Marvin addresses AB; explains July memo

by Becky Suprenant

Speaking to the Apportionment Board Thursday evening, Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said in the recent past, there have been several matters which he resolved but should have been handled by the AB.

Marvin was present at the AB meeting to answer questions concerning a memo he sent July 30 to the AB.

A subcommittee was then formed in order to answer questions raised by Marvin's memo.

"I have no preconceived notion of what I want from the committee," Marvin said.

"There was a controversy over funding of organizations and the decision was not mine to make," Marvin said. "I was involved a great deal more than I should have been," he added.

The Vehicle, Model U.N. and the Model State Government were discussed last year. When the AB was apportioning money, they said one thing and the Student Senate said another, Marvin added.

"I was responding to the situations as they arose last year," Marvin said. "There was no rational or consistent pattern to my actions," he added.

Marvin added it was not his intention to raise specific questions by his memo.

Marvin said any group which has a student-faculty board should have the oversight responsibility of their budget.

"The student faculty board of any group has the best knowledge and closest activity with the group which the AB has chosen to fund," he added.

"Groups have false expectations that once a budget is approved they have responsibility," Marvin said.

Any requests for money which are made after the budget must be approved by Student Body Financial Vice President Todd Daniels.

In addition, Marvin asked how new programs are begun and who decides whether a program can ask for funding support.

In his memorandum, Marvin proposed the possibility of separating the publications from AB funding. "When a group shares responsibility the relationship between these two groups changes," Marvin said.

"I don't know if splitting the Publications Board is the best way, but that is how I would do it," he added.

"If the AB indicates they want to separate publications from AB then I will be willing to approve that," Marvin added.

Marvin said he recognizes that the publications are an important part of the institutional program of journalism.

"The Daily Eastern News is a lab for journalism and I am committed to the program," Marvin said. "I want the publications to be as good, strong and stable as possible," he added.

"There is no great hurry for the answers to my questions but I would like to have them before the AB starts to apportion money," he added.

Veep choice to be named soon

by Melinda DeVries

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said Wednesday he will decide within the next two weeks which of the three final candidates for vice president for academic affairs will fill the position.

Marvin said he has narrowed the five candidates presented to him by the search committee down to three—Donald Lauda, Eastern dean of the School of Technology; Stanley Rives, Illinois State University associate provost and dean of instruction and Margaret Soderberg, Eastern assistant vice president for academic affairs.

Marvin said he met with Rives and Soderberg Monday and Lauda Tuesday and plans to meet again briefly with Soderberg and the search committee before making his final decision.

Marvin said he is taking his time with making a final decision to be sure he is selecting the best candidate.

"It is difficult to make this decision because the search committee gave me such good candidates to select from," Marvin said.

He noted that it is a "luxury" to have three candidates who are as interested in the position and as well qualified as the final three he is considering.

Marvin said that although he plans to make his decision within the next two weeks, the candidate's name will not be announced until the Board of Governors meeting Oct. 30.

The vice president for academic affairs position became vacant after Thomas Bond resigned this summer to become the president at Clarion State University, Clarion, Pa.

Blood drive goal missed

by Dru Sefton

The American Red Cross campus blood drive missed its goal by 16 pints, Jeff Fahrenwald, drive chairman said Thursday.

The drive goal had been 1,700 pints, Fahrenwald said. Total pints collected during the four-day effort were 1,684.

Fahrenwald said it is the first time since Eastern has had the semiannual blood drive that the goal has not been reached.

The last blood drive at Eastern, which ran from March 10-13, brought in 1,727 pints, 227 over the 1,500-pint goal. This time the weather played a role in the short count.

"Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday we broke records," Fahrenwald said. "It was Tuesday that hurt us. The weather was just too nice. People didn't want to take the time to come in and give."

Fahrenwald said another reason there were not more donors was that many people were turned away due to a low iron count in their blood.

"We had over 64 people turned away for low iron Thursday alone," Fahrenwald said.

Fahrenwald said one reason for so many people having a low iron count could be because "last weekend was Homecoming, and lots of people

Carter tones-down attack on Reagan

WASHINGTON—President Carter went public with his softer, toned-down attack on Ronald Reagan on Thursday, but independent John Anderson declared, "It's too late," and insisted the president's chances of holding on to the White House are fading.

Carter's rhetoric was milder as he began a two-day swing in Tennessee, while Reagan, in St. Louis, declared that "I am an environmentalist...I am for clean air." But the Republican candidate renewed his attack on the Environmental Protection Agency, which he said sometimes insists on "unreasonable and many times untried standards" to clean up the air.

Reagan also turned down an invitation by a Tampa, Fla., television station for a "joint appearance" with Carter when both men are in Florida on Friday. Carter accepted the proposal, in which he and Reagan would answer questions from different locations, but Reagan's spokesman said there would be no deal unless Anderson is included.

SIU researches a new fuel source

CARBONDALE—The corn stalks, cobs and leaves scattered across fields during the harvest have been mentioned as a raw material for fuel alcohol, but Southern Illinois University researchers say conversion is difficult and expensive.

"At this stage of the game, it's not practical, but it offers some interesting possibilities," said agriculture professor Walter Wills, noting that fuel availability eventually may be more important than price.

Wills and a team of scientists at the Carbondale campus have been studying the conversion of corn stover to fuel alcohol for about a year under a grant from the Illinois Institute of Natural Resources.

Heart murder cases unsolved

BUFFALO, N.Y.—The mutilated body of a black man whose heart had been cut out was found near the Niagara River on Thursday, police said.

He was the second black man slain in the same manner in two days and the sixth black man murdered in the area in less than a month.

Edward C. Cosgrove, Erie County district attorney, said the latest body was found near the Niagara River in Tonawanda.

Missile fire claims highest casualty toll ever—Iran

by the Associated Press

BAGHDAD, IRAQ—Iran claimed Iraq fired missiles into two Iranian cities Thursday, inflicting the highest casualty toll of any action in the war. Both sides were dispatching envoys in an effort to enlist support from other countries.

Iran, which claimed up to 180 killed and 300 wounded in Iraqi missile attacks, reported major gains in the central sector of the front and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr told Tehran Radio, "We are entering the final phase of the war." Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said victory was certain and Iran planned to replace the Iraqi regime with "an Islamic government" in Baghdad.

Teele willing to fight tuition hike

by Patty O'Neill

Board of Governor's representative Terry Teele said he and members of the Student Senate plan to fight a rumored $24 tuition increase for next year.

"We won't know if there is going to be a definite tuition increase until Oct. 23, but we're going to be prepared to fight it if there is one," Teele said.

The Student Senate met Wednesday night in the Union addition Tuscola-Arcola room.

Buttons will be sold and literature will be circulated to inform the students of the tuition increase, Teele added.

The money raised from the selling of the buttons will be used "hopefully" to take a bus of Eastern students to Springfield to lobby against the increase, he said.

The BOG, which would be the first governing body to consider a tuition increase for Eastern, will meet at Eastern Oct. 30. At that time, students may attend the meeting in order to express their concern about the tuition increase to BOG Executive Director Donald Walters, Teele said.

In other business, the Senate approved "Mid Term Study Day" as a tentative name for the proposed fall break.

Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee Russ Robb said a name had to be given to the proposal in order for it to be voted on and a day had to be specified to avoid any problems with civil service workers' schedule.

The fall break proposal states that Friday, Oct. 9, 1981 would be the first Mid Term Study Day and would be in effect each subsequent year."

In addition, Senate members announced that the Student Legal Service will represent an Eastern student in court with a tenant-landlord problem. The landlord is also an Eastern instructor. No names were released.

The Senate also approved student appointments made by Student Body President Bob Glover to the Council on Graduate Studies, Council on Academic Affairs and the Supreme Court.

Graduate Assistant Nancy Holt was approved to the Council on Graduate Studies, junior Russ Robb to the Council on Academic Affairs, and junior Steve Scholes as a Justice on the Supreme Court.

Tournament debate topic scheduled

by Sarah Coyle

"The United States should significantly increase its foreign military commitments" is the topic Eastern's debate team will address when it hosts the E. R. Tame Memorial Debate Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Coleman Hall.

The tournament runs from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. Sunday the tournament will run from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, David Svaldi, director of forensics, said.

The debate, sponsored by the Debate Union and Eastern's speech department, will include approximately 40 debate teams from 15 schools representing seven states, Svaldi said.

The teams will debate in eight rounds with a "sudden death play-off," between the teams with the best records, Svaldi said. The winners of that round will debate in the eliminating rounds, he said.

Eastern's debate team, which is called, "After Dr. Tame," and the weekend tournament are named in honor of the late director of forensics at Eastern, E. R. Tame. Tame died of cancer in February, 1979. While at Eastern he taught speech classes for 14 years and led debate teams to the national tournament for seven straight years.

Miracle allows student to survive

by Peggy Schneider

Freshman Larry Arney is walking, talking and even attending school again.

Arney, a 19-year-old from Effingham, suffered cerebral injuries in a car-train collision near his home last year.

He was in a coma for two months after the accident and after regaining consciousness he underwent months of physical and speech therapy to learn to walk and speak again.

His struggle to recover during the last year has earned him the "Rehabilitant of the Year" award from this area. He is also eligible for a similar honor from the state.

The "Rehabilitant of the Year" award is issued annually by the Illinois Association of Rehabilitation Facilities in recognition of an individual's willingness and determination to overcome obstacles during the rehabilitation process.

Arney's name was submitted by the rehabilitation staff of the East Central Rehabilitation Center of Champaign's Mercy Hospital, where Arney went through rehabilitation.

Arney speaks casually of his accident, which occurred at 6:30 p.m. June 11, 1979, at the Clark Street railroad crossing about a block from his home in Effingham.

"I pulled to the crossing gate and looked to my left. I saw the freight train coming, and I thought I could beat it across the tracks. I didn't see the passenger train coming on my right," Arney said.

Arney said the passenger train collided with his Ford station wagon, spun it around, and shoved it along the tracks into the path of the oncoming freight train. The car's passenger side took the force of both impacts, he said.

Arney, who was the only person in the car, was pinned inside.

"Rumors were spreading among my friends immediately after the accident that the police and rescue squads had to amputate my legs to get me out of the car," Arney said. His friends' fears were unfounded.

Arney said he was taken to Effingham's St. Anthony's Hospital, then transferred a few hours later to Burnham City Hospital in Champaign.

The doctors said the fact that he was young helped in his recovery, Arney recalls.

However, when he came out of the coma he was unable to walk or talk. He was transferred to Mercy Hospital for rehabilitation.

"The speech therapists had me do things like repeating the alphabet. In physical therapy, I had to walk, climb steps, and lift weights with my legs," Arney said.

He said he received great support from his family of five siblings and from his friends, who often travelled to Champaign for a week or more to visit him. His father, who is assistant superintendent of schools in Effingham, took a leave of absence to stay in Champaign near his son. His mother also spent the four months near him.

Arney was released Oct. 12, 1979, after four months in hospitals.

He came home in a wheelchair and soon graduated to a cane, he said.

Arney had his cane engraved with the letters ICRR (Illinois Central Railroad) to commemorate the accident.

Test takers can improve exams

We hope the Illinois House will pass the Truth in Testing Act which will enable students taking computerized university admission exams to see the test answers afterwards. This law will make tests such as the ACT more accountable and may eliminate built-in cultural bias.

State Rep. Emil Jones, D-Chicago, introduced the bill last April. Jones said, "With Truth in Testing, at least questions and answers will be available for scrutiny to see whether they are being properly administered."

Admission tests are important to all prospective college students. Most colleges require students to take the ACT or SAT tests before considering their registration requests. Some universities actually refuse admission if certain standards are not met in these tests.

Thus, a student's educational future could be determined by these tests which are sometimes the determining factor on whether a student will succeed or fail in college.

Then why can't a student see where he failed? Only the numerical scores are shown to students, and these scores are categorized in general subject areas. A student only knows he received a 15 in math, a 17 in science.

This type of feedback gives the student no specific indication of his academic weakness. If a student has a weakness in multiplication, then these admission exams should tell him, not keep him guessing. This type of testing can only discourage students if their scores are below the norm.

A student should not be discouraged from seeking higher education simply because an exam has failed to inform him of his shortcomings. With a view of the answers and his specific mistakes, the test taker could work to improve his weaknesses.

With this legislation, cultural bias can be reduced from these exams. Because these exams are prepared by white middle-class workers and geared for white middle-class students, minority students score badly on them year after year.

If the test answers were available, minority students could request answers and then discover cultural bias more easily. With this input, testing agencies could consider cultural bias more readily when writing tests. Minority groups should not be denied an opportunity to improve their education simply because tests demand conformity in their answers.

If passed, the Truth in Testing Act will not eliminate all the problems concerning standardized admission tests. However, if the test taker has the right to question the correct answer or at least see where he specifically failed, then some progress will have been made in improving the admission process.

Your Turn

Policy inconsistent

Editor:

This is in response to the recent ramifications resulting from the Ok'toker'fest. Whatever happened to the equality of justice? Why are some laws enforced some of the time and others enforced to excess?

This inconsistency and inequality I'm talking about really seems to characterize the way the Campus Police and Keith Kohanzo of the Housing Office are handling the situation.

I was not present at the Ok'toker'fest; however, I was present at an event last year which closely parallels it.

The event I'm referring to is the night tickets were sold for the REO Speedwagon concert at Eastern. That night, I and several other people slept out by the Union to get tickets in the morning. The crowd was estimated to be at least 150 to 200 people.

During the course of this cold spring evening, there was obvious use of alcohol and marijuana to excess by the majority of students who were sleeping out. Evidently, this was part of some sort of coping mechanism used by the students to keep warm and pass the time.

The Campus Police had full knowledge that evening of what was going on but failed to do anything about it.

I'm not going to make a moral judgement about the legality of the present situation, but I will say the Campus Police are wrong in not having some consistency in the way they enforce the laws that are, in theory, supposed to insure the well-being of the people. If alcohol and pot were allowed that evening last spring, why weren't they allowed at the Ok'toker'fest?

The number of people participating in the event shouldn't make it any more or less legal. Judging from past events, I feel that if the Ok'toker'fest was not causing severe campus unrest or moral decay, the event should have been tolerated.

Whether you agree or disagree with my opinion, I'm sure you would agree that the Campus Police and Keith Kohanzo should get their act together and try to be a little more consistent in enforcing the laws and policies of the university.

If this was done, I'm sure the Campus Police would gain some badly needed respect.

Battle of the walkways should end

After a bicycle tire came close to rendering me permanently sterile, it suddenly dawned on me that this campus needs bike lanes. With a population of suicidal bicyclists, skateboarders and roller skaters fighting for elbow room with flat-footed pedestrians, something has to give.

We might as well admit it. There's just not enough room for all of us. The walkways are crowded enough with pedestrians between classes, and when you add the bicyclists weaving through the masses it's dangerous. Add those crazy skateboard surfers and the roller derby rejects, and an accident is just waiting to happen.

Personally, I have nothing against bicycles, skateboards and roller skates. I can ride two thirds of the group (hint: I never could learn to "surf") and respect anyone who uses ingenuity to cut down their travel time. However, I'm tired of trying to avoid a hit-and-run accident on the sidewalk.

There are some "wheelers" who are conscientious of the crowd and ride around it, not through it. Unfortunately, there are others who either have a fetish for causing people to clear a path for them or have hocked their alarm clocks, thus causing them to be eternally rushing for the next class.

It is a wonder no one has been seriously hurt due to this battle for the walkways. Something has to be done before the first casualty is recorded.

Personal file:

transportation vehicles from the sidewalks. Students have spent good money on these alternate forms of transportation.

Widening the two main sidewalks on campus and providing bike lanes would be logical. But what about the skateboarders and roller skaters—would we only create a new conflict between them and the bicyclists in the bike lanes?

Banning skateboards and roller skates as transportation except on weekends would be sensible. These forms of transportation are more recreational than bicycles and tend to be more dangerous for the rider and innocent bystanders because they lack brakes.

I'm more than willing to allow my activity money to be spent on this cause. I hope something is done before next spring when the wheelers will come out of their winter hibernation.

I just hope we can make the walkways safe again, because I want to leave this university in one piece.

House reduction proposal opposed at forum

by Scott Fishel

Candidates for the state legislature discussed issues including the proposed amendment to cut the number of legislators by one-third at a forum Wednesday night.

The forum was sponsored by the Mattoon Association of Commerce and was held at the Mattoon Golf and Country Club.

Incumbents Larry Stuffle, D-Charleston, and Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman, and challengers Steve Miller, R-Catlin, and Eugene "Radio" Thompson, D-Danville, attended.

The candidates voiced their opinions on the proposed state constitutional amendment which would reduce the size of the Illinois House from 177 to 118. The proposal will be on the Nov. 4 ballot.

Miller said he does not favor the proposition because he said 118 legislators can pass just as many bills and spend just as much money as 177.

"My concern is that the people will be disappointed," Miller said. He said he would not object to reduction in another manner but did not specify what he would propose.

Miller said he supports returning to biennial legislative sessions (every two years). He said legislators "would find out more of what is on their constituent's minds if they spent more time with them and less time with the bureaucracy."

Stuffle said "the popular and simple-minded position" is to support the proposed amendment.

"They haven't looked at the facts," Stuffle said, citing the example of the Massachusetts state legislature, which recently made a similar representative cut. Stuffle said it now costs more to run the Massachusetts legislature and the number of bills introduced has actually increased.

He said the proposal would cause a loss in downstate representation and fewer members would have more control.

Stuffle said he sees merit in a return to biennial legislative sessions, but he said if that is done "we need to look at the governor as far as calling special sessions and limits on the number of bills that can be introduced."

Thompson said in the long run the proposal will save money for the state and the taxpayer.

"Quality representation comes with quality people regardless of numbers," he said.

He said he sees nothing wrong with a return to biennial sessions.

"We need to get down there, do our job, do it well and get out," he said.

Woodyard said he is opposed to a cut in the size of the legislature because he said minorities will get less representation and it will cut out the "independent thinkers."

"If we do this," Woodyard said, "you as an individual will not have one-third less representation but one-half less. You will have only one senator and one representative to call on if you have problems."

The format allowed each candidate three minutes to respond to questions put to them by members of the audience. The candidates were not allowed to debate between themselves on various aspects of the issues discussed.

The candidates also discussed their opinions on public aid and welfare abuse and what measures they would take to correct these abuses.

"We need to train them (persons on public aid) instead of letting them sit on their fannies and make another generation of welfare recipients," Thompson said.

Woodyard said public aid programs will not have success until control of the programs returns to local governments.

"Abuses won't be changed until we get back to some sort of local control," he said.

Miller also said he feels the reason the cost of public aid programs has increased is because they have been taken out of local control.

"The state is spending more money administrating the programs...it just doesn't pay itself out," he said.

Teachers react 'favorably' to new union in straw poll

by Fran Brolley

In a straw poll taken Wednesday, Eastern faculty members in The American Federation of Teachers local 3500 union reacted favorably to the newly formed United Professionals of Illinois saying they would have "added clout" in Springfield.

The UPI was created after members of teachers' local 3500 faculty unions in the Board of Regents system passed a proposal to merge with schools under the Board of Governor's by an overwhelming majority last Friday.

Union members at Eastern voted 73 percent in favor of the merger, Carol Elder, president of Eastern's AFT chapter, said.

Political science instructor Andrew McNitt said the merger would "increase lobbying activity and political representation" in the state legislature. McNitt said he did not foresee any major changes in the teachers' bargaining position.

Mathematics instructor Ferrel Atkins said the union will make the AFT more effective politically because of the larger numbers of people working together in Springfield.

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said, "It's more likely now that their (teachers) voices will be heard in the legislature."

Joe Carey, professor of elementary and junior high school education, said the UPI would provide a much needed "broader base" for both the AFT and the BOR.

Richard Dulka, legislative director of the AFT local 3500, said the merger would give the union additional strength to lobby in Springfield.

"I fully supported this merge," he added.

Food service workers assured job security

by Deann Leatherwood

Student employees of the University Union food services will not be threatened of losing their current jobs despite the change in management of the operation, Gary Bassett, Union food services director, said recently.

Professional Food Management assumed operation of the Union food services after being approved by the Union Board and Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin Sept. 19.

"They (PFM) aren't here to change the employees. It's not a firing type take-over," Bassett said.

PFM began renovations on the Panther Lair Tuesday, closing down the old serving line and setting up a temporary one while making adjustments to the old line.

Employee changes caused by the renovation will include less grill work and different working areas, Bassett said.

The scheduling, pay rate and number of employees is not expected to change, he added.

PFM has been working with and around the current workers, which keeps communication between the new management good, Linda Ruzevick, student supervisor, said.

"Everything is the same as usual," Ruzevick said. "They (PFM) have been keeping in touch with us."

Under the PFM, student employees will be evaluated on the basis of their work habits and job skills. Monday, the employees were required to complete a job application to provide PFM will background information, Bassett said.

Bassett said these evaluations are not new as employees have always been put on a three-month evaluation.

The goal of PFM is to serve students more efficiently, Ruzevick said. "I think it will be a lot more organized with professional management. We're looking forward to having the new management."

Students honor China

By Lori Waddell

Eastern's Chinese Student Association will be celebrating the founding date of the Republic of China from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Old Union Ballroom.

The "Double Tenth Celebration" is being sponsored by 35 of Eastern's Chinese students and will consist of Chinese jewelry, arts, ancient costumes and various handcrafts, Zoe Chang, Chinese student association president, said.

The students are also sponsoring a Chinese movie weekend. Movies will be aired from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Booth Library Lecture Room. There is no admission charge to the movies, she said.

The movies will range from contemporary romance movies to mysterious films, including Kung Fu films. All films will have English subtitles, she said.

Students have been working together since the beginning of the semester to organize the celebration and gather various Chinese scroll brush paintings, ancient costumes and handcrafts, Chang said.

Bassett said PFM will be making changes in the Panther Lair over a five-day period.

The changes are being made in order to offer students faster service and to improve the selection of food. Currently, the serving line has been moved to the north end of the Lair.

The Lair will be rearranged and grilled food will be prepared and kept hot on the serving line, eliminating the previous system of calling numbers, Union Area Head Bill Clark said.

Instead of one cashier at the end of the line there will be two or three, he added.

A larger area will be utilized for the food service line, helping it to move more efficiently. A salad bar will be in the middle of the service area. The soft drinks will be at the end of the line, rather than the middle, which is faster for those buying just a drink, Clark said.

probably drank too much and didn't eat right."

Fahrenwald said although the drive goal was not met, the pints being donated in the name of Kelly Young, a 17-year-old boy from Flora who died last month, far exceeded what was needed.

"We had a total of 250 pints donated to the St. Louis Children's Hospital in Young's name," Fahrenwald said. "And over 160 of those were donated on Thursday."

Fahrenwald said more blood was given Thursday than any day ever, with 521 pints being donated.

"But as busy as we were on Thursday, I don't think one donor spent more than an hour going through the process of donating," Fahrenwald said. "The nurses and workers were all very efficient."

Drive adviser Walter Lowell, dean of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation department, was instrumental to the drive, Fahrenwald said.

"Without him, conducting the drive would have been close to impossible," Fahrenwald said.

Students Pam Richards and Jana Schrag, who were in charge of scheduling volunteers and overseeing the donor room, should also be commended, Fahrenwald said.

"We had more student volunteers this year than ever before," Fahrenwald said, "and they all busted their tails working. Some put in extra hours and were here sometimes all day."

"We came so close to our goal," Fahrenwald said. "Hopefully we'll make it next time."

The next Red Cross blood drive scheduled for Eastern is March 9-12.

Vietnam Veterans Bill will increase benefits

by Tim Schmidt

Students who are currently attending Eastern under the Vietnam Era GI Bill can look for a 10 percent increase in their monthly benefits, Herb Brooks, Eastern's director of Veteran Affairs, said Wednesday.

Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Tex., chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, announced in a press release Sept. 26 that half of the increase took effect Oct. 1, 1980, and the other half Jan. 1, 1981.

Brooks said he has received no official word of the increase but he is sure it will come.

The legislation calls for major improvements in the VA's Vocational Rehabilitation Program. Planned improvements include increased job counseling and placement procedures.

Brooks said the 10 percent increase in monthly benefits will affect only those veteran's attending school under the Vietnam Era GI Bill. It will not affect those attending school under the Veterans Educational Assistance Program, which covers all the veterans signing the service contract after 1976.

Currently a veteran attending school under the Vietnam Era GI Bill receives $311 a month. With the 10 percent increase the veteran will receive $342 a month.

Veterans attending school under the Veterans Educational Assistance Program receive $2 for every $1 they save—up to $75 a month in the service—for educational purposes, he said.

Brooks said there are about 400 veterans attending Eastern under the GI Bill.

Brooks added there is a new GI Bill proposed by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., which is similar to the current GI Bill.

The bill would increase educational benefits to provide $400 a month to the veteran for schooling, for a maximum of 36 months.

At this time a single veteran receives $311 a month for 45 months.

Thurmond's bill would also allow for the transfer of the benefits to a spouse or child after eight years in the service.

Brooks said the new bill has come about because persons have no incentive to join the armed services.

"The peace-time volunteer army has been a bust. There's no incentive," he said.

"There are two alternatives we could take to recruit more people. First, increase the incentive to young people to join the military, or second, the draft."

Thurmond's bill would offer that incentive, Brooks said.

Brooks also said many veterans are unaware that the Illinois Veterans Scholarship is available to them.

To receive the scholarship, a veteran must be a resident of Illinois when he or she enlists in the service, complete his term, have an honorable discharge and return to Illinois.

"They are entitled to the equivalent of four years of college tuition and activity fees," Brooks said.

However, this scholarship only applies to those veterans who attend state schools and junior colleges.

Field hockey team will try new set up in Iowa

by Steve Binder

Eastern's field hockey team will switch to a 4-forward, 4-link alignment to try and stop a six-game losing streak this weekend when it travels to the University of Iowa for three games.

The Panthers will square off with Northeast Missouri and Iowa Friday and then play Northwestern Saturday.

Five games ago, Eastern coach Betty Temple had her squad switch from a 4-forward, 2-link setup to a 3-forward, 3-link alignment to strengthen the defense and facilitate the transition from defense to offense.

However, in those five games the Panthers have scored just twice and Temple said she felt a change offensively was required.

"Our offense definitely needs to remember how to score," Temple said.

Consequently, Temple has changed to the 4-forward, 4-link set up the Panthers have used the past two seasons.

After installing the old alignment in Wednesday's practice, Temple had already noticed improvement.

"We were a lot stronger offensively and we were getting a lot of shots off with the extra forward," Temple said.

Temple said her squad will use the contests against NEMO and Iowa's junior varsity as tune-ups for Eastern's match against a "very tough and very fast" Northwestern squad.

"I'm looking for a little confidence-building and hopefully we'll get that from the Northeast Missouri and JV games," Temple said.

"I'm anticipating a two-point spread for us against Northeast Missouri. They will be easier than Northwestern. Iowa's JV team is comparable to a Division II team. They have some fairly weak positions that I think we'll capitalize on," Temple said.

Northwestern recently blanked Purdue University 3-0. The Panthers lost to Purdue 1-0 Tuesday.

Harriers take youngsters to Missouri meet

by Dan Brannan

Eastern's men's cross country team will take some of its younger runners to face eight predominantly Missouri colleges at the Miner Invitational in Rolla, Mo. Saturday.

Eastern coach Tom Woodall said the reason he is taking some of his younger runners is to give the other runners a week off from competing.

"Some of our fellows who have been competing week after week will not compete this week, but train instead," Woodall said.

The runners that will go to the meet are Bob Beine, Mike Beresford, Terry Donahue, Dave Huston, Joel McKinney, Jim Scruton, Scott Stogsdill and Jeff Wagner, Woodall said.

Woodall also said the competition in this meet will not be nearly as strong as in last week's Notre Dame Invitational.

Central Missouri State is the favorite in the meet, Woodall said.

"Central Missouri finished seventh in last year's NCAA Division II finals," Woodall said. "They also have a runner who was an All-American in both cross-country and track last year."

Woodall said two other teams that should be tough in the meet are Northeast Missouri State and Lincoln University.

"Northeast has a relatively young squad," Woodall said. "Lincoln has a four-minute miler in track named Lamb."

Woodall also said Lincoln's new coach this year is one of his former runners at Eastern.

The Missouri meet should really let some of the young runners show their potential, Woodall said.

"It will be a good challenge to see if we can knock off a couple of good teams at this meet," Woodall said.

However, the Panthers will have to do so without one of their top runners, Bob Feller. Feller will miss the rest of the season with a stress fracture.

Woodall said four other Eastern runners will be going to Parkland Junior College for an invitational meet Saturday.

The four runners are Dave Carlson, John Gassman, Keith Meyerholtz and Bill Owens.

Eastern's team was ranked fifth in the latest Division II rankings, Woodall said.

Ahead of the Panthers were California-Poly SLO, Sacramento State, Humboldt State and Pembroke State.

K.C. closes in on American League pennant

KANSAS CITY (AP)— The Kansas City Royals strung together four straight hits in the third inning, including Willie Wilson's two-run triple and an RBI double by U.L. Washington, and held on to edge the New York Yankees 3-2 for a commanding 2-0 lead in the best-of-five American League Championship Series.

Dennis Leonard, Kansas City's only 20-game winner, scattered seven hits before giving way to Dan Quisenberry, top reliever in the AL this year, following Reggie Jackson's leadoff single in the ninth.

The Royals jumped on New York's Rudy May and scored all the runs they needed in the third before the 36-year-old left-hander slammed the door.

No team ever has rallied from a 2-0 deficit in any league championship series since the current playoff method began in 1969.

The Yankees will call on 22-game winner Tommy John to try to prevent a sweep when the series switches to New York Friday night. Kansas City has nominated Paul Splittorff, who won 14 games during the regular season.

Leonard, a hard-throwing 29-year-old right-hander who was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., retired the Yankees in order in five innings.

He yielded a pair of harmless singles in the second. He settled down to retire eight batters in a row after the Yankees scored twice in the fifth inning on Craig Nettles' inside-the-park home run, Leonard's only walk of the game and Willie Randolph's RBI double.

The Yankees had the potential tying run thrown out at the plate for the final out of the eighth inning, thanks to some quick Kansas City fielding. Randolph singled with one out. After Bobby Murcer struck out, Bob Watson ripped a drive that bounced off the base of the left field wall.

Randolph, one of New York's fastest runners, was on the move with two out, but left fielder Wilson, the speediest man in baseball, retrieved the ball quickly and fired it to third baseman George Brett. Brett's relay to catcher Darrell Porter was in time to nail Randolph, who tried to crash through the tag with a head-first slide. Watson was credited with a double, but the third out left Yankee slugger Jackson standing futilely in the on-deck circle.

Jackson opened the top of the ninth with a single, chasing Leonard. Quisenberry, whose submarine delivery enabled him to tie for the league lead with 33 saves, retired Oscar Gamble on a soft pop fly, but Rick Cerone lined a single over short, moving Jackson to second.

However, Nettles, rapped the first pitch sharply to second baseman Frank White. He juggled it for the split second, but fired to shortstop Washington for one out, and first baseman Willie Aikens dug Washington's relay out of the dirt to complete a game-ending double play.

A record Kansas City baseball crowd of 42,633, thirsting for the Royals to avenge their 1976-77-78 playoff losses to the hated Yankees, had little to cheer about until the Royals struck swiftly in the third inning.

With one out, Porter lined a single to right field, and White's grounder skipped through the right side on the artificial turf for another single as Porter stopped at second.

Division II Marauders await Panther gridgers

by Dave Claypool

Eastern's football team will return to Division II play at 1 p.m. Saturday when it travels to Wilberforce, Oh. to tackle the Marauders of Central State.

The Panthers, who are undefeated against Division II opponents and 1-2 versus Division I foes, will try to attain their first road victory of the season Saturday.

In the gridgers' only games as visitors, Division I schools Southern Illinois University and Indiana State University defeated them.

But last Saturday's 31-14 thumping of Illinois State stifled Eastern's misfortune against larger schools and put the Panthers into high gear for their stretch run.

"I'm pleased with the progress we've made the past two weeks," Eastern head coach Darrell Mudra said. "We need to pick up a road victory and build some momentum with the conference schedule coming up."

Conference play for the Panthers begins Oct. 18 when they travel to Western Illinois University for the first of four consecutive league games.

Despite Eastern's desire to begin conference play, Defensive Coordinator Chuck Dickerson does not foresee any problems with the Panthers looking past Central State.

"Absolutely not," Dickerson said. "Things went real well for us in practice yesterday (Wednesday). The guys have got their heads in the game."

Although the defensive coach said his group will not take Saturday's battle lightly, the Marauders' measly 1-3-1 record is not something that proves intimidating.

Central State's lone win was a 27-0 shutout over Lincoln University and its tie was a 14-14 standoff with Elizabeth City.

Dickerson said one reason for the Marauders' poor start is "some key injuries that have really dragged them down."

"I imagine they have made some real critical errors with turnovers too," Dickerson said. "But they are pretty talented individually, regardless of their record."

One particular individual talent Eastern must stop Saturday is fullback Larry Kelly.

The junior leads his team with 679

Eastern tackle Charlie Krutsinger (66) and middle linebacker Bill Mines (53) lower the boom on Illinois State quarterback Steve Gumble in the Panthers' 31-14 victory over the Redbirds Saturday. Eastern will vie for its fourth victory against two losses Saturday when it travels to Ohio to face the Marauders of Central State. (News photo by Mark Wolf) yards rushing for a 135.8 per game average. He has also caught two touchdown passes on just three receptions.

"That Kelly is a super back," Dickerson said. "The best fullback we've faced. I understand he's only been under 100 yards once and that was at Saginaw Valley."

Split end Tyrone Coverson and slotback Vincent Heflin are two other "talents" the Panther defense will face.

Coverson has caught 20 passes for 237 yards while Heflin has 15 receptions for 260 yards.

At the throwing end of Central State's wide-open passing game are quarterbacks Reginald Evans and Mike Greenlee.

Evans, who missed last week's game with cracked ribs, has completed 20 of 52 passes for 271 yards, while Greenlee has completed 20 of 38 for 291 yards.

"Regardless of which quarterback they use, Evans or Greenlee, we need to be wary," Dickerson said. "Both are roll-out passers and there isn't a bit of difference in their level of talent."

Leading Eastern into combat against the Central State offense will be the Panther's leading tackler, Randy Melvin.

Melvin, who was also the top tackler on last year's squad, is well on his way to leading the team once again with 48 tackles thus far.

Although the Panthers have been fortunate in the injury department, the defense faced a near-tragedy in Wednesday's practice when middle linebacker Bill Mines suffered a shoulder injury.

But Dickerson said Mines will be ready to go Saturday.

"It gave us quite a scare,"

Dickerson said. "But it turned out to be nothing serious."

While Eastern's defense will have its hands full Saturday, the Panther offense will try to keep its recent success on the upward swing.

The fine play by freshman tailback Kevin Staple and the encouraging performance by fullback Rod Slaughter in last Saturday's win have helped the Panthers accomplish their year-long goal of a balanced attack.

Against Illinois State, Staple rushed for his second-straight 100-yard game since starting and Slaughter enjoyed his first monumental game with an even 100.

"Our intent was to improve the running game and we've done that," Mudra said. "We've rushed for over 400 yards the last two times and that's more than we've passed."

Lennon remains mysterious and inconsistent

Among other things, yesterday, Oct. 9, was John Lennon's 40th birthday. Whether or not that was important to you depends on your point of view.

It was important to me. In 1970 John said, "Rock and roll is the music that inspired me to play music. There is nothing conceptually better than rock and roll." When I was 12, John Lennon became the first great artistic influence in my life.

Lennon's career has been extreme and inconsistent. It has also been remarkable.

Just his work with the Beatles—for my money still the most imaginative and talented rock and roll band ever formed—shows him as one of the great talents of this century.

Paul McCartney wrote most of the Beatles' best 'pop songs, the ones with catchy melodies and sing-along words.

John Lennon wrote most of the Beatles best rock songs—the songs that really matter in the end. Songs like "Ticket To Ride," "Strawberry Fields Forever," "Yer Blues" and "Across The Universe" to name a few.

He is also the best singer of the four Beatles. Listen to his vocal dynamics, range and intensity in songs like "I'm So Tired" and "God."

Often when I think of John I remember a line from the first Beatles' movie, A Hard Day's Night. A woman asks Ringo if he is a mod or a rocker. And Ringo replies, "A mocker."

At that point in their career any of the Fab Four could have said that, but today it only holds true for John. His writing is sometimes joyful, often angry and bitter, but John has always been totally honest with himself and his audience.

by John Stockman

The real proof of that came with John's best solo album, 1970's Plastic Ono Band. On it he casts a chillingly brutal eye on the world around him, his family, his music and himself. The album was an exorcism of sorts and contains music so bare and primitive you can see strips of flesh hanging from its bones.

But in 1974 things began to sour. John's work began to sound hollow and pointless.

He first tried to 'get in touch with himself by going back to his roots, recording a collection of oldies in 1975 entitled Rock 'n' Roll (a nice idea that worked—the album is quite good).

But it didn't satisfy him. Being the artist that he is, he retired altogether. Better to raise prize dairy cows in upstate New York than put out albums of computer melodies for small children like McCartney.

It's been six years since we've heard anything new from John. Sometimes I miss him a little—more often, I miss him a whole lot.

But he's fixed that.

For whatever reasons—artistic urges, turning forty—he has recorded a double album of 22 songs. Titled Double Fantasy, it should be released in November. He will also embark on a world tour soon.

John Lennon: One of the Fab Four turned 40 this week, just as he is about to release a double album entitled Double Fantasy. (Photo: Rock On Encyclopedia)

But even if we never heard from John again, he would still have all my respect and love. The man has already given us so much of himself, I couldn't ask for more. So, even though it's a day late, Happy Birthday John. Happy Birthday to you.

'Candida' is a soap—but with a classic style

by Laura Ziebell

Upon reading the basic plot of the play "Candida," which was presented over the homecoming weekend and will run 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, a spark of the "soap opera syndrome" stirred inside of me.

I'll admit it—I've got the "soap opera syndrome." Look for me around noon and you'll probably find me parked in front of the set watching daytime dramas.

What I wasn't exactly aware of that by watching these daytime dramas, is how jaded I have become.

Take the plot of Candida: Boy meets girl and falls in love, but girl is already married. So boy tells husband that he loves his wife, and in the end girl must make a decision between the two.

Ah...love! I was looking forward to how this one would turn out.

The play, a George Bernard Shaw classic, written in 1894, begins at the end. Candida and her husband, the Rev. James Mavor Morell, have a well-established marriage, a beautiful home and a quiet, proper life.

Eugene Marchbanks, a young poet, which the couple has somewhat taken under their wing, is already in love with Candida as the play begins.

After Marchbanks declares his love for Candida in the first act, she is told by the end of the third act that she must choose between them.

Candida, played confidently by senior Kathy Lampen, portrays a woman of great qualities. She radiates warmth, understanding and wisdom; virtues that make men fall for her even more.

Unfortunately, the play itself begins and moves slowly. Characterizations of Morell, played by junior Kevin Reed, and Mr. Burgess, Candida's father, portrayed by freshman Dwight Parker, are at first hard to discern.

It seems they concentrate too hard on lowering their voices an octave, in order to sound like the 40- and 60-year-old men they are portraying.

Perhaps it is unfair to compare this 86-year-old play to today's fast-paced, action-filled soap opera. How can Candida live up (or live down) to the life that any lady on the soaps had had? Torn apart from the first marriage, the soap star takes a lover who is married to her sister, and later finds out her lover is her long-distant step-brother.

Yet, to be fair, "Candida" has its share of action. Candida and Morell seem to have a happy marriage, but she shows and interest in showing the inexperienced Marchbanks about love. Prossy, Morell's secretary, is in love with Morell, and Morell and Candida's father don't get along.

So where's the difference between "Candida" and a television soap? The difference is one of class.

The trials and troubles that occur on the average soap aren't classy. The only thing you can be sure of in a soap is that everyone has, and always will have, problems.

The "soap opera syndrome" involves the challenge of just how well one can keep up with these actors and their varied and numerous tragedies, whereas, on the other hand, "Candida" takes more of a classy attitude.

Kevin Reed, as Morell, although not as physically big and strong as the dialogue suggests Morell to be, gives an excellent performance.

His strength as a self-assured minister and prominent speaker in the community, is due to the support Candida gives him, and when that becomes threatened, he is at first amused, then angered, until finally, he crumbles.

Freshman Jeff Bennett, as the young poet Marchbanks, shows great sensitivity through his soft musical voice, and his longing for Candida is well presented.

Sophomore Lynn Lupo is entertaining as the prim Miss Proserpine Garnett. The scene when Marchbanks realizes she is in love with Morell is one of the amusing parts of the play.

The set design for "Candida" gives the play a genuine authenticity. Designer C. P. Blanchette added special touches to Morell's study which included the elegant roll-top desk and chair, the stained glass windows, an antique typewriter and volumes of cloth-bound books.

Costumes are a definite plus for the play as the tightly-waisted, ballooned sleeve dresses give the women, especially Candida, an illusion of greatness.

When Candida enters the room, her big hoop skirts and bright dresses fill it with a glow that helps enlarge her character.

Marchbanks looks young and inexperienced with his soft tie and white collars, and Morell looks quite stately, although a bit thin, dressed in his black cape and high collar.

Above all, "Candida" is a story of love and marriage, and no matter how mysterious and complex love is, it should be treated with care and respect.

So, go ahead and see "Candida" this weekend, whether you've got the "syndrome" or not.

Jogging: Inexpensive exercise in 'Run For Your Life'

by Jane Meyer

Jogging has distinctions above all other sports—"It requires no money, it can be done anytime, you don't need a partner, no particular facilities are needed and no skills are needed," Tom Woodall, Eastern men's cross country coach said. "No other activity can make a claim to that."

And while Woodall advocates jogging for both young and old he contends, "it's not a panacea for everyone."

Woodall coordinates the "Run For Your Life" program which offers advice and guidance to those who want to take up jogging.

"We like to get people that are 25 years and older. Many of the younger people don't take as long to condition," Woodall said.

The actual program runs for about 18 to 20 sessions and is open to anyone in the community. The basis of the program is to educate and mobilize the participants' abilities for jogging.

After the 20 sessions are finished, Woodall said it is up to the individual to continue or disband the program.

"If they like what they have seen they can continue on their own hook," he said.

One of the estimated 1,000 people that Woodall has started in the program and continues to run is Eastern mathematics department chairman Alphonso DiPietro.

"It's an addiction," DiPietro said about his jogging for 16 years. "If I don't jog everyday I miss it. It's a great consolation both physically and mentally. It's hard to describe it, but I'm hooked on it."

About as enthusiastic about the activity is Ronald Phillips of computer services. Phillips and some 20 other professors and businessmen jog during the noon hours.

"I live in Toledo and it just works out better if I run during lunch hour. It's hard to find time to run of an evening," Phillips said.

Phillips has been jogging for the past three years and became interested in the sport from Roland Spaniol, who was a former director of computer services at Eastern.

"He talked me into it, but you have to start slow when you start a program," Phillips said.

Before one gets any misconceptions about jogging, John Craft, women's cross country coach, said the activity is beneficial to nearly everyone.

"Jogging helps the cardio-vascular system. It's so easy to do, that's one of the big reasons it caught on so well," Craft said.

For those who want to take up jogging but wish to have companions to do it with the intramural and recreation department is offering an intramural joggers support group this fall.

Interested joggers meet at 4:15 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursday and Sundays at 2 p.m., Chris Perry, health education instructor, said.

"Jogging helps mentally. It gives me an energy that just makes me feel good," Perry said.

During the noon hour, jogging may be replacing the trip to the restaurant for certain faculty members and students.

Left, Ted Ivarie, dean of the School of Business, who runs two miles a day, and Donald Lauda, dean of the School of Technology, take the road on the Chevron track at O'Brien Stadium.

The wood chip trail is a popular spot for junior Bill Huake, top, to run, as an autumn sunbather shades her eyes with a textbook.

Relaxing after the run is the goal of Russ Waltrip, Lantz supervisor, 53, who runs 2 miles a day.

Professor's studies show he's no 'juggins'

CHICAGO—Richard Spears can call you a juggins or mention the word firkytoodle and you'd never know you'd been called a blithering idiot or had been discussing what goes on behind a bedroom door.

Spears, an associate professor of linguistics at Northwestern University, has become a master of street and sexual slang, insults, racial slurs and four-letter words not found in most dictionaries.

All those words—about 17,500 of them—are being compiled by Spears in a dictionary that contains explicit definitions of taboo words.

Spears compilation of words dates back several hundred years and includes words collected from Shakespeare and Chaucer. Back in the 1500's Shakespeare used the word booze, Spears said.

Snakes leave swamps and head for the hills

WOLF LAKE, Ill.—If you're traveling in the LaRue Pine Hills Ecological Area in southwest Illinois during the next several weeks, don't forget about the snake detour.

Twice every year the road has to be closed in the scenic area along the backwaters of the Mississippi River because of poisonous snake crossings.

Joe Newcomb, a Shawnee National Forest ranger, said rangers close the road for three weeks in April to allow the reptiles to slither down from the walls of a 500-foot bluff to the adjacent swamps. The road is closed again in October as the snakes begin their migration for a winter hibernation in the bluffs.

Rangers will close the road Friday and expect a peak of 12 to 25 snakes a day to cross the two-mile stretch of road. Cool weather already has driven some early migrants back to the hills, but Newcomb expects the peak from Oct. 15 to 25.

It takes fast hands to be a good shucker

MAURICETOWN, N.J.—Win Allen is a pearl of an oyster shucker.

Allen, 34, owner of a New Gretna clam bar, shucked two dozen oysters in an impressive two minutes, ten seconds this past weekend to become New Jersey's undisputed champion oyster shucker.

"It takes a lot of experience and a lot of hours to be a good shucker," the champion said.

"And, hey, it helps whe you do it for a living."

Allen defeated two other men and two women—including a fiesty 82-year-old veteran in the first annual "shuck off" here.

'Pachyderm power' solves waste problem

INDIANAPOLIS—What do you do when an elephant goes to the bathroom?

You produce pachyderm power.

At least that's what officials at Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus are hoping.

With the average elephant producing six or seven pounds of manure each hour, circus officials have asked an Indiana-based firm to help convert it to energy.

Harvest Energy Inc. of Indianapolis plans to produce a device it calls an "anerobic digester," which breaks down organic wastes and yields methane. David Powell, president of Harvest Energy said the request "Certainly was the strangest phone call we've received in the last two years."

Yale solves problem of sleeping students

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—In the name of energy conservation, Yale University is trying to roust students out of bed by offering popular courses early in the morning.

"Yale students usually stay up very late at night and sleep in," said college Dean Howard Lamar. "Studies show that changing this habit will cut energy consumption significantly."

This semester, Lamar moved the time of his popular history course, "History of the Trans-Mississippi west"—also known as "Cowboys and Indians"—to 8:30 a.m.

"To my surprise, it seems to be working," Lamar said, noting that he has as many students in his course as he did when he offered it later in the morning.

When his nose knows then it's mint to be

BREMEN, Ind.—In this odoriferous business, the nose know's what's mint to be.

Since 1911, Wm. Lenman Inc., has been refining fragrant mint oils that make toothpaste tastier to brush with and medicines easier to swallow.

Mint oils, such as peppermint and spearmint, are complicated concoctions containing more than 100 known components, some of which Lenman's customers want removed.

Anyone dealing regularly with mint oil can smell the difference between Midwestern oils and those produced in the Far West, Lenman said.
