Mandela release sparks hope

CATHY PODWOJSKI
 Associate news editor

Almost three decades after Nelson Mandela was jailed for his part in activities against South Africa's apartheid government, he has emerged to face many of the same volatile problems which have long threatened his country. The Sunday release of the leader of the African National Congress prompted some violent reaction and fear, but also a sense of hope for reforms, at least among some Eastern faculty members and students. "It was exciting, if for no other reason than for years and years we've heard about this man behind bars and seen this picture," said Johnetta Jones, an assistant professor of anthropology and sociology. Jones said the man who was released was much more "grayed and peppered" than the photos reveal, but the spirit remains intact. Mandela was imprisoned in 1962 for his role in a sabotage campaign launched by the Congress against South Africa's apartheid government. Even while in prison, Mandela remained at least the figure head of the African National Congress, probably the oldest organization working to end apartheid, said John Haley, an associate professor of history. Haley said Mandela would most likely remain the leader of the group, and at least at his immediate release the crowds proclaimed him as such, but oth-

Sowetans plan massive rally

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Nelson Mandela said Monday he seeks a South Africa that is fair to both whites and blacks, and he insisted that violence against apartheid is justified. The 71-year-old black leader, enjoying his first full day of freedom after 27 years in prison, defended the policies of his African National Congress but said talks with the government could be held soon. In his nearby hometown of Soweto, schools were deserted as thousands of students marched and danced in the streets, anticipating his return home. Believing Mandela was due back for an afternoon rally, tens of thousands of Sowetans crammed into a soccer stadium, and dozens were injured in the crush. The activists making arrangements for Mandela decided he should not re-enter Soweto until Tuesday, when a massive welcoming rally was planned.

ers have been fighting the battle while Mandela has been jailed. As leader or follower, though, the problems Mandela must now tackle are huge. "As long as you have a minority of a country controlling all the wealth or power, with that imbalance of power, you've got a problem on your hands," Jones said.

Mandela may get the chance to publicize the problems of South Africa to the people of the United States in the near future, as President George Bush invited him to the White House upon his release.

Bush may play a more pivotal role than many other international leaders now that Mandela has been released because of the economic sanctions which were levied against South Africa by the United States.

Eastern's chapter of Amnesty International is taking the questioned need for the economic sanctions one step further, and will begin a letter-writing campaign to Bush to keep the sanctions in place, said chapter President Sara Crerar.

Amnesty International also plans to write South African President F.W. de Klerk to thank him for freeing Mandela, Crerar said.

While Mandela's release answers some questions, Jones said an obvious question is whether Mandela remain alive.

"I think his life and De Klerk's both (are in danger)," Haley said. "Radical factions among blacks and whites would not mind if either was killed."

But for now, the hope remains that the problems can be resolved soon. "Maybe the situation in South Africa can be settled peacefully without a bloodbath," Jones added.

Disappointed

Thompson's education plan draws fire from educators

By DAVID LINDQUIST
 News editor

Eastern President Stan Rives said he was "disappointed" with Gov. James Thompson's educational budget proposal, which on Friday fell about $309 million short of what Illinois educators had requested.

Thompson's proposal, which has been submitted for General Assembly approval, calls for a $127.8 million or 3 percent increase in state spending for schools compared to last year's budget.

"The proposed 3 percent increase fails to keep pace even with inflation (currently about 4.5 percent), let alone make some progress," Rives said.

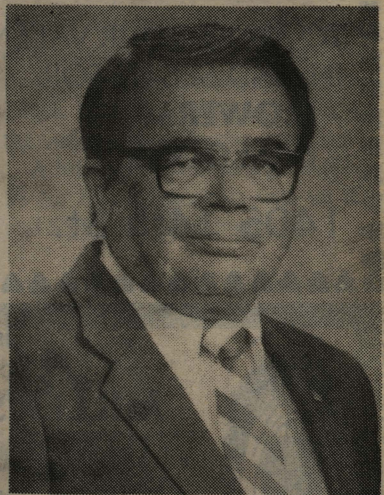

The budget for Illinois public universities and community colleges would increase $43.7 million to $1.56 billion under Thompson's proposal.

Rives said the possibility of tuition hikes increases with the proposal.

"The Illinois Board of Higher Education now has a responsibility to come up with an allocated budget at the governor's level," Rives said. "Once that is done, then we'll know how Eastern will be affected."

Richard Wagner, executive director of the IBHE, expressed some of the same sentiments as Rives.

"We would like not to increase tuition at our public colleges and universities next year, but we will have to consider all revenue sources and budget requirements when preparing an allocation of the governor's budget," Wagner said in a statement.

Stan Rives

Thompson was presenting his last budget of his fourth and final term as governor.

"Excellence in education has been my number one priority and recommendations from the State Board of Education and the Board of Higher Education are reasonable and appropriate in light of existing program need," Thompson said in a statement announcing his recommendation.

Boosted by a temporary 20 percent increase in state income-tax rates, education last year received an increase of $767.3 million, its largest ever.

"The governor has indicated education is his highest priority," Rives said. "In reviewing this immediate past year, that statement would seem to be true.

"But in fact, looking over the whole period (of Thompson's tenure), there has been a consistent decline in the proportion of state budgets devoted to education."

Workers back at Greek Court

By DAVID LINDQUIST
 News editor

Four Wente Plumbing workers returned to the Greek Court construction site on Friday, preserving the Effingham subcontractors' contract which Eastern had threatened to terminate.

Wente workers walked off the site Jan. 18 because of union pickets, who claim prevailing wage is not being paid to Greek Court workers.

"The pickets are still there, but we have men on the job," owner Mike Wente said on Monday.

Wente said none of the four workers he currently has on the site were among the two who walked off the site in January. Those workers are members of Plumbing Local 149 of Champaign. Three Effingham Electric workers ended a similar walkout last Thursday by returning to the Greek Court site. On Jan. 30, Wente filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board in regard to the gate-entrance configuration established by general contractor Standerfer Construction for workers at the site.

Wente's complaint, which was later withdrawn, was that his workers had to enter the site at a gate entrance patrolled by pickets.

There are now two entrance gates for Greek Court laborers, one for union workers and one for open-shop.

Vic Robeson, assistant vice president of facilities, said everything is moving ahead.

Liquor board to consider solutions

By KIM MIKUS
Senior reporter

The Charleston Liquor Advisory Commission will continue brainstorming for possible solutions to Charleston's alcohol policies at an open meeting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the city municipal building, 520 Jackson Ave.

The commission is expected to address issues including house parties, law enforcement, penalties and education, said Brett Gerber, a committee member and Eastern's Student Senate speaker.

Committee member Sharon Brinkmeyer said the seven-member committee will continue to work on its goal to make a recommendation to Mayor Wayne Lanman and the City Council regarding Charleston's bar entry age.

The commission will continue to look at the issues discussed at last week's meeting, including enforcement and penalties, committee Chair Eugene Miller said.

The commission had plans to meet with University Police Chief Tom Larson and Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger concerning law enforcement, but because of conflicts in schedules, the discussion will take place another time, Gerber said.

Tuesday's meeting is open to the public, and Gerber said students should take advantage of this and attend the meeting.

"Students aren't using their active voice to voice their opinions. More students should go to the meetings," he added.

Eastern Students will be directly affected by the decisions made on this issue, Gerber said. "I see the possibility that the bar entry age could change any day."

The mayor has stated he is not in favor of raising Charleston's bar entry age to 21, but "there are a couple people who are coming out of the woodwork and will try to push it all the way," Gerber said.

Eastern to host drive for toxic waste recycling

By LIBBY SHAWGO
Staff writer

More stringent Environmental Protection Agency regulations have forced Eastern officials to change the way so-called dangerous materials are collected and disposed of.

Landfills can no longer handle the materials, which are toxic, flammable, corrosive or reactive, said Gene Hackett, Eastern's safety officer. So to answer the problem, Eastern will conduct a drive to collect these types of materials.

The materials will be collected from Eastern departments Tuesday through Thursday, Hackett said.

Questionnaires were distributed to the various departments to determine the best course of action, Hackett said. The questionnaires asked the departments how much waste was generated and what happened to the waste.

The materials will be shipped to a disposal center two weeks from the time of packaging, Hackett said. SET Environmental Services in Wheeling was chosen on a bid basis to handle the disposal.

Whigham thrills festival crowd

By MICHELLE GARREY
Staff writer

Internationally acclaimed trombonist Jiggs Whigham both entertained the weekend crowds and shared his experience with aspiring musicians at Eastern's 31st Annual Jazz Festival.

"The festival gives an opportunity to have high school people come in and meet one another in a friendly competition and a friendly learning process," Whigham said.

Whigham played with Eastern's Jazz Ensemble and performed such songs as "You'd be So Nice to Come Home To," "How Long Has This Been Going On?" "Big Foot," "Buckeye Blues" and "Sugar Box."

Whigham played the same songs Saturday as in Friday's concert except on Saturday "they were improvised," Whigham explained.

Whigham gave a workshop during the festival providing students with tips on improvisation, communication, learning the tools and how to play the instrument.

and attended the Cleveland Institute of Music. He became interested in music under his father's influence and because of a very musical atmosphere about which he grew up and the variety of musicians to which he was exposed.

"Be a poet, avoid cliché licks and meet your responsibility to your audience," said Whigham, adding that's what integrity means.

Multi-faceted Gregory to entertain in Union

By STEPHANIE CARNES
Activities editor

Some people know him for his role as Grady on the sitcom Sanford and Son, and some people know him for his development of the "Bahamian Diet."

However he's recognized, though, civil rights activist Dick Gregory will be featured as the guest speaker for Black History Month at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Gregory's lecture, sponsored by the University Board Human Potential committee, will cover issues relating to his hunger strikes, Bahamian diet, mobilizations for social change, comedy career and anti-drug activities.

Gregory has had a multi-faceted career as a comedian, author, activist, recording artist, actor, philosopher and anti-drug crusader.

"He is always topical, always funny and he always has a message," said Johnetta Jones, director of minority affairs. "His comedy never gets in the way of his message."

Gregory participated in the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's, has worked toward world peace and has worked against hunger on behalf of the American Indians. He also has recently been noted for his community anti-drug movements.

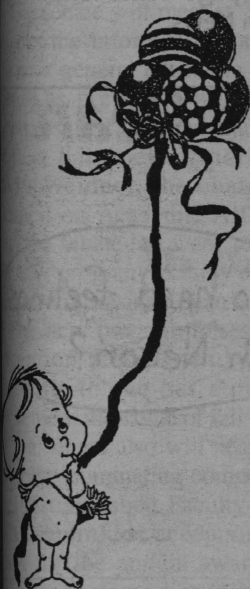

"Dick Gregory is a comedian who has transcended that label," Jones said. "I have seen him three or four times; three times on campuses."

"In the past (when Gregory was here in 1983) his lectures have gone over very well," said Cecilia Brinker, assistant director of student activities and minority affairs. "We thought he'd be a good speaker for Black History Month in terms of the various issues he can speak on."

Admission to the lecture will be $1 for Eastern students with an ID and $3 for the general public.

Until apartheid ends, sanctions should continue

After nearly three decades, Nelson Mandela is a free man.

But the anti-apartheid activist and leader of the African National Congress has emerged to face a nation plagued with political and ideological unrest, a nation troubled with violence and economic problems.

On the surface, it seems not much has changed since Mandela was imprisoned 27 years ago.

Editorial But in reality, while Mandela has fought from behind bars as a figurehead for the country's majority, on the outside, the fight against apartheid has grown to international proportions.

Some of the greatest damage – at least financially – has been done by the United States in the form of economic sanctions levied against South Africa.

In fact, economists have estimated the U.S. ban on coal and agricultural imports from South Africa cost the country more than $400 million in trade. The cutoff of new trade investments has reduced the country's ailing economy to a dismal 2.2 percent – that's a drop in growth of about 30 percent.

In light of the floundering economy, possibly in answer to it, South African President F.W. de Klerk has now released Mandela.

Perhaps de Klerk and the rest of the leaders have had a change of heart concerning the wide-spread black majority and the plight of Mandela's people. But then again, perhaps not.

Just because Mandela is finally free doesn't make everything in South Africa right again. Far from that.

Apartheid still exists and conditions likely won't change until apartheid ends.

If pressures from economic sanctions prompted Mandela's release, then those sanctions should continue to help force a peaceful settlement for the good of all the people in South Africa, 75 percent of whom are black and still politically persecuted.

One man is free. But theoretically, more than 50,000 others remain politically imprisoned. And until the white minority government can release those people, the United States should be hesitant to lift any trade barrier.

Town/gown relationship a biting one

It's funny how history tends to repeat itself. Eight years ago, Charleston turned into a war zone as residents fought vehemently to raise the city's bar entry age to 21, while students and bar owners vigorously opposed it, maintaining 18-year-olds should be allowed into bars.

Students contended that if they could sign a legally binding contract, vote, or fight for their country's freedom, they certainly should be entitled to drink alcohol in a bar.

Charleston residents argued state law stipulated that no one under 21 should be served alcohol, so why let minors into the bar to possibly break the law. Besides, allowing minors into bars may perpetuate alcohol problem and ruin Charleston's good name.

The war became a heated one – even passionate at times. For students, the bars were, (and still are), their social livelihood. For residents, the students who stumbled, (and still do), out of the bars and across their front lawns didn't provide for a very peaceful homelife.

As the Charleston City Council and the Liquor Advisory Commission deliberated the decision, meeting rooms were packed and opinions flared.

When the smoke cleared, neither side had really won the war – they gave birth to a compromise. And what happened then is what we live with now.

The state law still prohibits anyone under age 21 from purchasing, accepting or drinking alcohol. However, in Charleston a person may enter a bar as long as he or she is 19 or older.

Now, that very same issue is developing before us again.

A Liquor Advisory Board established by Mayor Wayne Lanman is meeting to make recommendations to the City Council on the city's liquor ordinances; including reviewing a proposed set of stricter fines for both students and bar owners who violate local liquor policy and providing solutions to the alcohol problem.

At least four commission's seven members are leaning toward recommending the bar entry age once again be raised to 21 to parallel state law.

Jeff Madsen

Those four members, including Chair Gene Miller, are all Charleston residents and I believe base their opinion largely on the input of other Charleston residents. In the most recent meeting minutes, Miller's beliefs are quoted as: "community members want (the) entry age raised to 21; (bar) owners have had their chance at compliance and just are policing themselves; also put lots of teeth into penalties/enforcement; favors surprise raids; general, get tough."

I'm afraid Miller and others who think like him are dead wrong about one thing.

Eastern students are Charleston residents too, and know they don't want the bar entry age raised to 21.

If they have talked to Eastern students, I'll bet it's a handful.

In fact, at last week's board meeting, Student Speaker Brett Gerber (the only student member on the board) asked Miller if the next meeting could be held Eastern, so students could attend more easily than if they had to walk to city hall. After all, the alcohol problem is just as much their concern as anyone else's.

Miller rejected Gerber's suggestion and replied something to the effect of "It students can walk up here to the bars, they can walk up here to the meetings."

That statement reflects something of an attitude barrier dividing "Eastern students" from "Charleston residents," which might be half of the entire problem. "Eastern students" go to college – nine months out of the year, why should they have a say in what happens in the next 10 or 20 years? "Charleston residents" make their livings here. Their jobs are here, their homes are here, their families are here.

Miller makes his living here, I go to college here. That doesn't make me any different from him. I still live here – and so do you.

Board members have all indicated that they want to put some teeth in the present 19-year entry ordinance and even draft a preliminary proposal to present to the City Council.

But by ignoring the 10,000 Charleston residents who attend Eastern, the board (and the city) will end up biting off more than it can chew.

Your turn

Students stealing staff parking spaces

Dear President Rives:

I would like to bring a major problem to your attention: Students parking in staff lots. After returning from lunch recently, there were no spaces available either behind or in front of Coleman Hall. After waiting for an opening, a student pulled into the space. I asked them to move, pointing out that they were parking in staff-only parking. One student even pulled into a handicapped parking spot and they had no sticker to do so.

Tickets do not seem to discourage this behavior. According to the sign, fines and immobilization will be enforced, but in the two and one half years I have worked here, I have yet to see a vehicle immobilized or towed due to violation.

Would you please try to have someone remedy this situation? I drive 30 miles to work and pay $25 for the privilege of parking in a staff lot.

It is very discouraging when you see several student cars parked in a place you have paid for.

Lumpkin fundraiser excels

PHILLIP LAIRD
Administration editor

The "Taking Care of Business" capital campaign to raise $500,000 for the new Lumpkin College of Business building has surpassed its goal, according to the dean of Eastern's school of business.

Ted Ivarie, the dean of the Lumpkin College of Business, said the campaign took a "combination of talent, commitment and hard work from alumni, businesses and friends" to surpass its goal.

Judy Hofstrand, director of administration and development for the college, announced at a recent victory luncheon a total of $204,415 had been raised. She said $118,415 had been raised for equipment, while $142,000 was raised for scholarships.

But Hofstrand said the total figure could increase. "We're still working with a couple of corporations. Some of these businesses have to take the matter before boards that only meet once a quarter," she explained.

Hofstrand said she couldn't identify the corporations until a decision has been made by their board of directors.

Eastern President Stan Rives said he's pleased with the success of the campaign. "The success ultimately means the building will be adequately equipped and more scholarship funds will be available to students that wouldn't be otherwise."

The Roberson Corporation and State Farm Insurance shared the top of the list of large contributors to the campaign by donating at least $50,000 each. Roger Roberson, an Eastern alumnus, was the chair of the steering committee for the "Taking Care of Business" campaign.

Roberson, of Champaign, is owner-operator of Roberson Corp., a Farmer City trucking firm.

Contributions of $25,000 or more were made by Trailmobile, Inc., R.R. Donnelley & Sons, Moore Business Forms and Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company.

These corporations all have facilities in the Charleston-Mattoon area.

Individuals donating $25,000 or more include Jeffery and Lila Scott of Herndon, Va., and the Thelma Keller family of Effingham. The Scotts and Kellers are alumni of Eastern.

The faculty, staff, and other friends of Eastern donated more than $270,000 to the campaign. The faculty and staff donation was $50,000. Rives donated $7,500 in matching funds to that of the faculty and staff.

Hofstrand said Rives had promised at the beginning of the campaign to match up to $7,500 of the faculty and staff contribution. "Although the money hasn't been transferred yet, it's counted in the total figure," Hofstrand said.

Eastern safety director recognized for efforts

By LESLIE O'HARA
Staff writer

Looking both ways before crossing a street and buckling up when getting into a car are safety measures everyone should take seriously.

Dan Bolin, director of Eastern's Office of Safety Programs, took these measures seriously enough to be recognized recently for his outstanding efforts to promote traffic safety in Illinois.

Bolin, who was presented the award at the Illinois Life Savers conference last semester in Decatur, said, "I was surprised and honored (to receive the award)."

Bolin, an Eastern graduate, has been working with the office of safety programs for 20 years.

His duties include setting up safety programs for the state and the federal government.

One program Bolin has been instrumental in bringing to Eastern is the Seatbelt Convincer Program which uses crash dummies and a crash simulator to advocate seatbelt usage.

The National Highway Administration recently awarded Eastern a $290,000 grant to continue the Convincer Program.

This year, Eastern's Office of Safety Programs plans to set up approximately 20 programs including an alcohol abuse program for elementary school children and a class for drivers who lost their license after being charged with driving under the influence, Bolin said.

Education discussion to resume

The Faculty Senate will continue discussion of the undergraduate general education program at today's meeting in the Martinsville Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The senate will meet at 2 p.m. to discuss the information concerning the new general education requirements as presented by Eastern's vice president for academic affairs, Robert Kindrick. Kindrick and Perry Weidner, the chair of the Council on Academic Affairs met with the senate last week to explain the new program recently approved by Eastern President Stan Rives.

The new program raises general education requirements from 39 hours to 46 and has a projected implementation date of fall 1991.

The senate also will hear reports from the nominating committee for the Distinguished Faculty awards. That committee accepts nominations for the annual awards from faculty, staff and students. The award is based on lifetime achievements and excellence.

The senate also will consider nominations to the new parking committee. Glenn Williams, Eastern's vice president of student affairs is forming the committee which will be responsible for administration of the parking facilities for Eastern faculty and students.

Bush nixes troop cut plan; eyes 'success'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush rejected Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's new initiative for troop reductions in Europe on Monday but predicted a "major success" on arms control at June's superpower summit.

Bush told a White House news conference there was "solid progress" as a result of Secretary of State James A. Baker III's trip last week to Moscow.

Even so, the president said he would stand by his proposal - made in his Jan. 31 State of the Union address - that Soviet troops in Europe be cut to 195,000 and U.S. troops to 225,000. Gorbachev last week counterproposed that the 195,000 level apply to both sides.

Rioting in Tadzhikistan erupts after protests

MOSCOW - Riots broke out in the capital of Tadzhikistan during protests Monday against the resettlement of ethnic Armenian refugees in the Soviet Asian republic, official sources said.

One report said there were deaths and dozens of injuries.

The official Tass news agency said a state of emergency and a nighttime curfew had been imposed on the city of Dushanbe to quell "mass disorders and pogroms, and acts of arson and looting." Musafar Madzhidov, correspondent for official radio and television in Dushanbe, said armored vehicles had been brought into the city center, and that it was calm late Monday. He said an unknown number of people had been killed and more than 70 were injured.

Rioting erupted after two rallies in a 24-hour period over rumors that Armenian refugees from bloody ethnic strife in the Caucasus region were being given preference for new housing, Madzhidov said in a telephone interview.

Members of the crowd shouted, "Down with the Armenians," he said.

Armenians, a predominantly Christian people, have been involved for the last two years in bloody dispute with predominantly Moslem Azerbaijanis over control of the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan.

More than 200 people have been killed in Armenian and Azerbaijan since Jan. 13.

UWGB stymies Panthers

By JEFF SMITH
Sports editor

Eastern's men's basketball team will never be mistaken for the Georgetown Hoyas, but it received Villanova-like treatment Saturday night.

Wisconsin-Green Bay, in a performance reminiscent of the Wildcats' stirring 78-percent shooting effort against the Hoyas in the 1985 NCAA title game, singled the nets at Lantz Gym to the tune of 71 percent. The result: an 86-64 rout of the Panthers in Association of Mid-Continent Universities action.

"They just unquestionably shot the ball too well," Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said. "This might as well be their home gym."

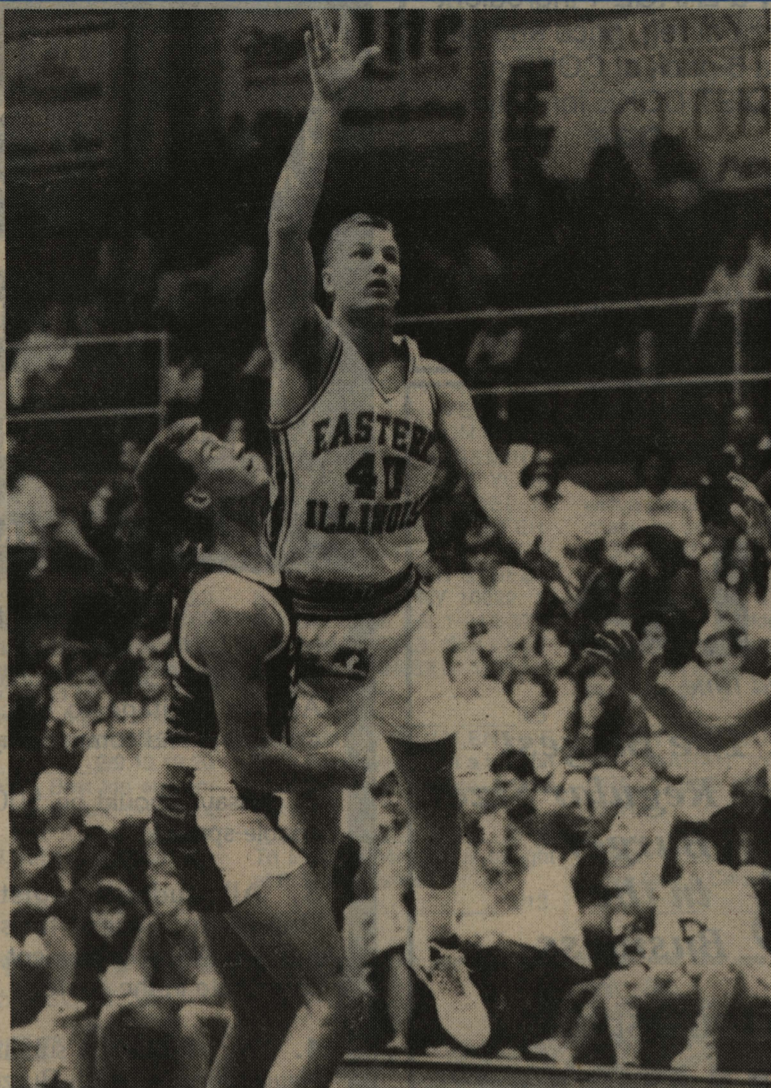

To magnify this fact, a quick check of the records tied or broken is in order:

The Phoenix tied the Lantz single-game shooting record, hitting 27-of-38 field goals. This ties Southwest Missouri's identical effort in 1984.

UWGB broke its school's Division I record; it moved from Division II in 1981-82.

The Phoenix fell just short of the 73.3 percent AMCU record that Illinois-Chicago set in 1984.

"I don't remember us shooting like that," Wisconsin-Green Bay head coach Dick Bennett said of his team's fifth win in a row. "It was a great shooting night."

Bennett's explanation of the Phoenix's dead-on accuracy? "Of course, when you nail a few, your confidence soars," he explained.

Eastern-UIC game set for cable TV

By JEFF SMITH
Sports editor

The hour may appear odd to most fans, but, nonetheless, Eastern's men's basketball team faces Association of Mid-Continent Universities foe Illinois-Chicago at 9 p.m. Tuesday in Lantz Gym live on cable station Sports-Channel.

The game was moved to the later time to serve as the latter half of a basketball doubleheader on SportsChannel.

The Panthers, 9-11 overall and 2-6 in the AMCU, are one game behind the fifth-place Flames, 13-8 and 3-5.

"They're a very quick team that pressures you the whole game," head coach Rick Samuels said. "They use a halfcourt press and cause a lot of turnovers."

Illinois-Chicago leads the league in turnover margin, causing 20.9 per game while committing 14.9 per game.

Only one UIC starter stands taller than 6-5 - 6-8 center Tremell Murphy. Forward/guard Corwin Hunt (16.8 ppg), Chris Harris (16.0) and Brian Hill (13.0) lead the Flames offensively.

Samuels said, "I thought the best crowd of the season was at Western Illinois, and you see how we did there (winning 78-60). There's no question that the height of the crowd's excitement is a big factor."

Grapplers stopped by Iowa

Nationally ranked Northern Iowa pounded Eastern's wrestling squad 40-4 in Cedar Falls, Iowa Friday, as the Panthers could manage only one win in 10 matches.

After losing its first nine matches, senior heavyweight Copache Tyler took a 14-5 decision over Greg Berg for Eastern's only match victory against Northern Iowa.

Tyler, ranked 11th in the country in the latest edition of Amateur Wrestling News, upped his season's mark to 29-5, including 21 consecutive wins.

Spirited Lady Panthers win No. 4 in row at Drake

By JEFF SMITH
Sports editor

Two weeks ago after a loss at first-place Southwest Missouri, senior point guard Shelly Ethridge avowed that Eastern's women's basketball team would not lose another Gateway Conference game.

Saturday, the Lady Panthers won their fourth straight league game, a 72-51 romp over Drake in Des Moines, Iowa. Ethridge's statement still stands.

Eastern improved to 7-6 in the Gateway and 11-11 overall. The Lady Panthers are on a mission to catch fourth-place Bradley and qualify for the four-team Gateway post-season tournament for the fourth year in a row, the only league team to do so. Eastern trails the Lady Braves by two games with five to play.

In winning at Drake, the Lady Panthers at last overcame an ever-accumulating losing skein there that had reached nine games. They also hit .500 for the first time all season.

And, Eastern accomplished all of the aforementioned first and foremost with defense. "I thought we put good pressure on their wings, and that delayed the entry pass to (Drake all-conference forward Jan) Jensen and company," head coach Barbara Hilke said.

The numbers bear this out.

The Lady Bulldogs shot 35.3 percent from the field, 28 percent in the second half. The Lady Panthers didn't shoot much better, hitting 42.6 percent.

Eastern had the game almost from the outset, taking the lead for good at 13-12 with 14:31 left in the first half on a jumper by senior guard Barb Perkes.

The Lady Panthers blew the game open minutes later, speeding out to a 14-2 run to turn a 23-22 lead into a comfortable 37-24 advantage with 3:15 to go. Eastern enjoyed a 43-31 half-time lead.

Senior center Laura Mull sparked off the bench, hauling in 12 rebounds. Her counterpart in the post, sophomore Stacy Frierdich, scored 15, 12 in the second half. Eastern out-rebounded Drake 42-32.

Lady tracksters finish seventh

By GEOFF T. MASANET
Staff writer

Lady Panthers track star Esta Saverson placed first in the long jump with a leap of 18-9 to lead Eastern to a seventh-place finish at the 11-team Lady Redbird Invite in Bloomington-Normal.

Host Illinois State emerged victorious Saturday, dogged by Western Illinois and Southwest Missouri in a Gateway Conference meet preview.

Head coach John Craft viewed Saturday's meet as a way of sizing up Eastern's conference hopes. "It would be nice if we can finish in the top five (out of 10)," Craft said. "I'd like to continue our good performances in the past with a good effort this year."

Saturday's performances didn't reach normal Lady Panther standards, but were nonetheless impressive. Saverson also placed in the 200-meter dash with a sixth-place time of 26.64, clearing the way for other teammates to follow in her footsteps.

Tracy Hoffman scored a third-place finish in the 800 meters with a time of 2:24.1 and earned the recognition of Craft. "She's excited about the conference meet," he said. "We're sure she can go under 2:20."

Jacksonville product Tammy Mayner place fourth in the high jump at 5-3 1/4 as did the 4 x 800 relay team of T.J. Rhudy, Hoffman, Stephanie Stump and Chris Cozzi with a time of 10:10.7.

The 4 x 220-yard relay squad of Sherry Hoffman, Mayner, Saverson and Julie Bauer placed fifth in 1:52.2 while Sherry Hoffman jumped 17-5, good for sixth in the long jump. Rhudy also set a personal best with a non-placing effort of 5:18 in the mile run.

Craft wasn't pleased overall with Eastern's performance despite the bright spots. "Our performances were down a little," he said. "Hopefully we can bounce back and get it all together."

Men tracksters second at Lantz

By GEOFF T. MASANET
Staff writer

Eastern claimed six meet winners en route to bagging a second-place finish in Saturday's track action at Lantz Fieldhouse.

Indiana State won the five-team meet with 86 points, followed by Eastern with 70 and Southern Illinois with 64. Western Illinois and Akron rounded out the field, tallying 44 and six points, respectively.

Eastern sprinter Dan Steele sat out the meet with a strained hamstring but watched as sibling Darrin took control of the meet. The Steele brothers are keeping first place in the 400-meter dash a family affair, as Darrin applied the deathgrip to the competition, winning the race in 49.92.

Steele also anchored the mile relay squad (with Don Glover, Jeff Parker and Chris Fowler) in exciting fashion, edging out Indiana State by .5 of a second to win the event in 3:22.1.

Senior Al Oaks rounded out Eastern's winners by deflating the 800-meter field in a stirring performance, winning the race in 1:54.7.

Sprinter Jared Thompson added Eastern's onslaught by placing second in the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.43. Tim Gately placed second in the high jump at 6-3 3/4, as did Fowler in the 400 (50.10) and the two-mile relay team of Oaks, Mike Young, Rhudy, Fagen and Jamie Garner (7:58.2).

On Friday, the Panthers hosted the annual Pepsi Indoor Invitational, their final warm-up before the conference meet.
