Ike's sued in barroom fight

By ERIC WEDEKING
Senior reporter

Ike's Little Campus Tavern, 409 Lincoln Ave., has been named in lawsuit that alleges the establishment is responsible for injuries an Eastern student suffered at the hands of an intoxicated patron.

Ikes is the second local bar to have been recently named in a Dram Shop lawsuit. This latest lawsuit is filed on behalf of Eastern sophomore Jeffrey Buss for injuries he received after a fight during the early morning hours of Oct. 8 inside the bar.

The Dram Shop lawsuit asks for the maximum allowable award of $30,000 for damages to Buss' person.

Although no arrest or incident reports were available at the Coles County Circuit Clerk's office or Charleston Police department, junior Michael Hasler was named in the lawsuit as the bar patron who allegedly struck Buss with a beer glass.

"The intoxicated Michael Hasler struck Jeffrey Buss with a beer glass causing glass to shatter onto and into Jeffrey Buss' face, ear and neck," the lawsuit alleges.

Buss' lawyer, City Attorney John Dively, filed the lawsuit Dec. 30 with the Coles County Circuit Clerk.

A virtually identical complaint was filed on behalf of Eastern junior John Schmitt against Mother's Tavern as was reported Tuesday in The Daily Eastern News.

Both Schmitt's and Buss' lawsuits against two city taverns are based upon an Illinois law referred to as the Dram Shop Act that holds responsible an establishment or person serving alcohol which results in the intoxication and actions of another person.

Buss and Hasler could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

This most current lawsuit alleges that Ike's Little Campus Tavern, a Dram Shop owned and operated establishment, was cause for Hasler's intoxication and Buss did nothing to provoke Hasler's acts.

The suit also alleges that Buss suffered injuries and scarring that necessitated medical treatment immediately after the incident and his injuries would need future medical attention.

The lawsuit continued to allege that Buss had suffered pain, emotional distress and humiliation.

The suit also contends Buss' injuries were potentially detrimental because they would make him less marketable to future employers.

Family of student names Marathon in $105,000 suit

By ERIC WEDEKING
Senior reporter

The family of David Tepen, the Eastern student who died of burns last year following a fiery explosion at a Charleston gas station, is suing Marathon Oil Co. and the station owner for more than $105,000.

Tepen died in a Springfield hospital burn unit about 10 hours after an explosion Nov. 6, 1986, at University Marathon, 516 Lincoln Ave.

Arthur Tepen, David's father, filed a seven-count suit Dec. 30 with the Coles County Circuit Clerk against Marathon Oil Co., of Chicago, and Michal Owen, owner and operator of University Marathon.

Tepen's suit said that Marathon Oil and Owen "owed a duty to... the deceased" and should have refrained from negligent conduct, negligent acts and omissions that resulted in Tepen's injuries, "horrific pain" and eventual death.

Both Marathon Oil and Owen were served summons Jan. 18 and Jan. 5 respectively and have thirty days to reply to the seven-count complaint.

Tepen suffered burns over 96 percent of his body after the explosion. Fire department officials said the explosion occurred while Tepen was cleaning the bay floor with gasoline and the fumes were ignited by a water heater pilot light.

The Occupational Health and Safety Association cited Owen for three safety violations and fined him $240 for not posting notices of recognized hazards following a two-month investigation.

At the time of his death, Tepen was a senior computer science major.

Arthur Tepen said he could not make any specific comments about the suit, but he indicated in an emotional phone conversation Tuesday night that his feelings still run deep for his son.

"There is no amount of money that could replace my son," Tepen said from his Michael residence in rural Calhoun County.

As is required by law provided by workman's compensation, Marathon Oil paid for Tepen's medical expenses and about half of his $3,000 funeral.

David C. Wahl, an Alton attorney representing Tepen, said from his home that he could not discuss the lawsuit because he did not have the brief in his possession.

Of all of the seven counts, the lawsuit requests the court rule "in excess of $15,000" for each count and asks that each allegation be decided in a jury trial.

The first four counts name Marathon Oil responsible for the death of Tepen through negligent acts and omissions.

Some of the charges in the suit accuse Marathon Oil of allowing Tepen to use gasoline as a cleaning agent while failing to post OSHA regulations. The suit also says Marathon failed to make Owen refrain from allowing employees to use gasoline as a cleaning agent.

Owen declined to comment about the lawsuit Tuesday evening.

Petition to decertify UPI's BOG contract sent to schools

By JEFF BRITT
Administration editor

A petition to decertify the University Professionals of Illinois' Board of Governors contract has been sent to all BOG schools by an Eastern faculty member, said UPI president Mitch Vogel.

"If 30 percent of the faculty say they want to decertify UPI as an agency, an election will be held," Vogel said Tuesday in the Union addition Casey Room.

The voters, the almost 2,000 faculty members in the BOG, need a 51 percent vote in the election to decertify UPI in the BOG.

"It's not going to happen," Vogel said. Mathematics professor Lewis Coon issued a letter asking for the Faculty Senate's approval, said Faculty Senate Chair John North. Coon sent a copy of the letter to the other four faculty senates in the BOG.

Mathematics professor Robert Megginson said Coon's intent is not to disband UPI, but to give new instructors a chance to vote on whether they want a union to represent them.

"The union has been authorized to negotiate for Eastern as well as the other BOG schools, and many of the young faculty members at Eastern have never gotten a chance to vote on if they want a union representing them," Megginson said.

"I'm not leading an effort or anything," he said. "I just wanted to make sure the effort didn't die while he (Coon) was on sabbatical.

"There are many very controversial issues that the union deals with, and these young faculty never got a choice on if they wanted a union to represent them," Megginson said.

He said the letter probably was drafted last semester.

Vogel said Northeastern and Governors State have declined to circulate the petition.

Eastern's Faculty Senate accepted the letter Tuesday, but "The senate today did nothing except agreed to put it on the agenda to be discussed next week," North said.

"I have enough faith in the job we've done. People will not sign that petition," Vogel said.

He said faculty members signing the petition is similar to students signing a petition to raise tuition.

"On Feb 3., UPI, the Illinois Student Association and some other people will give a state of the state address."

He said Governor James R. Thompson hasn't done it because Illinois is in such dire straits.

"Illinois is in such a bad state economically that the governor has chosen not to give a state of the state address," Vogel said.

He said low education budgets and tuition hikes of last year worsened the state's economic condition.

He said Illinois received grades of "F" in employment, quality of life and entrepreneurial energy in the study "Making the Grade," conducted by the Corporation of Illinois Development.

Court orders new trial for killing

SPRINGFIELD—The Illinois Supreme Court on Tuesday ordered a new trial for two men convicted in the 1983 abduction and killing of 10-year-old Jeanine Nicarico of Naperville.

The justices ruled that the joint trial of Rolando Cruz, 27, and Alejandro Hernandez, 24, was tainted by prosecution testimony that effectively made each defendant a witness against the other.

Because there was no opportunity for cross-examination, the two were denied their constitutional right to confront their accusers, the court said in rulings issued without written dissent.

"The evidence against the defendant was not overwhelming, and determining the outcome in the absence of the improper testimony is impossible," Justice Howard Ryan wrote in the court's opinion on Cruz' appeal.

The victim's mother, Patricia Nicarico, said she was disappointed by the ruling.

"The system that you want to trust just doesn't seem to work," she said in a telephone interview from her Naperville home.

3 SIU students killed in plane crash

CARBONDALE—Federal investigators Tuesday began trying to determine the cause of a fiery plane crash that killed three college freshmen en route to a second semester at Southern Illinois University.

Heavy rain shrouded the wooded site of Monday's night's crash as Edward McAvoy of the National Transportation Safety Board began probing the twisted wreckage of the twin-engine Piper Aztec.

Water pooled on fields near the crash scene, which late Monday night was accessible only on foot or by four-wheel-drive vehicle.

The plane crashed about 6 p.m. CST about a mile northeast of Southern Illinois Airport near Carbondale, Jackson County Sheriff Bill Kilouist said. Visibility was a low one-half mile at the time, with a 250-foot ceiling.

The victims, killed instantly, were identified Tuesday as Matthew P. Brady, 19, of Kankakee; Damon F. Deuschle, 18, of Bradley; and Darrel McClure Jr., 21, of Bourbonnais, the Jackson County Sheriff's Department said.

Reagan OKs weapons airdrops, lobbyists to offset additional aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan on Tuesday authorized the CIA to resume airdrops of weapons to Nicaragua's Contra rebels, as congressional opponents worked to offset an expected presidential lobbying blitz for an extension of military aid.

"This is really a gut issue for the president," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., an opponent of the aid renewal Reagan is expected to seek for the rebels on Jan. 26. "It is his highest foreign policy objective. The administration will pull out every stop in order to win this vote."

The House is to vote Feb. 3 on Reagan's request for an as-yet-undetermined amount of new military aid. If it approves the request, the Senate would vote the next day.

In a speech to administration political appointees Tuesday, the president reiterated his belief that only continued military pressure on Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government will lead to peace for the region.

"We must have the courage to stand behind those who continue to put their lives on the line for democracy in Nicaragua," Reagan said.

The rebels are currently operating on a short-term infusion of humanitarian aid approved before Congress left for its holiday recess, including money to pay for CIA airdrops of previously-stockpiled weapons and ammunition. That money expected to last through month.

The airdrops had been suspended for the past week because of weekend meeting in Costa Rica of the five Central American presidents who signed a peace accord Aug. 7.

Under the law, Reagan may ask for any new military aid next week, triggering votes in Congress the following week. The administration's task of winning new lethal supplies made more difficult over the weekend, when Nicaragua President Daniel Ortega promised to make substantial concessions to keep the peace process alive.

Israeli army quells riots by force

JERUSALEM (AP)—Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin confronted stone-throwing Palestinians in a West Bank refugee camp Tuesday, and said the army will use beatings rather than bullets to quell riots that began six weeks ago.

He also said Israel would bar foreign countries or private groups from shipping food to Palestinian refugee camps in the occupied territories. United Nations officials say some camps are short of food because of curfews.

Talking to reporters and later to Israel Television, Rabin said troops were under orders to use "force, power and blows" to put down violent demonstrations. He used the Hebrew word "makot," which means blows and beatings.

Elaborating on the policy to an Israel TV reporter, he said soldiers would "prevent them (demonstrations) with force, not fire," and promised the army would leave as soon as order was restored.

Israeli gunfire has been the No. 1 cause of 36 confirmed Palestinian deaths in the 6-week-old wave of unrest sweeping the occupied territories.

Scattered disturbances were reported Tuesday in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war, but Rabin claimed violent incidents were down "almost zero." About 1.5 million Palestinians live in the territories.

Military spokesmen reported a violent riot in Mazraa, near a West Bank city of Ramallah. They said a 29-year-old Arab Azami Jamaa, was hospitalized with a bullet in the chest.

The defense minister denied there were food shortages in the camps.

Controversy sparked over agency shop

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

The fair share controversy has sparked a small tiff between two Eastern faculty members—Faculty Senator Larry Janes and John Rearden, Eastern's union head for the University Professionals of Illinois.

Janes, who strictly opposes the fair share concept, distributed a fair share survey to faculty members in the first week of January.

"I teach bargaining. It's a hot topic, and I felt it was appropriate to research it," Janes said Monday.

However, Rearden got wind of Janes' survey and sent out a memo to faculty, warning them that Janes' survey would have no effect on whether or not fair share would be instituted at Eastern.

"I sent that memo so people would not misconstrue the significance of the survey," Rearden said, noting that UPI was forming a survey of its own.

Fair share involves non-union members paying a percentage of yearly collective bargaining costs.

Janes said several faculty members, who are also UPI members, came to Janes and asked him "to obtain a data base concerning fair share." The faculty members, Janes said, will remain anonymous.

Janes followed up on his colleagues' suggestions and drafted a survey for faculty members to respond to. The survey asked members whether they are UPI members and what their views are on the fair share issue.

Janes is giving faculty until Jan. 31 to respond to his survey and, so his colleagues don't "accuse him of tainting the results," Janes has his secretary handling faculty responses.

"The matter is not going to be resolved by Janes' survey," Rearden said.

"The survey isn't perfect," Janes said. "I've already heard that eight people have accused me of being pro-union and eight others have accused me of being pro-labor. I think it's (the survey) as objective as you can get."

Rearden said the faculty members will receive the UPI survey this spring, prior to every collective bargaining session. This spring, the UPI/Board of Governors three-year contract for faculty is up for negotiation.

Rearden also noted the fair share issue may be on the bargaining table, but UPI officials have not determined that yet.

"Fair share may be part of the negotiations, but we don't even know that yet. I think Janes is trying to make this an issue," Rearden said.

But Janes says he's just trying to sense how the faculty feels about fair share.

"I don't want to cloud the issue. I just want the faculty to look at the data and see if fair share is worth it," Janes said.

BOG to examine key policy issues

By MATT HORTENSTINE
Staff writer

Two key policy issues, one involving minority, female and disabled students and the other regarding new faculty roles and responsibilities, will be examined by the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, at 8:30 a.m. Thursday at Chicago State University.

Thomas Layzell, BOG Chancellor, will present his plan for the five state-supported universities under the BOG's jurisdiction to increase the participation and academic success of minority, female and disabled students.

The plan, sparked by a declining number of minority students nationally, involves 17 specific goals which are intended to entice new disadvantaged students and give incentives to already enrolled students to remain at the five universities, said BOG spokesperson Pam Meyer.

Judith Anderson, director of Eastern's affirmative action office, said the plan originally began development last year.

She said the goals set by the proposal are written in general terms concerning recruitment and retention of disadvantaged students.

"The university is well on its way to meeting the goals set fourth in the proposal," she said.

In support, Director of Admissions Dale Wolf said that the admissions department has one counselor who specifically attempts to recruit minority students in the Chicago and East St. Louis areas.

However, Wolf added that admissions has little control of the retention of students at Eastern after their freshman year.

But Ceci Brinker, Black Student Union adviser, said that is a problem being worked on now.

"From our perspective, the retention of minority students largely depends on social and extracurricular activities.

"And we are working on ways to develop cultural and social events to fill that need, but it is still in the developmental stages," she said.

Another major issue on the agenda for the Thursday meeting is new faculty roles and responsibilities.

Meyers said that the board will meet with Jack Shuster, professor of education and public policy at the Claremont Graduate School, Claremont, Calif.

"With changing technology and demographics, the roles and responsibilities of faculty will be changing," she said.

Schuster, an expert on the subject, will be addressing the BOG and a panel of resource persons from the five universities in the system.

John North, secondary education and foundations chair, will represent Eastern on the panel.

"It's my understanding that the panel will react to Schuster's speech," he said.

North added that Schuster is expected to address five points including professional responsibility, demographic changes, new technology, developmental opportunities and five stages for the recruitment of minority, female and disabled students.

In other business, the BOG will hear reports from the five university presidents and a proposal for Western Illinois University authorizing two new degree programs.

Illinois official to address Student Senate

Lt. Gov. Ryan to speak on anti-drug program and respond to questions

By BILL LOOBY
Staff writer

Lt. Governor George Ryan will be the keynote speaker at the Student Senate's first meeting of the semester at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the University addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Ryan's expected half-hour speech will center around the STOP anti-drug program, Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis said. She added Ryan will also speak on duties of his office and have a question and answer period following his talk.

Besides Ryan's speech, the senate will approve the executive assistant, secretary, committee chairpersons and committee membership positions.

Sue Pennington is the current executive assistant, and is expected to be retained, Wasetis said. Secretary Monica McAdams, a junior, is also expected to be returned to her post.

Interviews are currently being conducted for chairs and memberships to the various committees, she added.

Wasetis said the interviews are taking some time. "We're going right down to the deadline (Wednesday)."

Wasetis also said no chair from last semester has applied for the same post, which is what the senate likes to happen to allow new ideas to be circulated among the committees.

Committees include: Academic Affairs, Elections, Housing, Minority and International Relations, Student Awareness, Student Legislative and University Relations.

Wasetis said that although holding interviews for committee membership is time-consuming, "so far it's working out."

Student Body President Deb Camren will speak on assembling a recreation task force to deal with the problems facing the school in that area. Camren said, "(Senate is) going to start from ground zero and go through the whole thing (planning) again."

The televised presidential debates and signing students up to be deputy registrars will be included in Camren's report.

She said a deputy registrar's job will be to help with registering the people of Coles County to vote.

Senate set to discuss petition

By JEFF SMITH
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate decided Tuesday to discuss next Tuesday a petition seeking a vote on whether the University Professionals of Illinois' contract with the Board of Governors should be retained.

The petition was drafted by Eastern mathematics professor Lewis Coon, who is on sabbatical and unavailable for comment.

Decertifying the faculty union of the five BOG schools in Illinois would mean the union could no longer bargain collectively with the BOG.

In order to qualify for a vote on decertification, petitioners must have at least 30 percent of all BOG schools' faculty sign the petitions.

If the proper number of signatures are obtained, the matter comes to a vote, Secretary Gary Foster said. All BOG schools' faculty members part of the collective bargaining agreement are eligible to vote, he added.

A majority vote is needed to pass the decertification measure if it comes to ballot, Foster said.

Free sodas may help minimize drunk driving

For the first time in years, a campus organization has succeeded in combining its efforts with an area business to find a way to minimize the number of students who drink and drive.

As in any college town, this has been a neglected problem for too long.

Editorial In past years, solutions have been offered only in campaign promises for student government hopefuls and were quickly placed on the back-burner until the next election. However 1987-88 has already produced the long-awaited "Drunk Bus" and more recently the designated driver program.

The Student Senate, local bar owners and Panther Distributing, Route 1, together have designed the program which will provide free sodas to anyone volunteering to be a designated driver for either himself or a group of people.

The designated driver will receive a pin identifying him to the bartenders. The pin will allow this person to drink free soda all night.

All parties involved deserve a pat on the back for working together on this much-needed program, however they should be careful not to neglect the program in future months.

Bar owners especially need to keep a careful watch on the program to be sure those frequenting the bar are not abusing the free soda privileges. It would be all too simple for friends to wear the pin just long enough to obtain a free drink and then turn around and start consuming alcohol.

This would not only defeat the purpose of the program by continuing to send students out of the bars to drive under the influence of alcohol, but it would also reduce profit local bar owners would have normally received from the sale of the soda.

Students too should take note of the efforts of these groups before taking advantage of the program lightly.

By making the designated driver program so easily accessible to students, these groups have shown they are concerned about the number of potential arrests, injuries and deaths which could result from needlessly driving drunk.

Students can easily show their appreciation to these groups by using the program the way it is intended. By simply alternating nights as a designated driver amongst friends, you could save a life—maybe your own.

News flash! You're being censored!

There may be some good coming from the recent blunder handed down from the high court.

I am, of course, speaking of the recent Hazelwood East High School decision in which the Supreme Court justices said it is OK with them if school administrators censor speech that "interferes" with the school's work or "is inconsistent with its mission."

School administrators can further nab anything from the yet unprinted pages of a high school newspaper that they think publicizes "conduct otherwise inconsistent with shared values."

Call me a naive idiot, but I thought everyone, especially college-educated people, would realize what a horrendous decision this is.

But, alas, I quickly discovered that there are several people who are still in the caveman stage of First Amendment rights.

Conan, for lack of a better two-syllable name, argued that the decision was right on track because the students at Hazelwood East High School got credit for producing their newspaper, The Spectrum.

Because credit was given in exchange for the work on the paper, the students should agree editorially with the very teachers that give them the grade.

It was also argued that because high school students, like those at the St. Louis area high school, can't possibly know anything about issues like sex, teen-age pregnancy or the effect of the divorce on teens, they should not be able to write about them.

How could teen-agers know about things that happen to them and their peers?

You see, high school students need people to tell them what to say, how to say it and when to say it, at least according to some people.

Jean Wright

While this is a devastating blow to the First Amendment and those who hold it dear, I think a lot of good may come out of it.

If nothing else, maybe it will open the eyes of high school students who are being censored and don't even realize it.

Granted, it sounds stupid. Someone tells you you can't print something in your public high school newspaper, you should realize that your First Amendment rights are being violated, right?

Unfortunately, it sometimes isn't that clear. When you're in high school, you believe what the teachers and administrators tell you. Why would they lie? They're supposed to be the ones that are looking out for you. They know what is best.

Unfortunately, we are not the students of the '60s who rebel against the administration when something smells foul. We accept it because that's what we are brought up to do.

And that's where the real problem lies. Teachers of high school journalism, advisers of high school papers and principals find it very easy to tell students that they can't run something because it's "too controversial." Translation, "I'm up for tenure and don't want to piss off the administration."

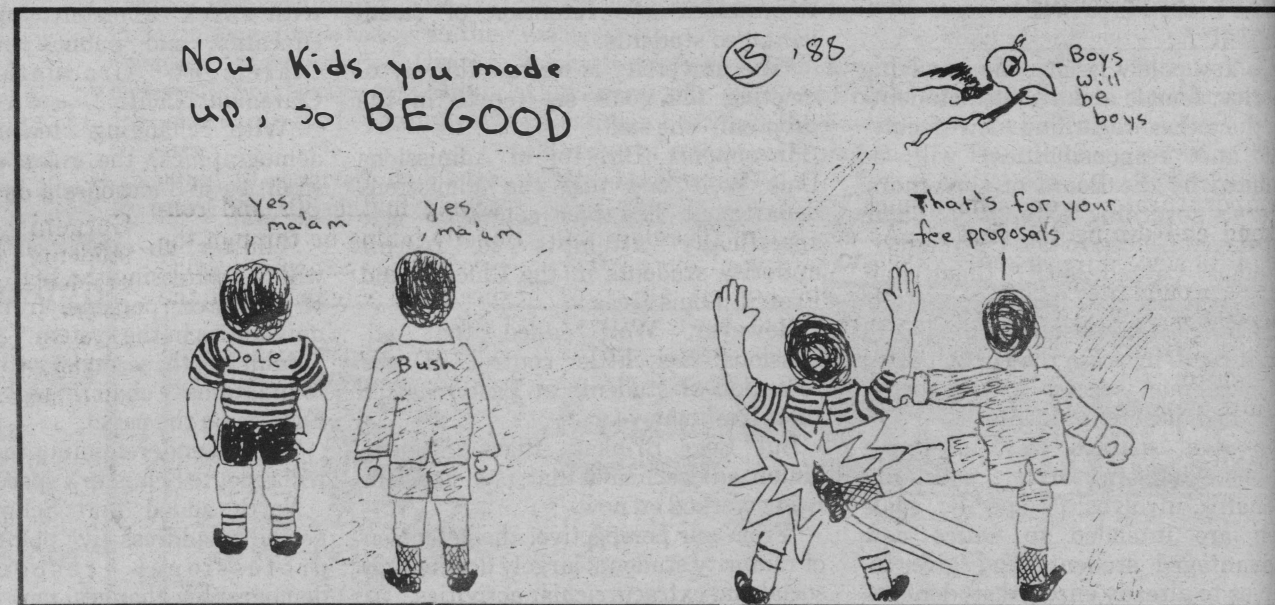

Yes, I know (or at least I hope) this doesn't happen at most schools. But it burns me up because it happened at my school, and I was too ignorant about my rights to speak up.

It wasn't until I got to college that I realized what had happened and that censorship doesn't always come in the form of a principal, sometimes it comes from someone the student editor trusts—her adviser.

That's why I applaud the students at Hazelwood. Yes, they lost the battle, but I think they made a huge stride in the war against censorship.

After all, you can't fight the enemy when you don't know who it is.

—Jean Wright is consulting editor and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Your turn

Designated Driver effort is first step

Editor:

Once again The Daily Eastern News has failed to get the facts straight before printing an editorial. The Designated Driver program (editorial Dec. 11) is not designed to solve all problems of alcohol abuse; its intention is to help alleviate some of those problems. The program will offer students an alternative. There will not be an organized effort on the Student Senate's part to decide: who are the drivers; what they're drinking; who they're taking home from bars.

Students who are going out with their friends, are driving, and do not wish to drink, may now drink soda... free of charge. We're simply asking people to take the responsibility on themselves; this program simply offers a little added encouragement.

Today our society is stressing the importance of drinking (and not drinking) responsibly. Accidents involving alcohol-related deaths are among this nation's leading killers.

Eastern students should be well aware of this with the recent death of Kristy Zastro. Kristy's friends miss her. I hope that all students keep this recent tragedy in mind when they go out and that they realize their responsibility to their families, friends and themselves.

BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), Panther Distributing Co., and all participating bars (Page One Tavern, My Place, E.L. Krackers and Ike's) realize the impact this program can have on our campus.

I hope other bars follow suit and do the same; I hope you do, too, and that you will then use this program to your own advantage.

Are you going out this weekend? Are you driving? Don't drink and drive... use the Designated Driver Program.

Denise M. Wasetis
Student Senate Speaker

Round Table was started. It is composed of representatives of student organizations on campus. Its purpose is to provide a means to improve communication, among groups, campus-wide. Many groups were contacted and an open invitation was made in an article in the Daily Eastern News to all those interested. This meeting has proven to be very successful. However, its success is dependent on on-going participation from various groups. The turnout has been great but the more participation from groups, the better it can benefit all the participants. So, again, I would like to make an open invitation to groups to represent themselves at the Round Table and participate. The next meeting is at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 20, in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room. Hope to see all groups represented.

Rotary pool to be renovated

By JEFF McCOMBS
City editor

About 100 Charleston residents were asked to attend a Tuesday hearing in the City Council chambers to voice their opinions on the future of the Rotary indoor pool.

Through the session, it appears the main objective concerning pool renovation are getting the existing pool facility into a usable state.

Keith Bettinger of Clark Dietz, Inc., an engineering and architecture firm in Champaign, stated that the cost to get the pool in a usable shape will reach between $100,000 to $250,000.

"After a structural evaluation, we will know more (about the condition of the existing roof)," Bettinger said.

"The insulation on the steel (supporting the roof) perhaps has done more damage than good."

Bettinger said the insulation may have trapped moisture, allowing for the roof to decay from the inside out.

"We won't know until we peel off the insulation," Bettinger said. "If the steel is OK, we would like to see the steel cables go."

The steel cables, used to keep the supports from pulling apart, apparently hang low causing a hazard to potential divers into the pool.

One solution to the problem, Bettinger said, would be to raise the roof which would create additional space and provide more natural lighting in the facility.

Chris Bezruki, executive assistant to the city council, said that the proposed completion date to have the pool open to the public was set for Sept. 1.

"By changing one problem, we may eliminate two or three problems like heating," Bezruki said.

Correcting the heating and humidity problem would help solve the problem of the water being too cold and the showers being too cold, Bezruki said.

After the public hearing concerning the pool, the City Council, following a presentation from Charleston Area Economic Development Foundation Director Buddy Foster, voted unanimously to grant the foundation the third quarterly payment of $6,250.

Top teacher's plight met with sympathy

By AMBER GRIMES
Staff writer

Eastern students' and local teachers' reactions to the plight of Gary McCullough, the 1987 Teacher of the Year who quit to sell insurance, were ones of compassion and sympathy.

In a situation similar to McCullough's, Gary Gergeni, prevocational coordinator for cooperative work training, said he quit his teaching job nine years ago to sell insurance.

"I was being paid more to sell insurance, something I wasn't trained for, than to teach, which was something I knew," Gergeni said.

Elementary Education Professor Carol Helwig said this same scenario has happened many times. "Teacher's salaries don't allow them to live, they have to find alternatives."

"I've seen a lot of good teachers get out (of the teaching profession) and make more than they would teaching by doing things they weren't qualified for," Gergeni added. "I've been in education for 20 years and I haven't seen anyone fix the problems (of teaching)."

Gergeni said the insurance company that hired him told him: "Education is a super-market of insurance agents, just offer them more money."

"A teacher is a teacher 24-hours a day, 365 days a year," Gergeni said. "I've had students call me at home with problems, it's part of being a teacher. I don't know the answers. I wish I did."

"They'll have to pay for qualified teachers," Gergeni said. "(The field) is losing experienced teachers. Some are going to different states. Teachers aren't being compensated for their abilities."

"If Eastern's faculty salaries are not competitive, I could see faculty leaving for better salaries," Helwig noted. "I think it's sad to see schools lose outstanding teachers."

"It's very discouraging for teachers to work for 15 to 20 years and live on (a salary of) $22,000," Helwig said. "If I had to do it all over, I'd consider salary as a factor."

"I came back to teaching because I missed it, I was willing to take less pay to keep on teaching," Gergeni noted.

"It's very discouraging to have a lid or top on salaries," said Ruth Hawkins, a former Illinois "Teacher of the Year" who also left teaching. "I was aware that salaries were not competitive."

However, several special education students said they didn't consider money a factor when they decided to enter the teaching profession.

Senior Dawn Cameron said she got into teaching because of "my love for children. The salary doesn't matter."

Junior Amy Dycus said she entered the field so she could help handicapped children. "I'm not doing it for the money. If I was, I wouldn't be teaching," Dycus said.

"In high school I took a class and taught 3- and 4-year-olds all year. That's what made me decide to teach," said sophomore Erin Murphy. "Money's not really a factor. I know it doesn't pay well, but it's what I want to do. I don't want to go into another field."

January weather called unusual

By JEFF McCOMBS
City editor

The unusual rainy weather and warm temperatures may have people thinking spring is just around the corner, but think again.

Weather and Climate Instructor Vince Gutowski warned that the recent weather is definitely unusual for this time of year.

"For this time of year, yeah, it is unusual," Gutowski said. "The average temperature for January is 27 degrees, so this is fairly unusual."

Temperatures over the weekend and during the first part of this week have been hovering around the mid-40s.

Gutowski said that warm air coming up from the gulf has been causing the warm temperatures and moisture.

Due to the heavy rainfall and previous cold weather, much of the rain is sitting stagnant on the ground and on the streets. And, since the temperature is expected to begin dropping, streets and sidewalks could become very hazardous.

"Below four inches (under the ground), the ground is still frozen," Gutowski said. "That is why a lot of the water is standing; it has nowhere to go. A lot of rainfall will cause a lot of flooding. And a couple of days of colder weather will freeze the top four inches quick."

As of 12 p.m. Tuesday, the Coles County road and weather report stated that all roads were in normal winter driving conditions. A change in the temperature, however, could cause roads to become icy and hazardous.

Gutowski says that the warm weather is somewhat typical, but warns that the winter cold will strike again.

"It is almost a given," Gutowski said when asked if cold temperatures and snow would return. "It seems there is generally a January thaw. I do not even think about nicer weather until the end of February."

The National Weather Service predicted that temperatures would drop beginning on Thursday, with highs reaching in the 30s and continually falling on through the weekend. The Saturday high is expected to only reach into the 20s.

The weather service reported that since midnight Monday, .76 inches of rain had fallen.

Eastern play does well at theater competition

By FELICIA FULKS
Staff writer

Players' theater production of "Philadelphia, Here I Come" did well at the American College Theater Festival regional competition, said Theater Department Chair Terry Allen.

In December, Players' won an invitation to the competition which was held Wednesday through Sunday.

Allen supervised the play and the trip to Wisconsin. He said the festival included schools from both Wisconsin and Illinois.

"The trip cost approximately $9,000," Allen said.

Eastern students put on the play Friday, Allen said.

"Philadelphia, Here I Come" is a play based on an Irishman (Gar O'Donnell) at home for the last evening before he goes to America, leaving behind his friends and family.

"We didn't have many mix ups or problems. Everything went smoothly" during the performance, said senior Anne Lloyd, who played the girlfriend of Gar O'Donnell in the play.

Senior theater major Tina Woolfolk was a costume assistant for the play. She said she couldn't see the play because she had to always be backstage, but said, "The audience reaction was good."

Allen said no one from Eastern placed.

The festival also provided many other opportunities for the students attending.

Richard Thomas, who played John Boy on the television series "The Waltons," surprised Eastern students by talking with them.

"He (Thomas) was a special guest at the American College Theatre Festival. He seems to be a very down-to-earth person," Lloyd said.

Round Table to meet Wednesday

Letters have once again been sent to organizations represented on campus for the Eastern Round Table scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Executive Vice President Trish Nusbaum said two letters have actually been sent to organizations.

The first is directed to those groups who have already sent representatives to meetings, held the third Wednesday of every month. The other letter is for groups that have not been able to send a representative.

Nusbaum said in the course of the last week 60-plus letters have been placed in mailboxes of organizations on campus. She said because a new Student Register, listing the organizations on campus, has yet to be printed, she has attempted to contact as many groups as she could find with an outdated list.

The meeting will consist of an open discussion on Wednesday to introduce new groups and find out what projects groups have planned.

Nusbaum said there is a chance an organization was not contacted for the meeting but they are still welcome to attend.

Convicted killer to waive appeals on his execution

Convicted killer Charles Walker may waive further appeals of his death sentence, the state Supreme Court said Tuesday in a ruling that could lead to Illinois' first execution in 25 years.

With one of its seven justices dissenting, the court set a May 10 execution date for the 47-year-old Belleville native.

"This court finds that Charles Walker is mentally competent to waive further legal actions on his behalf, has made a knowing and intelligent waiver of any such further legal actions and is fit to be executed," the justices said in a two-page order.

Walker would be the first man executed in Illinois since 1962, and the first in the state to be put to death by lethal injection.

"It's the only thing they could do," Walker said in a telephone interview from Death Row at Menard Correctional Center in Chester. "I've been trying to do this for two years now."

He expects others will try to block his execution, "but I'm ready. And my family is ready," he said. "My brother has taken care of my funeral plans."

Walker pleaded guilty to killing Kevin Paule, 21, and Sharon Winker, 25, both of Mascoutah in June 1983 during a robbery while the couple was fishing. He admitted that he shot them after Paule said he would remember him.

Walker asked to waive further appeals, saying execution was preferable to wasting away in prison.

"I can't see spending 15 to 25 years living in a cell," he said at his November competency hearing. "There's not light at the end of the tunnel."

Justice Seymour Simon, who offered the only written dissent, said the high court should have waited until the state's death penalty law is tested by the federal courts.

"A death penalty case is not a boxing match, where one contestant can end the fight by simply throwing in the towel," Simon wrote.

"Allowing Walker to call the shots in this case results in nothing short of a state-sponsored suicide, is inconsistent with constitutional principles and disrupts the orderly administration of justice."

While agreeing Walker serves "his punishment," Simon said the high court's decision amounts to "execution on demand."

"I believe that a prisoner's desire to die should never be elevated above society's interest in ensuring that no Illinois citizen be improperly executed," Simon wrote.

In a telephone interview before his Nov. 20 competency hearing, Walker said he is ready to die by lethal injection than go on pacing, reading and crocheting.

"I am sorry that I did it, but I can't change it, and I ain't going to set and think about it," he said.

St. Clair Circuit Judge Richard A. Hudlin ruled Walker competent at the hearing and told him, "it is a sad thing when a man of his intelligence comes to this."

Subway hosting comedian

Comedian A.J. Jamal, a fast-rising star in the world of entertainment, will be performing for Eastern students Wednesday in the Subway.

The show will begin at 8 p.m., with an admission fee of 50 cents.

Jamal's performance at Eastern is the beginning of his Illinois and Indiana tour at several clubs and college campuses.

Before becoming a full-time comedian, Jamal worked for IBM in Los Angeles, said Jim Lenz, Jamal's booking agent.

He said that Jamal has been performing for about seven years, but has devoted his last 2½ years to performing full-time.

Jamal's work experience includes several performances at some well-known clubs and comedy shops in the California area, Lenz said.

One of these clubs is The Improv, where many entertainers get their big start, Lenz said. The Improv is shown on HBO specials during various times of the year.

At the end of January, HBO will show a comedy special with Jamal performing at the Improv with Eddie Murphy.

Eastern students will be among the most fortunate to see Jamal in person before he performs with Murphy on the HBO special, Lenz said.

Murphy saw Jamal perform and invited him to be on his special just two weeks ago, Lenz said.

"Details concerning that special are still being worked out," Lenz said.

Lenz and Gina Moon, university board subway coordinator, both have high expectations for the UB-sponsored show.

"We're expecting a big crowd," Moon said.

Moon and 14 other UB members were given the opportunity to see Jamal perform before scheduling him to appear at Eastern.

"He was very funny, so we (the 14 UB members) took a vote on him," Moon said.

Most of the comedy that Jamal does will be geared toward college students, Moon said. She added that she expects it to be "a real good show."

Larson says parking's improved

By MATTHEW MAYNARD
Staff writer

Eastern's new parking system, though not perfect, is an improvement on the old one, Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said.

The old parking system designated a letter to each lot. Each car was given a parking sticker with the letter of the lot in which it could be parked.

Under the new system, parking lots are designated by student, staff or visitor parking signs.

"With the old system, you had only one lot to park in,"

Larson said. "If your designated parking lot was on the north end of campus and your class was on the south end, you were flat out of luck."

"With the new system, there is each kind of parking all over campus. This lessens the likelihood of, say, a young lady having to walk through the campus at night," Larson said.

Larson also said the new system makes sticker recognition easier. Students have yellow stickers for yellow lots. An illegally parked car is easily recognized by Campus Police, Larson said.

"In my opinion, the system is flawed but still an improvement over the old one. The main reason is there are still over 100 spaces available daily," Larson said.

Most of the available parking is in the former Ninth Street parking lot, Larson said.

"The only complaints come from commuters. They say they have to park too far away," Larson said.

For the spring semester there have been 450 parking stickers sold, which is no more than last semester.

Little People's Weekend slated to run April 22-24

By MATT MANSFIELD
Staff writer

The Residence Hall Association will be sponsoring a Little People's Weekend, scheduled for April 22-24, to run concurrently with Celebration Weekend.

Celebration Weekend is a community involvement program held in the spring featuring crafts, food and entertainment on campus.

RHA spokesman Grahame Wilkin said a lot of Eastern student's brothers and sisters should be on campus that weekend for the celebration and the RHA wants to give them something special.

Wilkin, who has been involved with Little People's Weekend for three years, said that each year the RHA decides on a theme for the weekend.

Last year's theme was geared toward the University Board's showing of "The Wizard of Oz." Events included: basketball and cheerleading clinics, 50-cent bowling, swimming, a scavenger hunt, bingo and a puppet show.

Wilkin said the theme for this year's weekend has not been decided, but added he hopes to have a live band performing on the South Quad during the weekend.

Chairpersons to head the committees for the weekend have yet to be chosen, RHA Vice President Glen Flannagan said.

Even at such an early stage in the planning, Wilkin said, "the way RHA has been this year, I know it will be very good."

Fifth-grade spellers compete Wednesday

There will be young faces spelling an old list of words at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the 10th annual Cougill Memorial Fifth-Grade Spelling Bee in the Greenwood School Museum, Hayes Street, Charleston.

Jefferson School Principal Jim Louthan said, "We will be using the same list that was originally compiled by the Coles County superintendent of schools in 1905—the list we use each year."

Louthan said winners will not compete on a national or local basis but will receive blue, red and white ribbons attached to participation certificates signifying first, second and third places.

Redskins find combination

HERNDON, Va. (AP)—Take 16 veterans with Super Bowl experience, add about 30 young, spirited players who are itching to get there, and you've got the Washington Redskins' formula for a successful season.

"We've got a lot of youthful guys who have really contributed to this team, and we have a good blend of veterans," said center Jeff Bostic. "When you've got that combination, you're going to go places."

Like San Diego, to play the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XXII.

Veterans such as Bostic, Dave Butz and Dexter Manley were with the Redskins when the team went to consecutive Super Bowls in 1982 and 1983. While their performances this season helped Washington make a return trip, they were no less valuable than some of the team's younger players.

On offense, rookie running back Timmy Smith had a team-high 138 rushing yards in the Redskins' two playoff victories, and second-year receiver Ricky Sanders proved to be a more than adequate substitute for the injured Art Monk.

On defense, eighth-round draft pick Clarence Vaughn had four tackles and a sack in the NFC title game against the Minnesota Vikings, first-year linebackers Kurt Gouveia and Ravin Caldwell combined for three tackles and two sacks against the Vikings, and rookie Brian Davis recovered a fumble.

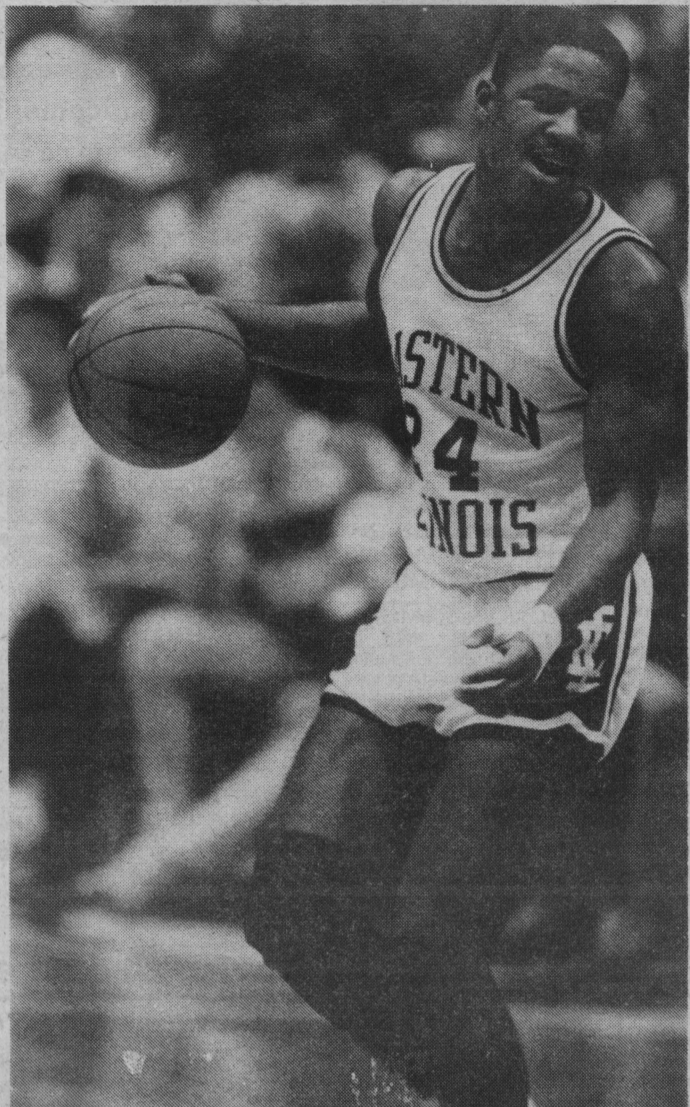

"Really, the advantage we have here is that we have 16 guys who have been to the Super Bowl and knew what it took to get there," Gibbs continued. "And yet we had a majority of young guys who had never been there, were hungry, and decided they were going to do whatever it takes. And they've got the older players' experience."

While youth was a factor, it is impossible to overlook the performance of some of the veterans who were anxious to return to the Super Bowl. Dave Butz, who wiped away the taste of last trip, a humiliating 38-10 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders in Super Bowl XVIII.

Butz, at 37 the oldest defensive player in the league, had two sacks against the Minnesota Vikings and tipped a pass that turned into an interception. Butz played his first game, each of the current members of the Redskins was still in school.

"I don't think of him (Butz) being as old as he is," Gibbs said. "It seems like he can't get old. He still has a young heart, and still gets excited when he makes a big play."

Bell, Dawson file for arbitration; seek record hikes in '88 salaries

NEW YORK (AP)—George Bell and Andre Dawson, the 1987 MVPs, asked for $2 million salaries and Kirby Puckett asked for a raise of almost $1 million as players and clubs exchanged arbitration figures Tuesday.

Bell, the American League MVP, submitted a request for $2.105 million, according to figures obtained by The Associated Press. If Bell wins his case, he would have the sixth highest salary in baseball next season and gain an $880,000 raise. The Toronto Blue Jays submitted a figure of $1.725 million.

Dawson, the National League MVP, asked for $2 million, four times his 1987 base salary.

He signed a blank contract with the Chicago Cubs last spring and the team filled in $500,000. Dawson also earned $200,000 in bonuses in 1987.

Chicago, which has offered Dawson a two-year contract for about $3 million, but has refused his request for a three- or four-year contract, submitted a figure of $1.85 million.

Dick Moss, Dawson's agent, had said he might seek a salary as high as $2.5 million, partly because Dawson took a $1 million pay cut last season to leave the Montreal Expos and join the Cubs.

"I think Dick Moss is a very intelligent man," Cubs general manager Jim Frey said Tuesday. "He studied the situation and came in at what he thought was a fair figure. It doesn't come as a particular surprise to me."

If either Bell or Dawson win their cases, they would break the record for highest salary awarded by an arbitrator, topping the $1.975 million given to Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees last winter.

Puckett, who batted .332 last season with 28 homers and 99 runs batted in, asked for $1.35 million. He made $365,000 in salary in 1987 and earned another $60,000 in bonuses.

The Minnesota Twins submitted a figure of $930,000.

The New York Mets are attempting to cut the salary of pitcher Dwight Gooden, who missed two months of the 1987 season in drug rehabilitation but still led the team in victories, going 15-7 with a 3.21 earned-run average.

Gooden, who made $1.5 million last year, put in a request of $1.65 million. The Mets submitted a salary of $1.4 million, $50,000 more than they offered Gooden in December.

"Gooden's number is basically a little higher than the club wants to go," Mets vice president Joe McIlvaine said Tuesday. "It should be settled."

Another Met who filed for arbitration, third baseman Howard Johnson, asked for a salary of $775,000.

Lantz fans still hot shooters

Basketball
Notebook/David

"Welcome to Lantz Gym, some of the best shooting fans in the country," Eastern basketball public address announcer Matt Piecsinski tells spectators prior to every Panther home game.

Another Eastern backer reaffirmed that statement last Wednesday at halftime of the Northern Illinois game.

Lake Land College freshman David Cutts became the third in a Panther men's game this season to sink a half-court shot in the Jay's Potato Chip Halftime Big Money Shoot-out.

Cutts, a business major, collected an $800 prize, which starts at $500 and will be $600 when Eastern hosts Wisconsin-Green Bay Saturday night at Lantz.

Jay's Regional Supervisor

Kerry Kust was on hand Wednesday to present $700 and $500 checks to fans Bill Maher and Bob Bencko, who swished half-court shots at the Wisconsin and Harris-Stowe games earlier this season.

Kust said Jay's has sponsored a similar promotion at Bradley University the past three years and that no one has hit the 46-foot shot yet.

"I can't believe the success your fans have had," Kust said. "They really are the best shooters in the country."

Two tied at top of AMCU

Cleveland State and Wisconsin-Green Bay are both undefeated in early AMCU conference play, each 2-0 following Monday night victories over Eastern and Illinois-Chicago, respectively.

Cleveland State topped the Panthers 95-84 in Cleveland and the Phoenix ran by UIC 79-44 in Green Bay.

The home team was victorious in all four league contests Monday, as in other games Western defeated Southwest Missouri 70-44 and Northern Iowa tipped Valparaiso 86-80 in double overtime.

The AMCU standings appear in the Scoreboard on page 12.

Daredevils at Lantz

The Bud Light Daredevils, one of last season's most popular Eastern promotions, will perform at halftime of the Wisconsin Green-Bay game Saturday.

The group performs acrobatic slam dunks using mini-trampolines and is always a crowd pleaser according to Eastern Promotions Director Paul Lueken.

"They're a very entertaining group," Lueken said. "They put on a great show, and we are very happy to have them for a second year."

Officials not sure if Cardinals will return

By BARRY BOTTINO
Sports editor

Although the St. Louis Cardinals have decided to migrate south to Arizona, it is still unknown whether or not the Cardinals will return to Eastern for their annual summer camp.

"It's still somewhat up in the air," said Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson. "We're just going to wait and see."

Johnson, who learned of St. Louis's decision Friday from Curt Mosher, Cardinal vice president for administration, said he will know of the Cardinals' summer plans within a week.

"I was disappointed, but it was not unexpected," Johnson said. "But I think if I owned a team and moved it to another city, I would want to generate some interest in that area and sell some season tickets."

Johnson also said there is not much he can do to convince the Cardinals, who have trained at Eastern for the last eight summers, to remain in Charleston.

"They know what we have to offer and they know they have a good situation here," Johnson said.

"I would hope that if the Cardinals do leave," said Housing Director Lou Hencken, "they would leave with a good taste in their mouth. I'm confident that the Cardinals would recommend us (to another National Football League franchise). This summer's camp went really well and that was because we knew exactly what this coach (Gene Stallings) wanted. "But if they do not come,"

Hencken said, "we're not going to sit around and talk about good ol' times when the Cardinals were here. There are 27 other teams in the NFL and there's no reason why we should get Indianapolis, Cincinnati or Chicago to come here."

Mosher could not be reached for comment.

Cardinal owner Bill Bidwill chose to move to the Valley of the Sun after being promised $17 million in annual revenue from Arizona officials, who opposed to the $5 million Bidwill was making in St. Louis.

The deal also included a $10 million training facility in the Phoenix area.

Hencken said although the Cardinals have not officially decided to leave Eastern, he is looking for summer camps or training facilities, he is looking for summer camps or training facilities that will be held at Stevenson Tower during the team's stay in Charleston from July 1 to late August.

The main purposes for the camps, Hencken said, is recruitment, employment and revenue in that order. Yet the revenue aspect is the most important draw for the Cardinals.

The Cardinal budget for Eastern is $200,000, Hencken said, which includes food, housing costs, maid service, Campus Police that guard Stevenson, student service workers and weightroom attendants.

But Hencken added Bidwill's immediate thoughts might be on a summer home for the team.

"I bet he hasn't even thought about where he's going to live this summer," Hencken said.

Tyler wrestles for Panthers after national title

Amateur wrestling, unlike its show-biz, scripted counterpart, is a tough sport, with wrestlers making many sacrifices in order to get to the top.

One such wrestler who has reached the pinnacle of his sport is Eastern junior Copache Tyler.

Last year, Tyler won the national junior college heavyweight championship for Lincoln Community College in Lincoln, after coming in second the year before.

Already, Tyler has a shot to become a legitimate national championship contender this March at the NCAA Wrestling Championships in Ames, Iowa.

And the amazing thing about Tyler is that he didn't start wrestling until he was attending Springfield Southeast High School.

"I was at the right place in the right time," Tyler said. "A coach in a gym class came up to me and asked me if I wanted to wrestle."

From there on, Tyler made the Illinois High School Association state wrestling tournament once in his time at Southeast under coach Jack Gardner.

Then, he went to Lincoln and won the national championship.

That's when he came to the attention of Eastern Coach Ralph McCausland.

"Demetrius Harper (who graduated last year after taking seventh in the NCAA championships and is now the team's student coach) had wrestled for Lincoln under Rex Brannam (a former Eastern wrestler). Coach Brannam brought Copache to Demetrius' attention, and we recruited him."

Because of Tyler's success at the junior college level, he was getting attention from schools all over the country, including such powers as Oklahoma and Oklahoma State.

heavyweight champion last year for Lincoln Community College and is finding early success this year with the Panthers.

But Tyler decided to come to Eastern.

"I felt comfortable with the coach (McCausland)," Tyler said. "He really impressed me, and I liked the school. It was a very good decision for me. I haven't had any regrets."

"We were very fortunate to get Copache," McCausland said. "He's a real blue-chip wrestler, and for us to get him I feel, is a good reflection on

"When he gets to his potential, he's going to be a great one."
