Storm lowers boom on Charleston area

By CHRIS SUNDHEIM and TANYA ZEIGLER
Staff writers

The heaviest snowstorm of the season blanketed Coles County Wednesday with two inches of snow and 50 mph winds that closed Eastern and halted activity throughout central Illinois.

The storm, originating in Canada, forced area schools to close early and caused hundreds of minor traffic accidents within Coles County. However, no injuries were reported by either Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, local police or sheriff's authorities.

Forecasts for Wednesday night called for lows of near minus 5 degrees and minus 10 degrees, according to Richard Wise, associate professor of geology and geography. Wise said there was a 40 percent chance of more snow Thursday.

Snow began to fall in the Charleston area about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. By 10 a.m. wind gusts had reduced visibility to zero in some areas and Charleston schools announced they would dismiss classes at noon.

Most of campus lost electrical power for about 30 minutes during the noon hour. Eastern's acting Physical Plant Director

Carol Strode said plant employees worked with the Central Illinois Public Service to keep the power on, though it went off several times throughout the day. "We were right on top of it," Strode said.

"We have our salt trucks out, and they'll be out first thing in the morning to get the intersections and the sidewalks as best as we can," Strode added.

According to Strode, people at the plant were staying overnight to help restore power and water pressure if necessary.

At approximately 12 p.m., a picture window in Stevenson Hall was blown out and shattered into the lobby area.

Hall counselor Mary Ann VanKeuren said no one was hurt and the broken window was boarded up immediately by the building service carpenters.

Eastern canceled all classes scheduled after 4 p.m. Shelly Flock of University Relations said Wednesday she thought classes would resume on Thursday.

Officer Peggy Pfeiffer of the Coles County Sheriff's Department said there had been hundreds of minor auto accidents but no injuries in Coles County. She said there was a 10-car pile-up near Ashmore Wednesday morning that, like most of

Weather conditions cause university to close down

By CHRIS SEPER
Campus editor

After a day of continual snow and gusting winds, Eastern decided to call it quits for the day Wednesday, shutting down all of its evening classes.

No information was available Wednesday night concerning whether Thursday's classes would be held, with Shelly Flock, university director of information, saying that "it would depend on the weather (Thursday)" to see if they'd come.

"The decision has only been made for this evening," said Maxine Clayton, administrative assistant to the president. "At this moment there is no reason to make a decision (about Thursday) tonight."

The decision to cancel all Wednesday classes scheduled after 4 p.m. came earlier in the afternoon, after sporadic power outages, wind and snow damage to the university and temperatures hovering near zero degrees, Flock said.

President Stan Rives "gave the instructions to watch and see what happens," Clayton explained. "At the time, power was out and CIPS had no idea when power would be back. The emergency generator in the heat plant was off. That was the basis in which the decision (to close down the university) was made."

Eastern's off-campus extension classes were also canceled Wednesday.

Rives, who was en route to a Board of Governors meeting at Chicago State University, was halted by a jack-knifed semi truck in the road, Clayton said.

The usual process for making decisions on whether to cancel classes, of Rives meeting with other vice presidents, had to be set aside as Rives and several vice presidents were not on campus.

"It was a shame that this had to happen when people weren't around," Clayton said.

Board votes to hold Peace Meal funds

By JAMIE RILEY
Administration editor

The Coles County Board voted Tuesday night to withhold funds for the Peace Meal program after learning that the program was under investigation by an external auditor and Eastern's human resources department.

County board member Paul Hawkins, who also chairs the council's senior citizen committee, said the decision was made to withhold $11,300 in county funding for Peace Meal after the board learned of the investigations.

"It is tax dollars, and we're responsible for it," Hawkins said.

The Peace Meal program is a service project of the home economics department, which is chaired by Joyce Crouse. Peace Meal provides free and low-cost meals, nutrition, education, transportation and outreach to senior citizens at 55 sites in 14 counties.

President Stan Rives ordered an investigation into the Peace Meal program last November after he received an anonymous letter, which he said alleged misuse of funds and nepotism within the Peace Meal program.

Assistant Vice President for Human Resources Jim Pacino launched an investigation into the allegations and said he expects to get a report on his findings to Rives by the end of January.

Jeff Cooley of the Internal Auditing Department said the department has not finished the audit and that he does not know and cannot speculate on when the auditing will be completed. He did say a report of the department's findings will be sent to the president's office. Cooley also would have no comment on any audit findings thus far.

Hawkins said the county board contacted Peace Meal Director Mike Strader to inform him of the board's decision to hold the tax money. "We told Mr. Strader that when he receives a clear audit, the contract will be there for him to sign."

The Coles County Board apparently has no authority over how the tax money is used once it is given to Peace Meal. However, Hawkins said Peace Meal has to provide the board with a complete audit of how the money was used. The audit is due Feb. 28 this year, Hawkins said.

According to Hawkins, if Peace Meal does not receive a clear audit, the money will be distributed among four other organizations receiving the tax money. If the allegations against Peace Meal are not cleared through the audit, Lake Land College Senior Services, the Coalition Against Domestic Violence, Quinees Senior Services and the Coles County Council on Aging will all receive the divided money.

Although Rives was out of town Wednesday for a Thursday Board of Governors meeting in Chicago, Shelly Flock, director of information, said the university is not distressed by the county board withholding the funds.

"We're confident that the internal auditor will confirm that the allegations are unfounded and that the board will release the funds," Flock said.

Wednesday's accidents, resulted only in stranded motorists.

Weather conditions forced authorities to close Illinois Route 16 between Mattoon and Charleston for several hours, according to Deputy Mel Tillis of the Coles County Sheriff's Department. Tillis added that police also closed Illinois Route 45 and all roads leading out of Mattoon.

As of 6 p.m. Wednesday, both routes were open, Tillis said. However, state police closed Interstate 57 from Arcola north to Champaign and portions of I-72 and I-70 were closed, he added.

Marsha Blair, the assistant vice president of nursing at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Care Center said the hospital had not received any flood of weather-related injuries. She said, however, that because of the road conditions, no one was able to reach the facility for several hours Wednesday morning.

"Everything has gone very, very well," Blair said Wednesday evening. "We really haven't had (a lot of weather-related injuries). Maybe after people get out tomorrow and walk on the ice, but not today really."

Plows were taken off the streets with the visibility at zero, according to Steve Sell, supervisor of the state maintenance shed in Mattoon.

"We are now prepared to just escort all emergency vehicles en route to the hospital," Sell said.

Debbie Carlson also contributed to this report.

Employees pay extra health fee

BY JAMIE RILEY
Administration editor

All Eastern employees making $20,000 or more a year are now required to make a monthly contribution to their health care costs, said Pat Hill, employment and benefits manager.

The required contribution, which became effective Jan. 1 for all Illinois universities, asks for all Eastern employees, including civil service, staff, faculty and administration, to make "minimal contributions" for their health insurance coverage under the quality care health plan and all HMO plans, Hill said.

The mandatory health care contributions were imposed by the state, which means individual universities did not have any say in the changes.

"Health care is a negotiated benefit," Hill said. "All insurance benefits for university employees are determined by the state. We do not have any input into those changes."

The contribution is based on the employee's annual salary as of July 1, 1991, and is in addition to any employee contribution already being made, Hill added.

The mandatory contribution does not apply to retirees, annuitants or survivors or to employees earning less than $20,000 annually.

"The contribution is mandatory and based upon different wages," Hill said. Each employee's contribution depends on where his or her annual salary fits on a scale made by the state of Illinois.

Employees who earn between $20,001 and $30,000 must make a contribution of $5, while those earning $30,001 to $40,000, must contribute $7.50. Employees earning $40,001 to $50,000 make a contribution of $10 and those with a salary more than $50,000 must contribute $12.50.

Also effective Jan. 1, the rates members pay for dependent coverage under the quality health care plan will change.

The rates do not include the employee contribution, Hill said.

Fewer crimes reported over holiday break

By VANESSA ALCORN
Staff writer

When students leave campus for a holiday break, crimes such as burglary and theft tend to increase, but Charleston experienced fewer incidents than usual this year, Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger said Tuesday.

This year, the number of burglaries occurring while students were on Christmas break were down from last year, Steidinger said.

"There were 14 reported burglaries last year and this holiday there were eight," Steidinger said.

Michael Ealy, a crime prevention officer with Eastern's police force said the reports of campus burglary were also light during the holidays.

"They are much lower than in the past. I'd like to believe that it is because people are paying more attention to take caution," Ealy said.

Eastern's increase in manpower has also helped the university police force patrol more area, Ealy said. He said he believes the increase - six officers hired in 1989, one addition in 1990, and one new member in 1991 - may be another reason for the lower crime rates.

Ealy added that university police were able to have three to four officers each shift during the holidays to patrol more of the Eastern's campus.

Each shift officer checks the residence halls to make sure all student residence hall rooms are locked, Ealy said. New locks are also put on the outside doors for added protection, he added.

March planned to honor Martin Luther King Jr.

TIM DAILEY

The Black Student Union discussed plans for Monday's the Fourth Annual Martin Luther King Jr. March set for Monday.

The march, which is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha fraternity, will begin at 7 p.m. at Thomas Hall, said Ron Zimmerman, the chairman of the march committee, at the BSU's Monday night meeting.

"The whole campus is welcome to march," Zimmerman said. The students will be given candles to hold as they walk around campus and end the march at the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union walkway. A short program will be held in honor of King inside the Union.

Another topic discussed at the meeting was Cultural Diversity Week, which will begin Jan. 27 through 31.

"The purpose of this week is to celebrate the cultural diversity here on campus," said Toren Turner, a Black Student Union member who is involved with the week's events. A highlight of the week will include African Awareness Day on Jan. 30.

African Awareness Day will include a one-man play titled, "Journey of the Drum Major," which will be performed by Craig Alan Edwards. The play is set for 8 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Union.

The BSU also discussed special activities planned for Black History Month set for February. Some of the group's activities include a talk show about black male and female relationships, and Solidarity Day when students will march to the Black Cultural Center.

Also discussed at the meeting was the upcoming Miss Black EIU Pageant, which is scheduled for February 22. The pageant will be preceded by a Parents' Appreciation Dinner from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Rathskellar of the Union. BSU President Kevin Evans said the theme of the dinner is "A Tribute to Strength, Love and Leadership".

Student keeps positive attitude after surgery

BY KAREN MEDINA
Staff writer

When Eastern student Tim Andrews was told in 1985 that he needed a kidney transplant, he did not expect it would be years until a kidney was found.

Andrews, who is a senior psychology major, underwent a kidney transplant on Dec. 10 at Springfield Memorial Hospital and stayed in isolation there for two weeks.

The only visitors allowed to see Andrews were his parents and hospital personnel.

"The kidney that was found was from the Chicago area and was from a person who was 20 years old," Andrews said. "I don't know who the kidney was from or whether it was from a male or female."

"My transplant doctor and staff found the kidney by a computerized set-up in which my name was on three lists, Springfield, Chicago and Mayos Clinic in Rochester, Minn."

Andrews' kidney problems began in 1985 when both his kidneys fail after shrinking because of high blood pressure.

"It was the stress and the high blood pressure and it didn't take too much to damage them," Andrews said.

After the transplant, Andrews said he was released on Christmas Eve, but stayed an extra week in Springfield in a hotel so he would be available for check-ups and blood checks throughout the week.

Andrews returned home on New Years Eve and now returns to Springfield every three days to get blood and health check-ups.

"It's real crucial that they check the blood and the kidney's to make sure the kidneys are doing what they are suppose to," Andrews said.

Before the transplant, Andrews scheduled his classes at Eastern for the spring semester along with an internship with the Jasper County Counseling Service.

However, Andrews was uncertain of his future after the surgery. "I wasn't sure right after the surgery and I didn't know what to expect and I'm glad it's over," he said. "I was planning on how I was going to finish school."

Andrews has officially dropped from the university and has rescheduled his internship for the summer.

"I have 13 hours to complete for graduation in which I will complete then during the fall," he said. "I have a positive outlook and am a person who doesn't give up...I'll finish."

Eastern reacts fast to weather conditions

Eastern's cancellation of evening classes Wednesday because of the poor weather and campus problems with power outages was a quick reaction to the situation that was in the best interest of evening students.

The announcement of the closing probably saved many students, who may live outside of Charleston, the problems that missing class because of poor driving conditions would cause them. Many evening classes meet only once a week, so an absence often means missing one out of only 15 or 16 class sessions.

Editorial The first signs of winter hit Charleston this week as the falling snow was accompanied with high winds and falling temperatures.

On Wednesday the temperature dipped into the low teens and by late evening the thermometer was expected to drop to below zero.

Power outages affected much of campus Monday and Wednesday, leaving students and staff in the dark for periods ranging between 10 minutes and more than an hour.

Eastern's cancellation of evening classes is a rarity; Cancellation of an entire day of classes historically has been an even more unusual event.

In 1977 the university was forced to shut down after a request from Central Illinois Public Service asked that all large gas volume users shut down in an effort to ensure an adequate gas supply for residential users.

The shutdown was announced at 10 a.m. on January 17. The shutdown, which lasted for eight days, forced students from their residence halls and cancelled four days of classes.

In 1982 a snow storm blasted Coles County and classes were cancelled on Feb. 1. At the time of cancellation, Charleston had received up to 12-16 inches of snow and more was expected.

With the extreme weather conditions and the below-zero temperatures that the area is expected to experience, traveling to evening classes may have caused students more harm than good.

We urge the university to react to future dangerous weather conditions just as promptly.

Reflecting on the impact on war

I looked on angrily at the liquor store clerk in a retort to the accusation that I was attempting to use a fake ID to purchase a case of beer.

"What do you mean this ID is fake," I asked the large-from-bailing-hay-over-the-summer-liquor-store-clerk-guy. "Of course it is me!"

"Well, it sure the hell don't look like you," the lumbering man said as he inspected my ID with great scrutiny - it a hostage in the large hands of my nemesis as he scratched the surface of my driver's license to detect any possible illicit alterations.

"What is your last name?" "McKee," I said. "What is your first name?" "Bob - you could spell it backwards," I replied sarcastically.

"This says your name is Robert," he stated. "Bob is short for Robert," I explained to the struggling man.

"Oh, yeah, that's right," he said with confusion. After the litigation ended, the expression on my accuser's face changed from the once bewildered confusion to a stern confidence.

He glared at me with his steely eyes and demanded that I leave the store without the case of Keystone Light - and without my license.

"You can come back tomorrow and talk to the manager," he said with a look of victory.

I was in a state of shock because this had never happened to me - even back when I did use a fake ID.

"Wait a minute," I panicked, "I have other identification." "Like what?"

"I have my military ID with me," I said. "I just got back to school from being activated for the war."

"Oh, now you're saying you are old enough to have fought in Viet Nam," he questioned.

"No, Operation Desert Storm," I said. "That was on CNN - wasn't it?"

Jan. 16 marks the one-year anniversary of the day that the shield in the desert of southwest Asia developed into an ominous storm.

I think we could remember the thoughts that raced through our minds when we first heard the news from network anchors on the 6 o'clock news that American pilots screamed through blinding anti-aircraft fire across the embattled skies of Baghdad.

Bob McKee

They and pilots of other nations completed hundreds of sorties that night in air raids - delivered surgical strikes on vital military targets - yielding death and devastation to Iraq.

We were a nation at war, allied with others, in effort to enforce international law.

It was a display of aggression in the spirit of freedom - an attempt to free Kuwait from the reign of Saddam Hussein and the horrors of Iraqi occupation.

The country watched as their loved ones were swept away much like in the Viet Nam era and the wars that preceded it - the beast of war reared its ugly head once again.

It was time for many service-members to good-bye for a while - both active duty reservists - to leave for wherever to do what for how-long.

Many reservists, including myself, did not have an inkling of what was ahead of them when we received the inevitable phone call - an invitation to a war.

For reservists, the day that you never anticipated was staring you in the face - it was the day your country cashed on its investment.

We were trained to perform the tasks that our country needed for us to execute - and we did. We did it.

No matter how many sacrifices we had to take, how deeply it hurt to leave our loved ones - we did it.

I recall Feb. 28 at Marine Corps Camp Pendleton, Calif. - a week before Marine Corps Helicopter Squadron HML-776 from Chicago, Ill., left for the Philippine Islands - we heard that a cease fire in Iraq was called.

It seemed as if the whole world sighed in relief and thanked God.

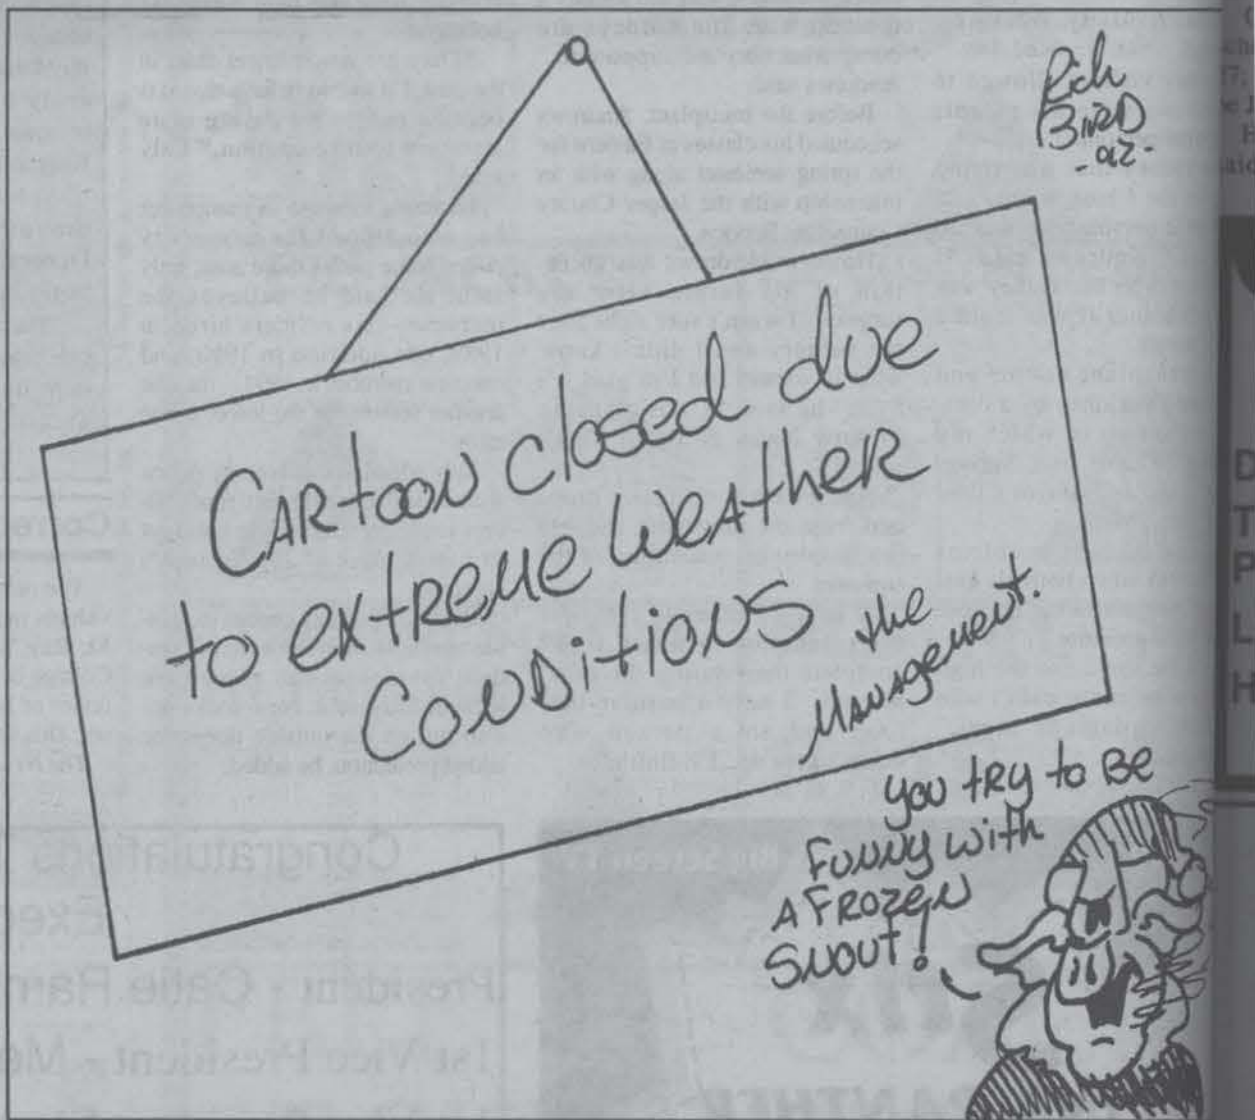

The war had ended.

No matter what transpired after, the U.S. military was called upon by its commander in chief to form a task - through the sacrifices of thousands of men and women, a country that was being ravaged one year ago today, is once again free.

Much like every service member involved through the support I received from my loved ones, friends and university, I was inspired to perform my duties as a Marine Corps aerial gunner - because I was doing it for a reason.

Thank you. It is great to be back home.

RODGET PAULEK

dispute between "a world-famous architect" and Livingstone Lord, Eastern's first president, that kept the architect from building the university's main building is one of the topics of a historical lecture Thursday.

Edward E. Thornburgh, director of special events, will lecture at 7 p.m. at the Dudley Center, 895 Seventh St., as part of the Alexander County Historical Society Lecture Series.

The speech titled, "Mr. Griffin: A Class Architect and His Relationship with Mr. Lord and the Normal School" will discuss the development of Eastern's campus.

Griffin, a University of Illinois graduate, was asked by the Normal School to design a green campus for the school, the campus' second building, Thornburgh said. Thornburgh will examine the correspondence between Lord and Griffin. This correspondence describes a falling out between the two men.

"Mr. Griffin believed in principles and so did Mr. Lord," Thornburgh said. This led to their problems.

Griffin's only remaining influence on the campus is the configuration of the sidewalks, Thornburgh added.

Griffin designed houses in both Decatur and the Chicago suburbs. He later became a world-famous architect and planned the Australian capital city of Canberra.

Thornburgh, a journalism professor, has served as the director of University Relations and as the chairman of the journalism department.

The lecture is open to the public and is free of charge.

Cultural Diversity Week around the corner, the Hispanic Student Union plans to discuss the week's festivities at a regular meeting Thursday.

HSU will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the the Greenup Room of the Martin Luther King University Union.

Cultural Diversity Week is scheduled for the week of Jan. 20-26. Hispanic Heritage Day will be on Jan. 29.

HSU president Jay Martinez said the organization plans to bring world-renowned Latino artists Louis Rodriguez and Gregorio Gomez to the university from Chicago on Hispanic Heritage Day.

Martinez said the group will also discuss plans for Hispanic Awareness Week in April.

"Hispanic Awareness Week is the same week as Journalism Week (April 6-10), so the Hispanic Student Union is working along with the journalism department to bring in Hispanic journalists such as Sylvia Perez from WLS Channel 7 in Chicago," said Karen Medina, HSU vice president.

"Eastern is close to home," Galanti said. "My brother and my neighbor went there. It seemed like a fun program."

"She really wanted to go to Eastern," Ralston said. "By the time I heard about her, it was late and I had all ready given out all my scholarships. When I saw her I told her she could have a definite spot on the team."

Fate was in Galanti's corner. On the first day of practice, one of Ralston's scholarship freshman decided she didn't want to play anymore, which gave Galanti an opportunity to play with a partial scholarship.

"It's weird how it works out. We knew she had talent. Her biggest thing is she was a good three-sport athlete in high school and she didn't decide early enough which sport to stick with, she took a partial scholarship and ends up being the top recruit out of that class. Maybe if she would have decided earlier on which sport she wanted to play, we may not have gotten her."

Another key reason Galanti went to Eastern was because one of her high school teammates, Laura Bruce, who was a year older than her, transferred to Eastern from George Washington University.

"Having Laura here, I think that helped Gianna adjust to her first year," Ralston.

One of the things Ralston saw in Galanti was her 5-foot 10-inch frame. Ralston wanted to make a middle hitter out of Galanti, but she was an outside hitter in high school.

"It was tough, but it was a fun challenge," Galanti said. "Now I love middle more than I do outside because you are always involved whether it be hitting or blocking."

"Gianna ended up being a very prolific blocker as well," Ralston said. "For three years she was an in-ning player and a hard worker. She was a good kid."

Ralston said the thing she is most happy about is that Galanti was not a real serious student coming out of school, but hit the books in college. She graduated with a 3.5 GPA in high school, but improved that to 2.95 GPA.

"She was really intense about getting good grades. She really pushed a lot. And living with a 4.0 (grade point average) student rubbed off a little. The other players on the team were intelligent so I didn't want to be a dumb jock."

Presently, Galanti is teaching physical education at her's education at Morton East High School. She is also a sophomore girls volleyball coach and a junior varsity volleyball coach.

...team All-Conference player one year ago. Williams is averaging 15.1 points per game and fourth in the conference with 4.8 assists per game. He also is averaging 2.5 steals a game. Last season the sophomore guard, poured in a career-high 27 points in a win over Western Illinois. He is averaging 58.8 percent from the field in three Mid-Con games.

...checks in at 13.9 ppg and is averaging 2.2 assists per game. He is also leading the conference in free throw percentage, at .844.

...North State was expected to make a run at Green Bay in its first season in the Mid-Con, but the Panthers have not started out all that well.

...They have lost five of their first 11 games and are 2-6 in the conference. One bright spot has been the play of two time leading scorer and team MVP, Ed Edwards.

...The junior forward from Middleton, Ohio, is leading the Mid-Con in scoring, at 20.4 ppg. He is among leaders in just about every category, including field goal percentage, rebounds and free throw percentage.

...Head coach Ralph Underhill, in his 14th season at the helm, said that his team is adjusting to its first season in the Mid-Continent, but he feels that it is too early to really tell anything.

...We beat Eastern, which was picked to finish second by many," Underhill said. "That was a good win for us on our home court, but we lost to Illinois-Chicago, which was hot and we lost down at Green Bay. I think once we play every team once, than we can see where we stand a little better."

Cleveland State head coach Mike Boyd is another coach that believes that Wisconsin-Green Bay is the team to catch.

"Everybody will be chasing Green Bay," Boyd said. "I've said that from the beginning. I believe that everybody else will be banging heads with each other for a while."

Eastern Illinois, after a tough road trip, has won two conference games in a row to improve its record to 2-1 in the league. They stand at 7-4 overall.

Barry Johnson has posted some impressive numbers. The senior forward is leading the conference in rebounding at 8.1 rpg and is also fifth in the Mid-Con in field goal percentage.

In three Mid-Continent games, Johnson has averaged 16.7 ppg and 12.7 rpg, both high on the team.

Freshman Andre Rodriquez has stepped into the starting line up for the Panthers, since the injury to Rod McKinnis and is coming off of a career best performance. He scored 14 points on 6-9 shooting from the field in Eastern's win over the Flames.

Eastern in the running for Mid-Continent crown

By KEN RYAN
Associate sports editor

The Mid-Continent Conference is barely under way, but the pre-season favorite, Wisconsin-Green Bay, has already lived up to its billing as the top team.

The Phoenix have jumped out of the gates in high fashion and have established themselves as the team to beat. They have a 12-1 overall record and are 4-0 in the Mid-Con. With its record, Green Bay has even received votes by the Associated Press as one of the top 25 teams in the country.

Last season's Mid-Con player of the year, Tony Bennett, has once again emerged as a top performer and is among the conference leader in almost every offensive category.

The senior guard is second in the conference in scoring (19.4), field goal percentage (.541), 3-point field goal percentage (.547), assists (5.2) and free throw percentage (.833).

As a team, the Phoenix also lead in most of the categories and are outscoring their opponents by an average margin of 14.2. Despite these impressive numbers, Phoenix head coach Dick Bennett doesn't believe that his team is the favorite this year.

"It's way too early to predict anything, but I do not consider us the favorite," Bennett said. "There are a number of teams that are as good as we are. In the end, I believe three or four losses are going to win the conference."

Although, Bennett does not consider his team as the early favorite, coaches around the league have different ideas.

Mid-Continent Conference Standings	Conference	Overall
Wis.-Green Bay	4-0	12-1
Illinois-Chicago	3-1	6-1
EASTERN	2-1	7-4
Akron	2-1	6-3
Northern Illinois	2-2	4-1
Wright State	1-2	5-4
Western Illinois	1-1	5-3
Cleveland State	0-3	7-4
Valparaiso	0-4	3-5

"It's a hunt for Green Bay," University of Illinois-Chicago head coach Bob Hallberg. "They're the team to beat. I think every other team from top to bottom is pretty even."

The Flames are currently second in the conference, with a 3-1 mark after posting a 3-6 non-conference record. Hallberg said he is happy with the job his team has done so far.

"I'm happy with our performance so far," Hallberg said. "But I think you always get greedy. We look back and say if we could have won our last game (a loss to Eastern) than we would be 4-0."

The Flames are led by Kenny Williams, who was the Mid-Con player of the year last year, and senior guard Brian Hill, who was named to the All-Conference team.

Hilkey sets sights on nationals

By RYAN GIUSTI
Staff writer

On a team with two national qualifiers it may be hard to get some recognition, but senior John Hilkey still manages to pull his weight, literally.

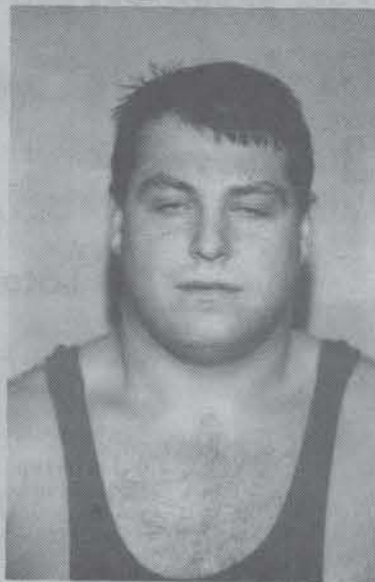

Hilkey is the heavyweight for Eastern's wrestling team and is tied for third on the team in victories despite missing some matches earlier in the season. He will bring a 7-5 record into this Saturday's Southwest Missouri State Invitational. Senior co-captains Dave Marlow and Ray Serbick, both of whom qualified for the NCAA national tournament last season, lead the team with 14 and 11 wins respectively.

Hilkey has come on as of late, winning four of his last five matches. The one loss he has, occurred in the Red Bird Duals against Travis Ross of SWMS. The score was 1-0.

"I'm looking forward to a rematch," Hilkey said. "It would be nice to face him again for the championship."

In terms of experience, Hilkey is somewhat of a newcomer. He did not start wrestling until he was in high school at Belleville West.

As a freshman, he went out for wrestling at the request of his football coach, who was also the head wrestling coach. It took him another year to make the varsity, but he went on to post a high school record of 85-15 and his senior year he took sixth place at heavyweight in the state of Illinois.

John Hilkey

Even then, Hilkey was not completely sold on wrestling. Football was still his main sport. After high school he went through a tough year at the Air Force Academy. He decided to return home and attend a junior college.

"Between the military and academics it was just too hard," Hilkey said about his experience at Air Force.

Hilkey enrolled at Belleville Area College where he honed his wrestling talent.

"I didn't get totally dominate in wrestling until junior college," Hilkey stated.

In his first year at BAC he finished sixth in the nation for heavyweight. Hilkey topped that his second year, losing the national junior college championship match by one point. In that tournament

Hilkey set a junior college record for most falls in the least amount of time.

After talking to some friends and hearing about the coach, Hilkey decided to come to Eastern under the guidance of Ralph McCausland.

"He's been great," Hilkey said. "He's not too hard yet he pushes you enough. He is perfect for my personality."

Hilkey was not satisfied with his performance in his first year at Eastern. He had a record of 13-16. He said he lost seven or eight of those in the last 10 seconds of the match.

"I wasn't too happy," Hilkey said. "I brought my problems on to the mat and it cost me."

This season has started out a little better for Hilkey. He missed the Las Vegas tournament due to the flu and missed the Midlands Championships as well. As a result he had only wrestled in 12 matches heading into Saturday.

"This year four of the five losses have been by one point," Hilkey said. "I'm not doing the stupid stuff I did to beat myself last year."

Hilkey has his sights set to reach the nationals this year.

"My goal is to make it to nationals," Hilkey said. "With work I think I can do it."

McCausland said Hilkey has a shot at reaching his goal.

"If he continues to progress, he can," McCausland said. "He still has some work to do."

The Panthers next home meet is Jan. 22 against Southern Illinois-Edwardsville at 7pm.

Former volleyball player earns All-Decade honors

By KEITH FARROLL
Staff writer

Although former Lady Panther volleyball player Gianna Galanti's memories and awards of her volleyball career were an item of the past, she has received one final honor.

She was named to the All-Gateway Decade Team.

"I wasn't expecting it at all," said Galanti. "It is a real nice honor. Getting this award (is my biggest award for volleyball)."

"She would have been my vote," said Eastern volleyball coach Betty Ralston. "Was she the best player we ever had here? No. But Gianna had the most honors through the Gateway. I'm glad she got it. She worked hard."

She was a three-year starter for the Lady Panthers and she was voted to the All-Gateway team her junior and senior years. She was also academic All-Conference in the Fall of 1987 and 1988.

She holds school records for the most solo blocks in a match with seven (two times in 1987); best hitting percentage in a match, .800 (eight kills in ten attempts in 1987); best hitting percentage in a season, .330 (268 kills in 575 attempts); most solo blocks in a career with 191; most assist blocks in a career with 247 and most total blocks in a career with 438.

Galanti's four-year volleyball career (1985-88) is a story within herself. She came to Eastern with the intention of playing for the women's basketball team, but her original plans didn't follow as planned.

"Gianna originally wanted to play basketball," Ralston said. "I think she thought she would be better at basketball."

Although Galanti really wanted to play basketball, she was best at volleyball. She was a tri-sport athlete out of Lyons Township High School. She was a highly touted volleyball player in high school. Texas, Illinois State, De Paul, Mississippi, South Florida and Washington were some top colleges after her.
