Search committee to look for V.P.

CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

Eastern President Stan Rives is forming an on-campus search committee to interview candidates for the vice president for development.

The new vice presidential position, which was approved by the Board of Governors Sept. 19, will replace the EIU Foundation's currently vacant director of development position.

Because of the title change, Rives said the university will not be adding to the number of administrative positions. He said funding for the position will be provided by the foundation instead of appropriated funds.

A major goal for the vice president for development will be involvement in the fund raising projects," Rives said. He hopes to have the position filled by November 1, 1989, but said "a quality person is more important than timeliness."

Daniel Thornburgh, director of university relations, said the initial search will be conducted by Ketchum, Inc., a private fund raising firm based in Pittsburgh. Thornburgh said the firm, which currently serves as a fund raising consultant for the EIU Foundation, suggested creation of the vice president for development to the foundation's board of directors in August.

Thornburgh also said a search committee of campus representatives will be formed to conduct candidate interviews from Ketchum's referrals. He said while Ketchum will be responsible for seeking candidates from throughout the United States, persons currently working on campus who are interested in the position should contact Maxine Clayton, administrative assistant to the president, in Old Main.

Rives believes now is a good time to add a vice president for development to Eastern's administrative ladder because of the increased need for private fund raising. "We are really having to intensify our private fund raising efforts," Rives said.

Eastern won't be the first Illinois university to create a vice president for development. Rives said similar positions have already been created at Western Illinois University, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, Northern Illinois University, Illinois State University and the University of Illinois.

Fire Protection Week to concentrate on smoke detectors

BARBARA WOODSON
Writer

Charleston fire officials are saying residents will recognize Fire Protection Week this week by purchasing smoke detector for their homes.

Studies have shown that a smoke detector can cut the risk of dying in a home fire by 50 percent.

The National Fire Protection Association has proclaimed Oct. 10-16, 1988 fire protection week. The theme is "Sound You Can Live

With...Test Your Smoke Detector," has been designated as this year's theme.

The National Fire Protection Association has released its current statistics for smoke detector uses in the home.

Since the 1970s when smoke detectors first came out, about 3/4's of the homes in the United States were equipped with at least one smoke detector.

Of the homes that do have a smoke detector device, 1/3 of them are not operational. This is attributed most often to dead or missing batteries.

This year, a state law required every home to have at least one smoke detector in the home.

"We're not trying to enforce it," said Fire Battalion Chief Bill Bradley. "We're hoping that people will care enough about their family to get one."

He also emphasized that law really can't be enforced. If a fire does break out, fire officials will check for smoke detector. If there is not one in the home, a report will be written.

Bradley emphasized batteries for smoke detectors should be changed once a year.

He said problems occur when people let their batteries run down or they use their batteries for something else.

"There should be at least one smoke detector for each level of the home," he said, noting the smoke detector should be about 15 feet from the bedroom door. "If you can't hear the smoke detector from there, you need one inside the bedroom," Bradley added.

The NFPA has suggest some simple tips to ensure smoke detectors are operational. It emphasizes testing the detector signal, replacing batteries and keeping the unit free of dust and dirt.

In Charleston, fire officials will visit area schools and teach proper fire drill procedures. The fire department will also teach the stop, drop, and roll procedure, used when clothes on fire. They also will teach what to do in case of a fire in the home.

Rives to meet Faculty Senate

CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

Eastern President Stan Rives will attend a meeting with the Faculty Senate today to discuss the recently completed study of undergraduate education.

Faculty Senate Chair Gary Foster said today the senate will discuss several recommendations from the study's committee on recruitment, admissions, orientation and retention.

The 76-page study examines all aspects of Eastern's undergraduate program including curriculum, campus life, faculty concerns and student retention.

Rives said in the study that the faculty-led investigation asked faculty to dream of the ideal, to propose ways to improve the quality of undergraduates' experiences and ways to try to prepare undergraduates for the twenty-first century."

One recommendation the senate will discuss at the meeting is the proposed creation of a director of minority affairs. The undergraduate study committee proposed the position to coordinate the retention of minority students.

Another recommendation Foster said the senate will discuss Tuesday is the proposed appointment of a director of minority student affairs. The undergraduate study outlines that the director would be responsible for administering university programs including recruitment and orientation of minority students.

"President Rives will probably contribute to these discussions, but the senate will not take any action on these items," Foster said.

The senate will also continue discussion of the standardized learning outcome plan proposed by the Board of Governor's Council of Faculties.

Attorneys claim DUI arrests are invalid

CHICAGO (AP)—Drunken-driving arrests by Illinois State Police since 1976 should be declared invalid because they may have been based on tainted evidence, three lawyers charged Monday in a federal lawsuit.

State police inspectors failed to follow accepted scientific procedures in mixing and storing the water-and-alcohol solutions used to calibrate the breath testing machines used by troopers, according to the lawsuit.

The lawyers said they have made the same argument in successfully defending clients in seven drunken-driving cases since April.

Under Illinois' "implied consent" law, a motorist stopped on suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol "DUI" must submit to a breath test or face a summary suspension hearing, which can result in loss of his driver's license for six months to a year.

If a driver submits to a breath test and shows a blood-alcohol level at or above 0.10 percent, he also faces a summary suspension hearing. The potential penalty then can be as short as three months or as long as a year.

In both instances, drivers also can be charged with drunken driving.

Attorney-plaintiff Don Ramsell said in the cases he and fellow attorneys Stephen Komie and Jerry Wilson have tried in PARIS—The Eiffel Tower remained closed to visitors for the third day Monday as employees continued a strike for higher wages. A meeting Sunday failed to end the walkout.

Workers are demanding an increase in their hourly pay of about $4.60, inclusion of bonuses in their salaries, and changes in work schedules.

Supreme Court to pick girl's dad

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two men claiming fatherhood of a 7-year-old girl are asking the U.S. Supreme Court for a Solomon-like decision which could affect other fathers in so-called reverse paternity cases.

"This case arises out of a societal phenomenon of men assuming the responsibility we've always told them to assume as parents," says attorney Larry Hoffman. The case is scheduled to be heard Tuesday by the high court.

In the classic paternity case, a man who denies fathering a child out of wedlock may be forced by the courts to take financial responsibility for the child.

"I consider this a double reverse paternity case," Hoffman says.

"We have not one, but two, men coming forward wanting to support and care for this child."

Hoffman represents a married couple, Gerald and Carole Dearing, who are fighting a by Michael Hirschensohn, Dearing's former lover.

Hirschensohn, who says is the biological father of Victor Dearing, wants visitation and "the opportunity to be involved in the child's life," his attorney, Joel Aaronson.

"All he wants is to be able to visit with the child and give the child the warmth and nurture a parent gives a child," Aaronson.

Protests continue despite warnings

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Communist authorities put more police on the streets and imposed unspecified "urgent measures" in Montenegro's capital Monday, but protests fed by economic crisis and ethnic tension did not stop.

Protest has swept much of southern and eastern Yugoslavia in recent weeks. Police used violent tactics for the first time over the weekend to disperse Montenegrin students and workers demanding the dismissal of local Communist Party leaders.

President Raif Dizdarevic went on national television Sunday night to appeal for calm, warning of unspecified emergency measures.

Unrest continued Monday in Titograd, the capital of Montenegro 280 miles southwest of Belgrade, and the regional party leadership held an emergency meeting, the official news agency Tanjug reported.

Workers and 2,000 students at Niksic, 30 miles north of Titograd, rallied outside a government building and in a steel mill where 2,800 workers went on strike for a second day, Tanjug said.

Police used clubs and tear gas to break up weekend crowds in Titograd and disperse marchers Niksic who were on their way there.

The Titograd rally was an explosion of anger about the program the government imposed in May because of a $21 billion foreign debt and high inflation which has soared to an annual rate of 217 percent.

Cadets find preparation for battle a tough job

OTC weekend is combat experience

LINDA FENNELL

Staff writer

Preparing for battle is tough. The ROTC, reserve officers training cadets spent the weekend in the field at a farm northwest of Ashmore for field training exercises, FTX.

John Perry, cadet training officer and organizer of the FTX, said he was pleased with the way the exercise went.

Black Pedigo, ranger company first sergeant and two time participant of the FTX, agreed the exercise was a success. He said it went a lot better than last year, because it was more organized."

Majorial Commander John Becker said about 158 ROTC members attended the FTX.

The purpose of the weekend was to prepare the freshmen and sophomores for a challenge, and the juniors and seniors advanced camp, camps members are required to attend during the summer, Becker said.

Marie Ryan, a freshman and first time participant, said the only drawback to the exercise was the cold weather.

Although the weather was cold, Ryan said she would attend again because it was the participants prepare for what real experience is like.

"It was a bit cold," Becker added.

The training experience the group practiced was defending the perimeter.

The freshmen and sophomores defended a night defensive perimeter while the juniors and seniors probed and attacked the perimeter, Melissa Boehm recruiting and training officer, said.

Other training exercises included day and night land navigation, shooting live targets and communications.

to plan the spring field training exercise.

The FTX served various purposes for all who attended. Boehm said the most important aspect of the weekend was how it

Officials say fire was suspicious in nature

Charleston fire officials said Monday a weekend fire at Panther Distributing Co., West 16, was "suspicious in nature."

The fire, which started in the boiler area and roof of the building, was reported shortly before 10 p.m. Friday. Firefighters from Charleston Fire Department and Lincoln Fire Protection District had the blaze under control within two hours.

No one was injured in the fire at Panther Distributing Co., a beer distributor.

Tom Watson, Charleston Fire Chief, said there were several clues on the scene which lead fire officials to suspect the blaze may have been set intentionally.

Watson said a window had been broken on the east side of the building and several other items were found inside the building. Because of a pending investigation with the Department of Public Health and the Arson division of the State Fire Marshal's office, Watson could not say what was found in the building.

The fire investigation was idle Monday because state offices were closed in recognition of Columbus Day.

Group to give a $500 scholarship to student

PAT KISSANE

Staff writer

The Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers (ICPT) are giving a $500 Vocational Education Scholarship for under-graduate students currently enrolled in a vocational teacher education program.

Richard Hofstrand, director of vocational education said, "this is the sixth year that the ICPT have given this scholarship to Eastern students."

Qualifications for the scholarship include students scholastic achievement, relative financial need and commitment to the students chosen field of study, he said.

Hofstrand added that the vocational fields that are considered for this scholarship are business education, home economics, technology, career occupations and health occupations.

"The decision on who will receive the scholarship will be determined by the Occupational Teacher Education Committee, made up of faculty members from the university," he said.

Application forms are available from Richard Hofstrand, associate technology professor, in Klehm Hall room 304. The applications are due by Nov. 30.

Woman is listed in fair condition

By PETE SCALES

Staff writer

A Charleston woman's condition was downgraded from serious to fair Monday, after she was hit by a car in front of the Goodwill Store on the downtown square Friday afternoon.

Carolyn Schmidt, 23, a Times-Courier and Journal Gazette staff writer was injured as she walked toward the intersection of Seventh Street and Jackson Avenue.

Schmidt was struck by Edgar Brewer, 81, of 500 W. Polk, #244.

Schmidt was taken to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center and later transferred to Carle Hospital in Urbana, where she was admitted in serious condition.

On Monday, her condition had been downgraded to fair. She had reportedly sustained a blow to the back of her head when she hit the pavement.

Schmidt had suffered a fractured skull and a broken collar bone, said Terry McCullough, an editor for the Mattoon Journal Gazette. He added Schmidt had undergone surgery to remove bone fragments that had been imbedded near the brain.

Brewer was reportedly attempting to park his car in a space in front of the Goodwill Store when his foot reportedly slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator.

Brewer's car jumped the curb and struck Schmidt then rolled into the front of the store. The window of the store was broken and damage was estimated at $250.

No tickets were issued to Brewer.

Campaigns seek rich contributors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite Watergate-inspired curbs on election spending, millions of dollars are pouring into Republican and Democratic campaign treasuries from fat cat contributors and it's all legal.

Documents made available to reporters recently show that both political parties are avidly courting the kind of big-money donations that were tarnished by revelations of Watergate-era abuses and then supposedly curtailed by election law reforms of the 1970's.

The biggest Republican contributor is Nicholas Salpo, former U.S. ambassador to Hungary, who was listed as giving more than $500,000 to his party. The Democrats say a couple of unidentified unions are giving $200,000 each.

Both parties are going after individuals willing to give $100,000 or more. The GOP claims it has 115 such givers so far in the 1988 campaign. The Democratic National Committee counts 100 fat cats, with a goal of doubling that number.

These funds are known as "soft money" because federal law prohibits unions and corporations from making direct contributions to federal election campaigns, and limits individuals to giving $1,000 in presidential primaries only.

In the general election, the presidential nominees are forbidden to accept any private donations because each receives $46.1 million from a Treasury fund supported by the voluntary $1 check-off on individual income tax returns, plus $8.3 million from his party.

So millions of dollars in soft money are funneled through the parties to finance political activities at the state and local level, which are not subject to federal regulations. Even at that level, the parties have no trouble finding ways to use soft money for activities, such as voter registration and T.V. commercials, that clearly benefit their presidential candidates.

"What is happening in 1988 is, it's becoming clearer and clearer (that) soft money is making a joke of the campaign finance laws," said Ellen Miller, director of the Center For Responsive Politics, a research organization that advocates tightening campaign finance laws.

The list of soft money receipts released by the Democrats, which covers only June and July, included $4.8 million of about $15 million the party has raised in soft money so far.

No public accounting of soft money is required, and the Democrats say they will make no further fund-raising disclosures until after the Nov. 8 elections.

Students should forget apathetic tendencies

With the November presidential elections fast approaching many college political organizations are getting set for the home stretch race to the polls.

The University Democrats and the College Republicans are registering people to vote and talking to students about the Editorial candidates in attempts to get students involved with the elections.

Students should take advantage of these two organizations by asking questions and attempting to learn more about what the parties stand for and what their policies are.

However, November is not only the time for the presidential campaign. There will also be the Illinois General Assembly elections, and students need to be aware of who is running for what in that area.

To better inform the students the two organizations will be campaigning for their favorites after the voter registration is complete.

In addition to the campaigning and the voter registration the University Democrats are hoping to debate the College Republicans concerning major party issues. This will give students an even better opportunity to hear both sides and to decide who to vote for in November.

Although the two party organizations on campus are doing a lot to prepare for the upcoming election, they are not alone.

The Student Senate is getting involved as well. They are sponsoring a national bus tour and rally to tell students everything they wanted to know about the elections and the people running for public offices.

The United States Student Association, I.S.A., the Illinois division, and Greyhound Buslines of Mattoon, which is donating a bus and driver, are also sponsoring the tour and rally featuring speakers and presentations on issues.

Students should forget their apathetic tendencies and attend the rally and listen to the issues and arguments because this November will prove to be a toss up election and every vote will count. Remember the president is in office for four years.

Columnist defends his motives

I've come under a lot of fire lately for my coverage of a Charleston man facing charges of sexually assaulting a three-year-old child.

Some readers had enough audacity to write me letters (but they were too timid to sign their names to them) about how our coverage of the Leon Cunningham case was "uncompassionate and cruel" because I included his home address.

Other readers have accused me (and The Daily Eastern News) of declaring the man guilty before he even gets to trial.

That's their prerogative.

But, to those who have accused me and the News of reporting untruthful and incomplete stories without an ounce of compassion for the sexual assaulter in question, I have just one thing to say.

You're wrong.

The first lady, who wrote an Oct. 5 letter to the editor, was angered because I listed Leon Cunningham's home address in two stories printed in the Sept. 22 and 27 editions of the News.

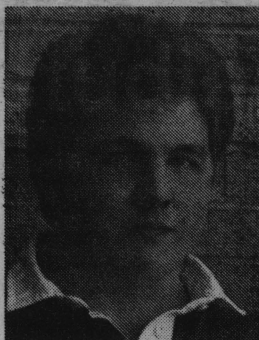

"When did articles come equipped with the person's private home address?" she asks. "I read through every other article in each edition and in not one was there an address listed."

Well, she must not read very well because in every single article we printed about Leon Cunningham, I included his home address.

The Illinois Freedom of Information Act opens Leon Cunningham's court case for public inspection. The address of the accused is always included somewhere inside that case and therefore, fair game for any news story.

The writer goes on to say, "Has he (referring to me) no compassion or even an ounce of sympathy for the family in question?"

Well truthfully, no, I don't.

Jeff Madsen

I personally don't feel sorry for anyone who have thrown all their morals aside to sexually assault an innocent child.

However, as a reporter, it is my responsibility to be objective and report both sides of the story.

Before each of those stories went to press, Leon Cunningham was given the opportunity to make comment on his behalf. He declined. Well actually his wife did it for him.

When the Cunninghams chose not to comment, I tried to see if their lawyer would. He also chose not to comment.

And that's fully understandable since the case is pending litigation.

But, you should know that effort was made more than once.

That reader also advises us to present a complete and truthful story (without including the address, of course). What we reported on the Leon Cunningham could not have been more truthful and complete.

Just like the Illinois Freedom of Information Act entitles me to inspect the case, it allows you to do so, too.

If you doubt the story was truthful, go to Coles County Circuit Clerk's Office, pull the file and see for yourself. It's all there.

Another reader writes, "you should be ashamed of yourself! Imagine your own family in that predicament. Your brothers; your sisters."

Well, I don't think my imagination is quite that good.

Finally, all of the people that wrote me about these stories claim they don't know Leon Cunningham.

That may or may not be true. But I think half the reason our coverage has been so unappealing to three people that wrote me is the fact that Charleston is a good -ol' small town and things like this just don't happen in good -ol' small towns.

Well this time it might have. That's news, and that's why it was reported.

Editor:

I was surprised to read the lead article in the Sept. 21 edition of The Daily Eastern News. Your treatment of the news concerning Mr. Leon Cunningham was distasteful and inappropriate. While other newspapers and television news in this area have reported this incident, none have been as explicit and sensational as your article. I realize the press has an obligation to the public to report the news, but I hardly expected to see that caliber of journalism appear on the front page of a university newspaper.

EISCCAP helped food pantries

Editor:

On Sept. 24, 14 members of Eastern Illinois Students and Community Concerned About Peace (EISCCAP) went to St. Louis to participate in the St. Louis Food Pantry Association's 10K Walk For Hunger. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who pledged donations for our walkers. Thanks to your support and the support of others like you, the Food Pantry Association raised an estimated $100,000 to buy food for food pantries throughout the greater St. Louis area. These food pantries were hard hit by the rising food costs due to drought this summer. Your pledges will insure that they will be able to continue feeding the needy in and around St. Louis. Again, I would like to thank and commend you.

Program to help in fight against Multiple Sclerosis

JESSICA BUSTER

Staff writer

Eastern is one of the universities that Students Against Multiple Sclerosis (SAMS) will visit this year.

SAMS, a national fundraising and awareness program, was started four years ago in order to give college students the chance to learn about and help fight

Multiple Sclerosis (MS), a disease that often effects their own age group.

MS is a neurological disease that attacks the insulating coat on message carrying nerves in the brain and spinal chord in multiple places. The destroyed tissue is replaced by hardened tissue, sclerosis, which can cause interruptions in nerve impulses.

MS most often strikes people in their twenties and thirties. It is more common to women than men, and is found more often in whites than in blacks or orientals.

Kelly Oakden, the SAMS chairperson on campus, is planning several fundraisers. The first is titled Dry Dock Bank's Mastercard which will involve campus fraternities and sororities.

The greek organizations will be competing for the most approved credit applications, and Dry Dock will donate six dollars to the MS Society for each approved application.

The major fundraiser will be Rock Alike in February, a lip synch contest to be held at E.L. Kracker's. The winners will be on MTV's national finals broadcast.

Oakden is planning a meeting for students interested in working on a committee. Time, date, and place will be announced in the classified section of The Daily Eastern News.

"I want to get as many people as I can involved. Greeks and non-greeks alike," Oakden said.

She emphasized the importance of SAMS and the need for campus participation.

Students and faculty to hold jazz concert

TONY CAMPBELL

Staff writer

Anyone in the mood for a touch of Eastern's finest jazz should attend the second in a series of jazz combo concerts Tuesday.

The concert to begin at 9 p.m. is free and open to the public.

The concert, which is being presented by the EIU Jazz Department, will be held in the Martin Luther King Memorial Union Rathskeller and will feature the EIU Jazz Sextet and the EIU Faculty Jazz Quartet.

The EIU Jazz Sextet, composed of students, will perform such jazz standards as "All The Things You Are," "The Girl from Ipanema," and "Clay," which was composed by jazz trumpeter Freddie Hubbard. The group has been performing together since the beginning of the school year, said Music Instructor Dan Noble.

The EIU Faculty Quartet will feature Dan Goble on saxophone, pianist Mark Maegdlin, bassist Dave Milberg and drummer Marvin Sparks.

Three of these members have played together for two years. Milberg, the director of student services, is the newest member. Maegdlin is a graduate student and Sparks is a temporary faculty member.

Goble said the faculty quartet has "performed concerts throughout Central Illinois."

Goble added that the group has not selected exactly what will be played, but the selections will be a mixture of jazz standards and original material.

Following the two performances there will be an open jam session.

Clocks show symbol of independence

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. (AP)—When Soviets set their clocks ahead next spring for an extra hour of daylight, Estonia won't switch with them.

The tiny Baltic republic will no longer tick to the time in Moscow, 500 miles to the south, but to the time in Finland, 50 miles to the north.

Thus, even clocks will reflect the new spirit of independence among Estonians.

Long viewed as one of the most progressive of the 15 Soviet republics, Estonia is trying in many other ways to set its own course. Its leaders hope to use their independence to demonstrate the effectiveness of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's social and economic reforms.

With the blessing of the republic's Communist Party, officials are planning to open trade offices abroad, enter joint ventures with Western companies without Moscow approval, return to family farming and even issue their own currency that, unlike the ruble, could be traded on world markets.

"The Communist Party of Estonia can be regarded as one of the front-rankers of the reconstruction drive. Estonia has been the initiator of many reforms," said Estonian party chief Vaijno Vyalyas.

Vyalyas, a Gorbachev protege, appears to have his blessing. But he and the Estonian activists leading the reform drive have been careful not to go too far, as they say the Armenians have done in their campaign for annexation of a region in the republic of Azerbaijan.

"At the bottom of our hearts, all Estonians want secession," said Ulo Kaevats, head of the auditing commission of the People's Front, a grassroots organization pushing for reform. "But if we did put forward this question, we would have martial law, and we all know that very well."

The self-restraint seems to be paying off for the People's Front.

The group's blue, red and green emblem can be seen on posters, flags and buttons throughout Tallinn. Estonia's ancient seaside capital. State-run radio broadcast the front's organizing conference live Oct. 1-2, and newspapers reported it on their front pages.

Even in Moscow, the centrally controlled press, which has branded other such groups as "anti-socialist," carried generally sympathetic reports on the People's Front.

The group, which formed in April and claims a membership of 60,000 in Estonia, approved a platform at its conference that, in effect, calls for Estonia to establish its autonomy from Moscow in all matters except defense and foreign policy.

The People's Front demanded "decolonization" and seeks local control of agriculture, industry and businesses without interference from Moscow.

Rich still rich despite the crash

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market wiped out some of their wealth, but according to Forbes magazine the 400 richest Americans still had a total worth of about $220 billion, enough to cover the federal budget deficit for a year.

Last year's Oct. 19 financial market debacle reduced the fortunes of many of the ultra-affluent 400 and caused 22 former members to be dropped from the list because their fortunes slipped below Forbes' $225 million cutoff.

Still, the average fortune on this year's edition of the annual list comes to $551 million, up $1 million from last year.

The list appears in the Oct. 24 edition of Forbes and is based on holdings as of Aug. 30.

The federal deficit for the fiscal year that just ended was about $150 billion. The total national debt is about $2.5 trillion.

Sam Walton, 70, easily held the No. 1 spot for the fourth year in a row, even though his net worth shrank by a whopping $2 billion following the crash.

Walton, head of the Arkansas-based Wal-Mart discount store empire, scoffs at his $6.7 billion in riches. He calls it "just paper, all I own is a pickup truck and a little Wal-Mart stock."

By Forbes' estimates of world-wide wealth, Walton rates fifth behind Japan's Yoshiaki Tsutsumi. $7.8 billion: and Canada's Kenneth Cole Irving, $8 billion. The number of American billionaires nearly doubled in 1987, but Forbes' '88 list has only two additional billionaires, bringing the total to 51. Japan has the second-highest number of identified billionaires with 34.

Runner-up to Walton on the billionaire list is John Werner Kluge, the head of Metromedia Co. with a net worth of $3.2 billion.

Next in line are H. Ross Perot, the founder of Electronic Data Systems, who wants to overhaul the nation's postal system, with $3 billion: publishers Samuel I. Jr. and Donald Newhouse. $2.6 billion each: and Pittsburgh industrialist Henry Lea Hillman. $2.5 billion.

Underscoring the adage that the more you have, the more you can lose, billionaires were among those hit hard by the crash. Among the big losers were David Packard, founder of Hewlett-Packard, media magnate Keith Rupert Murdoch and retailer Leslie Wexner, each of whom suffered losses of up to 50 percent of their fortunes.

Murdoch was on a record money-making pace in 1987, trebling his net worth to $2.1 billion before the crash. But his fortune dwindled to $1.2 billion following Black Monday, relegating him to 35th place on the Forbes list instead of eighth.

Active adults keep fit

By MARLENE K. KOKER
Staff writer

Exercise sessions for adults are provided at Eastern. The sessions are held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 5:30 to 7 a.m. and noon to 1 p.m. Tom Woodall, physical education professor, is the head of the Adult Fitness program at Eastern. The program that helps train college students for future jobs also is a big benefit to the community," said Pat Cobalt, a three-year participant. Woodall said, "We emphasize cardiovascular exercise simply because people are dying of coronary artery disease at a rate of about five or six out of 10." Those who have had heart attacks or heart surgery are not eligible for this program. However, they are eligible for METS, monitored exercise and testing service, which is sponsored by Sarah Bush

Lincoln Health Center. According to Mike Carr, adult fitness co-ordinator, "the goal of the adult fitness program is to educate adults to faithfully and properly exercise." The staff of faculty, graduate assistants and students monitor the participants each day. Participants range from age 24 to 89. Those interested in becoming a member of the Adult Fitness program can call 581-3510.

Club unites creativity for more teaching ideas

By LORI HIGGINS
Staff writer

Education majors may unite and swap bulletin board ideas to teaching strategies in Eastern's new club, The Idea Exchange Club. The club is being formed for education majors "to unite the students in the education department together to share their ideas," said Julie Bergeson, senior elementary education major. Currently, the name of the club, The Idea Exchange Club, is pending upon the Student Senate approval, she said. Bergeson, founder of the club, thought of the idea of starting a club for education majors when she attended the Illinois Science Teachers Convention in Naperville. The main purpose of this student-initiated Idea Exchange is to prepare students to student teach, she said. During meetings, students will bring in ideas, activities, games and lesson plans and present them to the members. In turn, they will help out other members of the club, she said. It is a great way to get new ideas about a wide range of subjects, such as arts and crafts, math, reading, classroom management, etc, Bergeson added. Bergeson said a tentative schedule for the meetings are at 7 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday in Buzzard Building.

DUI arrest

♦ from page 1 which they challenged the calibration solution, judges either dismissed summary suspension hearings or disallowed breath test evidence. Asked the number of people potentially involved in the class of plaintiffs. Komie said: "Get the state police to tell you how many can be affected." State police inspectors "went about making this like they were making witches' brew." Ramsell said of the solutions. Some "were stored in the ice-boxes where children had access to them, next to pickles, pop and other things," Komie said. "Other solutions were kept in parades...where temperatures could play havoc with this stuff."

Deadly dieting, disorders studied

By J.R. LOCEY
Staff writer

For those who feel they've tried every type of diet possible and they're still not happy with the results and are now contiplating unhealthy measures, then there is a seminar for you.

Psychology professor William Kirk, is giving a seminar entitled "Is Someone You Know Dying To Be Thinner?" Wednesday at noon in the Union addition Arcola com.

Kirk has worked at Eastern for 13 years and has been giving pre-nations on eating disorders for the past five years he said.

"I became interested in this issue due to the drastic increase in the number of cases across the nation."

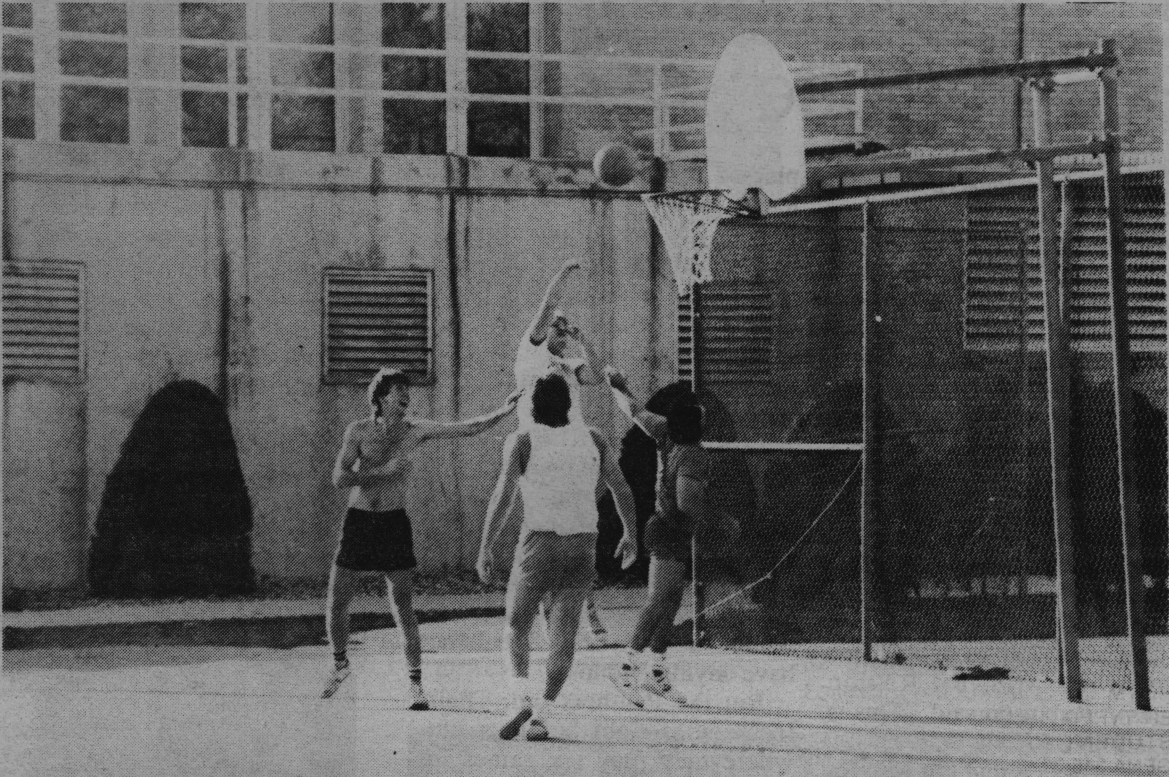

Kirk has been working with his assistant, Counselor Genie

Lenihan, for the past six years to establish a peer counseling group at the Counseling Center for victims of eating disorders. "We have received great results and support," Kirk said.

Kirk said being a psychology instructor allows him to touch on the issue of eating disorders in his classes. He added that he sees the highest amount of cases are reported in college girls.

During the seminar Kirk will touch on the signs and symptoms of eating disorders. It will include the explanations of bulimia, anorexia nervosa and how they can be treated.

Kirk said he encourages everyone to attend the seminar, because at some point the knowledge on eating disorders may save a life. He added that it may be your own.

Congress hoping to finish bills before term adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's election-year antennae in full working order, Congress is aiming to finish fashioning a something-for-everyone anti-drug bill and a $2.7 billion tax measure this week and then adjourn for the year.

Both measures would satisfy a compelling urge that overtakes lawmakers each election year: to churn out legislation popular with large numbers of voters.

Work on both, however, is being influenced by another instinct that becomes unusually potent on Capitol Hill late in even-numbered years: the desire to flee Washington in time to campaign for re-election.

Thus, when the Senate turns to the drug measure _ possibly on Wednesday _ legislators will be struggling to finish their work quickly or going home with no bill at all.

"Ninety-five percent of the good we'll do with this bill is in the core bill," insists one of the sponsors of the drug legislation, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. "If members from both sides continue to insist on the more controversial amendments, we won't get a bill."

Booters lose

the Horned Frogs were aggressive -- maybe a little too aggressive as they were issued three yellow cards during the course of the game.

"It didn't affect us at all," Robinson said. "We don't usually play that way. We usually don't get too many cards, and I don't think we should have gotten the ones that we got."

Texas Christian has another victory against a ranked team, that coming against No. 10 North Texas State.

"We're not too far behind (the rest of the Midwest Region teams)," Robinson said. "This is a real big win for us."

And it was a real big loss for the Panthers.

"They had a losing record and beat us," Mosnia said. "That doesn't do anything for us."

Mosnia also said he was not pleased at all by the effort of his team.

"They wanted it more than we did," Mosnia said. "They put in more intensity, but I don't think they were spectacular."

The Horned Frogs do not claim to be spectacular, and with their losing record coupled with the fact that historically only two teams from the Midwest Region usually make it to the NCAA Tournament, Texas Christian's season is essentially over.

"We played hard, and we won," Robinson said. "We didn't have anything to lose."

But the Panthers did. Their loss comes right before a run where they play six games in only 14 days, and four of those games are Association of Mid-Continent Universities conference contests.

WIU hangs on to No. 2 spot in NCAA poll

Western Illinois kept its No. 2 NCAA Division I-AA ranking in the poll of member athletic directors released Monday.

The Leathernecks (6-0, 4-0 in conference), who are led by quarterback Paul Singer, beat Northwest Missouri State 63-3 Saturday.

Eastern (4-2) travels to Macomb to meet Western Saturday.

Western is the only Gateway Conference team to make the top 20 this week, although Indiana State (3-2, 2-1 in conference) received votes. Two other non-conference Eastern opponents also made the poll.

Eastern golfers finish season at VU with 2nd place

Eastern's golf team finished off the season with a second place finish in the Valparaiso University Invitational tournament this weekend.

The Panthers shot a 398, and missed beating Butler by one stroke. The Bulldogs won the tournament with a team score of 397.

Heading up the Panthers' efforts was Steve Bezler. The sophomore from Mattoon shot a 77 to finish in second place among individual competitors. John Varner and Kevin Triefenbach both shot 79 while Dean Grunewald shot 81 and Panther captain Todd Bittle shot 82. Matt McCaw rounded out the Eastern scoring with an 83.

Gibson's switch looks like night and day

Dodgers' slugger hits another game-winner

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie Tim Lincecum won his second game of the playoffs and Kirk Gibson hit his second straight game-winning homer as Los Angeles beat the New York Mets 7-4 in Game 5 on Monday to move within one game of their first National League pennant since 1981.

The teams now fly to Los Angeles, where the Dodgers can wrap up the best-of-seven series Tuesday when former Met Tim Lincecum opposes David Cone, the young pitcher in Game 2.

During the regular season, the Dodgers won 10 of 11 games from the Dodgers and won 56 games at home, including their last 11 at Shea Stadium. But the Dodgers came into New York to win two of three and take a 3-2 lead.

The Dodgers won Game 4 in 12 innings on Gibson's homer shortly before 1 a.m. EDT. A little less than 12 hours later, the two teams were back on the field for the fifth game with the series tied at two games apiece.

The Mets and Dwight Gooden were three outs away from taking a 3-1 lead in the series when the Scioscia tied the score with a two-run homer.

Gibson, who ended a 1-for-15 slump with his game-winning homer in Game 4, hit a three-run shot in the fifth inning for his second homer in a little over 12 hours.

With two outs in the ninth, Gibson beat out an infield hit, then appeared to reinjure his left hamstring stealing second and left the game. Jose Gonzalez ran for Gibson and scored the Dodgers' seventh run when Mike Marshall tripled to right-center.

In all five games, the Dodgers have scored first, this time breaking through for three runs off loser Sid Fernandez in the fourth inning on 39-year-old Rick Dempsey's two-run double and an RBI double by Alfredo Griffin.

Belcher, who won nine of his last 11 decisions, allowed seven hits and struck out six as he became the first rookie to win two games in the playoffs since the format was adopted in 1969.

In Game 2, Belcher allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings as the Dodgers beat the Mets 6-3.

Marshall led off the fourth with a single and, after a walk to John Shelby, Dempsey doubled down the left-field line on a high fast-ball.

Dempsey was signed as a non-roster player last spring by the Dodgers after hitting .177 for Cleveland in 1987. He missed the last half of 1987 after suffering a broken thumb in a collision at home plate with Kansas City's Bo Jackson.

As a catcher for Baltimore in 1983, Dempsey was the World Series MVP and is 20-for-61 in 21 postseason games.

Steve Sax led off the fifth with a single and moved to third on Mickey Hatcher's jolt-and-run single to right field. Gibson, who led the Dodgers with 25 home runs, then hit a drive into the right-field seats to chase Fernandez.

Fernandez, who won his last six games to finish 12-10, allowed seven hits and six runs in five-plus innings. During the season, he was 8-4 at home with a 1.83 earned-run average.

Bears' Gayle out 6-8 weeks with neck injury

LAKE FOREST (AP)—Safety Dan Gayle suffered a fracture at the base of his neck during the Chicago Bears game against the Detroit Lions and will be out of action for six to eight weeks, team officials said Monday.

Gayle, who wore a neck brace when he reported to the Bear camp, said he was assured the injury is not career-threatening.

He was hurt on the third play of Chicago's 24-7 victory Sunday in Detroit when he collided with teammate Mike Singletary and Detroit's Carl Bland.

But he stayed in the game until the final 40 seconds.

"There was a lot of pain but when you're playing you think it's going to go away," Gayle said.

The pain increased when he reached the locker room, he said. X-rays showed a crack in the seventh vertebra.

How was he able to keep playing?

"It's hard to separate pain from injury," said Gayle, who was kept in a Detroit hospital overnight for observation.

"There was no paralysis," said team trainer Fred Caito. "A CAT scan was taken with further x-rays and they will be given to our doctors to confirm what was going on."

Coach Mike Ditka attributed most of the injuries to the Bears and throughout the league this season to the "high tempo" of the game.

"The game is very competitive," Ditka said. "There is parity and players are trying that much harder. Things are happening. You get a clean block and a guy gets hurt."

He said Gayle may have aggravated an old injury and if so, it would not be "as bad as we think."

If that is the case, Gayle said he thought he might have originally sustained the injury in a pre-season game against Miami, early in September.

"We're 5-1 and I should be happy about that," said Mike McCaskey, the team president. "But all these injuries have me worried."

Gayle's was the latest in a long series for the Bears.

Horned Frogs beat Eastern booters 1-0

TCU snaps 15-game home winning streak

By AL LAGATTOLLA
Staff writer

Following an eight-day layoff from any games, Eastern's soccer team lost its first home game of the year to Texas Christian by a score of 1-0 Monday at Lakeside Field.

The loss snapped a 15-game home undefeated streak that the Panthers had enjoyed. It was Eastern's first home loss since 1986.

The lone goal of the game was scored by Horned Frogs forward Troy Helling, unassisted with 15:04 left in the first half.

The goal came when junior fullback Greg Muhr tried to get the ball back to goalkeeper Mike Barclay. The ball trickled away, and Helling was in the right place at the right time and softly nudged the ball into the goal.

"It was Greg Muhr's fault," Eastern coach Cizo Mosnia said. "We were just cocky."

The loss dropped the Panthers, who are almost sure to lose their No. 3 ranking in the Midwest Region, to 6-2-3 on the season, while the Horned Frogs are now 4-6.

Texas Christian had been losing close games all season, all their losses being decided by one goal.

"What's important is that we won a game," Horned Frogs coach David Robinson said. "We hung on today."

An irony to TCU's goal was the fact that the Horned Toads

"They wanted it more than we did. They put in more intensity, but I don't think they were spectacular."

Cizo Mosnia
Eastern,
Soccer Coach

had previously had many other shots on goal, including five that rattled off the crossbar, only to score on a broken play.

"Sometimes things just turn out that way," Robinson said. "Every one of our games has been a one-goal game."

On the other hand, the Panthers also squandered many opportunities, and rattled a couple of balls off the crossbar themselves.

The Panthers were especially active toward the end of the game, when they missed opportunity after opportunity to score the tying goal.

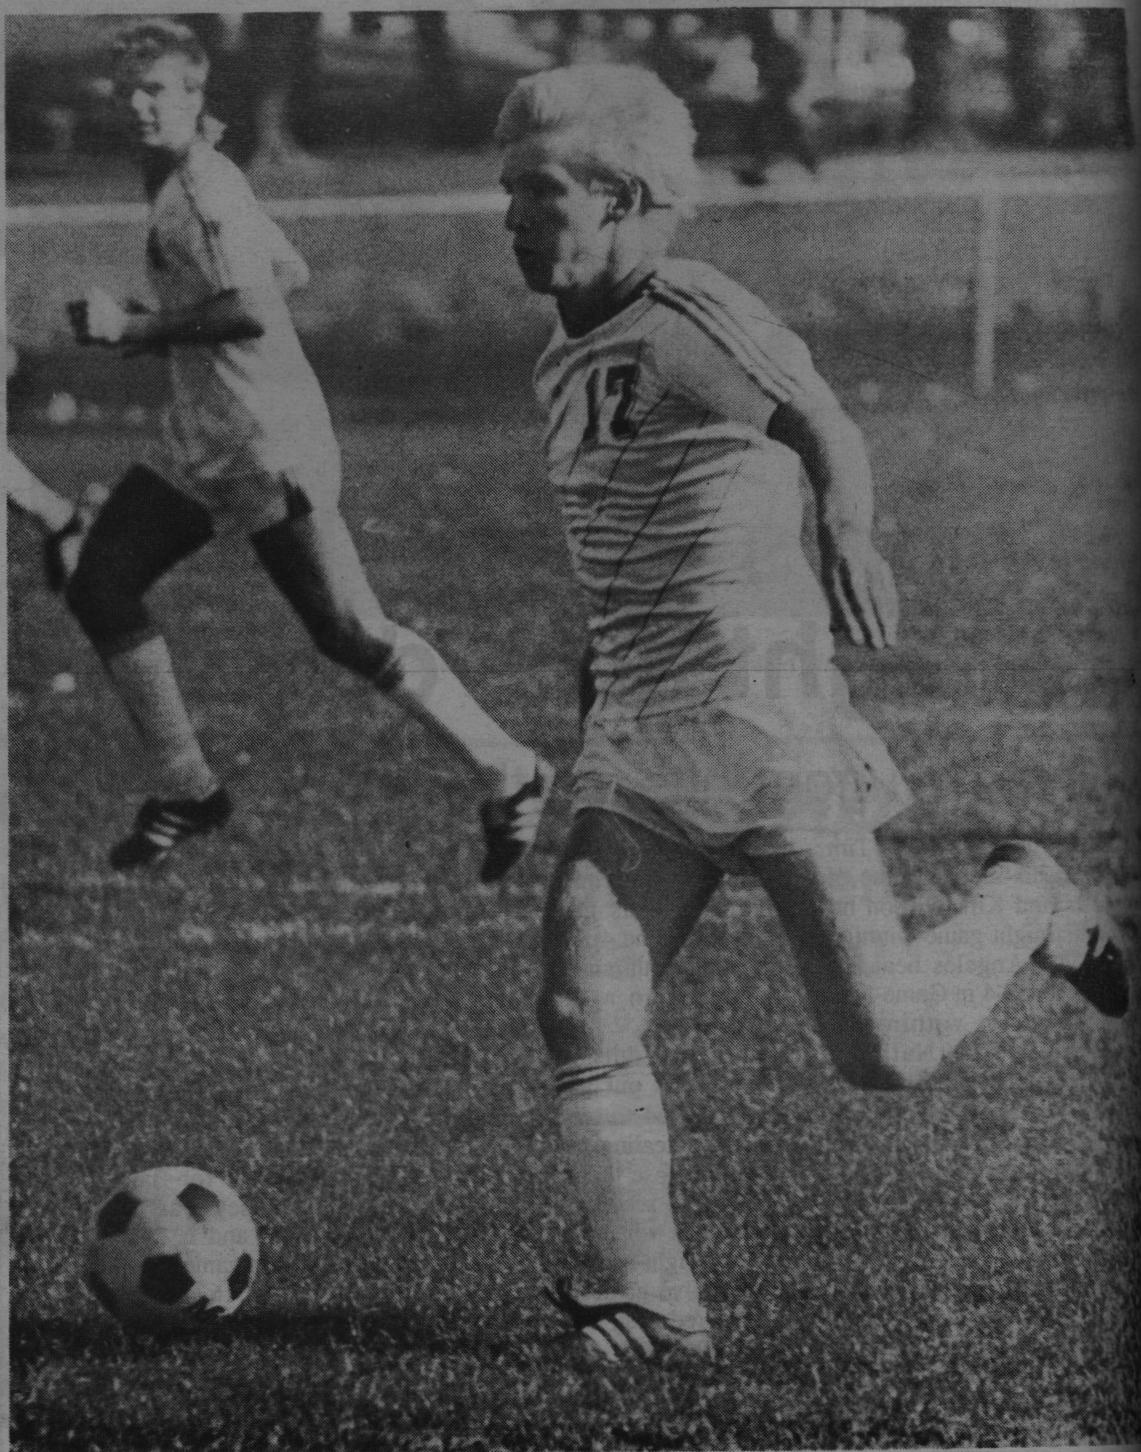

"Missed chances seem to be the theme of the season," Mosnia said. "It's catching up with us."

Mosnia said he feels the layoff might have had some bearing on the game.

"We were just flat," Mosnia said. "But good teams and good players are not affected by those things."

While the Panthers were cocky,

A Gateway crown for Western isn't in the bag

Before the Gateway Conference title is handed over to Western Illinois on a silver platter, a couple of points must be made as to why Eastern has ever so slight a chance to take it away from the Leathernecks.

First, consider that Western was 5-0 last season in the league, and had one game, a home one at that, left to play. Northern Iowa marched into Hanson Field and dismantled the Leathernecks 52-7. The victory gave the Panthers the conference title, and dampened Western's otherwise good 7-4 finish.

Second, the Leathernecks are coming off of a 63-3 shellacking of Northwest Missouri State. The easy win, combined with the fact that Western has escaped with four league victories by a total of 12 points might have the Leathernecks thinking that they might be unbeatable.

Third, Western is ranked second in the nation according to this week's I-AA poll. That, plus the fact that Eastern is coming off a satisfying 34-3 romp over Southern Illinois, should add more than enough incentive for the Panthers in a most important game.

Mike Fitzgerald

See related story, page 11

There is no doubt Eastern will have its work cut out for it against Western quarterback Paul Singer. Singer, dubbed "The Throwing Machine" has completed 115 of 191 passes for 1,635 yards and 15 touchdowns while throwing just three interceptions.

Singer, who could be the third quarterback taken in next year's NFL draft, is considered a mobile quarterback who can throw on the run. That ability may hurt the Panthers who have had a hard enough time sacking the quarterback that stays in the pocket.

One bright spot all season for Eastern's defense has been its secondary. The defensive backs, led by All-American Darryl Holcombe, versatile Scott Johnson, R.L. Reynolds and Juan Cox, have done a good job defending against the pass, giving up only 134.3 yards per outing through the air.

But defensive backs can only cover a wide receiver so long, so the key to an Eastern victory, at least from a defensive standpoint, will be the Panthers' ability to pressure Singer in order to force a sack or at least hurry him into making a bad decision.

On a lighter note, it's probably more than likely that Eastern has seen its last bagel day after hundreds of them were hurled from the stands out on to the track and playing field.

The bagel toss provided an interesting sidelight to a game that the Panthers had pretty much in hand, although I'm sure the people who had to clean up the bagels following the game didn't think so.

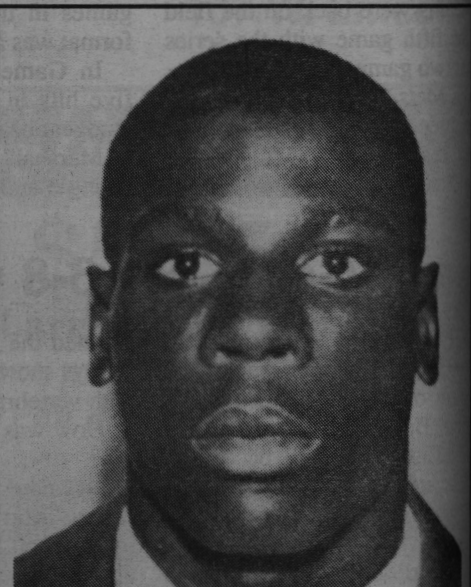

Perusing through the I-A ranks of college football, Heisman Trophy voters can add Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders to the list of possible candidates.

Sanders, who played in the shadow of former Cowboys star Thurman Thomas, leads the nation in scoring with 90 points and in rushing with an 8.6 per carry average. He scored four touchdowns in the Cowboys win over Colorado and should be a Heisman contender even though he isn't as well known as Troy Aikman of UCLA or Rodney Peete of USC, the two quarterbacks who are the Heisman frontrunners.

A solid performance against Nebraska this week could turn some heads of voters.

Switching gears a bit, Augustana's 70-game regular season winning streak came to a halt at the hands of Carroll who beat them 24-21.

And finally, Hail Columbia. The Lions ended the longest losing streak in college football history with their 16-13 win over Princeton Saturday. It was the Ivy League school's first victory after 44 straight setbacks.

Ralph Stewart

Stewart wins GCAC player of week award

Eastern wide receiver Ralph Stewart has been named the Gateway Conference Player of the Week following his performance in the Panthers 34-3 win over Southern Illinois Saturday.

Stewart, an Honorable Mention All-American last season, caught eight passes for 201 yards and two touchdowns. One of the TD receptions went for 70 yards while the other was a 39 yard TD grab.
