Commission pushes for total divestment

By A.L. LANDERS

A Student Senate commission Wednesday proposed that the EIU Foundation divest all holdings in companies dealing with apartheid South Africa.

In a resolution written by the commission, appointed by Student Body President Floyd Akins last month, the commission recommended to the senate that the EIU Foundation "divest itself of all holdings of stock in companies doing business in South Africa."

The resolution also recommended that "the EIU Foundation reinvest the divested funds in companies having no ties to South Africa."

Senator Jaime Martinez, a commission member who read the resolution to the senate, said the resolution asked for divestiture based on four points:

- The government of South Africa continues to practice the immoral, racist policy of minority rule known as apartheid.
- The EIU Foundation's portfolio with the Harris Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago has over $180,000 in companies with holdings in South Africa.
- This in fact is fiscal complicity with apartheid, and this indirectly suggests that each Eastern student, faculty

Divestiture debated today

Four members of the Eastern debate squad will debate the issue of divestiture of EIU Foundation holdings in South Africa at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Charleston/Mattoon Room.

Allan Hailey and Jay Zuzevich will argue in favor of divestiture while Chris Mounts and Jim Conley will debate against.

The EIU Foundation currently has $229,013 invested in 10 companies which have branches in apartheid South Africa.

Both the Faculty and Student Senates are currently in the process of drafting recommendations on the investments.

The Faculty Senate will address the issue in an informational forum 2 p.m. Friday in Buzzard Auditorium. Rev. Jack Cramer-Heuerman, pastor of Faith United Methodist Church in East Peoria, and Professor Bola Adana, a faculty member of the University of Ilorin, Nigeria, will participate.

Divestment the topic of forum featuring minister, professor

By LISA GREEN
Staff editor

Divestment and economic sanctions would send a message to the South African government that the United States does not support its racist regime, a visiting professor and a minister said.

"I think they're two of the non-violent options still left to perhaps bring about a legitimate change," said the Rev. Jack Cramer-Heuerman, minister of Faith United Methodist Church in East Peoria.

Cramer-Heuerman and Bola Adana, a visiting professor from the University of Ilorin in Nigeria, will participate in an informational Faculty Senate forum on South Africa at 2 p.m. Friday in Buzzard Auditorium.

The senate will meet after the forum and draft a referendum "of some kind to pass around," senate member Terry Perkins said.

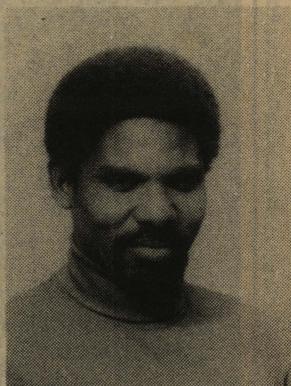

The EIU Foundation board in August renewed its investment contract—which includes financial interests in apartheid South Africa—with the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

Cramer-Heuerman is a member of the Coalition for Illinois Divestment from South Africa. He is also co-author of "Investment Guidelines for Social Responsibility," a set of policies for investments by United Methodist Institutions.

Adana, who received his master's degree in guidance and counseling from Eastern, is on a one-year sabbatical from the University of Ilorin. He has a doctorate from the University of Virginia and is a specialist in inter-cultural problems in counseling.

"If one university divests, other universities may follow suit, but we don't know how many other universities are contemplating on divesting right now," Adana said Wednesday.

If there is no movement toward divestment, it appears to the South African government that the United States is "indifferent to what's going on," Adana said.

Tough economic sanctions could also help tear down South Africa's apartheid system, they believe. But whatever the movement, it has to be coordinated.

"If universities divest, at least it will be a sign that they do not support apartheid. That is legal discrimination," Adana said. "It requires a multi-dimensional effort to combat it."

Cramer-Heuerman said the sanctions President Ronald Reagan announced in September are only symbolic, and do not put any restraints on the South African economy.

Reagan's order would prohibit U.S. banks from lending money to the South African government unless the funds are used to help the disenfranchised black majority as well as whites, ban computer exports to South African military and law enforcement agencies and block the sale of nuclear technology to South Africa unless it is necessary for humanitarian reasons, protecting health and safety.

"Reagan's analysis tends to lean toward places that could fall under communist influence," he said, adding that the stabilization of the government is more important in Reagan's eyes, even if some basic rights get ignored along the way.

Pirates give up; slay American

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—Palestinian hijackers of an Italian cruise ship gave up Wednesday, ending two days of terror for more than 500 hostages, but Italian officials said the pirates killed a disabled American and threw him overboard.

Prime Minister Bettino Craxi identified the dead passenger as Leon Klinghoffer, 69, of New York City, who was traveling with his wife Marilyn, 58.

Klinghoffer, a Jew, suffered a stroke several years ago that left him paralyzed on the right side. He was in a wheelchair and could only walk short distances with a cane.

Unfortunately I have to give you mournful news," Craxi said at a news conference in Rome. "In the course of this aggression, an American citizen was killed. The captain of the ship told me this a few moments ago, when I spoke with him. He was apparently killed and thrown into the sea."

The Achille Lauro's captain had said earlier that no one was injured. About a dozen Americans were aboard, and earlier unconfirmed reports had said two were killed.

The Foreign Ministry said the terrorists surrendered to representatives of the PLO. They were taken to the Port Said Naval Base.

"The hijackers, who number four, will leave Egypt," Foreign Minister Esmsat Abdel-Meguid said. "The ship will go to Port Said harbor. There were no demands." He did not say where the hijackers would go from Egypt.

Company spokesman said the cruise would continue, with the next stop in Ashdod, Israel. Passengers who had previously left the ship will be allowed to rejoin it if they wished. Some had already been flown from Egypt to Rome.

Congress aids anti-Soviet rebels

WASHINGTON—Congress has secretly approved about $250 million in further covert military aid to rebels fighting the Soviet-backed regime in Afghanistan, Senate sources said Wednesday.

One source, who with others asked with others not to be identified by name, said the money will be spent to buy large quantities of ammunition, small arms, grenade launchers, and anti-helicopter air defense weapons.

"It will enable them to replenish their stocks," he said. "It's a one-time replenishment. There is nothing being introduced that is brand new or especially esoteric. It's the kind of thing easily available anywhere in the world."

He said he could not confirm reports that the weapons may include the British-made Blowpipe portable missile system, used by Britain during the 1982 Falklands War.

Nursing home receives threats

CLINTON—Police searched the Crest View Nursing Home and interviewed employees Wednesday after a new series of bomb threats and a second fire.

In a prepared statement, police said Wednesday that three workers received threatening phone calls at their homes Tuesday night and one discovered a fire on her porch.

The new incidents followed weekend bomb threats and a broom-closet fire that forced evacuation of 95 nursing-home residents for several hours on Monday.

The police statement said the caller did not specify a time or date but told the employees the earlier fire was just a warning and the next time it would be a bomb and "all were going to die."

Senate votes to deficit reduction while credit ceiling vote nearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today passed a balanced budget plan and then rushed to alleviate the government's credit crunch with a short-term increase in the national debt, while the Treasury took steps to make sure government checks don't bounce for at least another week.

The lawmakers, by a vote of 75 to 24, approved the GOP-backed proposal to balance federal budgets by 1991. The action, delayed since last week by Democrat-led opposition, came after the Senate brushed aside a Democrat-sponsored alternative deficit-reduction program.

The votes set the stage for expected passage later today of a short-term increase in the government's credit limit.

Encouraged by the developments, the Treasury Department announced it would go ahead with an emergency auction to borrow $5 billion to keep the government afloat.

The auction will provide the government with just enough money to get by for the next few days. Congress was expected to complete action by day's end on the temporary increase in the debt limit needed to sanction Monday's auction but remained ensnared in an accompanying measure to require a balanced federal budget in six years.

Democratic leaders, fighting a

Republican-backed budget-balancing plan resigned themselves to defeat in the Senate. But House Democrats hardened their opposition to the plan that backers want attached to the credit ceiling authorization. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called the plan "a fraud."

Days of negotiations between Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., climaxed when a marathon Senate session ended after 11 a.m. today with a pact allowing passage this afternoon of an amendment designed to eliminate the nation's deficit, currently about $200 billion a year, by fiscal 1991.

The measure was proposed by Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., as an amendment to a bill raising the national debt to $2.07 trillion, enough to last through the fiscal year. Two test votes on Sunday indicated the amendment would pass.

Approval of the amendment, at the end of a six-day deadlock, cleared the way for action on a separate, short-term hike in the national debt. The interim hike, which must also be approved by the House, would allow Congress to leave for its Columbus Day recess this weekend without threat of the government defaulting on its obligations.

Hypnotist Tom Deluca entertains 1,000 as part of Homecoming week

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Hypnotist Tom Deluca told volunteers from a standing room audience that when each awoke from a hypnotic state the males would think their zippers were wide open and the females would believe their bra straps had broken.

The stunt worked. If audience laughter was a barometer, it wasn't the only joke of Deluca's that worked during his Wednesday evening performance in front of about 1,000 people at the Grand Ballroom.

The first half of his show consisted of a comedy routine which included a slide show containing road signs with sexual innuendos.

"I've read a lot of National Lampoon and given a lot of thought to making this slide show," Deluca said.

Deluca ended the slide show by asking the audience what the particular prank had to do with a hypnotist. He answered himself by saying, "What do your majors have to do with the real world?"

Deluca later asked for three volunteers with which to play his self-acclaimed "psychic games." Deluca began by asking the audience to envision a car and associate it with a color.

The hypnotist then wrote down a car and color and chose a person from the audience, who then revealed what Deluca had transcribed.

Audience participation was also a major part of the second half of his show, which may have been highlighted by his hypnotism of 16 audience members.

All volunteers, the 16 appeared to be compelled at Deluca's hypnotic urging to do various movements, like pretending they were fishing and bursting into hysterical laughter.

During the laughter, several of the volunteers were held in their seats by people assisting Deluca.

Another highlight of the hypnotist's act was the ending of Deluca's performance when volunteers danced on-stage to "The Bird," a popular dance tune by Morris Day and The Time.

At one point in the show the volunteers were reverted back to children at the age of 5.

Deluca led the volunteers in singing famous show themes from the past including the Brady Bunch and Jetsons.

This was also a highlight of the show.

Deluca, who has been traveling the college circuit for six years, says he will continue to tour colleges but at a slower pace.

"Eastern's audience was bigger this year which made the reaction better," Deluca said.

Comic Smirnoff to present show

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Yakov Smirnoff brings his comedy to Eastern for Homecoming week as part of the bonfire celebration with a performance at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Lawson/Taylor tennis courts.

Smirnoff's comedy routine will last for one hour. "Each routine I do is different," Smirnoff said. "It is more individualized. I talk to the audience and allow them to ask questions.

"This keeps me on my toes," he said. Smirnoff, a Russian comedian, is well known for his appearances in Lite beer commercials and the line, "In America, you can always find a party. In Russia, the Party always finds you."

"I really do like Miller Lite beer," Smirnoff said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

Smirnoff, who was born in Russia, said he was attracted to the United States eight years ago after being in frequent contact with Americans on a cruise ship where he did his comedy routine.

The Americans' "aura of freedom" was what proved most attractive about the United States, he said.

He began his career in the Catskills, a mountain range in the Appalachians, bartending and practicing comedy on his customers.

Smirnoff then moved on to New York with a six-minute comedy routine which he performed in various clubs such as Catch A Rising Star, said Mike Klempic, University Board graphics coordinator.

Six years after his arrival in the United States, Smirnoff was in Los Angeles doing his routine at The Comedy Store when Director Paul Mazursky came in to see him, Klempic said.

"I didn't know who he was and he didn't say anything to me after the routine, so I thought he must have been there to see someone else," Smirnoff said.

Three months later, Mazursky called Smirnoff and offered him a part in the movie "Moscow on the Hudson," starring Robin Williams.

"I wasn't given a larger part because I looked too much like Robin," Smirnoff said.

Since then, Smirnoff has been in other well-known (See SMIRNOFF, page 5)

Band's move lessens spirit of football fans

Members of the Marching Blue should return to their old seats at O'Brien Stadium.

With the current seating arrangement in the home stands, parents, students and alumni cannot even hear the band, let alone see it.

Last year, the band sat in the end zone bleachers and participated in the game. But this year, fans are never really sure if the band is there until members return to the field for their half-time performance. Now, the average fan is left feeling they've seen only part of the show.

In the past, the band has also pepped up many dull football game moments with antics and playing when the action on the field was slow—but from where the fans could see them.

Some band members and first year band director Thomas Brawner said they feel more a part of the crowd and into the spirit of the game by being in the stands.

Their opinion deserves consideration, but several students have reacted negatively to their recent seating arrangements, and with good cause.

While the move may have been based on good intentions, the band is disregarding one of its primary functions at a football game: entertainment.

Many band members are getting academic credit for the marching band and entertaining the crowd. Right now, they're not living up to their half of the bargain.

The band in the end zone can serve as a cheering leader, a crowd-rouser, a spirit pick-up.

People go to the games to watch the team, the cheerleaders and the band.

What if the cheerleaders would suddenly decide to pack it up and head for the stands? They wouldn't be doing their job either.

This weekend, as alumni come back for the Homecoming game, we hope they won't have to wonder where the band is.

And they, like all other Eastern football fans, would appreciate hearing and seeing the band

Shades of our Illinois past. The article written following the Student Senate sponsored debate on divestment (or is it disinvestment?) in South Africa brought to mind a stand taken by one of Illinois' favorite political leaders.

According to John Fitzgerald Kennedy's book on "Profiles of Courage," the then Illinois representative to the national congress stood before the house and tried to question, as a first term congressman, where and just when the reported Mexican attack on U.S. citizens had taken place in the United States. In the ensuing debate he and his position was ridiculed and put down for good. We went to "President Polk's war," and the people of Illinois voted that questioner out of office at the first opportunity. As it turns out, there had been no such attack.

At a university, in a climate that should be intellectual from its inception, it would be nice to see an honest debate on the issues involved. Members of the Eastern Illinois University debate team will "debate" the issues involved with South Africa and the divestment Thursday. Regardless of their preconceived notions or decisions they were assigned to debate one side, or the other of this complex issue. Those on preconceived sides will be weaker than those who must learn to support the opposite side. The debate should be stimulating.

If it is properly done, it could well change the stand of too many who have taken a preconceived stand on an unpopular issue. The balance of the forum

Thursday and (a Faculty Senate sponsored forum) Friday should give Eastern students a chance to make an intelligent choice—one which should be thought out well enough to assure that they do not come out like an ostrich with his head stuck in the sand, or the coward who puts someone else in the arena to do his fighting for him and then claims absolution for the carnage that results.

Like Abraham Lincoln, the Illinois representative, the students of Eastern have a chance to take a stand to help correct the situation created by the British decisions in South Africa that let apartheid take root and fester. Divestment might be the coward's way or it might be the only way!

Lewis Coon
Faculty Senate member

Might be nice to have spies 'honor' us

Attending a college right down the road from the University of Illinois is pretty humbling.

The U of I is a Big 10 school and Eastern is not. The U of I has a supercomputer and Eastern doesn't. The U of I has its own hospital, its own airport and a football stadium that makes O'Brien look like a miniature golf course.

And it was recently discovered that U of I has something else Eastern doesn't have: Commie spies.

That's right. The Fighting Illini have been penetrated by pinkos. A recently released Pentagon study says U of I and 61 other universities nationwide have been inundated by Soviet spies. According to the report, the commies have collected an estimated 100,000 scientific and technological documents.

Illinois universities under communist siege include not only the U of I, but also Northwestern, the University of Chicago and the Illinois Institute of Technology. Conspicuously, Eastern was not on the list.

So why didn't Eastern get any spies? Granted, the U of I and all those other places are a lot bigger and more important than Eastern in terms of technological research.

But I still find myself a little angry at this latest personal insult from the communists. I mean, they were at the U of I anyway, right? They couldn't even send one spy down here? We're right down the road, for God's sake.

Why am I mad? Well, mainly because having a foreign spy in one's midst is, in its own way, flattering.

It's one of those dubious honors that hurts you while showing everyone how important you are, like an author having a controversial book banned, or—our editor in chief's number-one fantasy—a reporter getting thrown in jail for refusing to reveal a source.

Don't you see the implication? The U of I is considered important enough for the Kremlin to send its own little James Bonds scurrying around Champaign, but any proposal to send a Soviet spy to Eastern was apparently answered with a flat "nyet."

Off the record:

Kevin McDermott

And the worst part is that U of I students don't appreciate the honor the Soviet Union has bestowed upon them. In fact, a vast majority of them don't even know about it.

I know this because I conducted my own thorough scientific telephone poll of U of I students, which learned to do in my Public Opinion and Propaganda Class last Thursday.

I started out with 1,000 phone numbers from the U of I, chosen at random with my eyes closed. I called the first 17, and none of them were home.

I was sick of dialing all those numbers, so I just called a U of I friend of mine, Linda, who is a Young Republican. I also called an engineering major there named Paul, who is a friend of our advertising manager.

From this scientific poll, I was able to reach the conclusion that no one at the U of I is aware there are commies on campus. I estimate a 1 percent margin for error in my results.

Linda, the Republican, basically summed up the conservative view of the issue from U of I.

"Spies?" she said.

Yeah, Soviet spies. Y'know, Russians.

"Are you serious?"

Deadly serious.

"Oh my God. That's unreal."

Have you seen any of them?

"No. I guess it's probable, though. This is a school where people really try to get involved, politically."

Linda went on to say that, although she once took a Soviet government class, she is not a communist.

As for Paul, the U of I engineering major; I called him twice and let the phone ring for several minutes each time, but he never answered.

A mere coincidence? I think not.

Eastern as a whole.

Senate members tabled the motion on a 21-5-1 vote. The resolution is scheduled for a vote at next Wednesday's meeting.

"I sort of wish that, by now, senators would be able to vote tonight," Martinez said, "although I believe it's a fair option since a lot of senators haven't had a chance to talk to the students (about the proposal)."

Akins said, "I thought (tabling the proposal) was a smart move."

"It's good the senators should get out and get students' opinions before they vote," Akins said, "although there has already been a lot of controversy."

Martinez noted that when the commission drew up the proposal Tuesday night, they believed the total investments of the EIU Foundation in South African companies to be $180,000.

However, the commission found out, through a story in Wednesday's Daily Eastern News, that the amount of the South African investments is actually $229,013.

Martinez said the recommendation was already drawn up when the members became aware of the discrepancy, and added, "we plan to revise that."

Martinez refused to comment as to whether or not the commission had any trouble reaching a mutually agreeable resolution.

Commission member Jim Mueller said, "I hope a peaceful solution can be achieved over there (South Africa). Other than that, I have no comment."

too much of a burden on South African workers is a fallacy, according to the minister.

"Generally I think that argument's made by people who haven't really bothered to ask the workers," he said. "And you're basically talking about people who don't have social or political rights and they're willing to make some sacrifices."

"Certainly history has shown that some of those other options have failed," he said, referring to previous non-violent demonstrations by black leaders and attempts to reorganize the constitution which excludes blacks from citizenship and full voting rights.

Adana said economic sanctions by the U.S. government would hurt non-black South Africans more than the few black workers who are already paid discriminatory wages.

Golfers take 3rd in AMCU; Fremgen leads in honors

By MIKE MADIGAN
Staff writer

LEMONT—Eastern's golf team, behind Joe Fremgen's all-conference performance, placed third at the Association of Mid-Continent Universities tournament Tuesday at Cog Hill Country Club.

Fremgen paced the Panthers throughout the two-day, 54-hole tournament. Fremgen finished fourth overall with a 240 composite, only four strokes back of tournament medalist Dave Melms of Northern Iowa.

Eastern finished with a team score of 1015, 44 strokes behind second place Western Illinois, a team Eastern already had defeated twice this season, and 49 strokes behind conference winner Northern Iowa's 966 total.

The Panthers were only 12 strokes off the pace after the first 36 holes Monday, but an early injury (pulled back muscle) to senior Clay Snyder, along with unfavorable weather conditions proved to be too much to overcome.

"It was rainy and windy but everyone had to shoot under the conditions so I don't have any excuses," coach Paul Lueken said. "Cog Hill is rated in the top 50 by Golf Digest, and I think that's why the scores were so high.

"The sand traps were really fluffy," Lueken added. "It was like hitting out of baby powder."

Besides Fremgen's 240, other Eastern scores were Dave Ransom at 250, Todd Lindsey 257, Mike Wollam with 285 and Clay Snyder who withdrew with a 169 after 36 holes after his back injury, which occurred Tuesday on the fourth hole.

Eastern will compete at Valparaiso on Friday which will be held at the Valparaiso Country Club located in Valparaiso, Ind.

blemish on Tudor's record after a 1-7 start. Valenzuela was rebounding from a poor finish that saw him go 1-2 with five no-decisions in his final eight starts. His last win of the regular season came on Sept. 11 against Atlanta.

Valenzuela gave up seven hits, walked two and struck out six. Tom Niedenfuer, who had 19 saves during the season, worked the final 2 2/3 for the save in this game. Tudor gave up seven hits in 5 2/3 innings, walking one and striking out three.

With one out in the Dodger fourth, Madlock hit a ground ball to St. Louis third baseman Terry Pendleton. The ball hit Pendleton in the stomach and bounced away, and before Pendleton could grab it again, Madlock was safe at first.

Madlock, who had only 10 stolen bases during the regular season, then stole second, and he scored when Guerrero lofted a 1-2 delivery from Tudor into shallow right field.

Mike Marshall fouled out to left field and Guerrero, still hampered by a sore left wrist, stole second.

Spikers tip ICC in exhibition

Ralston worried about slow Panther start

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Wednesday's exhibition match against Illinois Central College at Lantz Gym proved to be the ideal training ground the Panthers wanted.

"We did everything that we wanted to tonight," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said. "We had everybody play the positions we wanted them to."

Although the game will not count on Eastern's record, the Panthers topped ICC in four games.

Eastern triumphed 15-2, 9-15, 15-6 and 15-13.

After playing the first game with the regular starters, Ralston mixed her bench into the lineup to look at different combinations for the upcoming Gateway Conference season.

Despite winning the exhibition, Ralston was concerned with the Panthers' play.

"We're still not pushing enough," Ralston said. "We have to get out of the blocks faster or it's going to cost us one of these days. The kids have got to realize that you can't do that."

Ralston was happy with the improved play of freshman Gianna Galanti, who had seven kills and 10 digs on the night.

"Giana did a nice job tonight," Ralston said. "She's still more comfortable playing outside rather than the middle."

"I usually like to start her on the outside and then move her to the middle so that she's more comfortable, but when Lori (Berger) went down tonight, we had to put her in the middle right away."

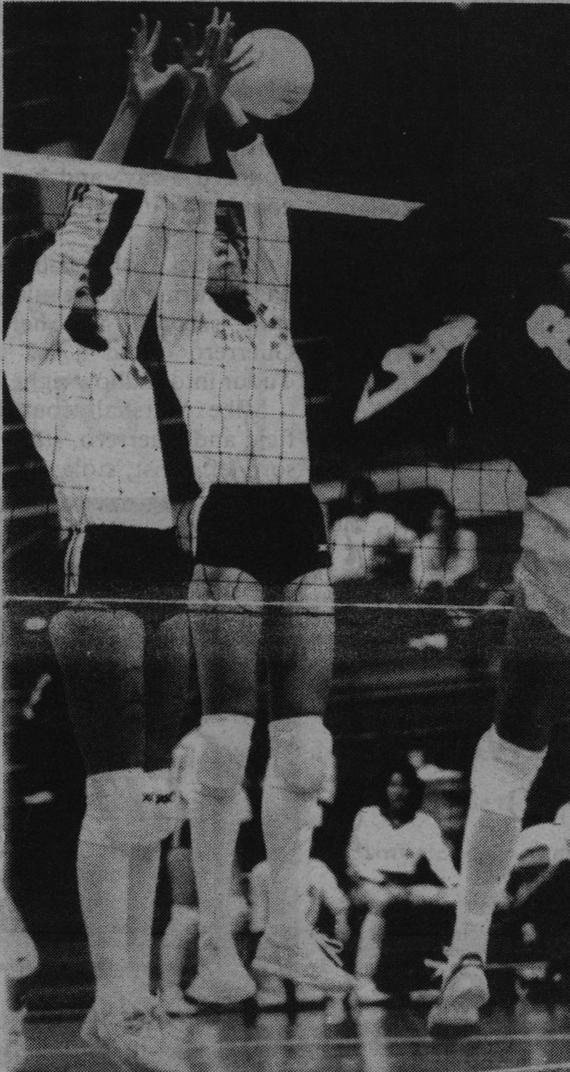

Berger, who played at ICC for two years, suffered a sprained ankle in the first game. Ralston will keep Berger off the ankle until at least Monday, and may be forced to sit her out of next Wednesday's Butler game.

Galanti said she feels more comfortable starting, rather than coming off the bench.

"It's easier to get into the game because everyone starts at one level and you're more with them," Galanti said.

Junior Maura LeFevour led Eastern with 11 kills, while outside hitters Diane Eiserman and Judy Planos each had nine.

"I've got to be more consistent in my hitting," Eiserman said. "I always want to hit the ball too hard, and that's sometimes a problem."

Sophomore setter Jeanne Pacione added five kills, six digs and 12 assists. Freshman LeAnn Thomas, who set games two and four, collected 12 assists.

Eastern, 12-8, returns to action Wednesday by hosting Butler at 7:30 p.m. in Lantz Gym.

L.A. stalls Cards' running assault, win by three...

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles stole an offensive ploy from St. Louis Wednesday night, and Fernando Valenzuela pitched the Dodgers to a 4-1 victory over John Tudor and the Cardinals in the first game of the 1985 National League playoffs.

Bill Madlock, acquired by the Dodgers five weeks ago in a trade with Pittsburgh, was the offensive catalyst in both innings in which the Dodgers scored.

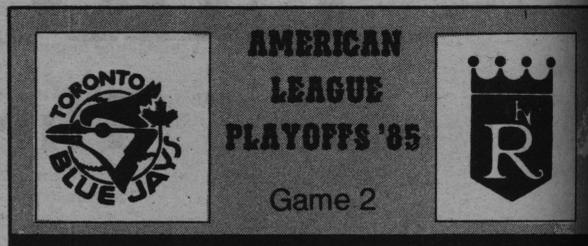

Valenzuela worked 6 1/3 innings for his first victory in nearly a month, and the Dodgers scored their runs with the help of an error, a stolen base and a two-out squeeze bunt, offensive tactics more commonly thought of as belonging to the Cardinals.

The opportunistic Cardinals, meanwhile, wasted one opportunity after another against Valenzuela.

The best-of-seven series, which opened before a Dodger Stadium crowd of 55,270, continues Thursday night with a match of right-handers—Orel Hershiser, 19-3, of the Dodgers against Joaquin Andujar, 21-12.

The Dodgers scored one run in the fourth on an error, a stolen base and a bloop single by Pedro Guerrero, then scored three more in the sixth and chased Tudor with the help of a bunt. Tudor, who had won 20 of his last 21 decisions, had taken a three-hitter into the Dodger's big inning.

...Blue Jays go up 2-0

TORONTO (AP)—Al Oliver slapped a single to left field with two outs in the 10th inning, driving home Lloyd Moseby from second base and capping a two-run rally off Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry that gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 6-5 victory Wednesday and a commanding two-game lead in American League playoffs.

Moseby had been the center of controversy in the top of the 10th, when Kansas City scored to take a 5-4 lead.

But the quick turnaround in the Blue Jays' fortunes sent the best-of-seven series to Kansas City for Game 3 Friday night with the Royals in an unenviable position.

The Royals started as if they would easily snap their nine-game postseason losing streak, taking an early 3-0 lead. But this game was full of twists and 10th inning was the most dramatic of all.

Willie Wilson scored from second base when center fielder Moseby trapped Frank White's single with two outs in the top of the inning, giving Kansas City the lead for the second time.

White hit a hard liner up the middle. Moseby came charging in, reached down and scooped up the ball, raising his glove as if he had made the catch.

Second base umpire Ted Hendry ran toward Moseby but did not make an immediate call. Hendry looked toward crew chief Dave Phillips, who was on the right-field line, for help, and Phillips waved that Moseby had trapped the ball.

Booters must defeat No. 2 Huskies

By DOBIE HOLLAND
Staff writer

A crucial Midwest Regional soccer matchup between the sixth-ranked Panthers and second-ranked Houston Baptist will take place Thursday at 3 p.m. on Lakeside Field.

Coach Cizo Mosnia said the game is definitely the most critical of the season for both teams as far as post season aspirations are concerned.

The 9-1 Huskies lost a regional game to Air Force 4-1, while Eastern's regional defeat came from Illinois State, 3-1 at Normal.

But Houston has beaten formidable region opponent North Texas State, a team the Panthers are scheduled to face in November. Eastern will have to beat Houston to keep the NCAA's attention when playoff bids are announced, Mosnia said.

"I don't think we can afford to lose another game in our region," Mosnia said. "That's why this game is so important. If we want to move up (in the Midwest standings), we have to win. We will probably move into second position and Houston would move down a couple of spots."

The up-and-down Panthers have shown streaks of brilliance but have yet to put together an overall consistent game and allow Mosnia to relax on the bench for 90 minutes.

On the other hand, Houston is playing extremely well although it recently has had a tendency of playing overaggressively, resulting in red cards.

The Huskies, Mosnia said, have two players (Fernando Bonilla and Marc Losada) on the bench for Thursday's game because of red card penalties. In the past two games, a total of five Houston players have been red carded, so the game should be physical, he added.

Houston has a roster that reads like a hit list for Miami Vice, with seven Columbians, two Puerto Ricans and one Venezuelan on the team.

"They're very physical players and they don't give up. They have come from behind a few times this season," Mosnia said.

But No. 2 scorer Bonilla (eight goals) is one of the red carded players who will sit out this game. The top goal scorer George Cruz (14) and No. 3 scorer Ashkan Nowamooz (six) will be ready to play.

In contrast, the booters have not come from behind this season and have been very unstable, especially defensively, Mosnia added.

This would be an ideal time of the season for the Panthers to reach their pinnacle while facing some major competition, Mosnia said.

If Eastern is to peak, it will have to overcome some nagging injuries in the process.

Captains Neil Swindells and Rick Lansing missed practice on Tuesday. Lansing has recurring problems with his knee and Swindells is suffering cold sweats diagnosed as the flu, Mosnia said.

Despite the ailments, both players showed for practice on Wednesday, Mosnia added.
