Charleston police officer John Bennet discusses his experiences working the 12 a.m. to 7 a.m. patrol shift Wednesday during a review of the proposed increase in the bar-entry age at the final meeting of the liquor task force.

Police speak in favor of raising entry age

By JEREMY R. KIRK
Staff writer

Charleston police told the liquor task force Wednesday that they spend most overnight weekend hours dealing with alcohol-related problems.

Charleston police officer John Bennet told the task force that police spend most hours after 11 p.m. on the weekends tending to calls or arrests that usually involve alcohol.

Bennet said he is hesitant to enter a bar in uniform on a busy night because the crowds are "overwhelming" and sometimes hostile.

"It's one of the most dangerous situations we have to deal with," he said.

Bennet said 19 entry age is a problem because underage bar patrons have their 21-year-old friends buy alcohol.

"I arrested an out-of-towner minor with a 21-year-old license who said that if you were 19, you could get served," Bennet said.

The task force is in the process of formulating a recommendation for the Charleston City Council to decide if the bar-entry age should remain at 19 or be raised to 21.

The task force will make a recommendation on the bar-entry age issue to the City Council by March 18. The next task force meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 16 in the Scharer Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Bennet said a 21 bar-entry age would make it harder for minors to alter drivers' licenses because of the blue background used on licenses of those who are of age.

Senate begins tuition waiver investigation

By JOHN FERA
Student government editor

The Student Senate passed a unanimous resolution Wednesday night to form a committee to investigate whether Student Government executive officers should receive tuition waivers.

Senate Speaker Bobby Smith said he expects the investigative committee to meet next Thursday to discuss the pros and cons of members' tuition waivers. Currently, the five executive officers in Student Government and the speaker of the senate receive tuition waivers of $924 per semester.

"It's an issue that's come up ever since I've been on the senate," said Smith, who sponsored the resolution. "All this is a simple resolution to create a committee that can perform a simple inquiry of the tuition matter."

Smith said because of the Apportionment Board's budget restraints, he thinks now may be the right time for the senate to investigate eliminating tuition waivers.

Also at the meeting, the senate approved an emergency allocation to grant itself $1,150 to hold "What has senate done for you lately?" on April 6. The event is an informational activity for students.

Senate member Mike Treis said the event will give students the opportunity to learn more about the senate.

Treis said he needed the emergency allocation to order soft drinks and more than 200 pizzas for the senate information day. He said pizza and soda will be given free to students who attend the day's activities.

"This event will let students know (the senate) is there for them," Treis said. "A lot of times students don't contact us and let us know what they think."

Treis said a similar event was successful at the junior college he attended. He said after the event was held, voting in the senate election increased 16 percent. This year's Student Government election for Eastern will be held on April 20 - two weeks after the senate information day.

"Hopefully, this will increase voter turnout as well," Treis said. "Maybe this'll get more students interested in attending (the election forums) and asking questions there."

In other matters, Staff Senate members Roger Miller and Teresa Sims attended Wednesday's meeting to discuss the possible smoking policy changes in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Miller said the Union Board is considering eliminating three smoking areas in the Union, including the designated smoking area across from the Union Bookstore.

"You come in from off the street and the cashiers (that work in the bookstore) are right there too," Sims said. "They don't have a choice of being there with the smoke."

Miller said several other buildings on campus have at least one designated smoking area. Some buildings don't allow smoking.

Society gives students chance for profit

By DAVE HOSICK
Staff writer

The newly-formed Student Investment Society is currently looking for students willing to see their investment profit or fail.

Paul Ruedi, a 1982 graduate of the Lumpkin College of Business and Applied Science, and his business partner, David Sinow, gave $10,100 to start the group. Ruedi and Sinow are vice president and president, respectively, of Strategic Capital Management, Inc., a money management firm located in Savoy.

Both have been working for the past six months with C. Lankford Walker and Timothy Gover, both professors of the Lumpkin's accounting and finance department. Walker and Gover originated the idea for the group two years ago.

The program will operate similar to an investing firm and will be run completely by undergraduates with approval of final investment decisions coming from the board of directors, Walker said.

Student members of the organization will pay a nominal membership fee upon joining the SIS, and will then be able to propose possible security investments. The student is then responsible for presenting the proposal to the board of directors for final investment approval, Walker said.

"Any student, no matter what class they are in, as long as they have good academic standing can bring up anything for analysis by the board," Walker said. "Students are responsible for making, manufacturing and presenting the investments."

Ruedi and Sinow said the SIS will give students experience that will enhance the university's educational opportunities by improving employment opportunities for graduates and by pro-

Teen moves in with the parents she divorced

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) – For five years, Kimberly Mays resisted pleas from her biological parents to leave the man who raised her when she was swapped at birth. Now, she's living with them, after running away.

Just seven months ago, a judge ruled that Robert Mays was the 15-year-old girl's legal father and said that Ernest and Regina Twigg had no right even to visit her. Kimberly, who had gone to court to "divorce" her biological parents, was overjoyed.

Now, she has moved in with the Twiggs "in light of her special needs together with current parent-teen conflict with Bob and Darlena Mays," said David L. Denkin, attorney for Kimberly's guardian, Leslie Gift.

Last month, Kimberly ran away from home to a YMCA youth shelter, and Mays approached the Twiggs about Kimberly living with them as a "temporary and informal" placement, Denkin said.

The Twiggs and the Mays met Tuesday with attorneys and the guardian, and then talked with Kimberly before deciding she would live with the Twiggs in Sebring, about 70 miles east of Sarasota.

Mays and his wife will maintain parental control and communicate with the Twiggs and the guardian, Denkin said at a news conference.

Denkin took no questions, but nodded when asked if Kimberly was all right.

Kimberly was expected to enroll at Sebring High School, sources close to the Twiggs told The Tampa Tribune. But school officials said Wednesday they had no knowledge of the plans.

Office, there have been 136 violations for the misuse of identification cards since 1988. In the last week, 11 Eastern students have been charged with altering drivers' licenses.

"Kids do not realize that this is a felony and employers may investigate their criminal record," Bennet said.

Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger said that Gateway Liquors, 413 W. Lincoln Ave., has confiscated 96 fake IDs that customers attempted to use to purchase alcohol. The IDs were sent to the secretary of state's office.

One of the fears expressed by students and citizens at the three public forums was the potential for an increase in house parties and violence if the bar entry age were raised to 21.

Steidinger said the new keg ordinance, which requires purchasers of kegs to have a permit, has helped promote responsibility with alcohol at house parties.

"Police don't have to wait around to find out whose party it is," Steidinger said. "We are seeing some results and are making some headway in promoting responsibility with consumption of alcohol."

Steidinger said the conduct of students has changed dramatically over the past five years, with an increase in violence.

"Students are going to the emergency room because of fights (at house parties) and ending up with broken bones and faces," Steidinger said. "It's getting vicious."

Despite Charleston police efforts to curb underage drinking, Steidinger said, police still arrest numerous minors on the streets who have been drinking.

"We find and pick people off the streets," Steidinger said. "We don't even have to hunt for these people."

The task force also discussed the problem of enforcing the 21 drinking age if the entry age is kept at 19.

"The bottom line is we can't stop all of them (underage patrons) from getting a drink if they're in there (the bars)," task force member Don Yost said. "The only way to stop underage drinking is if they're not in there at all."

viding valuable experience in investment management.

"We were wanting to find a way where students could invest real money where they could watch their investment lose or grow funds," Gover said. "Students will learn the personal aspects of investing, which will be very helpful after their graduation."

"The SIS is a very positive opportunity for students, because very few universities have it," Walker said.

The only other university with a similar program is Illinois State University in Normal. The advantage of Eastern's program is that students are allowed to make several trade investments during a semester, whereas ISU's program only allows students to make one investment per semester, Walker said.

SIS has been recognized by the EIU Foundation Board of Directors as one of its three money managers for funds designated for SIS use. The performance of the fund will be compared to that of the two professional money management firms employed by the foundation.

Along with Gover and Walker, the board of directors will include Martha Brown, professor of nutrition and associate dean of the Lumpkin College of Business and Applied Sciences; Matthew Monippallil, professor of accountancy; and Stephen Falk, vice president of institutional advancement and foundation executive officer.

Jorns: Funding still not enough

By AMY CARNES
Administration editor

The $1.8 million funding increase for Eastern proposed by Gov. Jim Edgar is an improvement from last year's appropriations, but still not enough for the university to fulfill its needs, Eastern President David Jorns said.

If the governor's proposal is passed by the General Assembly, Eastern will receive 55.2 million from the state for expenses during the upcoming school year. This is a 3.5 percent increase from the 1992-93 school year.

Jorns said he was pleased the governor made no cuts in the university's $55.2 million budget request but the amount is not enough for the university to operate.

"The amount being recommended is not nearly enough to make any significant inroads in university needs," he said. "We'll be able to make some progress but not a great deal."

This school year, Eastern spent about $1.7 million for faculty salary increases. Last fall, Eastern faculty received a 3.3 percent pay hike retroactive to Sept. 1. An additional 5.2 percent pay-equity adjustment took effect in January.

This figure added to the $700,000 the university paid out in vacation and sick-leave benefits for its employees last year nearly equals next year's proposed increase.

Jorns has said a significant portion of Eastern's increased funding would come from the Illinois Board of Higher Education's proposed 3 percent tuition hike and an expected enrollment increase.

Also included in the governor's budget is a $37 million boost for financial aid and a 50 percent increase for higher education building projects, which includes $1.75 million to complete the Buzzard Building renovation.

"I think it is a very good investment in the state's ultimate welfare to put money into education, particularly higher education where the return is excellent," Jorns said.

Jorns said each governing board must now introduce its own funding bill, which will be debated in the Illinois General Assembly. The General Assembly has the option to approve, amend or change the governor's budget before the end of June. The new fiscal year begins July 1.

Widening knowledge of health expo's goal

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Staff writer

Safe sex, the HIV virus, sickle cell anemia and nutrition are a few of the lecture topics that will highlight Eastern's Second Annual Health Expo and Symposium Friday and Saturday.

Jim Irwin, a member of the expo's executive board guest speaker bureau, said the goal of Health Expo '94 was to broaden the public's knowledge of health.

"Basically, we want to get health information into the hands of people who are interested in long, healthy lifestyles," said Irwin, a training and development specialist.

"Our sub-title expresses our goal best."

This year's expo is titled "Health Expo '94: A Blueprint for Action."

In addition to concurrent lecture sessions, the expo will also feature several activities geared specifically toward children.

"Our purpose is to encourage people of all ages to improve their well-being by developing their personal blueprint for action," said executive coordinator Ollie Ray.

"We want to try to educate kids and try to bring them into the health issue," Irwin said. "Health is something all ages should be involved in."

Charleston police continue to wait for victim's story

By DAVID M. PUTNEY

Police are still waiting to question the student burned Sunday by caustic chemicals to find out how he received his injuries.

Police questioned Greg McCoy, 20, of Lovington for a few minutes shortly after he was found, but he was unable to provide any information.

"We're waiting for him to be able to talk," Charleston Police Chief Herb Steidinger said.

McCoy received severe chemical burns on his back, legs, arms and buttocks after he lay unconscious in a pile of powdered lime for several hours. Police say he was either pushed or fell into the lime.

McCoy remains in critical condition in the burn unit at Springfield Memorial Medical Center. Family members have set up a fund to collect money for his surgery.

McCoy had been drinking the night the incident occurred, police said.

Steidinger said the investigation has not revealed how McCoy was able to allegedly obtain alcohol at a local bar where his fraternity was holding a function. Steidinger said he doesn't plan to question representatives of the welding company to find out if the gate into the pit had been left unlocked over the weekend.

If the gate had been closed, as owners of the welding company have said, McCoy would have had to crawl over or through a 6-foot fence to get into the lime-pit area. The Charleston police officer who found McCoy near the lime pit said the gate was opened and unlocked when he found McCoy.

Donations to the surgery fund can be made at Hardware State Bank in Lovington. For more information, the bank may be contacted at 873-4313.

Featured author Riane Eisler to speak at Lumpkin Friday

By ADAM McHUGH
Activities editor

Events such as the 1992 Los Angeles riots and last year's siege on the Branch Davidians are part of a pattern of world events, according to author Riane Eisler.

Eisler, who will speak at Eastern Friday, said there is a pattern to all major events that take place anywhere in the world. Eisler will speak at noon in the Lumpkin Hall Auditorium.

She said the way society is structured, and how people interact supply the reasons why certain events occur.

Eisler is one of the featured speakers for Women's History and Awareness Month. The presentation is sponsored by Eastern's Women's Studies Council.

Eisler's book "The Chalice and the Blade" focused on her "dominator and partnership" theories, which analyze relationships between men, women and families.

She said the book, which has been translated into 12 languages, has "been helpful and informative to a lot of people."

Eisler said she thinks the

world is currently shifting toward the "partnership" theory, which she said explains anti-war and environmental movements today. The theory is built on unity.

Eisler said such national issues as pollution, population growth and war are often categorized for a certain group — something she avoids in her work.

"I don't think things should be categorized into simply women's issues; they are central issues to all of us," Eisler said.

She said when her book was translated into German, the CEO of Volkswagen wrote the forward, which she thinks is proof that men, as well as women, are interested in her work.

"There is a kind of excitement about these issues not only among women, but among men also," Eisler said.

Another issue Eisler said she focuses on in her work is what parents teach their children and what effect it has on the world.

Eisler, who said she considers herself a "systems scientist" because of her multidisciplinary background, is currently working on two books, one dealing with economics and another focusing on pain and pleasure principles of the body.

Eisler, who has studied anthropology and economics, said she thinks understanding history is the key for creating a workable future.

"I feel if we don't understand our past, we will have trouble dealing with our future," Eisler said.

Eisler, who has been writing and lecturing on her work for more than two decades, said although she studies prehistory, she does not consider herself an archaeologist.

Exchange students to discuss diversity

A panel discussion titled "Cultural Diversity and the Global Economy" will be held tonight from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Roberson Auditorium of Lumpkin Hall.

The discussion will include seven panelists with experience studying or working abroad from among Eastern faculty, staff and students.

Topics will include personal experiences of the panel members in adjusting to life in the United States, benefits to American students traveling abroad, and the importance of becoming culturally literate in today's world.

"The event is mostly to broaden the ideas of EIU faculty along with the knowledge of the students about foreign experiences," said Carol Lundgren, an associate professor of business education and one of the event's coordinators.

Among others, panelist will include the following people: Wolfgang Schlauch, study abroad coordinator and professor of history; Brigitte Chen, international students adviser; Jyoti Prasad, associate professor of marketing and management and Luciana Gomez, a graduate student from Brazil. The discussion is sponsored by the Lumpkin College of Business and Applied Science's International Programs Advisory Board and the Lumpkin Cultural Diversity Committee.

You can tell it's an election year for Edgar

You can tell it's an election year.

The usually fiscally restrictive Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar came out last week with a budget plan that proposed few cuts, endorsed most of the state agency proposals, and offered what seemed to be an aggressive plan for 1994-95 fiscal year.

Editorial

In short, it was not vintage Jim Edgar.

The Charleston-born governor has been criticized as a status-quo maintainer who doesn't do anything dynamic or innovative. Is this budget an honest break from this style, or is it just election year politics?

One of the larger surprises was Edgar's endorsement of the higher education request from the Illinois Board of Higher Education. Speaking a day before his total budget address, Edgar approved an $86.4 million increase for higher education.

What makes this move so odd is that, last year, Edgar froze funding for higher education and has been fiscally stringent throughout his three years as governor. Higher education has been one of the harder hit areas in Edgar's past budgets.

The most dynamic part of the Edgar budget is a Medicaid revision that would eliminate a hospital tax and restructure state debt. The restructuring, Edgar said, would allow the state to save enough interest money to pay off Medicaid.

Edgar has been, for the most part, a governor who was concerned with re-establishing the Illinois economy. Have his attempts to rework the economy been successful enough to warrant the budget increases he proposed this time around, or is this an attempt to get him elected?

The money recommended for higher education is definitely necessary and the Medicaid reform is an interesting prospect, but the largest concern Illinois' citizens should have is moving the state forward.

Does Edgar really want to move the state forward, or does he just want to make it past November?

Education is key to understanding hazing

Hazing.

The murmurs are getting louder around campus, parents are starting to call the administrators and some students are becoming more anti-greek by the minute.

Questions of whether greeks are getting the picture about the 'no hazing' signs at Eastern are being asked. But the question should be, "Are the students getting educated about what hazing is and what the penalties are that go along with it?"

Eastern, like many universities, has a hazing policy. If an organization violates the hazing policy, it can be:

- censured, as in the case with Sigma Nu Fraternity, where members were punished for mentally hazing pledges. Censure may include the required completion of a program designed with the intent of eliminating hazing.

- put on probation, as in the case of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, which was punished for alcohol-related pledging, and Zeta Phi Beta sorority, which was punished for membership violations. Probation lasts for one calendar year, and conditions of the probation are to be determined by the Judicial Affairs Office and the Office of Student Activities.

- suspended, as in the case of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity for alcohol-related pledging. The terms of the suspension shall be defined in the sanction, including criteria that the organization must meet within a specified period of time to regain university recognition.

- revoked, as in the case of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, which was punished for membership violations. Here the organization will have its status as a recognized student organization revoked, with a loss of all university recognition and privileges.

Each degree of this enforcement is much harsher than the one preceding it. In each case, the organizations may be required to perform community service hours, workshops and various other compliances to complete the disciplinary action taken by the university.

Students should also be aware of the differences of opinion of what constitutes hazing. It's obvious that hazing and pledging rituals are distinctly different between the Black Greek Council and the Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council, but the Office of Student Activities handles each hazing violation under the SAME rules and restrictions.

Evette Pearson

"Education and communication are steps Eastern should take to alleviate some of the misconceptions..."

In other words, what is viewed as hazing in one community is not viewed as hazing in the other, but the criteria for punishment carries the same weight.

Of the organizations that have been punished for hazing violations, whether white or black, each case is handled separately, according to Eileen Sullivan and Ceci Brinker, advisers of the three councils.

But are they handled separately, or does one incident creep into the heads of board members when deciding a penalty? Some violations should hold more weight than others because of the different practices in each of the greek communities.

Education and communication are steps Eastern should take to alleviate some of the misconceptions of what is or isn't fair punishment for organizations that have violated school policy.

If we are educated about the four degrees of enforcement for violating the hazing policy, students and organizations may not think there is favoritism from one group to another.

Don't be fooled, greekdom is not a utopia! These hazing and pledging practices didn't just begin. But some administrators' concerns are being voiced more because of the recent lawsuits and deaths that have been attributed to hazing over the past six years. And some people are just opening their eyes to the fact that hazing is still prominent in the greek community.

All I say to the students, administration and the Office of Student Activities is be fair and learn that education is the key.

Without fairness and education, the misconceptions and beliefs of yesteryear will be the programmatic thrust of tomorrow.

Friends, floormates pause to remember deceased student

Dear editor:

We thought it was about time that something was said about Lou Rainaldi by the people who really knew him. (Rainaldi died on Sunday from meningococemia, a blood infection caused by meningitis-related bacteria.) Most of the guys on the floor only knew Lou for about seven months, but because of the atmosphere that dormitory life provides, he was a part of our lives each and every day and we all became good friends.

A friend of Lou's was told to remember the good things to help the pain go away. Her response is how we all feel; his presence provided us with nothing but good things. We expected laughs, jokes and smiles whenever he walked into our rooms.

His health and physical condition were admirable. He never drank a drop, didn't touch tobacco, ate well and worked out daily. On more than one occasion, he provided us with a safe ride home from the bars or a shoulder to lean on when we were less than sober.

Our hockey games on the Sega were a constant, and even though he played with the best team, he'd lose time after time and come back for more. Lou was proud of being Italian, and his humorous T-shirts let you know it. Simply put, he was the kind of guy you couldn't help but like and count on.

To those people who may have joked about the illness or wanted a hot story, we're both saddened and annoyed because we only wish you could have seen how sick he was on Saturday. Most people won't be able to understand how it feels to think your friend just has a bad case of the flu one night and then learn that he died the next night. The suddenness doesn't make it hurt any less, but just makes it harder for things to sink in.

Lou Rainaldi was a fine person and our good friend. He will be missed immensely. Our prayers go out to his family.

Yeltsin angered, cancels meetings

MOSCOW (AP) — A peeved President Boris Yeltsin froze Richard Nixon out of the Kremlin on Wednesday, complaining about the hard-line Communist company the former president has been keeping.

Nixon's meetings with Yeltsin and other government officials were all canceled as a result of his talks with Yeltsin opponents, particularly the man who proclaimed himself Russian president during last October's uprising.

Then Yeltsin really got nasty: He took away the bodyguards and black Zil limousine his government had put at Nixon's disposal. He did the same thing two years ago to another former president who angered him, Mikhail Gorbachev.

Yeltsin said his snub should be no surprise.

"This is impossible after the sort of meetings Nixon has had here, and I'm glad President Clinton supports this position," Yeltsin said in unusually harsh remarks to reporters on Red Square.

Yeltsin said Clinton had distanced himself from Nixon's private visit, but Clinton said Wednesday he believed the Russian president should meet Nixon.

"It's up to President Yeltsin whom he sees and doesn't see," Clinton said. "I wish he would see him (Nixon) because I think they'd enjoy talking to one another."

Yeltsin was in no mood for a friendly chat.

"How can one do something like that? Coming to a country and looking for some sort of stains here?" he said, scowling and jabbing his finger in the air to emphasize his disgust.

"No, after that, I will not (receive Nixon)!" he said. "Nor will the government. ... So that he knows: Russia is a great country, after all. And playing with it like this, doing it this way ... this won't work now."

A Nixon adviser accused Yeltsin of overreacting and of picking on the former president.

"I am surprised first of all that President Yeltsin would not find anybody but an 81-year-old former U.S. president who is his friend and Russia's friend to reassert his macho and to tell us that Russia is a great country," Dmitry Simes told reporters.

But he said Nixon has suffered bigger setbacks.

"He is puzzled, he is disappointed," Simes said. "But you know that, with his long career, and 81, he is a big boy, and he has had his share of disappointments in his life, some of them much more serious than this one."

Clinton said he talked to Nixon before he left on his 10-day trip to Russia that envisaged visits with hardliners shunned by the U.S. administration, including ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovskiy.

Commission blames poor security in mosque deaths

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — The Jewish settler who slaughtered 30 Muslims in a Hebron mosque was allowed to enter by army guards even though he wore a marksman's protective headset and carried a bag of ammunition, an Israeli inquiry commission was told Wednesday.

The commission also retraced Baruch Goldstein's steps through the mosque, where water hoses used to wash out blood still lay, signs of a cleanup that Muslims said had destroyed important evidence.

The major in charge of the guard detail greeted Goldstein at the entrance at dawn on Feb. 25 and asked why he was wearing an army uniform, according to testimony.

"I'm doing reserve duty," the Jewish settler answered, then walked unhindered into the Tomb of the Patriarchs where he opened fire, killing at least 30 men and boys kneeling in prayer.

The new details confirmed earlier testimony by army commanders who said security was lax before the massacre, with only half the 10 guards reporting for duty.

Hundreds of troops patrolled outside while the five-member commission spent four hours Wednesday reconstructing the shooting spree inside the fortress-like shrine in central Hebron.

The site, holy to both Muslims and Jews, has been closed since the massacre that disrupted the Israel-PLO peace talks.

Tensions remain high between the city's 80,000 Palestinians and 450 Jewish settlers living in six enclaves. The Palestinians have been confined to their homes under an army-imposed curfew since the massacre, while armed Jewish settlers walked around freely.

It was too early to tell how Israelis and Palestinians would react to the investigation's revelations of lax security. Both sides apparently are waiting to see where the commission lays the final blame.

In the Tomb, the commission met with Hebron's chief Muslim official, Sheik Saleh Natsheh.

"We are asking you to bring the truth to light for the sake of our two peoples, so they can learn a lesson," Natsheh told the commission head, Supreme Court Chief Justice Meir Shamgar, according to a pool transcript.

Coffrin seeking third term

By OMAR M. HEADEN
Staff writer

Running unopposed in the primary, Betty Coffrin is seeking a third term as Coles County Clerk.

Coffrin said she anticipates continuing the level of service established by the office if she also wins in the Nov. 8 election. Issues she would like to continue to pursue include compliance with the National Voter Registration Act and the maintenance of the Coles County's 12,000 documented land records.

Coffrin's department consists of five offices, including the tax extension office and the recorder of deeds office.

Her other responsibilities include being an election adviser for the county and a registrar of marital deeds.

"In 1995, the implementation of the voters act will open voter registration considerably," she said. "The problems of unfunded mandates and money for services will also have to be faced."

Having years of experience, Coffrin said, she knows the responsibilities of the job and accepts the challenges of the territory.

"I'm too young to retire," she said. "I like to get involved and the everyday challenges get into my system. But it's not natural, sometimes you have to step up to the plate and just run for it."

"But I can't forget the services of our great staff," says Coffrin. "They're an intricate part to the success of this office."

Coffrin first came to office in 1971.

"I started out as deputy county clerk and was later promoted to chief," she said. "But in 1986 the county clerk retired, and I decided that this was what I wanted to do."

Candidate looking to boost economy

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A Roland Burris administration would boost the economy by helping communities and entrepreneurs start small businesses, improving job-training and revamping state regulations, the Democratic candidate for governor said Wednesday.

He also said his lieutenant governor would oversee economic development programs, leading a task force to review current policy and produce detailed proposals for change within six months of taking office.

Burris says his running mate, businesswoman Sheila Smith, is uniquely qualified to oversee business initiatives. But he would be forced to run with another candidate if Smith loses in the primary.

"Our plan is about jobs: creating jobs, retaining jobs and developing jobs," Burris, the state attorney general, said in a statement. "Our plan ... was conceived by people with real-life experience in creating jobs — a banker experienced in nurturing small business start-ups and an entrepreneur who has herself created new businesses."

The Burris plan closely resembles the economic development proposals offered by his Democratic rivals, Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch and Cook County Board President Richard Phelan.

All three promise better handling of job-training programs, additional money for small business and a greater emphasis on advanced technology.

Economic development, however, is critical to Burris' plans for education. He promises to give schools $250 million more every year from natural revenue growth. If the state economy dips, that money won't be available and he might be forced to raise taxes.

Smith said Burris' emphasis on "community empowerment" separates his plan from the others. That amounts to helping community groups set up businesses in poor areas, rather than having the state work on its own.

Smith said her role in overseeing economic development also distinguishes the Burris plan from its counterparts.

"I think I'm the lieutenant governor (candidate) who has the knowledge and experience to develop economic development plans for this state," Smith said at a Statehouse news confer-

Crane fighting for bid

Man with a plan

Highlights of the economic development plan issued Wednesday by gubernatorial candidate Roland Burris:

- A task force will produce an economic development plan defining agency responsibilities, prioritizing construction projects and suggesting regulatory improvements.
- The lieutenant governor will coordinate the state's various job-training programs, emphasizing training offered through community colleges.
- Increase funding for scientific research. The campaign could not say how much the state spends on research or how much that should be increased.
- Set aside more government business for companies owned by women and minorities. Offer low-interest loans for business and housing construction in poor areas.
- Create "incubators" to provide capital, technology and advice to people starting businesses. Work closely with community groups.
- Revamp Illinois grain laws, collect information on soil productivity for farmers and continue pushing for federal policies that support ethanol.

ence.

She runs Advance Rubber Concepts Inc., a suburban Chicago business that sells rubber key pads for computers and telephones.

The company has an Oklahoma sales office and imports the key pads from Taiwan. Smith's major rival for the lieutenant governor nomination, Sen. Penny Severns of Decatur, criticized the businesswoman for not consolidating all her work in Illinois.

Smith defended her record, saying she turned around a failing business by working internationally and hopes to bring even more jobs to Illinois.

"I think the state does need the kind of economic development I have provided an example of," she said.

Crane fighting for bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overshadowed by Dan Rostenkowski's fight to survive politically, long-time Rep. Phil Crane faces the toughest reelection bid among Illinois' congressional incumbents.

His main challenger is a fellow conservative who once interned in Crane's office and has spent $600,000 of his own money — a giant sum in an Illinois congressional primary — to send Crane into retirement.

But the former allies' rivalry may allow a more moderate Republican to slip ahead in the wealthy district that includes northwestern Cook County and western Lake County to the Wisconsin border.

The Crane camp portrays freshman state Sen. Peter Fitzgerald of Inverness as the villain who threatens to split the conservative vote.

"That is a scenario that indeed we counseled Peter on when he got in this thing," said Crane's campaign manager, Kirt Johnson. "He runs the risk of losing the seat to someone we view as more moderate to liberal."

Clinton aides to face jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton told aides to "be very open" Wednesday, a day before they faced grand jury questioning in the probe of possible meddling in the Whitewater investigation. The special prosecutor pleaded on Capitol Hill for Republicans to hold off their own hearings.

With aides summoned to testify on Thursday, the White House bundled relevant papers for prosecutors. The appearances of at least two of President Clinton's closest aides — Bruce Lindsey and Harold Ickes — were postponed.

Special prosecutor Robert B. Fiske called the Clinton administration "very responsive and cooperative" after trying to persuade Republicans to delay congressional hearings until he completes his inquiry into whether the White House attempted to influence the investigation.

He said he planned to finish that part of his inquiry within a few months, after which he would have no objections to hearings.

Fiske won half a loaf from the lawmakers he met with.

Republican Sens. Alfonse D'Amato and William Cohen said they couldn't agree with his request to hold off on all hearings.

However, both said they had assured Fiske that prosecutors would get first crack at critical witnesses and that Congress would not grant immunity to anyone it called to testify.

Congress granted immunity to crucial witnesses in the Iran-Contra hearings, a factor in the reversal of several convictions.

"We have assured the counsel we can conduct our oversight hearings in a manner which will not deter or preclude him from carrying out his responsibilities," D'Amato said.

Fiske is probing the failure of Arkansas' Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association and whether investors in the Whitewater land venture — including President and Hillary Rodham Clinton — benefited from questionable Madison transactions during the 1980s.

Men, women bodybuilders to compete in championship

By BOB CRAMPTON
Staff writer

The Seventh Annual Mr. and Ms. EIU Bodybuilding Championships will be held Friday at 7 p.m. in Buzzard Auditorium.

The contest is sponsored by Darrell Latch and Son Light Power Gym.

Latch said the contest gives students an opportunity to show that long hours in the gym pay off.

That's exactly how 21-year-old lightweight Steve Fanelli sees it.

"It's really nice to have a competition like this because it gives us a chance to get out there and show people what we've done," said Fanelli, who has been following a strict diet while pumping iron six days a week.

"My main goal is to win my weight class," said the 138-pound Fanelli, who is entering his first bodybuilding contest.

The men's classes include: lightweight, up to 154 pounds; middleweight, 154-162 pounds; light-heavyweight, 162-176 pounds; and heavyweight, more than 176.

The women's divisions include: lightweight, up to 114 pounds; middleweight, 114-125 pounds; and heavyweight, over 125 pounds.

Trophies will be awarded to each contestant, the best posers and the overall Mr. and Ms. EIU titles.

This is the first time the contest will be held at Buzzard Auditorium. Previously, the competition has been held at Charleston High School.

"In the past, we usually had 15 to 18 competitors along with 300 to 400 people in attendance," Latch said. "I hope it's much of the same this year."

Phillies all-star has surgery to remove cancerous testicle

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — John Kruk, the wise-cracking first baseman who powered the Philadelphia Phillies to the pennant last season, had a testicle removed that was later found to be cancerous.

The 33-year-old all-star will face more tests to see if the cancer has spread. However, it's believed the cancer was confined to the testicle.

If there is no spread, Dr. Phillip Marone, the team physician, said Wednesday that Kruk can expect a full recovery.

"A seminoma is a cancer that is very curable," Marone said. "If there is spread, then the treatment is a very low dose of irradiation, of which the cure rate is 99 percent."

Testicular cancer is the most common form of cancer found in young adult, white males, and one of the most curable. It is diagnosed in about 6,000 patients annually in the United States and causes fewer than 400 deaths.

The surgery, which was performed in Philadelphia on Tuesday night, involved a small incision and the removal of a cord that allows blood to flow into the area.

Kruk spent the night in the hospital and was released Wednesday.

The hematoma developed when an errant throw by former Phillies reliever Mitch Williams hit Kruk in the groin in a game last season against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Northern

First, junior forward Joy Westendorf was named the Mid-Con "Player of the Week" after averaging 31 points in their last two games, including a career-high 32 points in the Raiders' loss to Valparaiso.

Westendorf, who almost matched that output with a 30-point performance against Illinois-Chicago, finished the season as the top three-point percentage shooter in the conference.

Second, Wright State head coach Terry Hall, who has been recovering from ovarian cancer, is back with the team for the Mid-Con Tournament.

Northern, which finished as the Mid-Con leader in scoring margin, has been led all season by their star guard and Mid-Con scoring leader E.C. Hill, who has averaged around 22 points for the majority of the season.

"E.C. wants to take this team further than any other Northern team, which is the sweet 16," Dieterle said. "I'm glad she has that kind of attitude. She's at the top of her game and is very hard to contain. We're all excited about the challenge."

In other tournament action: Fifth-seed UIC (10-14, 8-8), upset by Wright State on Saturday, will attempt to get back on track in its tournament contest against fourth-seed Valparaiso (14-12, 10-8), which captured its last two contests to end the season.

The Flames' Penny Armstrong, who averaged over 21 points per game, finishing second in the conference in scoring, has been the offensive standout all season for UIC.

Meanwhile, No. 2 seed Wisconsin-Green Bay (14-10, 12-5), winners of its last two conference games, will be challenged by seventh-seed Cleveland State (11-13, 7-9), which upset Western on Friday.

Then No. 3 seed Western Illinois (12-12, 9-7), which captured its last two Mid-Con contests after dropping four-straight games, will face sixth-seed Wisconsin-Milwaukee (12-14, 9-9).

Poor

percent of its threes, compared to 37 percent by its opponents.

And free throws suffered as well. Only four Panther players shot above 66 percent from the line, and they shot only 66 percent from the charity stripe as a team.

Some highlights from the season included a season-opening 81-76 win over Indiana State, an 91-89 road win over Illinois-Chicago, a 63-62 road win against defending-league champ Wright State and a 78-74 overtime win against Northern Illinois at Lantz Gym.

Individually, junior Derrick Landrus continued to mature at the off-guard position. The Charleston native led the Panthers in scoring (12.4), assists (3.0), steals (44) and minutes played (804) while shooting 35 percent from three-point range in 155 attempts.

Senior center Darrell Young capped his basketball career with an exclamation point, leading the team in rebounding (6.3) and having perhaps his finest game of the year in Eastern's first-round loss to Valpo, scoring 16 points and collecting 12 boards.

And senior Curtis Leib finished his Panther career in style, leading the team in shooting percentage (.517) while coming off the bench most of the year.

Of course, there was room for improvement. Samuels will look for more leadership from his point-guard, sophomore Johnny Hernandez, next season.

"I think by Johnny's nature, he needs to be our coordinator on the floor next year," said Samuels. "I told him that even though we'll have three seniors back, he has to be our leader."

And junior forward Louis Jordan, who's scoring average decreased by two points this year, lacked consistency much of the season.

"Louis has tendencies to flatten out when things don't go well," said Samuels. "I want him to understand that he will not be the kind of player he can be until he can come through in tough times."

Young, one of three graduating seniors on this year's squad, which also includes Leib and guard Troy Collier, may have said it best.

"I guess its wait 'til next year," he said. "They've got a good nucleus coming back next year, but I'm sick of hearing that in Charleston — next year."

Poor shooting hindered men's basketball team

By RANDY LISS
Staff writer

The Eastern men's basketball team finished the regular season with a 12-14 overall record, tied for sixth place in the Mid-Continent Conference with a 7-11 mark and was beaten in the first round of the conference tournament by Valparaiso 74-62 on Sunday, marking the second straight season that the Panthers have been ousted in the quarterfinal round.

These are the facts and they are undisputed. And wondering why brings you back to the same answer — shooting.

Coming into this season, the Panthers were looking to prove the experts wrong. Experts that predicted Eastern to finish in eighth place in the 10-team conference.

While Eastern finished a bit higher than was anticipated, its final record does not disprove any of its critics.

Plagued by a shooting slump that lasted nearly the entire season, the Panthers' rebounding and defense could not make up for their lack of scoring punch game in and game out.

"This is my feeling," said Panther coach Rick Samuels. "We've not been absent of effort this year. I think we played hard and our opponents feel like we've played extremely hard but our Achilles' Heel is simply that we've not been very confident offensively."

Eastern had a tough time shooting from anywhere this year. The Panthers finished with a 42 percent shooting percentage, but shot either 40 percent or lower 11 times during the year.

Three-point shots were down, especially during a stretch of seven straight games in which the Panthers shot less than 30 percent from the three-point arc. Eastern hit 28

Northern set for Mid-Con tournament

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

In racking up an undefeated record in the Mid-Continent Conference this women's basketball season, Northern Illinois received the top seed in tonight's postseason tournament in DeKalb.

The defending Mid-Con champion Huskies, who finished the with an 18-0 mark in the Mid-Con — 20-4 overall — will be challenged by eighth-seeded Wright State (12-14, 7-11) in first-round action at Chick Evens Fieldhouse.

The Lady Raiders will certainly be at a disadvantage when they face NIU. Not only will they be playing Northern on its home floor, they have lost by an average of 30 points in two regular season games against the Huskies.

But despite the advantages and expectations of another Mid-Con title, Huskies coach

Jean Albright-Dieterle said its important the team takes it one game at a time, beginning with the Wright State contest.

"We know the season games were a good experience," Dieterle said. "But we know that one loss now we quit playing. We have a lot of different weapons and a lot of players have stepped up at different times."

"But in order to win the tournament, we have to win three games in a row. So we will have to call on our depth and play well. We've been a pretty balanced team all season."

Meanwhile, Wright State has won just three of its last 11 Mid-Con ball games, tied with Cleveland State for seventh place in the Mid-Con., though it did upset Illinois-Chicago this weekend.

And Wright State has two other positives going for them.

Women's tennis team loses to Bradley, 5-4

The women's tennis team lost its chance at revenge Wednesday, dropping a match to Bradley, 5-4 in Peoria.

Coach John Ross said it was a close match and hinged on two close singles matches. Eastern's No. 2 singles player Samantha Wulfers and No. 6 singles player Stephany Sullivan both lost by close scores to their Bradley opponents. Wulfers fell 6-4, 7-6 to Katie Borgstrom and Sullivan lost 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 to Stephany Morgan.

"Those were two pivotal matches," Ross said. "If we would have been able to win one of them we would have won (the meet)."

Bradley beat Eastern last year at Weller Courts 9-0 and Ross said his team was seeking some revenge.

Eastern's Theresa Ramage

lost at No. 1 singles 6-0, 6-1 and Terra Erickson lost at No. 3 singles 6-2, 6-2. At No. 4 singles, the Lady Panthers' Geeta Dua beat Mercedes Delamore 6-1, 6-2 and at No. 5 singles Kristy Sims beat Bridget Stansel 6-1, 6-2.

Eastern won two of three doubles matches, getting wins from Ramage and Wulfers at No. 1 (7-5, 6-4) and Dua and Erickson at No. 3 (6-1, 7-5). Melissa Welch and Sims lost at No. 2 doubles 6-3, 6-3.

"I was pleased with the effort we gave," Ross said. "If we could have gotten a break here or there, we could have beaten a very talented Bradley team."

Eastern's next match will March 22 against Cleveland State in Florida. The match will count toward the Lady Panthers' conference record.

Third athletic director candidate on campus

The third of the four finalists to interview for the vacant position of Eastern athletic director is on campus and will be here today through Friday afternoon.

William Weidner, assistant athletic director at Southern Methodist University, was scheduled to have dinner with Eastern President David Jorns Wednesday night before beginning a full day of interviews this morning.

After breakfast, Weidner is scheduled to interview with the Athletic Director Search Committee from 8:15 to 9 a.m., with Eastern coaches from 9 to 10:20 a.m. and with staff and staff senate from 10:30 to 11:20 a.m., all in the 1895 Room of Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union.

Weidner will then be given a tour of the Eastern campus from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

After lunch, Weidner will meet with the administrative athletics staff from 1 to 1:50 p.m., faculty and Faculty Senate from 2 to 2:50 p.m., students and Student Senate from 3 to 3:50 p.m., vice presidents from 4 to 4:45 p.m. and the Intercollegiate Athletics Board from 4:45 to 5:30 p.m., all in the 1895 Room.

After dinner, Weidner will attend a reception in his honor attended by members of the Panther Club, the EIU Club and the Charleston community, also in the 1895 Room.

Friday's schedule will have Weidner meeting with the Student Athletic Advisory Board from 8 to 8:50 a.m., with deans, directors, chairpersons and the Council of University Administrators from 9 to 9:50 a.m. and the Athletic Director Search Committee, once again from 10 to 11:15 a.m., again, all in the 1895 Room.

Weidner will then meet with Jorns again from 11:30 a.m. to noon before leaving Wednesday afternoon.

Weidner's itinerary is the same as that of the other three finalists.

Bobby Thompson, athletic director at Texas-San Antonio, will interview

Sunday through Tuesday.

Robert McBee, athletic director and associate professor of sport administration at Robert Morris College in Pittsburgh, was on campus for his interview earlier this week.

W. Dean Billick, a former associate athletic director and sports information director at the University of Pittsburgh, interviewed last week.

Charles Colbert, Eastern vice president of business affairs and chairman of the Athletic Director Search Committee, and Jorns have both said they expect to have a new athletic director chosen by the end of the current semester.

For the past two months, from 3 to 6 p.m., Lantz Fieldhouse has been a scene of pure mayhem.

With both the Eastern men's and women's track teams, as well as the baseball and softball teams practicing all at once, it's a wonder they get anything done.

"If someone walked in off the street, it would probably look like a three-ring circus," said head baseball coach Dan Callahan.

The potential for accidents and injury is tremendous on any given afternoon, as there could be close to 120 athletes attempting to get a serious workout in.

A typical day in Lantz Fieldhouse goes something like this:

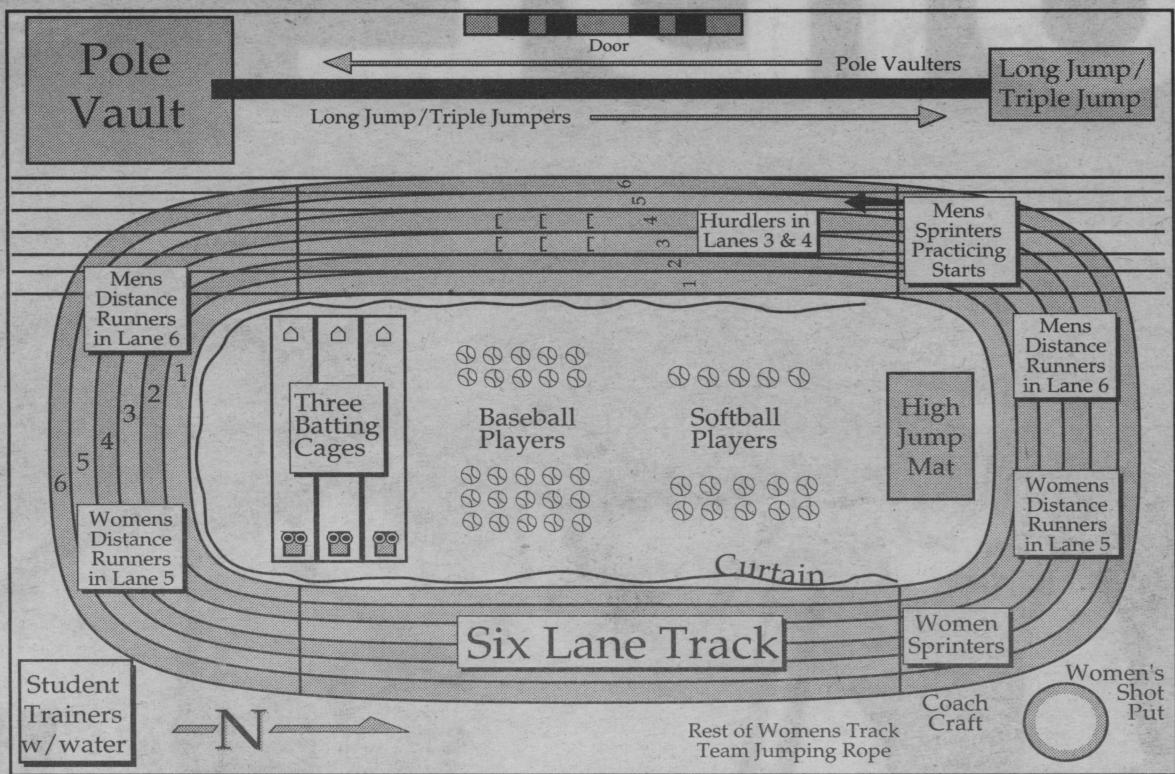

On the homestretch at the far side of the room, head men's track coach Neil Moore has a starting gun raised high, and is training his sprinters. Women's coach John Craft is doing the same on the back-straight.

The sprinters are focused and concentrating on their technique coming out of the starting blocks.

They're not worrying about anyone being in their way as they tear out at full speed. To do so would defeat the purpose.

In the outside lanes, mid-distance and long distance runners are doing interval laps, sometimes at 90 percent of their maximum speed.

Callahan's baseball team and Beth Perine's softball team are on the infield. At the south end, the batting cages are down, and the two squads take turns using them. Whichever team is not batting will most likely be doing defensive work in the center of the infield.

High jumpers at the north end of the infield must bravely turn their backs to the fury of balls flying back and forth if they want to get their work done.

The pole vaulters and horizontal jumpers, practicing on the west-end runway, are safe from the traffic on the six-lane track, as long as they stay there during rush hour.

Curtains surrounding the infield divide the two worlds. However, anyone attempting to cross the threshold had better keep their eyes and ears open.

"Track!", yells a group of runners to a baseball player trying to make his way across to get a drink. The student trainers guarding the water pumps are less than 30 feet away.

But with all the traffic, they seem much farther than that, and the player has to wait until there is a clear path. Because of the curtains, it's often hard to see what's coming around the curves.

"We usually warn our players about track runners coming around. You have to move quickly even when you're looking out for them," Callahan said.

"We all know our space, but you have to stay heads up," said Perine.

Although those with ball in hand run the risk of getting plowed by ten or more runners.

The tracksters in turn could just as easily get pegged in the head with a ball or turn an ankle on one.

It's a good thing for everyone involved, that the men's hammer throwers, who can toss around 35-pound implements in excess of 40 feet, practice from 2 to 3 p.m.

every day.

Surviving an afternoon practice in Lantz is an accomplishment in itself, but the coaches agree that, for the most part, it all works out pretty well.

"Knock on wood, it's been pretty safe," Perine said. "But I've seen some close calls. When I first came here I said, 'This will not work.' But my student-athletes would say, 'Trust us, it does.'"

Moore, in his 20th season at the helm of men's track, said he has seen only one serious injury.

"A high jumper of mine, John Barron, got hit in the eye with a ball once, and he was temporarily blinded," Moore said. That incident, however, occurred in the mid-1970's.

"You learn to cope with the crowd," Callahan said. "It's something we've gotten used to. We feel fortunate to have a facility as nice as Lantz."

"We are very fortunate to have it no matter how congested it gets," Perine said. "It's one of the best facilities in the area."

"One thing I like about Eastern is all the coaches have a very good working relationship," Moore said. "We're all trying to get the job done under very adverse conditions."

Spring is coming, however, and the fieldhouse doors will soon be open wide.

"I can't wait to get outside," said assistant women's track coach Mary Ohl. "It'll be nice to get out and get room. They're all getting cabin fever - a little stir crazy."

Spring sports teams' wait is just about over

After being forced indoors during the fall and winter off-season, it's finally time for Eastern's spring sports teams to come out of hibernation and get outside where they belong.

The off-season can be tedious for a spring athlete at Eastern. The wait for spring is hard enough for some athletes to endure. But at Eastern, most spring sports teams have to share the close indoor comfort of Lantz Fieldhouse with several other athletic squads at the university.

The baseball, softball, men's and women's tennis and track teams all must share space and time in Lantz.

But the wait will soon be over, and the athletes will be able to return to their natural habitat of the outdoors.

The baseball team will be heading to Monier Field. The home of Eastern baseball may not have basepaths (grass covers the spots where most fields in America have dirt basepaths), but it will still look and feel like the greatest field in the world to anxious Eastern baseball players.

Softball will be returning to Lantz Field, tennis teams to Weller Courts and the track teams will be spending their practice time in O'Brien Stadium.

In the following pages of this guide to Eastern spring sports, the names, numbers and schedules of the spring sports teams will be previewed.

For the athletes of the spring sports teams, it will be a preview of the next two to three months of their lives.

The weather has been teasing the athletes lately by giving them one or two warm days only to slap them in the face by returning to winter-like conditions.

But soon the wait will be over, the grounds will dry and the temperatures will warm up. Then the athletes will be able to get outside, spread their wings and enjoy the thrills of spring sports along with the rest of us.

Heart of order key for Eastern

3-4-5: Jetel, Mierzwa, Nicholes

By ROBERT MANKER
Associate sports editor

Left fielder Jason Jetel is coming off an injury-plagued season. First baseman Keith Mierzwa had a subpar campaign a year ago. Designated hitter Rob Nicholes is a junior transfer student playing in his first season with the Panthers.

Together, the three form the heart of the order for the 1994 Eastern baseball team — Jetel batting third, Mierzwa fourth and Nicholes fifth.

In one way or another, all three will be asked to improve upon their performance of a year ago. That leaves head coach Dan Callahan with some questions and a little concern.

"Jetel was the most productive hitter for us last year when we lost him with the injury," Callahan said of a broken hand Jetel suffered in the sixth game of the season. "So he's going to be productive."

"Keith's somebody we feel has to have a good year for us to have a good year. Last year was kind of a down year for him, but we'll need eight to 10 homeruns and 35 to 45 RBIs from him for us to be successful."

"Rob's hit some balls hard, but he's proven he has a tendency to strikeout. So he has to cut down on the strikeouts and put the ball in play."

Callahan's expectations of the three may be high, but he knows they're capable of achieving them.

"Any of the three could lead the team in homeruns and runs batted in," Callahan said, "and at least two of the three need to have a good year."

Mierzwa, a senior from Dolton, hit .292 last year, stroked seven homers and drove in 31 runs. Those numbers are only slightly off his 1992 production — a .304 average, eight homers and 36 RBI. But Mierzwa wants more out of his final year in a Panther uniform.

"I know I can produce some big numbers here, and that's what I want to do," Mierzwa said. "I've been a mediocre college player, and now I want to be a great college player."

Jetel's outlook is somewhat different. He just wants to remain healthy and make the most of his last chance at a senior season.

"I'm grateful for the opportunity to be able to come back and play again. Not too many people get that chance," Jetel said. "I'm glad (the injury) happened early enough in the season that I was able to redshirt, and I was fortunate enough that I was able to come back and play."

Of the three, Nicholes is the new guy on the block, but he knows what he needs to do.

"As far as run production, we're going to have to come through in a big way," Nicholes said of himself, Jetel and Mierzwa. "You can't count on your pitchers only giving up one or two runs a game.

Senior second baseman Jeff Guest, Eastern's probable No. 2 hitter, will be one player looking to get on base ahead of leftfielder Jason Jetel, first baseman Keith Mierzwa and designated hitter Rob Nicholes. Guest scored 30 runs last year and finished with a team-high .387 batting average.

"Sometimes they're going to give up six or seven. So we're going to have to put some runs on the board."

All three say they like their team's lineup top to bottom, especially the guys hitting in front of them. Shortstop Melesio Salazar and right fielder Steve Kimble figure to split time at leadoff while second baseman Jeff Guest is all but a fixture in the No. 2 slot.

"I think eventually it's going to be a pretty potent heart of the order," Jetel said. "We're going to score some runs, especially with guys like Guest and Salazar getting on base in front of us."

"They've both got speed, and they can both bunt very well," Mierzwa said, "and Guest is the kind of who can get on and also move a guy over."

Rounding out the order are third baseman Steve Dunlop in the sixth spot, centerfielder Jock Martin at No. 7, catcher Shawn Guenther batting eighth and Kimble or Salazar batting ninth, depending who is leading off.

Mierzwa considers that a pretty tough lineup top to bottom.

"We have people who can hit all through the lineup," Mierzwa said. "We haven't really had that in the past. And if somebody's not doing it, somebody else is going to pick up the slack."

Clausen leads veteran Panther staff

Senior righthander Basil Clausen will be the Panthers' No. 1 pitcher in the rotation this season ahead of senior righty Mike Fahey and senior lefthander Andy Keefner. Clausen had a 6-4 record last season with a 2.56 ERA.

By RANDY LISS
Staff writer

If a large percentage of baseball is pitching, then the Eastern baseball team should be in pretty good shape this season.

The Panthers boast a deep, talented, veteran staff this year, highlighted by the return of six seniors. Head coach Dan Callahan expects some big things this year from his very experienced group of hurlers.

"We've definitely got two good starters in Clausen and Fahey. (They) ended as our No. 1 and 2 pitchers last year so we're counting on this same 1-2 combination this year."

— Dan Callahan
Baseball coach

"We'll be in good shape in the conference," said the sixth-year coach. "Our pitchers are not great, but they know how to pitch and use the corners. They're not overpowering, but they know how to pitch, and they will pitch inside."

Heading up the starting rotation will be senior righthanders Basil Clausen and Mike Fahey. Clausen finished the 1993 campaign as the Panthers' No. 1 starter, going 6-4 with a 2.56 ERA while starting 13 games last year.

Fahey went 4-3 with a 3.56 ERA in 11 starts after pitching his first two seasons out of the bullpen.

"We've definitely got two good starters in Clausen and Fahey," said Callahan. "(They) ended as our No. 1 and 2 pitchers last year so we're counting on this same 1-2 combination this year."

Also in the rotation is senior lefty Andy Keefner, who had a rough 1993 campaign in relief, finishing with a 7.84 ERA. Keefner looked good in his first start this year, though, throwing six strong innings. He scattered five hits and allowed only one earned run despite being hit on the hand with a line drive in the fourth inning of that game.

"Keefner's already turning the corner," said Callahan. "He did a heck of a job for six innings (Friday). Andy has really come a long way, one of our most improved between his sophomore year and now."

Quent Hamilton went 3-1 with a 4.26 ERA in 11 appearances last year as a setup man out of the bullpen, and looks to be the Panthers' No. 4 starter when necessary.

"Hamilton was a setup man for (Joe) Keusch last year, but he's capable of being a No. 3 or 4 starter this year," said Callahan.

In the bullpen, senior closer Joe Keusch is expected to come up with a big year. Keusch finished last year with a sparkling 1.67 ERA in 20 games, picking up a Mid-Continent Conference-leading six saves.

"We've got our best guy from our bullpen back in Keusch," said Callahan, "and we're expecting big things from Joe again."

Also available for mound duty are senior righty Sam Jurka, juniors Tom Brabeck and Chris Hall and sophomore Brian Neal.

One oddity for the Panthers' pitching is the fact that they have only three lefthanders on the staff this year. Callahan doesn't view it as a problem, however.

"It can be a problem, but that's something that's a little overrated in baseball, both in college and pro ball," Callahan said. "A lot of coaches say that when you're on defense you want a righty facing a righty, and on offense a lefty on a righty."

"But good pitchers will get people out whether they're righty or lefty. Your better pitchers will get people out."

The Panthers will also have a helping hand on the bench. The club's new pitching coach this year is Derek Johnson, who was a Second Team All-Mid-Continent-Conference selection last year after pitching his way to a 6-5 record in 68 innings.

'Underdog' men's team looks for bite

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

Tennis coach John Bennett knows that his tennis team is normally classified as the underdog.

Eastern, already a non-scholarship college for tennis, has to play 12 Division I programs because of a new NCAA rule, providing an awkward scenario for its 1994 season.

"Most of teams we play are scholarship Division I teams which makes us the general underdog," Bennett said. "It's just something that we will have to deal with."

But Bennett does return seven players from last season's squad and one freshman, all who have an idea of what is expected of them for the season ahead.

"Most of the players know what they need to do in practice and in their individual games," Bennett said. "It will be up to them individually if they want to do it or not."

"We have plenty of players (that can) be successful if they all contribute."

Jason Hotsinpillar	Fr.	No. 6 singles
Jeff Lindstrom	Jr.	various
Pat Mellin	Jr.	various

Mellin, who was slated to be Eastern's No. 2 player, has been unable to participate fully due to night classes and other conflicts. Still, Bennett figures him in for singles spots two through five.

Slated for doubles competition are the duo's of Alexander/Hotsinpillar (No. 1), Rozboril/Kuhl (No. 2) and Macey/Ivers (No. 3).

"We have some kids that are capable of winning at least 50 percent of their matches," Bennett said. "But I just have to push the kids a little harder sometimes so that they push themselves."

And Bennett, knowing what the players are capable of, said he would like to see a little self-sacrifice.

"We had no real upsets last season," he said. "So playing beyond our ability is goal for this team. Doing that will give us that feeling that we can beat a better team."

"What I have to hope for is that kids keep playing up to their abilities and improve. We are capable of being over-achievers, which is what we will need to be if we want to finish at .500."

But the Panthers haven't been in perfect health since starting their regular season on Feb. 11. Both Alexander and Ivers have suffered injuries.

Ivers has been experiencing discomfort from shin splints and Alexander has been suffering from elbow problems for the past year.

But according to Bennett, the problem hasn't been as bad this season for Alexander, though it has been surfacing during match play.

So keeping in shape is another goal Bennett is shooting for out of his team, which they will get a good opportunity to do since their next matches are slated for March 30 against Western Illinois and Sangamon State, a 27-day gap between their March 3 win against Vincennes University.

"I want to stress conditioning so we'll be prepared for the matches ahead and be healthy," Bennett said. "We'll have a good opportunity during that block of time between matches."

Bennett said the team's biggest goal is their performance in the four matches that make up the Mid-Continent Conference tournament (all teams from Mid-Con are represented, except Cleveland State which doesn't have a team), which are all dual matches.

Last season Eastern went 2-2 in the conference tournament. And Bennett is hoping that his team will be additionally motivated in the tournament by the fact that six teams are leaving the Mid-con at the end the season.

"That should be an incentive for our team. If we ever wanted take it out on another team a play over our head, this should be the year because we may never play any of these teams again."

Returning to the courts this spring from a successful fall season where it posted a 20-4 record, the Eastern women's tennis team will combine strength and stability with a core of girls who have match experience.

Head coach John Ross will use a rotation of seven players that all saw action in the fall.

The team will be lead by senior captain Theresa Ramage and junior captains Samantha Wulfers and Melissa Welch.

Ramage, an all-conference selection last year, has been the No. 1 singles player for the last two years. She finished the fall with a record of 14-5 in singles play.

Wulfers, an honorable mention for all-conference last year, completed the fall season with a 7-7 singles record.

Ross said that Welch was one of the strongest double players on the team. She ended the fall season with a mark of 6-2 in singles play.

Other team members include junior Geeta Dua and sophomores Terra Erickson, Kristy Sims, and Stephanie Sullivan.

son, Kristy Sims, and Stephanie Sullivan.

Dua finished the fall season with a singles record of 9-7.

The sophomore trio finished the fall season with a combined singles record of 39-12. Individually, Erickson finished with a 10-6 singles record, Sims a mark of 14-4 in singles play, and Sullivan a singles record of 15-2.

"This team has been together for a solid two years," said Ross. "With only the loss of one senior from last year's team, this year's team has much experience in competition."

According to Ross, Ramage and Wulfers will compete as the No. 1 doubles team. They posted a record of 11-6 in the fall.

After the No. 1 doubles team, Ross said he had many combinations that he was going to experiment with before the conference tournament.

"In order to achieve our goal of winning the conference tournament, we need to improve our doubles play," Ross said. "The team's strength is definitely singles play."

Ross said he believes the key to winning the conference tournament for the Eastern women's tennis team will be if it can take two of the three doubles matches played.

"Last fall we played a lighter schedule so our players could get the experience of match play," Ross said. "The team is stronger mentally this season and will need it for the very tough schedule it will face."

The lady netters will face five regionally ranked teams during the spring season. These teams include Toledo, Central Illinois, Georgia State, Indiana State, and conference foe Northern Illinois.

In conference play, Ross believes that there are six strong teams that will contend for the title. Including Eastern, the other five teams are Illinois-Chicago, Wisconsin-Green Bay, Wright State, Western Illinois, and Northern Illinois.

"Another key to winning the conference tournament is entering it on a hot streak," Ross said. "If a team can get hot in April, anything is possible."

Turley leads experienced pitchers

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

When speaking about Eastern's pitching staff this year, two words will be heard quite often. Coli Turley. Turley returns to the Panther softball team with three years of experience under her belt and with expectations to bring Eastern a possible Mid-Continent Conference title. The Lady Panthers feature a three-person pitching staff but Turley will be the leader on the mound this season. "I don't go by a strict rotation," coach Beth Perine said. "We have three pitchers at the present time. Two are healthy and working out and those two will be our pitchers." Turley and sophomore Missy Porzel have been sharing the mound time so far this season. Sophomore Amy Bradle, who has been inactive due to lower back trouble, is still listed as day-to-day. Turley will most likely start a large majority of the Lady Panthers' games and according to Perine, Turley will act as the nucleus of the staff. "Coli will provide us with senior leadership and she's an outstanding athlete so she'll lead by example," Perine said. "Coli certainly has an edge because she's a senior. She has three good years on the mound so I think she'll have an outstanding year." Turley knows what her job is this year but also cannot hide some emotions about entering her final season. "I'm really excited about it," Turley said. "It's my senior year and I expect a lot out of myself and I hope to do a good job." "What I anticipate happening this year is that Coli will pitch against the best that we play," Perine said. "She will have the opportunity to go against the top-ranked teams in the country and will have an opportunity to pitch against the best teams in our conference." With Bradle's return still unknown, Perine will look to Porzel to put a lot of time in on the mound as well. "Right now there's really no doubt that Coli and Missy are going to be the starters," Perine said. "Amy has been injured and unable to perform so there is really not a question. "We really expect her (Porzel) to do extremely well. She's had very good practices over the last couple of weeks. She's throwing strong so we think she'll be just as effective." Porzel listed her outlook on this season as "very, very optimistic," and was confident in her ability to back up Turley. "Last year was kind of a breaking in year," Porzell said. "I've been working hard this year and it looks really good." Perine and her team will be competing in their second and final season in the current Mid-Continent Conference after moving over from the Gateway Conference one year ago. The Lady Panthers will compete in the newly formed Mid-Con/East Coast merger next year, but Perine has set her eyes on this year. "This year in the Mid-Continent we plan on being a contender for the regular season conference championship and we plan to be in the finals of the Mid-Con tournament," Perine said. And with the current staff leading the way, that goal seems very attainable.

Panthers looking for increased offense

By DAN FIELDS

Offense wins games, defense wins championships. If this proverb proves to be true, Eastern's softball squad should benefit greatly. "I feel confident with our defense," said head coach Beth Perine, whose team has started the season 2-2. "It will be solid." Perine said her team's offense will also be productive this season. Sophomore catcher Sharna McEwan is back again hoping to equal or surpass last year's offensive totals. As a red-shirt freshman last season, McEwan was an All-Mid-Continent Conference and All-Tournament team selection. She finished the season with a .389 batting average and 29 runs batted in. "Besides Sharna, the people we look for are Luann Schleeter and Dede Odle," said Perine. "Offensively producing our runs is where they will help the team. "They will definitely produce some RBI's for us." Schleeter, a junior from East Moline, finished third in team batting average

(.277), hits (36) and RBI's (14). Odle, a senior from Lockport, will hope to improve on last year's .253 average and 11 RBI's. Another returnee is sophomore Shannon Hutson who led the team in steals with 11. "Shannon is very focused at the plate, and will be a definite force in our lineup," said Perine. Perine also sees Hutson as a key factor in sacrifice situations, stating that "she can lay down the bunt when we need her to." A newcomer that Perine is anxious to see perform is freshman Jennifer Cherveney. "She has improved a great deal since the fall, Jennifer has a great deal of potential," said Perine. Perine has noticed Cherveney's hitting ability and further commented that "having a successful freshman hitter is a bonus."

However, Perine said one the key player to this year's team will be senior Coli Turley. Although Turley had a batting average of only .241, Perine is confident that Turley will improve on this aspect of her game. "Coli has worked a lot in the off season," said Perine. "We will see a tremendous rise in her batting average this year." Depending on who is pitching, Perine will use the following at each defensive position: • Left field: Renee Diebold, Missy Porzel. • Center field: Cherveney, Diebold. • Right field: Odle, Caryl Dennis. • Third base: Schleeter, Hutson, Jamie Skerski. • Shortstop: Aimee Klein and Hutson. • Second base: Turley, Schleeter, Bridget Ward. • First base: Nicole Chapman, McEwan. • Pitching: Turley, Porzel, Amy Bradle. • Catching: McEwan, Skerski. Perine is pleased with her defensive alignment, but she is especially happy with her infield stating that "we are very fortunate that our infield is solid."

Golfers striving for consistency

Lueken looking for upward swing in Mid-Con finish

By TIM BROZNEK
Staff writer

Eastern golf coach Paul Lueken is counting on experience and hoping for consistency from his team, which opens competition on April 4 at the Ball State Invitational.

Most of the team members have been in the program for two or three years, and Lueken said that if the team puts these ingredients together, Eastern could challenge for the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament championship in May.

Jamie Reid, who Lueken said was the most consistent player in the fall season, and John Armstrong lead an experienced group whose ultimate goal is to win the conference tournament.

But Lueken admits that accomplishing this team feat would be a "surprise," as Eastern is a non-scholarship golf program, while most of the Mid-Continent Conference schools offer scholarships for their golfers.

However, Lueken is not short on confidence in his players. He predicts that "one of our guys will win the conference tournament."

The team decided before the fall schedule not to have any team captains. Lueken says that most of the team members have been in the program for so long that they know what is expected of them, and each possesses his own leadership qualities.

Lueken said he saw some good scores from the team in the fall and saw some marked improvement in his players.

Since fall season ended, team members have been able to practice despite the winter weather by using a new indoor net. Lueken said the extra practice helped players keep a fluid swing.

In a college golf tournament, only five members of the team can participate, with only the top four scores counting. In two days 54 holes of golf are played and tallied to determine individual and team winners.

Perhaps the reason for Lueken's added confidence is that this year Eastern is hosting the Mid-Con tournament. Lueken said, "if we become more consistent, with our experience we could win the tournament."

Lady Panthers anxious to get out

By JOHN COX
Staff writer

Eastern's women's track team will finally see the light of day.

As the indoor track season winds down, Eastern track members look to rid themselves of cabin fever and take to the larger track.

The Lady Panthers have a meet Friday, the Indiana TAC Track Invitational, and then it's back outside to O'Brien Stadium.

This year's team figures to be one of depth.

"Overall, our strength lies in our distance and throwers right now," assistant coach Mary Ohl said. "We've got three hurdlers, the most we've had in quite a few years, possibly four looking to move outdoors. Two of them have had experience running 300 meter hurdles in high school and we're looking to move them up to the 400 meter hurdles."

Kala Scott, a 100 meter hurdler, is Eastern's best hurdler moving into the outdoor season but Annette Lessen and Tara Jennings have expressed interest in competing in the 400 hurdles.

Ohl said that having two 400 hurdlers would be a luxury because "we've never really had a 400 meter hurdler while I've been here."

Scott also provides a bit of depth by competing in the 400 meter relay, long and triple jumps.

"She's been placing in every meet she's been in, in indoor meets, of course," Ohl said.

Distance, as the cross country team exemplified, will be filled with strong runners that will be able concentrate on specific events a little more, thanks to Eastern's depth.

"Irma Perez, Amy Bersig and Brooke Roberts is the strong heart of the distance. Amy is basically a miler, 1500 meters in outdoors, and Brooke and Irma will be switching off with the 3000 to 5000 meter runs like they've been in indoors," Ohl said. "They've both glad to get outdoor too because of the surface and it cuts the amount of laps they have to run."

Two tough throwers, Denise Hubbard and Candace Blanton, who throws the javelin as well as the disc and shot put, comprise Eastern's best chance in scoring in the strength events.

Sprints, where the Lady Panthers may be weakest, is a tough area to lack talent in, since most of the points in a meet are geared toward a team with powerful sprinters.

But Ohl said that once Eastern's sprinters get outside and heal up, they could be tough.

"Right now, we do have more sprinters than we've had for the past few years," Ohl said. "I'm kind of anxious to see what they can do once they get outside. We've been plagued badly with shin splints; some of them have shin splints so bad right now from this indoor track that we are taking it easy on them for the past couple of weeks."

Ohl said that the quarter milers will especially gain from the larger dimensions of the track.

One of Eastern's top sprinters at the beginning of the season is Caylee Anderson, a freshman and Eastern's top 55 and 200 meter runner right now.

Ohl said that the transition from indoors to outdoors will be relatively smooth, and will be like a light at the end of a tunnel for those suffering leg injuries.

"Outdoor the times go down. The times hopefully will drop because the track is bigger and the turns aren't as tight," Ohl said. "And also hopefully we'll get rid of some of our shin splints and leg injuries because the outdoor track is a lot softer and we don't have the pounding that we have on the indoor track."

Men's track team sets for outdoor season

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

With the indoor season behind them, the Panther trackmen are set to start the outdoor season over spring vacation.

The team's first of eight scheduled meets will be down south at the Alabama Relays. Traditionally, good weather and tough competition at Alabama has in years past brought out the best in the Panthers.

"The good weather and good competition should motivate you to do your very best or even better," said head coach Neil Moore.

With the outdoor season comes a plethora of new events on both the track and in the field. Distance runners can extend their abilities to 10,000 meters (6.21 miles) and can even try their hand at hurdling in the 3000 steeplechase.

Hurdles specialists, who are limited to the 55 high hurdles indoors, will now have both the 110 highs and 400 intermediates to toy around with. Throwers have a wider range as well with the hammer, discus and javelin.

Moore said the addition of events has often helped his team, but that he is not sure whether that will be the case this year.

"We're very young," Moore said. "That's going to work against us. In the past, our record has indicated that we were stronger outdoors than indoors."

Freshman Kert McAfee will be one of the Panthers' top runners in the middle distances this season. Eastern opens the season at the Alabama Relays on March 25.

One new event Moore said could produce success for Eastern is the 4x100 relay. With three-time NCAA sprint qualifier Obadiah Cooper, Don Rice, Ray McElroy, Melvin Jackson and other talents in Eastern's sprint core, Moore is confident of putting together a fast foursome.

"I think we'll be very respectable," Moore said.

Eastern will also be strong in the distance events with Mid-Continent Conference cross country champion Nate Shaffer along with seniors Jeff Trask and Dave Lewis leading the way. Shaffer is fresh off running a 4:10.21 mile indoors and will be showing his talents at other distances as well.

In the field, the Panthers will be strongest in the high jump and pole vault. In the high jump, Eastern can boast of five athletes who can clear 6 feet 6 inches or better. Two of them, Tim Thompson (6-10 3/4) and Neal Trentman (6-10 1/4) both went higher than the near 19-year old outdoor school record (6-10) during the indoor season.

The vault crew is led by Bryan Rebham (16-0) and Todd Benton (15-7) who both rank among Eastern's all-time top 10 performers.

The student body, unfortunately, will have only one chance to see the team in action as the Panthers have only one home competition, the EIU Invitational on April 7-9.

The main focus of the season will be the Central Collegiate Conference Championships held at Western Michigan on May 7. Since the Mid-Continent Conference no longer sponsors a championship meet, due to a lack of full teams, Eastern treats this invitational, which includes many Big Ten schools, as its conference meet.

The Panthers will look to improve on their fifth-place showing last season.
