Then there's still a world out there

by Erin Donohue

If you were planning on forgetting about those overdue bills, midterm tests or the rest of your life because you heard the world might end Wednesday, you may find yourself in trouble on Thursday.

"The Jupiter Effect," a book which was written eight years ago, predicted the world would end March 10, 1982.

For the first time since 1811, all the planets in the solar system will line up on the same side of the sun Wednesday. The book said this occurrence would cause a gravitational force that would split Earth.

The book was rejected as "lousy science" by scientists shortly after its release.

Local experts also reputed the validity of the book's prediction.

Scott Smith, an Eastern physics professor, said, "It is true that all the planets are lined up and closer together than at any other time, but the gravitational pull exerted on the Earth by the planets is trivial compared with the pull the sun has.

"The same situation occurred 171 years ago. At that time many 'doomsday' predictions were made but none of them ever came about," Smith added.

Smith said there is nothing magical about the date March 10, and in fact, the planets will not be at their closest points until April.

"The planets have been slowly bunching together for months now and will continue for a few more months. If anything was going to happen it would have happened already," Smith added.

"I'm not trying to minimize the effects of celestial happenings," Smith said. "There are about 20 celestial events we do fear—this just isn't one of them."

George Loveland, director of the United Methodist Wesley Foundation, said he was also doubtful of the possibility of the world ending Wednesday.

"I find it interesting that the Farmer's Almanac said the world would end on March 10 but still chose to print the rest of the year," he said.

Eastern students were unsure when the end would come but they speculated on what they might do if it were at hand.

"I'd get off the planet," Tom Sheahan, a junior in speech communications, said.

"I'd get on the space shuttle, watch the world blow up and then head for Krypton (Superman's planet of origin)," Sheahan added.

Clay Cooley, a junior in industrial technology, said, "I'd definitely cancel my subscription to TV Guide."

Senior Gayle Ann Reitz said, "I'd go home and see my parents."

A sophomore who wished to remain anonymous said, "I'd just go out and party my brains out."

Marvin approves ACT revisions in admission policy

by Mary Holland

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin has approved revisions to Eastern's admissions policy that would lower ACT score requirements for fall and spring but would stiffen summer entrance requirements.

Marvin notified Council on Academic Affairs chairperson Sharon Bartling by letter Monday that he has accepted a revised version of an admissions proposal submitted last semester by the CAA.

The new admissions policy will go into effect in summer 1983.

In the letter to Bartling, Marvin said he accepted the "bulk" of the CAA's recommendations, but he did not approve a CAA proposal to establish a minimum ACT score of 12 for fall admission.

Currently, students will be admitted to the fall semester regardless of ACT score if they rank in the upper half of their high school class. The CAA had recommended that all students seeking admission to the fall semester have a minimum ACT score of 12 regardless of class rank.

In the letter to Bartling, Marvin said he believes a minimum ACT score would discriminate against minority students.

"Knowing that a disadvantaged educational background may be responsible for below average ACT scores, I am not willing to further reduce our commitment to minority students," Marvin said.

In response to Marvin's comments on the minimum ACT score, Bartling said, "There was no attempt on the CAA's part to discriminate against minorities."

However, she added that she "wasn't going to dispute what Dr. Marvin said."

Since Marvin did not approve the minimum ACT score of 12, students seeking admission in fall 1983 must rank in the upper half of their class or have an ACT score of 19, a score equivalent in Illinois with upper ranking.

Under the newly-approved requirements, students seeking admission to the spring or summer semester would be required to rank in the upper two-thirds of their high school class or have the equivalent Illinois ACT score, which is currently 17 for spring and summer.

The standards now in use for spring admission require a student to be in the upper two-thirds of his class or to have an ACT score of 20.

By making the summer admission standards the same as the spring's, students will longer be admitted "free" to summer school.

Currently, students seeking admission to the summer term can enroll regardless of academic standing. CAA members had expressed concern that unqualified students were being admitted automatically to the following fall and spring terms as a result of their enrollment in summer school.

Under the new admissions policy, the required ACT score would vary each year, depending on what score was found to be the Illinois equivalent to placement in the upper one-half or two-thirds of the class.

Marvin said that by using equivalent ACT scores, students who had ACT scores of 19, 20, and 21, (or 18 and 19 in the spring) who had been denied admission because they were in the lower half of their class would now be admitted.

Some students who are not eligible for admittance under the new admission standards could be accepted under a Prescriptive Curriculum Admission Program (PCAP). Bartling said this was similar to the Summer Opportunity Program proposed by the CAA.

Students accepted under the PCAP would be required to take specified courses, including an all-university requirement and one general education distribution requirement.

Pension payments investigated

CHICAGO—Helen Dolan Wilson, a key figure in a probe of finances in the Chicago Roman Catholic archdiocese, could lose her pension payments from the diocese if irregularities are found, an insurance company spokesman said Tuesday.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported in Sunday's editions that Mrs. Wilson, a lifelong friend of Cardinal John P. Cody, is receiving payments from Aetna Life Insurance Co. on the basis of falsified documents submitted by the archdiocesan chancery office.

Expulsion likely for Harrison

WASHINGTON—A top Democrat sought to persuade the Senate on Tuesday to censure rather than expel Harrison A. Williams Jr., but Republican Leader Howard Baker said there was "almost no support" among the majority GOP to soften the punishment.

Harrison's principle line of defense was that the FBI framed him in the Abscam bribery and conspiracy case for which he was convicted last year.

"I think it will be an expulsion vote," said Howell Heflin of Alabama, the Ethics committee vice chairman. He said he felt senators "have not bought Williams' argument on this."

Parents cry SOS

MINNEAPOLIS—The School Board's decision to close 17 of the city's 79 elementary and secondary schools—forcing some 8,000 more students onto buses—has prompted some angry parents to consider legal action.

Executive Secretary of Save Our Schools Merrill Anderson said "The decision has already been made that we will take legal action."

School officials say the closings are needed because of declining enrollment and to save money.

Jane won't be there

CHICAGO—Don't keep the food warm for Mayor Jane Byrne at Adlai Stevenson's $125-a-plate fundraiser Wednesday night. She won't be there, aides say, and neither will many Cook County Democratic committeemen.

The mayor is vacationing in Palm Springs, Calif., and does not plan to return until Thursday.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP)—With Dan Aykroyd riding to the gravesite on a motorcycle and James Taylor mournfully singing, "That Lonesome Road," comedian John Belushi was buried Tuesday in a gentle snowfall on an island off Cape Cod.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, where Belushi died last Friday, reports surfaced that his death may have been caused by a cocaine overdose.

"We can hear the call of his solitary warning: 'Wise up!'" the Rev. Ilia Katre of Boston's Holy Trinity Church told the 200 friends and relatives who gathered at a church on Martha's Vineyard for a 45-minute requiem service and brief eulogy.

The phrase, "Wise up!" was a trademark of the 33-year-old Belushi, whose manic comedy made him a star of TV's "Saturday Night Live" and then such motion pictures as "Animal House."

Among the mourners who gathered on the overcast, chilly morning at the Congregational church were Belushi's wife, Judith, his parents, comedian Bill Murray and producer Lorne Michaels, who worked with Belushi on the hit NBC late-night comedy show.

Lee Salters, Belushi's New York publicist, said the comedian chose to be buried on the island where he owned a summer home because "it was the one place he really slept well."

"Seriously, he's always really loved it here," said Salter.

The funeral service was performed by two Albanian Orthodox priests with soft organ music and the smell of incense in the small, traditional New England church. Belushi's parents emigrated from Albania.

The Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday that a source in the coroner's office said Belushi died of complications from a cocaine overdose. ABC news also reported that sources said a drug overdose killed him, and said the drug was "probably cocaine."

The Los Angeles coroner's office declined to comment on the reports, saying only that the autopsy and other tests have been inconclusive.

Belushi's nude body was found Friday on a bed in a $200-a-day bungalow he had rented at the Chateau Marmont Hotel in Los Angeles. He was in California to film a comedy, "Noble Rot."

ABC also said Belushi, a heavy smoker, was believed to have been suffering from a respiratory disease.

Reagan asks for budget support

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Reagan pleading for support of his record-deficit, defense oriented budget, disavowed Tuesday any blame for "the displeasures" of recession but privately assured Republican senators that interest rates will drop markedly within months.

The president said he was informed by Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker that "the prime rate will drop by three or four points by summer," according to a congressional source who asked not to be named.

Later, a White House source, who also declined identification, confirmed the account of the president's remarks, but said that when Reagan talked with Volcker the prime rate stood at 17 percent. It already has dropped to 16 percent. Thus, this source, said, the prediction actually is for a further reduction of two or three points.

The president's assurances, in a private session with committee chairmen, represented the most optimistic remark heard from the administration—or Volcker—in months concerning interest rates.

The prime fell by half a percentage point Monday, to 16 percent. It is the rate which banks charge their best customers, and changes generally foreshadow similar fluctuations in other interest rates, including those for consumer loans.

In public remarks at a Capitol Hill luncheon of the 53 Republican senators, Reagan made no concessions to counter their concerns over his refusal to increase taxes or cut the Pentagon budget to reduce an anticipated 1983 budget deficit approaching $100 billion.

Photos show SAM speakers urge experience... arms buildup

by Tim Jacobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration took the unusual step Tuesday of releasing photographs taken by U.S. reconnaissance aircraft depicting what it said was a massive Soviet and Cuban-backed military buildup in Nicaragua.

The buildup outlined by two top intelligence officials was portrayed as far more than Nicaragua requires for its legitimate defense needs and as posing a threat to neighboring countries.

One of the officials, Deputy CIA Director Adm. Bobby Inman, said the disclosures were the first in a series aimed at providing the evidence on which the administration is basing its policies in Central America.

Details about Cuban-Nicaraguan cooperation in funneling arms to rebels in El Salvador will be released later in the week, Inman suggested.

Inman and John Hughes, deputy director of the defense Intelligence Agency, alleged that:

—Since the leftist government took power in 1979, 36 new military garrisons have been established in Nicaragua, all modeled along Soviet and Cuban lines.

—The Soviets have provided to Nicaragua 25 T-55 tanks, 12 152mm howitzers, two Hip helicopters and 12 armored personnel carriers. Deliveries of additional T-55's are expected in the coming months.

—Construction is well under way to lengthen several airstrips at military bases, apparently for the purpose of accommodating MiG-17 or MiG-21 aircraft. Some 50 Nicaraguan pilots are being trained in Bulgaria.

—Nicaraguan regular military forces are being increased to at least 25,000 or 30,000 men, and the militia to a minimum of 150,000. In recent testimony, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. estimated the projected buildup at 50,000 for the regular forces and 250,000 for the militia. No explanation was given for the new, lower estimate.

—Some 2,000 Cuban military advisers have been sent to Nicaragua along with 50 to 70 Soviet military personnel.

Recreation majors should gain experience in as many business areas as possible to have an edge in finding a job after college, Illinois Park and Recreation Executive Director Kay Forest said Tuesday.

Forest's speech was sponsored by the Society for Advancement of Management as part of its Career Year series speakers.

She said recreation students need to develop skills in business management, marketing and public relations, especially if they are seeking work in private industry.

Although jobs in private industry usually pay more, they are not as secure as public tax-supported jobs during the nation's current recession, she added.

Employment areas in the recreation field include public recreation and parks, private and public institutions, park design and resource planning, cultural arts, voluntary service agencies, armed services, and outdoor education and interpretive services, Forest said.

...and emphasize management careers

by Kim Juveland

"With your education you will have a chance to make a meaningful contribution to a company," Paul G. Griebel, vice president of employee and labor relations for Caterpillar Tractor Co, said.

The Society for Advancement of Management sponsored Griebel's speech Monday, which emphasized career opportunities in management.

Griebel advised students to "pick a goal and achieve it and then pick another goal and achieve that one."

The employees at Caterpillar in high-level positions are all college graduates, he said. Some employees are college graduates with degrees in engineering, accounting, marketing and other fields.

Other employees are apprentice graduates with specific degrees,

Griebel said.

Employees for Caterpillar in lower-level positions are also college graduates, he said. "The opportunity to fill jobs depends on how well the candidates are prepared."

Griebel said, "Career stability is an important factor in potential growth." He stressed his belief that an employee should dedicate himself and stay with a company in order to establish himself.

If an employee of a company is not willing to make sacrifices, his opportunities with that company may become limited, he said.

"Relocation, working different shifts, traveling and accepting management responsibility are all factors that can influence a career path," Griebel said.

"Be true to yourself and be dedicated to your work," he said.

Debate team travels to Florida for finals

by Dawn Morville

Eastern's debate squad qualified for the national debate tournament by compiling a 7-1 record at the district tournament last weekend at Butler University in Indianapolis, Ind.

Coach Mike Shelton said senior Karen Shelton and sophomore Monty Donohew established a win-loss record at the tournament which qualified them to participate in the national tournament April 2-5 at Florida State University in Tallahassee.

Fifteen schools competed in the district meet. The district includes schools in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Shelton said 62 debate teams from 11 districts in the country have been selected to attend the national tournament.

Five schools from this district, including Eastern, will be competing in the national tournament.

Shelton said this is the first time in three years that an Eastern debate squad has qualified for the national tournament.

"We will be real competitive. We had one of the better showings from this district," Shelton said. "We have a chance of getting to the elimination round."

The squad defeated a team from Northwestern, which was ranked in the top 15 to 20 debate teams in the country, Shelton said.

A national group of debate coaches does the informal ranking of debate teams in the country.

"This was an impressive victory for us," Shelton said.

The squad also defeated teams from Indiana University, the University of Michigan, Alma College, Capitol University, Butler University and Bowling Green State University.

Karen Shelton was also on the squad that attended the national tournament three years ago, although she was eliminated after the preliminary rounds.

In banning contest

Mayor Hickman's decision all wet

The wet T-shirt contest which was suddenly canceled the day of the event by Charleston Mayor Bob Hickman last week should not have been canceled.

Hickman called off the contest after being informed by Steve Childress, Charleston's director of public affairs/purchasing, that a complaint had been lodged about the contest which was scheduled for Monday night at the Longhorn Saloon.

Childress said Hickman instructed him to have city attorney Tony Sunderman draw up a letter ordering the cancellation of the contest. The letter stated, "Please be advised in previous occasions in other establishments I have prohibited this kind of conduct."

Sunderman said the contest was canceled because of an incident that occurred several years ago when some of the contestants got carried away and started taking off their T-shirts.

That sole incident should not have been the basis for canceling the event at Longhorn's.

The event was to be staged in a private establishment, and thus, should have been left to be supervised by the bar unless some illegal activity was scheduled.

Although the past event may have gotten out of hand, steps could have been taken to avoid any similar behavior. For example, the police could have been called in the event that they were needed.

Attending an event such as the wet T-shirt contest, which could have been offensive to others, should have been left to the discretion of the individual.

Patrons had their choice of whether or not to enter the bar on the night of the contest. They were forewarned through advertisements.

Hickman wrongly listened to a few voices and one isolated incident in basing his decision to cancel an event which people could have had the option to attend.

Even as liquor commissioner, Hickman should not have intervened in the contest by making the choice for everyone.

Your Turn

Avoid U.S. black eye

Editor:

In reading the March 2 letter to the editor on El Salvador, I was shocked to learn that the rights of the Salvadorian people are to be ignored in this conflict. The Declaration of Independence states, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

As Americans believing in these ideals, how can we deny the rights of the Salvadorian people and at the same time criticize and impose sanctions on the Soviets for doing the same thing to the Polish people? I am just as opposed to the Marxist left at President Reagan; but the Administration's policy of turning the world into an armed camp does not solve any world problems, it adds to them. Sending military aid to El Salvador does not answer the land reform question (which is one of the reasons for the conflict)—it compounds the problem.

Latest figures show that human rights in El Salvador are not improving as President Reagan claims. There were 8,000 deaths due to political turmoil in 1980, and 12,000 deaths in 1981. Of the deaths in 1981, the U.S.-backed, right-wing presidency of Jose Napoleon Duarte was responsible for an estimated 9,000. It seems reasonable to expect that if the Reagan government keeps sending military aid to El Salvador, this will force many as yet uncommitted Salvadorians into the left-wing guerrilla front. Would it not be advisable to ask Duarte to clean up his own government before we send him more military aid?

El Salvador is no far-off Viet Nam and is vital to American security interests and prestige. But by backing the right-wing death squads of the Duarte regime at any price, we are giving our country another black eye that it can ill afford.

Education's scary future needs study

Gov. Jim Thompson's budget proposal for the next fiscal year presents a scary future for higher education.

The scariest forecast has come from Illinois Board of Higher Education officials, who've said there won't be any money for faculty salary increases if Thompson's $18 million cut in current funding passes the legislature.

Robert Mandeville, director of the state Bureau of the Budget, explained that higher education was slated for cuts instead of mental health, corrections and public aid, because higher education has "ways of coping with this."

Mandeville cited tuition increases and land sales as examples. However, it's doubtful that these measures will solve the funding problems; they probably will adversely affect student access to a college education.

And many state officials disagree whether the state tax increases for liquor and insurance premiums for domestic companies will meet the demands of primary, secondary and higher education for the next fiscal year.

These officials think Thompson has made such a severely restricted proposal for education to force the legislature to enact the taxes. That way, Thompson wouldn't be the bad guy, lawmakers would.

What the state really needs is substantial increases in the income tax to generate the income all state programs need. Illinois citizens are taxed far less than those in many Midwestern states.

But as state Sen. Virgil Wikoff, R-Champaign, put it, "There's not a chance that an income tax increase would pass in an election year. It wouldn't get five votes."

Without more money, even higher tuition hikes might become reality—which isn't necessarily bad if the hikes are offset by state and federal financial aid. That way students who can afford to pay more tuition will pay their fair share.

Crossviews:

The Daily Illini

But with President Reagan's passion for student pocket-picking, funding for Pell Grants and student loan programs are being squeezed dry. For the past few years, the Illinois State Scholarship Commission has made grant requirements tougher and tougher.

Any tuition increases would probably be used for faculty salaries or general higher education program maintenance—not financial aid programs like the ISSC. Without this aid, student access is definitely limited.

Tuition increases still may not adequately fund salaries, and higher education's reputation is based on its "higher educators." The private sector has increasingly drawn Illinois' talented college instructors and researchers away. Although many of these people keep teaching because of sheer dedication, many can't take much more financial suffering before they bail out.

If they bail out, students undoubtedly will find more reason to complain about the already suffering quality of an undergraduate education. Graduate students probably won't find much consolation either.

Thompson must realize the weight of higher education quality and start acting on programs to maintain it. As Wikoff said, "Politics is the art of compromise." With the November election approaching, it looks like Thompson has ignorantly overlooked the "art."

COTE members approve reports

by Keith Clark

The Council on Teacher Education Tuesday approved methods for students enrolled in various education programs at Eastern to fulfill the requirements of Illinois House Bill 150.

COTE members approved reports outlining how students could fulfill the requirement from the health education, business education and alternate secondary education programs.

HB 150 states that students seeking teacher certification must complete course work in special education.

Students in health education may complete the following to fulfill the HB 150 requirement: Physical Education 2450, Health Education 3200 and Health Education 3400; or Special Education 3500.

The HB 150 requirement may be filled by students in business education by taking Special Education 3500 or Special Education 3700.

COTE members also approved HB 150 requirements for students enrolled in the ASEP program.

In the ASEP program, students combine their course work with practical experience time in the actual public school setting.

ASEP students will be allowed to complete three course modules—numbers 280, 390 and 480—to fulfill the HB 150 demands.

COTE members also discussed a proposal which would allow candidates for Board of Governors degrees to enroll in a teacher education program.

However, no vote was taken on the issue.

The same proposal had been brought before the COTE but was defeated at the Feb. 9 meeting.

Senate views bylaws

The Student Senate Wednesday will examine and discuss a proposed set of Publications Board bylaws, Senate Speaker Karen Kupsche said Tuesday.

Publications Board member Jack Kelly will present the bylaws which were passed by the board at its March 4 meeting.

Although the bylaws will be discussed, action will not be taken on them until the senate's March 17 meeting.

In addition to the senate's approval, the bylaws must also be approved by the Faculty Senate and Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin.

In other business, Kupsche said the senate will give final approval to Susan Grah as a member for the Council on Academic Affairs.

Grah has been attending CAA meetings as a student representative, but has not received final senate approval.

Faculty senate petitions under fire

by Fran Brolley

Faculty Senate members, unable to reach agreement on whether or not to keep the nominating petition process for elections, decided to discuss the issue further at their next meeting before taking action.

Senator Herb Lasky proposed March 2 to eliminate the petitions and require candidates to send a memo to the nominating committee expressing their interest in a position on faculty councils.

If the senate approves the proposal and it is instituted, eligible candidates would no longer submit 20 signatures on a petition, but would send a memo to the chairman of the elections committee during a nominating period extending over several weeks.

Vice Chairman Scott Smith said the petitions caused faculty members to be reluctant about putting their names forward as candidates when they had to go around and acquire the signatures.

Sue Stoner, elections committee chairman, said, "If that is the case they probably don't have the fortitude to be on a committee. I am very much in favor of the petitions. They are a good way of picking up votes."

Smith said while it may be easy for Stoner to get signatures in her department, it is more difficult for members of other departments to get signatures.

Senator Jerry Rooke said to Lasky in reference to the memo proposal, "What you are suggesting is a petition with one name on it. When you eliminate the petition you remove the openness of the process."

Although Lasky called the petition process "clumsy and cumbersome" he suggested as a means of compromise to leave the petition process and add the new memo method as an option to prospective candidates.

"I would think after two years that the petitions would be self liquidating," Lasky said.

In other business, Sharon Bartling, chairperson of the faculty advisory committee, informed the senate of her meeting with Donald Hoffmeister, chairman of the state university retirement system.

Hoffmeister advised the FAC not to get into an "either-or" situation concerning faculty salary raises and retirement benefits, she said.

Bartling said she was told by Hoffmeister that the FAC should not push for either salary increases or for retirement benefits because faculty deserve both.

UB makes bid for rock group

by Paul L. Smith

The University Board Tuesday approved a tentative bid of $23,099 for a concert featuring the Michael Stanley Band, while making an upcoming concert free to the public.

The bid includes $10,000 for the band, $2,000 for the warm-up band Appaloosa, $11,000 for production and miscellaneous expenses, concert coordinator Greg Ruwe said.

Assistant Director of Student Activities Booker Suggs said, "It boils down to supply and demand—by colleges and by metropolitan areas also. It could go either way, but I'm hoping it goes our way this time."

UB Chairman Steven E. Jones told the UB tickets for the band Blushing Brides are now free. The band is scheduled to perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Lantz Gym.

Persons who have bought tickets should bring their tickets with them to the Union box office Wednesday through 3 p.m. Friday for a refund, Jones said. Those who purchased tickets will still have their seats reserved.

"From the feedback we were getting there was a certain amount of uncertainty about the act (Blushing Brides) by students," Suggs said.

More requirements!

Programs developed to benefit students

by Keith Clark

Many Eastern students may not know much about Eastern's two new graduation requirements, but both programs will benefit students in several ways, Eastern officials said recently.

Both the senior seminar program and writing competency examination are required for those students who entered Eastern and will graduate under the 1981-82 catalog.

Eastern's senior seminar program, one of two new graduation requirements, is unusual for a state-supported school of Eastern's size, according to David Whitley, head of the senior seminar advisory committee of the Council on Academic Affairs.

The program, which students take during their senior year, requires them to take a special cross-disciplinary course outside of their major field.

Whitley said he believes the program will offer students a chance to form opinions about issues that they are not normally exposed to.

The program will be effective in improving education at Eastern by "broadening students' horizons," he added.

"It is hoped that all academic segments of Eastern will become involved with the program, in order to offer a wider variety of areas that students can study," Whitley said.

He explained that another benefit of the program is that it should help students gain employment after college because of their wider range of experience, Whitley said.

Before an individual senior seminar program can be implemented, the teacher who wants to direct it must justify to the advisory committee that the program is going to be beneficial and worthwhile to students.

This committee decides on the best programs and makes a schedule of them, Whitley said, and these are the programs offered to students.

The committee that makes decisions on which programs will be used is made up of "veterans." These veterans are faculty members that have already developed accepted programs used in the senior seminar program.

Another new graduation requirement for Eastern students is the writing competency examination.

Charles Switzer, director of summer school, said the program is an example of the commitment to good writing of the university as a whole, instead of just a specific department's desire for better writing from students.

The writing exam will be composed of three parts, he explained.

The first two parts of the exam will be essays, one expository and one persuasive. Students will be given a specific topic about which to write, and their efforts will be judged by two "readers," whose job is to determine if the essays are satisfactory, Switzer said.

If one of the readers thinks the essay is not good enough to merit passing the examination, it is passed on to a third reader who then casts the final vote on whether the essay is good enough to pass, he continued.

He added that the third part of the exam will be an objective test which contains a sentence-combining exercise and a test of word usage.

Switzer said students may pass the exam in one of two ways—they can pass both essays, or pass one essay and the objective portion.

If a student fails the exam, he can retake it.

The exam will be given twice each semester. Students must register two weeks before the test date in order to take it, Switzer said.

'Wonderful, crazy' Simon play to show

by Janet Haberkorn

The Neil Simon play "Chapter Two" will be performed at Eastern Thursday by a national touring company.

Tracey Beaver, University Board performing arts coordinator, said the Alpha-Omega Players from the National Repertory Theater of America will present a single performance of the comedy at 8 p.m. in McAfee south gym.

"This play has lovable characters, punch lines, and a wonderful craziness built on a solid bedrock of believable, three-dimensional people with very real emotions," she said.

Simon once told professional theater critic Edythe McGovern that "Chapter Two" is the most autobiographical and most painful play he has ever written; it is based on the untimely death of his first wife, Joan, and his feelings about making a commitment to his second wife, Marsha Mason.

The play's hero, novelist George Schneider, falls in love with and marries Jennie Malone, a young actress shortly after the death of his first wife.

But Schneider experiences guilt feelings because he thinks that being happy so soon after his wife's death is a betrayal of her memory.

Despite its serious topic, the play remains a comedy, McGovern said, "because of Simon's usual facility with bright, witty dialogue, and of course, its happy ending."

"Chapter Two" opened on Broadway in 1977. It was the 16th play in Simon's list of hits, which includes "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple" and "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Tickets may be purchased at the door and are $2 for students and $5 for the general public. The play is sponsored by the UB performing arts committee.

New advisory council to meet

The newly-formed management/-marketing advisory council will meet Wednesday for the first time, a spokesman for the management/-marketing department said Tuesday.

The 12-member council, composed of area businessmen, was formed recently to advise the department on curriculum and to provide an outsider's view of the department and its graduates, Marilyn Oglesby of the department said.

"The council will also offer recommendations on field trips, internship opportunities and research activities, as well as evaluate the quality and practicality of department course offerings," Oglesby said.

Formed through the work of management/marketing department chairman Jerry Geisler and the faculty, the council will meet about once a year, she added.

Members include representatives of Marathon Oil, Caterpillar, Blaw-Knox, Reasor Corporation, General Electric, Anaconda and Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center.

The council will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. A panel discussion will also be scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday for students to learn about job opportunities and what businesses seek in employee candidates, Oglesby said.

Board allocates funds to county courts

by Peggy McMeen

The Coles County Board Tuesday unanimously approved a resolution allocating $5 of every $50 traffic fine to the county court system.

State's Attorney Nancy Owen explained to the board before the vote was taken that if the resolution was not passed, $5 would go to the arresting agency writing the ticket.

Owen said the $50 fine on a "non-must appear ticket" is distributed as $10 to the circuit clerk's office, $2 to a state fund for police training and the rest to the agency writing the ticket.

Assistant State's Attorney Paul Oglesby Jr. said state law leaves the decision of whether or not to subtract $5 of the agency's money to give to the courts to the individual county boards.

Owen said the money collected can be spent by the county board for "anything connected with the court system."

The resolution was voted down earlier by the board, mainly because of a lack of understanding, Owen said.

Board member Eugene Bauer said he voted against the resolution the first time but recommended approval this time.

"There is an old saying that the only man who doesn't change his mind is either a dead man or a fool. Now, I know I'm not dead," Bauer said.

Board member Roy Meyerholtz said the allocation "seems to me to be a bunch of bookkeeping for whatever money we raise," but added he would approve the resolution because "if we don't, someone else will benefit from it."

In other business, the board approved the employment of Bruce J. Houghtby as soil scientist, for a three-and-a-half year period beginning April 1.

Houghtby was previously soil scientist for Knox County.

Coles County Sheriff Chuch Lister was appointed custodian of the courthouse, effective March 15.

A spokesman for the county clerk's office said Lister was not aware at the time of his election that Illinois State Statutes dictate he must be custodian, with control over janitorial employees and supplies.

In a Health and Safety committee report, Claud Sanders proposed to the board that the records for the Animal Control facility be transferred from the county treasurer's office to the control center.

Sanders said the move would save a part-time secretary's salary and would give animal control employees access to the records on weekends when the courthouse is closed.

He said he did not have statistics on how many employees work at the control center, but he proposed the move on a trial basis "to see if we can handle the work."

County treasurer Jacqueline Record said her office is budgeted for seven full-time employees and reducing one position to part-time status would hamper her office, even with the removal of the records.

Board Chairman Paul Hawkins requested the proposal be studied and a report submitted to the board before a vote taken on the matter.

Indians hold off Vandals for Supersectional victory

by John Humenik

Doug Novsek scored 26 points and Marty Simmons added 25 to lead top-ranked Lawrenceville High School past Vandalia 67-61 in the Charleston Class A Supersectional Tuesday before a capacity crowd at Lantz Gym.

Lawrenceville led by as many as 16 points in the second quarter, but had to rally in the fourth quarter to hold off Vandalia—who cut the margin to four points with 2:30 remaining in the contest.

The victory lifted the Indians' season record to 31-0, which tied the Lawrenceville school mark for consecutive victories set in 1931. The Indians will advance to the state finals in Champaign and face Benton High School Friday in quest of their second Class A state title.

Lawrenceville jumped out to a 20-6 first-quarter lead behind 10 unanswered points with 3:34 remaining, but the Indians later had to hold off Vandalia, who closed the gap to seven points, 31-24, at the half.

"When you get this far there aren't any blow outs, and we just wanted to remain in front," Lawrenceville coach Ron Felling said. "It was surprising that we jumped in front by 16 points, but I wasn't surprised that Vandalia came back."

The Vandals outscored Lawrenceville 8-4 to open the third quarter, and on two occasions with less than five minutes remaining in the stanza failed to go ahead. The Indians led by four points before six straight markers lifted them ahead 53-45 with 41 seconds left in the third stanza.

Lawrenceville had trouble containing Vandalia in the final quarter after Simmons, who drew his fourth foul with 1:12 left in the third quarter, came out of the game with 4:43 left in the contest.

"I didn't want to take Simmons out of the game, but instead I wanted to use up time," Felling said. "There was no doubt in my mind that we needed our two all-staters (Novsek and Simmons) to win."

Tankers aim for top 10 finish at nationals

by Nancy Saegesser

The Eastern women's swimming team will be shooting for a top 10 finish when it opens action in the final AIAW Division II national championships Wednesday in Moscow, Idaho.

"We set a goal earlier in the year of finishing in the top 10," Padovan said before the team headed west Tuesday morning. "I would be disappointed and I think the team would be too if we didn't make the top 10."

The Panthers ended the 1981 season 12th in the nation, missing tenth place by just four points.

"The key to it is if we can score in all our relays," Padovan continued. "We scored on four of the five last year but we didn't swim well on the last day of the meet and that really hurt us. We missed the top 10 by four points and we threw more points than that away on the last day."

The Panther squad has met the qualifying times for all five of the championship relay events again this year and has qualified 10 swimmers for a total of 20 individual events during the four-day meet at the University of Idaho.

All-American Dawn Beard has qualified "for more events than she can swim," Padovan said, in-

Westray training for chance with Expos

by John Humenik

Former Eastern pitcher Ken Westray sat among friends Monday evening in Lantz Fieldhouse like he had many times before. But this time the 22 year-old standout southpaw seemed out of place.

Westray sat alone near a batting cage charting members of this year's Panther baseball team. But Westray, dressed no different from the other players gathered, was more nervous than alone.

And rightfully so, because the lefty is preparing for his second straight season in the Montreal Expos' farm system with nothing more than a gamble and a prayer.

Westray said he feels alone at times because no one can help him make the climb through Montreal's farm system but himself. He said Eastern baseball coach Tom McDevitt has been instrumental over the years in helping him remain confident, but Westray knows he is on his own.

"He can be a big time winner in the major leagues, and you can't buy his contract for less than $50,000," McDevitt said. "He's closer to making the big leagues than any former Eastern player right now, but he has to continue to prove himself all the time."

Westray, who was awarded a class AA contract with the Expo's affiliate in Memphis, Tenn. last month, has the battle of defending his promotion when he joins fellow members of Montreal's farm system next week in West Palm Beach, Fla.

"You have to be nervous when you take any step forward in the farm system," Westray said. "Once you get you're spikes on and run onto the field, everybody wants your job and that will make anyone nervous playing in the minor leagues."

Westray travels south Saturday knowing that he first must defend his position with the Memphis club before he can think of moving up the ladder. Westray said he is nervous because any kind of poor performance during spring training could cause his contract to be canceled.

"I want to just make the Memphis team. Boy do I want to make that team," Westray said. "You have to feel like you can make a team, but you also have to realize you never have it made."

"You can't go down there (spring training) and think that because you are playing good that you'll move up," Westray added. "If I think about how well I did last year, I'll be walking back to Eastern. It can really make you nervous."

Westray, who left Eastern after his junior year in 1980, was drafted in the 22nd round by Montreal and made the Expo's Class A affiliate in Jamestown, New York. He was later promoted to the Memphis club late in the season.

During his stint at Jamestown, Westray ranked fourth among minor league pitchers in strike outs mainly because of his topflight curve ball, but Westray realizes this summer is a whole different ball game.

"Everyone can hit a fast ball, but I got my curve ball over consistently, which helped me out tremendously in moving up," Westray said. "You always have to keep proving yourself and improve."

Westray earned a spot on the Florida State League's All-Star squad last year after compiling a 7-9 record and leading the league in strike outs. Westray also was one of 25 players invited to the Florida Instructional League last fall.

Expanding MCC is next best thing to Illinois league

Following a year without much of a conference to speak of, it appears that Eastern is on its way toward entering a league with more than three or four members.

The current Mid-Continent Conference members, Eastern, Western Illinois, Northern Iowa and Southwest Missouri are in the process of teaming up with Chicago Circle, Valparaiso and Cleveland State to form what would be an extension of the MCC for all sports except football, for both men and women.

If this infacy of a conference materializes, it will be the most positive thing that has happened to Eastern since it entered the Division I ranks.

Afterall, an athletic program is better off in a conference. A league creates rivalries and championships which add to the interest of a program and this possible expansion of the MCC would bring the men and women's programs under the same roof.

But more importantly, the more-than-six team MCC would, if it can last for three years, have an excellent chance of becoming an automatic qualifier to the NCAA's national basketball tournament.

Just the thought of Eastern in the field of 48 is exciting, but the $120,000 for an automatic bid would be a financial boost for the athletic department.

Yet, aside from the advantages which would surface from the new conference, the expansion of the MCC is a bit disappointing.

After building oneself up for a league with SIU-Carbondale, Illinois State and Indiana State, it's a letdown to learn that Valparaiso, Circle and Cleveland State are what we're getting.

Maybe it's wishful thinking on the part of R.C. Johnson to think that Eastern has a chance to be a member of an Illinois-based conference. It's what many Eastern fans look forward to.

A conference with Circle, Valpo and Cleveland State is not only a drop in prestige from the Illinois conference, but it's also a disappointment because football would not be included.

Circle and Cleveland State do not have football programs. The new MCC would possess five football-playing schools and the NCAA requires six grid institutions for the sport to be conference recognized.

The proposed Illinois conference obviously would be a much more credible league. It would not only include football as a conference program, but it would be a much more compact league location-wise and would be a much more intense conference with the established rivalries.

Through all of the negotiations that have taken place, it is encouraging that R.C. Johnson has not scrapped the Illinois league plan. As he said, the Illinois league is still a possibility and it would undoubtedly be a much stronger conference than the MCC plan.

But until the Missouri Valley schools come to their senses, the expanded MCC is the best solution, even if it is a letdown from what we've expected and hoped for.

cluding six individual events and three relays.

Participants in the national meet are limited to a total of seven events including no more than five individual events.

"We'll look at the entries when we get there and make a decision" as to what events Beard will swim, the Panther skipper explained. "But she'll probably swim four individual events and three relays."

Beard can choose seven events from among the 50- and 100-yard butterfly, 50- and 100-yard freestyle, 100-yard individual medley, 50-yard breaststroke, 200-yard freestyle and medley relays and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Another key Panther will be Dawn Buczkowski, a sophomore from Elgin who is competing in her second national final. Buczkowski will swim in four relays as well as the 50- and 100-yard butterfly events.

- Ricki Rousey will also be entered in six events, including three relays and the 50-, 100- and 200-yard backstrokes.

Freshman Karen Atkinson will start the Panthers on their drive for a top 10 finish when the meet gets underway Wednesday afternoon with the one-meter diving competition.

Atkinson will be joined in the three-meter diving by senior Robin Luce.

Lynn Miner is the only other senior qualifier for the Panthers and is entered in the 100- and 200-yard breaststrokes.

Three freshmen round out Eastern's weekend entries. Deb Kroening will compete in the 200-yard butterfly and one relay while Cathy Moe will swim in the 50- and 100-yard freestyles and two relays and Jamie Pistorio will compete in the 200-yard IM and the 200-yard backstroke.

STATE FARM HAS SOME GREAT JOBS IN DATA PROCESSING.

And, they're waiting for someone like you to fill them.

State Farm has one of the largest computer operations in the country so it's one of the best places to start your career in Data Processing.

You don't have to be a data processing major to interview for these jobs. But, you do need a minimum of six credit hours in data processing and related courses.

WE TRAIN YOU. As a new employee you'll receive 16 weeks of training (starting in June) to familiarize you with our systems operation and its related software. After completion of the training program, you'll get involved with the day-to-day work flow of the companies.

State Farm offers good wages and benefits including a cost of living adjustment that automatically adjusts your salary to increases in the consumer price index.

Data processing at State Farm. A good job, with good pay and good fringe benefits. Check it out. It may be the best possible place to start your career.

To get details on career opportunities in data processing, write to Ron Prewitt, Assistant Director, Home Office Personnel Relations, One State Farm Plaza, Bloomington, Illinois 61701 or contact your Campus Placement Director, or visit the State Farm Recruiter on campus March 11, 1982.
