade for Daniloff, ruling out a swap for Soviet physicist Gennadiy Zakharov, who was arrested in New York on charges of spying.

Rebels executed in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Three black insurgents, including a 19-year-old convicted in a bombing that killed five whites, were hanged Tuesday after refusing to seek clemency.

U.S. civil rights leader Coretta Scott King, meanwhile, canceled a meeting with President P.W. Botha at the last minute. She announced her decision a day after leading anti-apartheid activists said they would not see her if she met with Botha.

The execution of the rebels, members of the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla group, caused little public outcry. Previous executions of ANC members prompted worldwide condemnation and appeals for clemency.

The three—Sibusiso Andrew Zondo, Simho Bridget Xulu, and Clarence Lucky Payi—were hanged at Pretoria Central Prison at 7 a.m., said Supreme Court Registrar Martin van der Westhuizen.

Thompson urges major changes in the state's jobless-pay system

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. James Thompson on Tuesday signed a measure designed to pull Illinois' unemployment-insurance system out of debt, and urged that the system be overhauled next year to boost benefits to jobless workers and lower taxes for employers.

Thompson also said the state should pay unemployment benefits to employees who are locked out of their workplace "through no fault of their own."

But he said he could not yet determine whether that principle should apply to the current labor dispute between Deere & Co. and the United Auto Workers.

The legislation signed by Thompson extends through 1987 a business-labor agreement on the levels of unemployment benefits and the amount paid by employers to fund the system. The agreement was first hammered out in 1983.

It also provides modest benefit increases for jobless workers already receiving the maximum payment, and simplifies the calculation of employer taxes.

Thompson said the measure should allow the state to repay the last of about $2.5 billion borrowed from the federal government during the depths of the recession to keep the unemployment-benefit system solvent.

"Business and labor have sat down together to thrash out problems, to reach common solutions, but most of all to assure the continuing solvency of the system," Thompson said.

Stevenson favors farm marketing

URBANA (AP)—Gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson said Tuesday that efforts to improve the farm economy should include new markets.

Addressing a conference on the future of Illinois agriculture, Stevenson suggested a center for post-harvest research that would identify products that could be made from corn and soybeans, as well as customers for these products.

Stevenson noted that the University of Illinois has proposed a similar value-added research center. John Campbell, dean of the College of Agriculture, said its estimated initial cost would be about $2.1 million.

"Other (foreign) producers are coming on stream and using their comparative advantages to compete with United States," said Stevenson, noting that the advantage often was cheap labor.

He said the United States should take greater advantage of its strengths in capital and technology to improve its position in world markets.

During the two-day conference, which began Monday night, more than 100 people will identify the major concerns of the state's agricultural industry and suggest solutions.

"We want to bring together representatives from all segments of the agricultural community to stimulate a frank exchange of views, and arrive at some objectives and tactics for keeping Illinois agriculture a strong, competitive force in the world marketplace," said Donald Holt, director of the U of I Ag Experiment Station.

Conferees come up for senate vote

AMY CARR
Staff writer

The Student Senate is scheduled to vote Wednesday on the approval of three student delegates who were given $110 in student fees to attend a conference this summer.

The three students, Student Body President Mike Madigan, Senator Deb Camren and a committee chairman Darren DeVriese, were given senate funds to attend the student government conference.

The delegates were not chosen until after the senate had recessed for the summer, therefore preventing the senate from approving the choices earlier, Madigan said.

The senate is scheduled to meet at 7 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Controversy arose last week about the exact interpretation of the senate bylaws when it was announced that DeVriese, who is not a senator, received funds for the conference.

Madigan said by his interpretation of the constitution, DeVriese is a part of the executive branch.

The constitution is unclear about whether a committee chairman is a member of the executive branch, therefore entitling him to senate funds.

The approval of the delegates was scheduled to be discussed at Tuesday's legislative leadership meeting, Senate Speaker Joe O'Mera said.

The issue will be introduced in new business at the senate meeting, O'Mera said.

"It should have been discussed last week, but we forgot," O'Mera said.

Because the senate waited until this week to vote on the approval, O'Mera said senators would be more informed about the issue.

"I'm sure they (the senators) are going to have questions," he said.

The senate also plans to set up tables in each of the food services Thursday to continue its voter registration drive, O'Mera said.

In other business, the senate will give its first committee reports.

O'Mera added that legislative leadership will be interviewing students for the 10 open senate seats and positions on various boards during the next two weeks.

Senate applications are due in the student government office by Monday.

Senate renames advisory nominee

By CAROL ROEHM
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate Tuesday took back its recommendation that would have placed marketing instructor Ed Marlow on the Textbook Rental Advisory committee and nominated Larry Janes to fill the position.

"It wasn't the quality of the nominee (Marlow). We just have to have someone who teaches extension courses, which Marlow does not and Janes does," senate member Ken Sutton said.

"I understand their reasoning," Marlow said Tuesday evening. "There would be too many of us representing the marketing department, and they need different viewpoints."

Marlow was notified of the senate's decision Tuesday evening during an interview with a Daily Eastern News reporter.

The senate agreed to appoint Janes because Marlow's wife also serves on the committee and because there is already a marketing and management committee representative.

Janes told the senate he has heard the textbook rental committee has not met for two years, and that faculty members have expressed problems this semester with the Textbook Rental Service issuing wrong books to students and books being unavailable.

Beverly Miller, John North, Jayne Ozier and P. Scott Smith were announced as the four recommendations for the Vice President of Academic Affairs search committee. Eastern President Stanley Rives will appoint two of the nominees to serve on the committee.

The senate passed a motion to communicate with Rives once a month under the agreement that the information be made public and that it does not take the place of executive meetings.

Senate chair Mary Wohlrabe announced this year's appointments for the faculty senate committees. Election committee chair, John North; nomination committee chair, Ken Sutton; student relations chair, Beverly Miller; social committee chair, Jayne Ozier; and constitution committee chair, P. Scott Smith.

In other business, the senate approved two requested name changes. The Speech Pathology department will now be the department of Communication Disorders in order to "reflect the changes in the field." The department of Business Education and Administrative Office Management revised the last half of its title to be Administrative Information Systems because of the addition of micro computers in the field.

The executive session requested by Rives at the beginning of the meeting was on the topics of personnel and property, Rives said, but neither he or Wohlrabe would comment on any specifics about the meeting.

Alcoholism— the cure must start at home

While in college, a lot of students tend to drink, either to socialize or relieve tension.

This may be relaxing for some, but for others it can lead to a long line of problems. Alcohol is as much a drug as is "crack" or any other drug.

An Alcoholics Anonymous branch is being set up on Eastern's campus to help students who develop alcohol-related problems. This an effort worth commending.

Eastern has long needed a branch on campus. It will allow students to interact with other students in the same situation.

A branch off-campus might intimidate students and make them feel like they are in not surroundings with people who are experiencing the alcoholism under the same circumstances.

This self-help program has helped many people get rid of alcohol dependencies and stay rid of them.

Alcoholism is not a subject to be taken lightly. It can and has destroyed relationships, careers and lives. No one group of people can be singled out as inherent to alcoholism. This disease transcends all races, creeds, social classes and lifestyles.

The only way a person can overcome alcoholism is to admit that he or she is an alcoholic and realize that it is a lifetime commitment. Then and only then can AA help them. People who are alcoholics cannot assume they can solve the problem themselves. It takes help and guidance from peers who have been there before.

There are no stringent requirements to join AA—just the desire to quit drinking. Once a member, students can join sponsors who have experienced similar difficulties with alcohol.

The sponsor is there to listen, talk to and, when the person feels the urge to drink, the sponsor will be there to help defeat that urge.

If you think you have a drinking problem don't try to solve it yourself. Seek help from Alcoholics Anonymous—it could save your life.

Networks create sexual frustration

Just when you thought it was safe to flip on the TV, the new fall season is returning.

Oh sure, there's the usual dribble that wouldn't keep an insomniac awake, but also returning are the shows that left us wondering last year—would Sam and Diane get back together? Would Maddie and Dave or Angela and Tony or Scarecrow and Mrs. King or Peter and Christine ever get together?

I haven't slept since last spring just wondering about it.

The censors can complain all they want about there being too much sex on TV, but the truth is—no one on TV ever actually has sex. Oh, I know that they're just actors and even when they're supposed to be, they never really do—but most of the characters the actors portray on prime-time shows never have sex.

This is because the networks know there is a time and place for smut on TV. That's why they give us all of those late-night serials starring washed-up movie stars and a president's ex-wife. That's also why they gave us the daytime soap operas.

You see, on daytime soap operas, people have sex, or at least it's implied. Obviously, because we're not talking cable TV, they are tasteful enough as to not show too much. But then again, they don't air a show which has a male and female lead character who are obviously perfect for each other but never come near each other unless one of the two is drunk or about to undergo major surgery, either.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not in favor of pornography, but I do think the networks should realize that most normal Americans know about sex. One look at the teen-age pregnancy rate should tell them that.

Take Cheers, for example. Sam and Diane, who were once intimately involved, (although we never actually saw any romance between the two) now just make catty comments to each other across the bar, each one reeking of more sexual innuendos than the last.

Where does that leave the viewer? Totally consumed wondering if Sam and Diane will ever kiss, that's where. How senseless.

The problem is, you know they want to, they know they want to, everyone wants them to—but they never do!

And they never will because NBC, in its infinite wisdom, knows that there is no future in a show where people don't become totally sexually frustrated watching.

However, ABC is even worse.

Moonlighting's Dave and Maddie have been teasing viewers forever. The show depicts two people who apparently have no life outside of their detective agency, neither one has any other romantic interest and they even subtly hint their attraction to each other.

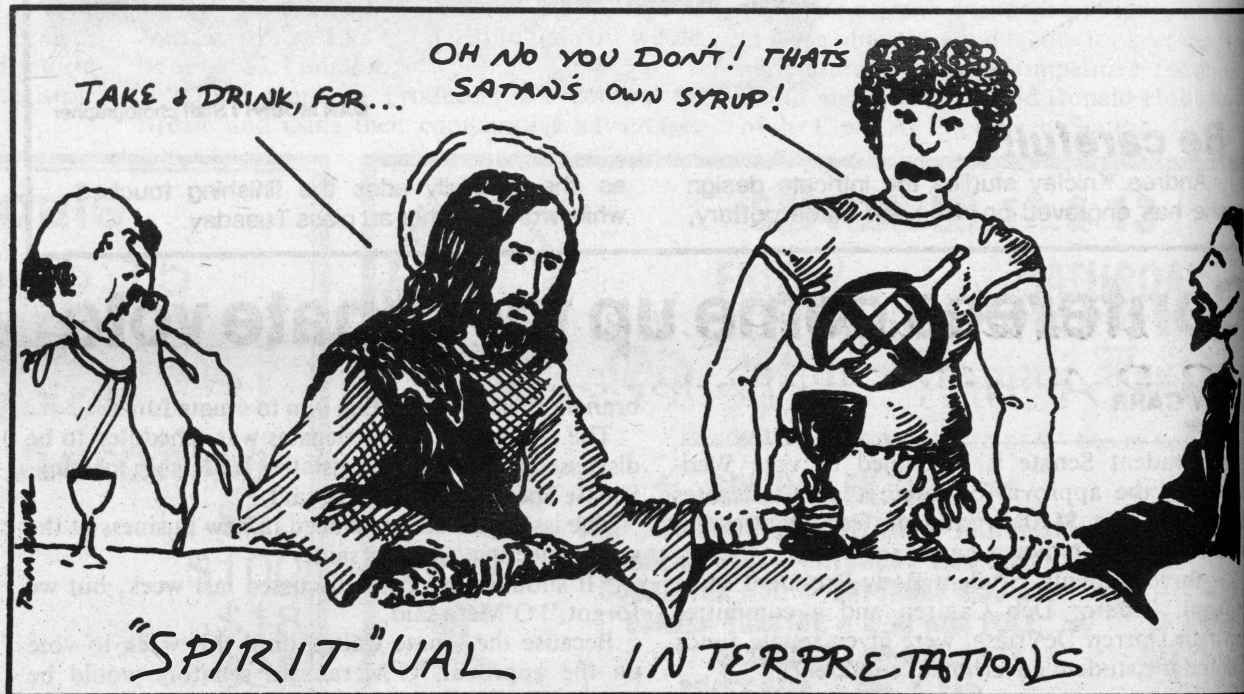

At the end of last season, the show ended with Maddie wanting to tell David something. But does she?

Don't be silly.

The networks seem convinced that the only way to keep viewers contently tuned in is by constantly throwing the "affairs that never were" in our faces.

This smacks of an obvious concern for ratings. Certainly they aren't watching what their daytime counterparts are doing because if they were, they would already know what the soaps and cable TV have long since learned—sex sells.

Your turn

No embarrassing behavior evident

Editor:

I would like to respond to some accusations made in regard to the conduct of members of the Eastern Illinois University's basketball team by Miss Amy Zurawski in her Personal File on September 4. Miss Zurawski, in her article chastised Eastern students for their conduct, principally that of consumption of alcohol while at the Illinois State football game.

However, by all indications I have received both from players and other students who were there, there seemed to be no embarrassing behavior evident. This was substantiated by Eastern Illinois University administrators who are personally aware of members of our basketball team and were sitting near them at the game.

It seems to me that a responsible journalist would consider the ramifications of singling out and labeling anyone guilty of guilt by association. While I appreciate Miss Zurawski's personal values, some of which I share, I think that she purposefully involved members of the men's basketball team to give her editorial some punch.

We discuss with our players the importance of their conduct, since they are individuals who are known and will be scrutinized. In this case, the members of the men's basketball team who were at the Illinois State game feel they were poorly characterized, a view that seems to be substantiated by a number of other people who have voluntarily come to me with their impressions.

Certainly, I support strong school spirit and hope that innuendos will not bias the students, keeping them from supporting inter-collegiate athletics.

Head Basketball Coach

Those were ISU students, not EIU

Editor:

Last weekend I went to Illinois State University to watch the Eastern-ISU game. Since it was Labor Day weekend my friends and I figured we would spend the night at ISU. It just so happened that the friends I went with and met at the game were the several members of Eastern's men's basketball team.

To clear things up Amy (Zurawski), there were three players from the team that you accused of performing antics among the vast groups of students. Obviously you did not take time to recognize the Eastern students from the ISU students.

Amy you are right that there were several students drinking in the stands but they were ISU students and not the members of the basketball team. In the future Amy I think you should know the facts before you print the story. Also, I'm sure the football team did not appreciate a couple of the comments you made concerning their play.

Amy, maybe the students of ISU need an article written for them concerning the kind of school spirit that should be exhibited at athletic events.

Jeff Armstrong

Editor's note: The Daily Eastern News stands behind Zurawski's account of the incident.

BOB LOBBES

Don't be surprised if you find students in the Union Grand Ballroom Wednesday who can't remember their names, singing the theme from the Jetsons or just plain sound asleep.

These students probably aren't hypnotized. They'll just be under the influence of well-known hypnotist and entertainer Tom Deluca.

The University Board Special Events Committee is once again bringing the popular campus entertainer to the Union Grand Ballroom at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The program will last a little over an hour and will be divided into two parts, said Anita Craig, director of student activities.

The first half will be a comedy show and the second will be actual hypnosis on stage, Craig said.

In the hypnosis portion of the program, students will be randomly

Self-discovering workshop scheduled

CONNELLE PARDEE

Student activities editor

In an effort to help students learn to relate to themselves and others, the Union's Counseling Center is offering a workshop titled "Making conversation—saying hello."

Educational psychology instructor Bud Sanders said the "how to get acquainted workshop" is part of a series of self-discovery workshops designed to help students learn to relate.

The workshop is scheduled for noon in the Union-Addition Arcola Room.

Rawlins said one of the topics of discussion will be how to initiate conversation with others and how to keep a conversation going.

Rawlins said in the past there has been fairly good participation.

"It's our first seminar of the year because a lot of people are new on campus and some of them are shy about meeting people," said Counseling Center director Bud Sanders.

"The purpose of this seminar is to develop communication skills; some that are natural and some that aren't," Sanders said.

"You also learn how to use the skills and how to overcome the barriers that prevent you from using them," he said.

Sanders said Rawlins has presented this program for several years.

New service finds grants for students

By THERESA SOBOTA

For students who would like to obtain some added financial aid, a new service in Charleston may be able to help.

The Collegiate Funding Service, located at 103 Seventh St., offers a list of available scholarships and grants to students for a $35 fee, said Michael Mrkvicka, who runs the business with his wife, Maria.

Typically, a student will get between five and 25 scholarships and or grants for which he may be eligible.

The business is a subsidiary of Academic Guiding Services, a company which has nationwide listings of grants and scholarships.

The scholarships and grants are tailored to the students after they fill out a "pretty extensive data sheet," he said.

The couple will have information for interested students from 9-2 Monday through Friday next week in the Union.

Since the service is new, the couple said, they do not yet have a phone number. For more information, students can write: Collegiate Funding Service, 103 Seventh St., Charleston.

Health information will be available at free program

by CARRIE WILSON
staff writer

Diagnostic tests and health information will be available at the first campus Health Fair between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

The free program, which is sponsored by Eta Sigma Gamma and Coles County Public Health Department, is designed to make health screenings and tests available to all students, said Eastern health instructor Kathy Doyle.

Some of the services offered consist of height and weight measurements, anemia and diabetes tests and tetanus and diphtheria shots, Doyle said.

Nurses from the public health department and volunteers from Eta Sigma Gamma, a campus health organization, will administer all tests, Doyle said.

Students can also receive information on the American Cancer Association and the Central East Alcohol and Drug Council.

Nutrition and good diet plans will be discussed to improve the overall health habits of college students.

Doyle said the Health Fair was made possible through a grant made available by the Eta Sigma Gamma national office who hope to deter future health problems of college students.

Doyle said she hopes to make people aware of available health information and provide free screening to help solve future problems.

It's back to business for Northern newspaper adviser

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

The adviser of the Northern Star, the student newspaper at Northern Illinois University, said he feels vindicated by the Illinois Board of Higher Education's decision last week to pass stricter controls on houses owned by or leased to universities for use by their presidents.

"This makes what we were doing in the newspaper credible," Star adviser Jerry Thompson said in a telephone interview. "It substantiates everything we wrote."

Thompson was fired by former Northern President Clyde Wingfield after the student newspaper there revealed that nearly $100,000 in state money had been spent on renovations and remodeling at the state-owned presidential house. Thompson then filed a suit seeking his return to the paper.

Wingfield was removed by the Board of Regents, Northern's governing body, this summer. Thompson has since been allowed to return to his adviser duties until the resolution of the suit or pending a recommendation by a committee studying the relationship of the student newspaper to the university.

Morale hasn't been a problem at the newspaper, despite "the cloud over our heads," Thompson said. "The newspaper has been coming out every day. We don't have a whole lot of time to worry about it."

He said he feels "absolutely" vindicated, "not just for me personally, as much as for the newspaper. In my editorial opinion, the spending of tax dollars by whomever by whatever should be scrupulously reviewed.

"What we had here was a university president who managed to bully people into doing what he wanted even though many of them knew things weren't happening the way they were supposed to," Thompson said.

Thompson said the IBHE's action lacked real strength.

"They just needed a piece of paper, and that's what they got." The new guidelines call for universities to study the advantages and disadvantages of maintaining leases on residences or exercise buyout options where applicable.

Also, universities must seek board approval for any leases exceeding five years.

The board voted against a provision forcing universities to prepare annual reports on expenditures incurred at the houses.

IBHE spokesman Ross Hodel said the board decided to allow individual governing bodies to decide whether to include similar provisions in their policies regarding presidential residences.

who have donated to the university, is interested in "conservative" investments and prefers not to take chances by investing in smaller companies.

The foundation is not considering any changes in its investment policy at this time and have no plans to do so in the near future, Thornburgh said.

The president of the foundation agreed with Thornburgh.

"Considering the state of the market, it's hard to find solid stock that can return reasonable amounts for our investments," said Jim Roberts, who was elected foundation president in August. "That's the primary thing we have to look at."

Currently, the foundation will only invest in companies that hold a Sullivan rating of Category I, making good progress (to adhere to the principles), or II, making progress.

In June, the foundation held shares worth about $486,000 in 14 American companies doing business in South Africa, a 25 percent increase from $389,100 in April.

"The foundation board now feels the condition (in South Africa) is stabilized at this time," Thornburgh said. "However, I personally feel that sooner or later, there will be an incident that people will say 'broke the camel's back'."

Thornburgh did say the Sullivan Principles will come up for review in May, which may cause foundations across the nation to reconsider their policies.

Roberts, who opposes divestment, said he does not foresee any changes in their investment policy.

"I think for the time being, it (foundation divestment policy) should stay the same unless we are given evidence that it is absolutely wrong," Roberts said.

Roberts said when he visited South Africa, including the cities of Crossroads and Soweto, five years ago at the invitation of the government there, the people he talked to said they were opposed to divestment.

"Crossroads is not a pleasant place," Roberts said. "Part of the uproar there involves people being moved into some damn decent places, and some of them don't want to leave."

Roberts said many don't want to leave because they want to live around people they know.

"Why did all the Irish people choose to live in Boston?" he said. "Why are there so many Poles in Chicago? Why do we have Chinatown?"

"Man tends to go where he knows somebody," Roberts said. "Many of the people are there (Crossroads and Soweto) illegally."

Eastern President Stanley Rives could not be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon.

However, various telephone companies in university towns said they did not enforce any policy of this nature.

Continental Telephone Company of Illinois, the company which services Northern Illinois University students, requires an $80 deposit for any resident who has not had phone service in their name previously, but does not place a restriction on students alone.

Phone companies from Illinois State University and Southern Illinois University both require a hookup charge, and may require a deposit if a poor credit rating is established.

Booters unbeaten, but 'heads up' offense lacks punch

The soccer Panthers are off to a good beginning following two weeks and two wins in Cincinnati.

The Panthers nipped the University of Cincinnati 2-1 on Sept. 2 and defeated Xavier University 1-0 last Saturday.

During Sunday's exhibition against the alumni, both teams were very competitive. However, the varsity edged out the alumni 2-1. Even though the game was in good fun, the varsity expressed some anxiety to score more goals.

Can Eastern soccer progress any better than it has already?

"Of course we can do better," said coach Cizo Mosnia. "We are slowly building our way to the point where we should be. I don't want to pressure the guys but I think we should be there by October."

Soccer notebook/

Dobie Holland

Heads up offense

Eastern's offensive unit has scored a grand total of three goals in two games. Two of those goals were via the head shot.

The head goals are "nice" but Mosnia would like to see a few more goals scored with the feet. In preparation for Saturday's contest at Wisconsin-Green Bay, Mosnia is putting them through a special drill.

He explained that his players will reenact a particular play that each person may have missed a shot on during an actual game. The shooter will take the pass and shoot at the goal for about 20 times until he feels comfortable running the play and taking the shot.

"The problem is that on a lot of those plays the players probably should have used their heads instead of their feet. If they can keep putting it in with the head, that will be fine too," Mosnia added. "We will work hard on shooting and free kicks this week."

Big Blue 'D'

On the flipside, Eastern's defense has been unrelenting in each and every aspect.

Perhaps a big key is sweeper back John Glendinning, who Mosnia said has finally arrived this year. The 6-2 junior was switched from forward last year to the highly critical defensive point because of his good size.

"He's doing well," Mosnia said of Glendinning. "He takes control. He's in the back (field) yelling commands and keeping the players' heads up when the guys are down."

Glendinning was also promoted to be an assistant captain on the team.

'I'm hurtin' coach'

Mike Barclay, the promising freshman goalkeeper, is on the injured list for what could turn out to be the entire season.

Barclay broke his finger four weeks ago at the Loretto Tournament and had an operation where doctors inserted a pin into the digit.

There is a possibility that he will be red-shirted for the season. However, Mosnia is hopeful that Barclay will have his finger in a cast and be ready for training by next week.

Homesick?

Was the move to campus what you thought it was going to be when you left home?

The friends, brothers, sisters, and parents who seemed to be such a source of personal pain during the summer look pretty good now. Familiar sounds unheard, the ache for family conversation at mealtime, the absent sight of a favorite relative on weekends, not cruising with friends after dark leaves you empty.

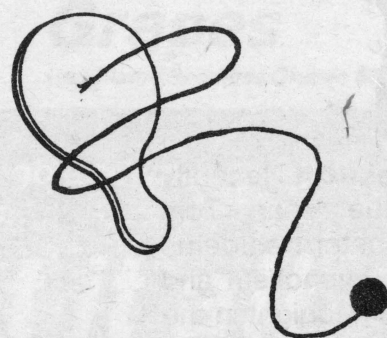

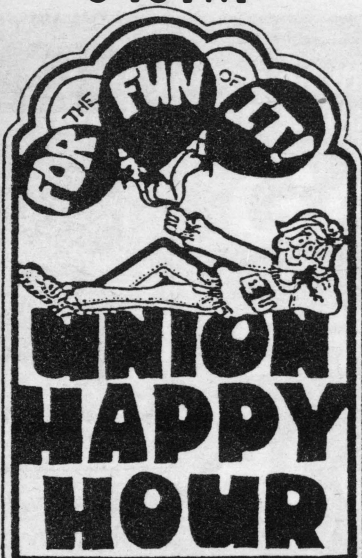

No one seems to share your interests or passions? Feeling marooned?

Home is a few short steps away. Midweek informal communion is at 9:30 p.m. in Wesley Church Chapel. Sunday Supper is at 5:30 p.m. at the student center.

Winning isn't everything

Panthers successful despite losing to Illini

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

If the theory holds that winning isn't everything, then Eastern's volleyball team can look at Tuesday night's loss to nationally-ranked Illinois as a goal reached.

Panther coach Betty Ralston had said that just to take a single game Illinois would be an accomplishment. But in the end it still added a figure to the team's loss column as they drop to 2-7 opening the second week of volleyball action.

Illinois, powered by consistent set/kill combinations, defeated Eastern 15-5, 15-8, 13-15, 15-6. The Fighting Illini, ranked 10th in this week's Tachikari Coaches' Top 20 poll, remain undefeated at 7-0.

The fact that the Panthers didn't give up in game three was encouraging to Ralston. Playing smart at crucial points was one area she had stressed going into the contest.

Eastern led from the beginning, but let Illinois run four straight points to take a 13-12 lead. Tough blocking and kills by Diane Eiserman and Gianna Galanti held the Illini at 13 en route to the Panther win.

"To be able to not let them tie it up (late in the game) was encouraging," Ralston said. "It gave us so much confidence to be able to side out and then hold them at 13. The California trip allowed us to win that," she added, citing the experience of playing nationally ranked San Diego State last week.

The Panthers jumped to early leads in games one and two but the powerfull Illini were able to overcome the deficit and run away with the wins.

Sophomore Laura Bruce led the team in hitting with 11 kills on 23 attempts, including the game-winner in game three. Although she was pleased with taking a game from Illinois, she knows there's a lot of work to be done.

"It's respectable," Bruce said. "We're happy with the way we played, but there's lots of room for improvement."

Bruce said that although Illinois can be compared to San Diego State in talent, the fact that they're an Illinois

LeFevour earns Gateway honor

Eastern volleyball standout, middle hitter Maura LeFevour, was named Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Week after her performance in the Panthers' California trip last week.

The senior pounded 43 kills on 98 attempts in five matches during the five-day trip.

LeFevour also accumulated seven block solos and six assists in those matches.

"It was a real big surprise to me," LeFevour said. "But I couldn't have done it without everyone on the team. The passes and sets were there for me."

LeFevour is the returning leading hitter for the team this year with a .246 attack percentage coming into the season. This marks the second time she has received Gateway Player of the Week honors.

—John Stroud

team makes a difference.

"We were intimidated by San Diego State simply because it's a California team. Illinois is Illinois—it's a rivalry."

Ralston noted a continued improvement in blocking.

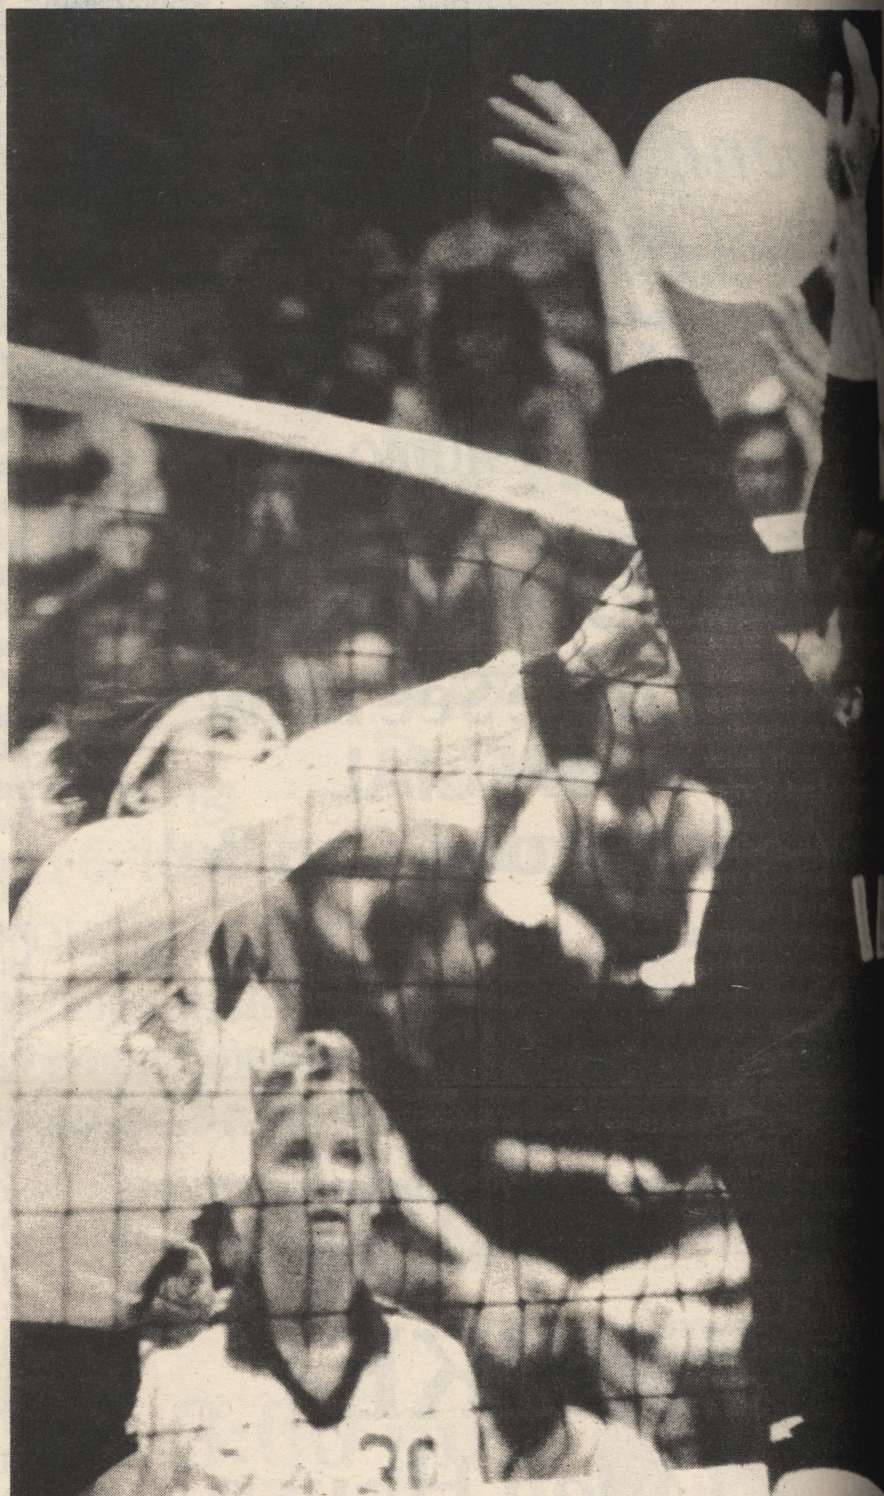

"We had a few too many hits that didn't get blocked," Ralston said. "But in the past we haven't had the timing down; we weren't even making contact with the ball."

"This year we're there, we just need to work on placing the ball on the court," she added.

Ralston also praised the play of Bruce and freshman starter Donna Sicher, who led the team in assists with 17.

"They've added a little more intensity than we've had in the past," Ralston said.

"Our serve reception was the best it's been all year tonight," Sicher said. "That's the key to the whole game. Everyone as a whole played smart."

Missouri Valley places Bradley on probation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Valley Conference has placed Bradley University on probation for two years for recruiting violations in the school's basketball program, Commissioner James Haney said Tuesday.

In July, the National Collegiate Athletic Association imposed a similar penalty against the Peoria school. The NCAA also barred Bradley's basketball team from the NCAA tournament and other postseason tournaments, and its coaches from off-campus recruiting, for the coming season.

The NCAA said Bradley violated rules in recruiting an athlete by giving him or his family use of a car, other transportation, meals and other benefits. The NCAA singled out former head coach Dick Versace for what it termed unethical conduct.

Versace, who posted a 156-88 record and three conference titles in eight seasons at Bradley, recently resigned to accept an assistant coach's position with the NBA's Detroit Pistons.

Illini making a name for themselves

By DAN VERDUN
Sports editor

Over the course of the past two seasons, the University of Illinois' volleyball team has made quite a name for itself.

As they entered Lantz Gym Tuesday night to play Eastern, the Illini stood as the nation's 10th-ranked team—a testament to both an unbeaten start and the outstanding potential of things to come.

Although Illinois played sluggishly against the Panthers in a four-game victory, the Illini illustrated both a hitting attack that rivaled the Chicago Bear defense and comeback potential right up with that of David Letterman.

Much of the Illini's success can be attributed directly to coach Mike Hebert, who since arriving from New Mexico four years ago has completely turned around the program.

"It's a lot more than the right player selection," Hebert said of the team's secret to success. "It's covering every aspect of the program from promotions to equipment to travel. It's a lot of hard work."

But, Hebert's hard work has more than just paid dividends.

Following a dismal 5-25 record his first year at Illinois, Hebert's teams have since turned in 18-15 and 39-3 seasons. In addition, Illinois finished second in the Big Ten title chase and qualified for the NCAA Tournament.

"Our intentions are to make the NCAA Tournament again," Hebert said. "We have a chance to be better than last year's team."

However, Hebert isn't as confident when it comes to taking this year's Big Ten championship.

"I'm not as confident as most people are," Hebert said. "We should certainly contend, but we've got to play much more consistent ball."

Hebert's concern has also rubbed off on his players who realize they can't simply rest on their laurels.

"It's great having national recognition like high pre-season rankings," junior setter Disa Johnson said. "But we need to prove ourselves on the court when it really counts."

Johnson credited not only Hebert with the success of the Illini program, but also the chemistry of the team.

"We've been together so long now that we pretty well have the basics down," Johnson said. "Now we can concentrate more on technique and the system."

In addition, Illinois possesses a strong court confidence displayed by all winning teams.

"They are very seasoned players," Hebert said. "They never felt in danger of losing the (Eastern) match. I think they were more frustrated from their bad play."
