Local bands draw crowd to UB Live

By EVETTE PEARSON

The cool weather and the live bands brought out more than 80 students, staff, Charleston residents and even the dogs to enjoy free food and concerts on the Library Quad Wednesday afternoon.

Three local bands participated in UB Live, in an effort to bring students out to enjoy themselves and take away the stress of the long, hot days of summer school.

"We wanted to give the students a chance to enjoy themselves with some free entertainment and food," said Colleen Frake, coordinator of summer programming. "It went very well because we were out of lemonade and hotdogs very early."

Hello David, formerly Good Question, was the first group to perform and entertained the crowd with 10 songs in the allotted 30 minutes.

"We are an acoustic rock and roll band with a lot of electricity," said lead singer Mike Himebaugh.

"This was a very good idea, especially since it is away from the bar scene because people are more relaxed and you have to play better," said lead guitarist Frank Gerage.

Also performing were Spankwagon and Catherine's Horse, formerly Pump, who also performed in 30-minute slots.

UB Live started in 1985 and has brought many bands closer to the people and vice versa, Frake said.

"I don't know any of the bands performing," said Jackie Green, a Charleston resident. "I saw the ad in The Daily Eastern News about this mini concert and now I know Spankwagon and what type of music they play."

To accompany the UB Live, a hot legs contest was scheduled, but was cancelled because of reasons unknown. The event was replaced by a Rock n' Roll trivia segment.

Tickets were given away and numbers were chosen at random. Those individuals with the requested number were called to the platform to answer a question, Frake said.

The game was sponsored by McDonald's and prizes were given away, she added.

Rives, Council turn down Faculty Senate proposal

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
 Editor in chief

The President's Council Wednesday rejected a Faculty Senate proposal that would have allowed a senator to sit on the Council as a voting member.

If approved, the proposal would have allowed a senator to vote as the eighth member of the Council, headed by Eastern President Stan Rives. Eastern's four vice presidents, Rives' executive secretary and Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Charles Colbert currently serve on the seven-member council.

"After consultation with the President's Council concerning the request of the Faculty Senate to designate a faculty member as a member of the Council, I have determined that such action would be inappropriate," Rives said in a statement released from University Relations late Wednesday afternoon. "The Council deals with collective bargaining and personnel matters, for example, making it inappropriate to have a member of the bargaining unit serve on the Council."

Rives added, however, that the need for open communication between the administration and the faculty, as well as civil service employees and Eastern students, is important.

"Council members and I, however, are very much in favor of increased communication among faculty, staff, students and the administration. To further that objective and in keeping with the spirit of the Faculty Senate discussion, I am establishing a once-a-month meeting during the academic year..."

Rives listed the four vice presidents - Glenn Williams, Robert Kindrick, Stephen Falk and Marion Zane, the Faculty Senate chair, the Civil Service Council chair and the student body president.

"Realistically, I don't think we had much of a chance of having this pass," said Faculty Senate Secretary John Miller. "The request from senate was a call for increased communication, and it's not surprising to me that President's Council rejected that specific proposal."

"I think it's good that they responded with this new organization. Communication has to be a positive thing. Any kind of communication is a positive step."

Miller paralleled a senator serving on the Council to a vice president sitting on the University Professionals of Illinois Union Executive Board, the faculty union for Eastern.

More than 850 students expected at graduation

More than 850 students will walk across the stage to receive their college diploma's for summer commencement on Aug. 4, announced Eastern officials Wednesday.

This summer's commencement ceremony will begin at 2 p.m. on the University's Library Quad and Eastern President Stan Rives will give the charge and confer the degrees on the graduating class.

The Board of Governors Universities trustee William E. Hoffee of Fairfield will provide greetings for the ceremony.

Also speaking to the Class of 1991 is Kristy Koch, executive vice president of Eastern's Student Body and EIU Alumni Association President Barbary Haberer of Charleston, a 1966 Eastern grad. Koch hails from Metropolis, Ill.

Psychology Professor Sue Stoner of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences will serve as faculty Marshall. Stoner has been a member of Eastern's Faculty since 1965 and will be retiring at the end of the summer.

Graduates from the Graduate School; College of Fine Arts; College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; College of Applied Sciences; School of Adult and Continuing Education; Lumpkin College of Business; and the College of Education will be receiving degrees.

Lantz Gym will be used as a possible alternate location in the event of rain.

CAA tries to reach requirement decision

By JILL BAUTER
 City editor

Although differing opinions have resulted in "honest disagreements," the Council on Academic Affairs hopes to meet the deadline for approving the new general education requirements, said the director of general education and senior seminar.

Former chair Steve Whitley, who has been involved with the CAA since 1973, adding that the council will use the time remaining to discuss the two unapproved segments and come to an agreement.

In February or March, President Stan Rives asked in a letter to the CAA that the council re-evaluate and complete the revisions by Aug. 15 - the end of summer school.

Rives approved the five segments earlier this year, which includes language, the U.S. Constitution, foreign language, senior seminar, and the foundations of civilization. This summer, the CAA has approved the scientific awareness segment, which Rives has also approved, and quantitative reasoning and problem solving segment, which still waits for the President's approval.

Various sections did not meet the approval of Rives and he returned them to the council for further revision.

Rives also met with the council to discuss "his views on the segments and some of the things he had reservations about," said Whitley.

"The president is ultimately responsible for the University," said Whitley. "It is important to understand that the president feels very strongly that the CAA is the student-faculty voice for curriculum matters."

"I think the process is working," Whitley said, adding that the process for approving the new core curriculum is much like the federal check and balance system.

Whitley was unable to determine whether the council would meet that deadline or what the consequences of not meeting it would be. However, he said the council had completed enough of the new system to implement it by the spring of 1992.

Since fewer new students enter the University in the spring the real demand for the new general education requirements would be in the fall of 1992, Whitley said. Whitley said the council, comprised of faculty and students who have read the subcommittees' reports and thoroughly discussed the issues, is the most qualified group to make informed decisions and he has "every confidence that they will."

"No one questions the responsibility of the people on the CAA," he said. "They are working for what they believe to be the best curriculum for the students."

The CAA also has three voting student members who "are interested in the process and take their responsibility very seriously," said Whitley. "(The students) are concerned about education and what their degree means."

In addition to approving the new requirements, the challenge of implementing the new system and phasing out the old system "adds a different dimension" to the council's task. Making a smooth transition for students is a lot like a balancing act, he said.

Whitley said although the new intergrated core will be implemented in the spring of 1992, some of the new courses are already available to students and may be taken in place of the courses they replaced.

However, "every effort will be made so that no student is caught in an impossible situation," said Whitley.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in room 200 of Blair Hall and will discuss the reports from the subcommittees on cultural experience and human behavior, social interaction and well being.

Illinois girl found last week was kidnapped

COLUMBIANA, Ala. (AP) - A 5-year-old girl abandoned in Alabama last week was abducted 18 months ago in Illinois, authorities said Wednesday.

Shelby County Sheriff James Jones said the child has been identified as Miranda Rose Bravo of Oak Park, who had been missing since January 1990.

Jones said the girl's mother, Marylou Bravo, 35, lost custody of Miranda and Miranda's brother in a divorce. Both children later were abducted from their father, Saint Jose Bravo Jr.

Mrs. Bravo abandoned Miranda after being involved in an auto accident in the Birmingham suburb of Pelham on July 15, Jones said.

Earlier, she left her son in Atlanta after he got sick.

A worker in the Shelby County sheriff's office saw the missing girl's picture in a law enforcement magazine, prompting Alabama authorities to contact police in Illinois.

Jones said the girl's father has been notified and would be in Birmingham Thursday or Friday to get her. The father already has gotten Miranda's brother.

Police were still looking for Mrs. Bravo, who was last seen Monday at a homeless shelter in downtown Birmingham. The sheriff said she probably has left the area.

After the wreck, the woman and little girl left on foot before police arrived.

They were found five hours later more than three miles away.

The woman was taken to a homeless shelter, while the child was placed in temporary state custody in a foster home so that she could receive medical treatment.

Sheriff's Sgt. Mike Smitherman said social workers told the woman to contact them the next morning to be reunited with her daughter. Instead, the woman vanished.

The little girl, meanwhile, wouldn't reveal any information about herself, Smitherman said, apparently as a result of having been taught not to. She said her first name was "Emily" but became upset when asked her last name, he said, "like she didn't know what it was and was worried because she didn't have one."

LA beating trial to be moved

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Prosecutors said Wednesday they will not challenge an appeals court order to move the trial of four white policemen charged in the videotaped beating of an unarmed black motorist.

No decision on where to relocate the trial was made as the presiding judge fought efforts to remove him from the case.

Deputy District Attorney Terry White said an impartial jury could be found in Los Angeles County, but that "it's very likely the state Supreme Court would affirm" the change of venue.

The 2nd District Court of Appeal on Tuesday ordered the trial moved, saying a political "firestorm" over the beating had fueled intense publicity that tainted the potential jury pool in the county.

"The seating of a jury panel without preconceived opinions as to some aspects of the case (is) practically impossible," the appeals court said.

The officers face felony assault charges in the March 3 beating of Rodney King, 26, who was clubbed, kicked and stomped repeatedly after a traffic stop. Charged are Sgt. Stacey Koon, Officers Theodore Briseno, Laurence Powell and Timothy Wind.

The beating, captured on videotape by an amateur cameraman and broadcast widely, led to an FBI investigation into police brutality nationwide and to Police Chief Daryl F. Gates' announcement this week that he will retire in April.

A judge from another county was being sought to determine whether Superior Court Judge Bernard Kamins should continue to preside over the case. The defense wants him disqualified for bias.

The city attorney's office, representing Kamins, filed a document stating the judge's belief that he is not biased and should not be disqualified.

Abortion protesters arrested

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - The leaders of an abortion protest that has resulted in about 470 arrests over two days were themselves arrested today by federal marshals.

Randall Terry of Binghamton, N.Y., founder of the national anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, and two others were handcuffed and taken away for an appearance before U.S. District Judge Patrick Kelly.

The judge had issued a temporary injunction Tuesday that barred the protesters from blocking the entrance to a clinic operated by Dr. George Tiller. His Women's Health Care Services clinic has been targeted because he performs late-term abortions.

Two other clinics in Wichita also have drawn abortion protesters and were covered by Kelly's injunction.

Also arrested today were Jim Evans, a minister from Binghamton, and Pat Mahoney, a radio talk show host in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The judge said he ordered the arrests after lawyers for Tiller reported early today that his court order was being ignored.

Abortion protesters had maintained an all-night vigil outside two of the clinics and arrests had continued through the night.

The number of pickets at Tiller's clinic dropped by early morning to fewer than 200, some of them people who had been arrested and released Tuesday. Protesters had left the other two clinics.

Five staff members left the building this morning after spending the night.

"This isn't about the abortion issue anymore," said Jenny Gebert, 25, a clinic clerical worker. "It's about people being allowed to go to work and earn a living." Officials of Operation Rescue said today that they were not sure how long they would continue to have enough people to block the clinic gates because some people had to return to work.

Nine-year-old Arcola resident Brian Wagner and his 10-year-old brother Steve take the place of the usual pacer horses as nine-year-old Mitch Titus and his 11-year-old brother Brent, both from Charleston, hold the reins at the Coles County Campgrounds Wednesday afternoon. The County Fair opens Sunday.

Coles County Fair offers fun

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

On Sunday, all of Coles County is invited to participate in the 137th annual Coles County Fair held at the Fairground on the Northwest edge of Charleston, said a fair official.

"This is a family orientation gathering and we want everyone to come out and just have fun," said Logan Davis, vice president of the Coles County Fair association.

"Coles County Fair is the longest-running fair in Illinois and we have added a new attraction this summer," Davis said.

For the first time, on Sunday evening, a monster truck show is scheduled to take place in the grandstand of the Fairground, he said.

A local country music group will perform on Monday as part of the entertainment and on Tuesday there will be a tractor pull.

"During a tractor pull, the participants pull a weighted sled with hay atop, by a tractor," Davis

On Wednesday, there will be 16 contestants, 16 years and older, participating in the Miss Coles County Beauty Pageant.

On Thursday, Calcan will host an "ugly dog contest" and WEIC will host an amateur talent show, open to any interested people. Friday's events call for the second tractor pull of the week, "but this time with hotrod tractors" and a demolition derby on Saturday to conclude the week, Davis said.

"In the past, attendance has been well over 100,000 and we hope to have the same turnout, if not better," he said. "But, it is hard to project what the attendance will be when you don't know how the weather will act."

"This program is an opportunity for all Coles County residents to come out and enjoy themselves. It is a fun time for the kids and there is entertainment for the adults," he added.

Admission to the fair is $1 per person and $1 to park a vehicle.

Pleasant weather expected to continue

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

Although the predicted rain didn't quite reach Charleston on Monday or Tuesday to break the hot, steamy temps, the passing front brought cooler weather instead of rain.

"The front just went right on through," said local weather observer Dalias Price. "There was not enough moisture in the air to produce the type of rain we needed."

Bloomington had rainfall early (Tuesday), but Charleston only received droplets of rain as the front passed through, he said.

"Dry weather is very persistent and is very hard to break," Price added.

But, even with the cooler weather, Price has predicted some precipitation as early as Sunday.

"Weather has a way of surprising you," he said.

The high for Wednesday was a cool 73 degrees and temps are expected to remain cool throughout the remainder of the week, but with a slow and steady rise in degrees, Price said.

"I am expecting at least four to five more cool days with a rise in temps in this area, but (the weather) will still be pleasant," Price said.

Even though Charleston may be receiving some "lovely" weather on Wednesday, "hot temperatures still linger in the southern states," he said.

"This is resort weather," he said. "People pay a lot of money to get weather like this."

University Police still investigating thefts

The University Police Department is still investigating what it believes to be more than $300 in stolen materials from Eastern's campus over the last three to four years.

University Police Chief Tom Larson said that although the investigation is moving along, determining what materials belong to which departments on campus is a long, drawn-out process that may take another three or four weeks.

"The University Police is still continuing an investigation, trying to compile accurate accounts of all property that has been taken over the last four years, trying to locate which departments they were taken from, trying to determine if some of these things that have been returned are still usable," Larson said. "If they aren't (usable), (we're trying to determine) what value is attached to each one of those and what is missing from all of those departments."

"We're presently working with the state's attorney's office, and before we can proceed with filing charges, we want to know exactly what is still missing and the value of it to determine what restitution should be. At that time, we will proceed with the rest of the case."

A conviction for theft of more than $300 — a Class 3 felony — is punishable by two to five years in prison and up to $10,000 in fines.

Milwaukee man confesses to killings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The convicted child molester whose apartment held body parts of 11 men has confessed, saying he drugged and strangled the victims then dismembered them and boiled some of their skulls to preserve them, authorities said Wednesday.

In an affidavit submitted in Milwaukee County Circuit Court, Police Lt. David Kane wrote that Jeffrey L. Dahmer, 31, told police he met his victims at taverns or shopping malls and lured them to his apartment for photographs.

"Dahmer further stated that he would drug these individuals and usually strangle them and then he would dismember the bodies, often boiling the heads to remove flesh so he could retain the skulls," the affidavit said.

"Mr. Dahmer further stated that he took Polaroid photographs of a number of these persons while they were still alive, after he had killed them, and of their heads and body parts after he had dismembered them," it said.

Circuit Judge Frank T. Crivello accepted the affidavit during a brief probable cause hearing and set bail at $1 million cash. No criminal charges were filed.

Dahmer, a former chocolate factory worker on probation for a 1988 sexual assault of a teen-age boy, did not appear in court.

Prosecutors said they plan to file a criminal complaint charging him Thursday afternoon.

One victim has been positively identified through fingerprints as Oliver Lacey, 23, of Chicago. Lacey was recently staying in Milwaukee with his parents, Deputy Inspector Vincent Partipilo said.

Earlier, Police Chief Philip Arreola confirmed that Dahmer was cooperating with investigators, but declined to address reports that Dahmer had confessed to the killings and cannibalism.

"As to the information I can release, for the most part the victims are male," he said. "We have no indication up to now that we have any female victims." Dahmer's lawyer, Gerald Boyle, said Dahmer held himself responsible for the killings.

"I am told by authorities and by himself that he has made many statements that inculpate him," Boyle said.

"He said, quote, he has no one to blame but himself, not the police, not the courts and not the probation department," Boyle told reporters.

"He said there comes a time when you have to be honest and this is the time," Boyle said his client is mentally competent to participate in court proceedings and would not contest prosecutor's request he remain in jail.

"He wants to continue to talk to the authorities, to assist the authorities in identifying the victims," the lawyer said. "The state has every right to hold him." Boyle declined to comment about whether his client had confessed to the killings and what type of plea was planned.

New storm threatens areas near volcano

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A new storm brewing in the Pacific threatened to bring new floods and landslides to areas already devastated by Mount Pinatubo's eruption, officials said on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the volcano spewed ash up to four miles into the sky and shook with nearly 80 quakes, the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology reported.

The storm, named Caitlin, was packing winds of 53 mph, with gusts of up to 69 mph, said Philippine weather station spokesman Michael Lucero.

"If it does not change direction, its rains will surely affect areas near Mount Pinatubo," he said. "Let's just hope it changes direction overnight and does not hit land." He said late Wednesday that the storm was about 560 miles southeast of the town of Aparri in Cagayn province, moving northwest at 12 mph toward the eastern provinces of central Luzon.

More than 60,000 people fled their homes Tuesday as rivers swollen with debris from Mount Pinatubo surged over their banks, burying thousands of houses across central Luzon.

Disaster officials said at least five people were killed in flooding late Monday and early Tuesday in the provinces of Pampanga and Tarlac, east of the volcano, and Zambales to the west.

Illinois needs larger income tax surcharge

Originally, the announcement last Wednesday that the 17-day budget impasse had ended was good news, mainly because state employees would no longer have to worry about working without pay.

The news that the income tax surcharge would be extended was also welcomed, considering that tax generated more than

Editorial

$700 million annually split about equally between education and local governments. And even better received was the news that the education half of the surcharge would be made permanent.

On Monday, the University announced that its fiscal year 1992 budget would be $52.3 million, a 0.2 percent increase over last year's $52.1 million appropriation.

Learning that the new figure includes the 5 percent tuition increase was included in that appropriation, however, is not good news. That means that without the tuition increase - which will generate more than $2.6 million toward that appropriation - Eastern's appropriation from the state would stand at $49.6 million, or a 4.8 percent drop from last year's appropriation.

In reality, Eastern will receive $111,300 more from the state than it did last year, a figure that would seem to leave little room for pay raises to Eastern faculty members who already have some of the lowest salaries in the nation.

The Board of Governors, the governing body for Eastern and four other state universities, said that although making the surcharge permanent was a move in the right direction, a larger income tax is needed to supply higher education with the funds it needs. The News agrees with the BOG.

Although the words tax increase don't fall too easily with anyone, if Eastern and the rest of the board's universities are to continue providing quality and affordable higher education, a larger income tax surcharge would allow the schools to retain their current faculty members and enable them to guide tomorrow's leaders.

Merchants need to put war behind them

Boy, wasn't that last war great?

Gee whiz, we kicked some butt. I'm so proud to be an American right now I could just move a bowel, or something like that.

Of course, the real battle began just after the cease fire fell over the desert. In keeping with the great tradition of American business ethics, an institution as hollow as the application of democracy, or communism for that matter, after the war is over comes the real fight: Marketing the war.

How can you possibly market such a horrible and offensive notion as a war you ask? (That's offensive as in "icky-poo" not "Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead.")

How can anyone sell wide-scale violence and destruction to peace-loving consumers? Well, you start with bumper stickers and inexpensive yellow ribbons just to test the consumer battlefield. Softening up strongholds of morality with country music songs extolling American military intervention ("I'm Proud To Be An American, etc. etc."), followed by a full-scale assault of the market flanks by Desert Storm videos, posters and T-shirts. Air support provided by American flags out the ying-yang.

Piece of cake.

But even that battle is over, or at least the strategy has played out properly. Now it is a matter of mopping up the resistance. You know, the cheapskate pinko commies who haven't yet bought a "Support the troops" T-shirt.

But as a somewhat liberal wimpy bookworm who has never owned a pick-up truck or played rugby, I must admit, I'm not sold. Yes, ashamedly, I am a cheapskate pinko commie without a T-shirt.

I'm what could be called a war protester ex facto.

Like every other red-blooded American boy, I loved the war when it was fresh. You wouldn't have recognized me. Guzzling beer with my buddies and giving cat calls and rebel yells while we watched CNN videos of allied destruction, I was a "Born in the USA" patriot.

I was beautiful. You'd swear I'd been chewing smokeless tobacco all my life.

But after the war was over, I began to feel like the business world was prostituting our victory. I mean, the fighting lasted less than a month but they made it seem like we had just emerged from the mother of all battles - as if we all had played a hand in driving the evil Iraqis off the beaches of California.

In reality, it was a cakewalk. As it turned out Italy probably could have beat the crap out of Iraq with one hand tied behind their back, even if Mussolini had led them into battle.

Though in all fairness to our troops, they did a great job of taking prisoners and blowing up things over there. And it was refreshing to know that some of that multi-million dollar high tech weaponry that Reagan sold us actually worked - which I bet also drew a collective sigh of relief from the Pentagon.

No, I don't want to rain on our troops' parade, any one of their parades. I'm just saying I'm a little miffed by how the merchants are taking us to the cleaners again.

"Support the troops" has become a phrase roughly translated to mean "Support my profit margin" for money grubbing profiteers.

And the absence of a yellow ribbon on a home, car or lapel could lead some to question your patriotism in this day of American euphoria. But with the recession draining what little resources we have there is no better time than now to become a war protester ex facto.

So the next time someone tells you to "Support the troops" just say, "I can't afford to."

I think it would be ironic and fitting if we went to the next parade and watched the military tanks and trucks and jeeps roll by, each with an American flag strung from their antennas and a UPC code painted on their sides.

Wouldn't that be a hoot?
Make love, not profit.

We need to respect our Mother

How would you feel if, on a visit to your mother's home, you discovered a large sign posted in the front window requesting all passers-bys to compare the beauty, economic and social status of another mother living a few blocks away with that of your own?

Well, I can tell you that I feel sold out, double-crossed and betrayed every time I walk down Lincoln Avenue and pass by Old Main to see a poster of the Fighting Irishman of Notre Dame hanging in an office window for all to see.

Old Main is more than an office building and math department for those of us who have attended Eastern Illinois University. The building is a symbol that stands for the University as a whole. The old, ivy-covered building represents the place where our education is based, an institutional foundation devoted to the establishment and promotion of our education, home of discovery and knowledge which is the Mother of our education.

It is true that we are all in a community of colleges which share the common goal of education, but this poster defaces our school's only true icon and forces viewers to make judgments and distinctions, which discriminate against our alma mater because of lower economie and social status.

It's not the Fighting Irishman logo, in particular, that aggravates me; it's the placement of one school's symbol upon another. If President Stan Rives wanted to wear a sweatshirt from another school, that would be his own free choice, just as it is ours. However, if he were out in the public eye, functioning in an official capacity, representing Eastern Illinois University, wearing the colors and trademark of another school, it would be a conflict of interest.

This sign must not be allowed to befall our alma mater any longer. The person who placed the poster in the office window must remember that the nourishing Mother who supplies her students the opportunities of education also provides for them by way of employment.

What has me the most discomposd about the affair is that our head administrators have walked by this disgrace and, by doing so, have joined in this contempt for our alma mater. How could the head of our educational house allow the picture of another to stand in the very doorway of our home? It's this type of ignominy that makes me question the administration's faithfulness and engagement to her at all.

As for the administrator who has fallen into this innocent affair of transgression, I ask, for the good of our family, to now remove the poster of the other woman and disengage her in relations of any kind.

Young's Eldorado worth the price

By TIM SHELLBERG
Staff intern

Review

The best news in the music world this summer has been old news and rarity releases: Paul McCartney released an elegant acoustic collection of oldies, Beatle and otherwise; the Stax/Volt collection has been remastered and released seemingly in its entirety; and Nat King Cole has a new single out — and he's been pushing daisies for decades!

Unfortunately, these remakes and hard-to-find re-releases seem to be the only ones getting the publicity. To get a hold of recent rock gems such as Neil Young's Eldorado, you have to dig deep and empty your wallet a little bit. But based on this classic and once-seemingly mythical release, you don't get short-changed.

In fact, the purchase of this disc might prove to be a money-making investment in the long run. Only 40,000 copies of Eldorado — a five-song account of the pre-Freedom sessions in 1989 — were released for the New Zealand and Japanese markets, and after more than two years, import copies of the disc have surfaced in the states.

That is unfortunate, because Eldorado contains some of Neil's hardest and loudest axe-work ever. Backed by "the restless" — bassist Rick "The bass player" Rosas and ferocious skinman Chad Cromwell — and produced by Young and Nico Bolas (who go under the moniker "The Volume Dealers"), this Eldorado gang rattles walls and shatters glass harder and faster than literally all heavy metal, punk and white noise out there. If you thought "Sedan Delivery" of 1978's Rust Never Sleeps was rough, listen to "Heavy Love," which kind of puts the Sex Pistols and the New York Dolls to shame.

In fact, the rattling and shattering by the Restless and the Dealers starts on the first 10 seconds of "Cocaine Eyes," the addictive opener which seems to have evolved into stage of "The Last Waltz" with a mass of shiny white powder under his nose — has something to say 15 years after the matter. "Some might go for poison/Some go for too much/Some just go to sleep at night/And forget to wake up," sings Neil in his most blunt anti-drug stand since "The Needle and the Damage Done" from 1975's Tonight's the Night.

This "just say no" stand is somewhat echoed on his bombastic depiction of present living conditions "On Broadway." "Give me some of that crack! Give me some rock!" screams Neil at the top of his lungs. Scary, but worth the money.

In fact, all five tracks on Eldorado are not for the timid, as this trio — led by a then 45-year-old man — has enough grit and volume to put the Skid Rows and Motley Crues to shame. And in the spirit of the California Miners in 1849, Eldorado — which deserves the mass attention it intentionally deprived itself of — is a gem to search for. Two caveats: Why "Young and the Restless" and how in the hell did Chad get those drums to sound like automatic shotguns?

Tensions rise as arms program deadline nears

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Tension increased in the capital on Wednesday, the eve of attacks the United States threatened because it doubts Saddam Hussein fully disclosed Iraq's nuclear and chemical arms programs.

One Iraqi official reported people moving out of Baghdad for villages and the government moving military equipment into safe places and telling families of military personnel of a serious threat.

He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Iraqis have rushed to stockpile food, bottled cooking gas and gasoline, aggravating shortages stemming from the U.N. economic embargo.

But talk of easing sanctions at the United Nations has eased prices, and no signs emerged of a full military alert.

Iraqi officials as a rule were tight-lipped Wednesday regarding the July 25 deadline, but Iraqis are mightily aware of the cost of ignoring past deadlines.

Efforts to elicit official comment went unheeded, despite numerous requests by foreign journalists to the Ministry of Information.

The government maintains that it provided U.N. inspectors all the details needed to destroy Iraq's weapons of mass destruction in compliance with U.N. Resolution 687, which set cease-fire terms.

The U.S. State Department has said a new inspection team is due in Baghdad on Saturday.

President Bush has made it clear that the United States considers ridding Iraq of such weapons a key part of the peace terms.

The Iraqis have produced two lists detailing nuclear capabilities, but last week U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said the "ultimate sanction, military capability" remained open.

Iraq's last official comment on Thursday's deadline came July 15. Prime Minister Saadoun Hammadi said Iraq considered renewed air strikes "a probability."

Shamir refuses to negotiate

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, facing threats by right-wing allies Wednesday to quit his Cabinet, restated his refusal to negotiate with Palestinians from Jerusalem and his opposition to yielding territory to the Arabs.

But he insisted it was time to start negotiations and hinted government policy could change during talks. "Sometimes you arrive at something you did not intend," he said on Israel television.

Shamir said Israel should accept Syrian President Hafez Assad's offer to negotiate directly as a "challenge." His interview seemed intended to counter hard-liners' threats to quit his Cabinet if he accepts a U.S. plan for a one-time peace conference leading to direct negotiations with the Palestinians and Arab states.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat complained in a broadcast interview Wednesday that the U.S.-proposed talks ignored Palestinian rights.

He said Washington had violated a promise to push for participation by Palestinians from Jerusalem.

"We are watching the American-Israeli designs which completely conceal the subject of Jerusalem and which abort completely the Palestinian people's national and political rights," Arafat said on Radio Monte Carlo, monitored in Cyprus.

Shamir took a hard line on what is sure to be the central issue of any future talks: land.

"You know my position. I don't believe in territorial compromise," he said.

Security Council to decide fate of Iraqi oil embargo

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Sanctions Committee made no decision Wednesday on whether to allow Iraq to sell oil to finance purchases of food and medicine for its people, and passed the matter on to the Security Council.

The council will hold closed consultations Thursday to discuss a senior U.N. official's recommendation that the war-devastated country be allowed to finance its own urgent purchases of humanitarian supplies.

The United Nations was expected to closely monitor any future Iraqi oil sales, including the collection of revenues and distribution of purchased goods.

The United States and Britain, two of the five permanent Security Council members, insist that any plan adopted by the Security Council prevent Iraqi President Saddam Hussein from benefiting in any way from oil sale revenues.

The deadline for Iraq to fully disclose its nuclear and weapons programs approached Thursday without any sign of allied military action against Iraq.

In Baghdad, a marked movement of people leaving the capital for villages took place as the deadline approached, and the government moved military equipment into safe places and told families of military personnel the threat was serious, an Iraqi official said.

President Bush has said America reserves the right to launch a military attack if Iraq does not disclose its clandestine programs to enrich uranium. But few at the United Nations expected a swift military strike.

One Western diplomat said it will be impossible to evaluate Iraq's disclosures until U.N. experts and inspectors compare Baghdad's declarations with what they find on the ground and with what has been revealed by classified intelligence. The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

Arafat sees hole in peace talks

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat said in an interview broadcast Wednesday the U.S. proposal for Middle East peace talks was sidestepping the basic rights of Palestinians.

Arafat said the United States appeared ready to steamroll the peace process according to its own designs because it thought the Arab world had been defeated in the Gulf War.

"We are watching the American-Israeli designs which completely conceal the subject of Jerusalem and which abort completely the Palestinian people's national and political rights," Arafat said in an interview with Radio Monte Carlo, the Arabic language service of the French government-run radio.

They were Arafat's most extensive public comments since U.S.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III's five-day trip through the region last week.

Baker has persuaded the Arab states bordering Israel to agree to peace talks, and Israel appears to be willing to take part as well.

Communist Party faces separation

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party leaders meet Thursday for a showdown over Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's call for the party to renounce its dictatorial past.

Communists who support democracy and a market economy will be pitted against hard-liners who see Gorbachev, the party's chairman, as a traitor seeking to restore capitalism.

The meeting was termed "crucial" by the official Soviet news agency Tass on Wednesday. "It will probably decide the future of the party as a single entity," Tass said.

A split in the ranks of the party that has ruled the Soviet Union for 73 years is now openly acknowledged, and Tass said it was only a matter of time before new parties would be formed.

Gorbachev is trying to retain control of what remains of the party as well as its vast, largely hidden wealth.

He has said that only by radically changing policy can the Communists survive in a democracy. His proposed new party platform denounces Stalinism and embraces private property and freedom of religion.

Gorbachev is trying to attract Western aid to help transform the economy into a market-oriented system.

Tass said the party split could start with the Central Committee meeting. Or it could come in a party congress before the end of the year that would adopt a new platform and ask members to re-register, the news agency said, quoting the party's deputy chairman, Vladimir Ivashko.

Re-registration likely would slash the party's claimed current membership of 16.3 million. In 1990, 2.7 million people formally quit the party and 1.3 million others stopped paying their dues.

Thursday's meeting comes in the midst of an attack by Russian republic President Boris Yeltsin on the party's power base — its bureaucrats and party cells in every factory, school and government agency in the land. Yeltsin issued an order over the weekend barring political activity in workplaces after Aug. 6.

Many of the institutions pay the salaries and office expenses of full-time party workers assigned to them.

The party Politburo and party officials in the KGB and army demanded Wednesday that the decree be overturned on the grounds it violated civil rights by limiting the actions of political parties.

Anatoly Lukyanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet national parliament, told the constitutional oversight committee to review the issue, Russian television news said.

New Soviet Union Treaty finalized

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev emerged from 12 hours of talks Wednesday to announce a final agreement on the new Union Treaty to reshape the Soviet federation and give more power to the republics.

The treaty could bolster Gorbachev's standing going into Thursday's meeting of the Communist Party's Central Committee, where hard-liners are expected to stiffly challenge a reform platform supported by the president. The platform denounces the party's dictatorial past and embraces private property and freedom of religion.

"The work on a new Union Treaty has been completed," Gorbachev was quoted as saying Wednesday by the official state news agency Tass. "The most important thing is that we have finally reached agreement." Gorbachev is counting on the treaty to prevent the breakup of the country and ease secessionist pressures. It would give the republics more control over their industrial and natural resources and give the Kremlin a say in economic and political reforms.

The Union Treaty would replace the 1922 treaty that founded the Soviet Union. Ten of the 15 Soviet republics took part in drafting it, but the three Baltic republics and Georgia and Moldavia say they will not sign.

It was unclear how soon the treaty would be submitted to the parliaments of the republics. The Ukraine has postponed debate on it for at least two months. All the 15 republics have declared independence or some form of sovereignty.

Tass did not say when the document would be published, although Gorbachev has said he would like the Supreme Soviet national parliament to act on it soon.

Armenia had refused to participate in negotiating the treaty.

But surprisingly its leaders joined the representatives of nine other republics at talks to finalize the document that began Tuesday afternoon at a government dacha outside Moscow, news agencies reported.

Top nations announce military cuts

PARIS (AP) — Fabled names of military glory will soon evaporate along with nearly one-fifth the combined armed forces of France, Britain and Germany, which say the Cold War's end has made 160,000 soldiers superfluous.

France announced troop cuts on Monday, Britain on Tuesday.

Germany disclosed its plans for cutbacks after unification last fall.

The cuts are being formulated at a time of rising unemployment in France and Britain. France's jobless rate is 9.5 percent, the highest in years, and Britain's is 8.1 percent. Unemployment overall in Germany is falling, although remains a problem in the east.

Neither British nor French officials mentioned steps to ensure that the troop reductions don't worsen unemployment.

In Britain, Defense Secretary Tom King said Tuesday that the army's strength will fall from the current 160,000 to about 116,000 by the mid-1990s. Royal Navy and Royal Marines personnel are to be cut from 63,000 to around 55,000, and the Royal Air Force from 89,000 to 75,000.

France expects to cut army strength by 50,000 to about 225,000 over the next five years, French Defense Minister Pierre Joxe said Monday.

Germany, which had a combined total of 670,000 troops before unification, has 435,000 troops now and plans to cut 65,000 more by 1994.

Several other European countries plan to follow suit. Belgium says its army will shrink from 82,000 to 66,000, and officials in neutral Switzerland have proposed cutting its militia by one-third, to 450,000. Italian commanders also are working on plans for troop cuts.

Some countries, such as Denmark and Greece, plan no cutbacks.

Spain hasn't announced reductions either, but the government wants to trim compulsory military service from 12 to nine months. France recently made a similar cut from 12 to 10 months.

The first French units to go belong to the 48,000-strong army corps in Germany, its enemy in two world wars. Joxe said 11 units of the 10,000-strong 3rd Armored Division in Freiburg would be dissolved by year's end.

Edgar OKs key budget elements

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Gov. Jim Edgar signed into law Wednesday key elements of a compromise agreement that allowed him and state lawmakers last week to end an 18-day budget impasse.

Through program cuts and fiscal maneuvers, the two separate measures allow Edgar to make moves deemed crucial to close a budget gap put at $1.9 billion before lawmakers sent him a $27.6 billion spending plan early Friday.

One bill authorizes a program geared to impose assessment fees on hospitals and nursing homes, which would lure more than $640 million in federal matching funds to help provide care for the poor. The other bill implements cuts, cost-avoidance measures and fiscal maneuvers that have a total budgetary impact of $992.4 million, according to Ellen Feldhausen, a spokeswoman for the governor's budget staff.

"State government must learn to live within its means without asking more from taxpayers," Edgar said in a brief statement.

"By making hundreds of millions of dollars in budget cuts and enacting innovative programs to help Illinois get a better return on the tax dollars our hard-working people send to Washington, we can protect the neediest of our citizens without spending beyond our means." Other parts of the package negotiated with the Democratic-controlled General Assembly, including extension of the state's income tax surcharge and a long list of appropriation bills, are expected to be signed soon.

The Republican governor, along with legislative leaders of both parties, said the almost $1 billion budget-reduction measure was perhaps the most difficult vote for lawmakers to cast during the overtime session.

In the Senate, the legislation, which included $736 million in program cuts, received only one vote more than the three-fifths majority needed for passage.

US - China relations festering

BEIJING (AP) - China appears headed for victory in yet another confrontation with the U.S. Congress over Beijing's trade status, but there are signs from both sides that antagonisms will linger.

The second straight year of debate over renewing China's most-favored nation trade status saw both sides extensively air their positions on human rights, trade, arms sales and other issues. But the outcome was mutual frustration rather than understanding.

U.S.-China relations, wounded by China's 1989 army attack on pro-democracy protesters, are festering rather than healing, with no improvement in sight.

In trade and in educational exchanges, Chinese leaders have indicated they want to reduce reliance on the United States.

China's Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade says China exported $2.51 billion worth of goods to the United States in the first six months of 1991 and imported $3.17 billion for a trade deficit. The United States says it has the deficit and rejects China's figures, which do not include Chinese exports sent through Hong Kong.

On the U.S. side, congressional sources who visited Beijing last month said lawmakers will pressure President Bush to take a tougher line on China.

Both the House and the Senate have voted to impose strict conditions on renewal of most-favored-nation status, which entitles China to the lowest available tariffs on goods sold to the United States. But Bush has said he will veto the measure, and the Senate vote Tuesday fell short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

The situation reveals the depth of the U.S. lawmakers' frustration with China's Communist leaders.

Congress wants China to release people jailed for protesting in 1989, relax political controls, be more open about foreign missile sales, open up the Chinese market to more foreign goods, respect foreign copyrights and stop enforcing its one-child policy.

Chinese leaders see these demands as challenges to their political and economic system and insults to China's sovereignty.

From their viewpoint, jailing the 1989 protesters was essential to maintain Communist Party control, which cannot be risked for any trade privileges.

Even Chinese who support democratic reform are quick to say that the U.S. model of government and concepts of individual freedom are not suited to a nation of 1.1 billion people, many of them semi-literate peasants.

They favor foreign pressure on the government to reform but say canceling most-favored-nation status would only hurt Chinese workers and strengthen the position of hard-line officials who all along have opposed ties with the West.

Yugoslavian Army to discharge soldiers

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - The federal army on Wednesday ordered all Slovenian soldiers to be discharged within three weeks, Slovenian officials said.

A statement released in Slovenia said an estimated 3,000 Slovenian conscripts serving for one year would leave the federal military by Aug. 15.

Last week, the Yugoslav Army, which fought territorial defense forces after Slovenia declared independence last month, decided to withdraw all its troops from the western republic within three months.

Wednesday's announcement, released after a meeting between Defense Minister Veljko Kadijevic and Janez Drnovsek, the Slovenian representative on Yugoslavia's collective presidency, appeared to be further indication of the army's willingness to let Slovenia go its own way.

Slovenia has asked for a few federal army units - air traffic controllers and medical brigades - to remain behind, the state news agency Tanjug reported Wednesday.

In neighboring Croatia, which also declared independence June 25, security forces clashed with Serb militants in the village of Plastovo, 12 miles, inland from the Adriatic port city of Sibenik, Tanjug said. It said four Croatian policemen were wounded, one gravely.

Television in the Croatian capital Zagreb also reported that federal army soldiers had found the bodies of two Croat guardsmen in the eastern Croatian village of Mirkovci.

The two apparently were killed in a pitched battle in the area Monday that left at least 20 other Croats dead.

Fighting between Croats and Serbs has intensified in the past week, threatening to push Croatia into war with Serbia, Yugoslavia's largest republic.

Serbia says Croatia should not be allowed to secede unless parts of the republic with large Serb communities are allowed to annex themselves to Serbia.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION EXAMS

All applicants for Illinois teaching certificates (or administrative or school service personnel certificates) must pass the Illinois Certification Tests before being issued a certificate. These consist of a Basic Skills Test and a subject-matter examination. Since these tests are given only four times each year, interested individuals should be aware of the dates and deadlines listed below. Anyone having questions concerning these exams, or needing registration forms, study guides, or assistance, may contact the College of Education in Buzzard Building 210.

Pirates beat Glavine and Braves

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Lloyd McClendon had three hits and drove in two runs against NL All-Star starter Tom Glavine, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves on Wednesday night.

After losing the opener of the three-game series, the Pirates won the final two by a combined 19-7 score, giving them 11 victories in their last 14 games. The Braves have lost two straight since winning nine of 11.

The anticipated duel between All-Star left-handers Glavine (13-5) and John Smiley (12-6) didn't develop - neither pitched past the sixth - but Smiley managed to win his third in a row. He gave up eight hits and three runs in 5 1-3 innings.

Vicente Palacios pitched 2 2-3 innings, allowing Brian Hunter's solo homer in the eighth. Bob Kipper got two outs in the ninth and Stan Belinda finished for his ninth save.

Atlanta trailed 3-1 until Terry Pendleton's two-run homer in the fifth, his 11th, but Glavine - the NL victories leader - couldn't hold the lead.

Gary Redus, who hit a grand slam in the Pirates' 12-3 victory Tuesday, doubled to start the fifth and Jay Bell singled. Andy Van Slyke struck out, but Bobby Bonilla singled in Redus to break the tie.

McClendon, a .500 career hitter against Glavine, singled up the middle to score Bell, and Bonilla came home on the play when catcher Greg Olson threw wildly trying to get McClendon at second.

Glavine had pitched at least seven innings in his previous 10 starts, but left after giving up eight hits and six runs in five innings. The Pirates added an insurance run in the sixth off Marvin Freeman on Bell's run-scoring double.

inning single and scored Atlanta's first run on Ron Gant's double.

Twins lose again; A's top Tribe

DETROIT (AP) - Bill Gullickson survived a three-run homer by Chili Davis in the eighth inning for his 13th victory as the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-3 on Wednesday night.

Gullickson (13-5) moved into a five-way tie for the American League lead in victories with late relief help from Mike Henneman, who gained his 15th save with a 1 and 1-3 innings of shutout relief.

Gullickson was in command with a 4-0 lead when he gave up the three-run shot to Davis. Henneman, gaining his second save in two days, then shut the door as the Tigers added two runs in their half of the eighth as Travis Fryman and Milt Cuyler both scored on errors after hits.

David West (1-2) matched Gullickson before tiring in the sixth when Detroit took a 1-0 lead. Fryman and Cuyler walked, then pulled off a double steal.

Athletics 8, Indians 4

CLEVELAND (AP) - Eric Show got his first American League win and Dave Henderson and Jose Canseco homered as the Oakland Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 8-4 Wednesday night for their third straight win.

Show (1-2), making his 11th appearance and third start for the A's, allowed three runs, two of them unearned, and six hits in six innings.

The win was the 101st of Show's career, including 100 for San Diego. Oakland signed him as a free agent in December.

The A's took the lead with three runs in the sixth off Greg Swindell (6-8). Rickey Henderson led off with an infield single, and Dave Henderson followed with a home run, his 19th, into the upper deck in left field, tying it 3-3.

Canseco doubled and scored the go-ahead run on Terry Steinbach's single, Oakland's fourth consecutive hit in the inning.

Dave Henderson singled before Canseco hit his 24th home run in the seventh inning, making it 6-3 and finishing Swindell.

Yankees 10, Mariners 2

NEW YORK (AP) - Mel Hall collected four hits and drove in four runs and Pat Kelly circled the bases on a two-error fielder's choice that led to three runs Wednesday night as the New York Yankees defeated the Seattle Mariners 10-2.

Jeff Johnson (4-3) allowed 10 hits over seven innings but didn't issue a walk before being relieved by Erik Plunk and Tim Leary, who pitched one scoreless inning each.

Hall's 14th homer, after a walk to Steve Sax and a single to Don Mattingly's single, gave the Yankees a 3-1 lead.

Lemond calls it quits with four stages left

MORZINE, France (AP) - The Tour de France finally caught up to Greg LeMond.

Worn down by a virus, sore feet and a fall, the three-time winner delivered his concession speech on Wednesday with four stages still remaining.

"I did my maximum but at the moment I am at a dead end," LeMond said. "I have a dead battery." The American began Wednesday's 18th stage - 158 miles from Bourg d'Oisans through the Alps - with a glimmer of hope for another miracle finish. But 60 miles into the stage, LeMond was wiped out, unable to keep up with the leaders.

At the end of the day, LeMond had fallen from fifth to eighth in the overall standings, 14 minutes, 1 second behind Miguel Indurain of Spain.

"It's hard," LeMond said. "Physically I'm suffering I don't have any sensations in my body." So what went wrong with the king of the Tour de France? Just about everything. LeMond fared poorly in previous races leading up to the Tour, but said he was ready to win again.

It became clear that LeMond would not contend for the Tour title last week when he entered the Pyrenees mountains with the lead and exited without it. In previous Tours, LeMond excelled in the mountains.

He did not excel in Wednesday's mountain stage, either, and even considered dropping out of the race altogether.

"I wanted to stop but I knew I couldn't do that," LeMond said. "This morning when I got on my bike I knew right away things wouldn't go right." In four mountain stages - two in the Pyrenees and two in the Alps - LeMond lost more than 17 minutes to Indurain, including seven minutes on Wednesday.

"I couldn't lift my legs in the first hill," LeMond said. "I couldn't do anything. I had no energy. I couldn't feel anything." The 30-year-old from Wayzata, Minn., tried to fight through his physical ailments but said he just didn't have enough energy to keep pace.

LeMond, who has never finished worse than third in five previous Tours, led midway through 22-stage, 23-day race.

NCAA returns to OSU amid new allegations

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - NCAA investigators have returned to Oklahoma State amid allegations that wrestling coach Joe Seay told his players to lie during an investigation into the program.

The Daily Oklahoman cited unnamed sources inside and around the program as saying that Seay called a meeting to make sure everyone had their stories straight.

The newspaper reported Wednesday that eight wrestlers, told their eligibility was in as much danger as the wrestling program, later told NCAA investigators that they lied the first time around.

"I wasn't part of that, so there's no way I can respond. I don't know what went on," said Seay, who was suspended in May after admitting that he lied to the NCAA about paying a player for working in a wrestling camp.

One source described Seay as "chasing guys down at their houses to get their stories straight." But the source said the "stories didn't stay the same over the long haul," the newspaper reported.

Seay, who has filed a grievance to be reinstated, was working at a wrestling camp Wednesday and was not immediately available for comment. Athletic director Jim Garner was out of town Wednesday, according to his secretary.

Garner told The Tulsa Tribune that NCAA investigators were back on campus for the second time in three weeks.

record and had an earned run average of 1.30. She had 147 strikeouts in 167 innings. In 23 starts she tossed six shutouts and had 17 complete games.

"Some people had mentioned to me if I would transfer because of the year we had," Koehl said. "But I really never considered it. I like it at Eastern."

She believes that the team will be hurt by the players leaving, but it is just something they will have to deal with.

"It's definitely going to hurt us," Koehl said. "We have some young recruits coming in though who will hopefully help us. We're going to be inexperienced. I think that we are just going to have to set our goals a little bit lower this year."

Cincinnati pounds Bielecki, Cubs 12-3

CHICAGO (AP) - Things were back to normal at Wrigley Field on Wednesday as not one player threw a bat on the field or a ball in a questionable direction.

One day after Rob Dibble and Andre Dawson were ejected for flagrant displays, the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs played a tame game before 36,215 fans, the Cubs' largest crowd of the season. The Reds routed the Cubs 12-3 for only their second victory in 14 games.

Tom Browning (11-7) ended his three-game losing streak. He gave up 10 hits in his first complete game in 22 starts this year. Mike Bielecki (10-7) allowed six runs on 10 hits in 5 1-3 innings.

"What we need is consistency to turn it around," Reds manager Lou Piniella said of his shaky staff.

With the score tied at 3, Hal Morris singled to start the Reds' sixth. Singles by Paul O'Neill and Chris Sabo put Cincinnati ahead and Joe Oliver followed with an RBI single, breaking an 0-for-18 slump.

With two outs, Browning hit a grounder to second baseman Ryne Sandberg, whose throw to pitcher Heathcliff Slocumb at first base was dropped for an error, allowing one run to score. Another run scored on the play when first baseman Mark Grace retrieved the loose ball and made a wild throw home.

"Everybody is going to take their lumps," Bielecki said. "On a day when I felt good I give up 10 hits in six innings. I'm sitting here wondering what went wrong. I had better stuff than my last time out." The Reds scored twice in the eighth on an RBI single by Freddie Benavides and a run-scoring double by Browning. Oliver hit a two-run single in the ninth and Benavides hit a sacrifice fly.

Sabo put Cincinnati ahead 3-1 with a two-run double in the fourth. Shawon Dunston hit a sacrifice fly in the Cubs' fourth and Dawson singled home the tying run in the fifth.

"I relaxed today. I tried to throw my game, keep the ball down and find the groove," Browning said.

Dawson expects fine, but not a suspension

CHICAGO (AP) - Fine, yes. Suspension, no.

Those were the sentiments of Andre Dawson about his seventh-inning ejection by umpire Joe West in the Chicago Cubs' 8-5 victory over Cincinnati on Tuesday night.

Dawson, one of baseball's more mild-mannered players, said he expected to be fined for throwing some 15 bats onto the field after he had been thrown out for arguing over a called third strike.

"Obviously, I was trying to find a reason for why I was being thrown out," Dawson said when asked to explain his conduct, which included some contact between he and West.

The ejection led to a raucous outburst by Cubs' fans which included throwing of beverages and cups onto the field that delayed the game almost 10 minutes.

"We're waiting for the tapes and the reports," NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney said Wednesday. "It's under review." Dawson, who is in his 16th season in the major leagues, has never been suspended and was ejected only once before. That was in 1987 when he charged the mound after being hit by a pitch by San Diego's Eric Show.

That was the year he led the National League with 49 home runs and 137 RBIs and was named MVP.

"I expect to be fined, but not suspended," Dawson said. "If I'm suspended, I would want to know the reason why." Dawson said what set him off was "the smirk" on West's face.

"That's his form of intimidation," the outfielder said. "I was trying to get an explanation and, by his actions, he was saying he didn't have to give me one.

"I wasn't showing him up," Dawson said. "But when they show you up, you have to defend yourself." If Dawson does get suspended, it would most probably be for making contact with West.

"He definitely bumped me and that will be reported," West said

Softball team loses four players including Stice

By KEN RYAN
Staff writer

Problems seem to come in bunches and that is certainly the case for the Eastern softball team.

After struggling to a fifth-place finish in the Gateway Conference last season with a 5-9 record, the Panthers figured that the worst was behind them.

But they were wrong. First, head coach Kathy Arendsen resigned to accept a coaching job at Yale University, and now four players have decided not to return to play softball at Eastern next spring.

Junior shortstop Tammy Stice, freshman third baseman Shannon Kelley, senior outfielder Ann White and sophomore outfielder Jenny Greiner will not be on the Panther roster.

Stice, who could not be reached for comment, was the team's leading hitter last season, hitting .395. She broke several school records while at Eastern. She knocked in 37 runs to break the mark and tied the school record with 13 doubles. Stice became Eastern's career leader in batting average at .387 and slugging percentage at .567.

Kelley set Eastern records with 31 sacrifices, hitting in the number two spot in the lineup, and had 120 assists at third base. She also managed to hit .266.

Greiner, who missed most of the 1991 season, was fifth on the team with a .245 batting average and had a fielding percentage of .957.

White had 14 hits for the season, scoring 15 runs and seven RBIs.

Junior shortstop Tammy Stice, one of four Panther softball players to leave the team, makes a play last year at Lantz Field.

White and Greiner refused to comment on the situation and Kelley could not be reached for comment.

Eastern Athletic Director Mike Ryan said he believes there were many reasons for the players leaving.

"If you analyze each reason for the players leaving you would find a different reason for each," Ryan said. "It (the departure of Arendsen) was definitely not the reason."

There was speculation that Chris Koehl, the team's leading pitcher last spring, might also be leaving Eastern, but that is untrue.

Koehl led Eastern with a 16-8

Thirty-three applicants for vacant softball job

More than two dozen people have applied for the vacant softball coaching position at Eastern, but no one has been named as of yet.

Eastern Athletic Director Mike Ryan said that he is in the process of naming a leader for the Division I program for next season.

"I am working on setting up interviews right now," Ryan said. "We have narrowed it down to the finalists, but we have not made a decision yet."

Eastern has had as many as 33 applicants for the head coaching job that opened up when Arendsen departed for the same position at the Ivy League's Yale University.

Arendsen, who coached the Panthers for two years, compiled an overall record of 64-46 (.582), including a record of 28-20 this past season. She also was an assistant at Northwestern from 1985-87 when the Wildcats advanced to the College World Series.

Eastern also broke several school records while Arendsen was at the helm. In 1991, the Panthers set three all-time marks. They hit 47 doubles, had 146 bases on balls and 11 hit batsmen.

Ryan said that the current list of candidates is an impressive one.

"We have narrowed it down to about eight or nine people," Ryan said. "It is an excellent pool."

Ryan said he does not feel that it is the right time to give the names of the top candidates.

"I don't think it is fair to give the names at this time," Ryan said. "But by August 5th, I expect to begin interviewing the candidates."

Dibble's antics change beanball point of view

Enough is enough.

What I am talking about is the incident that happened in the eighth inning of the Cubs' game on Tuesday.

Rob Dibble of the Cincinnati Reds beamed Doug Dascenzo in the back of the leg after giving up back-to-back doubles to give the Cubs the lead. "The ball slipped out of my hand," Dibble would say after the game. And sure, some people say it was an accident, but after viewing the play for myself, there is no doubt in my mind that it was done deliberately.

Dibble fielded the ball 20 feet in fair territory, ran into foul territory and aimed the ball at Dascenzo. You tell me that was an accident.

I was happy to see that the umpire saw the play the same way I did, as he immediately ejected Dibble.

For Dibble, it was his third ejection of the season. He was thrown out of one game for throwing a fastball behind Eric Yelding of the Astros and was also ejected for tossing a ball into the crowd at Riverfront Stadium after defeating the Cubs. The throw injured a spectator.

This can all be put into the category of brushback pitches. Just the other day I was talking to some friends about how professional baseball players today are just a bunch of babies. We talked about how they complain when they get knocked down by a pitch and are always looking to start fights.

Back in the late 1950s and early 60s, the brushback pitch was just another part of the game and the players knew that and accepted it. If a player hit a home run, the next hitter would be ready to get knocked to the ground. But he would just take it in stride and bounce right back up and step to the plate.

Pitchers such as Whitey Ford, Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax would never have had as many wins as they did if it were not for the brushback pitch. The three combined for over 600 victories in their careers. If a pitcher wanted to be successful he would have to keep the batters honest by pitching inside.

I had been a firm believer that batters today were over-hyping the bean ball and that they should just play baseball, but I am starting to wonder about that now.

It seems that pitchers such as Dibble are just out to hurt people when there is no cause for it. I have definitely changed my point of view on the beanball. All along I was on Dibble's side. I believed him when he said that he was just brushing back the hitters, but when I saw that play in the Cub game, I just could not believe it.

Dibble will definitely be fined, and should be suspended at least a few games, but even that won't do anything because there is no changing a person like Dibble.

There is no need for that kind of action out of a person who is supposed to be a professional. I think the next time that Dibble moans "Why does everybody pick on me?" he should consider what he has done and start to grow up.

Mosnia returns from Europe

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

Eastern soccer coach Cizo Mosnia, who was born in Barban, Yugoslavia, finally made it back home.

The seven-year Panther head coach was one of about 12 coaches who just returned from Europe after coaching the East-West Ambassador's Soccer Club teams in games all over the European Continent.

"I was asked once before, and during the summers I was doing camps and I didn't think about going to Europe at that time," Mosnia said. "This last time around when they did contact me, I decided to make the trip and it was well worth it."

Mosnia, who also played his collegiate soccer for Eastern, said it was good to get back to his homeland.

"I toured England in 1975 with the (Chicago) Sting, but I was born in Yugoslavia and I lived in Italy, but I was really small at that time so I couldn't really recall," he said. "This was the first time I had been back so I was excited about going. Maybe that's why I did it. Especially since I got to go back to Italy."

Mosnia said about 180 kids ranging in age from 12-19 came from all over the United States to participate in the exhibitions and games sponsored by the Cleveland-based soccer club.

"Throughout the year, they had tryouts for these kids," Mosnia said. "The cost for the trip was about $4,000, so the kids that couldn't afford it, couldn't make the trip. The talent wasn't the best, but the kids were very enthusiastic."

We gathered in Holland and then flew to several different cities," he added. "During the first week Dutch trainers worked with the kids and then we played exhibitions at night against club teams. It was (well worth it). It opened my eyes to a lot of things. I think the kids found out how the Europeans play soccer."

Mosnia said the European club team players would smoke and drink after games and that was quite a shock for the American players. "The kids were wondering, 'What's really happening?'" he said.

"The second week we traveled down to Czechoslovakia near the Austrian border and we played in the Austrian Cup. Then we traveled to Verona, Italy and played in the Italy Cup. The experience was real good for the kids. They got to see how people live in different countries."

Mosnia played for Eastern from 1971-74 and was a member of head coach Fritz Teller's NCAA Division II fourth place squad, which had a record of 10-5-0. 1974 was Eastern's third year in Division II play after making the jump from NAIA in 1972.

He then moved on to play for the North American Soccer League's Chicago Sting, becoming the first Eastern player to participate in a professional soccer league.

Mosnia has compiled a 64-42-15 record while with the Panthers for seven seasons. Before coming to Eastern to coach, Mosnia served as head soccer coach at Downers Grove North High School for seven years as well. He received his master's degree from Eastern in 1976.
